74 Toyota Celica GT Runs well, needs a muffler. Call 549-7706

82 Mazda GLC low miles runs excellent. First $800 or B.O. Take This Bad Boy. 584-0672

87 Nissan Sentra
114500 Miles B/O
Need exhaust job
Call Mehmet 546-2838

Honda Civic Wagon '85 5 speed, air, excellent $2650.00 549-7167

1990 Volkswagon Jette. Auto, A/C, cassette, excellent condition, 50K miles, $7000, 549-1024

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing
New Hours: 7pm-1am Sun-Thur
7-2 Fri and Sat
The Largest Cookie Selection Always
Still the Best Value in Town
Ben & Jerry's and Milk too!!!
Watch for our new club cards
Coming Soon!!
Ask about our Halloween Specials
Good until Nov. 1.
549-MIX4

FOR RENT

Fridge Rental Free Delivery 253-9742

In Amherst one bedroom 1 mile from UMass. New carpet new gas heater quiet location avail. Immediately. Call 549-8307

FOR SALE

Kenwood 6+1 CD Player
4 mo. old $210
Call Bowers 253-9888

Mac Plus (2) w/accessories Imagewriter 2 (3)
Mac SE, 20 meg, 30 meg hard drives
Mac ICI, Mac display, full hard drives formatted
Packages for $550
1 week offer (Liquidation)
Call 549-5134 for MAX exes

Mountain Bike
18" Trek 830 Antelope
Brand new only ridden twice. $275 or best reasonable offer.
Contact Jay or Doug at 527-0712

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition -- Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

FOUND

Ladies Wristwatch on Tues Oct. 26th near the pond. Call 1-498-2087 to identify and claim.

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships Now Hiring - Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Delivery Persons Wanted Nights, need your own car. Apply at DP Dough Dowtown Amherst

Get up, Stand up work on Clean Water Action's campaign: Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA. Activists wanted flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Travel Free!! Spring Break
Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, S. Padre! Sell "Professional" tour packages! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1-800-426-7710

Work Study Job: Peer Housing Couselors needed. Apply at OCHO, 428, Student Union or call 545-0865

INSTRUCTION

Learn Speed Reading! 2 1/2 week class uses hynosis techniques for quick results. $100 call Amy 253-0578

Learn to Bartend with University Batending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Free info. session Wed. Nov. 3rd in Campus Center room 905 at 7 pm or call (817)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOST

Reward – Lost ratty black bookbag on Sunderland bus Monday PM. Extreme personal value - no possible use to anyone else. Please return - I'm begging. Please? Call Dave at 665-0160. No questions asked.

Roll of Film Thompson 104 call 253-5508

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the 'Minuteman and Proud!' t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to 'LexiCon Productions' to: P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004

MUSICIANS

All Original Band seeking bassist and keyboardist for recording and club shows. Dedication a must! 268-3599

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

Ann Marie
I love you more and more every day. Six months has been great. Let's try for six more.
I Love You
Adam

Ivan,
Spending the last year with you has brought me so much happiness. I love you more and more every day. Happy Anniversary
Love Always,
Jessica

SARAH HART
Happy 20th Birthday!
You are such a sweet!!
We Love You--
Molly and Kristen XO

Steve Happy Anniversary I love you Sharon 10/31/92

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Attention for anyone who has ever felt physically threatened. Quorum International offers the amazing PAAL. The personal attack alarm, a pocketful of protection that is inexpensive. 413-739-7893

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

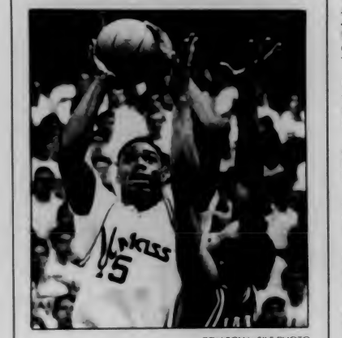
Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

Type/Edit Papers $1.50/pg. Tanya 549-5519

WANTED



Earn Extra $$! Returning to India within four months? Contact 546-4562

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Midnight Madness. Tonight at Mullins Center. Bring student I.D. along with ticket.

Sports

Bill Raftery's Challenge

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

At Midnight Madness tonight, when ESPN's Bill Raftery introduces Lou Roe (pictured) and the rest of the Minuteman basketball team, Raftery said, he hopes the fans will all be wearing UMass/Midnight Madness T-shirts.

"I challenge the fans," said Raftery. "I want to see a sea of white at Mullins."

UMass to be minus McNeilly

Four-game winning streak on line at Northeastern

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts football team will have to make it through the final four games of its season without starting quarterback Andrew McNeilly, who is scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery on his knee this morning.

The Minutemen (5-2, 3-2 in the Yankee Conference) are streaking toward a playoff bid and will play their final road game Saturday at Northeastern (Parson's Field, 1 p.m.).

McNeilly is probably out for the season, and will be replaced in the Minuteman backfield by freshman Vito Campanile, according to UMass Football Caoch Mike Hodges.

"Andrew will have surgery tomorrow, and Vito will be a go on Saturday," Hodges said last night. "He hurt the knee doing some warm up drills. It was a strange time for an injury.

McNeilly said, "We were doing kariokes [a mobility exercise] and I heard a pop in my knee. I haven't missed a game since God knows when. I've never had a problem with my knees before.

"So when I went to the doctor [Wednesday night], I figured he'd tell me to rest [Thursday and Friday], and I'll be ready to go on Saturday."

Both Hodges and offensive coordinator Doug Berry said they are confident the offense will run well despite implementing Campanile as the signal caller.

"We gotta keep doing what we're doing," said Hodges. "The fortunate thing about this, is this is the eighth game of the season, and Vito's had the opportunity to get some practice time. They both get an equal number of snaps in practice. If this had happened the second week of the season, it would have been different."

Compounding the loss of McNeilly is the Husky squad (1-6, 1-3 in the Yankee Conference), who had a stretch during the season when they lost by two, three and three points in three straight games. Coming off a 21-6 loss on the road to a good New Hampshire squad, Northeastern is returning for Homecoming.

The Minutemen have dug themselves out of the hole they put themselves in early in the season and are looking for their fifth straight win and 10th consecutive over the Huskies. The task may prove to be difficult.

Northeastern has a quarterback controversy of its own. BC transfer and starter Clarzell Pearl was hurt again last week in a game against New Hampshire, so it appears Garvey McIntosh may see some action. Kevin Williams and Ike Wilkins are the main runners, and Chris Brady and Jeremy Gobeil are the Run and Gun threats at wideout.

"I'm sure they're telling their kids, 'This is a chance to make your season. Beat UMass, your in-state rival,'" Hodges said. "This is a huge game for them. It's gonna be wild."

Game Notes: The game can be seen on SportsChannel and heard on WMUA 91.1 FM with Sean P. Hayden and Art Stapleton and WTTT 1430 AM with Mike Fagerson and Jim Degnim.

Massachusetts hockey to christen Mullins ice

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

After months of planning and hype, hockey fans at the University of Massachusetts will finally get to see the Minuteman ice hockey team they have heard so much about. They will play their inaugural home game at 7 p.m. tomorrow in the William D. Mullins Center.

UMass received a baptism by fire in its season opener last Saturday, losing 8-2 to a strong Merrimack squad. But UMass Coach Joe Mallen found many positives in the team's first match.

"Our attitude and toughness were definite positives," Mallen said. "We might not be at full Division I strength, but I thought that we played the body really well. We played hard right through the end. Win, lose or draw last week, I felt a great sense of pride, pride in the University and pride in the hockey program."

Mallen said he feels optimistic about the team's prospects against Villanova.

"I feel great going into it. I don't know very much about Villanova right now, but they're a Division III team. They certainly aren't a Merrimack, and they certainly aren't a Hockey East team," Mallen said. "Hopefully, we're in a situation where we will be able to challenge the Division III teams."

UMass will try to employ an aggressive forechecking style on offense and control the play in the defensive zone against the Wildcats. Mallen said he remains undecided on who will be starting in goal for the Minutemen.

Playing at home should prove to be a big advantage for UMass. The Mullins Center has an Olympic-size ice rink, considerably larger than what most division II and III teams are accustomed to.

"I think that the amount of fans we have, and as vocal as our fans are, they will be a big boost to our team," said Mallen.

"Tickets sales are going well," said UMass Ticket Manager Thorr Bjorn. "It is still new and will keep picking up."

Over 1,000 tickets have been sold, and student tickets have been going at a pretty brisk rate. Students can show their ID's at the Mullins Center ticket office prior to Saturday's game and still receive tickets.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts ice hockey team plays Villanova in its first-ever game at Mullins tomorrow night.

Wilkins' kick knocks out No. 5 Connecticut

MATT KAHN/COLLEGIAN

The Minutewoman soccer squad will spend the weekend in Piscataway, N.J., for the Atlantic 10 Tournament.

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

This one was smash-mouth soccer. NFC East soccer.

It was decided because of a physically dominating defense, loads of emotion and big plays from non-stop offensive pressure. And the decision in the New England, women's collegiate heavyweight soccer battle went to the University of Massachusetts, 2-1, in overtime, over fifth-ranked Connecitcut.

The Minutewomen (12-2-3), ranked No. 8 last week and likely to move into the top 5 nationally this week, found themselves down 1-0 at the half, but played a relentless, high octane final 75 minutes of soccer to comeback and post the win, in front of 870 fans at Garber Field.

The rally was capped when senior sweeper Paula Wilkins drilled a perfect 22-yard direct kick, just over the UConn defensive wall and just into the upper left corner of the Huskie net, with just 4:42 gone in the first overtime. UConn goalkeeper Jill Gelfenbien had no shot at the save.

"I was going shot all the way," said Wilkins, who hit a similar overtime game winner against Boston College in the season opener. "I felt really good, felt on. I just tried to visualize it going in and it did."

UConn sweeper Karen Ferguson said, "It was a perfect shot by Paula. There was no way we could defend it."

While the second half and overtime belonged to the Minutewomen (UMass outshot the Huskies 14-5 during those periods), UConn took a 1-0 lead on the strength of a Ginny Woodward goal in the 16th minute and the edge in play into the half.

"In the first half we outplayed them and outpossesed them, but we didn't out-hustle them," UMass Coach Jim Rudy said. "We weren't playing with that old fashioned, blue collar, American work ethic. We didn't work very hard in the first half."

That changed after the break, as UMass, fueled by the insertions of forward Rachel LeDuc and midfielder Colleen Milliken into the lineup, hammered the Huskies, winning countless loose balls and physically wearing down the UConn defense.

"We were hustling out there and that was embellished by the addition of LeDuc and Milliken," Rudy said. "Milliken just burned the left flank and LeDuc was winning ball after ball after ball."

Milliken took a more offensive role than a wing midfielder normally would, but Wilkins and her defensive brethren, Heidi Kocher and Amy Trunk, picked up the slack by stuffing the Huskies on each possession. In overtime, despite pressing, UConn managed only one shot on net.

Even though it controlled the play, UMass could not

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 10

Campus-wide smoking ban takes effect today Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

44° Monday
November 1, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 37

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

The Madness begins

LESLIE WEINSTOCK / COLLEGIAN

Bob Rumbold from WWLP TV-22 interviews some enthusiastic UMass hoop fans at Midnight Madness this past Friday night.

Leadership of Haiti still up in the air

By DAVID BEARD
Associated Press

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — Buoyed by the failure of a U.N. plan to return President Jean Bertrand Aristide to power on schedule, about 200 chanting rightists marched Sunday to demand his replacement.

Later Sunday, a coalition of 20 small right wing political movements demanded the resignation of Aristide, army commander Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and U.N envoy Dante Caputo — the three men who worked about a U.N. plan in July for restoring democracy in Haiti.

The groups were led by the army backed Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti (FRAPH).

FRAPH's leader, Emmanuel Constant, said the U.N. plan "is completely dead" and Caputo should be replaced by Colin Powell, retired chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was unclear whether the coalition's proposal has the support of the ruling military.

"Aristide is not part of the picture. He's not even worth impeachment now," another rightist, Gerard Bissainthe, said at the crowded outdoor news conference.

U.N. spokesman Eric Falt dismissed the resignation demand. "These individuals don't have any legitimacy," he said. "We're involved in the negotiating process and intend to continue," with a meeting set for Wednesday in Port au Prince.

Outside the vacant National Palace at midday, the rightist demonstrators borrowed the tune from "The Farmer in the Dell" for their chant against Aristide Premier Robert Malval: "Arrest Malval! Arrest Malval! Aristide's in deep trouble!"

One protester carried a black and red Duvalierist flag atop the statue to the Unknown Slave. Three older women carried color photographs of Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier as the protesters marched toward the Normandie Bar, a hangout for army-backed civilian gangs known as "attaches."

"We're tired, we're finished with everything, we're going to form our own government!" shouted former Sen. Reynald Georges, a Duvalier supporter. Duvalier and his successor son, Jean Claude "Baby Doc," ruled Haiti for nearly 20 years. The regime was toppled after popular protests chased Jean Claude form the country in 1986.

U.S. and U.N. officials, who have imposed a worldwide oil and arms embargo on Haiti, have warned that a constitutional coup would violate the terms of the U.N. plan to restore Haitian democracy. Despite missing Saturday's deadline for Aristide's return, the United Nations has asked Aristide, Cedras and presidents of both houses of Parliament to meet Wednesday in Haiti to push through the restoration of democracy.

Wild fires cause major damage

Residents stepping forward to help out victims of fire

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. — Jack and Elaine Lund lost their home, clothing and 25 years of memories when a wildlife fire leveled their house near Emerald Bay.

But when they went to church Sunday in newly purchased clothes, they volunteered one of their few remaining possessions to help others left homeless in last week's firestorm. They offered the use of their pickup truck to carry victim's belongings.

"There may be people worse off than us," said Lund, who retired from the Army in 1968 and ran a golf cart distributorship afterward. "We lost all the material things of the house, which means nothing."

At St. Catherine of Siena Roman Catholic Church in Laguna Beach, and at churches and homes around Southern California, people like the Lunds were stepping forward to help. And they were counting their blessings that, despite the destruction wrought by fires that flared up with a blast of Santa Anas, nobody was killed.

Thirteen major fires in a 200 mile stretch from Ventura County to the Mexican border torched 167,700 acres, damaged or destroyed 787 buildings, including at least 650 homes, and injured 62. A preliminary estimate from the state Office of Emergency Services put damage at $500 million.

The Laguna Beach fire, which destroyed 366 homes and businesses and charred 16,680 acres of brush and suburban landscape, was contained within a line of bare earth. A destructive 5,700 acre blaze above Altadena was 60 percent contained by burning away form homes into the mountains northeast of Los Angeles and a 39,000 acre fire in Ventura Count was 90 percent contained.

High clouds drifted over most of the region, maintaining cool, most weather that helped firefighters get the upper hand on the fires. But the forecast lent urgency to efforts by hundreds of firefighters who rushed to the area from across California and the West.

Free trade agreement lingering in Congress

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton, battling in Congress for a trade agreement he considers vital to U.S. interests, would happily settle for the same two vote margin that passed his economic plan.

But because of fear that the agreement would destroy jobs, the president is at least 50 votes short.

Clinton was never so far behind before the House approved his deficit-cutting plan, including a major tax increase, 218-216, in August. The Senate added its endorsement when Vice President Al Gore broke the 50-50 tie.

Because the issue this time is a three nation treaty that cannot be amended without the concurrence of Mexico and Canada, Clinton's ability to deal for votes is severely restricted.

Neither opponents nor backers of the North American Fee Trade Agreement, or NAFTA, are ready to say the fight is over. The pact's fate will be decided in a vote Nov. 17 in the House.

"It's hand to hand combat out there now," said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., a supporter. "We're still going uphill but I believe we are going to win it."

Jim Jontz, a former Indiana congressman who is directing an anti-NAFTA lobbying group called the Citizens Trade Campaign, says: "I'm not betting the farm today. If they could sell part of the White House lawn to get the votes they would do it."

House Democratic Whip David Donior of Michigan, who is in the unusual position of leading opposition to NAFTA, claims 208 committed "no" votes — just 10 short of an absolute majority. Treaty backers, including Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia, don't dispute that, but say it does not necessarily reflect what will happen when the vote is taken. Gingrich said Sunday that "frankly we need to keep the president focused on the Democratic side where they have far fewer votes than we do."

Most Democrats oppose the agree-

Turn to NAFTA, page 4

Escaped convicts cancel Halloween in Bridgewater

By ANNE STUART
Associated Press

BRIDGEWATER, Mass. — Two killers serving prison terms escaped Sunday from the Massachusetts Correctional Institution, and anxious police told residents to cancel Halloween trick or treating.

Robert Dellelo, 51, formerly of Revere and Joseph Correia, 38, formerly of Charlestown, were discovered missing from the prison's Old Colony Correctional Center at 11:50 a.m. during a head count, said police Officer Robert Fernandes.

The center is a medium security part of the prison complex.

Dellelo was convicted in the 1963 killing of Boston police Officer George Holmes in a jewelry store holdup. He has been in prison since 1964.

Correia, who was also convicted of killing a police officer, has been in prison since 1976.

One resident who reported seeing the two identified them from mug shots, Fernandes said. Another resident reported seeing two white males wearing blue jeans leaving the woods on foot and entering another wooded area about 2:30 p.m., police said.

"They looked like they were scared, like they were anxious or something, like they were out of place," said Rebecca Treloar, who said she saw the two before hearing of the escape.

"When I found out they had escaped, it scared me half to death," Treloar said.

The two were considered extremely dangerous. The search was extended statewide at about 6 p.m. Sunday.

More than 70 police officers and correctional officers using dogs scoured a wooded area where the two were thought to be hiding. Fernandes said. Motorists were stopped and their trunks searched, and police knocked on doors in search of the two.

Turn to BRIDGEWATER page 4

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Brunelli, Caitlin Olsen

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

In the Friday, Oct. 29, issue of the Collegian, the story on women's soccer was a reprint of an earlier article. The article which was supposed to appear was a preview of the weekend's Atlantic 10 tournament.

The Collegian regrets the error.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, November 1

Meeting — The Union Video Center is holding a general meeting for new and old members at 6 p.m. at the center, located behind the Hatch. For more information, call 545-1336.

Information session — The National Student Exchange is holding an information session at 4 p.m. in Campus Center.

Meeting — The Armenian Club will have a general meeting in Campus Center Room 802 at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets — This is the last day to purchase tickets for the Dec. 5 and 6 trip to the Washington, D.C., Holocaust Museum. Tickets are available at TIX Unlimited at $20 for members of Hillel and $30 general public. The trip is sponsored by Hillel House.

Tuesday, November 2

Information session — The National Student Exchange is holding an information session at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Wednesday, November 3

Career forum — Judaic Studies and Hillel House are holding the Edwin M. Rossman Career Forum at 3:30 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. For more information call the Mather Career Center at 545-2224.

Meeting — The Undergraduate Student Senate is meeting at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163. All are invited to attend.

Presentation — "Learning as if All Life Really Mattered: How to Work for the Common Good of Self, Society and Earth" will be presented by Bruce Kantner, founder of the Geocommons College Year Program from 7 to 10 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804-08. For more information, contact the STPEC department at 545-0043.

Poetry reading — "Poetry Buffet" will be held at Wheeler Gallery at 7:30 p.m. A free reception will follow the reading.

Meeting — The University Community Service Council will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 165-169. Students, faculty and administrators are invited to attend.

Meeting — Five College Habitat for Humanity will meet at 7 p.m. in Holdsworth Hall Room 105.

Victory turns into ugliness

By RICHARD EGGLSESTON
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — The scene seemed natural: thousands of students euphoric after Wisconsin's victory over Michigan, spilling out of the stands and driving relentlessly toward the nearest goalpost.

Some realized immediately that something was dreadfully wrong, including football players who rushed to a pile of people at the north end of the stadium. But most others partied on, happy at having pushed past barriers and security guards to reach the artificial turf of Camp Randall Stadium.

At least 80 were injured, seven critically, on Saturday, when a railing collapsed at the edge of the student section, sending fans tumbling into a 10 foot wide gap between the stands and a 4 foot chain link fence.

One person remained in critical condition Sunday.

University of Wisconsin Chancellor David Ward said the school would immediately review what, if any, changes are needed before Saturday's home game against Ohio State.

UFO sighters fine according to study

By MALCOLM RITTER
Associated Press

NEW YORK — People who think they've seen a UFO or a space alien appear to be just as intelligent and psychologically healthy as other people, a new study says.

Researchers found that UFO reporters scored no worse than other people on tests of psychological health, intelligence and fantasy proneness.

They appeared to be "very normal," said study co-author Patricia Cross of Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada.

Many of their reports may just be misinterpretations of unfamiliar sights or experiences, influenced by a prior belief in visits by space aliens, she said.

Cross, a psychology graduate student who did the study as her master's thesis, reports the work with psychologist Nicholas Spanos and others at Carleton in the November issue of the Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

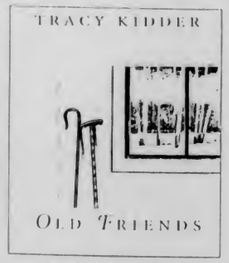
Distinguished Teaching Award Nominations

DEADLINE: NOVEMBER 4, 1993

If you know a faculty member or teaching assistant/associate who is truly outstanding and deserves recognition, submit a nomination in writing with a brief description of why your nominee deserves the award.

Faculty, alumni & current graduate/undergraduate students may nominate.

SUBMIT NOMINATIONS BY THURSDAY NOVEMBER 4, 1993



TO: DISTINGUISHED TEACHING AWARD COMMITTEE
GRADUATE DEAN'S OFFICE
514 GOODELL BUILDING
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

Tracy Kidder will be here at 3 p.m. on Thursday, November 4 to autograph his new book. Please come and meet him.

Old Friends takes place at Linda Manor in Northampton.

Tracy Kidder has won the Pulitzer Prize and countless other awards for his best-selling portraits of American life. Now he confronts his greatest theme in this close-in study of old age. With the exactitude and the rich human sympathies for which he has become famous, Kidder opens up this world to us as if it were a wondrous new country - a country that turns out to be very like one's native land.

Once again, in the humble materials of daily life, Tracy Kidder - the author of House and Among Schoolchildren - has discovered a story of breathtaking intensity and depth. Old Friends introduces us to Lou Freed and Joe Torchio, strangers thrust together as roommates. They discover, as Kidder writes, that the problem of Linda Manor is "the universal problem of separateness," and we watch as, movingly, they set about solving it, with camaraderie and friendship, and ultimately love.

Jeffery Amherst Bookshop
55 South Pleasant Street, Amherst
Massachusetts 01002 • 253-3381
Open Mon-Sat 'till 8 p.m. Sundays 12-5 p.m.

Local News

Speaker tries to impart thoughts of liberalism

By EVELYN A. DE JESUS
Collegian Staff

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN
Management guru Tom Peters

Every organization has to prepare for the abandonment of everything it has done, a management guru who charges up to $60,000 for a day seminar said last week.

More than 1,200 people congregated at the Fine Arts Center last Thursday to listen to Tom Peters, who advocates cooperation among co-workers and continuous improvement in organizations.

Peters, called by Forbes ASAP a "free market enthusiast" and a "$1 million donor to the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU)" said these are the times of the "chaos for the Industrial Revolution" because people are seeing the "errors of conservatism" in management.

The woman who dropped out of college because she thought it was "boring" is a valuable asset to a company, said the so-called management "revolutionary."

"She had the nerve to do something interesting and will do the same thing for us," said Peters who earned an Industrial Engineering degree from Cornell and an M.B.A from Stanford University.

Recession is over, economists say, and American companies continue to lay off employees. That is why "crazy times, call for crazy organizations."

A "curious" organization hires "curious people," such as someone who did volunteer work for a year or collect bees, said Peters, who voted for Bill Clinton.

"If curiosity is not on a person's resume, do not expect it to bloom tomorrow in your business," Peters said.

"Hire weirdos," Peters said, referring to the "success" of Apple Company, and the inventors of this computer.

A manager can know what an employee is doing for a company by updating their resume every three months, Peters said.

"You have done something for us," Peters said, "then, can you prove it?"

Meanwhile other management experts focus on forecasting the future in the business field, Peters said "he is not so smart" to do the same, but he focuses on saying what is happening "right now, in 1993."

Every time Ben & Jerry's, a regional ice cream company, introduces a new product, Peters said the management always asks "are we/is it weird enough?"

Peters, in his 50's, is the author of the business bestsellers Liberation Management and In Search of Excellence. He founded the Tom Peters Group, which consists of three training and communication companies in Palo Alto, Calif.

Smoking ban begins

Campus is smoke-free after two delays

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Bundle up, smokers! Put on your hats and mittens, because starting today you have to smoke outside.

The University's smoking ban went into effect today. Under the policy, all areas of campus are smoke-free except for "designated guest rooms at the Campus Center Hotel and certain University owned and leased individual rooms and apartments, including residence halls."

The smoke-free areas of campus include: all classrooms, stairwells, restrooms, public areas, food service areas, food preparation areas, entrance ways and auditoriums, all work sites including individual faculty and administrative offices, all rooms in which business meetings are regularly conducted, University Health Services, and any state vehicles in which any occupant is a non-smoker.

No butts about it

The campus-wide smoking ban applies to the following areas:

classrooms
stairwells restrooms cafeterias kitchens entrance ways auditoriums work sites offices meeting rooms
Health Services
state vehicles

The smoking ban was supposed to be implemented on Sept. 1 but was moved up to Oct. 1 and then to Nov. 1 in order to permit individuals to organize the new procedures and to utilize the assistant programs before it went into effect.

"I think the ban is stupid, " said Maya Bradley, a junior communications major, and a smoker. "A lot of people need to smoke."

Bradley suggested that the University designate a few smoking rooms where people are allowed to smoke.

"People should have some place they feel comfortable smoking," said senior hotel, restaurant and travel administration major and smoker, Kim Moore, "and it's cold outside!"

Administrative Assistant of Housing Jean Hebert said Housing Services will keep the same policy it has been using, which is to allow smoking in designated lounges in the residence halls.

The new policy also includes programs and clinics offered by the University to help smokers stop smoking.

The policy was proposed by the University Health Council in accordance with recent medical findings by the Environmental Protection Agency who declared second-hand smoke a Class A carcinogen which is in the same category as asbestos, radon and benzene. It is also intended as a minimum to comply with the State Clean Indoor Air Law.

"I think the smoking ban is a good idea," said Mike Schultz, a non-smoking student. "It's a safety issue, but it's too bad that it razzes smokers."

To enforce the policy, formal letters of reprimand will be sent to any individual who does not abide by its rules. These letters would have an effect on that person's career, regardless of the person's position at the University.

Junior history major and smoker, Patrick Wayman said he's not all that upset about the ban.

"If I didn't smoke, I wouldn't want to smell others smoke," said Wayman. "So you have to get up and smoke outside. It's no big deal."

Dedication of Mullins Center is a success

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

The University officially dedicated the William D. Mullins Memorial Center, Saturday night, before the start of the first UMass home hockey game.

A plaque dedicating the center to late state Representative William D. Mullins was unveiled on the wall at the main entrance of the building.

On the ice, University President Michael Hooker and Chancellor David Scott presented a replica of the plaque to Kay Mullins, widow of William Mullins.

She said her husband would have been overwhelmed and stunned by the tribute. He would have been thrilled it was finally completed.

"My son is vying for the honor to hang the plaque in his house," she said. "He may get it someday, but right now I'll hang it in my own home."

Mullins died in 1986 at the age of 54. University officials say they named the facility in his honor as a tribute to his dedication to higher education and his deep interest in athletics, the UMass sports program in particular.

According to officials, Mullins who was the vice chair of the House Ways and Means Committee, realized that UMass did not have an indoor facility of sufficient size for major sports and other events.

From 1985 until the time of his death, Mullins enlisted the support of campus official and legislative leaders and began building the momentum to fund the construction of a multi-purpose sports and convocation center.

"The center was badly needed," said Kay Mullins.

After the tribute, Gov. William Weld dropped the ceremonial first puck with help from Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci. The UMass-Villanova hockey game was the first home hockey game for UMass after a 14-year absence.

Saturday night's ceremony was the first in a series of dedication events at the Mullins Center. Sources say other dedication events will be held during the year.

Let the music play

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN
The trombonist from Bim Skala Bim plays to a packed crowd at Pearl Street last Thursday night. See related story on page 7.

Rabid raccoons cause concern

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

A warning about rabid raccoons has come from the University's Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) office.

George H. Reed, the senior environmental health specialist, said there is some cause for concern that rabies from raccoons has travelled to Hampshire County.

"People should be concerned and use caution around wild animals," Reed said.

Reed said there was an incident in Ware two weeks ago, in which a woman was bitten by a raccoon as she was walking along a path. The animal was not caught, so authorities could not determine whether it was infected with the disease, but the woman was treated anyway.

There was also one caught in Springfield, which was infected, but did not bite anyone. Reed said these were the two closest incidents.

Last year on campus, two raccoons were caught and killed, but no rabies tests were performed so the presence of rabies can only be assumed.

According to Reed, raccoon rabies has been moving up the East Coast for a number of years. It was a problem in New York and Connecticut and first appeared in Fitchburg a year ago and has become widespread since that time.

"They like to stay near humans," Reed said. "They've become a pest."

The reason for concern is that raccoons live in close proximity to humans. Unvaccinated pets, such as cats and dogs can transmit the disease to their owners.

To prevent this, pets need to be administered up-to-date rabies vaccinations. Because of their habits, cats are more likely to come in contact with rabid raccoons and feline vaccinations became mandatory in February. Data exists showing cats are 10 times more likely to contract rabies than dogs.

Turn to RABIES, page 4

■ Bridgewater

continued from page 1

The town swarmed with police and prison guards late Sunday, searching with spotlights in the rain, fog and 40 degree temperatures.

A whistle blew every half hour to tell residents the convicts were still at large.

Authorities urged residents not to let their children outside.

"I haven't had a trick or treater yet, and usually I've had a million of them by this time," said Selectman John J. Colford shortly after dark.

"People are concerned, but I don't think frightened," Colford said.

A daytime parade by costumed children went off as scheduled, though attendance was down. Organizers blamed cold and rainy weather.

But residents were jittery.

"I have the doors locked, believe me," said Joanne Potwin, a taxi dispatcher.

Dawna Napolitano, 18, a high school senior, went out with friends Sunday night, but said her parents had admonished her to check in.

"My street is a family street and there's hardly any kids out," said Napolitano, as she shared a bag of candy with a friend. Both were dressed as cheerleaders.

"This is a good night to escape," said Derek McElroy, 18, another high school senior, gesturing toward friends who also wore Halloween disguises. "They could dress up in a costume."

A clerk at a local convenience store said residents seemed more upset that Halloween had been cancelled than they were about the escape.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

ment, chiefly because organized labor fears it will make it easier for U.S. companies to move jobs to Mexico to cut their wage costs.

Clinton cannot win on this issue without a heavy majority of the 175 House Republicans.

"I wish last week the president had come up and pushed in health care," Gingrich said on CBS's "Face the Nation."

The Senate almost certainly would support the agreement but cannot consider it unless it passes the House.

Clinton says his treaty, which he inherited from the Bush administration, will simply make U.S. products more available and cheaper for Mexicans to buy, creating demand and jobs.

■ rabies

continued from page 3

Reed offered the following advice to help guard against rabies. He said to avoid feeding raccoons or other wildlife because this encourages them to come near humans.

He also said to avoid wild or stray animals of any kind and to not nurse them if they appear sick. He said to never handle wild animals.

"Don't feed them or taunt them or anything," Reed said.

Reed also said rabid animals can be either aggressive or docile and to avoid those that appear sick or are acting strangely.

He advised that pet owners should have their animals properly vaccinated as the law requires and to teach children to avoid wild and stray animals. Keeping refuse containers secure is recommended because Reed said garbage attracts raccoons.

Reed said to wash wounds immediately with soapy water and seek medical attention if scratched or bitten by an animal. For those on campus, he advised seeking treatment at University Health Services and contacting EH&S.

He also said to contact EH&S if any animal is observed on campus acting strangely. Other high-risk animals are bats, skunks, foxes, woodchucks and opossums.

Reed said the current "scare" mainly involves raccoons and, while there is cause for concern, there should not be cause for alarm.

He said raccoons co-exist with humans in both urban and suburban areas so transmission could occur, but if people are careful, they should be all right.

Reed said raccoons have also been diagnosed with distemper virus, which has symptoms similar to Rabies, but it is not harmful to humans. He said to avoid sick animals anyway.

We line your bird cages,
wrap your fish,
and help you train your puppy.
Meet the people behind the Massachusetts Daily Collegian at the Collegian Open House
this Friday from 1-3 p.m.
113 Campus Center

Get Acquainted Special $12.99 Reg. price $25.17 OIL & FILTER SERVICE SPECIAL*
HONDAS and 4CYL. ACURAS only
HONDA SureThing PARTS & SERVICE
*Offer good with this ad only. Expires 11-30-93
171 King Street Northampton 586-8626 HONDA
COUPON

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES
WITH THIS AD Additional 10% off any one item
We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies, Posters, Portfolios
Special Orders Encouraged
HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8, Saturday 9:30-5:30, Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA 01003, 413-253-5592

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

EAR GEAR AND OTHER FINE LISTENING APPAREL...
Major Compact Disc, Record and Cassette Liquidation Sale!
1000's of CD's, LP's and Cassettes featuring Major Artists and Titles...
Ziggy Marley & The Melody Makers, Tracy Chapman, Lou Reed, Simple Minds, Happy Mondays, Anthrax, Natalie Cole, Siouxsie & The Banshees, The Cult, Faster Pussycat, CD's $6.99-$7.99, Black Uhuru, Gang of Four, Robert Cray, The Pixies, Jimmy Buffet, John Hiatt, INXS, LP's $2.99-$3.99, The Moody Blues, Rickie Lee Jones, Elvis Costello, The Jam, Stereo MC's, NRBQ, Peter Gabriel, New Fast Automatic Daffodils, Cassettes $2.99-$3.99, Tears For Fears, Deee-Lite, The Band, Beach Boys, The Sugarcubes, The Doors, Morrissey, Buckwheat Zydeco
Prices so low you can't afford to miss this sale!!
Nov. 1st-19th University Store Campus Center • 545-2619

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

The Iran-contra criminals must not escape justice

Last Tuesday, Jim Wright, the former Speaker of the House of Representatives, said that haste and the fear of the possible impeachment of President Ronald Reagan led Congress to abandon its inquiry into the full extent of the Iran-contra scandal.

"I hoped that there would not be discovery of an impeachable offense," said Wright. "I didn't want to focus on such a divisive subject. I may have bent over backwards in error."

Yes, Speaker Wright, that you most certainly did. Wright, who resigned his high office because of a scandal of his own, was afraid of opening up a second Watergate ordeal that might have led to the collapse of the Reagan presidency. Instead, Wright and the Congress stood by and watched the nation collapse.

Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent prosecutor in the case, found notes after the close of the congressional inquiry that were written by Reagan's top advisors. These notes listed in detail Reagan's key role in the criminal affair, a multinational deal that involved arms shipments, covert war, and the shipping of the same drugs that Reagan has spoken so loudly against. Walsh has been laughed at and derided for his continued pursuit into the investigation. Wright, now atoning for his sins of letting the Iran-contra crooks off so easily, now urges that Walsh's final report, completed just last August, be immediately released.

Because of the quick end of Congress's investigation in 1987, an incident far wider and deeper than even Watergate itself, an incident that involved two presidents, several foreign governments, international narcotics headmen, and the Central Intelligence Agency, has been hidden from the American public. While Reagan was never brought to trial, the offenses attributed to him were more than enough to impeach him. Instead, history went off in another direction.

Peter J.
ORVETTI

Iran-contra co-conspirator George Bush was elected president in 1988. Despite statements to the contrary, Bush was very much in the inner circle of the plans that diverted profits from illegal arms shipments to Iran to the right-wing contra insurgents in Nicaragua. While the formal evidence has not yet been entirely revealed, Bush himself made his guilt perfectly clear last Christmas Eve. That day, Bush pardoned six high-level Reagan administration figures who might have been brought to court because of Iran-contra. He did this so that documents with his name on them could never be called up as evidence. Bush even considered pardoning himself for crimes he claims he has never committed.

Lt. Col. Oliver North, originally found guilty of three offenses, is now running for U.S. Senator in Virginia. North has never forgotten the brief yet strong "Ollie for President" craze during the Iran-contra summer, and one day hopes to revive it. Remember that this is the same Ollie North who claims that the My Lai massacre during the Vietnam War, in which the population of an entire town, including children, was tormented and killed by laughing U.S. soldiers under the command of Lt. William Calley, never occurred. This is also the same Ollie North who was forced into psychiatric care when he was found wandering in the woods naked with a gun.

Now we hear Jim Wright, in 1987 one of the most powerful people in the country, admitting that Congress ignored just how great the scandal really was. We have the Walsh report hidden from public view until at least the end of this year. We have six individuals whose level of involvement was questionable, now unable to ever be brought to trial. We have a mad Marine who loves to play with guns eyeing the Senate. We have a CIA beyond control. And we have George Bush, who in the midst of this scandal still managed to get elected president, and who has now virtually admitted to his involvement through his actions, living in the splendor of retirement. Both criminal Reagan and criminal Bush are receiving large government pensions for their years of dutiful service in the Oval Office.

There is no point trying to get around it. There has been a massive cover-up of what really went on in those secret meetings. We now know who was there. We may never know what they did. Until all the facts are out in the open, and until all of these men, even Reagan and Bush, are forced to face justice, Iran-contra will not end.

Peter J. Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

These are the days to hold on to...

There comes a point in life when you just have to pin your ears back and go full-speed ahead — whether or not you hit a brick wall is irrelevant. This bumpy, roller coaster ride you are on toward that brick wall could in fact be the best of all time.

Am I Dazed and Confused about this whole trip? Nah, if there was a movie on me, it'd probably be Tired, Restless and Sappy. Then I think about it, this title could apply to my buddies as well, and I wonder what we're doing wrong. Why don't we have girlfriends, why are we always so depressed?

Arthur
STAPLETON JR.

I really don't have an answer, but I know I can count on one thing: we'll all be depressed together; out of all of this, we find a way to have fun. Listening to Lionel Richie, Jimmy Buffett and Pearl Jam, playing Sega (NHL Hockey '94, of course,) dippin' Skoal.

As a close friend of mine said, we're good ole American boys, like the ones from Don MacLean's "American Pie," sitting around drinking whiskey and rye. Well, we prefer Busch Light, but yeah, I guess you can take any one of us home to meet Mom and Dad. You can count on it. That is the way we are.

It is hard to imagine that I've gotten so close to some of my friends here at UMass in a shorter time than it took to befriend ones from high school. But as we all come to realize, our time in Amherst ends usually when we graduate.

Next year I am going to be faced with life here at the University without some of my closest confidants. When I first thought about it, the idea scared me — what would I do without them? How could I live without some of my friends? I almost burst into tears. The day the music dies might in fact be next May. Even if it isn't next May, it will be when I leave Amherst.

So much of our future as college students is unknown. The only thing that we can guarantee is the present. Sure, you can remember the past but it is great to prepare for the future. When it comes down to it, though, the time for us is now. Billy Joel said it best: "This is the time to remember/because it will not last forever/These are the days to hold on to/'cause we won't although we'll want to."

Now as I try to focus on classes, my job, my future, I have to worry about life. Personal success is very important to me. As the time here with the Minuteman mascot, the Collegian, the Student Union Steps, the Mullins Center goes by, I want to be the best possible person I can be. My friends and I are on our way. Hell, we're there already.

Carpe diem.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

What's gone wrong with the multicultural mission

On September 15, Chancellor David Scott addressed a crowd on the Student Union steps. As he spoke, he called for a multiculturally aware campus. Two weeks later, Bill Cosby spoke to a crowd of thousands at the Mullins Arena about Racism and Multiculturalism. The Collegian has a bi-weekly Multicultural Affairs page. This campus' mission statement includes the phrase, "achieve a multicultural campus," and students here, who hail from culturally different backgrounds, have experienced a history of harassment, discrimination, intimidation and persistent disrespect.

What do all of these events have to do with multiculturalism? Nothing. Multiculturalism in this campus' community has come to stand for, and will probably always stand for a grand total of nothing. With this fervor over multiculturalism, why is it that these events occurring so closely together in time and geographical location are so inequitable? Why is it with all of the Administration's attempts to make things better here at the University, that students generally feel unsupported, still feel harassed, and are frustrated into doing nothing?

The problem seems to lie in the patterns of communication and definitely not in the lack of it. For it seems to me, in this cursory view, that the Administration is suffering from problems in their feedback. To examine it from a more communicative perspective, with the Administration using its many and varied avenues to address the issues of multiculturalism, their message is getting our to the students, the largest multicultural group there is. However they do not seem to be receiving any feedback from this very multicultural student body whom they hope to serve.

Alan
AAH

The reasons are simple. First, there is too much interference in the form of personal agendas and administrative politics. Which results in students and faculty from the different cultures of the world to the white homogenous population of America feeling tyrannized by the same rules and same regulations laid down by the same Administration.

Second, the channels the students are permitted to send their feedback through are too slow, bureaucratic, and pristine to meet their needs. This also allows the Administration to do what they do best, not listen and not respond. Or permit them to play their favorite game, waiting. They wait, and wait, and wait, until brothers are beat, glass is shattered, a building is taken over, and some white guy is drinking blood cause his teeth were knocked loose.

Having said this about the Administration I find it hard not to share my Joy-Joy feelings towards them with others. For surely there are others who have their fingers sticky from licking at the corrupt pie. It would be wrong to say that the Administration does not listen at all, but perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the feedback they do receive is false echoes for, individuals acting out of self-interest. Suffice to say, a few students are responsible too.

Finally, I believe that if the Administrators were to just buy some Q-tips, put aside their fears along with their personal agenda, free some time from their valuable and countless meetings, and listen to more than just a few token, passive individuals, and communicated clearly their direction, intention and action, that multiculturalism would come to mean something for everyone on this campus.

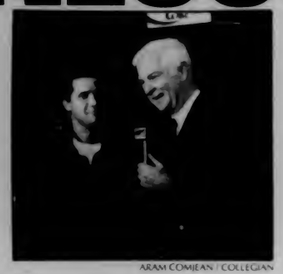
Alan Aah is a UMass student.

Nursing program is essential

I am a senior in the School of Nursing at UMass. I was shocked to hear Ron Story of the University President's Office had called for the "deactivation" of a doctoral program in nursing that had been approved by the Board of Trustees of UMass. This was to have been a joint program between the Schools of Nursing at Amherst and Worcester. This would have been the only doctoral program in nursing offered by a publicly funded institution in Massachusetts. The deactivation of this program is a devastating blow to the nursing profession in this state. The higher education of nurses is essential, especially in the wake of proposed health care reforms which will give nurses greater opportunity to practice at an advanced level.

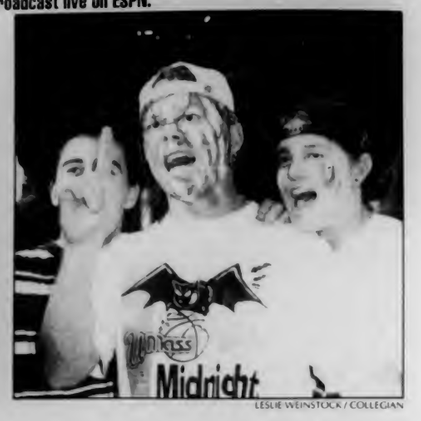
The faculty a the School of Nursing at Amherst are all distinguished professionals involved in research and leadership on the national and international level. This doctoral program in nursing would give all nurses the opportunity to pursue their profession to the highest level. Dean Melanie Dreher, at the School of Nursing, has worked very hard for several years to get this program implemented and with one letter Ron Story has taken this opportunity for nurses away.

I am asking Ron Story to reconsider his decision concerning this program. The reactivation of this program would be in the best interest of the state and the nursing profession.



Susan J. Spencer
Co-President,
Student Nursing Association

MIDNIGHT MADNESS



This first practice of the 1993 Minuteman Basketball team was attended by thousands of screaming fans and broadcast live on ESPN.

ARASH COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

LESLIE WEINSTOCK / COLLEGIAN

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
Held over through Thurs. Nov. 4
Shown Daily at 9:35 only
Tickets on sale from 8:30
"SPECTACULARLY FUNNY!
The Ultimate Party Movie, Socially Irresponsible And Totally Irresistible."
Two thumbs up!
Dazed and Confused
music-Aerosmith-Deep Purple-ZZ Top-Alice Cooper-War-Peter Frampton & more
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

MICHAEL'S
Mon-Thurs. 4-1
Fri-Sat 1-1
Billiards and Sports Bar AMHERST, MA
FREE PIZZA
Every Sunday & Monday Night For All NFL Games
2 for 1 SPECIAL
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
2 hrs of pool for the price of 1
LIVE D.J.
Every Thursday & Saturday Night
Friday is Karoke Night
OPEN POOL TOURNY
Every Weds. at 7:30 pm
$ $ CASH PRIZES $ $
Route 9 East, Amherst, Next to Hunan Garden

Wh[illegible] use when your term paper's still [illegible] finished but your printer is.
VISA
With Visa® you'll be accepted at more than 10 million places, nearly three times more than American Express. And that's not a misprint.
Visa. It's Everywhere You Want To Be.®
® Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1993

Arts & Living

Cliff to groove Pearl St.

By JONATHAN RATCLIFF
Collegian Correspondent

World renown Jamaican reggae star Jimmy Cliff will appear live, upstairs at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton tonight, with special guest, the Equalites.

Jimmy Cliff's show promises to be one of high energy roots-rock reggae, simply a must-see for lovers of reggae and casual listeners alike. Last Fall around this time, Cliff and the Equalites teamed up for the same double bill, and it proved to be a very hot show.

Cliff's experience in reggae music performance is evident in his live shows. He is an artist with more than thirty years of performing under his belt; and has produced over twenty albums worth of songwriting, making him one of the most successful living Jamaican (and third world) performers of all time.

Cliff was integral in the international growth of reggae. His early songwriting made reggae music more accessible to the rest of the world, clearing a path for legendary reggae greats Bob Marley and Peter Tosh.

"My role so far has been the shepherd of Reggae music, Jamaican music, paving the way. When they wanted to bring Reggae music to the U.S., to the U.K., to Africa, they sent for Jimmy Cliff," Cliff states, proudly and truthfully.

A large step in the integration of reggae music into Western cuiture was made with the 1972 movie "The Harder they Come," which starred Cliff, and was filmed almost entirely in Jamaica. The soundtrack included the hits from the most popular reggae of the time, and contains many Cliff songs.

In many ways the film portrays aspects of Cliff's own life: a young Jamaican "rude boy" down from the rural mountains, trying to make a better life for himself in music. This is an underlying theme in much of Cliff's lyrical songwriting; the hopes and dreams of a better future for all.

COURTESY JRS RECORDS
Jimmy Cliff

It is likely that tonight's show will include Cliff's international reggae classics from the late 60's and early 70's: familiar songs like "The Harder They Come," "You Can Get it if You Really Want" and the souiful "Many Rivers to Cross," mixed with work from his later aibums, particularly from his most recent album Breakout, released last year.

Cliff tours with a Jamaican backup band, and they tend to play with studio precision. There are also diversions for Cliff to play the acoustic guitar and preach his strong belief in universal peace and love for fellow persons.

As he sings in the song "Peace" from the Breakout album: "We must make the world a better place... for all the human race."

The Equalites are the backbone of the areas local reggae scene, and their live music reflects a tightly played, weil- executed interpretation of the Jamaican reggae movement.

Tickets for tonight's show are available for $14.50 in advance at Pearl Street, the Northampton Box Office, Tix Unlimited, Strawberries, or for $16 at the door. Doors open at 8 pm, and the show is 21+, positive

"Noho bounce" riles crowd

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Staff

Bim Skala Bim
Pearl Street
Oct. 28, 1993

What happens when your band has been around for almost a decade, has toured thousands of miles, and still hasn't unearthed the jewel of fame?

You rock the house. Simple.

Thursday night at Pearl Street in Northampton, the band Bim Skala Bim played to an extremely receptive audience, and didn't leave anything in the tour bus. Formed in 1985, the band has based itself on the concept of integrating ska and reggae with straight edge rock. Not conforming to the recent surge of Seattle bands and the commercial allure of the grunge scene, Bim Skala Bim has stuck to its guns.

Wasting no time what so ever, the band got the crowd, and themseives, right into the spirit of the night. Doing what they referred to as "the Northampton bounce", there was no failure of emotion on either side of the stage.

Traditional opinion says that reggae/ska music has the tendency to sound all the same, but not in this case. From deliberate, not-so-slow funk, to out-and-out punk influence, the rhythm was constantly kept fresh.

See, you can play all the same chords all night, but if the rhythm and feel aren't there, it will all sound the same. It takes talent and imagination to do that, and it was definitely present here.

This band also proved capable of mixing a trombone solo with a slashing guitar line in a Caribbean-style beat.

Through the night Bim Skala Bim introduced new material from their latest release Bones. Ranging from songs that reminded me of early Bob Marley ska (this goes way, way back,) to an upbeat, punkish version of Pink Floyd's "Brain Damage," they left nothing out of the realm of possibility.

The antics of trombone player Vito Incognito, a definite Scott Ian look-alike, kept the crowd on its toes by teasing the audience with his instrument, waving it around like a piece of candy. Even though they're projected as just a party band, they display their social conscience with tunes like "Better Get Out." Discussing the threat of nuclear weapons, this song shows that the band does keep a watchful eye on the world in which they live.

So, when the night was finished, the impression that developed was that these guys had a lot more going for them than I originally thought. And when i found out that Bim Skala Bim has received five Boston music awards in the past for their work, I was not surprised at all.

Rage brings profane politics

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

Now is the time for action, political awareness, a desperately needed questioning of authority. Isn't this what the college environment is for? Don't speak of petitions. Don't speak of rallies. It's time for rage.

Enter the disciples of action, LA's Rage Against the Machine. Pooling the cynical awareness of Public Enemy, the vehemence of Ice-T and the ferocious precision of Minor Threat, Rage is the voice of political skepticism done over in a hardcore/rap merger.

Having won over the crowd in this past summer's Lollapalooza tour, Rage is in the midst of a hectic (of course) tour which will pass through the Student Union Ballroom tonight. New York hardcore and Spring Concert veterans Quicksand will open the show - no lack of energy here.

Fronting Rage Against the Machine is 23 year-old vocalist Zack de la Rocha, a product of the West Coast hardcore and rap scenes. Growing up as a Chicano in a wealthy neighborhood never boded well with de la Rocha who channelled his overt anger into music. After tooling with a band named Inside Out, he hooked on as the singer for Rage Against the Machine, which, in less than two years has delivered a kick in the crotch to the conventional music world.

Turn to RAGE, page 8

Flu Immunization Update
Outreach Clinics Completed

Over 6,000 Immunized

Due to the overwhelming positive response of the campus community, the outreach clinics were completed ahead of schedule.

We are pleased with the turnout and confident that we are better off than in past years, when only 300-350 received immunizations by the Health Services.

There is a small supply of vaccine available to cover a few of our remaining health plan members who are at MEDICAL HIGH RISK. If you have already made an appointment for the HIGH RISK CLINIC, please keep it. Others should contact their usual health care provider.

Thank you for your participation and understanding. Please disregard previous advertising saying that clinics would continue into November.

Sponsored by University Health Services

Florence
An Academic Year Abroad in the Arts and Humanities
Spend a year or a semester immersed in the life and culture of Florence. Study at the University of Florence in private tutorials and seminars. Students of the arts work with Italian artists and musicians.
For information and an application:
Sarah Lawrence College in Florence
Box UMAF
Sarah Lawrence College
1 Mead Way
Bronxville, NY 10708-5999
SARAH LAWRENCE COLLEGE

Sign up now for Winter Session You won't regret it!
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼
Over 100 credit courses.
3 credits in just 3 weeks.
Affordable. What a deal!
Winter Session '94 January 3-24
Division of Continuing Education 615 Goodell Building
545-3653
▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Thrills
Write for the Arts & Living Section.
You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!
113 Campus Center 545-1361
The Collegian Party Band
The Collegian 545-3500

■ Rage

continued from page 7

Their self-titled debut album had been out for sometime before the boost of Lollapolooza elevated its sales. Yet even before the flannel-clad extravaganza, Rage Against the Machine's first release was one of the most scathingly political works of its genre. Working with a thunderous backdrop of guitarist Tom Morello's heavy (and occasionally quite reserved) riffs, Timmy C.'s cavernous bass and the drums of onetime Eddie Vedder cohort Brad Wilk, de la Rocha's delivery is so markedly profane and political, he often comes across like Saturday Night Live's Nat X on amphetamines.

"[Expletive] you, I won't do what you tell me," begins de la Rocha again and again on "Killing in the Name," one of Rage's governmental reprimands. By the time he's done with his chant, it's delivered in a gut-wrenching scream.

"Silence, something about silence makes me sick," spits de la Rocha on "Fistful of Steel," a justification for Rage's vehement ways. Does this album have clout? Are the leaves falling?

Quite remarkably, Rage Against the Machine has achieved a near-cult status in a humble manner - and with little airplay or publicity from radio or MTV. Rage's propensity for expletive-laced vocals and less than obedient political commentary has gained little approval from a media much happier with less offensive forms of rebellion. For Rage Against the Machine, FCC has become a four-letter word.

Hang on to your eardrums.

Rage Against the Machine takes over the Student Union Ballroom tonight with opening act Quicksand. Tickets, available at the Student Union Box Office are $10 for UMass students, otherwise $12.50. Showtime is 8 p.m.

■ hockey

continued from page 12

The power play goal put UMass on the board to stay. Another goal by Tom Perry, who led the team with three points on the night, put them up 2-0 at the end of one.

"There was a lot of enthusiasm out there," said Perry. "You get anxious waiting for this, because you get a chance to show the fans you can play."

The Minutemen put the game away with four goals in just over six minutes during the midway point of the second period. Bonneau got a short-handed goal after a poor clearing attempt by Wildcat goalie Daniel Nedeau at 8:58, and Rissling added his first of the year at 10:18 with a blistering slapshot from the right circle.

Center Warren Norris made it 5-0 on an assist from Armand Latulippe, a converted defenseman who had two goals in a great game Saturday. Pulling Nedeau for goalie Mike Kelly did not help Villanova, as Perry netted his second at 14:03 for a 6-0 lead.

"We felt like we played at 100 percent, I know it didn't look like it sometimes," said Villanova sophomore Kevin Smith, who is a native of Amherst. "It seemed like every time we made a mistake, they would pounce and get another goal."

Goalie Dave Kilduff had his shutout bid broken at 14:14 of the third when Ryan Stattenfield broke in alone and scored short-handed on a slapshot. For UMass, Blair Manning, Dale Hooper and Tom Sheehan also netted their first collegiate goals.

UMass got the short end of the physical play, with Dennis Wright getting knocked out for the game and Steve Corradi involved in fisticuffs. Both coaches attributed it to the youth of the UMass squad.

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

With the NCAA Championships right around the corner, the Minutewomen might get a chance to avenge this loss.

"We would definitely like another shot at UNC. We feel we can play with them," said Duffy.

The Minutewomen were not at their best Friday, but played well enough to defeat the Blue Devils.

"We had an off-day, but we dug deep and did what we had to do to win," said Duffy.

The howitzer-like penalty corner blasts of Natalie Hart proved to be all the offense that the Minutewomen would need. She connected at 19:28 of the first half and at 19:16 of the second half for her 14th and 15th goals of the season. Jenn Salisbury and Holly Hockenbrock assisted on both goals.

Rose collected her 12th shutout of the season turning back nine Blue Devil shots.

The Minutewomen close out their regular season under the lights against Springfield College Wednesday night.

READING BY ABBY

PALM TAROT & ESP READING

HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS ARE LUCKY MONTHS ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE

All Readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed

HOURS 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.
2-B Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 2-035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-ins welcome

Collegian Classifieds
545-3500
113 Campus Center

The Club
The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.
Less than $1 per day* for all of this
- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Cardiovascular Machines
- On Bus Route
- Complete Camstar Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Child Care

*When you purchase an academic year membership. Installment payments are available.
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER
7:30-8:30
Followed by NFL Monday Night Football
TALK Football with Mike Hodges
•Free T - Shirts
• Halftime Appetizer Blitz
•Pre-game Buffet
Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
CNN WTTT AM 1430

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

Housing Assignment Office
VOICE RESPONSE ROOM CHOOSING INSTRUCTIONS

To reserve your current room for the Spring 1994 Semester

When to Call:
November 1- 3
9am - 9pm

What to dial:
On campus: 6-9000
Off campus: 546-9000
TTY: 5-0327
A touchtone phone is necessary.

Have these handy:
- Your 9-digit student identifier
- Your room number

Having trouble?
If you enter the wrong student identifier, simply press * to restart the procedure.

Any questions?
Call the Housing Assignment Office
545-4596
A staff member will be available to assist you during system hours, 9am to 9pm.

If the system is unable to confirm your assignment, you MUST contact our office to reserve your room for the Spring semester.

THIS IS ESSENTIAL IN ORDER TO GUARANTEE YOUR CURRENT ROOM!

AVAILABLE NOVEMBER 1 - 3

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS — By B. DEUTSCH

LIZ & EMMA — By M. GATELY

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS — By DAVE SCHNEIDER

P.S. MUELLER — By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"For the love of God, I've got a damn tether-ball growing out of my head. Now if that doesn't warrant some candy what the hell has society gone to?"

– Adam Sandler as Crazy Tether Ball Head

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Choose your words carefully to avoid misunderstandings. You need to get your own house in order before attempting to organize anything outside of it. Romance thrives!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Family members figure prominently and positively in a career or business decision. Your mate or partner comes up with a clever solution to a knotty problem.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Improved working conditions fill your spirits. Your confidence grows. An influential person is receptive to your original ideas. Your mate or partner admires your dedication.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Persistence makes you a winner in business or romance. A partner lets you know that it is time to make a major decision. New alliances could prove highly profitable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Beware of potential financial problems. Double-check bills to make certain you are not overcharged. Travel is favored. Keep in touch with former employers in case you are in the job market soon.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Diplomacy helps you handle a domestic matter with aplomb. Joint funds should not be drawn out of the bank, nor stocks cashed. A hobby that requires creativity will be relaxing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Meaning is the most strategic time to ask for a raise or special favor. You make an excellent impression on a new staff member. Energy and enthusiasm help you develop good work habits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Explore a clever idea and contact influential friends of looking for new employment possibilities. Make is more willing to accept responsibility than in the past.

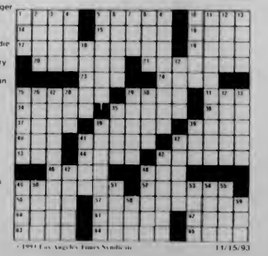
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Financial worries will lessen after you get an opportunity to talk with experts. An older person may feel that they have been ignored. Encourage greater harmony within the family circle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Reach out to someone who needs help. Showcasing your special talents will win you a wider audience. Teamwork pays big dividends. Take the initiative. Profits soar.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone in authority could heap greater responsibilities on your capable shoulders. Intuition helps you outwit a foe. Job interviews go well for those who did their homework.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Act only after considering all available alternatives. Research helps you make more profitable decisions. You handle a family emergency wisely. Financial aid comes from an unexpected source.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Crones
5 Punish from Punjab
10 Aroma
14 Stage direction
15 Hawk's weapon
16 Give up
17 Beelzebub
19 Gorillas
20 Indicate
21 "This was the — Roman of them all"
23 Through
24 Grant or Ross
25 Undermined
29 Butter substitute
31 Female rabbit
34 Fairy tale character
35 Insufficient
36 Aspire
37 "— pussy cat, whose have you —?"
38 Forewarn
39 Indolent
40 Conclude
41 "— and dagger"
42 Flirt
43 A short way to go?
44 Actress Goldie
45 Swell
46 Make a — try
48 Play a part
49 Relating to an eye part
52 Tempted
56 Parched
57 Presidential processions
60 Penalty
61 Worship
62 Harvest
63 River in N England
64 Salamanders
65 Solitary

DOWN
1 Pronoun for Priscilla
2 Cut wood
3 Donate
4 British gun
5 Expressed
6 Kind of fall or bowl
7 — Baba
8 Night light
9 Blameless
10 Gen. Florida city
11 Reliable
12 Keats' products
13 Part of R & R
18 Strides
22 Soak up
25 Serious
26 James Bond, e.g.
27 Foreordain
28 Enclosure
29 Iridium or Arctic
30 Escapade
32 Lubricated
33 Manicurist's board
35 Like a small M-ode resident
39 Ripen
41 Ride for Sidney Toler
42 Pertaining to vision
45 Startles
47 "Prince of —"
48 Hair
49 Kon Tiki, for one
50 A Great Lake
51 Mixing's mother —
53 Edible root
54 First garden
55 Distribute
58 Pull
59 26 Down, usually

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

C	L	A	P		S	H	A	F	T		S	C	O	T
P	A	L	L		C	E	L	I	A		P	O	N	E
A	Y	E	A	R	I	N	P	R	O	V	E	N	C	E
S			N	A	M	I	S		F	L	A
	S	E	N	I	O	R	S			I	N	N	E	R
		T	O	N	Y		S	L	O	T
B	E	H	A	N	S		S	A	U	L		B	P	E
A	T	O			S		N	O	L	L		R	A	N
T	H	I	N	K	I	N	G	O	U	T	L	O	U	D
E	O	S		I	N	I	O	N		D	I	S	E
S	S			S	G	I	S		F	A	B	L	E	D
			A	M	E	S		F	L	A	S	H
M	E	U	S	E			S	L	E	U	T	H	S
E	I	N	S	T	E	I	N	S	O	R	E	A	M	S
A	R	I	E		C	R	A	I	G		R	H	O	S
L	E	O	S		T	E	P	E	E		S	A	G	E

10/30/93

11/15/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Jeff Crofts
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Tara Dixon, Lisa Jezowski

MENU

LUNCH
Sloppy Joe
Grilled Sneeze
BASICS LUNCH
Vegan Sloppy Joe
Grilled Sneeze

DINNER
Tender Turkey Loins
Beef Stew
BASICS DINNER
Tender Turkey Loins
Lentil Chili

Field hockey snags one of two on road

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The No. 3 University of Massachusetts field hockey team came away with a split on its southern road trip this weekend. The Minutewomen defeated Duke University, 2-0, in Durham, NC, Friday before being upset by No. 7 North Carolina on Saturday afternoon 1-0 in overtime.

UMass 2, Duke 0
UNC 1, UMass 0

UNC, who has been ranked as high as No. 2 this season, came out trying to prove that its recent fall in the polls was a fluke. From the start the Tar Heels looked like a team that could be contending for the National Championship.

UNC dominated the game, outshooting UMass 23 to 7. They played a sound defensive game allowing the Minutewomen only one penalty corner.

At the other end, the Tar Heel offense frustrated the UMass defense into giving up 11 penalty corners. UMass goalie Hilary Rose played an outstanding game, turning back 16 Tar Heel shots and keeping the Minutewomen in the game to force sudden-death overtime.

With 9:34 remaining in the first OT, UNC senior Stephanie Walsh beat Rose off of a penalty corner to give the Tar Heels the victory.

"It was a heartbreaker," said junior midfielder Colleen Duffy. "But I'm glad it happened now because tournament time is coming. It showed us what we had to do to win."

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 8

Campanile

continued from page 12

fewer (two) and gained only 17 yards.

Guiding the one-dimensional UMass offense, it was the freshman's job to hand off to the talented corps of running backs. They weren't effective, though. Rene ingoglia, who reached the 1,000-yard mark, also fumbled four times.

The receivers weren't much better. At least three of Campanile's passes were dropped. The first catchable pass he threw was intercepted and returned five yards for a Northeastern touchdown. That mistake in the final three minutes of the first half gave the Huskies a 14-0 lead.

"I got discouraged after the interception because that was such a stupid play," he said. "I should've thrown the ball into the stands because I tried to fit it in where I couldn't fit it in."

The biggest question at halftime was whether Coach Mike Hodges would bench Camapanile. His options were Clark Ramos, who was converted to running back, and cornerback Tony Williams, who last played QB in 1991. Third-stringer Mike Mason was injured. Hodges said there was no question.

"No. This is his football team until Andrew comes back, and then we'll make our decision if and when he comes back," said Hodges.

Things gelled a little in the third quarter. Campanile threw a fade pass to Kevin Bourgoin for a TD on the first drive. Ingoglia ran for another to tie it up. But when NU retook a lead in the fourth and UMass stalled with four minutes left, it looked over. The game. The team's playoff hopes. Campanile's confidence.

UMass got one more chance with under two minutes remaining. On the first play of the series, Campanile rolled right on the option, then pitched to freshman tailback Frank Alessio at the perfect moment. Best decision of the day.

Alessio did the rest. One play, 54 yards, 18 seconds elapsed. Touchdown. Game over, and a big sigh of relief from Campanile.

"It was a great catch by Frank, first of all," he said. "[He] just made an unbelievable run."

Campanile deferred any credit to his teammates, and rightfully so. Lesson No. 1 for the student was that a leader sometimes has to just go along for the ride.

2 FOR $45

WALKING Co-Ed FLEX FITNESS CENTER AMHERST, MA Co-Ed DISTANCE

The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539

NEW MEMBERS
expires 11/7

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

TEACHER VACANCIES
HISTORY (7), MATH (5)
ALSO ART, ENGLISH & PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR OAK PARK ILLINOIS PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOL (A CHICAGO SUBURB). RICH CURRICULUM DIVERSE COMMUNITY AND STUDENT BODY. DROP-IN SESSION AT MATHER CAREER CNTR. MONDAY, NOV. 8, 1993 10:30 TO 1:30 OR WRITE DR. FRANK DANES, 201 N. SCOVILLE, O.P. 60302; 1-800-251-3475 B.A. $29,000+.

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days 8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9) Amherst • 253-5072

what's out

what's in

1-800-COLLECT
America's Inexpensive Way To Call Someone Collect.
Dial it instead of "0" and save up to 44%.

For long distance collect calls. Vs. AT&T operator dialed 3 min. interstate call.

football

continued from page 12

defense came up big. On three separate drives, the Huskies turned over the ball, were stuffed at the goal line, and were forced to punt. McIntosh fumbled the ball, only to have it recovered by Ken Bello. The defensive effort on fourth and goal was perhaps the best defensive play of the game, as the Minutemen refused to let McIntosh score and took over possession.

With third and six on their own 9 yard line, Campanile threw a pass intended for Frank Alessio, only to be picked off by Jason Seapker for a Husky TD.

The Minutemen, down 14-0 at the half, came out strong in the third quarter, with the defense holding the Huskies to just 10 yards on their first second-half drive. The Minutemen offense took advantage of this as Campanile threw to Kevin Burgoine for a 15-yard TD, with Eric Oke kicking the extra point.

With 1:17 left in the third quarter, Ingoglia ran for an 8-yard touchdown. Ingoglia ran six of the seven plays and garnered 37 yards of the 46 yard drive, including the TD, his 11th of the season.

After Mark Hopkins picked off a Campanile pass intended for Eric Thimas, the Huskies scored on a 32-yard field goal by Steve Raethka, taking the lead 17-14.

Then, with 1:15 left, on just one play in the drive, Alessio scored his exciting touchdown to keep the Minutemen lead for good. The Huskies had one drive to tie the score, but failed.

"I'm just proud of these guys," said Hodges. "They had every opportunity in the world to give give up, and they didn't."

soccer

continued from page 12

there was nothing to save yourself for; you just go out as hard as you can. I'm happy we ended up with a win.

The Minutemen outshot Maine 13-10 in the contest.

Before the game, the eight UMass seniors (Kylish, Edelman, Jacobs, Johansson, Matt Edgerly, Chris Merrill, Michael Winn, Ted Priestly) were honored for their contributions to the program.

"This is a senior class that stayed here when they were sophomores when the program was cut," said Coach Sam Koch. "They stayed and without them, the program wouldn't be anywhere near what it is right now."

"We've worked hard over the last four years and today showed it. I'm glad we didn't pack it in when we could've," said Edelman. "We fought and that's the key. Winning or losing means a lot, but as long as you know you played well and played hard, that's what counts."

Northwestern College of Chiropractic is now accepting applications for its next three entering classes.
(April 1994, September 1994, January 1995)

General requirements at time of entry include:
- Approx. 2-3 years of college in a a life or health science degree program.
- A minimum G.P.A. of 2.5. A more competitive G.P.A. is favored.
- A personal interest in a career as a primary care physician.

Northwestern offers:
- A professional school of 500 students with student faculty ratio of 12:1.
- A well-rounded education in Basic and Clinical Sciences, Diagnosis, X-ray, and Chiropractic.
- Full accreditation by North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and the Council on Chiropractic Education.

Call: 1-800-888-4777 or Write: Director of Admissions
2501 West 84th Street, Minneapolis, MN 55431

Collegian Classified Ads
for just a dime a word!*

(JUST ONE LITTLE DIME)
Tues., Wed., and Thurs.
November 2nd - 4th
Stop by the Collegian table on the Campus Center Concourse!
* SALE APPLIES TO STUDENTS ONLY

KLEIN'S ALL ★ SPORTS "WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD"
TUESDAY ONLY
GIGANTIC ELECTION DAY SKI & HOCKEY SALE
Columbia Sportswear Company
SAVE 20% ON ALL SKI CLOTHING
White Stag
NORDICA SPORTSYSTEM
CROSS COUNTRY PACKAGES starting from $89.99
10-20% OFF ALL HOCKEY STICKS SKATES EQUIPTMENT
COMPLETE JR. PACKAGE WITH NORDICA BOOTS $179.99
COMPLETE DOWNHILL PACKAGES starting from $279.99
K2 HC 101 SNOWBOARD WITH BINDINGS $399.99
KLEIN'S
WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD
SANGERTOWN 797-3214
RIVERSIDE MALL UTICA 793-0491
MOHAWK ACRES SHOPPING CENTER ROME 339-1117

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Come Find Out About Sorority Life Open House at Chi Omega Next to Mather Career Center Tuesday 7 pm

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For information send name and address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton, Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508 543 5640

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal advice to all fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Toyota Celica GT Runs well, needs a muffler. Call 549 7706

1990 Hyundai Excel 29000 Miles only Excellent Condition $4000 Call 546-1482

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices Every day 8-11 pm 65 University Drive

FOR RENT

In Amherst one bedroom. 1 mile from UMass. New carpet new gas heater quiet location avail. immediately. Call 549-8307

Take over our lease Jan-Aug female $250+ Amity place 546 7098 Private room

FOR SALE

Elton John Photos taken at Mullins! Call Matt at 546-3196

Mac Plus (2) w/accessories Imagewriter 2 (3) Mac SE, 20 meg, 30 meg hard drives Mac ICI, Mac display, full hard drives formatted Packages for $550 1 week offer (Liquidation) Call 549-5134 for MAX eves

Mountain Bike 18" Trek 830 Antelope Brand new only ridden twice $275 or best reasonable offer. Contact Jay or Doug at 527-0712

Mountain Bike 1993 Specialized Hard Rock Excellent Condition Like New $300/BO 256-4137

Native American Bone/horn Choakers, bracelets for sale. All hand-made from deer, bone/horn. Will make any color, size, or length. Choker or bracelet. For info contact kahon wes at 546-5794

FOUND

I found your jean jacket in the campus center a few nights ago. Call 6-0258

Ladies Wristwatch on Tues Oct. 26th near the pond. Call 1 498 2087 to identify and claim

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships Now Hiring. Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1 206 634 0468 ext. C5001

Delivery Persons Wanted Nights, need your own car. Apply at DP Dough Dowtown Amherst

Free Trips and Cash Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre! Call Now! Take a Break Student Travel 800 328 SAVE or 617 424 8222

Get up, Stand up work On Clean Water Action's campaign: Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA. Activists wanted flexible scheduling for students $150 300 per week. Need work over break start working for us now. Call Dan 584 9830

$287.50 Sell 50 hilarious college t-shirts profit $287.50. 22 designs include alcohol, safe sex, misc. A risk free program. Call now for free catalog. 1 800 304 3309

Travel Free!! Spring Break Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, S. Padre! Sell "Professional" tour packages! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1 800 426 7710

Work Study Job: Peer Housing Counselors needed. Apply at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545 0865

INSTRUCTION

EFL/ESL Tutor 586 5241

Learn Speed Reading! 2 1/2 week class uses hypnosis techniques for quick results. $100 call Amy 253 0578

Learn to Bertend with University Batending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools Free info. session Wed. Nov. 3rd in Campus Center room 905 at 7 pm or call (617)277 2075

Spanish Tutor 584 4435

LOSE WEIGHT NOW!

Diet that works like magic! Natural 100% Guaranteed. Effective. Affordable Call 549-8139

LOST

Reward – Lost ratty black bookbag on Sunderland bus Monday PM. Extreme personal value: no possible use to any one else. Please return I'm begging. Please? Call Dave at 665 0160. No questions asked

Roll of Film Thompson 104 call 253 5508

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the "Minuteman and Proud!" t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to "Lexi Con Productions" to: P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004

MUSICIANS

All Original Band seeking bassist and keyboardist for recording and club shows. Dedication a must! 268 3599

Guitar Lessons Beginner Advanced Lessons may be taken for course credit 256 6848

PERSONALS

Jody G

Deal with it!!

Happy Anniversary Babe

Love

Jenn

Thomas Allen, One year later, and you still make my life beautiful and complete, my Hallowe'en Lover and so much more! I am Your Loving Pamplemousse

Trine, I made a big mistake but please forgive me. You are the most important thing in my life. Please, give me one more chance. You are the only one I want. Love Steve

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Attention for anyone who has ever felt physically threatened. Quorum International offers the amazing PAAL. The personal attack alarm, a pocketful of protection that is inexpensive 413 739 7893

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright For free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St Nham 586 3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545 0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help Factfinder Custom Library Research 549 0312

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586 5268

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1 800 942 3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Field hockey wins one, loses one over the weekend in North Carolina Page 10

Sports

Minutemen overcome Northeastern Huskies

Alessio's 54-yard TD a run to victory

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

BROOKLINE — The University of Massachusetts football team found a way to win once again, defeating the Northeastern Huskies 21-17, at Parsons Field for its fourth consecutive win.

Massachusetts 21
Northeastern 17

With 1:35 left to play, redshirt freshman tailback Frank Alessio took the pitch from quarterback Vito Campanile and ran for a 54-yard touchdown, sealing the big win for the Minutemen.

"We got one more chance, and boy, we had lightning in a bottle out there," said Coach Mike Hodges about the Alessio touchdown. "We just pitched it to the guy, and that was an incredible run."

Saturday's win guaranteed a back-to-back winning season for the Minutemen, the first time since the 1985-1986 seasons. The Minutemen also strengthened their chances of Division I-AA playoff contention with the road win.

The Minutemen had their backs to the wall throughout the game. Campanile, who replaced the injured Andrew McNeilly, threw two interceptions and completed just 2 of 11 for a dismal 17 yards in his first collegiate start.

Fullback Rene Ingoglia fumbled the ball four times and still rushed for 105 yards on 22 carries and touchdown. Ingoglia went over the 1000-yard mark with his 105-yard day, pushing his total to 1056 yards.

The first half was all Northeastern. The Huskies scored on their first drive of the first quarter, with QB Garvey McIntosh firing to Brian Vaughn for a 40-yard touchdown.

In the second quarter, the Minuteman

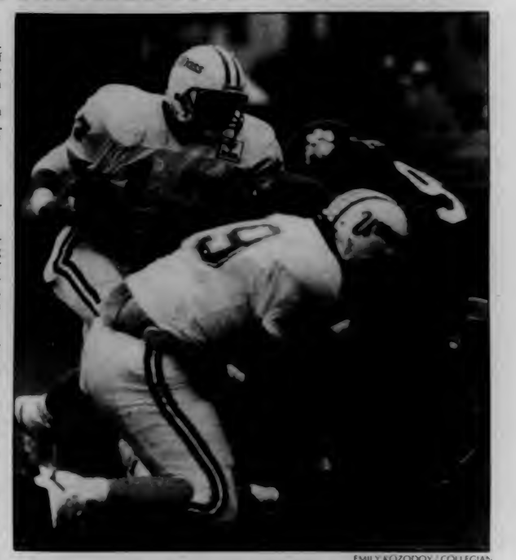
Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

Campanile's game gets sub-par grade

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

BROOKLINE — Even after the stirring come-from-behind 21-17 win, Professor Vito Campanile was very hard on quarterback Vito Campanile, who took his first big-time exam at Northeastern University's Parsons Field last Saturday.

He gave himself an F.



"I couldn't have done much worse today. My brother's 16 and a quarterback in high school, and he could've done a better job than me," he said.

So after his first collegiate start, the man who someday promised the University of Massachusetts a national championship was just happy his performance didn't cost his team a win over a 1-7 Husky team. It almost did.

Campanile rhymes with McNeilly, and with the second-stringer taking over for the injured starter, there wasn't much of a dropoff. Not much of an improvement, either.

He attempted fewer passes than McNeilly usually does (11), completed

Turn to CAMPANILE, page 10

EMILY KOZODOY / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts football team raised its record to 6-2 with Saturday's come-from behind victory over Northeastern.

Women's soccer wins Atlantic-10 Championship

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — The inaugural Atlantic 10 women's soccer championship was not pretty.

It did not have large, wild crowds, fine facilities or beautiful weather. And the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team made sure it was not competitive either.

UMass 4, Temple Univ. 0
UMass 2, Geo. Wash. 0

Despite playing in a slopfest yesterday (Central New Jersey had been besieged by heavy rains the past two days) Massachusetts (15-2-3) outplayed third seeded George Washington (9-11-1) at every facet of the game and posted a 2-0 victory to take the league title. The Minutewomen dominated Temple, 4-0, on Saturday in the semifinals.

Massachusetts, ranked No. 5 nationally, controlled the play against the Colonials, outshooting GW 16-8 and outcornering them 6-0, despite playing in an icy rain and on a field submerged in water. The game had been delayed an hour in order to let clean-up crews attempt to dry out the field.

"It was surprising that the players picked today, under these circumstances, to play their best knock-around game of the year," said UMass Coach Jim Rudy, who on Friday night was named A-10 Coach of the Year. "We played fast today, despite the mud."

UMass took control of the A-10 mud bowl early, pressing the attack and picking a goal up in the 16th minute.

Rachel LeDuc picked up a loose ball at the top of the GW box, squared it left to a running Rebecca Myers, who from 18 yards shot it off of the left post and in.

The score held until the 52nd minute, when Heidi Kocher received a pass from Myers 30 yards out, made one touch then bombed it in. GW goal keeper Traci Jensen got a hand on it but could not stop the goal.

UMass goal keeper Briana Scurry, who was named A-10 Co-Player of the Year (along with Rutgers Beth Uydess,) made five saves and picked up her second shutout of the weekend and 13th in 20 starts on the season. Her goals against average is now only 0.35.

The game was marred by the playing surface, which was either under water or muddy. Saturday saw both semifinal games played in a downpour, while yesterday had a lighter rain but 38 degree temperature.

Despite not scoring yesterday Nicole Roberts was named tournament MVP. Roberts, who had one goal on against Temple, was everywhere, making pass after pass and buzzing around the Colonial net.

"I don't know about me but everyone else played very well," said Roberts, who also was named to the Conference's first team Friday night. "We played great today, we're used to playing in the rain.

"That today was heart. Pure heart," Roberts said. "Everyone was giving 110 percent even though the field was so bad. If we hadn't been running that hard, we never would have gotten two."

On Saturday, Myers, the A-10 Freshman of the Year and first team member, scored twice and Melissa Mitchell (All-Tournament team) and Roberts each scored once.

UMass will not play for two weeks until the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

At Friday's awards banquet, UMass racked up the honors taking Player of the Year (Scurry,) Freshman of the Year (Myers) and Coach of the Year (Rudy). All-Conference players were: First Team (Roberts, LeDuc, Myers, Paula Wilkins and Scurry); Second Team: (Kocher and Amy Trunk).

The All-Tournament Team was made up of Myers, Roberts, Mitchell and Erin Lynch, with Roberts taking MVP honors.

Hockey wins Mullins debut

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Playing its first home game in 14 years and its first game on campus since 1954, the University of Massachusetts hockey team watched Gov. William Weld drop the ceremonial first puck, then easily defeated Villanova University, 9-1, at the William D. Mullins Center Saturday night.

Villanova 1
Massachusetts 9

The Minutemen (1-1) received goals from eight different players, scoring five goals in the second period and starting the home season off as well as could be expected.

Pre-game ceremonies included Weld and Lt. Gov. Paul Celluci on hand for the official dedication of the Mullins Center. A crowd of 5,124 was on hand to see the historic occasion, which prompted the excitement of many of the players.

"Everyone was a little nervous on their first shift," said right wing Rob Bonneau. "We all kind of lost our heads but we got it back on the second shift. I didn't play before these many fans last year."

"Sure, there was a sense of history," said captain Jaynen Rissling. "There was — I don't know — a raw feeling. Everyone down deep in their hearts wanted to prove something, and I'm glad we proved something."

Mike Evans scored the first goal in 39 years on campus, his first of the year, at 12:30 in the opening period.

Turn to HOCKEY, page 8

Seniors step up, lead men's soccer to victory

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

A trio of seniors combined on the winning goal in the 71st minute to lead the University of Massachusetts men's soccer team to a 1-0 victory over the University of Maine yesterday on Senior Day, its season finale, at Richard F. Garber Field.

Maine 0
Massachusetts 1

The Minutemen finish the season at 9-10. Junior keeper Mark Wolf recorded his third shut-out.

Senior Randy Jacobs took a shot on net from the top of the box, but Black Bear keeper Seb D'Appolonia made a tremendous leaping save to prevent Jacobs' initial kick. However, D'Appolonia was unable to cover up the loose ball and Jacobs was after it again, this time firing a shot that hit the crossbar.

The peppering of the Maine net as senior captain Todd Kylish headed the ball towards the goal mouth, keeping the pressure on the open net. In a mad scramble, seniors Justin Edelman and Tomas Johansson were simultaneously rushing the net, attempting to reach the ball before D'Appolonia could recover. Edelman tapped the ball to Johansson, who promptly netted the game-winner.

"It was a special day. I didn't grasp that it was my last game until the national anthem and stuff," said Johansson. "I realized this was it and

Turn to SOCCER, page 11

A company looks to make money on students' caffeine addiction Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

47° Tuesday
November 2, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 38

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Lead found in water

High levels merit concern of officials

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Moving in accordance with the new Environmental Protection Agency regulations, the Town of Amherst sampled 60 sites for permissible levels of lead and copper in the drinking water.

Five of the testing sites were at the University of Massachusetts and some problems with lead (Pb) were found.

According to a news release from the Environmental Health and Safety Department, the Environmental Protection Agency lowered the safety lead levels in drinking water from 50 parts per billion to 15 part per billion.

Last spring, Worcester Dining Commons was tested above 15 parts per billion and one test from Bartlett Hall was as high as 49 parts per billion.

Later in June, Environmental Health and Safety retested the two locations two separate times and found the levels between 1-10 parts per billion, however these samples were drawn after running the water for one minute.

According to George Reed, the Environmental Health Specialist at the University, the problems with the water possibly stem from the distribution system in the buildings because of water remaining stagnant in copper, chrome-plated or brass pipes that use lead solder in the joints.

For Amherst residents, lead enters the drinking water as a result of corrosion of materials containing lead in the household plumbing which also include brass, chrome, and lead piping.

Also in the news release, Reed stated that the problems also might be caused by the electrical grounding to copper water pipe. But such a case is not easy to detect in buildings with extensive utility systems.

Environmental Health and Safety recommends that students using water that has remained in pipes for at least six hours should be flush it through the faucets for at least 30 seconds until the water gets colder.

Such a practice would flush out any lead concentrations before cooking or drinking.

EH & S also recommends that hot water from the tap should not be used in cooking or drinking.

According to a public notice from the town of Amherst, "lead contamination is not present in dangerous quantities in our water sources of pipeline network."

But although such quantities are not in accordance with the cause of lead poisoning, such amounts can increase a resident's exposure to lead and particular caution should be taken by pregnant women and young children.

According to the the public notice, lead levels that would not hurt adults can slow down normal and physical development of young children.

For the above reasons, all four UMass child care centers were tested for lead in the drinking water.

All tested below the 15 parts per billion level.

No plans for the replacing of any pipes or water systems are being made at this time by the University because of extensive costs.

Any student who would like information about the University's concern of lead and drinking water should contact Environmental Health and Safety.

Postin' the news

ANDRE KEHR / COLLEGIAN

Benjamin Ware, the publicity coordinator for the Theatre Guild hangs posters for an upcoming play, Black Comedy. The play by Peter Shaffer will be at Bowker Auditorium from November 4 through November 7. Tickets are $6 for general admission and $4 for students. They can be picked up at the Fine Arts Center Box Office or at the door.

Negligent home closed

Residents were unsupervised, unkempt

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — State officials Monday ordered the closure of a rest home where mentally ill patients were allegedly given poor grooming, too little supervision, and sometimes the wrong medicines.

Kate McCormack, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Health, said the Ingersoll Grove Rest Home posed "an immediate threat to residents' health and safety."

In an emergency action, state health inspectors had all 31 patients moved Saturday night to Springfield Municipal Hospital. The 18-year-old home, employing 16 workers, specializes in treating mentally ill patients of all ages.

State officials said they found insufficient food even for the next day's meals and no staff members at the home on Saturday.

The officials, who had been reviewing the home's license for renewal, also said they ordered its administrator on Oct. 13 to correct several other problems, including mistakes in medication type and dosage, poorly trained staff preoccupied with housekeeping chores, and unsupervised and unkempt residents.

"They've had a history of problems," said McCormack. "We saw the problems getting worse, which was to us spelling trouble."

Richard Couture, the home's administrator, did not respond to messages seeking comment Monday.

But the home's activities director, Rachel Floyd, said that moving the patients in Saturday night's cold and rain amounted to abuse by the state.

"I think there are other ways to take care of problems other than moving people out of their home in the middle of the night while it's raining," she said.

She said many of the state complaints in recent months had centered on clerical matters. "A lot of this boils down to putting people before paperwork, and I think that was our biggest mistake,"

Turn to HOME, page 2

Actor River Phoenix dead after drug-induced seizure

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — River Phoenix layed dying on the sidewalk while his brother pleaded with a fire department dispatcher to send help for the actor, who collapsed outside a nightclub.

"You must get here, please, you must get here, please," his brother said. "I'm thinking he had Valium or something."

First, the 23-year-old actor was writhing on the sidewalk. Then he lay motionless, as if sleeping. Within an hour, Phoenix was pronounced dead early Sunday at Cedars Sinai Medical Center.

An autopsy Monday was inconclusive, said coroner's spokesman Scott Carrier. Results of blood and chemical tests will take weeks, he said.

Paramedics were told the actor had been taking drugs, county fire Capt. Ray Ribar said.

"It was the classic cocaine overreaction - it just nails some people and stops

Turn to PHOENIX, page 8

Conference stirs up new doubts for NAFTA

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

Is NAFTA good for Mexico? Who's benefiting from regional integration? Is NAFTA necessary for future economic growth? These were some of the questons raised last Saturday during the conference "Mexico: Beyond NAFTA."

The conference brought new arguments to the debate and something to think about: Ross Perot is not the only person against NAFTA; the Mexicans are also worried about the consequences of the agreement.

It benefitted from the participation of Mexican scholars and experts from New England, who divided in panels, analyzed their concerns about NAFTA.

Carmen Diana Deere, chair of the Latin American studies department and head of the conference said they decided to name the conference "Mexico: Beyond NAFTA," because "whether NAFTA passes or not, the United States and Mexico are in an increasing process of integration that has been growing over the last 30 years at a very steady pace . . . including a flow of capital and people."

According to Deere, "This process is irreversible, is already under way, NAFTA can only speed the process."

Turn to NAFTA, page 4

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Four members of a panel discuss the ramifications of the NAFTA treaty Saturday morning at Memorial Hall.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bavlias

Newsroom
545-0579

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michelle D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan I. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanitz
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Snow
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscription Manager ..... Cinelha Blanco

Graphics
545-3494

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carriero
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bisceglia, Calvin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Mastronardi, Matty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: 413-545-3500
Fax: 413-545-1393

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment with
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
only $2.00
9:30-10:30
THE 25 PUB
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993 IN AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, November 2

Support group — The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Support Group will meet from 3:30 to 4:45 p.m. Check in at 127 Hills North on day of group, or call Lydia at 545-2337.

Social — The LBGA Infosocial will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center. Check Campus Center directory for room number.

Wednesday, November 3

Rap group — The Bi Rap Group meets from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the LBGA Office, 413B Student Union.

Brown Bag Series — Kim Leighton will speak on "Constructing and Deconstructing Gender: Transexualism and the 'Case' of Christine Jorgensen" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 811.

Thursday, November 4

Caucus — The LBGA Political Caucus will meet at 8 p.m. in the LBGA Office, 413B Student Union.

Friday, November 5

Social — The GLB Grad Group will hold a social from 5 to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Fundraiser — Lesbians for Lesbians is sponsoring a fundraiser for publication of Susan Stinson's Belly Songs: In Celebration of Fat Women. The Valley Lesbian Writers Group will be reading there work. The event begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Northampton Unitarian Church, 220 Main Street. Admission is $5; women only.

Monday, November 8

Workshop — "Beyond Mono-culturalism: Racism and the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Community" will be presented by Madeline Peters and Matt Ouellett from 7 to 9 p.m. in Campus Center Room 165.

■ home

continued from page 1

Floyd said

She said there was plenty of food on hand Saturday, though not enough to make the specific menus planned for at least three days, as required by the state. She said that there was in fact one staffer at the home, but acknowledged that a second one had called in sick.

Floyd said the home's administration had tried hard to comply with all the demands of the state. McCormack said the home now has seven days to appeal the suspension and delay permanent revocation of the license. If it appeals, an administrative hearing would be set.

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family

Tuesday - November 9
6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
University Health Center - Room 304

I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?

I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?

I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?

If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.

For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian* invites you to the open house on November 5th. Come down to 113 Campus Center from 1pm to 3pm and find out what we're all about.

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Introductory Special
2 Haircuts - $20!
KATIE
AT
Hair Phanatix • 241 Main St.
NOHO
584-7798
Offer Expires 12/31/93

Flu Immunization Update
Outreach Clinics Completed

Over 6,000 Immunized

Due to the overwhelming positive response of the campus community, the outreach clinics were completed ahead of schedule.

We are pleased with the turnout and confident that we are better off than in past years, when only 300-350 received immunizations by the Health Services.

There is a small supply of vaccine available to cover a few of our remaining health plan members who are at MEDICAL HIGH RISK. If you have already made an appointment for the HIGH RISK CLINIC, please keep it. Others should contact their usual health care provider.

Thank you for your participation and understanding. Please disregard previous advertising saying that clinics would continue into November.

Sponsored by University Health Services

Local News

Ex-player stricken with cancer

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Former University of Massachusetts basketball star Lorenzo Sutton, who holds the school's second all-time scoring record of 1,718 points, knows what it is like to fight for his life.

Sutton spent a month in a comatose state after a 1990 hit and run car accident in Amherst. Now, Sutton at 28 has a 50-50 percent chance for life after being diagnosed with malignant growths in his mouth and sinuses.

Sutton was the last player cut from the Detroit Pistons during the 1989-90 training camp and before his accident played for the Continental Basketball League's Albany, New York Patroons. During his playing days at UMass he averaged 19.4 points per game and was the co-captain his senior year. He graduated from UMass with a degree in interior design in 1988.

What complicates Sutton's fight against cancer is his current incarceration at the Hampshire County House of Correction for two assault charges, for which, according to an article in the Daily Hampshire Gazette, he pleaded guilty and accepted full responsibility for his conduct. Sutton planned to attend a rehabilitation program for alcohol abuse and had been awaiting trial since May.

The cancer was discovered during oral surgery at Cooley Dickinson Hospital for the removal of what believed to be a cyst. On Wednesday Nov. 3, Sutton will undergo surgery to remove the malignant growths at Deaconess Hospital in Boston and will be followed by radiation treatments at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

According to the Gazette, doctors say that his survival depends on Sutton's state of mind.

In a quote to the Gazette, Sutton said while in jail: "They said the situation I'm in is not going to help it at all. My mind needed to be free."

This is where Lynn Montibello, a resident of Amherst stepped in. Montibello is organizing what she calls a "humanitarian" petition to get Sutton out of jail to help with his treatment and recovery. The petition requires at least 10,000 signatures to face the parole board and have them possibly consider an early release because of his health conditions.

"I don't think he should be seriously ill and to recover in jail. I don't think it is humane to keep him incarcerated in his condition," said Montibello. "He has a much better chance for recovery at home with his family in Georgia."

"Let's hope we can do whatever we can do to help. He has had some tough times since his accident," said Coach Calipari. "It makes you question life's fairness."

Montibello says that petitioners will be on the Campus Center steps sometime this week.

Gender inequality confronted

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

"I never wake up and feel powerless. Everyday I wake up and feel powerful, I may feel scared, but I feel powerful and by the end of the day I forget that I'm scared," said a former ambassador to Grenada said in a lecture last Thursday night.

Dessima Williams, a former Ambassador from Grenada, is a sociology professor at Brandeis University. Her lecture held at Smith College was entitled "Women and Development In The 1990's." Williams also spoke about the situation in Haiti.

Williams left for Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Friday morning. She is going with a group from the Boston area called "The Haiti Communication Project." Similar groups went from all around the country. The group plans to observe organizational efforts and report on them when they return to the United States. They also want to go to the U.N. and the U.S. missions to urge them to speed up the processes that will reinstate Aristide. Ultimately, Williams said they are going in order to "keep the issue alive" in this country.

Williams said she felt the study of development was important in the 1990's, "especially because women's development remains unfulfilled."

"By and large women have not met with equitable distribution of political rights. For that reason it continues to be a subject of inquiry," she said.

Williams said the gap between "those who have and those who do not have" is still growing wider.

"There is a sharper polarization between those who have health care and those who don't, those who have clean water and those who don't, those who have guns and those who don't," Williams said.

According to Williams, the world's richest 20 percent own and control 83 percent of the world's resources, while the world's poorest 20 percent own and control less than two percent of the world's land and jobs. Women are disproportionately represented in the poorer percentage she said.

"Disparity has continued over decades," said Williams. We must pay "particular attention to what has happened to women. Among those who 'have most' women are least present, among those who 'have less' women are most present."

Williams has developed a term for such widespread disproportion — "Gendered Global Apartheid."

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Dessima Williams speaks about gender inequality at Smith College.

Williams acknowledged that the term could be seen as harsh. However, she said "it is consistent with the harsh reality of polarization that exists."

"Gendered Global Apartheid," like racial apartheid, is an "institutionalized state of inequity held together by law, cultural laws and customs," Williams said.

According to Williams, in the three generations people have studied gender and development, sharp differences have emerged between how men and women have fared through the process of development.

To change this condition, Williams said, development needs to be more multi-dimensional. It needs to incorporate features and elements that are more personal such as child care and social development, she

Turn to GENDER, page 4

Caffeine use predominant on campuses

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

Have those all-nighters for midterms got you dragging your butt in the morning lately? Feel as though you'll never be able to stay awake in that boring class? Or are you just looking for that good ol' caffeine rush? If so, the Java House in Northampton has the answer for all your worries — "Java Jolt."

Made from high grown Columbian Arabica beans, "Java Jolt" has about twice as much caffeine as other gourmet coffees. With a special process that follows roasting, an extra boost of caffeine is added to the batch.

"For people who like caffeine, it's going to give you more than what you drink coffee for," said Rick Barrett, spokesman for Java House.

Nancy Fisher, the owner of Java House, said the idea for adding extra caffeine to the coffee resulted from visiting college coffee houses. She said according to students, caffeine is becoming the acceptable alternative to alcohol and is becoming "the drug of the '90s."

"Our initial market has been students, but the idea of a higher caffeine coffee is quickly gaining an enthusiastic following among many office workers and just about anyone else who need a little help to get through the day," said Fisher.

Many in the medical field are in dispute about the effects of caffeine on the human body. There are experts who believe it is a dangerous drug with negative side effects and those who say it is a natural drug with positive results.

Experts who are concerned with the new trend of caffeine point out how companies are gearing their boosted coffee, pills and sodas towards today's college students. An article in the 1991 edition of U. The National College Newspaper, studies showed that caffeine was becoming the drug of choice on campus.

In the article, a University of Florida health educator states that students do not realize headaches, drowsiness, runny noses, nervousness, mental depression, irritability and stomach problems can be related to caffeine.

A study done by the Food and Drug Administration's Food Additive Chemistry Evaluation Branch shows a five-ounce cup of brewed coffee contains an average of 115 milligrams of caffeine. Americans consume about three cups of coffee a day on average.

In the November 1992 article, Dr. Chow said Americans consume about 45 million pounds of caffeine annually with an average daily intake of 200 milligrams.

"Because coffee revs your metabolism, it can be a friendly beverage if you are trying to lose weight," David Aronson stated in Men' Health Magazine. "As many endurance athletes already know, coffee can improve physical performance."

Right now, Java Jolt can be found in the Amherst/Northampton area in such stores as the Black Sheep Deli, Green Street Express, and Gwen and Debs. An employee at the Black Sheep Deli said the coffee is selling well and they will probably be brewing the beans in the near future.

According to Barrett, Java House is also in the process of talking to the UMass University Store about selling the speciality coffee to students on the campus.

RSOs aiding multiculturalism will get money

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The president of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association is looking for students of all ethnic backgrounds to help him disperse $60,000 to Registered Student Organizations that are looking to promote multiculturalism and diversity on campus.

SGA President David Nunez said the $60,000 will be used to fund any two RSOs who are willing to work together to deal with the issue of color by sponsoring a cultural event. The money is part of the Mission Enhancement Funds awarded to the Student Government by UMass President Michael K. Hooker.

Nunez, who will chair the board, said students from every race are eligible to apply for a spot on the board. The board must have one Asian, African, Native and Latino American student, one Jewish student and one student from the LBGA. The committee must also be half women. Nunez said he will select students who are tolerant of different races and cultures.

"I am looking for people who have a background of acceptance," he said. "Preferably someone who is not homophobic or a racist and has experience in dealing with diverse groups of people.

"I am looking for friendly people who have the ability to deal with a lot of people from any background," he said.

Interested students may pick up applications at the Student Government Office and turn them in by Friday. A final decision will be by Nov. 8, Nunez said.

Nunez said cultural programs will increase racial tolerance on campus.

"The goal of the Mission Enhancement funds is to increase knowledge to an audience we haven't hit yet, people who generally don't deal with people of color," he said. "We are using the $60,000 as a bait to RSOs. If they want the money they have to team up with another RSO and deal with the problems of race.

"I have had several RSOs approach me saying that they would like to diversify but they do not have the resources to do it. But the Mission Enhancement Funds will help deal with this problem," he said.

Nunez also said cultural programs such as guest speakers have helped students in the past to appreciate other cultures.

"Last year the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity sponsored a talk by Leonard Jeffries. Jeffries was a professor who had been accused of speaking out against Jewish people," Nunez said. "Even though he was controversial and a few feelings got hurt, I think he started the process of talk between Jews and Blacks on campus.

"The more cultural programming the better it is for the University, because it opens the mind. I am really excited about the project," Nunez said.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

Other scholars gave examples during their presentations, of the consequences that NAFTA will have in the Mexican economy. James Boyce, professor of economics at UMass, called the removal of the barriers to Mexican imports of corn "the end of a process of evolution that's been going on for 7,000 years."

According to Boyce, the removal of these barriers will ruin the "corn culture of the Mayas." American corn producers receive subsidies for the production of corn.

One presentation of the conference was given by Professor David Barkin.

"NAFTA will not generate income for the majority of the Mexican population, the only sector that might benefit are fruit and vegetable growers," Barkin said.

According to Barkin, "The concerns about job creation is wrong. The United States will lose some jobs but they would lose them anyway. Under NAFTA we are giving away the ability to decide the quality of our lives, in all three countries." He said how municipal day care centers will not be allowed, since they take profits away from corporations.

Barkin also said, "There's no evidence that NAFTA will create prosperity in Mexico, the agreement is explicitly designed to undermine rural well-being, therefore it will not decrease the pressure for migration."

When asked what could be a possible alternative to NAFTA, Barkin said, "The alternative is a clear developing strategy based on basic needs satisfaction, it is the only way for a country to come out of poverty."

"People ought to stop looking at NAFTA as the only way to survive in this new world," Barkin said.

■ gender

continued from page 3

incorporate features and elements that are more personal such as child care and social development, she said.

"A lot of understanding and teaching needs to happen. We need to understand each other women to women and women to men," she said.

Williams said the challenges for women today are to be heard and taken seriously and to survive. As far as the order of these challenges, Williams said she could not say.

"If you are dying from poverty you want to survive and you want to be heard. If you are raped you want to be heard and you want to survive" she said.

Williams however remains hopeful and encouraging. "We are making progress sisters," she said. "I shall never abandon hope," Williams said. "In our lives, in our living, we've got to be hopeful."

Please recycle this Collegian.

Mass. Daily Collegian
Chemically formulated for your enjoyment

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst

NOVEMBER
Schedule of Events

Nov. 5 • 8:00pm
Firesign Theatre
25th Anniversary Special

Nov. 6 • 7:00pm
UMass Hockey
vs. Worcester St.

Nov. 12 • 7:00pm
UMass Hockey
vs. Iona

Nov. 13 • 7:00pm
UMass Hockey
vs. Fitchburg St.

Nov. 18 • 7:30pm
UMass Basketball
vs. Cleveland St. (NIT)

Nov. 23 • 7:00pm
UMass Hockey
vs. Amherst

Nov. 26-28
Christmas Show '93
Fri: Noon – 10pm
Sat: 10am – 10pm
Sun: 10am – 6pm

Nov. 30 • 7:00pm
UMass Hockey
vs. Trinity

THE EDITORIAL PAGE IS LOOKING FOR EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS.

INTERESTED?

CONTACT E.C. THOMAS AT THE COLLEGIAN

SPELL IT OUT

1-800

O-P-E-R

A-T-O-R

There's no lower price for a collect call℠

For long distance calls from public phones.
You don't have to be an Economics major to see that AT&T's new 1 800-OPERATOR service is lower priced than anyone else's standard operator service rates for long distance collect calls. Use it from any phone on or off campus. When you call, just spell it out.
Dial 1 800-OPERATOR (1 800 673-7286).

AT&T

Pending tariff effectiveness. © 1993 AT&T

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

One smoking area needed

With increasing medical concerns over second-hand smoke inhalation, the University's campus-wide smoking ban, implemented yesterday, is on the surface a "healthy" response to the medical reports.

While we appreciate the University's steps towards health consciousness, the fact that all campus smokers — faculty, students and workers — have been left out in the cold, doesn't seem 100 percent fair.

It is unfortunate that a more reasonable policy wasn't considered. Surely, one designated smoking area in the Campus Center would take into account the rights of smokers as well as non-smokers.

Unsigned Editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Collegian Board of Editors.

Post-cold war Angola

The cold war is over and now we can see the aftermath. It's amazing that the United States covertly supported regimes, through the Central Intelligence Agency, that are responsible for some of the worst atrocities. Our U.S. tax dollars are spent on landmines to blow little kids' legs off in Southern Africa all because they have a different system of economics.

Brian C.
O'NEILL

In Angola, for instance, the United Nations officials report that a thousand Angolans are dying daily and millions are without food. As Americans we are directly responsible for those Angolan casualties of war. Our friendly CIA provided the rebels with all the Stinger missiles and or landmines they could use. Due to covert U.S. support the Angolan people are suffering. In fact they have the highest amputee rate in the world (approximately 20,000).

Here's some history: In 1961 a rebel movement called the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) began an armed revolutionary movement to end Portugese colonial rule, led by Dr. Agostinho Neto.

Other movements that sprang up were the National Front of the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) and the National Union for the total Liberation of Angola (UNITA).

In 1973 China began supplying the FNLA with military hardware. Between July 1974 and January 1976 the United States sponsored FNLA and UNITA with covert aid via the CIA totaling $31.1 million dollars.

Soon after the United States began supporting groups, the Soviet Union began supporting the MPLA. The cold war battlefield was set.

In 1975, Portugal was forced to end colonial rule and free elections were set for November 11,1975. The CIA, fearing that the MPLA would win, began a covert operation to discredit the elections. The resulting violence brought the end to the FNLA.

The MPLA won the elections and Neto became the first president of Angola. The MPLA set up a government system favoring Socialist economics with mixed role of state, co-operative and private sectors.

Since its independence the CIA along with UNITA and South Africa have tried to overthrow the Angolan government. Angola has been forced to spend 42 percent of the national budget on defense.

In 1976, Congress learned what the CIA was doing and passed the Clark Amendment stopping the covert aid to UNITA. The Clark Amendment was repealed in 1985 because of pressure from the Reagan Administration.

In 1991, a United Nations peace plan known as UNIVEM 2 was approved by U.S., Soviet and Portugese governments. On Sept. 29-30 of 1992, 91 percent of the Angolan people voted in nation-wide elections. The MPLA won 53 percent of the vote for a parliament. Jose Eduardo de Santos came just short of the 50 percent needed to win the office of president with 49.6 percent. UNITA's Jonas Savimbi had 40.1 percent of the vote, and run-off elections were planned.

Due to weak financial support, UNIVEM 2 was only composed of 350 unarmed military observers, 126 unarmed police observers and 100 unarmed election observers — hardly adequate to stop any violence that would erupt. CIA stepchild Jonas Savimbi, realizing that he would lose, rejected the election results and this started renewed fighting.

President Clinton accepted the 1992 election results last May, recognizing the MPLA government. This will not stop the fighting. Savimbi and his henchmen have seized control of 75 percent of the countryside. The CIA has no doubt halted much of the covert aid to UNITA since the collapse of the Soviet Union, but the rebels still have lots of U.S.-made hardware and they are not fighting in the name of democracy anymore.

The Security Council needs to come up with a plan that creates peace. Winner-takes-all elections will not bring that peace. Write to your Congressman and show your interest. These people need your help.

Brian C. O'Neill is a Collegian columnist.

How many morons are on staff?

How many morons are on the Collegian staff? At least three. 1) Michael Morrissey. 'nuff said.

2) Mike Einhorn. Okay so the guy got drunk. No problem. And he thought he'd go for a quick dip. Not particularly bright, but hey, he was drunk, we'll let it slide. But then, presumably while stone-cold sober, he writes a column [Collegian, Oct. 28] saying that, had he drowned while pulling this assinine stunt, it would have been the University's fault! Why? Because they don't have enough help phones. That may be a valid point. But if your gonna do something stupid, don't go crying because no one saves you from yourself. You're an adult now, you're your own responsibility.

3) Stephanie Eisenberg. Woman, you say yourself that you are one of those who are "just not mechanically inclined enough to operate an automobile" [Collegian, Oct. 28]. You admit that your friends are right: you are not a safe person to have on the road! It's bad enough that you don't care about your own safety; you also endanger the lives of your friends and everyone else on the road. And you brag about it! The feminists of the world must love you.

Look, driving a car is a big responsibility. That's why only adults are allowed to do it. But even more than Mike Einhorn, you neglect that responsibility. He complains that there is no one to save him from himself. You think it's funny, not only that you endanger yourself, but that you endanger others. The criminal thing is that all the tickets you should have received — tickets that protect me and other drivers, not pay for cruisers — were turned into warnings. And you obviously drive on.

Jonathan Frantz
Sylvan

The support of ALANA

It can be very frustrating arriving at UMass and not finding anyone who can relate to you. It is easy for those who find thousands like themselves to think that it is just as easy for everyone else to fit in, but this is incorrect.

Many on campus believe that ALANA programs at the University display seperatism. Many believe that every time something goes wrong on campus, representatives from the ALANA community storm the chancellor's office.

Malkes
GOMES

What many don't understand is that if the University didn't display such disrespect and neglect toward the ALANA community there would be no need to march to Whitmore in the first place. Not even a fool would give up his rights to fight for equality and better treatment. Attending a predominantly White university obviously calls for support groups within the ALANA community.

It's funny how in every residence hall there are basically all White students on each floor and occasionally a few ALANA students. No one complains about this, but many are ready to call apportionment when there is an ALANA floor.

I lived in Gorman during a time when the Nunace program was functioning. There were some White students who were living in the dorm and taking part in the program to sincerely learn about others and their actions. It is easy to assume things about the different ALANA programs on campus and why they exist. The question to those people who make assumptions about ALANA programs being state-supported segregation is: Have you ever try to learn about these programs and their functions?

When I was on the meal plan many would comment on the fact that sometimes there existed an ALANA table and that this was a division. Now when you have a dining hall full of tables with White people sitting down, one would say this is natural and no one questions it, yet some of these same people would never sit next to you.

Have you ever been constantly stopped by the police for inane things, such as purposely driving 15 miles an hour in a 25 mile an hour zone so you don't get stopped, but then you still get stopped? Have you ever been stopped by four police cars and searched for stolen computers that won't fit in your back pack? Have you ever had a professor that automatically assumes you can't write; or read off all kinds of statistics and information about other groups which promote and maintain stereotypes?

These are definitely not privileges because of skin, hair or eye color, but are obstacles for some which must be constantly fought, even today in 1993. Do we keep superficially or truthfully moving forward? I ask those who think ALANA programs are a form of state-sponsored segregation to imagine themselves in these situations and then say these programs are not needed.

All students on campus pay fees for the different programs which exist. Some receive benefits from some programs while others receive benefits from others. Each individual chooses to participate in what he or she wants. We must remember we are all students, while also keeping in mind that we are all different.

By trying to pretend we are all the same we become colorblind, thus eschewing the fact that racism exists. We also disregard another's cultural background. Part of prejudice and racism is the threat of difference. No man who knows his roots and identifies with his culture will become colorblind for the sake of other's conveniences.

Malkes Gomes is a Collegian columnist.

New, improved UMass

The University has finally transformed the eternal construction site outside the Campus Center into something.

Hurrah, hurrah! The campus is now beautiful!

Now I realize it was quite a concern before, with small paths and people getting run over by the escort service and the mail truck and I joyfully thank the University for looking out for my safety. I'm not even sure if vehicular homicide on campus was a primary reason for resurfacing the area, but it was certainly a concern for me.

Adam
GOULSTON

Another concern was the lack of landing space for helicopters and Cessnas, but again the University picked up on this and accommodated. We can now bring in a full scale trauma unit for anyone who goes into convulsions after downing an especially powerful double cappucino in the Bluewall.

We'll have them rushed to Cooley Dickinson before they can even think about going into shock.

Perhaps my greatest concern for this area was the lack of pitching facilities. Every now and then, one needs to hop on the mound and fire a fastball in the direction of Hasbrouck. By some stroke of meticulous landscape design, there is still room for trauma units and a pitching facility to make the Fenway grounds crew jealous.

Let's rehash — less vehicular homicide, landing strips and more pitching mounds. Oh, the miracles of blacktop.

A couple of days ago, I was talking to a friend who's on National Student Exchange at the University of Oregon. He had lived in the Amherst area for about 10 years and after spending his freshman year on campus at UMass, he decided it was time to get out of the Happy Valley, at least for a year.

"The campus is really nice here," he said.

"Yeah, but UMass is pretty nice too. Especially this time of year, it's really gorgeous," I replied.

He paused for a second, "Come on, UMass is an ugly campus."

"No dude, you've got the pond and the trees and . . . the pond." Compared to my freshman prison of UMass-Dartmouth, Amherst is Utopia, but I realized I was playing devil's advocate. In comparison to the rolling hills and lush campuses of the rest of the five-college system, UMass is a foreboding wasteland of concrete and hardtop. It doesn't have to be this way.

The leveling of the ground near the Campus Center could have taken a baby step in beautifying UMass. The planting of more trees, the laying of sod, maybe even a few bricks could easily have made an attractive little runway into the cavernous Campus Center.

Instead we are left with another plot (and a pretty substantial one) of faceless flattened land with a few miserable attempts at arbor.

But remember, as of yesterday this is a smoke-free campus. The spot outside the Campus Center is perfect for trampling butts.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

To the UMass community:

The Collegian Ed/Op desk would like to cordially invite all of our readers to the Collegian open house on Friday the 5th of November, from 1-3 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center Basement (located on the opposite side from the ATMs.)

UMASS STUDENTS
ON THE 10*, 14 or 19 MEAL PLAN

Take a Break From the D.C.
Any Mon - Sat (4:30 - 9:00)

Have Dinner at the TOC Instead!

Just Bring Your UMASS ID & Receive a $3.00 Credit on any Dinner Selection. (excluding appetizers)

Free non-alcoholic beverage included throughout November
*Mon-Fri only. Butterfield Residents not eligible.

All UMASS Students Receive a 20% Discount on any Menu Item with a Valid Student ID (may not be combined with any other offer)

The Top of The Campus Restaurant

11th Floor Campus Center
545-3216

Lunch Mon-Fri 11:30am-2:00pm
Dinner: Mon-Sat 4:30-9:00pm

Arts & Living

Passionately mounted Concubine a grand epic

Also: an affecting look at Rock Hudson

THE REEL WORLD

Set among the coeval splendor and squalor of China and covering over 50 years of turbulent political entanglements, Farewell My Concubine is really about a passionate and dangerous love triangle. But its scope is grander than that, and the results are both tantalizingly exotic and devastatingly poignant.

Co-winner of the Golden Palm at Cannes, but banned in its native China, Concubine tells the sweeping story of Dieyi (Leslie Cheung) and Xialou (Zhang Fengyi), two boys who grow up trained as opera singers and how their lives begin to mirror the opera they're groomed (and ultimately fated) to play; that of a fallen emperor and his mistress, aptly titled "Farewell My Concubine."

Dieyi (trained as the mistress) harbors a life-long attraction to Xialou, one that begins in the oppressive opera academy they both attend in 1925 and ends in tragedy in 1977.

Their relationship, though, remains platonic, Xialou seemingly oblivious to Dieyi's affections. Dieyi reacts stunned when Xialou marries a prostitute played by Gong Li (Raise the Red Lantern) and at a decisive moment, remains loyal to her over Dieyi.

Various political power plays serve as an intricate and sometimes revealing backdrop for Concubine. The power shifts in the government — whether it be the Japanese, Nationalists or Red Communists — reflects the subtle power plays in the trio's relationship; one that is filled with unrequited love, deception, and decidedly tragic overtones.

Exquisitely filmed by Chen Kaige — really, this is one beautiful film — and adapted from Lilian Lee's novel, Concubine is more than pretty pictures and perfect-note arias. Fate, in all its noble and wicked glory, is the central theme here, and the story seems to say that not even desire or even love can penetrate its icy armor.

Concubine has problems, however, with both continuity and characterization. The film jumps around considerably, and not even generous intertitles are fully explanatory, especially in a film whose scope covers over a half a century in only 2 and a half hours. Precious moments are needlessly wasted trying to find one's bearings.

The acting is as impassioned as the roles demand, though one wonders why the best characterization is of the woman, in Dieyi and Xialou, than of the pair themselves. It's as if Concubine never travels beneath the ornate makeup and elaborate masks the duo wears. Perhaps, then, that is precisely the point.

Crafted with one eye toward meticulous detail and the other toward grand pathos, Farewell My Concubine is a luxuriously mounted epic whose saddest result is that the Chinese people will never get a chance to see it. A- (Academy of Music)

Rock Hudson's Home Movies — The idea behind this intriguing and often humorous half-documenatry video film — that of taking old Hudson movie clips out of context and exploring their homo-sensitve undertones — seems acutely warped, the idea of someone whose left their projector whirling just a little too long. But videofilmmaker Mark Rappaport (Chain Letters) avoids the pitfalls of what could've been a film thesis gone pretentiously awry. What Rappaport has done, through annexing old Hudson film clips, is expose Hollywood homophobia and delicate double standards.

Turn to THE REEL WORLD, page 8

Pointed humor, tunes galore at Festival of Life

COURTESY LIZZARD

John S. Hall, fourth from left, of the band King Missle, appeared in a spoken-word performance at the "Festival of Life," an event held Saturday, October 29 at Amherst College.

By DARIENNE HOSLEY
Collegian Staff

Festival of Life
Amherst College
October 29, 1993

The humor was pointed and the music abundant as the Festival of Life rolled into Amherst College Friday night, drawing an enthusiastic crowd of alternative types pretending they weren't "types."

John S. Hall of King Missile opened the four-hour Greenpeace fundraiser with a charged spoken-word performance, romping through twisted, bitter prose and scraps of paper. "I want to be different," He whined. "I want to be just like all the different people." Hall declined to do "Detachable Penis" in favor of less familiar — but just as funny — material.

New York-based Dog Society followed with a strong but unremarkable set. Inclined's funky improvisations finally got the crowd onto their feet; the LA band was the most aggressive of the bunch, pushing free tapes, stickers, posters and their fan club.

The JudyBats took the stage with "She's Sad She Said" and a very laid-back version of "Geography," finally picking up the pace with a revved-up "Ugly on the Outside."

"I can feel the perversion in waves," frontman Jeff Heiskell told the audience before swinging into "Pain Makes You Beautiful," the title track off the band's

Turn to FESTIVAL OF LIFE, page 8

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500

CHECK OUT SORORITY LIFE AT UMASS
JOIN AXΩ & AEΦ
FOR AN OPEN HOUSE AT AXΩ TONIGHT 7PM
FOR INFO CALL KIM 549-1407

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

ART THAT IS UNIQUE TO SELF INFORMS OTHERS

Putting Imagination to Work
MAKE A DIFFERENCE
Make it Happen on Campus

ASK THE ARTS COUNCIL FOR SUPPORT

Next Grant DEADLINE:NOVEMBER 19
Guidelines/Applications 545-0202
ARTS COUNCIL Office 103 Hasbrouck

Visit our CCConcourse Table November 4.

STUDENTS!
Collegian Classified Ads
just a dime a word!

just one little dime

Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
November 2nd - 4th
Stop by the Collegian table on the Campus Center Concourse!

SALE APPLIES TO STUDENTS ONLY

■ the reel world

continued from page 7

Rappaport uses a first person narrative in travelling through Hudson's illustrious career, from the tough-guy period pieces to the fluffy sex comedies with Doris Day. What Rappaport reveals, through none-too-subtle prompting, is a sea of sexual innuendo and embedded homoeroticism.

Whether it's entirely valid is another matter, but it's hard to argue with the seemingly explicit come-on by Tony Randall, or the eerie fatalistic parallels between later Hudson films like Seconds and his own decline from AIDS.

The film is both funny and oddly affecting, especially as one realizes Hudson was a better actor than audiences remember, since he was projecting the sturdy, all-American male ideal in a number of his films.

Home Movies takes film clips out of one context and places them in an entirely more explosive arena, revealing the truth — or at least a subjective interpretation of it — of Hudson's and Hollywood's tangled relationship with sex, lies and videotape. As interesting as it is entertaining. B+ (Pleasant St. Theatre)

Jon Lupo is a Collegian film reviewer.

■ Festival of Life

continued from page 7

third and most recent album.

Named for that violent little puppet from the Punch and Judy show, the Tennessee-based band combines guitar-driven pop with delightfully cynical lyrics: "There's a gentle artifice to loving/ you fill the empty hours just fine," Heiskell crooned with a giveaway grin. His surprisingly strong, broad-ranged voice powered the performance, supported by the agile rhythms of the rest of the five-piece group.

Skipping through favorites "Daylight" and "Being Simple," the JudyBats offered up new songs in the one-hour set, like the mellow "Naked," and closed the night with disco classic "Baby We Can Do It."

■ Phoenix

continued from page 1

the heart," he said.

"After eight minutes of seizures, arms flopping, his knuckles hitting the sidewalk, his head banging back and forth, his feet flopping up and down, after about eight minutes of that, he finally became still, completely still," witness Ron Davis told "Hard Copy."

Several yards away on a pay telephone, Phoenix's brother was frantically trying to get help.

Phoenix, who was named after the river of life in Herman Hesse's "Siddhartha," was known as the model of good health, clean living and professional dedication. He was a vegetarian and an animal rights activist who campaigned against wearing animal furs.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

The Collegian
545-3500

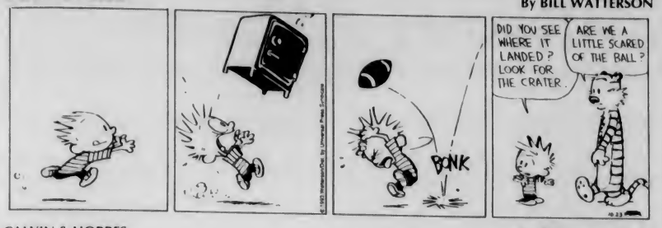
Campus Parking, Including Permit Information and Ticket Processing will be closed from 9:45-11:15am on Wednesday, November 3, 1993

MONRO MUFFLER/BRAKE

MUFFLERS • BRAKES • SHOCKS • SPRINGS • ALIGNMENTS • TIRES • FRONT WHEEL DRIVE EXPERTS

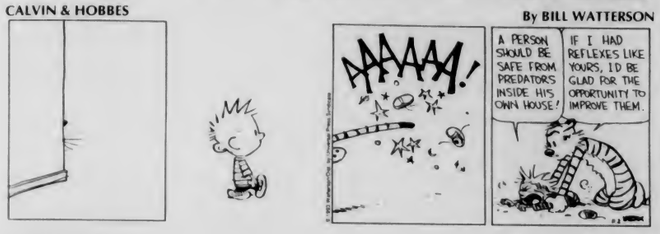
HADLEY 360 Russell St	586-0892
NORTHAMPTON 326 King St	586-3266
CHICOPEE 461 Memorial Dr	594-9161
WILBRAHAM 1971 Boston Road	543-8027
W. SPRINGFIELD 777 Riverdale St.	739-3860

COUPON SPECIALS!
Oil, Lube & Filter $14.88 Plus Tax
2-Wheel Alignment $23.88*
4-Wheel Alignment $49.88*
90 Days same as cash!
IF IT AIN'T BROKE, WE DON'T FIX IT.



Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
Tuesday
SHARK NIGHT
Singles Pool Tournament
• $2.00 Entrance Fee
• Free Pizza Slices
• Play For Cash
• Sign Up: 7:00-7:45
• 20 oz. Drafts $1.95
WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Because this is Amherst and you're stuck here

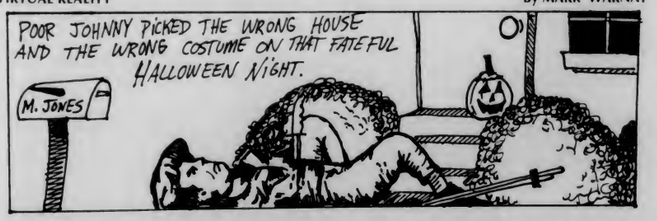


University Bartending Course
• Bartending and bar management instruction at a fraction of the cost of most schools
• Friendly and helpful instructors
• A national program located on campus at colleges throughout the country
T.I.P.S.™ certification available
$$$ students this semester will be able to work by Xmas!!! $$$
FREE INFO SESSION: Tonight at 7:00 pm Campus Conference Room #905
Shop around and compare! Call 617-277-2075 today for more information.
WEEKLY CLASSES START NOV. 10
Act Now! Space is Limited!!!

CAREERS
Judaic Studies and Hillel invite you to
THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUM
DATE: WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1993
TIME: 3:30 PM
LOCATION: HERTER HALL LOUNGE - Rm. 301
SPONSORED BY:
MATHER CAREER CENTER
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
JUDAIC STUDIES AND HILLEL
This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!
ALUMNI/AE PANELISTS:
Darren Garnick (1990) Major: Communications — News Reporter, Enterprise Sun Daily Newspaper
Alison Buckholtz (1991) Major: English — Publisher, Faber & Faber
Dana Grossblatt (1987) Major: English — District Attorney
For more information, please contact Mather Career Center 545-2224

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

P. S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Always bear in mind that your own resolution to succeed is more important than any other one thing.."

– Abraham Lincoln

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Creative tasks at home bring out the innovator in you. Loved ones applaud your originality. Send a card, flowers or a small gift to some one confided to home or hospital.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Before making any long-term commitments, be aware that fate can move in strange ways. Certain people or situations are indelibly inscribed in your future. Accept reality and work within its boundaries.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Crank up your energy level with a regimen that includes nutritious meals and daily exercise. A partner or closer associate needs you to go out on a limb for them. Do so willingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take care of your plants. Teamwork makes the money tree flourish. Recycle old ideas — there is something new under the shining sun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The structure of a key relationship may be tested now. Your cool manner keeps issues form boiling over. Selling your differences allows you to make a fresh start.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone who is distant may return to the fold because of your good deeds. The pieces of a puzzle fall into place without discussion. Attending a swanky social event could lead to romance.

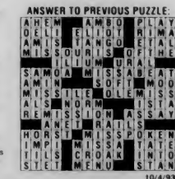
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A low-key approach works wonders when discussing financial matters. Ask pertinent questions — VIPs will be impressed. An aura of mystery surrounds a potential romantic partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You could get unexpected news that leads to valuable insights. Get in touch with your own desires. You may be demanding too much of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The helping hand you extend today will secure a profitable agreement. Emphasize equality in you alliances. Master new work procedures and exciting career opportunities will follow.

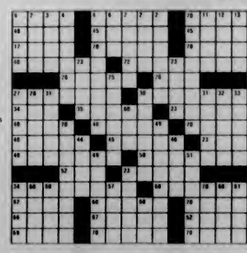
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An outsider gives you help with a family problem. Be patient if a love does tests you. Sign agreements only after reading the fine print. A romantic attraction grows in intensity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An influential person appreciates your imaginative approach to your work. A promotion or raise is possible if you continue to perform at top level.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An excellent day to get a new educational or business project off the ground. Weigh the pros and cons carefully. Closer communication with your neighbors promotes better understanding.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Naval lookup
5 Bitter
10 Dance
14 Volcanic product
15 Island greeting
16 English author Lamb, to some 17 Mideast country
18 High ranking person
19 Put away
20 Wrote
22 Points of view
24 Dust
26 Actress Grant
27 Stoa
30 Photographer's chemical
34 Honest —
35 Slow, to Solti
37 Brave's home
38 Camera eye
40 Before
42 Symbol of peace
43 Chemical compound
45 Fed the kitty
47 Cozy place
48 Ruin
50 Those who wed secretly
52 Highlander's headcover
53 — de menthe
54 Love song
58 Add air
62 Leave out
63 Movable parts
65 River to the Caspian
66 Closed hand
67 Follow
68 Chocolate candy
69 Corner
70 Fast horse
71 Comfort

DOWN
1 Radar screen image
2 Unusual
3 — the Terrible
4 Web-footed bird
5 Golf advantage
6 — mode
7 Mechanical man
8 Factory
9 Skillful
10 Assailed
11 Choir voice
12 Jungle king
13 Rules
21 Wicked
23 Shipshape
25 Pen for livestock
27 Lost color
28 Overly overweight
29 Leases
30 Fan
31 Poem
32 At no time
33 Adolescents
36 Cotton mill need
39 Group of seven
41 Freed
44 Horse color
46 Capitol feature
49 Pictures
51 Wig
53 Stop
54 Word with sell or soap
55 Arabian ruler
56 Ascend
57 Fender mishap
59 Opera highlight
60 Soviet news agency
61 Otherwise
64 Regret

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

10/4/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor ..... Jake Nevala
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Sean Ramsey, Susan Nasberg

MENU

LUNCH
Bagel Dog
Chicken Cutlet
BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread
Chicken Cutlet

DINNER
Roast Top Round
Fish in Batter
BASICS DINNER
Roman Rice and Beans
Fish in Batter

Multicultural Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Remembering the past faces

It is my night to volunteer in the Kitchen. Ten minutes after arriving at the Chalmers court house on a chilly Austin evening, in the kitchen I slowly stir the simmering pot of hot chocolate.

Feeling safe in the corner by the stove, away from the room filled with alters earlier through which I had nervously strided, I stood in numbness recalling last year's homage to those who had died, especially those claimed by violence, AIDS and substance abuse.

Barbara
REYES

As I began to reminisce, I wondered if tonight's ceremonies would be like those of past years I had celebrated Dia de los Muertos. Because I had lacked understanding of this folkloric tradition, it had been difficult to directly relate the event to my life.

Last year, the mass had been solemn, and although I had invited Grandma and my sister to share with me in the celebration, I had not understood the mass. Perhaps I had been distracted with the unfamiliar furnishings and establishment of the Catholic church. That year, I had avoided viewing the alters.

Straying away from the pot of chocolate, I wander into the doorway, curiously peering into the candlelit room where alters had been arranged. From a distance, I peruse the silent room, catching glimpses of pictures, flowers, letters, a liquor bottle. I feel the old familiar pain in my throat, my heart racing, my vision muddling through my eyes' salty water; I don't want to look. Moving toward the stove, the chocolate is nearly done; it would soon be time to serve the chocolate to those who would march solemnly with their lighted candles from the church to the court house. This year I would not miss the alters.

I enter the candlelit room and note that I solely occupy the room where I feel very safe and welcome. I stand in the presence of an alter. I closely view an object that lay before me, a picture of a handsome man standing near a bottle of his favorite drink.

I pause, smiling as I remember the smell of drink on my own father's breath when I was a child and would sometimes kiss his cheek. Looking back again at the alter I see his objects, the memorabilia that makes him unique.

Emotionally stirred by the distinction, the intimacy of the alters aesthetics, it all strikes an impression on me, leaving me with a strong yearning to meet them; with great disappointment, I would not, as here alone I stand in the center of the room.

In an ocean of thought, I focus for a moment on the memorials of people, those beautiful alters that had never had the pleasure of knowing. Not knowing them nor the special memories of which they were a part endows me a tremendous loss.

Overwhelmed with curiosity, I wonder at what it is like to lose someone, always making me sad and angry, confused and bitter. Not believing in supreme dieties, I wonder angrily at why I was dragged into a world to build relationships with those that I love, only for me to be dragged right back out. Questioning my own agnosticism, I begrudge the old familiar confusion and resentment of the forced belief of spiritual eternity, salvation and damnation. It didn't seem logical to live my life with my belief in God, only presumably at the end of my life to confusingly submit and to ironically believe in those options.

Somehow I had always found strengh to not fully accept those unfair predeterminations. Still with great regret, I fear the inevitable experience through which I have never been; still alive and well with all my grandparents, brothers and sisters, and friends. The unpredictability of loss always rubs against my grain.

I pause to glimpse at the surrounding alters that so touch me; the strengh it must have taken for the survivors to reconstruct visible memories of their dead loved ones. I see these people but I could not touch them nor hear them. Moved with immense warmth and remembrance, sadness, and joy, I begin to weep. I weep, too, for the rapidly changing world in which I live hoping that I will find the peace and courage that I hoped the people in the alters now had.

Remembering the pot of hot chocolate, I look once again at the alters and drew strength from their soft images. Knowing that this cold night will soon be a warm memory, my heart smiles as I stroll back into the kitchen.

Barbara Reyes is a student at Hampshire College.

Haitians denied democracy

The following is an excerpt taken from a story written in the November 1993 issue of MIM notes (The official Newsletter of the Maoist Internationalist Movement)

The Amerikan imposed deal for "democracy" in Haiti collapsed in October, as the United States and the Haitain military keep up their rousing two-year game of good-cop/bad-cop.

With the process derailed in early October, Amerika and its allies in the Haitain military enter another period of negotiation at the expense of the people. Amerika called on the U.N. to impose new economic sanctions to bring the military back to heel.

The elected president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide, overthrown in a coup in 1991, was coerced into signing a deal with Fascict military rules in the summer. Termed the Governers Island deal, it pretended that "democracy" could come to Haiti with Aristide in Civilian power, but leaving the fascists in control of the military.

One key to the deal was that Amerikan Soilders (in U.N. hats), would train the Haitain military and police in the art of "democratic" reppresion. The police would supposedly come under civilian rule through a new separation of powers. This was supposed to mean the end of military rule, but it didn't fool anyone — including the military itself.

Buying Time

The deal brought the military some time, during which they launched a massive campaign of repression against the peopies' opposition. Soldiers carried out executions and raids, especially in poorer neighborhoods, with summary executions and random terror being the norm.

The Haiti Resistance and Democracy information Bullitin produced clandestinely in Port-au-Prince, reports "accounts of 97 arbitrary executions in the Port-au-Prince area, as well as many mass arrests and disappearances, raids and attacks on neighborhoods." And when it came to carrying out its later steps including he landing of Amerikan troops, the resignation of General Raoul Cedras and the return of Aristide to the island- the military called it off.

American Complicity

Cedras supporters in September celebrated the anniversary of his rise to power with the demonstrators carrying a Haitain and American flag, shouting: "Vive Duvalier, Aristide is finished," in Creole.

Clinton, taking care not to offend anyone, sent a nice letter to the Aristide-backed powereless prime minister Robert Malval saying "We request that these guilty of recent violence in Haiti be identified and arrested." He added "the United States holds the Haitain military and the police responsible for the protection of all Haitians against outrages such as those commited recently."

Again no one was fooled. Clinton says he wants the military police — who coordinate terrorism and prepression — to stop it, and the prime minister with no control over them to see that it happens.

Amerika ruled Haiti directly from 1915 to 1934, then backed a series of dictaters including the father and son Duvaliers, until 1990, when Arlstide won a presidentail election. The current Amerikan intervention, including the "training" mission, remains true to that tradition.

This time the U.S. will put up a better facade: occupying Haiti against the will of the Haitain [people, but in their name. The object, as always is to get Haitains back to work producing cheap commodities for export, consuming dependancy as expensive imported surplus goods- and keep them coming to U.S. shores in an unregulated fashion.

One independant Haitain activist told MiM that the principle problem for Haiti is an oppresive military. He would support "any invasion whose purpose is to dismantle the army and police." But Amerika or any imperialist power will not intervene on those terms. History has shown that foreign powers only intervene in other countries to increase influence, not to help people.

By Maoist Internationalist Movement.

Day of the Dead: Aztec tradition

By BARBARA REYES
Collegian Correspondent

Dia De los Muertos, or Day of the Dead, traditionally was started by the Aztecs, a native people of Mexico. It was started prior to the Spanish Conquest.

The Aztecs viewed death as part of the natural process of life therefore they had no fear of death, unlike their Spanish invaders.

The Spanish feared death and their eventual departure from all the pleasures in life. To the Aztecs, death was a desirable event that brought honor to the dead.

Unlike the contemporary celebrations that predominantly exist in Mexico and in the Southwest region of the United States, the Aztecs reverently offered sacrifices to the God of Death, Mictlanteculti, in their temple of Tenochtitlan. Such a preoccupation with death in Mexico had eventually intertwined with the concept of fertility and life for the future. Such homage to death was complementary to life on earth.

In Mexico and in the Southwest, there are similar, more contemporary festivities that have become a peoples' folkloric celebration with festive music, food, candies, and toys in the shapes of skulls and skeletons and artwork are composed (mainly in Mexico). Among the art shown were the works of Jose Quadalupe Posada, a renown satirical artist.

These festivities usually start days before the actual solemn remembrance, which officially begins November 1-2.

Historically, November 1st is religiously celebrated as "El dia de los Santos" (All Saints Day) to honor all children who have died. On November 2, "EL dia de los difuntos," or "El dia de los Muertos" (All Souls Day) occurs. Symbolically, life takes death by the hand as professed by the Aztecs, in rememberance of those who are no longer here with us.

On November 2, alters with personal items that have been arranged prior to this date by the respective survivors to honor a dead loved one, are officially viewed by everyone participating in the ceremony.

Pan de Muerto (sweet bread decorated with skulls and crosses), candles, fresh flowers and food are all an integral part of the ceremony.

In some parts of South Texas and in Mexico on the eve of November 2, "Noche de Duelo" (Night of Mourning) presides in many cemeteries as the mourners watch over the dead. With them they bring flowers, fruits, sweets, breads, candles and traditionally, tamales and mole, both favorite cultural foods.

This is a celebration of pride, a day when those that partake of this folkloric tradition claim love for those who are no longer with us.

For Your Information

• On Wednesday November 3rd, the Radical Student Union will be showing a film on the life and imprisonment of a political prisoner on death row, Mumia Abu Jamal. This video by the Partisan Defense conference features excerpts of Jamal interviewed from death row in Huntington State prison. The 25-minute video tells the story of the cop vendetta against this rebel, young Black Panther Party Spokesperson, radical journalist and MOVE supporter.

The video will be shown at 8 p.m. in the DUKES Room, at The University of Massachusetts, Student Union Building.

• The Resident Commisioner of Puerto Rico is offereing a reception for Puerto Rican College students at The office of the Education and Labor Committee in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, Nov. 4, 1993. Interested students can call Evelyn DeJesus at 549-2646.

El Comisonado Residente en Washington
Hon. Carlos Romero-Barceló tiene el honor de invitarle a la recepción especial en nuestra Capital Federal en honor a los estudiantes universitarios puertorriqueños el jueves, 4 de noviembre de 1993
7:30 PM - 9:00 PM
Education and Labor Committee
2175 Rayburn House Office Building
South Capitol Street and Independence Ave., S.E.
Washington, D.C.

The Multicutural Affairs page is looking for writers. Come down to 113 Campus Center Basement. and ask for Felicia Cousins.

■ pipes

continued from page 12

automatic game suspensions for fighting. The NHL has even gone as far as to remove the fighting element from its video game, "NHL '94."

It would seem that fighting is an open-and-shut case for NHL brass.

What I don't understand is why the NHL denies that fighting is an appealing part of the game for fans. Consider the following: "The Hockey News" has advertisements every week for hours of hockey-fight footage, which the NHL would have you believe sickens the average fan.

Another testament to the fan-recruiting powers of fighting is this past weekend when CNN Sports broke to commercial by saying "The Devils and Flyers played this afternoon . . ." and accompanying the voice-over was footage of an Eric Lindros-Scott Stevens fight. The "News Leader" thought it better to keep fans tuned in by using fight footage rather than scenes from any of the eight goals scored in that game.

Simply put, if the league's top players are protected from potential cheap shots, the overall level of play is elevated

* * *

Early returns on the NHL season show that while we were correct in picking Toronto as the team to watch in the West, our pick of the Islanders in the East is not looking too good. Goalie Ron Hextall has been terribly inconsistent.

If the Chicago Bulls are at all curious as to how they will fair this year, they should look no further than the Penguins, another team whose performance hinges on the performance of one player. With Lemieux, the Penguins are 277-247-54 (a .525 winning percentage). Without him they are 61-78-18 (.440).

Michael R. DiLorenzo is a Collegian columnist.

■ tennis

continued from page 12

qualifying round for the singles draw, Durant stepped in for Pam Levine in doubles play, as Levine was forced to sit out after coming down with mono.

"We got smoked," Scheckner told Dixon after the match, "But I've never played so well. It makes me want to come back and practice harder."

Dixon said she felt that the Rolex Tournament was a good experience for all of her players.

"It lets them see what big time intercollegiate tennis is all about," Dixon said. "I think that it will inspire them to come back and work harder for the spring season."

Madness, Madness everywhere

ARAM COMEAN / COLLEGIAN
Jeff Meyer and the University of Massachusetts basketball team kicked off practice Friday night at Midnight Madness. The Collegian hoop preview is November 18.

TWISTERS TAVERN "Where the Music Comes Alive"

MON.	Monday Night Football/Free Pizza Slices
TUES.	SETTIE & ORAL GROOVE
WED.	Open Mic Acoustic
THURS.	Disco Hell & Coors Lite Night
FRI.	Dancing with DJ Bob/.99¢ Wings 4-7pm
SAT.	The Painted Bitter Band

Call 253-2663 For More Information
TRY TWISTERS FOR CASUAL DINNER OR SATURDAY LUNCH

KLEIN'S ALL SPORTS "WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD"
TUESDAY ONLY GIGANTIC ELECTION DAY SKI & HOCKEY SALE
Columbia Sportswear Company SAVE 20% White Stag ON ALL SKI CLOTHING NORDICA SPORTSYSTEM
CROSS COUNTRY PACKAGES STARTING FROM $89.99
10-20% OFF ALL HOCKEY STICKS SKATES EQUIPTMENT
COMPLETE JR. PACKAGE WITH NORDICA BOOTS $179.99
COMPLETE DOWNHILL PACKAGES STARTING FROM $279.99 ELAN SIDE RAICHLE BOOTS SALOMON BINDINGS
MC 101 SNOWBOARD WITH BINDINGS $399.99
KLEIN'S WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD
SANGERTOWN 797-5210 RIVERSIDE MALL UTICA 793-0491 MOHAWK ACRES SHOPPING CENTER ROME 339-1117

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Come Find Out About Sorority Life Open House at Chi Omega Next to Mather Career Center Tuesday 7 pm

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

Spectrum, the Fine Arts and literary magazine of UMass, is now accepting submissions of art, photos, prose, and poetry. Hand deliver to 408E Student Union, above Credit Union. Students are also invited to join any of these four staffs to help critique submissions 545-2240

The Sisters of Delta Zeta Are holding our Annual See Saw Athon from 8 am on 11/3 to 8 am on 11/4. A portion of the proceeds will go to Gallaudet University for the hearing impaired. We will be down at the Campus Pond. Come down and see us!

AUTO FOR SALE

74 Toyota Celica GT Runs well, needs a muffler. Call 549-7706

1990 Hyundai Excel 29000 Miles only Excellent Condition $4000 Call 546-1482

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices Every day 8-11 pm 65 University Drive

FOR RENT

1 bedroom Apt. All utilities. Available immediately. Stephanie 665-2947

FOR SALE

CDROM Hitashi (external) Great 350.00 549-6426

HP48SX, TI-95 Scientific Programmable calculators. Extra features. Cheap! Jay 585-0760

Elton John Photos takenat Mullins! Call Matt at 546-3196

IBM Computer, printer, software, disks, all 550.00/BO 549-8476

Mac Plus (2) w/accessories Imagewriter 2 (3) Mac SE, 20 meg, 30 meg hard drives Mac ICI, Mac display, full hard drives formatted Packages for $550 1 week offer (Liquidation) Call 549-5134 for MAX eves

Mountain Bike 1993 Specialized Hard Rock Excellent Condition - Like New $300/BO 256-4137

Native American Bone/horn Chokers, bracelets for sale. All hand-made from deer, bone/horn. Will make any color, size, or length. Choker or bracelet. For info contact kahonwes at 546-5794

New Computers. Competitive prices. Assitance/lessons available. 549-6426

FOUND

I found your jean jacket in the campus center a few nights ago. Call 6-0258

Set of Keys Between Northeast and Worcester Dining Commons. Call Cassie 6-7408

HELP WANTED

Cruise Ships Now Hiring. Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Delivery Persons Wanted Nights, need your own car. Apply at DP Dough Dowtown Amherst

Free Trips and Cash Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre! Call Now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

GREEKS AND CLUBS RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK For your fraternity, sorority, and club Plus $1000 for your self! And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling 1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Get up, Stand up work on Clean Water Action's campaign. Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA. Activists wanted flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break-start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Postal Jobs Available. Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

Travel Free! Spring Break Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, S. Padre! Sell "Professional" tour packages! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1-800-426-7710

INSTRUCTION

Learn to Bartend with University Batending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Free info. session Wed. Nov. 3rd in Campus Center room 905 at 7 pm or call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOSE WEIGHT NOW!

Diet that works like magic! Natural 100% Guaranteed. Effective. Affordable Call 549-8139

LOST

Reward – Lost ratty black bookbag on Sunderland bus Monday PM. Extreme personal value - no possible use to anyone else. Please return - I'm begging. Please? Call Dave at 665-0160. No questions asked.

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the "Minuteman and Proud!" t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to "LexiCon Productions" to: P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004.

MUSICIANS

All Original Band seeking bassist and keyboardist for recording and club shows. Dedicton a must! 268-3599

Guitar Lessons Beginner Advanced Lessons may be taken for course credit. 256-6848

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Attention for anyone who has ever felt physically threatened. Quorum International offers the amazing PAAL. The personal attack alarm, a pocketful of protection that is inexpensive. 413-729-7892

Need a Babysitter? Experienced, CPR and First Aid; College Student. Call 546-6981

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

Purchasing a Used Car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Factifinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips Nov. 19-21 Killington Weekend $99 Winter Break Ski Week Killington Jan. 16-21 $275 sign up today at Con course table or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Be a Bartender. Days/Evenings One Week! placement assistance. Boston Bartenders School. 1655 Main St. Springfield, MA 01103. 747-9888. Call now for Nov & Dec Classes. Special Student Rates Available

Sports

Volleyball lacks defense in losing weekend

By CANDICE FLEMMING
Collegian Staff

In the game of volleyball it is the blocks and kills that make the game exciting, but in order to win you need defense. While the University of Massachusetts volleyball team has great offense, its defense has been lacking.

Defense has been UMass' biggest problem all year and it figured big in its two losses over the weekend.

"That's been the story of their inconsistencies, they don't understand how hard you have to play to win," said Coach Bonnie Kenny. "And when you have to play hard it means you have to play defense, hitting is irrelevant."

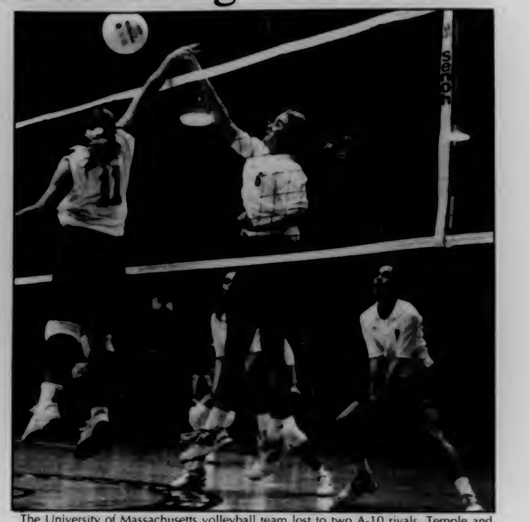
On Friday night, the Minutewomen lost to Atlantic 10 leader Temple in three straight games. UMass started out slow in game one and lost it, 15-8. In game two the Minutewomen sprinted out to a 10-2 lead before the Owls came back strong to tie it at 10 and take a 12-10 lead.

UMass pulled within one but Temple served out the game for the win, 15-11. The Minutewomen kept game three close but the Owls proved to be too strong and they won the game 15-10 and the match 3-0.

Dionne Nash was the standout for the Minutewomen, collecting 17 kills for a .324 hitting percentage.

On Saturday afternoon, the Minutewomen lost a heartbreaker to Rutgers University. The Scarlet Knights jumped out to a 8-0 lead before the Minutewomen could score a point on a Nash jump-serve ace. Rutgers built its lead to 10-3 but UMass came back to tie it at 11 a piece. That would be as close as they got, losing the game 15-11.

Game two was close throughout until the Minutewomen pulled away at 11-10 by scoring four straight points, highlighted by three Nash hits to win 15-10. Game three belonged to the Minutewomen as they built a 13-5 lead and never looked back, winning 15-6. On the final point, Susan Maga came up big collecting a dig, a block, and a kill to win it. In game four UMass had a 9-2 lead and looked to be in control of the match, but its defense completely collapsed.



Rutgers scored 13 out of the next 16 points to win the game 15-12, and gain the momentum.

"We just took a rest in the fourth game and we should've never been in a fifth game," said Kenny. "We just flat out went to lunch and that just can't happen."

In the fifth game, featuring the rally point system, UMass stayed with the Knights until it was 12-12. Rutgers then went on to win the game 15-13 and the match 3-2.

The Minutewomen were led by Nash who had 20 kills and 13 digs, and Maga who had 18 kills and 13 digs.

"We quit playing defense, that's all we did. We didn't go for balls and they went for balls," said Kenny. "We just flat out stopped playing defense and it was ridiculous."

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team lost to two A-10 rivals, Temple and Rutgers, over the weekend.

Minutemen get wake-up call

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

At this time of year, when the next game a team plays could possible be its last, a coach would be forgiven to think that a wake-up call would be unnecessary.

But after a lackluster, uninspiring effort over the past weekend at the Smith Swimming Center at Brown University, University of Massachusetts Water Polo Coach Russ Yarworth has given just that to his team. A wake-up call.

After trouncing an overmatched MIT squad 30-3 in the quarterfinals and barely edging an improved Army team 14-10 in the semifinals, the Minutemen fell in the championship game to Brown, 9-4.

Overall, the performance just wasn't up to par, according to Yarworth. The seventh-year coach said that the team's work ethic in practice was lacking.

"Our practice preparation has to be completely different," he said. "The attitude the past two weeks has been that they just have to show up for practice, and then just show up for the games.

"I think we found out what happens when you do that."

UMass finished second in the field of eight teams, earning a fourth seed in the Easterns which take place this weekend in Arkansas. Eight teams participate in the Easterns, while the top two finishers are almost assured of an NCAA berth.

The road to that berth will be challenging for the Minutemen, as they face fifth-seeded Arkansas in the first round. Arkansas will have the home pool advantage playing in front of its fans in a new facility.

The winner of the UMass/Arkansas game will likely face Navy, the first seed in the tournament. UMass has never played Arkansas, but faced Navy earlier this year, losing 10-8.

"I gave them the challenge on Sunday after the game," said Yarworth. "I told them if you want to do it, step up and do it. And that's the bottom line."

And with the pride of UMass headed down to Arkansas, only time will tell if the challenge will be met.

UM stars at Rolex Tournament

Sitton, Durant and Scheckner represent tennis team

LESLIE WEINSTOCK / COLLEGIAN

Three players from the UMass women's tennis team represented the school at the Rolex Championships at UPenn.

By DAVE COPELAND
Collegian Staff

Three members of the University of Massachusetts women's tennis team traveled to the University of Pennsylvania to represent the Minutewomen at the Intercollegiate Tennis Association's Rolex Championships this past weekend. Liesl Sitton played singles for the Minutewomen and Stacey Scheckner teamed with Liz Durant in doubles play.

Sitton proved herself as one of the top players in collegiate tennis, defeating Emma Evans of Temple in the first round, 6-1, 3-6 and 6-3. Sitton lost her second round match to Boston University's Kerry Stakem, 4-6 and 1-6, after failing to capitalize on a 4-3 lead in the first set. Coach Judy Dixon attributed the loss to Sitton's lack of experience in tough matches.

"She told me that she felt comfortable playing at that level," Dixon said. "I think that it was a real positive experience for her."

Sitton commented to Dixon that at that level the women were serving and volleying better, something Dixon has worked on with Sitton in practice.

Although they lost in the first round, Durant and Scheckner also seemed to have benefitted from their trip to Philadelphia. Originally scheduled to play in a

Turn to TENNIIS, page 11

NHL bad boys should swing fists, butt heads

As the NHL continues to make efforts at becoming Europe's favorite league (the All-Finesse League), the emphasis on eliminating fighting from the game is increasing.

Call me Don Cherry, but I like the fights. The NHL, however, repeatedly tells me fighting is A) bad for the game and B) I don't like it. They should really confer with me on such assertions in the future.

BETWEEN THE PIPES
Mike DiLorenzo on the NHL

The league feels that opening the door for marginal players such as Jay Miller or Tie Domi, whose sole purpose is to fight, detracts from the grace and beauty provided by a Mario Lemieux, Wayne Gretzky or a Pavel Bure. The theory seems simple: the more Tie Domi is on the ice, the less Teemu Selanne gets to showcase his offensive ability.

The NHL has taken steps to alleviate the number of fights by stiffening suspensions for players who are assessed fight-related misconducts. This has worked to some degree, as the league reports fighting majors down more than 50 percent over two seasons ago. And the penalties could get stiffer. Anaheim Duck boss Michael Eisner plans to make a big push at banning fighting at a league meeting in December.

This may mean even stiffer penalties, such as

Turn to PIPES, page 11

FENCING RESULTS:

The University of Massachusetts fencing team had an intercollegiate meet at Tufts University last Saturday. Here are the results:

Men — UMass 21, Bates 6
UMass 19, Tufts 8
UMass 16, Army 11

Women — UMass 12, Bates 4
UMass 13, Tufts 12
Army 17, UMass 8

What is the campus saying about the smoking ban? Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
50° Wednesday
November 3, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 39
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Ms. Goodwrench?

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

Ellie Woolf, a Bicycle Co-Op member, works on her bike in 317 Student Union.

Peace talks stall as PLO walks out

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press

TABA, Egypt — The PLO walked out of peace talks with Israel on Tuesday, accusing the Israelis of trying to back out of an agreement to withdraw from occupied lands.

Nabil Shaath, the PLO's chief negotiator, charged that Israel wants to redeploy its troops rather than pull them out of the occupied Gaza Strip and the town of Jericho in the West Bank.

Israel's withdrawal plan, he said, ran counter to the Sept. 13 Israel-Palestine Liberation Organization agreement on Palestinian autonomy.

The Palestinian walkout was the first major snag since negotiations began three weeks ago on implementing the first phase of the autonomy plan.

Both sides said they wanted to resume the talks.

The talks in Taba are meant to define how Israel will transfer some powers to Palestinians in Gaza and Jericho under terms of the Israeli-PLO accord.

Tuesday's dispute grew from maps and withdrawal plans the Israelis presented Monday.

Jewish settlers waged four days of violent protests in the occupied territories beginning Friday.

The Sept. 13 autonomy agreement called for Israel to start withdrawing its troops from Gaza and Jericho by Dec. 13, but gave it permission to maintain security over Israeli settlements in the vacated territories.

"We feel that the Israeli interpretation of that agreement is quite failing to grasp the meaning of withdrawal and its requirements," Shaath said.

"The agreement provided for withdrawal by the Israeli forces from the Gaza Strip and the Jericho area, and not within the Gaza Strip and Jerich area," Shaath said in announcing the suspension of the talks to reporters.

"This is a withdrawal agreement and not a redeployment agreement," he added.

Israel's chief negotiator, Maj. Gen. Amnon Shahak, said the Israelis were not presenting the Palestinians with an ultimatum.

In Israel, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said he was certain the impasse could be overcome, noting such difficulties were expected since security was involved.

He added: "We will not compromise on anything that is linked to the security needs."

Shaath said he was going to Tunis to consult with Yasser Arafat, PLO chairman. He suggested that Israelis likewise consult their leaders to "come up with an interpretation that would allow us to proceed smoothly."

Shahak told a separate news conference that he saw no need for the walkout. He said the Israeli formula was "a logical plan that could be discussed, was discussed, until the moment they decided to go and have consultations."

The Israeli general described the suspension as "the first obstacle, which surely won't be the last one or the most difficult" in the negotiations.

On Dec. 13, Israeli troops are to begin withdrawing and Palestinians are to take over as administrators in Gaza and Jericho.

GSS president retains seat

Motion to have Ivatury censured strongly opposed

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

The fate of University of Massachusetts Graduate Student Senate President Shyamala Ivatury was decided at the GSS meeting held last night in room 917 at the Campus Center.

Due to an article that appeared in the Collegian's Oct. 7 Multicultural Affairs Page, written by Ivatury, GSS Senator Bruce Tull, brought a motion to have her censured.

The article that appeared stated Ivatury's opinion accusing the Everywoman's Center of being racist, mismanaged and reactive instead of using preventive measures. This came after the GSS tabled a motion calling for a review of the operations of ECW. It was then recommended that the Executive Committee engage in a dialogue between the Center and Senate.

In a prepared statement that was handed out before the meeting, Tull recommended "the Graduate Student Senate moves to censure President Ivatury for failing to honor its directives, and to remind members of the Executive Committee that as elected officers, they represent GSS positions once such positions are taken."

In a letter sent to senators, Julia Mahoney, GSS vice-president, explained "it is impossible to imagine that officers should surrender their academic freedom and their freedom of speech to the will of the Senate, simply because they are officers."

During the clarification of the motion, Flavia Eldemire of the Graduate Women's Network brought up the fact Ivatury spoke on her own behalf and did not bring up the fact she was president of the GSS, nor the GSS itself anywhere in the article.

Tull rebutted Hussein Ibish, a graduate student in attendance, GSS officers are not symbols and must be allowed to keep their own opinions, by referring to the GSS bylaws. In Section Four Article Three, it is written that actions of the Executive Committee is "strictly subject to review."

"It was strongly stated in that meeting we did not want to sponsor these attacks against the Everywoman's Center...someone has to represent that position to the public, to the administration," Tull argued. "That is exactly why we pay the executive committee $40,000 per year in order to have those

Turn to GSS, page 4

Escaped convicts still loose

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Two killers who beat an electronic motion sensor and two razor-topped fences to escape from prison have apparently fled the Bridgewater area, authorities said Tuesday.

Robert Dellelo, 51, and Joseph Correia, 38, who escaped from the state prison in Bridgewater on Sunday, remained at large Tuesday.

"We are at the end of the line. They're no longer here, in our opinion. We've searched every place, answered all the calls, done all that's humanly possible," said Bridgewater Police Lt. George Gurley.

A command post at the Old Colony prison has been dismantled and prison guards have ended their patrols on its perimeter.

The two convicts scaled 20-foot fences Sunday, eluding capture because of an unspecified "flaw" in the motion detection system, prison officials said.

A statewide manhunt and house-to-house inspections in Bridgewater have turned up nothing.

Department of Correction spokeswoman Robin Bavaro said the search continued "in full force," but she would not say where it was centered Tuesday.

"We would've had a breaking and entering, a stolen car. There would've been some indication they were here. We never received anything of that nature," said Gurley.

There have been no stolen car reports in Bridgewater since Sunday. There have been two breaking and entering reports, but neither appeared related to the escape.

Boy, 10, testifies in toddler murder

By KARIN DAVIES
Associated Press

PRESTON, England — A 10-year-old boy told police he and a friend beat a toddler to death as the bleeding child tried to stagger to his feet beside a deserted railroad track, a prosecutor said Tuesday.

Prosecutor Richard Henriques also told the court that the two boys on trial for the murder of James Bulger, 2, had a "fluent capacity to tell lies" and tried to blame each other.

The defendants, now 11 and referred to in court as "Child A" and "Child B," knew what they were doing was terribly wrong, he said.

Child B fidgeted and cried as Henriques, on the second day of the trial, spelled out more details from the police reports of James' last hours. The toddler's body was found cut in two near the rail line after he was abducted from a shopping mall in Liverpool in February.

The two pudgy dark haired boys, 10-years-old at the time of James' death, are the youngest children to be charged in Britain with first degree murder.

Britons were outraged by the murder and shocked at the age of the suspects. Witnesses who saw the two boys drag James to the rail line said the older children told them the dirty, crying toddler was their brother or a lost child they were taking to the police.

The divorced parents of Child B sobbed as they sat side by side on a wooden bench. His father hunched almost double as the prosecutor described how the boy finally confessed after swearing innocence to his mother.

Henriques said Child B, during questioning by police in front of his mother and a legal adviser, at first denied ever seeing James.

His mother said, "Is that the God's honest

Turn to MURDER, page 4

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quirós
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500
Fax (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, November 3

Study hall — The Latin American Cultural Center behind the Southside Room in Hamden Dining Commons is open for study hours from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Poetry — "Poetry Buffet" will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Wheeler Gallery. A free reception will follow the reading. For more information, call 545-2804.

Presentation — Bruce Kanter will speak on "Learning as If All Life Really Mattered: How to Make Your Education Work for the Common Good of Self, Society and Earth" from 7 to 10 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804-08. For more information, call the STPEC department at 545-0043.

Meeting — The Undergraduate Student Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163. The meeting is open to the public.

Forum — Judaic Studies and Hillel House will hold the Edwin M. Rossman Career Forum at 3:30 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 301. For more information, call Mather Career Center at 545-2224.

Thursday, November 4

Lecture — Robert Restuccia, director of Health Care for All Coalition, will speak on "Impact of the Proposed Health Care Reform in Disadvantaged Communities" from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Hasbrouck 230. The lecture is sponsored by Massachusetts Community-Based Public Health Initiative.

Friday, November 5

Performance — The UMass Theatre Guild presents Black Comedy by Peter Shaffer at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $4 students, $6 general public and are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Tickets — Tickets for the Black Mass Communications Project's 16th Annual Jeans and T-shirt Party are available at TIX Unlimited. The party will be held Saturday in Blue Wall at 10 p.m. Tickets are $5, and must be bought in advance. For more information, call 545-2426.

Lecture — Alice Brown-Collins, assistant professor of African-American studies and advisor to ministry to Black women, will speak at the InterVarsity Christian Fellowship meeting at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. Check Campus Center directory for room number.

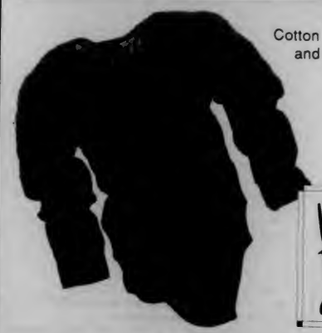
Meeting — A student group to discuss literature about Shabbat and the challenges in observing, and promote understanding in the University community regarding Shabbat, will meet following Shabbat service in Hillel House. The group will meet every Friday. For more information, call 549-1710.

Correction

In Monday's FYI calendar, a Five-College Habitat for Humanity meeting was listed under Wednesday's events. The meeting took place Monday.

The women's volleyball photo on yesterday's sports page was missing a credit. The photo was taken by staff member Leslie Weinstock.

Also, the Collegian apologizes for the "Virtual Reality" comic strip printed in yesterday's paper. Although views expressed in cartoons do not reflect those of the paper, the Collegian reserves the right to reject cartoons on the grounds of taste. Yesterday's cartoon overstepped our taste standard, and should not have been printed.



Recycle this Collegian

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Hours: MW/THURS 8-1 Sunday 7-1
Every Monday — GAY NIGHT! DJ Steve
Every Thursday — UMASS NIGHT!
Every Saturday — The Area's Biggest Dance Night
Book Your Christmas Party Now!!
Upcoming Events
Nov. 5 AIDS BENEFIT Battle of the Bands
Nov. 12 Larger Than Life Productions Dance Party
Dec. 3 70's Party with a 90's Twist M & M Productions
• 18+ Always
• 5 Minutes from UMASS
• Call to book your team/organization's/private party! We can hold over 600 people in the club.
• We are looking for UMASS Bands to participate in a National Showcase Competition
Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

August the First
Come See Our New Inventory
20% off
Semi-Precious Strands and all Loose Beads
Fri 5th & Sat 6th
Hours Extended Friday Open Until 9pm

BE A TEACHER. BE A HERO.
Call 1-800-45-TEACH.

CAREERS
Judaic Studies and Hillel invite you to
THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUM
DATE: WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1993
TIME: 3:30 PM
LOCATION: HERTER HALL LOUNGE - Rm. 301
SPONSORED BY:
MATHER CAREER CENTER
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
JUDAIC STUDIES AND HILLEL
This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!
ALUMNI/AE PANELISTS:
Darren Garnick (1990) Major: Communications — News Reporter, Enterprise Sun Daily Newspaper
Alison Buckholtz (1991) Major: English — Publisher, Faber & Faber
Dana Grossblatt (1987) Major: English — District Attorney
For more information, please contact Mather Career Center 545-2224

Body Suits

Cotton lycra in flat knits and textures. A wide range of colors. From $11.95
Basic DUDS at Faces
northampton • main st. • 7 days

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan and Darienne Hosley

Natural food coloring is the wave of the future

An international symposium on natural food colorants is scheduled for November 7-10 in the Campus Center. The food science department is holding the conference in honor of its 75th anniversary. Fergus Clydesdale, head of the department, said the demand for natural food coloring in the consumer marketplace is growing.

Food scientists from academia and industry will be attending the conference to examine the safety of natural food colorings and their use. They will also try to set standards for usage of colorants. Representatives will be attending from companies in countries across the globe.

Light luncheons will return for the fall

The "light lunch" program will return on Nov. 9. The program ran this summer in the Springfield office of the University. The series is free although reservations are recommended because seating is limited.

The first discussion will be given by Katharine Leigh, associate professor of art. The next will be Bailey Jackson, dean of education and will conclude with Linda Lowry, a professor of hotel, restaurant and travel administration.

Forest Legacy Program to be coordinated by UMass

The Environmental Institute at the University is coordinating a new program to preserve large chunks of woodland. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service has allocated $1.2 million for the purchase of conservation land in the state.

Tom Quink of the Environmental Institute will be overseeing the program in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. It was created by Congress to identify and protect environmentally important private forestlands.

Local high school teachers to take math courses

Area teachers from the high schools are participating in a program that will allow them to teach a section of basic mathematics.

The course, Mathematics 011, is being offered by the department of mathematics and statistics. The two-year program improves communication between the University's faculty and high school teachers to make math teaching more effective.

It also gives the teachers an opportunity to perform in-service graduate work and advise the department on its planning of its annual Spring Open Forum for secondary school teachers in the state.

UMass professor a member of Congressional caucus

Sonia Nieto, an associate professor in the School of Education recently served on a panel at the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute's inaugural Issues Conference held in Washington, D.C.

The panel Nieto served on discussed the methods used to teach a culturally diverse student population. Attorney General Janet Reno addressed the more than 300 participants at the conference.

The institute was founded in 1978 by Hispanic members of Congress to develop the next generation of leaders from the Hispanic community.

UM students hit Wall Street

Program allows for fictitious wheelin' and dealin'

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Wall Street is moving closer to students as they are given a million dollars in buying power to invest in stocks.

They are not actually given $1 million, rather $500,000 in a simulated portfolio and $500,000 in a reserve through the AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge.

"The actual $500,000 is fictitious," said Randy Parkman, spokesman for Replica Corp., the coordinator of the program, "but the figures are real."

The two-month program, from Oct. 11 to Dec. 10, allows students to experience trading stocks and building a portfolio.

"There is less stress than the stock exchanges," Parkman said, "because you are not using your life savings."

The program is not limited to college students. There are also categories for high school students and teachers at the high school and collegiate levels.

Interest in the program has increased since it began six years ago, according to Parkman. In 1987, an estimated 8,000 people participated. This year over 13,000 are involved.

To begin, a fee will buy a slot in the competition and a packet of rules, advice and a listing of over 8,000 stocks. Participants are not limited to the 8,000 stocks listed and can use any company provided it is traded at the New York or American stock exchanges or the National Association of Security Dealers Automation Quotation (NASDAQ).

Once registered, a toll-free number is available from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to buy, sell or short stocks. Brokers trained by Replica assist callers with transactions, but Parkman said they do not give advice.

"I think it's a great opportunity," said Jennifer D'Erric, a senior finance major here at the University. "It's just playing with money."

Participants in the top 20 win cash prizes and the top winner receives a 1994 Pontiac Firebird Formula as well as $5,000 and $1,200 in long-distance calls from AT&T.

Jim McMahon, a senior management major and campus representative for the program, said at the end of the contest the top 15 schools add up all the contestants from the particular schools to rate each school. Last year UMass was either eight or nine in the country, he said.

Although it helps to be a finance major, senior Jonathan White said it is not necessary.

"Business majors have a better chance," White said, "because we already know the terminology."

White said it is important to watch the news and research the companies to make good investments. Each participant is only allowed 30 transactions. White has already used 18 because he "moves in and out fast to make a quick turnaround."

Parkman said participating in the challenge is a good boost to a resume.

"The experience factor carries over to the rest of a person's life," Parkman said.

Ban yields mixed campus reactions

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts campus-wide smoking ban that prohibits smoking in public buildings on campus is supported by some students and faculty, but opposed by many more.

The "Smoke Free Policy" as adopted by Chancellor David K. Scott says smokers must stand outside of buildings and be at least 20 feet away from the entrance so smoke cannot enter the building. The only places smoking is allowed on campus is in designated guests rooms of the Campus Center Hotel and in certain residential halls.

Several smoking and non-smoking students and faculty believe the ban is unfair and that buildings on campus should have designated smoking rooms.

"Smokers have rights too," said Jill Becker, who works at the Building Services Office. "I work six hours a day in the Campus Center and it is not fair that I have to go outside to smoke. There should a designated smoking area in the Campus Center basement."

Some people feel the ban is unfair because because it discriminates against a minority on campus.

"I sympathize with the smokers because I have always felt they should have their own room to smoke in," said Doris Goodrow, director of the file room

Turn to BAN, page 6

Make it stop, make it stop!!

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN
UMass Theater Guild members rehearse for "Pippen"

Women's protest discussed

Researcher analyzes '42 Communist demonstration

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

"Certain rights must be remembered. There is the right to remember and the right to forget," said Paula Schwarz, quoting a French police commissioner.

Schwarz, of the French Studies department at Middlebury College, presented her research last night on the role of women in the underground French Communist Party. The lecture, given at Mount Holyoke College, was entitled "Gender, Politics, and Memory: The 'Women's' Demonstration of the rue de Buci, May 1942."

Schwarz's research focused on the largely "forgotten" incident that occurred on May 31, 1942, in a Parisian marketplace. The event, whose details have remained elusive, came to be known as "The Women's Demonstration of the rue de Buci."

"In May 1942, a group of women stormed a grocer's shop on the rue de Buci in the heart of a central Parisian marketplace. The demonstration, which was part of a women's protest movement organized by the French Communist party, emerged as the very symbol of women's resistance to the Vichy regime and the German occupation," Schwarz said.

According to Schwarz, within the 20 minute period the "demonstration" lasted, two policemen were killed and many people arrested. The demonstration was not meant to provoke violence, rather it was a response to the widespread food shortage and food rationing, Schwarz said.

Schwarz's research also examines the different roles that men and women played in Communist political activities.

"A study of the Buci affair and its aftermath reveals the gendering of political tasks in the Communist underground, and the subsequent gendering of the event itself in collective memory," Schwarz said.

Schwarz noted that there were men at this "demonstration" yet they played secondary roles. Part of the reason for this, said Schwarz, was that, if caught, the punishment of death was less likely for women than men.

"The gendering of events quite literally was a matter of life and death," Schwarz said.

According to Schwarz, of the 16 women who were caught at rue de Buci, only one was given the death penalty. Conversely, of the 12 men who were caught, eight were condemned to death, even though the major players were women.

By executing men, they experienced a dual erasure from this demonstration, Schwarz said. Not only were they physically erased, so were their memories and testimonies; thus, the event is more associated, when it is remembered, with women's resistance, Schwarz said.

Menino tops Brett in Boston

First Italian-American elected to mayor's office

By MARTIN FINUCANE
Associated Press

BOSTON — Thomas M. Menino, a low profile city councilor who asked voters to look at his deeds rather than his awkward words, won the right yesterday to fully succeed three-term Mayor Raymond L. Flynn.

Menino had been acting mayor since Flynn left in July to become U.S. ambassador to the Vatican.

With 195 of 252 precincts reporting, or 77 percent, Menino had 56,992 votes, or 65 percent, to state Rep. James Brett's 31,157 votes, or 35 percent, in unofficial returns.

The victory made Menino, 50, the first Italian-American to win the mayor's office, for 64 years an Irish-American preserve. Brett, 43, is of Irish descent.

"The status quo is gone," an optimistic Menino said after the polls closed.

Flynn, who was always pleased to be in the national spotlight, left no clear heir when he departed, creating only the third wide-open election for mayor in a quarter century.

But after the open preliminary election, voters saw little difference between the two Democrats, and the general election stirred only moderate interest.

Menino, who began as a state lawmaker's driver and aide, paid years of political dues before being elected to City Council, rising to council president and then taking the post of acting mayor.

Menino said his vision was of a city that "works for the people."

Brett may have been a bit more polished.

Menino, a politician who had worked behind the scenes for a decade in his Hyde Park district, sometimes rushed or mangled sentences, and was dubbed "Mumbles" by one columnist. But Brett couldn't make that an issue.

Menino's strong suit was his experience as a manager. On taking office as acting mayor, Menino immediately took action to freeze water rates, reject a controversial teachers contract and provide summer jobs for city youth.

Treaty may give NE more jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business, labor and environmental groups hurled opposing statistics at each other Tuesday in a Capitol Hill debate on whether New England would benefit from free trade with Mexico.

A New England business group says the treaty will benefit precisely those manufacturers and service firms that are strongest in the region, and the chief lobbying group for the North American Free Trade Agreement says the region could gain a net 4,350 jobs under the treaty.

Labor groups that oppose dropping trade barriers cite their own statistics indicating that NAFTA would endanger nearly 400,000 jobs across the six New England states.

The point-counterpoint took place in a Senate hearing room before two undecided senators and dozens of staff members representing the many other fence-sitting lawmakers from the Northeast.

Sens. Claiborne Pell, (D- R.I), and James Jeffords, (R-Vt.), said they won't take sides on the NAFTA debate until they get more answers.

"What is the likely extent of job dislocation in New England?" Jeffords asked. Pell, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, wondered whether the defeat of the agreement by Congress would adversely affect U.S. foreign policy.

■ murder

continued from page 1

truth, son?" He replied, "I am telling you we never. We never."

The boy nervously pressed his fingertips together and wiped his face with wads of soggy tissues as Henriques quoted him as confessing later:

"We started throwing bricks at him. A big steel bar knocked him out ... (He) fell over and kept getting back up again."

Child A, whose parents have yet to appear in court, sat calmly beside a social worker during the reading of the confession. But when a young mother accused the two boys of also attempting to abduct her 2-year-old son hours before James was taken, he sucked his thumb.

The prosecution maintains that the boys hung around the shopping mall Feb. 12 and lured James away after he strayed briefly from his mother.

■ GSS

continued from page 1

positions represented."

Ivatury defended her right to express her own opinions, saying she was very open about her political views last year, when she was on the executive committee, and no one had a problem.

"Essentially, I feel this motion is about the freedom of my expression.....and you couldn't buy it for a million [dollars]," said Ivatury.

The motion was then put into vote, one senator was in favor, 20 opposed and three abstained.

The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

BE A TEACHER. BE A HERO.
Call 1-800-45-TEACH.

Housing Assignment Office
VOICE RESPONSE ROOM CHOOSING INSTRUCTIONS

To reserve your current room for the Spring 1994 Semester

When to Call:
November 1- 3
9am - 9pm

What to dial:
On campus: 6-9000
Off campus: 546-9000
TTY: 5-0327
A touchtone phone is necessary.

Have these handy:
- Your 9-digit student identifier
- Your room number

Having trouble?
If you enter the wrong student identifier, simply press [*] to restart the procedure.

Any questions?
Call the Housing Assignment Office
545-4596
A staff member will be available to assist you during system hours, 9am to 9pm.

If the system is unable to confirm your assignment, you MUST contact our office to reserve your room for the Spring semester.

THIS IS ESSENTIAL IN ORDER TO GUARANTEE YOUR CURRENT ROOM!

AVAILABLE NOVEMBER 1 - 3

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

The bitter truth about cigarette smoke and antifreeze

You're sitting down enjoying your lunch when your friends Biff and Muffy, who are sitting at the table with you, ask you if you mind if they do some antifreeze. You say no. Biff and Muffy proceed to pour antifreeze in their mouths, gargle it a little, and then swallow it. Then they vomit it right back up, spewing it all over you and your lunch.

"You're sure you don't mind?" asks Muffy.

"Oh no no, that's okay," you reassure her, although you're thinking to yourself, as someone who isn't into antifreeze, that it's really pretty gross when someone does antifreeze and then blows it all over you. Perhaps, you think, regurgitated second-hand antifreeze isn't good for your health.

Although this may sound like a joke, friends, it's not. It's very real, and it goes on around you every day. The situation above describes the delicate dance of health — literally, as you'll see — that goes on between smokers and non-smokers. How is this so? Let me tell you a little bit about what is in cigarette smoke, and thus what goes into human lungs. There are over 3,000 chemicals in cigarette smoke, and the following is a tiny list of some of them:

METHANOL: a poisonous liquid alcohol used in automotive antifreezes, rocket fuels, resins, drugs and perfume.

ACETONITRILE: a toxic compound found in coal tar that is used in the production of plastics, rubber, acrylic fiber and insecticides.

METHYL CHLORIDE: a toxic gas used in the production of paint remover and as an anti-knock agent in gasoline.

AMMONIA: a gaseous compound used as a coolant in refrigerators and air conditioners, and in explosives, artificial fertilizers and disinfectants.

HYDROGEN CYANIDE: an extremely poisonous liquid used in fumigation which is the lethal agent in CAPITAL PUNISHMENT. For those of you not quite paying attention, it's the stuff that kills bad guys. And lo & behold, it's also in that Marlboro you're about to light up.

MARK TYLER
WENHAM

FORMALDEHYDE: a gas used primarily as a disinfectant and preservative, this is the kind of chemical that is being used when you clean the inside of toilet bowls. Think about this.

NICOTINE: a poisonous alkaloid that is the major addictive agent in tobacco, it is also used as an insecticide and to kill parasitic worms in animals. One pack of cigarettes a day, inhaled, gives you enough nicotine to kill you immediately if you were to receive it all in one dose.

Those are only seven chemicals in cigarette smoke. There are roughly 2,990 more. Most of them are used to do things like clean shower mold, kill rodents and erase pet stains and odors from carpeting. Yet we wonder why smokers have a remarkable history of lung cancer (cancer being dead cells, of course). The fact that all of these happy chemicals get trapped in human lungs may be interesting for the actual smokers of the world, but what happens to the non-smokers?

Studies reported in such prestigious medical publications as "The New England Journal of Medicine", the "Journal of the American Medical Association", "Lancet", and the "British Medical Journal" have shown that second-hand smoke is actually much worse than smoke originally inhaled. For starters, second-hand smoke contains twice the tar, twice the nicotine, and five times as much carbon monoxide as the initially inhaled smoke. And it's now been proven that people taking in second-hand smoke retain it in their lungs more than twice as long as the original smokers. Interesting.

So yes, the issue of smokers versus non-smokers is complex. I've heard all about each side's rights as American citizens. Yet nowadays a lot of places are cracking down on indoor smoking in an effort to protect non-smokers, and the smokers are (to quote my mother) positively "bull-ticky." The poor pathetic souls are getting themselves in a big silly huff, whining ad nauseum about injustice to smokers' rights.

Oh, really. Boo-hoo, sniffle-sniffle for them.

Let's go back to the beginning of this column, though. It's a big question: "Do those who gargle deadly antifreeze themselves have the right to vomit it back up at people around them just because they're citizens who live in a free country?"

Honestly, folks, if some people want to suck up antifreeze and disinfectant and capital punishment gas, I won't stop them. It is their right to kill themselves, no matter how slowly. However, I support any law or rule that tries to prohibit them from spewing it all back in my face.

Mark Tyler Wenham is a Collegian columnist.

Fascism under disguise

In considering the efforts of some University of Massachusetts students to change the school's logo, Gov. William Weld called the episode "political correctness run amok." But is it? The political correctness movement was designed as a way to quickly alter society's prejudicial problems.

It is made to do exactly what the anti-Minuteman campaign is attempting: to wipe out every part of society which is offensive to any minority, creating a prejudice-free society. The logo campaign, sadly, is the essence of P.C. The methods for achieving these goals in a quick fashion are, however, the same as all fascist movements through history have used. P.C. is indeed a fascist movement. It is extremely dangerous to everything a free society stands for.

GREG A.
SEARS

Political correctness works via a system of insults, intimidation and elitism. People who stray for its dictates face ridicule, lectures, being yelled at and social ostracism. Rather than being offered as a true educational system, where debate is encouraged and questions are answered with logic and dignity, political correctness gives people two alternatives: accept unconditionally or be punished. This is the same system employed by such famous "educators" as Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin.

Stalin coined the term "politically correct" as a way to identify socially "acceptable" behavior. This is no different than the definition of P.C. today. People no longer disappear in the middle of the night, but the principle is the same. You are taught to be afraid of improper behavior, someone else's definition of what you should and should not say or think. This is where the true danger of the P.C. movement lies: free thought and free speech are repressed as socially unacceptable. This is exactly how the Nazis clung to power once the German people put them in office. Obviously the causes are different, but the tactics are the same.

If a person argues that these unscrupulous methods are acceptable in fighting a problem such as racism, that person has already fallen to a fascist axe; everybody's freedom of expression is sacred and equal to everyone else's. Those supporting Nazi ethics in the 1930s believed their cause to be as just as P.C. people believe theirs to be. Because they believed it to be right, does that actually make what they were doing acceptable?

If you think systematic eradication of free thought is not out there, think again. It is standard housing policy at UMass that anyone caught making a racist remark is to be punished. I'm not even talking about verbal insults, just common speech. While racism is beneath contempt, who is housing or anyone else to not allow someone to speak their mind? That is 100 percent unconstitutional. That is 100 percent fascist. Yet it is being passed off in the name of P.C. Can't anybody see that's bad? People are hiding behind the P.C. flag as an excuse for this sort of behavior all the time.

A conservative newspaper at Dartmouth College was effectively stopped from circulation because other people found the paper "offensive" and "racist." Maybe the paper was offensive to everybody under the sun. So what? No matter how reprehensible the material, the constitution guarantees you freedom of speech and freedom of the press. It does not say freedom of the press for non-racists. For the P.C. movement to try and say what should get printed is absolutely wrong. It is fascist. There is no question.

Another example of P.C. craziness is the justification of reverse prejudice. Do you have any idea what would happen on the UMass campus if someone tried to start an exclusively white fraternity? Yet there are exclusively black ones. That doesn't even reach "separate but equal." That's acceptable because it's P.C. That should truly bother you.

You may not think prejudiced people losing their rights is bad, but people in Germany in the 1930s didn't mind when their neighbors started losing rights for "incorrect" behavior either. Remember the phrase, "Those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it." How do you know something you do won't become improper next? P.C. is a "quick fix" to tangible problems, and that makes it a dangerous, seductive path to more serious ones.

Greg A. Sears is a UMass student.

UMass Mullins Center is not a dangerous "House of Cards"

I strongly object to Arthur Stapleton's choice of words, when he referred to the Mullins Center as the "house of cards" [Collegian, Oct. 28].

Inflammatory comments like that have no basis in fact and perpetuate the myth that the building is not sound structurally. Inaccurate and false reporting by some of the press, and politics have tried to portray this magnificent structure as "unsafe" in an effort to drive the away the public.

Four of the east coast's best structural design firms have confirmed that the structure not only meets the Massachusetts Building Code requirements, but exceeds it in many areas.

However, can this information repair the professional damage done to the firms that designed and built the Mullins Center? Will this information erase the doubt that was placed in the minds of many about whether the building will collapse in high winds?

In other words, was the real motive in this Mullins sham to expose dangerous design or construction defects, or was it to tarnish the image of the Center, the building and designer or the University? You pick the appropriate answer.

• With Odgen Entertainment now operating the Hartford Civic Center as well as Mullins, the Springfield Civic Center will be squeezed from two sides.

• Organized labor has been trying to break the Mullins Center general contractor, Suffolk Construction, for years and did their best to supply inaccurate or false information.

• Someone might run for higher office and wants to embarrass the present administration in Boston.

• Certain elements of the press enjoy using the University as a pincushion.

• A combination of all of the above.

In an extremely tight budget year, the University is forced to spend precious resources and a considerable amount of time on what turns out to be a non-issue.

The Mullins Center was designed by highly competent engineers and then the plans and design concepts were reviewed by additional firms, among the best in the industry, long before a shovel was even put into the ground to build this structure.

With the most recent peer reviews completed, this building must be the most highly-studied structure of its type on the east coast!

It's time to end this silly charade and recognize the building for what it is and what it will mean to this University, its sports teams and its future.

Keith E. Hoyle
Amherst

To the UMass community:

The Collegian Ed/Op desk would like to cordially invite all of our readers to the Collegian open house on Friday the 5th of November, from 1-3 p.m. in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center Basement (located on the opposite side from the ATMs.)

Ye intruders beware...

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

The Tower Library ominously peers out from behind barbed wire.

■ ban

continued from page 3

branch of the Financial Aid Office. "[Some people] do not have the will or the want to quit smoking, and the ban is just making them feel badly about themselves. The smoking ban won't help people to stop smoking, if they want to quit it is going to have to come from within."

Some smokers are happy about the ban because they feel for non-smokers and because they think it will help them cut down on their smoking.

"I am going to be called a traitor by my fellow smokers, but I think the ban is a good idea," said David Sackett, associate director of financial aid, a professed "hardcore, 20-year" smoker. "It is better for the majority of people. I know if I don't quit smoking I will cut way back because now I can't go to the john and suck down a cigarette in 20 seconds.

"I already smoke less now than I did two days ago," he said.

Some non-smokers are excited about the ban because of the prospect of smoke-free bathrooms.

"I am glad that there is a smoking ban because I think smoking is disgusting," said Anne Peramba, a financial aid councilor. "I can finally walk into the bathroom without it reminding me of high school."

Editor donates award to keep paper afloat

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — The editor of a Sarajevo newspaper whose staffers must dodge bullets and bombs says he will donate a $5,000 award to help keep the newspaper going.

Kemal Kurspahic, 46, editor of Liberation, was honored by the Nieman Foundation. He was given the foundation's Louis M. Lyons award for helping publish the newspaper during the 19-month siege in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The award is given for conscience and integrity in journalism by the foundation, which also awards Harvard University fellowships to journalists from around the world.

"We have never even considered not doing what we are supposed to," Kurspahic said Monday in accepting the award.

"But it is a unique professional experience. . . living every day under fire from machine guns, snipers, mortars and tanks," he said.

One of his reporters was shot dead at his typewriter and dragged to a mass grave. A photographer was killed when hit by a mortar shell as she took pictures of a bread line.

Snipers have wounded more than 20 other journalists on the staff, and Kurspahic limps because of leg injuries suffered when his car crashed trying to avoid sniper fire.

He and his staff of 70 work virtually for no money and used their savings to buy oil when they lost electricity. Staff members work in rotating seven-day shifts.

When they ran out of newsprint, they smuggled some in with medical supplies from Italy.

The newspaper desperately needs the $5,000 honorarium that goes with the award, Kurspahic said.

Sarajevo is the capital of Bosnia-Herzegovina in what was Yugoslavia. The city has a population of 380,000 but more than 12,000 people, including nearly 10,000 civilians, have been killed there since Serbian forces surrounded it.

The morning after the newspaper's headquarters was demolished by fire, the staff came out of a bunker with the daily edition.

Northampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Thursdays in November are Student days.
All Haircuts $10.00*
Regency Hairstylists
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA • 253-9526
*long hair $2 extra

University Bartending Course
• Bartending and bar management instruction at a fraction of the cost of most schools
• Friendly and helpful instructors
• A national program located on campus at colleges throughout the country
T.I.P.S.™ certification available
$$$ students this semester will be able to work by Xmas!!! $$$
FREE INFO SESSION:
Tonight, Nov. 3rd, at 7:00 pm
Campus Conference Room #905
Shop around and compare!
Call 617-277-2075 today for more information.
WEEKLY CLASSES START NOV. 10
Act Now! Space is Limited!!!

The UMass Theater Guild Presents
BLACK COMEDY
by Peter Shaffer
Nov. 4 - 6, 8pm • Nov. 7, 2pm
Bowker Auditorium - UMass

$4 Students • $6 General Admission
Tickets Available at the FAC Box Office 545-2511 and at the door

Arts & Living

Dictatorship and politics in Canaries

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

The Theatre Department's fall season will kick off tonight with the world premeire of Diana Saenz's A Dream of Canaries, a co-production with the New WORLD Theatre. Set in a mythical Latin American country, Canaries takes as its social terrain a military dictatorship, in which the politically-motivated kidnapping of citizens is a matter of routine.

Suffering existence in this country are two powerless people: Jesus, a soldier and former gigolo, and Nita, a teenage prostitute. These characters, and their connection to the flesh trade, provide us with a view of the society from the bottom up.

"A person's body," explains director Roberta Uno, "is the smallest unit of the destruction of a civilization, but also the smallest unit of resistance."

Uno notes that the political composition of Saenz's setting bears resemblance to numerous countries both in Latin America and around the world. Yet, she cautions against examining the play only as an allegory about a specific nation. Canaries is not the story of Argentina or Chile, she explains, but the story of people living in a society of the "disappeared."

"If [the play] didn't have the two characters, I wouldn't be interested."

Uno first discovered Saenz's drama in a written anthology of plays, and was immediately attracted by its theatricality — which includes the silent presence, onstage, of a second plane of existence, reserved for the voiceless "disappeared" citizens. It was not until Uno sent for the production rights that she discovered the play was unproduced, and that her presentation would be its stage premiere.

"No one has any idea what it's supposed to look like," she says, noting the challenge of directing a play for the first time. "But we learn something from doing it."

Among the new stage aspects introduced by Uno will be an original score by Roberto Clavejo, an area musician and native of Chile, who uses a combination of Latin American and European musical styles to invoke Saenz's mythic country.

Uno has encouraged her student cast to bring their own concepts of the characters into their work, and with performances taking place in the cozy Curtain Theatre, the result promises to be an exceptionally direct and emotional production.

Performances of A Dream of Canaries are Nov. 3-6 and Nov.9-13 at 8 p.m., with a 2 p.m. matinee on Nov. 6. Tickets are available from the Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511, or at the door. Advance reservation is strongly recommended.

COURTESY BEN BARNHART

Norma Garcia Vega and James M. McClure star in A Dream of Canaries.

And the music raged on...

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Rage Against the Machine's lead singer, Zach De La Rocha, rocked the Student Union Ballroom Monday evening with his intense lyrics.

AKAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Tom Morello, guitarist for Rage Against the Machine, jams with the band during their performance at UMass Monday evening.

Rage show filled with political conscience

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

Rage Against the Machine
Student Union Ballroom
Nov. 1, 1993

It was no contest, the L.A. hardcore/rap foursome known as Rage Against the Machine had this one in the palms of their hands right from the start. Anger, sweat and pure energy catapulted Rage's performance, which took swipes at passivity, authority and politics, buoyed by lead singer Zack de la Rocha's calorie-burning stageshow.

"It's a political performance if you want it to be. We're not a political band," said bassist Timmy C. before the set. Nonetheless, Rage's set had a heart of political conscience from start to finish.

Featuring all the most intense and powerful songs from Rage's self-titled debut, Rage left no one questioning why the show sold out and why so much of the capacity crowd was waiting impatiently for Rage's set.

Songs like "Township Rebellion" and "Wake Up" both accorded de la Rocha every opportunity to scream while thrashing his dreadlock-covered head all over the stage. But this is how de la Rocha conveys a message — loudly and violently. It's a powerful and entertaining delivery which seemed much more genuine in person than on the record.

The generally young crowd was engulfed in Rage's other tunes, yet there was almost a collective thought of "When are they gonna' do 'Killing in the Name'?"

First came one of de la Rocha's poetic moments, which he popularized on last summer's Lollapalooza tour. Reading his own work out of a big red book, or the poetry of others, Monday night (I believe) de la Rocha chanted his own scathing words about the CIA and J. Edgar Hoover among other things, accompanied by a deep and foreboding groove the other three members created for him.

The guitar work of Tom Morello was mired by effects. This is Morello's approach — weird sounds and effects. But when he ventured out of his attachment to his pedal and wangy bar, it was clear then he is a highly adept musician, one it would have been nicer to hear more of.

"Killing in the Name" came as the second-to-last song and served as a peak to which Rage (especially de la Rocha) seemed to be climbing. This is the tune which caused so much uproar and contributed to Rage's undeservedly miniscule amount of airplay and MTV support.

"It's all because of one thing, it's because we can't say [expletive] in the United States and get away with it. And that sucks. That completely sucks," said Timmy C.

It took a few songs for the 23-year-old de la Rocha to muster up all his energy, but in "Killing", it climaxed. The funky and mighty highs and lows of the tune led to a crowd chant of "[Expletive] you, I won't do what you tell me!" This is the peak of a Rage show.

The band didn't let up, leading into "Bullet in the Head", a blazing and aggressive number. Rage also played a one song encore of "Freedom", which de la Rocha described as an anti-abortion song.

Starting the night were the overly-preachy and political State of the Nation — a dull and plodding trio. New York's Quicksand, Spring Concert alumnus, went second and delivered a precise yet quite derivative hardcore set, nonetheless appearing much more at home on the S.U.B. stage than at Spring Concert's huge outdoor venue.

Collegian Arts, the authority on movies, concerts and events in the Pioneer Valley, would like to invite you to come down and visit during the Collegian's open house Friday, November 5, from 1 to 3 pm. Come find out what we're all about.

Freedom of the press denied

10,000 copies of UMaryland student paper seized

COLLEGE PARK, Md.(AP) — Protesters seized about 10,000 copies of the student newspaper at the University of Maryland, claiming they were racist.

In place of the missing papers, the protesters left a small computer generated sign Monday that read: "Due to its racist nature, the Diamondback will not be available today. ... Read a book."

No one claimed responsibility for the missing newspapers, which are distributed free. Campus police said they were investigating. About 20,000 copies were distributed Monday.

"Freedom of expression is a fundamental value in our society and our university," said Gary M. Stephenson, a campus spokesman.

Several students said the protest probably stemmed from a general perception that the Diamondback is insensitive to Blacks and other minorities on campus, rather than from any particular article.

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

TEST YOUR DETECTOR
NFPA
National Fire Protection Association

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

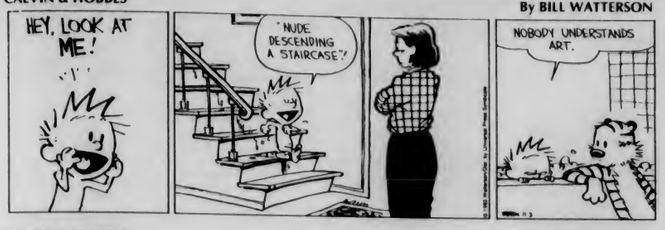
The Collegian
113 Campus Center
545-3500

STUDENT TRAVEL
1·800·777·0112
THE WORLD'S LARGEST STUDENT & YOUTH TRAVEL ORGANIZATION
STA TRAVEL

THE POETRY BUFFET
Feed Your HEAD
TONIGHT 7:30!!
WHEELER GALLERY
Located In Central
FREE Reception
Call 545-2804 for info.
OUT OF BOUNDS

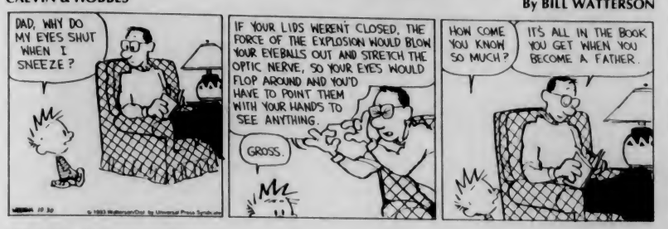
Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family
Tuesday - November 9
6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
University Health Center - Room 304
I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?
If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

Sign up now for Winter Session You won't regret it!
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼
Over 100 credit courses.
3 credits in just 3 weeks.
Affordable. What a deal!
Winter Session '94 January 3-24
Division of Continuing Education 615 Goodell Building 545-3653
▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲



EVERY WEDNESDAY
SETTIE
9:30 PM - 1 AM
All Menu Nachos Only $2
9:30 PM - 10:30 PM

THE 25 YEARS PUB
CELEBRATES 1968 • 1993 IN·AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•



Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St Northampton,MA 584-3232
50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

LIZ & EMMA By M. GATELY

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

P. S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"You better teach this kid some control before he kills somebody."

– Lou Brown
"Major League"

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You sense that a change of lifestyle is in order. Heed your keen intuition when looking for people or projects that will offer you new financial security. A relationship hinges on complete honesty.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Leaving your emotions out of the picture helps you come to terms with business associates. What looks bad is not a compromise wins raw passions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Share your great ideas and insights with someone who needs support. Try to be a calming influence. Romance could take an unusual turn.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial considerations determine whether or not you accept an offer. Do not try to mix business with pleasure; your reputation could be at stake. Develop your leadership credentials.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Turn on the charm in the boardroom and bedroom! Your powers of persuasion are at their peak. Who wants to play second fiddle when you could be the top banana? Contact prominent pals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your co-workers appreciate your flair for making tough tasks look easy and fun. Close attention to budget matters or family projects begins to pay off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Clear thinking is a must today. The way you handle a challenge could determine whether or not you move up the ladder at work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Home decorating could be on your mind. Browse in thrift shops or flea markets. A bargain could turn out to be a collectible. Large gatherings hold special appeal tonight.

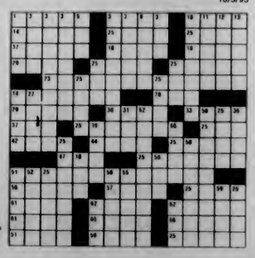
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Once you get focused, nothing will stand in your way. Be willing to shoulder more responsibilities; higher ups will be impressed. A former romantic partner could appear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Want to feel great? Sign up for a new exercise program. Admitting your faults helps you reconcile with an old friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A busy day lies ahead. You have a lot of responsibilities and commitments now. A friend comes to your rescue with needed information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use your excellent communication skills to advance a new home or work project. Family members or co-workers who share your ideals will offer valuable assistance.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Pace
6 Watch face
10 Swindle
14 They're here today, gone tomorrow?
15 Exile island
16 Heraldic border
17 City on the Rhone
18 Chicken abode
19 Postman's burden
20 Cardiologist's needs
21 156, to Aurelius
22 Vanzetti's co-defendant
23 Junk bond purveyor
26 More intoxicating
28 Sash for M. Butterfly
29 Foreign
30 Choir member
33 Jezebel's hubby
37 One of the Caesars
38 Fabricated reports
41 Roman omelet ingredient?
42 Hinged fastener
44 "— Wonderful Life"
45 Sharpens
47 Airline abbr.
49 Black eyes
51 Tushingham movie hit
56 "The Book of —"
57 Truth
58 Ski lift
61 Mexican money
62 Vocalist James
63 Maria Shriver, to Ted Kennedy
64 Yesterday, in Paris
65 Young adult
66 Nursemaids, in Hong Kong
67 Formicary resident's home
68 Sometimes they don't meet
69 Basque cap

DOWN
1 Bangkok resident
2 Merit
3 Dairy workers
4 Serve as chairman
5 CIA predecessor
6 Statement maker
7 "— Lucy"
8 State of excited activity
9 Racetrack circuit
10 E. African country
11 Small opening
12 Linda Lavin TV sitcom
13 Honeydew, e.g.
21 Cuban revolutionary leader
22 Brother, e.g.
24 Clinton title, for short
25 State of mind
26 Yesterday's roast, today
27 Lamb's pen name
31 — Vegas
32 Refuse receptacles
34 Kinkajou
35 State positively
36 Type of drum
39 Yorkshire river
40 Front part of the leg
43 Ministers
46 Former
48 ACLU's concerns
50 Recently stolen
51 Beginning
52 Connect
53 Balance sheet item
54 Frequently
55 Destined
59 Steady pain
60 Take it easy
62 Summer on the Seine
63 Catch

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

B	R	I	G		M	A	R	S	H		B	A	L	L
L	A	V	A		A	L	O	H	A		E	L	I	A
I	R	A	N		N	A	B	O	B		S	T	O	W
P	E	N	N	E	D		O	P	I	N	I	O	N	S
			E	V	I	C		I	L	E
P	O	R	T	I	C	O		R	E	A	G	E	N	T
A	B	E		L	A	R	G	O		T	E	P	E	E
L	E	N	S		P	R	I	O	R		D	O	V	E
E	S	T	R	A	N	G	E	D		D	E	E	D	S
D	E	S	P	O	T		E	L	D	E	R	S
			I	A	M		C	H	E	M	E
S	E	R	E	N	A	D	E		A	C	E	R	A	T	E
O	M	I	T		G	E	A	R	S		U	R	A	E	L
F	I	S	T		E	N	S	U	E		K	I	S	S	E
T	R	E	E		S	T	E	E	D		S	E	A	S	E

10/5/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sean Hayden
Copy Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton
Photo Technician ..... Matt Simoneau
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Ganley
Production ..... Sara Davis
Michael Harris

MENU

LUNCH
Hamburger
Tuna Casserole
BASICS LUNCH
Tuna Casserole
Oatburgers

DINNER
Chicken Fajitas
Shells & Cheese
BASICS DINNER
Tofu Fajitas
Shells & Cheese

Cliff hanger...

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Jimmy Cliff gave an electrifying performance Monday night at Pearl Street nightclub in Northampton.

■ cross country

continued from page 12

ment to date. Sophomore Jen Waeger, who has shown "tremendous improvement" according to LaFreniere, placed third for the women and 20th overall. Donaldson's time was also a personal best.

The Minutewomen return to competition on Nov. 13 in the ECAC Championships.

■ rowing

continued from page 12

switched some of the starboards and ports to accommodate a loss of oarsmen because of graduation or eligibility.

"One thing my rowers don't know is that I have absolute faith in them," said Kelliher. "Our entire focus is on the National Championship."

Kelliher said he believes that his rowers have the talent and ability to place high in the National Championships, but only with hard work and dedication.

One of Kelliher's goals is to implement a year-round training program that increases annually. He said he wants to instill in his crew a respect for teammates and to have faith in their coach and each other.

Since the Head of the Charles, the crew has been focusing on technique and mastering the fundamentals. The team has bounced back with hard workouts and good practices on the water. The team has shaved 15 seconds off of their rival boat, Coast Guard.

"Crew is not a two semester sport with vacations in between seasons," said Kelliher. "It is a way of life."

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
TONIGHT
PIZZA SLICES
50¢
9 TIL 1
Miller Genuine Draft
Weekly Special
$1.25
Satellite TV • 4 Pool Tables
University Drive & Amity
Amherst • 549-4040

haircuts always $10
Bucci
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST | 256 0733

TEACHER VACANCIES
HISTORY (7), MATH (5) ALSO ART, ENGLISH & PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR OAK PARK ILLINOIS PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOL (A CHICAGO SUBURB). RICH CURRICULUM DIVERSE COMMUNITY AND STUDENT BODY. DROP-IN SESSION AT MATHER CAREER CNTR. MONDAY, NOV. 8, 1993 10:30 TO 1:30 OR WRITE DR. FRANK DANES, 201 N. SCOVILLE, O.P. 60302; 1-800-251-3475 B.A. $29,000+.

STUDENTS!
Collegian Classified Ads
just a dime a word!
just one little dime
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
November 2nd - 4th
Stop by the Collegian table on the Campus Center Concourse!
SALE APPLIES TO STUDENTS ONLY

■ Blindsided

continued from page 12

behind 183 yards rushing by Errict Rhett. The real star was Bulldog QB Eric Zeier who passed for 384 yards in horrible conditions.

Nebraska is for real. The Cornhuskers went into Boulder and beat a good Colorado team. With Oklahoma being the only threat left on the schedule, the 'Huskers could slide neatly into the second spot in the polls and play for the title.

Too bad Auburn is on probation. Terry Bowden has his team at 8-0, including an impressive 6-0 in the SEC. Also in the SEC, Tennessee got its revenge on South Carolina, mauling them 55-3, avenging last season's upset. Alabama keeps rolling on as well; this conference might be the best in the land, which has made it impossible to send an undefeated team to the Sugar Bowl.

There are many good teams this season (parity has arrived in college football), but only one great team: The Florida State Seminoles. The 'Noles racked up a 54-0 win this past weekend, with Heisman frontrunner Charlie Ward injuring his ribs. Sorry, Irish fans, Ward will be ready to go Nov. 13 when FSU travels up to South Bend.

Does the fact that NBC began running spots to promote the "game of the year" weeks ago mean they regret broadcasting every single Irish game? Ya mean nobody watches Notre Dame and Navy or Purdue on a Saturday afternoon?

The predicted cold weather and home field advantage are what can keep Notre Dame in this battle. The Irish have a week off to prepare; sorry, FSU is simply miles ahead of anyone. The Seminoles have way too much talent; let it snow, FSU will win, 28-20.

The big game for this weekend is in Madison. Ohio State comes in with so much momentum that will carry them over the Badgers in a tough one. The Buckeyes can taste the Rose Bowl — just don't overlook rival Michigan on the 20th in the last game of the year.

The Heisman race is now Ward's to lose. A healthy Ward should bring home the championship and the Heisman. Alabama's wideout David Palmer is the most explosive talent, even throwing a long touchdown pass a few weeks ago. Injuries have crippled Michigan's Tyrone Wheatley and Zeier can't buy a victory for Georgia, which like it or not, is a big factor.

Anthony Guido is a Collegian Staff Member.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

The Club
The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.
Less than $1 per day* for all of this
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Cardiovascular Machines
• On Bus Route
• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Child Care
*When you purchase an academic year membership. Installment payments are available.
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Legal Internships Available!!
The UMass Legal Services Center is now accepting applications for legal assistant internships next spring at the LSC at UMass. Interns work directly with clients and attorneys, and gain valuable, practical experience in a law office. No prior experience is necessary; All UMass/Amherst students are encouraged to apply. For more information, and for an application, contact the LSC today!
APPLICATION DEADLINE: November 12, 1993
Legal Services
545-1995
922 Campus Center

YOU KNOW YOU WANT A MOUNTAIN BIKE.
TODAY!
Amherst College Campus Center
9am to 6pm
Models from:
GIANT Cannondale
Rental Fleet Blowout!
Prices $150-$300 below retail!
AMHERST COLLEGE OUTING CLUB
BIKE SALE

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Congratulations to the Sylvan Madness Basketball Tournament
Nigerian Nightmare (Engin)
Gianni Harris
Bob Steele
Diallo "Dealow" Noel
Drew Mesten a.k.a. Freetown Boy

Earn Up To $700 in a week mailing brochures. For info send name and address to Groupone POBox 278 Dayton, Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

International Students Association presents Multicultural Night on Nov. 6 1993 from 7:30 pm to 1:00 am at the Campus Center Auditorium International snacks and dance will follow.
FREE ADMISSION

Spectrum, the Fine Arts and literary magazine of UMass, is now accepting submissions of art, photos, prose, and poetry. Hand deliver to 406E Student Union, above Credit Union. Students are also invited to join any of these four staffs to help critique submissions.
545 2240

The UMass Theatre Guild presents Black Comedy by Peter Shaffer
Nov. 4 & 8 pm, Nov. 7 2 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Opens tomorrow!
???'s Call 545 0415

The Sisters of Delta Zeta
Are holding our Annual See Saw Athon from 8 am on 11/3 to 8 am on 11/4. A portion of the proceeds will go to Gallaudet University for the hearing impaired. We will be down at the Campus Pond. Come down and see us!

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 Chrysler LeBaron GTS- Hatchback, powerblocks, windows/cruise/AM-FM/Tape deck, very reliable, needs new tires. 1500/Eric 253-0744

1989 Honda CRX, Excellent condition, $6000 or BO. Call (413)773-9720 after 6 pm.

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

FOR RENT

1 bedroom Apt. All utilities. Available immediately. Stephanie 665-2947

FOR SALE

Beautiful Mermaid style wedding dress and veil, new never worn, Pd. $1200 asking $750 size 8 Pearl White call 732-2683

CDROM Hitachi (external) Great 350.00 549-6426

HP48SX, TI-95 Scientific
Programmable calculators
Extra features. Cheap!
Jay 585-0760

IBM Computer, printer, software, disks, all 550.00/BO 549-6426

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition -- Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Native American Bone/horn Chokers, bracelets for sale. All hand-made from deer, bone/horn. Will make any color, size, or length. Choker or bracelet. For info contact kahon-wes at 546-5794

New Computers. Competitive prices. Assistance/lessons available. 549-6426

FOUND

Set of Keys
Between Northeast and Worcester Dining Commons. Call Cassie 6-7408

HELP WANTED

AA Cruise and Travel Jobs. Earn $2500/mo and travel the world free! Caribbean, Europe, Hawai, Asia, Cruise fine now hiring for busy holiday, spring and summer seasons. Guaranteed employment!
Call 919-929-4398 ext. 114

Cruise Ships Now Hiring. Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Free Trips and Cash Call us and find out how hundreds of studenis are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre!
Call Now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

Get up, Stand up work on Clean Water Action's campaign: Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA. Activists wanted flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Travel Free!! Spring Break
Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, S. Padre! Sell "Professional" tour package! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1-800-426-7710

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender Days/evenings one week! Placement Assistance. Boston Bartenders School. 1655 Main St. Springfield, MA 01103. 747-9888. Call now for Nov. and Dec. classes. Special student rates available!

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Free info. session Wed. Nov. 3rd in Campus Center room 905 at 7 pm or call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOSE WEIGHT NOW!

Diet that works like magic! Natural. 100% Guaranteed Effective. Affordable. Call 549-8139

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the 'Minuteman and Proud!' t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to 'LexiCon Productions' to: P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginnar Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

Music Equipment
Fender Jazz Bass mint $400
Fender Bassman Tube Head $250
Bassman 2x15 Cab $100 w/head $75
Fender power Chorus, sweet tone, mint $500
Call Matt 546-1900

PERSONALS

Kerry M.

You are finally 21!

Happy Legal Day!!

The CE Gang

Lori,
My love to the woman of my dreams
I love you!
Matthew

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wantad in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting, assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Attention for anyone who has ever felt physically threatened. Quorum International offers the amazing PAAL. The personel attack alarm, a pocketful of protection that is inexpensive.
413-739-7893

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Spring 1994 Internships with the Legal Services Center; get hands on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 - contact Legal Services today: 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

TO SUBLET

One bedroom apt. for rent starting January 1. Great location, big yard, awesome place. Call 256-1076

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov. 19-21 Killington Weekend $99
Winter Break Ski Week Killington Jan. 16-21 $275 sign up today at Concourse table or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

November 18: UMass vs. Cleveland State and The Collegian Hoop Preview

Sports

Scrappy style pays dividends for Tara Jelley

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Lightning speed and a knack for beating opposing goalies have made University of Massachusetts senior field hockey co-captain Tara Jelley one of the best forwards in the nation.

"She's very fast and has great skills as a right wing," said UMass Coach Pam Hixon. "She's very gritty and scrappy around the net. She brings an element of danger to the forward line because she is so fast."

It was that speed that originally attracted Hixon to Jelley.

Coming out of Greenfield High School, Jelley was incredibly fast, but lacked any polished skills.

"Tara ran faster than she could carry the ball. She was quick, but she didn't have any skill whatsoever," said Hixon. "I hoped that she could develop into a forward and bring her skills up to where she could run as fast with the ball as without it."

"I wasn't very good," said Jelley. "Pam helped me develop my game sense and my skill."

Jelley has definitely fulfill Hixon's expectations. She emerged as an offensive threat last season, scoring six goals and four assists. Her overtime goal against Penn State in the NCAA tournament sent the Minutewomen to the Final Four, an experience she considers the highlight of her career.

This season, her scoring touch has returned in full force. Her 11 goals and 1 assist make her seventh in the Atlantic 10 scoring race.

Jelley has played an important leadership role to this young team as well.

"She leads by how hard she plays on the field. She's very tough, she's power packed." said Hixon. "When she plays to her top level, she can help elevate everybody else."

With postseason beginning this weekend, Hixon will count on Jelley for big contributions.

"I'd like to see us fulfill our potential," said Jelley. "Win or lose I want to leave the field knowing that we did the best we could."

The Minutewomen will close out their regular season on the road against Springfield College tonight at 7 p.m.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Senior co-captain Tara Jelley has been an offensive catalyst for the No. 6 Minutewomen. They will close out their regular season tonight at Springfield College.

Minutemen take second at NE championship

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts men's cross country team placed second at the New England championships last weekend. They will travel to Virginia for the IC4A's on Nov. 13.

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts men's cross country team came home from the New England Championships last Friday with what it expected: a top three finish.

The Minutemen placed second to Boston University with 102 points. BU won the meet with a team score of 24. Keene State finished third with 111 points followed by Williams College and Northeastern.

"I'm very pleased with the second place finish," Coach Ken O'Brien said. "Especially with the way the team went about the finish."

After a disappointing race last week, UMass ran an impressive race getting off to a strong start and finish. "The team responded very well," O'Brien said. "They ran exactly the way they needed to."

The Minutemen were led again by junior Ted Towse who finished 10th overall in a time of 25:20. Kevin Greenhalgh placed 13th overall in 25:27.

"This was the best race of his four-year career," O'Brien said of Greenhalgh's performance.

The freshmen continued to shine as Matthew Behl finished 21st in 25:51 and Jonathan Way placed 25th in 25:56.

"They've been interchangeable since the first race," O'Brien said. "They're getting closer to the top group."

Ethan Nedeau secured the second place finish for UMass with a gutsy performance. Nedeau, who twisted an ankle earlier in the week and was questionable for the race, finished 33rd in a time 26:09.

"Ethen ran an outstanding race," O'Brien said. "Without him we would have fallen to fourth or fifth."

Marc Buffone placed 47th for UMass in 26:35 and Ryan Autry finished 62nd in 26:57 to round out the UMass effort.

The Minutemen have this week off before heading to Leesburg, Va., for the IC4A Championships.

The IC4A Championships brings together 100 teams from Maine to Virginia and serves as the NCAA qualifying meet for District I and District II.

"The IC4A Championships is the second best cross country meet in the country," O'Brien said.

Conference races start to take shape

It was just a mind-boggling week in college football across the country. The major conferences are starting to take shape, with potential bowl berths coming into the picture.

Penn State went into Columbus and got ambushed by a red-hot Ohio State team. The Nittany Lions are learning the hard way that you have to show up every week in the Big Ten; they can't win big road games with quarterback Kerry Collins throwing interceptions all over the place. Hey, Coach Paterno, there are no gimmies in this conference, you host a 7-1 Indiana team on Saturday.

BLINDSIDED
Anthony Guido on College Football

The other surprise Big Ten team is Wisconsin; they slipped by a lifeless Michigan team 13-10. At the beginning of the season, who would have thought OSU and Wisconsin would play on Nov. 6 for first place? And how about Michigan and Penn State having combined for five losses in the Big Ten and being non-factors in the national championship race.

The most exciting game of last weekend was the Mud Bowl down in Jacksonville. The Florida Gators defeated their fierce rival Georgia 33-26

Turn to BLINDSIDED, page 11

Cross country takes second

Langevin places 7th at New Englands to lead UM

By JONATHAN GANGI
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's cross country team went into the New England Championships at Franklin Park in Boston on Friday with two of its best runners out and still managed to place third.

Although both Kelly Liljeblad and Kristin Diggs had to sit the meet out, Coach Julie LaFreniere said she was very happy with her team's performance.

"I thought the team did an outstanding job," said LaFreniere. "They all ran gutsy races."

Vermont finished first and was followed by Boston University. However, both squads had been defeated by UMass earlier in the season.

"I've never seen Vermont run so well," said LaFreniere, "and BU came out of nowhere."

Young talent shined again for the Minutewomen as the first three wearing maroon to cross the finish line were all freshmen. The steady and dependable freshman Mellissa Langevin was first to finish for UMass, placing seventh overall in a field of 163. Freshmen Katie Greenia and Kristin Donaldson finished 24th and 26th, respectively.

"Donaldson ran the best race of her career," said LaFreniere. "She has really come along."

Three personal bests were set in a tremendous effort by the team as a whole. Junior Julie Moreau finished second for the Minutewomen, her highest team place-

Turn to CROSS COUNTRY, page 10

Rowing to a promising future

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

The sun was shining brightly on the Charles River and 4,000 rowers on Oct. 24 for the 29th annual Head of the Charles Regatta. However, the sun didn't shine brightly on the University of Massachusetts Heavyweight Crew, which placed 35th out of 42 boats with a time of 16:45 in the men's championship eights.

Vesper Boat Club placed first with an impressive time of 14:19 with UPenn, Brown and Harvard trailing behind with about a range of 15 seconds between the overall crews.

Last year, UMass crew had a very impressive season for the men's heavyweight and lightweight crews with many victories in the spring. Men's crew had a disappointing placement at the National Championships.

The UMass Crew Club is now being coached by Rick Kelliher, an experienced coach in fundamentals and technique. He comes to UMass with the experience with coaching Boston College and the University of Pittsburgh.

The poor placing at the Charles is an indication of the problems that the men's crew had at the beginning of the season. Rowers were sick and out of shape due to lack of training during the summer and schedule conflicts caused less time out on the water. Kelliher

Turn to ROWING, page 10

Theater Guild makes fall debut with Black Comedy This Weekend

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

54° Thursday
November 4, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 40

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Throwing a pot

STEVEN PEDULLA /COLLEGIAN

Even though you can't see the look of concentration on her face, Katharine Beisner get absorbed in her work in the Student Union Craft Shop.

Wildfire consumes celebrity mansions

By MICHAEL FLEEMAN
Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. — Helicopters swooped up Topanga Canyon ferrying giant buckets of ocean water as an army of firefighters stepped up their assault Wednesday on a wildfire that claimed 200 homes in this celebrity seaside town.

The hot, dry desert winds that fed Tuesday's firestorm died down overnight. But erratic gusts Wednesday from the sea and the mountains swirled embers of flame from the brush, posing a threat to homes.

Director - screenwriter Duncan Gibbons, who was burned while trying to rescue a cat from the house where he was staying, died Wednesday at 41. It was the first death in the rash of wildfires that have swept Southern California since Oct. 26.

By late afternoon, the wildfire was bearing down on Pacific Palisades, 20 miles west of downtown Los Angeles. Residents along Topanga Canyon Boulevard were urged to evacuate.

"It's jumped a line we wanted to keep it behind," said Los Angeles County Fire Chief Michael Freeman.

A huge cloud of black smoke hung over the seaside enclave that is home to such celebrities as Bruce Willis, Demi Moore, Burgess Meredith, Mark Hamill, and Mel Gibson. Evacuees returned on bicycles and rollerskates because police closed off a 45-mile stretch of the Pacific Coast Highway.

Among the victims was actor Sean Penn, whose $4 million Spanish style mansion was destroyed.

"I don't know if he evacuated or if he was there at the time," said his publicist, Carol Stone. Penn wasn't immediately available for comment.

Arson investigators located where the fire broke out, but didn't immediately know whether it was set.

The fire destroyed 200 canyon ranches and seaside mansions and charred 35,000 acres as it roared through this mile-wide, 27-mile-long coastal strip.

It was the latest in a series that has burned more than 1,000 homes and 215,000 acres in Southern California in the past one and a half weeks.

As the winds subsided Wednesday, nearly 5,000 firefighters stepped up their attack on volatile hot spots. The blaze remained out of control.

Tuition retention condemned

Pavesi warns against a 'horrible, horrible policy'

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts is now the most expensive public school in the country, Student Government Association Speaker Matt Pavesi said at the SGA meeting last night.

Pavesi said UMass may become even more expensive because UMass President Michael K. Hooker is trying to privatize UMass via tuition retention.

The present system forces the University to give the tuition money students pay to the Massachusetts legislature. The money goes into a general fund and the legislature then appropriates money to each of the five UMass campuses. If UMass begins tuition retention, it will keep all of the tuition funds it receives from students instead of first giving it to the state legislature.

Pavesi said tuition retention is a bad idea because it will encourage the University Board of Trustees to raise fees and to recruit out of state students.

"Tuition retention is a horrible, horrible policy," Pavesi said. "It is an incentive to raise the curriculum fee because [the Board of Trustees] do not have to be accountable to students. The curriculum fee is disguised tuition.

"It also encourages them to look for out of state students. I think out of state students are great — I am one — but the University is a land grant institution and it was created for the poor and the middle class."

Pavesi said tuition retention at the University of Vermont turned a public school into a private school.

"The University of Vermont used to be the most expensive public school, but now that they have tuition retention it costs $20,000 per year to go there," he said. "If we get tuition retention at UMass, tuition and fees will skyrocket.

"President Hooker thinks tuition retention will make UMass more cost effective, but the SGA will not accept any more increases in tuition and fees," he said.

Pavesi said the privatization of UMass, something Governor Weld and President Hooker support, would lead to the loss of jobs on campus.

"The Board of Governors had a motion to make the Campus Center store private by turning it into a Barnes and Noble," he said. "But that would mean all the employees of the store would lose their jobs. If UMass is privatized, 70 percent of student jobs will be lost on campus."

Pavesi also said the fact that the state financial aid pool has decreased since the mid-1980s has contributed to the problems the University faces.

"The financial aid pool in this state is $61 million, which is $6 million less than it was in 1987," he said. "With the cost of living increases and inflation, that figure should be in the $100 millions. We are now competing with the private schools, and people are taking out the extra loans to go to a Harvard instead of coming to UMass."

Germany new site for diversity

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

As Germany's cultural makeup and economic status change, anti-foreignor sentiment and violence is on the increase, according to American-German scholar speaking at Amherst College yesterday afternoon.

"This is a troublesome topic and it's very complex," said Berndt Ostendorf, director of the American Studies Institute at the University of Munich in Germany. "How should one deal with cultural difference... in order to achieve a measure of social justice?"

In addressing "Multiculturalism in Germany and the U.S.," Ostendorf noted that the collapse of the Soviet Union, the German Reunification, the creation of the "Maastricht" or "Common Market" in Europe and ethnic divisions in the Balkans and other European nations have all facilitated changes in the German cultural identity. These events have been the primary causes of the large volume of immigration to Germany in the past few years.

Most immigrants seek to enter the German labor market and escape political persecution and turmoil. The opening of the borders has caused a massive influx; between 1988 and 1992, Ostendorf said, the number of foreigners seeking asylum in Germany has more than quadrupled.

Ostendorf linked the increase in Neo-Nazi violence with the fact that Germany, unlike the United States, does not have a history of ethnic diversity stemming from immigration.

"There is no artificial ideology that Germany is an immigrant country," said Ostendorf. "There is a feeling of anti-heterogeneity."

He also noted that the areas in Germany with the highest instances of anti-foreigner ethnic violence tend to be those in which there is high unemployment and poor economic conditions. He said Neo-Nazis are using foreigners as a "scapegoat" for economic problems.

Many Germans fear that the country's growing immigrant labor pool weakens the strength of labor unions. Some members and supporters of the pro-union Social Democratic Party believe that the

Turn to GERMANY, page 7

RSU protests for increased opportunity

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Radical Student Union held a small protest against school tuition outside Whitmore yesterday in an attempt to raise awareness of issues relating to class and student power.

"Free education is a right," said RSU president Charles Lenchner. "Society doesn't deny the poor of a high school education, why should it deny a college education?"

The RSU is fighting for a student's right to attend any school they want no matter what class or race they may be. RSU believes the American ideal of equal opportunity for all must recognize that all students from wealthy families are privileged.

"Students who must borrow thousands of dollars by the time they graduate do not enjoy the same opportunities as wealthy students," said Lenchner.

While students from working class backgrounds, many of them from the state's poor White, Latino and African American communities, are discriminated against, they cannot afford to borrow thousands of dollars from banks to pay for a college education, he said.

"Turning education into a commodity, like a car, is wrong," said Lenchner. "Education is a right, not a product we can buy because we are rich."

A free college education is not a new idea. Until Ronald Reagan became governor of California, students in the public higher education system there did not have to pay tuition. Students in most West European countries attend college for free also.

Another issue, said RSU leaders, is that students pay $100 extra in tuition for the Mullins Center, even though they do not get discounts on events which do not deal with the school.

"Because the Mullins Center is privately owned they do not give student discounts for activities such as concerts, even though most events are mainly attended by students," said Jeremy Smith, general secretary of the RSU.

RSU leaders say their main agenda is that of student rights, believing that this would be a better university if students were given more of a say in school affairs, instead of the trustees and administration.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor.....Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor.....Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor.....Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

It is so hip. It is so now. It is so with it Dig

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian - Dig it, Daddy-O

R&P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

Poetry feast offers a heathy diet

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Last night 12 students gathered in the Wheeler Gallery, located in Central's Wheeler Residental Hall, to read and share their poetry at a Poetry Buffet.

Sponsored by Out of Bounds, an extension program of Residential Arts, the Poetry Buffet featured poems read by University students and members of Poets Anonymous.

"Our initial goal was to offer a place for people to perform the medium they choose. We wanted to incorporate more students to get involved with the arts," said Dianne Bilyak, Poets Anonymous and Out of Bounds coordinator.

Poets Anonymous began in December 1992. The group was brought about to offer a place for students to share their poetry.

"The Poetry Buffet was formed to allow students to perform what they write. We had the gathering in the gallery so they could have an interaction of different art forms," Bilyak said.

Project assistants Corinne Paquin and Michele Pokowicz also helped in organizing the Poetry Buffet.

The Out of Bounds program also sponsored the Alternative Film Festival earlier this semester. The Poetry Buffet was the group's second event, and they are now planning an indoor/outdoor concert.

"These events bring people involved with the arts that aren't usually interested, or are unable to involve themselves," Bilyak said.

The Out of Bounds program first planned the Poetry

Turn to POET, page 8

Good InVESTments

Lots of styles in wool, cotton or silk. Solids & patterns. Zip-front or button-front.
From $19.95

Basic DUDS at Faces

northampton • main st. • 7 days

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

The Hatch Invites You To...
Take A 'Wok' On The Wild Side!

Choose from Snow Peas, Fresh Bamboo Shoots, Water Chestnuts, & any of a wide selection of items from the salad bar...all sold by the ounce and COOKED TO ORDER!

ADD BEEF, PORK, OR CHICKEN $1.50 each then top off your order with any of our six A La Carte Sauces $.50 each Complimentary Rice and Fortune Cookie!

11:30am - 8:00pm Mon-Fri
Daily Specials After 3:00pm only at the hatch

GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUM

DEPARTMENTS OF MICROBIOLOGY AND BIOCHEMISTRY & MOLECULAR BIOLOGY

DATE: Thursday, November 4, 1993
TIME: 8:00 PM
LOCATION: Campus Center Room 904

SPONSORED BY:

MATHER CAREER CENTER
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
DEPARTMENT OF MICROBIOLOGY AND BIOCHEMISTRY & MOLECULAR BIOLOGY

Take this opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this panel discussion!

OPEN TO ALL STUDENTS IN THE BIOSCIENCES

ALUMNI PANELISTS:

William Gelb Biochemistry Ph.D. '70	Executive T Cell Diagnostics
Beth Melikan Microbiology B.S. '90	Genetic Counselor Perinatal Unit Stanford Hospital
Steven G. Richter Microbiology B.S. '77	President MicroTest Laboratories, Inc.
Lars Tragethon Biochemistry B.S. '91	Research Associate Biogen, Inc.

Local News

News from other "U's"

compiled by Dan Wetzel

Tickled pink

The College Republicans of Kent State University are a little peeved at the University's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual Union because they claim the LBGU stole the club's sacred wooden elephant with painted pink triangles on it, according to a report in the Daily Kent Stater.

Mary Stetler, president of the College Republicans, said the elephant was found in the lobby of Campus Life, draped with a rainbow-colored flag and a note suggesting the elephant is coming out of the closet. The elephant is the symbol of the Grand Old Party.

However, LBGU Executive Director Alyssa Lamb denies her group's involvement in the incident. Lamb says her 50-member group had nothing to do with the elephant painting and says that by accusing the group, gays and lesbians are being discriminated against.

Meanwhile, the young followers of the Party of Lincoln contend the LBGU, whose symbol is a pink triangle, is clearly responsible. The incident occurred during campus coming out week.

The College Republicans filed charges of theft with local officials prompting Lamb to contact the group and repaint the elephant free of charge.

"They admitted guilt by repainting it," said Richard Heinz, vice president of the Republicans. Lamb insists innocence and claims the LBGU repaired the elephant only to "avoid bad press."

It is an incident neither side will ever forget.

Homecoming headaches

The traditional homecoming weekend at Michigan State took a few new twists this year. First of all was a change in the selection process of the homecoming queen and her court contest, which had been decried as heterosexist, elitist and racist by some students, according to The State News, the student newspaper at MSU.

In order to appease all groups on campus, the homecoming court, is no longer elected by the student body. Instead, a panel chose the court, factoring in campus involvement, grade point average and diversity. Leaders of the change claim this will promote better representation of all campus groups.

On an even more serious note, kegs are now banned at pre-game tailgate parties.

"The bottom line is, we want to be the University of access, not excess," said a University spokeswoman. "Clearly, kegs were producing an excess of beer and the behavior associated with beer."

What is the behavior associated with beer consumption? Urination.

I am haunted by waters

At the University of Idaho, fans of the book and movie A River Runs Through It can learn how to fly fish just like the Maclean brothers did, according to The Argonaut, the student newspaper on campus.

Dr. Dave Engerbreston, editor of Fly Fisherman Magazine and professor at Washington State, lectured at Idaho last month and gave a class on the finer points of fly fishing.

Anyone familiar with the story will recall the stunning beauty of the Montana wilderness and the peacefulness of fly fishing. Engerbreston agrees with that portrayal and adds:

"The act of fly fishing is so beautiful and so fun to do, and if I'm going to get skunked fishing, I'd rather do it fly fishing."

Paper heist

Last week the student newspaper at the University of Maryland was stolen from distribution points, due to its alleged racist structure.

To go into details would only give merit to the argument of the small-minded thieves. However, as I peruse through scores of student newspapers from coast to coast I come across more and more absurd politically correct arguments and incidents than I care to stomach.

There is no political movement in America with more ignorant leaders and followers than the muliticultural madness sweeping the country. How the administration of this campus justifies listening to them defies logic.

Japan-U.S. relations optimistic

By BRADLEY DAVIDSON
Collegian Correspondent

"The relationship between Japan and the United States has much improved but we still have a ways to go," said Toshio Mochizuki last evening.

"The relationship between our two countries has improved a great deal since the end of the cold war. Both our countries have a solid foundation to work toward better relations."
– Toshio Mochizuki

Mochizuki, Consul General of Japan, spoke about "Japan-U.S. Relations in a Time of Change" at the Converse Assembly Room in Amherst College. The lecture was sponsered by The Center for East Asian Studies.

Mochizuki addressed this topic in two separate parts. first the changes happening in Japan, and secondly the relationship between the United States and Japan.

"Seventy percent of the Japanese people support the new Japanese government (who took power in August) as opposed to just 30 percent support of the previous administration," said Mochizuki.

"This high popularity rate has given Japanese a new attitude and a new sense of optimism for solving Japan's problems," said Mochizuki.

The peaceful transition of power from a conservative to a much more liberal government has allowed "more liberties, diversity and individuality in the Japanese community," he said.

Japan's economy as well as that of the United States is in a great economic recession. The economic growth rate expected in Japan for the next year is zero percent. "Change will not come ove night but progress is slowly being made," said Mochizuki.

This progress will mainly be possible due to the reforms that the government must make.

"Decentralization, cutbacks on administration control and an open trade market are the three reforms that the government will push most," he said. "Without reform recovery would be difficult and without recovery reform would be difficult."

"The relationship between our two countries has improved a great deal since the end of the cold war. Both our countries have a solid foundation to work towards better relations," said Mochizuki.

Japan and the United States will meet in January 1994, Mochizuki said, to "discuss free trade and an economic partnership. Both sides will have to give a strong effort to reach an agreement."

"Japan is in a political and economic transition as is the U.S.," he said. "We must understand each other's position and work towards a common goal, economic recovery."

"I hope my optimism is not too much for you," Mochizuki said in closing, "but I think that in two or three years Japan and the U.S. will emerge from this economic recession and that the relationship between our two countries will be constantly improving as it has in the post cold war era."

Hey, it's my turn

STEVEN PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Members of Delta Zeta held a See-Saw-A-Thon by the Campus Pond and later in front of their house for 24 hours yesterday to raise money for Gallaudet University for the Hearing Impaired. Accepting contributions from people walking by, the women hope to raise $2,000.

The media's first sex change

By DEBORAH WHITE
Collegian Staff

Christine was born in December 1952 when George Jorgensen, a 26-year-old ex-GI from the Bronx, underwent the world's first sex change operation.

"Christine Jorgensen was the most talked about person in the tabloids at the time, of anytime maybe," Kim Leighton told about 30 people at a lecture in the Campus Center Wednesday afternoon.

Leighton, a Ph.D student in philosophy at UMass, spoke as part of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Series. Her speech was titled "Constructing and Decontructing Gender: Transsexualism and the 'Case' of Christine Jorgensen."

Using slides of newspaper headlines from December 1952 to April 1953, Leighton demonstrated how the press constructed, then deconstructed, Christine Jorgensen's gender to fit their stories.

Jorgensen immediately became a celebrity. "Ex-GI Becomes Blond Beauty," "The Girl Who Used To Be a Boy Isn't Quite Ready For Dates" and "I Could Have Gone for the He/She Girl, Reporter Says," read the first headlines Leighton displayed.

According to Leighton, the press legitimized their story by attributing to Jorgensen what was considered to be appropriate gender behavior for a woman at that time. According to Leighton, "Christine is 100% American girl," as one headline reads, because she is considered attractive by the male heterosexual society.

At the height of this short-lived fame, Jorgensen went on a date with Yul Brenner and was even named Woman of the Year by the Scandinavian Society of Greater New York.

"Christine Jorgensen is a woman in name only," begins the text of a series of articles by Alvin Davis in April 1953. This expose proclaimed that, due to the absence of female genitalia, Jorgensen was not a woman but rather a castrated man. Soon the press, fueled by the Davis article, featured her no longer as a news event about scientific breakthrough but reconstructed her as a medical oddity.

Despite this demonization of Jorgensen by the press, Leighton still views these stories as a breakthrough.

"It was the first hint that gender differed from sex. These stories showed that ideas of desire, gender and body could be separated," Leighton said.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a pseudonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, its staff or the Editorial staff.

• • • • •

The Editorial page wants you. Yes, you, the reader of these smudgy pages. We are looking for good writers and good artists to fill this page every day with their ideas and opinions. If you're interested, stop by the Editorial desk at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center (the basement level). Your opinions count — but no one will know what you're thinking unless you tell them. 19,000 people want to hear what you think.

A great company like Ogden...

I would like to address Arthur Stapleton's "Notes from the Campus Center Basement" [Collegian, Oct. 28]. Who do you think you are? The next time you voice your opinion about things like the Mullins Center, please research your facts.

First of all, the William D. Mullins Memorial Center does not belong to the students of UMass. The Mullins Center belongs to the Massachusetts Building Authority and the taxpayers of Massachusetts who paid for it when the money was annexed from the state budget in 1988 by Governor Dukakis. The fee that we all "suffer" from helps with the upkeep and the management of the facility. It takes quite a bit to keep your so-called "house of cards" in smooth running operation.

I am also a resident's assistant, Mr. Stapleton, and before you go speaking for all of us, please ask my opinion as an RA so I can give you my input as well. I ask you to please reread your job description as an RA. It is your role to convey interesting and important events to your residents.

It is true that the Collegian supplies a lot of information to the campus community about Mullins fanfare, and that to find out what is going on all the time is not easy. However, if you are given information on Mullins scheduling you should look at it as a benefit rather than an expense to your role as an RA. I try to let my residents know what is going on all around campus, including the Mullins Center. Is it so difficult to post a flyer or two?

On the issue of Mariah Carey and Midnight Madness happening on the same night. . . Isn't it great that we have people who can handle this workload to bring us these events back to back? If you're not pleased with Carey's appearance on this campus, I'm sorry. Some people here actually like her music and appreciate her talent. She brought good publicity and exposure to Mullins. Some people realize that Mullins is our center, and even appreciate the fact that Ogden is doing such a wonderful job running it for us.

Joanne E. Gervais
Orchard Hill

I'm sick of the ignorance

I am a resident assistant in Northeast. In a recent RA workshop, the question, "what can we do to promote diversity and a 'comfortable' living environment for all students and what are the barriers we face that make living environments uncomfortable?" was posed to the audience.

Many people responded from "special interest" floors. Others responded from the "majority" perspective. The ignorance expressed in the room absolutely astounded me. Within a matter of five minutes, the negative energy in the room increased to such a level that people were at the edge of their seats. I, being an African-American female, refrained from responding because the anger in me built up to such a point that I knew no productive words would fall from my lips. I thought to myself, are these the people who are supposed to be educators?

Maia
McCLINTON

I am a senior chemical engineer and have been on this campus for three years. In that time, I have seen a lot of things happen. There have been several racial incidents which have occurred on this campus, as well as in the United States; from Rodney King to Arlens Barosy. People in the majority cannot understand what it is like to grow up in an oppressed group and what we face everyday — trying to combat stereotypes and preconceived notions people have about you.

Many RAs preached that special interest floors further separate "minorities" from the mainstream and "pamper" them. They believed in order for the problem of racism, sexism and homophobia to be solved, we must integrate everyone so the target groups can "teach" the majority.

The oppressed minorities should be the teachers and special interest groups further separate and aren't conducive for the learning of the majority — the whole ideology expressed here is so self-centered and racist it disgusts me.

As a part of an oppressed minority, you carry a lot of hatred and anger because you have been taught self-hatred by growing up in a grossly oppressive society. You have to personally recognize the oppression you are faced with before you can teach others. Part of that comes from being around people who face the same thing you do. I have reached the point where I feel comfortable talking about my experiences to increase the knowledge of others, but not everyone else has.

By the time a person comes to college, he has already been taught so much. Those oppressed have so much to deal with personally that they really don't feel like it should always be their job to teach other people that what they have been taught all their lives about them is wrong.

In the immortal words of Malcolm X, if you are not a part of the solution you are a part of the problem. What people from the majority need to realize is that it starts with themselves. There needs to be some introspection. Majority members have to actively seek to learn that what they have been taught all their lives about minorities is wrong.

They have to realize the privilege they have as a part of the majority and work with the minorities to teach other majorities. Until this is done consistently and pro-actively, the disease will never be cured.

Part of the reason minorities feel they have to make such a loud noise when trying to get what they want is because nothing gets accomplished otherwise. There needs to be an explosion in order to get what is desired. Why should anyone have to beg for basic human rights or a chance to not feel marginalized and oppressed?

Why is affirmative action necessary? Opposers to affirmative action preach we should have equal opportunity for everyone. They say "beneficiaries" of affirmative action are getting "special privileges" and are underqualified. To me, this is just a slap in the face. I worked very hard to get where I am today. I can tell you that I have to work harder just to prove that I am qualified for a job because otherwise I am believed to be an underqualified beneficiary of affirmative action. And that is just not true. I don't want to hear about the "special privilege" I am given until you realize the special privileges you have growing up in this society.

I am just plain sick of everything from the P.C. avengers to the racist Minuteman (the newspaper). I came here to learn and teach others. But after all I have done and still try to do it upsets me to see the ignorance everyone still has. It's times like these that all the pain, anger and sweat I put into it seems like it was for nothing.

I wish people would be a little less self-centered and a little more introspective and caring for others needs. The world would be a much better place. I can't wait to get out into the real world away from this anal, righteous community we call UMass where nothing gets done unless you blow up a building, or scream and cry. Maybe there will be more room for constructive discussion to make the world a truly more accepting community. I guess I'll find out soon.

Maia McClinton is a UMass student.

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

"Wait a minute! No. Wait a minute! No. Wait a minute. I think I've got a plan!" — Wayne's World.

The following phrase is from a fictitious scene, but I can easily see it being uttered in Chancellor David Scott's office regarding plans for a smoke-free campus.

Scott called off the ban twice at the eleventh hour, before Sept. 1 and Oct. 1, but finally stuck to his plan to torture those who inhale cancer sticks.

By making them go outside, Scott has shown a masochistic nature. Instead of allowing smokers to get used to the weather in September or October, the chancellor is forcing them into the autumn wind and cold with no preparation.

I happened to walk by two individuals who were outside with no coats on, lighting it up, and hoped they realized how addictive cigarettes are, because trying to keep warm with a piece of paper and tobacco in your mouth in 35 degree weather is absurd.

Seeing as this space is devoted to actions specifically in the Campus Center Basement, we'll get one man's reaction on the smoking ban.

Joel Stanley, Campus Center watchdog: "I point at people who are smoking, trying to get them to stop. Peer pressure, you know?

"If that doesn't work, or if someone tries to blow smoke in my face, I blow my whistle. Give 'em a dose of ear pollution. One guy lit two cigarettes in my face, trying to be funny."

In case you haven't seen Stanley, he's the gent who has been running around making 150 "No Smoking" flyers ("At my own expense," he likes to say) and posting them up.

Michael
MORRISSEY

Meanwhile, the smokers continue on. The smoking area sign was still hung up in the Hatch as of Monday night, and tough guys aplenty have adopted the James Dean opinion on the subject, not giving a darn about the new rule. God bless them.

This author finds it hilarious that people on both sides get so worked up about the issue. Smoking is stupid and should not be allowed in public buildings, but don't take it too far.

Kids who don't smoke will tell you parents who do can get pretty annoying. If they want to harm their bodies, let them. But don't harm yourself by breathing in second-hand smoke, and don't harm yourself more by trying to tear a cigarette out of someone's mouth.

• • •

While we're on the topic of dumb chancellor decisions, let's take a look at Friday's Registered Students Organization head dinner. All the heads of the RSOs will be there. Dan Flynn and Greg Zenon of the Conservative Alliance are hoping Scott is serving Bertucci's pizza.

Noticably absent from the list are none other than the managing editor and editor-in-chief of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

Dick O'Brien tried the same trick in December '91 until yours truly blew the whistle on him. Needless to say, the next morning the phone was ringing off the hook down here.

• • •

This author is wondering if everybody who has recently gotten their shoes ruined by construction-induced mud will get a refund by the University. We know it was a smart decision to start construction at the end of October, when the rain traditionally comes down instead of June or July.

• • •

We heard Lee Eskilsen, executive director of the Mullins Center, was out helping the student workers strip down the stage after Mariah Carey and before Midnight Madness. Good work for a guy and a place that has taken a lot of hard hits lately.

Note to all UMass students: Why can't you party like that when there isn't any basketball practice?

And finally: The Collegian Open House is Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. Come down, meet some cool people and write for the paper.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

I could write about something important — but I won't

Writer's block is a bitch.

It is the worst feeling, having many topics rolling around in my head, but not being able to decide on one of them.

I could write about the overblown controversy raised about the mascot here at UMass, since this is the biggest worry UMass has at this point, but everyone and their grandmother has written about it.

I could write about the Mullins Center being hazardous under torrential winds, yet if 568-pound WWF wrestler Yokozuna didn't bring the house down, a puny 55 mile per hour wind isn't.

I could write about my stressful week, but I might bust out crying.

I could write about my friend who shotgunned a beer in three seconds, but you had to see it to believe it.

I could write about the smoking ban, but I know that it will not stop people from smoking.

I could write about Sega, which my friends annoyingly play every second, yet I would finally admit to the fact that I don't like it because I suck at it.

I could write about Lionel Richie, but words can't express the way I feel about his music.

I could write about dipping Skoal, but if I packed it in, you wouldn't be able to understand what I'm saying.

I could write about how I drooled on myself in class yesterday, but I have no idea why I did so.

I could write about how I fell down the stairs, but... oh, I already did.

Andrew
BRYCE

I could write about my friend not washing his sheets the entire semester, yet someone may get ill.

I could write about not having any money, but my rich friends may start waving their twenties at me.

I could write about Midnight Madness, but I fell asleep in the middle of Jeff Meyer dunking the ball for the tenth time in the dunking drill.

I could write about not yet having a column on the sports page, but I won't.

I could write about frats, but I know nothing about them because they don't let us guys into their parties.

I could write about the toilet paper at the dorms feeling more like sandpaper, but... well... I think you get the point.

I could write about the Ralph Lauren truck selling clothing in Southwest a couple of weeks back, but I am still upset over the fact that I didn't have the 155 bucks to spend on a flannel shirt.

I could write about salt water taffy, yet I wouldn't not be able to handle the response from you readers.

I could write about standing in line for the Pearl Jam CD at around midnight, but my recollections are cloudy due to the hideous sight of seeing my friend passing over the Pearl Jam CD to get the Free Willy soundtrack.

I could write about my large Red Hot Chili Peppers poster always being blown off the wall in my room by the incoming wind from the window, but I will stay patient, and put it back up.

I could write about the pompous man who is standing in front of me at this moment, but I won't because he is stronger than I am.

I could write about having more than two friends now, but no one would believe me.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

An older, wiser daughter

Throughout high school, my parents were the two most embarrassing people I knew. Just about anything that came out of my father's mouth prompted a red blush to fill my cheeks and a nasal whine (Daaa-aaad!). My parents were the epitome of humiliation; I was convinced that they were placed on this earth to embarrass and torture their eldest daughter.

Stephanie
EISENBERG

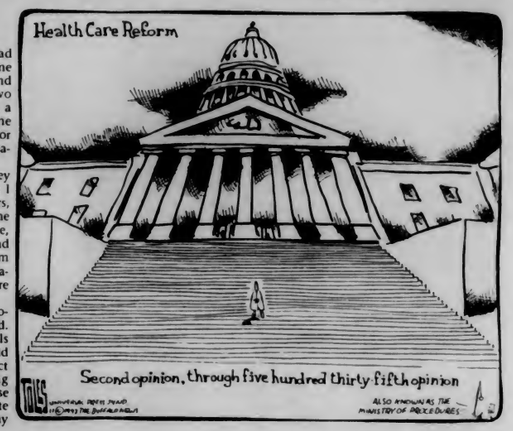
Not only did my parents live to humiliate me, they also must have been born at the age of 40 because they just didn't understand the trials and tribulations of my extra-exciting high school life. I can't begin to count the number of fights we had over school, grades, boyfriends, curfew, etc. You name it, we fought about it. My parents were simply determined to ruin my life. Then I escaped to college.

Ah college! In September of 1991, I packed up all of my possessions, and prepared myself for four parent-less years. After the agonizing final weeks of summer, I knew the days ahead would be wonderful and freedom-filled. When that fateful day came, I waved goodbye to the crying folks and called, "I'll see you at Thanksgiving and I'll call when I need money."

Now that I've been here for about three years, an absolutely amazing transformation has taken place. My parents, the two former most embarrassing people on earth, have changed — they're actually, well. . .cool. My Dad can speak now without fearing the whine he hates so much, and my Mom is actually kind of amusing.

In the last few years, my parents have become witty, wonderful, and wise. I wonder what happened. All I know is that these two people became normal sometime during my college years.

I figured out what had happened during a phone conversation with my brother. Jeff, a freshman, recently told me about parents weekend at his university. He said he had a wonderful weekend and could I believe that Mom and Dad were actually okay. He was surprised that in the short time he had been away, Mom and dad had become "real people." I told him that Mom and Dad had been "real" for at least two years now, and, of course, Dad had a wonderful sense of humor, hadn't he always? We bickered back and forth for a while, and at the end of the conversation I came to a realization.



My parents are the same people they always were. They haven't changed; I have. Sometime during my college years, I began to appreciate my parents for the warm and intelligent people they are, rather than seeing them as just food and shelter providers. As I began to see them as "real people" the structure of our relationship changed, and suddenly we were relating rather than arguing.

During high school, I, like most people I know, took my parents for granted. I felt they were there to provide meals and hand out credit cards, but should have no say in my life or how I conduct myself. I thought they were nothing more than talking money trees whose greatest goals in life were to humiliate me. I guess I was too naive to realize my parents just wanted the best for me.

It is only after a few years of separation that I am able to see that I can benefit from my parents wisdom and experiences. Much of the hardships I endure now, my parents have already lived through. I used to think my parents were born at 40 because they couldn't possibly understand the things I encountered as a young adult. Now, not only do I understand that we have many shared experiences, but I turn to my parents for comfort and support.

My parents are two of the most wonderful people I know. My Dad actually has a great sense of humor, and has much wisdom to share with me. My Mom is an incredible lady, one of the few women I know who has skillfully managed to balance both a family and a career. I can't believe it took me so long to appreciate them and, sometimes, I'm ashamed that I used to take them for granted. I'm glad though that we have reached this plateau of mutual understanding and respect.

Stephanie Eisenberg is a Collegian columnist.

Materialism serves as oppressor

Stacy Malone is disturbed by the fact that some women freely choose to participate in the exploitation of their bodies and physical appearance [Collegian, Oct. 29]. In my opinion, what excuses a woman to allow her body to be used in the media, entertainment or sex industries is not sttle coercion by an oppressive patriarchy, but acceptance of a philosophy of materialism.

By definition, money above the poverty line is superfluous to actual needs (at least if health coverage is made available). Then why are so few people satisfied with incomes near the poverty line? It is materialism that tells women, children and men that they are not deserving of respect if they don't have the material goods advertised in the media and flaunted in public by those who do have them. With acceptance of materialism it is inevitable that people trade their dignity and self-esteem for money: materialism tells them that without money they do not deserve respect anyway.

People should be allowed to acquire dignity, self-respect and self-esteem from their positive contributions to society, regardless of salary. Then all people can have an opportunity to claim their dignity. In contrast, materialism inevitably injects friction into society simply because everyone can't be rich, even if the earth's resources were inexhaustible.

If we all worked with our minds at glamorous, high-paying office jobs, who would build our mansions, fix our BMW's, grow our food, wait on us in trendy restaurants, sell us our gourmet groceries, do our laundry, empty our trash cans, and take care of us when we're aged or ill? All forms of labor which benefit others deserve an honored place in an equitable society, despite materialism's message that it's only money that matters.

Stevin H. Gehrke
Amherst

20 ft. away from buildings?

I've heard the cavalry sound their trumpets, and boy are they mad now. Some of them have been talking of starting an underground commando squad in order to "protect their rights."

The issue, once again, is a heated one that has made the most passive (i.e., apathetic) to political conflicts enlist in the corps.

Ted
MARCUS

So, what's the rub now? The campus smoking policy.

I was talking to my friend Winston Kilmee about why he decided to eschew political issues in the past, but is eagerly awaiting the reactivation of the Weathermen underground to free him of the despotism of the new ban.

"It's just as lethal to smoke indoors as to smoke outdoors. And I know cancer is worse than a cold. But it's my choice to get cancer, and somebody else decided to legislate me into the winter ills."

"Listen Ted," he told me, "you smoke too. Are you looking forward to spending the winter inhaling smoke and snow? It's getting cold you know."

"So, you think we should be able to smoke inside for health reasons? You're afraid outdoor smoking causes colds?"

"Yeah," he said, "something like that. I mean, I know what you're getting at: it's just as lethal to smoke indoors as to smoke outdoors. And I know cancer is worse than a cold. But it's my choice to get cancer, and somebody else decided to legislate me into the winter ills."

"What about second-hand smoke?" I asked. "This is going to protect you from that. Actually, it's healthier for you to spend the winter outside smoking."

"Hey, if I want to sit in a smoke-filled room, that's my choice. Frankly, I like the smell of cigarettes."

I conceded defeat on his initial point. If we liked smoking it should be our choice to do so. To a certain extent, he had a valid argument about the smoke-filled room too.

"Okay," I said, "point made. Those are all your choices. Obviously the ban wasn't made to protect us from ourselves. Although I've noticed that I don't smoke as much since it began last Monday."

"Yeah right, Ted," Kilmee countered. "Every day I see you and plenty of other people smoking in the old smoking section of the Union Coffee Shop."

Embarrassed for being caught, I continued with my point. "The ban wasn't made to protect us from ourselves. It's to protect others from us. After all, you know where your right to swing your arm ends, right?"

"Yeah. And I'm beginning to resent that law too," he said. "Anyway, it's one thing to make us go outside, but it's another to humiliate us by sending us 20 feet away from all buildings. That's inane."

"Then don't do it. Very few people will complain as long as you're outside. More likely than not, that will be an unenforced rule. That part of the policy probably came about only to shut-up the anti-smoking extremists who fear that they'll get eye cancer from watching people smoke.

"What I don't understand, Winston, is why you didn't get so fired up about this when the policy was being formulated. Why wait until it's too late and the policy is in effect to state your views. I mean, that's as stupid as protesting the Gulf War only after it started."

Winston didn't know.

Ted Marcus is a UMass student.

WHAT TO TAKE FOR YOUR NEXT ALL-NIGHTER.

NO ANNUAL FEE,
A $1,000 CREDIT LINE,
AND NATIONWIDE ACCEPTANCE.
HOW'S THAT FOR AN EYE-OPENER?

IF YOU DON'T GOT IT, GET IT.SM

MEMBER NOVUS NETWORK ©1993 GREENWOOD TRUST COMPANY, MEMBER FDIC

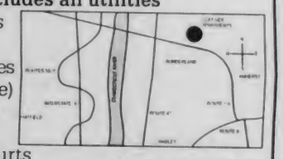
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840

RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles

*Bulk Rate Copies... OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

Germany

continued from page 1



increased immigration constitutes a dangerous influx of cheap labor which will damage class solidarity. There is a feeling that "when you have an unending, reserve [labor] army, you can break any union's back," said Ostendorf.

Ostendorf cited a need for Germans to begin accepting the increasingly diverse ethnic makeup of their nation as a way of demonstrating to the small number of Neo-Nazis that their views are unacceptable.

"What we need most of all is a post ethno-natural sense of citizenship," said Ostendorf. "We need a citizenship defined by the consent, not the descent of the government."

Judie's
"Why don't you get your own Mesquite Avocado Chicken Sandwich... I dont feel like sharing... Oh, and get your own Derby Pie too!..."
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S!"
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2
- 2 Bedroom Apartments Available Now
- Rents from $560 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts

Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

CELEBRATING 25 YEARS 1968-1993
THE PUB
Fun, Food & Spirits
Thursday - Friday - Saturday
DANCING
WITH
D.J. PETE FREE
Drink Specials

Stoli Sea Breeze
Absolut Sea Breeze
$2.75
Miller GD Draft
12 oz. Btl.
$1.50
Frozen Girl Scout Cookie
$2.75

ANY MENU NACHOS
$2.00
9:30 til 10:30
15 EAST PLEASANT-AMHERST

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE
All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
BUD, BUD Light, Bud Dry.....$7.40 12pk bottles
Michelob & Michelob Light...$7.99 12pk bottles
Lowenbrau.....$7.99 12pk bottles
Miller High Life.....$6.10 12pk cans $10.99 case cans
Catamount Amber & Porter....$4.69 6pk bottles
Fosters Lager.....$4.69 6pk bottles
Winter and X-Mas Beers Arriving Daily!
Gordon Pepper Vodka.....$5.99 liter
Absolut.....$12.99 1/5
Gosling Black Seal Rum.....$12.99
Rumple Minze 100°.....$7.99 375
Sutter White Zin 2 for.....$7.99
Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
Open 9 am - 11 pm
RTE 9E 338 College Street/253-5384
One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

ATTENTION GRADUATES

With the average help wanted ad attracting 400 responses, you need a resume that STANDS OUT.
Get a
Professionally Prepared Resume

Special UMass Price $19

$10 off regularly published price

Resume Package Includes:

- Artwork for one page resume, letterhead, & envelope
- Four laser copies of each on selected paper
- Special update coupon good for one year
- Choice of layouts & styles

Satisfaction Guaranteed

For a free resume style sheet and order form, call or write. To receive a Step-By-Step Resume Guide, send one dollar to cover postage and handling.

Marketing Services - Resume PRO
P.O. Box 60873, Dept. UM, Longmeadow, MA 01106

(413) 567-0361

poet

continued from page 2

Buffet at the end of August. Sign up sheets were posted for writers at the Fine Arts Center and the Student Union.

"Many students signed up to read. We were really excited about the turnout because this is our first reading," Bilyak said.

"There are a lot of students who write poetry, and this gives them a chance to share it," Bilyak said.

The buffet started at 7:30 p.m. and ended around 9 p.m. Over 70 students gathered in the small gallery. A reception was held afterwards.

The 12 students who read their poems were Larry Bortman, Caroline C. Lewis, Jonathan Gehman, Catarina Rodrigues, Banafshe Larijani, Timothy A. Westmoreland, Stacey Horne, Dan Shea, Katherine Karcz, John Feld, Audrey Petty and Carl Tillona.

Any questions about future events can be answered by calling the Residential Arts at 545-2804.

Shots

continued from page 12

• The famous UMass baseball assistant John "Oleg" Carelli a.k.a Perry Car-Elli(s) has decided to go into fashion design in order to create some neckwear worthy of the Cravat King contest. Surely what he's got now isn't cutting it.

• How could Danny Fortson not have enjoyed his visit to Amherst? Any 17- or 18-year-old kid who steps into Mullins is going to have basketball-sized eyes at the magnitude of it all. Fortson said he's still deciding between becoming a Minuteman, a Cincinnati Bearcat or a Michigan Wolverine. The kid is big and looks like a perfect fit for UMass.

• Who was the nut running around in Spandex and a blanket this past weekend in Piscataway?

• The Bruins have four wins, four losses and four ties and are sitting fourth in the Northeast Division. The old ticker can't handle this stuff like it used to.

• The NFL is investigating allegations that NBC, in an effort to save money, has been showing the same Patriots game for the past three years. In light of this, it is no longer necessary to watch these games.

• We've imposed a two month moratorium on discussing Butch Ball and/or the Red Sox. You would be best to follow suit.

• You kind of get the feeling that this is the year for UMass women's soccer.

• Keep your feet in bounds and your eyes on Vito.

David Scott is a Collegian columnist.

Scotts Turns Back the Savings!!

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon-Sat 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

NEW LOWER KEG DEPOSITS

Budweiser, Bud Light, Bud Dry 12 pk. bottles $6.99 + dep

Rolling Rock 12 pk. bottles $6.99 + dep

Budweiser Bud Light & Bud Dry ½ Kegs $39.99

No Permit Needed To Purchase Kegs

Michelob ½ Kegs $41.99 & Michelob Light
LOWEST KEG PRICES IN TOWN!

Sutter Home White Zinfandel $6.99 1.5 ltr

Columbia Crest Chardonnay $4.99 750 ml

Seagrams 7 1.75 ltr SALE PRICE $13.99 MAIL-IN REBATE $5.00 Final Cost $8.99

Tele-check for your personal check.

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!

6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst

We now have all Mass Lottery games!

QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spanning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

The Perfect Dinner Setting

Early Dinner Specials
Served nightly 5-7 p.m.

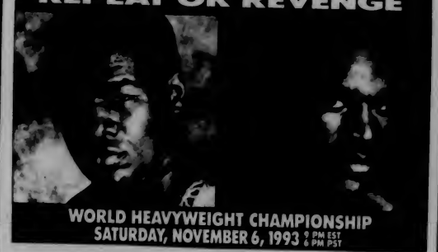
Baked Scrod and Stuffed Shrimp $9.95
A fresh filet of cod and two gulf shrimp, topped with beurre blanc sauce

Five Cheese and Vegetable Lasagna $7.95
With Fresh Marinara Sauce

Grilled Medallions of Turkey $8.95
Basted with an herbed vinaigrette and served with roasted fall vegetables

Veal Picatta $9.95
Tender veal cutlets sauteed with mushrooms, capers, and lemon butter sauce

Cajun Blackened Shrimp $9.95
Served with a zesty mustard lime sauce



All served with unlimited salad bar, rolls & butter, vegetable, potato or rice pilaf

Come Sample Our New Menu ...

SEASONS RESTAURANT
529 Belchertown Rd.
Rt.9, Amherst , 253-9909
Closed Mondays
Major Credit Cards Accepted

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

BOWE
HOLYFIELD
REPEAT OR REVENGE

WORLD HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1993 9 PM EST 6 PM PST

$6.00 Admission

University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

PSYCHIC EYES By ED SUTHERLAND

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Greatness is like Spam – it never goes bad."
– Dora
in 'I Married Dora'

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You find yourself the center of attention at work. New insights result from a candid conversation with someone you respect. Keep your politic al ideas to yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stay three steps ahead of the crowd and success will be yours. Your winning personality and quick wit make you popular with members of the opposite sex. Plan for the future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are breaking new ground now, so go slow. Outside forces favor a new relationship. Pay more attention to details and you will save an employer money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Keep an appointment with a doctor or dentist. A checkup could convince you to do some serious thinking about your lifestyle. Change what you do not like.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Meditation leads to greater self-knowledge. Doing business with a friend who has romantic intentions is not a good idea. A dream comes true. Celebrate with your favorite person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Hard work brings big gains now. Taking a realistic approach has paid off. Your creativity is at a peak. Make the most of it! Pay attention to a strong hint from a romantic partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Harmony on the home front puts you in a cheerful mood. Tackle projects you can best complete on your own. Put your best foot forward at a difficult meeting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep your emotions under control even if someone drops a bombshell. You need to clear up something on your family's past. Opt for comfort if decorating your home.

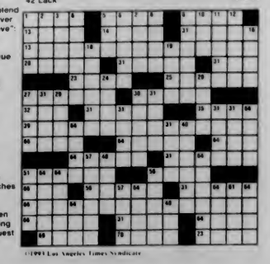
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): VIPs are more congenial than usual. An influential friend delivers on a promise. Your reputation shines, thanks to teamwork. Business and pleasure seems to mix nicely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Continue to work hard today even if authority figures do not seem to notice. Eventually, they will realize who is really indispensable. A romantic relationship enters a new stage.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You and your associates are in agreement about basic issues. A willingness to make intelligent concessions leads to rapid progress. Your intuition is right on target.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Harping on past mistakes could prove costly. Play down any areas of disagreement and emphasize your good will. Keep cool.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Poem pattern
5 Semitic deity
9 Pro —
13 Trunk of a tree
14 At liberty
15 One and all
17 Campus figures
20 Exhaust
21 Card game
22 0-0 or 10-10
23 Gaelic
25 Stamen part
27 Animal activist Brigitte
30 Upper reaches
32 White House sobriquet
33 Furlough
35 Relaxation
39 Campus bigwigs
43 "Roberta" composer
44 — nous
45 Filbert
46 Make — of oneself
49 Moses or Dorothy
51 Business blend
54 Brazilian river
55 "You — Love": song by 43 Across
56 Crying statue of myth
59 Crowd, in a saying
63 Advanced learning centers
66 Passover service
67 "Cheerio!"
68 American Beauty
69 Refuse
70 Reputation
71 Plato's arches

DOWN
1 Kindergarten song opening
2 Crummy guest
3 Nazimova
4 Misrepresented
5 Tom Hanks film
6 An Astaire
7 Moreover
8 Native Rigan
9 Fixed up
10 Half-Lat
11 Fraction
12 One of the Shaws
16 North Sea feeder
18 Matriculates
19 Beehive State
24 Footfall
26 Corner
27 Support
28 Competent
29 Kind of admiral
30 Happening
31 Teacher's surprise
34 War god
36 Part of AD
37 Amaze
38 Noble Italian family
40 Catch
41 La Douce
42 Lack
47 Want
48 Silkworm
50 Paxinarthritis
51 Hot-rod wheels
52 Made a mistake
53 The Cloister and the Hearth author
54 Trattoria sauce
57 Bismarck or Kruger
58 Necklace part
60 Cheer
61 Lanchester of films
62 Wind readings Abbr.
64 Lair
65 Sedan

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	E	M	P	O		D	I	A	L		S	C	A	M
H	A	I	R	S		E	L	B	A		O	R	L	E
A	R	L	E			C	O	O			M	A	I	L
I	N	A	S		C	L	V	I		S	A	C	C	O
		M	I	C	H	A	E	L	M	I	L	K	E	N
H	E	A	D	I	E	R		O	B	I
A	L	I	E	N		A	L	T	O		A	H	A	B
S	I	D		C	A	N	A	R	D		O	V	A
H	A	S	P		I	T	S	A		M	O	N	E	S
		A	R	R			S	H	I	N	E	R	S
A	T	A	S	T	E	O	F	H	O	N	E	Y
L	I	T	S		F	A	C	T		B	A	R
P	E	S	O		E	T	T	A		N	I	E	C	E
H	I	E	R		T	E	E	N		A	M	A	H	S
A	N	T	S		E	N	D	S		B	E	R	E	T

10/6/93

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Copy Editor.....Jake Nevala
Photo Technician.....Steve Pedulla
Production Supervisor.....Lisa Jezowski
Production.....Mike Stern, Andrew Davidson, Mike Carvalho, Flea Boy

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Top Your Own PIZZA!!	Roast Pork
	Cheese Lasgna
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Top Your Own PIZZA!!	Beans 'n' Rice
	Cheese Lasagna

WHOLESALE DEPOT

The Only Wholesale Club That Accepts

MasterCard VISA

Discover How Thousands of Your Classmates are Saving Money Everytime They Shop!

Whether it's groceries, fresh baked goods, fresh butcher cuts, dairy products, cleaning supplies, frozen foods, canned goods, paper supplies, CD's, televisions or stereos you are looking for-- you'll be amazed at the difference wholesale prices will make in your budget. You can stop chasing sales and start shopping wholesale prices everyday at Wholesale Depot!

You Don't Have To Be A Member to Check Out the Low, Low Prices on things you need everyday!

Wholesale Depot Accepts all Manufacturers Coupons and Food stamps

You Can Shop Wholesale Prices Too!
Conveniently located at the Mountain Farms Mall Route 9, Hadley
Warehouse Hours:
Monday-Friday 11 AM-9 PM
Saturday 9 AM-9PM
Sunday 12 PM-6 PM
Special Hours for Business Members
Mon., Wed., Fri. 9 AM-11 AM

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
for travel beginning November 1

	One Way	Roundtrip
LONDON	$140	$280
PARIS	$209	$418
AMSTERDAM	$195	$390
FRANKFURT	$209	$418
TOKYO		$769

Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Eurailpasses issued on the spot.
Customs, Immigration & departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student ID cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
GRANT DEADLINE FRIDAY, NOV. 19

Grants for:
•Visual Art & Design
•Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
•Film & Video
•Music
•Artistic components in multicultural programs

PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS

Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the Arts Council 101 Hasbrouck 545-0202

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS* OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

Information Data Bank
Where you need to go for what you need to know.
Call or visit IDB at Whitmore, 545-1565
Monday - Friday 8:30-6:00

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton / Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

Get Acquainted Special
$12.99 Reg. price $25.17
OIL & FILTER SERVICE SPECIAL*
HONDAS and 4CYL. ACURAS only
HONDA SureThing PARTS & SERVICE
*Offer good with this ad only. Expires 11-30-93
171 King Street Northampton HONDA 586-8626
COUPON

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

Five College Science and Technology Fair

Wednesday, November 10, 1993

3:00 - 6:30 p.m.

Albert Einstein College of Medicine•Dana Farber Cancer Institute•Geo-centers, Inc.•Keane, Inc.•Manomet Bird Observatory•New England Aquarium•Immunogen Inc.•, Par Exel International Corp.• Unilever Research U.S. ETC

Amherst College
Campus Center, Front Room

Explore internships and full-time employment opportunities

Bring Your Resumes!!

ATTENTION LADIES
Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Are Only at Anthony's"
PRESENTS
1st Ever Amateur Contest
Begins Sunday Nov. 7 • Every Sunday for 10 Weeks
1st PRIZE $300
GRAND PRIZE $1000
Cash Prizes plus a photo shoot w/the "Famous" Warren Tang
Opens @ 4pm • Starts @ 9pm
LADIES: For More Info Call 1-800-358-0502
—COMING ATTRACTIONS—
Nov. 18-20 SAVANNAH
Nov. 29-Dec. 4 VICTORIA PARIS
Sun-Tues 4pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5
left on Rt. 33, turn right across from BigY (413) 536-0502

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Computer BBS
Tons of games, applications, pictures and utilities. Message areas, and 50+ multi-player on-line games!
Set your TAU to 19,200 bps - ANSI-BN1 & dial 3-6461.

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Free Condoms
Listen to WOCH Thurs. 12-3 pm

Spectrum, the Fine Arts and literary magazine of UMass, is now accepting submissions of art, photos, prose, and poetry. Hand deliver to 409E Student Union, above Credit Union. Students are also invited to join any of these four staffs to help critique submissions. 545-2240

The UMass Theatre Guild presents Black Comedy by Peter Sheffer
Nov. 4 & 8 pm, Nov. 7 2 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Opens Tonight!
777's Call 545-0415

AUTO FOR SALE

1985 Mercury Lynx 60000 miles 546-6279

1985 Chrysler LeBaron GTS. Hatchback, powerblocks, windows/cruise/AM/FM/Tape deck, very reliable, needs new tires. 1500/Eric 253-0744

86 Chevy Cavalier new motor plus more! $1200. '77 Saab "as is" $250. '70 Cadillac antique Deville $2000. 665-7114/531-9027 24 hours

1986 Ford Escort
$950 Neg.
546-3793

1989 Honda CRX, Excellent condition, $6000 or BO, Call (413)773-9720 after 6 pm.

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 548-1482

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

FOR RENT

1 bedroom Apt. All utilities. Available immediately. Stephanie 665-2947

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

FOR SALE

Beautiful Mermaid style wedding dress and veil, new never worn, Pd. $1200 asking $750 size 8 Pearl White call 732-2683.

Billy Joel Tickets for sale cheap. Sunday 11/07 at the Centrum 516-797-7469

Famous Sports, film, comic characters lifesize stand-ups $20. See gigantic display Poor Boyz, Sunderland Center Weekendz only 24 hours "Everything"

Full Size Bed/Boxspring $60
Wicker Shelving $10
Kitchen Table $8
TV Table $5
End Table $3
Call Melissa at 256-8570

HP48SX, 11-95 Scientific
Programmable calculators.
Extra features. Cheap!
Jay 585-0780

Microwave, 800 watt, 0.8 cubic feet, turntable, digital keypad, in near perfect condition, $100 call Sean at 256-6135 after 12:00

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition - Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Native American Bone/horn Chokers, bracelets for sale. All hand-made from deer, bone/horn. Will make any color, size, or length. Choker or bracelet. For info contact kahon:wes at 546-5794

Roundtrip Peter Pan Bus ticket to NY $40 546-0938

Top of the line Sony Discman
Good condition - ton of features
Call Mark 6-5093

HELP WANTED

College Students 1 1/2 Hrs: $25
NES is seeking college students considering teaching careers! (rs, ers, and grad students) in the fields below to take sample tests. English, History, and Math. Nov. 9, 1993 at the Newman Center, N Pleasant St. Amh. Any 1 1/2 hrs 9-5:30. $25 per test. If interested, bring student ID and #2 pencils. Pre-registration not necessary.

Cruise Ships Now Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Experienced Babysitter w/own transportation needed. Off-campus area. Fri., Sat., or Sun. Susan 625-2598

Get up, Stand up work on Clean Water Action's campaign: Toughening pollutionlaws, recycling, stopping NAFTA. Activists wanted flexible scheduling for students. $150-300 per week. Need work over break start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling.
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-7306

Travel Free!! Spring Break
Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, & Padre! Sell "Professional" tour packages! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1-800-426-7710

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender Days/evenings - one week! Placement Assistence. Boston Bartenders School. 1855 Main St. Springfield, MA 01103. 747-9888. Call now for Nov. end Dec. classes. Special student rates available!

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Classes start Nov. 10th, at 7 pm in Campus Center room #811. For registration info call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOST

Backpack. Dark Blue Eastpack lost in/near Franklin. Bum/red out - need notebooks desperately. Any info call 6-0429

Gloves lost! Black, above the wrist, winter gloves lost on campus. Reward for their return or info leading to the return. I need these. Please call 256-3480 leave message if no answer.

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the "Minuteman and Proud!" t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to "LexiCon Productions" to: P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

Music Equipment
Fender Jazz Bass mint $400
Fender Bassman Tube Head $250
Bassman 2x15 Cab $100 w/head $75
Fender power Chorus, sweetone, mint $500
Call Matt 546-1900

PERSONALS

Darcie Bishop
Happy 21st Birthday!
You are the Best!!
Love
Heather and Kelly

Dear Leigh
Happy Anniversary
I'm having fun.
I love you
Let's spend the evening together
Love
Your Hugga Bugga Bunny Boo

Happy Birthday Victor
I love you and I miss you Tatonka
Love Chris
PS: Happy Birthday Victor. Love Kathy

Hey 4th Floor Lawie
You guys are the best!
Christine

Hey Vinnie! Surprise!
Just wanted to say hi
And that I love you!
Have a great day
Love,
No Doubt

Jessica: Welcome to APO. Looking forward to a great Fall semester with a great little. Love, Your Big Brother, Jane

Kara

Have a great day

Love,
Eric

P.S. Smile =)

Katie
This semester's been great!
Hold on to the memories
In Sigma Love
Your Big Sis
Darie

Lorrie
Welcome to Sigma Kappa!

Get Psyched!

The fun hes only just begun.
In Sigma Love!
Your Big Sis
Ellen

Meg
You mean more to me than ever
I told you I'd do it
Love You Tim

Mer - You're the BEST! Thanks for being my friend. Hang in there! Elle

NOVEMBER STUDS

Paul Shawn Rob
Congratulations! You guys are legal!
Well.....almost legal
It's about time!
From your older woman

The Buffalo Wings/Rafters Crew
Thanks for making my 22nd
B Day memorable...my hangover won't be easily forgotten!
Love Julee
(Lee, Steve, Felice, Pam
We missed you!)

RIDE NEEDED

To Rhode Island
Thursday, Nov 11
I'll be eternally grateful
546-0120

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village. 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Attention for anyone who has ever felt physically threatened. Quorum International offers the amazing PAAL. The personal attack alarm, a pocketful of protection that is inexpensive
413-739-7893

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO 428 Student Union or call 545-0865 SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Spring 1994 Internships with the Legal Services Center, get hands on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

SUE B.

You are the only one who really understands me. Will you marry me? I promise to deal with the flypaper!
Love Sue T

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov. 19-21 Killington Weekend $99
Winter Break Ski Week Killington
Jan. 16-21 $275 sign up today at Con course table or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Type/edit papers $1.50/pg. Tanya 549-5519

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

WANTED

For anti-drug video program: People who have stopped (or never started) using drugs to discuss attitudes they've formed, the alternatives they've found. John, 549-0638

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1 800 942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

To rent a room near campus. Preferrably in Amherst. Call 546-6730

WANTED TO RENT

2 Bedroom Apt. /house in Hadley only. Late Dec./early Jan. 549-5640

Coming soon! The Collegian's Weekend Sports Extra! Watch for it!

Sports

Minutewomen end regular season on high note

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD — If you were looking for a tight, closely contested matchup between the University of Massachusetts field hockey team and its counterpart from Springfield College, forget it.

This one was over quicker than a Tommy Morrison title fight.

The No. 6 Minutewomen (16-3) scored just 46 seconds into the game and never looked back coasting to a 5-0 victory.

Massachusetts	5
Springfield College	0

"We really came out on fire," said Massachusetts Coach Pam Hixon. "We wanted to get on them. We didn't want to give Springfield any confidence."

Freshman Kyle Rothenberger tallied her sixth game-winning goal of the year with the game not even one minute old. Rothenberger blasted a shot past Maroon goalkeeper Stacey Forish on an assist from junior forward Danielle Borges, who passed up a wide open shot of her own to dish it to Rothenberger.

Borges was rewarded for her unselfish play at 6:02 when she took a pass from junior midfielder Colleen Duffy and put it past Forish for a 2-0 Minutewoman lead.

Senior co-captain Tara Jelley scored unassisted for Massachusetts a minute-and-a-half later, at 7:41, and the rout was on.

The Minutewomen would add one more before the intermission at 18:58 when senior forward Jenn Salisbury scored on a feed from Duffy, who would end up with two assists on the evening.

Borges closed out the scoring for Massachusetts midway through the second half, at 57:50, on an assist from her line-mate Jelley. For Borges, last night was her most productive game of the season as she finished with two goals and one assist.

"It was good to see Danielle get on track," said Hixon. "It will help her feel much better about her game."

Hixon was then able to go to her bench and give sophomores Kerry Metelski and Streya Volla some much-needed playing time.

"Streya and Kerry always do a very good job coming off the bench," Hixon said. "They're strong and smooth. Played Kerry in the midfield a little bit which is a switch for her and it was great to get Streya in — she's big and strong and has good movement around the ball."

Last night's game was the final regular season for the Minutewomen, who head to Philadelphia this weekend for the Atlantic 10 tournament, where they are the No. 1 seed.

"This was a great game for us," Borges said. "We haven't been playing together as a team the last few games, but tonight I thought we played a really good passing game, which will give us some confidence heading into the tournament this weekend."

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team traveled to Springfield last night. The Minutewomen defeated Springfield College 5-0 to wrap up their regular season.

Last fanatic awakened after nap at Mullins

Officials over at Mullins have just woken the last fan remaining from Midnight Madness. An hour is just too long.

• Those same officials are also trying to release the microphone from John Calipari's grip. They'll have to wait until the first week in April.

• Hockey in the Mullins wasn't as crazy as hoops in the Mullins, but it was a special night despite the Governor's presence. As chancellor, I figured I'd welcome him to Amherst. He was a bit upset when I asked for a raise during the second period. Thought he would say this:

The Collegian's Own SCOTT'S SHOTS

"I'm a rabid hockey fan," said the Guv. "My wife says I look like a big redwood on skates."

Deadwood perhaps.

• Cousin Bill, the very man who showed me the light of Celtic Fandom and Religion, has let it be known that no one on the Green is safe from being traded.

"I hate to say it Davey, but if they can get rid of Parish to a contender and bring in a couple of young guys, they've got to do it," said Bill the Thrill. "Sure you want all of the Big Three to end it in Boston, but you've got to look to the future."

Cousin Bill: more than just The Shirl's nephew.

• Speaking of The Shirl, she wants to know if Mike Hodge's boys are really as nice as they come across in the papers and on television.

"They're so well spoken and poised, they must have nice mothers, too," she said.

The Shirl: watching your children when you can't be around.

• The Northeastern win wasn't a thing of beauty, but for sheer post-game emotion it would be hard to top — that goes for Division I all the way down. Hugging, crying, smiling, high-fiving, it was tremendous.

• Oompa. I couldn't just quit cold turkey.

(Editor's note: For those who have no idea what that one meant, you're not alone. We're beginning to think Scott was inhaling Zamboni fumes or took a puck to the head at the hockey game.)

• Will Herndon's got to have some eligibility left.

• You've got to give some credit to Brian Gorman for the job he did with this year's T-shirts. As the hoop team has risen, so has Stormin' Gorman.

• I've gotten this far without mentioning the Patriots so why ruin it now.

Turn to SHOTS, page 8

Volleyball breaks losing streak

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team broke a four-game losing streak Tuesday night when they defeated Vermont on the road, 3-1.

The victory improved the Minutewomen's overall record to 11-12, as the continue to play right around the .500 mark for the season. Unfortunately for the Minutewomen, their all-important Atlantic 10 record is not as sturdy and stands at 2-8.

UMass had lost a must-win match against a weaker Rutgers team at home on Saturday which sent its record down closer towards the bottom of the eight A-10 teams.

As the season comes closer and closer to an end, the Vermont victory could not have been more timely. With a series of important games on the rise, the Minutewomen needed to stop their losing skid. UMass will hope to gain some momentum from this victory and translate it into some conference wins in an attempt to gain a bid to the A-10 tournament.

UMass managed to beat Vermont mainly through its offensive performance. UMass took the first game 15-10, then lost the next 15-10. The Minutewomen then took control for the remainder of the night posting a close 15-11 win and finished out the match with a powerful 15-5 victory.

Susan Maga lead the team in kills collecting 20, Dionne Nash and Rachel Sky also collected big kill numbers with 16 each. Sky also contributed a team-high seven digs and six total blocks to help the UMass defense which has been troubled of late. Sky leads the Minutewomen with 250 digs and is always a big factor in the UMass defense.

UMass setter Cass Anderson turned in another consistent performance with 51 assists for the match. Anderson has 879 assists on the season and is averaging just under 10 assists per game.

The Minutewomen return to action this weekend when they host A-10 foes West Virginia Friday at 7 p.m. and St. Bonaventure Saturday at 4 p.m. at the Curry Hicks Cage. Admission is free.

The games are two of the last four A-10 match-ups the Minutewomen have and will prove to be a large factor in whether or not UMass makes the A-10 tournament which begins Nov. 19. Only the top six of eight teams make the A-10 tournament and the winner of the tournament secures a spot in NCAA Tournament.

Gymnastics gets admirable grades

The University of Massachusetts gymnastics squads were honored this past week by the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches for their academic achievements.

The Minutewomen, led by new Coach David Kuzara, were topped by junior Erica Baum, who posted a 3.7 grade point average last spring. Junior Gina Demeo earned a 3.53 GPA and senior Margaret Furtado got a 3.51 GPA, gaining All-America honors.

For the Minutemen, junior Stuart Backer received 3.73 GPA last semester.

As far as the teams go, both the men's and women's squads were ranked in the nation's Top 20. The Minutemen, coached by Roy Johnson, were ranked No. 7 nationally, with a cumulative GPA of 3.059.

The Minutewomen checked in at 20th nationally with a 3.060 GPA.

"This is a real tribute to those athletes," said Kuzara. "They make a tremendous sacrifice to be able to balance academics and athletics and be positive members of the University community.

"This means a whole lot to our program. Academics is our No. 1 priority, gymnastics is a close second."

Last season, Tammy Marshall, who has graduated from both UMass and the Minutewomen, gained both academic and athletic honors from the Atlantic 10.

— ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.

STUDENT TICKET EXCHANGE SCHEDULE
FOR MEN'S BASKETBALL AND HOCKEY

Pick up Dates	Hockey Game Dates	Basketball Game Dates
11-4-93	11-6 Worcester St. 11-12 Iona 11-13 Fitchburg St.	—
11-11-93		11-18 Cleveland State ($5.00 NIT Admission)
11-18-93	11-23 Amherst College
11-25-93	11-30 Trinity
12-2-93	12-7 New England	12-9 Central CT College 12-15 Intl Exhibition
12-7-93	12-30 Gustavus Adolphus 1-7 Colby 1-9 Salem State 1-25 R.I.T.	—

THIS WEEKEND

November 4–7

The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five College Area

BLACK COMEDY

BY HENRY BRIER
COLLEGIAN CORRESPONDENT

Tonight, the University of Massachusetts Theatre Guild will make its Fall 1993 debut with Black Comedy, written by Peter Shaffer.

The entire crew for this production totals 30. They have all worked very closely together by combining their time and energy for the past six weeks. The effort is spearheaded by director Lyle Dennett, production manager Don Medeiros and stage manager Carrie Lawrence, all of whom provide guidance for the eight member cast.

"I've seen a lot of good stuff happen out here," Lawrence said. "We all clicked from the beginning. It's a small enough crew that we all know everybody else. It has been a great way to make lasting friendships."

"The Theatre Guild really stresses a fun filled learning environment," added Medeiros. "As a result of this amazing process, I'd say it has already been a success."

The setting is London in the '60s. The comedy is cast oriented, so there is no lead role. The plot, sprinkled with slapstick humor, revolves among each of the play's characters.

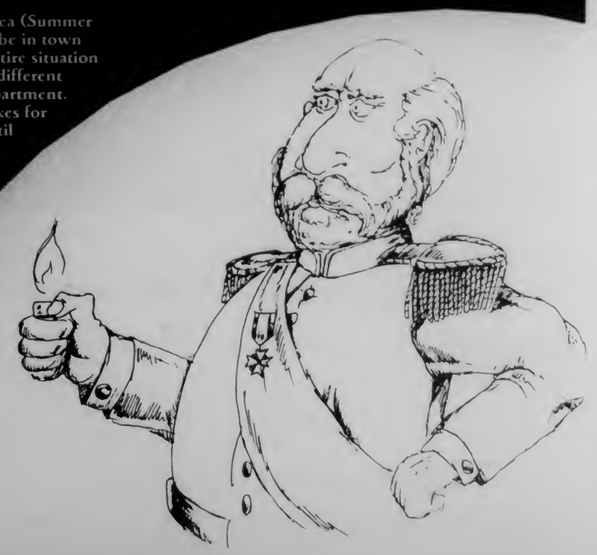
Brindsley Miller (Danny Pezzotta), a struggling artist, is at his apartment with his fiancee, Carol Melkett (Nancy Alpert). They have borrowed/stolen selected furniture and valuables from Harold Gorringe (Rob Noyes), Miller's neighbor and antique dealer, in an attempt to impress two unexpected guests. George Bamberger (Ben Courtney), an elderly millionaire, art collector and recipient of Miller and Melkett's efforts to impress, will hopefully purchase some of Miller's masterpieces. The second unexpected guest is Colonel Melkett (Ethan Fairbank), who it is hoped will approve of his daughter marrying Miller.

As the story becomes more complicated, Clea (Summer Litwin), Miller's ex mistress, just happens to be in town and she wants to see her ex lover. Top this entire situation off with one power outage, during which, at different instances, all characters converge upon the apartment. Each visit, coupled with the lack of light, makes for sheer disorder. The lights are not restored until Schuppanzigh (Adrian Macias), of the Electricity Board's Night Service, finally has the time to solve the problem.

In two and a half weeks, the cast helped build the set, piece by piece, segment by segment. The crew did not see the finished product until Monday night, just three days before opening night. Upon seeing the fruits of their labor, their exclamations marked their surprise and their amazement.

"The set is just beautiful," said Fairbank, rather ethereally. "It's enthralling to see the work we've put into this show come to life. It's all coming together."

Although the cast got along nicely, they did have some difficulties which were positively regarded as learning and growing experiences. All agreed that the hard and trying times were used beneficially.



"We've had a few obstacles which helped us," claimed Alpert. "The communication got us through, and it definitely brought us closer."

"This has been a challenge," said Dennett, who is making his directing debut. "A ton of work, time and hours. The crew and cast have been really good to work with. In every play produced, you have got to learn to work through the tension. And we have all adjusted very well.

"Pleasure and nervousness have been building up. We are all well rehearsed, so we're in a good spot. I've often felt like the coach preparing his team for the big game. But I think we'll be fine. We're at the point now where we are ready for an audience," he said.

Black Comedy opens tonight at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. There will be performances Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m., with a finale Sunday, Nov. 7 at 2 p.m.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office or at the door, and are $4 students, $6 general admission.

From Hillbillies to Malice: movies on review

Compiled by JON LUPO and ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

The Age of Innocence — Don't believe the bad hype. Martin Scorsese depicts a euphoric struggle between society and individuality, desire and repression. Don't expect grand gestures or weepy cliches; Scorsese and Co. are more interested in the intricacies of subtlety. Daniel Day-Lewis and Michelle Pfieffer star, with surprisingly mature supporting work by Winona Ryder. Not a date movie, folks. A

The Beverly Hillbillies — Lightning may not strike twice for Wayne's World director Penelope Spheeris, but with her latest comic confection she once again dredges the American trash-culture river bed and produces a sometimes enjoyable comedy. While the performances are a hit or miss affair, It's the film's focus on "the little story about a man named Jed" (as portrayed by Jim Varney) that adds heart to the film. You'll laugh but feel guilty as well. B-

Dazed and Confused — Richard Linklater's cooly sarcastic follow-up to 1991's Slacker takes place on the last day of school in 1976 Texas, following a half-dozen students from the final bell to a killer keg party that night. Often hilarious and always revealing, Dazed has a lot to say about the '70s but a lot more to say about today. A-

Demolition Man — L.A. goes ultra PC in this futuristic Stallone-Snipes battle royale. Director Marco Brambillia orchestrates the mayhem, but it's Daniel Waters' script lambasting the '90s from a future vantage that is the true star of the film. You thrill to the explosives while laughing at them as well. B+

Farewell My Concubine — Chen Kaige's glorious epic covers over 50 years in this grand tale of two men trained as opera singers in 1920s Beijing. Desire, passion and political entanglements complicate. Small flaws with continuity and characterization do not diminish the film's scope, beauty or power. A-

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Michelle Pfeiffer and Daniel Day-Lewis share a romantic moment in The Age of Innocence.

The Good Son — "The most unexpected thriller of the year" — for the preschool generation. Director Joseph Ruben and choirboy Macaulay Culkin perpetrate the most sinister domestic assault, grabbing and subsequently slashing at hearts earned in previous cinematic Mac attacks. Elijah Wood is the true "Good Son" of the title. B

The Joy Luck Club — This weepy, overblown study in pathos overkill is a relentlessly morose movie experience. The eight narrator structure breeds redundancy — by the third or fourth story it becomes a perverse game of "Guess My Tragic Past" for the mother and "What's My Resulting Neuroses" for the daughters. Not fun. C

Judgement Night — Owing a large debt to Walter Hill's inner city suspense machine Trespass, Emilio Estevez grabs the action hero reigns as he battles Denis Leary's ranting monologues and menacing goons. It's all been done before and Emilio with a gun is hardly the stuff that box-office receipts are made of. D

Malice — Preposterously entertaining to the point of near-parody, this mystery-thriller filmed in Noho and Amherst is never more than the sum of its whodunit conventions. Alec Baldwin's menacing surgeon, complete with his made for trailer "I am God" speech, mows over co-stars Nicole Kidman and a bland Bill Pullman. Don't take a minute of it seriously, and you're in for a twist-filled ride. B-

Tim Burton's The Nightmare Before Christmas — A fractured Christmas fairy tale featuring a hostile takeover of the yuletide by an army of ghouls and ghosts dazzles with stop-motion animation and finds heart in the cold soul of Pumpkin King Jack Skellington. A mixture of Charles Addams' Gothic and schoolboy grossout, the film is a cinematic stocking filled with all things naughty and nice. B+

Rock Hudson's Home Movies — Absorbing videofilm where clips from Hudson movies are taken out of context and mined for their gender clues and embedded homoeroticism. Validity is in the eye of the beholder, but director Mark Rappaport makes an affecting and amusing case out of Hollywood's acute homophobia. B+

Rudy — Cornball melodrama played so straight even the filmmakers don't describe the movie as "sentimental." This is the true-life (eh-hem) story of a kid whose impossible dream is to play football for Notre Dame. Cynical-types forewarned: the cliches pile up faster than you can say 'sappy.' C

PIER 9
DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
Sm Coffee & Buttered Bagel for $1.00 all day
10% Discount with ad

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling
Continuous Exotic Dancing!
Now Open!
Holyoke's Hottest New Night Spot
Race St. Dub
★ Rte. 202 to Rte. 141 East to 268 Race St. ★
Open Mon-Wed 4p.m. til 1:30 a.m.
Thur-Sat 12p.m. til 2 a.m. 532-1422
Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Every Monday GAY NIGHT! DJ Steve
Every Thursday UMASS NIGHT!
Every Saturday The Area's Biggest Dance Night
Book Your Christmas Party Now!!
Upcoming Events
Nov. 6 AIDS BENEFIT Battle of the Bands
Nov. 12 Larger Than Life Productions Dance Party free shuttle from horseshoe
Dec. 3 70's Party with a 90's Twist M & M Productions
• 18+ Always
• 5 Minutes from UMASS
• Call to book your team/organization's private party! We can hold over 600 people in the club
• We are looking for UMASS Bands to participate in a National Showcase Competition.
Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

The Collegian
545-3500

August the First
Come See Our New Inventory
20% off
Semi-Precious Strands and all Loose Beads
Fri 5th & Sat 6th
Hours Extended Friday Open Until 9pm

1/2 Price Tickets for 5 College Students
BALLET NACIONAL DE CARACAS
Experience the electrifying power of this superb Latin classical ballet company in an extravagantly gorgeous production of Firebird!
Sunday, November 7, 7pm
Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Presented with the generous support of the Daily Hampshire Gazette.
Call 545-2511 for information.
"Right in your own backyard!"
THE FINE ARTS CENTER

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.
Genuine Draft & Draft Light $10.99 case bottles
(Quantity Discounts Available)
Molson Golden/Foster Lager $7.99 12/pk. bots.
Fetzer Sundial Cardonay $4.99 750 ml.
Narragansett Lager $6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW! $7.29 case
New! NOW IN STOCK! New!
Sam Adams Winter Lager
Harpoon Winter Warmer
Becks reg. or dark $4.99 6/pk. bots.
Bud Dry Bottles $11.99 cse.
Concha y Toro red/white $4.99 1.5 liter
All Beer plus Deposit
Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits • Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)
Delivery Available

WEEKEND HAPPENINGS

The Weekend Happenings calendar is printed each Thursday during the academic year. Groups wishing to have an event published may send a press release containing all necessary information to the Arts & Living Editor, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian regrets that, due to space constraints, not all submissions can be published.

THURSDAY

PERFORMANCE — The Firesign Theater will bring its "Illusion of Unity Tour" to the Mullins Center. Best described as "Theater of the Mind," or thinking person's comedy, the Firesign Theater is calling all hippies from the '60s to come to the show and dig up old memories of the old college days. Show time is 8 p.m. Tickets are $22.25 and $27.25. Call all TicketMaster Locations and the Mullins Center Box Office for tickets, 545-3001.

EXHIBIT — "The Anxious Artists Series: Making Art, Making a Living" will present the work of Philip Sirois, Vivienne Koorland, Gina Occhiogrosso and Louis Pepe. The artists will be present to show their work, share their fears, tell the truth and reveal intimate secrets about the art world and their lives. This exhibit will take place from 7 to 10:30 p.m., Fine Arts Center, room 444, UMass. Admission is free.

EXHIBIT — There will be an opening reception between 5 and 7 p.m. for "Shirazeh Houshiary: Turning Around the Centre," an exhibition of recent sculpture and drawings which is the first museum exhibit of Houshairy's work in America. Also in exhibition will be "Vija Clemins: Printed Matter," a selection of approximately twenty prints. These exhibits will be at the University Gallery, UMass, until Dec. 17. Admission is free.

FESTIVAL — Smith College will celebrate International Students Day with international food, music and dance as well as vendors selling jewelry, crafts and clothing from all over the world. To be held at Scott Gymnasium, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is fifty cents.

CONCERT — The Mt. Holyoke College Club Night will feature the Antonio Hart Jazz quintet with special guest, The Rod Rodgers Dance Company and comediennes Teddy Smith and Leighann Lord. Held at Cahpin Auditorium, 7:30 p.m. Admission is $7 which includes food, $3 without.

CONCERT — The Amherst College Choral Society will present its annual Parent's Weekend Concert at 8:30 p.m., Buckley Recital Hall. Tickets are $5 for general admission, $2 for elders and children under 12. Reservations can be made by calling 542-2484.

CONCERT — Pearl Street, Northampton, will present Merl Sanders and The Rainforest Band. This show is 18+ and begins at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $9 at the door. For more information call 586-8686.

COMEDY — Georgia Ragsdale, who gave a performance at the Northampton Pride March this year, will be at the Northampton Center for the Arts. Show time is at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 at the door. For more information call 587-7282.

CONCERT — The Black Sheep Cafe will present Jill Stein and Ken Selcer performing Boston Folk music. 8 p.m., admission is $3.

Celestino Garcia, Jonathan Carr, Lisa Gourd and Deanna Fleysher in the production of "A Servant of Two Masters," being performed November 4th-6th at 8 p.m. in the Kirby Theater at

FRIDAY

THEATER — The UMass Theater Guild will present Black Comedy. Written by Peter Shaffer, whose well-known works include Equus and Amadeus, Black Comedy, a British farce, derives its humor from eccentric characters and bizarre circumstances. Show time is 8 p.m. tonight and also Nov. 5 and 6. Show time on Nov. 7 is 2 p.m. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office or at the door. Students $4, general admission $6. For more information call 545-0415.

CONCERT — Fredric Cohen and Jeff Holmes, as well as numerous guest artists, will join in a collaborative performance titled "Ballads, Bebop, and Beyond: An Evening of Jazz and Contemporary American Music." Tickets may be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511. Reservations are suggested.

THEATER — A Servant of Two Masters, newly translated from Carlo Goldoni's "Il Servitore Di Due Padrone," will be presented by the Amherst College Department of Theater and Dance. Blending the traditions of commedia and silent film, Servant is known as one of the most popular comedies of all time. Show time is 8 p.m., Kirby Theater, Amherst College. Admission is free; reservations are suggested. For more information call 542-2277. Also showing Nov. 5 and 6.

CONCERT — The Black Sheep Cafe, located at 79 Main St., Amherst, will present The Gutterbirds with Jim Armenti and Pan Morrigan playing folk rock. 8 p.m. Admission is $3.

Ballet Nacional de Caracas (left) will perform at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall on Sunday, November 7 at 7 p.m.

Jeff Holmes (right) brings new meaning to American music on Thursday, November 4, at 8 p.m., in Bezanson Recital Hall.

SATURDAY

CONCERT — Salamander Crossing, playing bluegrass and swing, will play at the Green River Cafe, Greenfield. Tickets are $6 and show time is 9 p.m. For more information call 773-8655.

CONCERT — The Iron Horse Music Hall, Northampton, will present the Wholesale Klezmer Band, featuring new and traditional Yiddish music. Tickets are $6.50 in advance and $8 at the door. Doors open for dinner at 5:30, music starting at 7 p.m. For tickets and information call 586-8666.

CONCERT — The Black Sheep Cafe will feature Lyn Hardy and the Nohemians, playing country rock, at 8 p.m. Admission is $3.

SUNDAY

CONCERT — Michael Hedges will be at the Iron Horse, Northampton. Hedges plays folk guitar and his latest Windham Hill release is titled Taproot. Tickets are $20 in advance at the Northampton Box Office, 586-8686. Showtime is 7 p.m.

CONCERT — The Hartford Jazz Society will present the Archie Shepp Quartet, 7 p.m., at the Ramada Hotel, located on E. River Dr., East Hartford, Ct. For more information call (203)242-6088.

CONCERT — The UMass Chamber Choir, Madrigal Singers & Women's Choir will present "Music and the Animal Kingdom," 4 p.m., Grace Episcopal Church, Amherst.

DANCE — The Ballet Nacional de Caracas, with Vincente Nebrada as artistic director, will perform at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, 7 p.m. UMass. Tickets begin at $13, half price for Five College students. For tickets and more information, call 545-2511.

UMASS STUDENTS
ON THE 10*, 14 or 19 MEAL PLAN

Take a Break From the D.C.
Any Mon - Sat (4:30 - 9:00)

Have Dinner at the TOC Instead!

Just Bring Your UMASS ID & Receive a $3.00 Credit on any Dinner Selection. (excluding appetizers)

Free non-alcoholic beverage included throughout November
*Mon-Fri only. Butterfield Residents not eligible.

All UMASS Students Receive a 20% Discount on any Menu Item with a Valid Student ID (may not be combined with any other offer)

The Top of The Campus Restaurant

11th Floor Campus Center
545-3216

Lunch Mon-Fri 11:30am-2:00pm
Dinner: Mon-Sat 4:30-9:00pm

◆ Fatal

continued from page 8

Still, that is a small price to pay for a film that presents America from a largely objective vantage. Although Codrescu has lived in the United States for 30 years, he was an immigrant so he has a basis of comparison as far as his vision of the country is concerned.

Road Scholar is both an affectionate tribute and scathing indictment of a country steeped in the spiritual yet mired in the commercial. In essence, it is a road worth traveling. B+ (Pleasant St. Theater)

ART THAT IS UNIQUE TO SELF INFORMS OTHERS

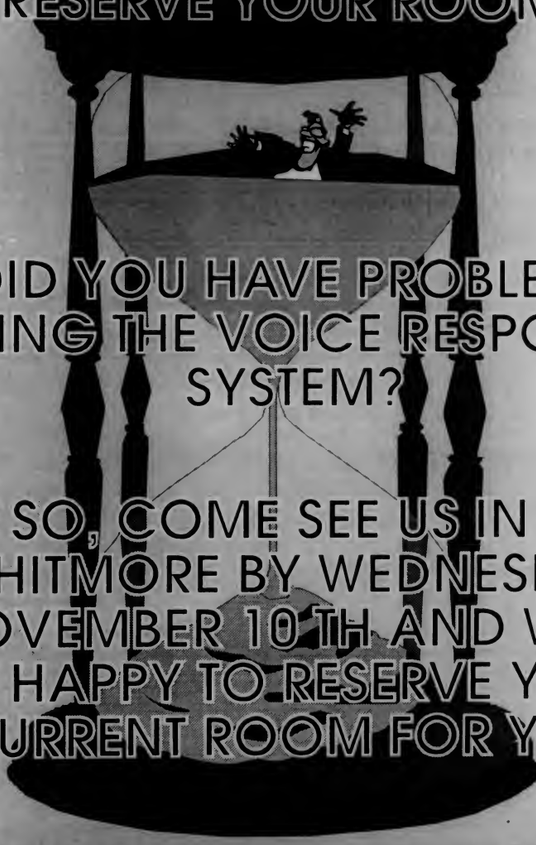
Putting Imagination to Work MAKE A DIFFERENCE Make it Happen on Campus

ASK THE ARTS COUNCIL FOR SUPPORT

Next Grant DEADLINE:NOVEMBER 19
Guidelines/Applications 545-0202
ARTS COUNCIL Office 103 Hasbrouck

Visit our CCConcourse Table November 4.

TWISTERS TAVERN
30 Boltwood Walk
253-2663



This Weekend:

THURS.	COORS Lite Night - Prizes - T-Shirts Disco Hell with DJ Bob
FRI.	Dancing with DJ Bob .99¢ Wings 4-7pm
SAT.	The Tainted Bitter Band 10pm Post Game Party 1/2 price appetizers (4-7pm)

Call 253-2663 For More Information

BEER of the month COORS Lite only $1.50
Drink of the week: Vodka and Tonic only $1.75

DID YOU FORGET TO RESERVE YOUR ROOM?

DID YOU HAVE PROBLEMS USING THE VOICE RESPONSE SYSTEM?

IF SO, COME SEE US IN 235 WHITMORE BY WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10TH AND WE'LL BE HAPPY TO RESERVE YOUR CURRENT ROOM FOR YOU.

IF YOU WANT TO RESERVE A DIFFERENT ROOM IN YOUR BUILDING CONTACT YOUR CLUSTER OFFICE WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17TH DURING ANNOUNCED HOURS. THANK YOU.

Pearl Street

DANCE CLUB

▼ Wednesday ▲
GAY NIGHT MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
11/10-Country/Western Dancing
7:00-9:30pm

• Thursday–WHMP •
EIGHTEEN & OVER DANCING
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
WHMP's Nick Danger broadcasting Live
Free Pizza Courtesy of Nini's

• Friday •
DANCING WITH DJ PETE D.
Playing More Top 40 Music
Look for Jammin' DJ's from Areas College Radio Stations
Listen To WHMP In The Morning For Your Chance To Win An Office Party

• Saturday •
The Areas Biggest & Best
SATURDAY NIGHT DANCE PARTY
with DJ Pete D.
Playing more Top 40 Music
Every Saturday at 8:00pm
THE DATING GAME
Presented by Introductions Dating Service and WHMP
October Drink Specials
12oz. Budweiser Draft $1.00
Coors Light $2.00
Jose Cuervo Gold $2.00
Limousine Service Courtesy of Michaels Limousine, 533-8470

LIVE MUSIC

Thurs., Nov 4-9:00pm/18+
Alternative Industrial
Dance Party

Fri. Nov 5-8:30pm/18+
MERL SAUNDERS & THE RAINFOREST BAND
YEP!

Sat., Nov 6-9:00pm
25th Anniversary Tour
ROOMFUL OF BLUES
Sweet Daddy Cool Breeze

Thurs., Nov 11-8:30pm/18+
Col. BRUCE HAMPTON & THE AQARIUM RESCUE UNIT
Dave Matthews

Fri., Nov 12-8:00pm/WRSU
GRAHAM PARKER
w/La Bamba & The Hubcaps
Ray Mason Band

Sat., Nov 13-8:30pm
THE OUTLAWS
The Wiskey River Band

Mon., Nov 15-9:00pm/18+/WRSU
CRACKER
The Flop

Tues. Nov 16-8:30pm/18+/
X
from Boston TRIBE

Fri., Nov 19-7:00pm/WRSU
LOS LOBOS

Sat., Nov 20-9:00pm
WHO'S KIDDIN' WHO

Tues., Nov 23-8:00pm
SAM BLACK CHURCH

Thur., Dec 2-9:00pm
CHUCKLEHEAD

Sat., Dec 4-7:00pm/WRSU
WRSU Holiday Party
SQUEEZE

Fri., Dec 10-7:00pm
From J. Geils Band
PETER WOLF

Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office, For The Record in Amherst, Ticket Pro 1(800) 828-7080
10 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7771

Gallery displays a comic book plea against war

By BETH GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Correspondent

The Residential Arts Program at the University of Massachusetts is presenting an art display called "War No More" in Hampden Gallery.

The display features the work of artists Jack Kirby, George Pratt, Frank Redondo, John Severin and Bill Sienkiewicz.

In his work titled "Our Army at War" Vol. 25 #295, August 1976, Frank Redondo displays a series of black and white comic book illustrations in pen and ink on bristol board. The comic book, titled "Sergeant Rock of East Co. in The Devil In Paradise," depicts the violent death of a sergeant during war and the reactions of the sergeant's soldiers.

John Severin creates the same type of black and white illustration in his artistic comic book depiction titled "Army at War" Vol. 23, #265, February 1974. Severin recreates a scene of a group of soldiers involved in a dispute over the issue of Japanese-Americans fighting for the United States during World War II, after the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"John Severin has an uncanny eye for realistic detail, even for the ethnic characteristics — the bone and muscle structures — of his characters, which were sublimely authentic," wrote Harvey Kurtzman, creator of "Little Annie Fanny" and Mad Magazine contributer.

The last comic book illustration, completed with pen and ink on illustration boards, is by Jack Kirby and is titled "Our Fighting Forces" Vol. 22 #160, October 1975.

In a different display of art that relates to war is a piece by George Pratt titled "War Idyll," done in water colors, colored inks, and acrylics. Pratt compiles various artistic depictions of men who meet death during the hostilities of war. Many of the illustrations show a close-up of a man, smoking a cigarette or reading a newspaper, with calamities all around him, such as flying war planes and fields crammed with swarms of dead soldiers.

"The connection is made between all wars, and the acuity of senses and emotions as a result of death's close proximity. And George had made me believe that two-dimensional beings, drawn and painted, actually live," said Joe Kubert, artist and founder of the Kubert Art School.

In yet another varied form of art, Bill Sienkiewicz works with water colors, acrylics, colored pencils and colored inks in his work, "Friendly Dictators trading card set." Seinkiewicz recreates trading cards of history's most powerful dictators, such as former president of Taiwan Chiang Kai-Shek, former chancellor of Germany Adolf Hitler and former prime minister of Greece George Papadopoulos.

War No More will continue through Nov. 19 in Hampden Gallery, is curated by Words and Pictures Museum of Fine Sequential Art in Northampton.

LSAT GRE GMAT MCAT SAT KAPLAN RULES
Expert Teachers
Permanent Centers
Total Training
CALL NOW:
1-800-KAP-TEST
150 Fearing Street (UMASS)
Amherst
KAPLAN RULES

Dance music for the grungy kids

Concentration
Machines Of Loving Grace
Mammoth/Atlantic

The problem with most industrial music is that it leaves you wondering who's actually making the music: the man or the machine? Thankfully we have Machines Of Loving Grace, an industrial band that believes in the actual playing of instruments and melody (what a concept!). Machines Of Loving Grace combines live instruments with punchy dance rhythms and intelligent lyrics that give references from William Blake to the chaos theory.

Trax On Trax Off

On songs such as "Butterfly Wings" and "Shake" vocalist Scott Benzel sings/screams over thrashing guitars and a dance groove, to come up with what can only be described as dance music for the "grunge" generation.

Though the album falters when it veers away from its dance/thrash formula, Machines Of Loving Grace has managed to come up with an album that sticks out among the current horde of industrial bands. If you're looking for intelligent music that you can listen to as well as dance to then give Concentration a try. B- (Matt Audette)

Alapalooza
"Weird Al" Yankovic
Scotti Brothers Records

Yes, Weird Al is back once again with Alapalooza, another album full of wacky parodies of America's

Turn to TRAX, page 7

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We offer...
...quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
...courteous, friendly, professional staff.
...reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
...a comprehensive contact lens service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

HORACE BOYER SINGS THE GOSPEL!
This Sunday Night at 6:30pm at the Episcopal Chaplaincy at UMass, 758 North Pleasant Street (549-5929)

YOU'RE LOOKIN' AT THE RIGHT PLACE FOR PLENTY OF GREAT DEALS!
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive
BEER WINE LIQUORS
ROLLING ROCK (REG. & LIGHT) CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $12.49 + DEP
AMERICAN BEER REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $7.29 + DEP
BASS ALE 6 PK. BOTTLES $5.49 + DEP
KILLIAN'S IRISH RED 12 PK. BOTTLES $5.99 + DEP SALE 7.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 AFTER REBATE
MICHELOB REG. & LIGHT CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES $12.49 + DEP
WINE OF THE MONTH
R.H. PHILLIPS CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON $4.99 750 ML
ALMADEN WINES (EXCEPT WHITE ZIN) $6.49 3.0L
RENE JUNOT RED & WHITE $4.99 1.5L
GALLO WHITE ZINFANDEL, SAUVIGNON BLANC, CHARDONNAY, CABERNET SAUVIGNON 3 for $9.99 750 ML
JOS. DROUHIN LAFORET PINOT NOIR & CHARDONNARY 750 ML $6.49
ABSOLUT VODKA $9.99 750 ML
COSSACK VODKA $7.49 1.75L AFTER REBATE SALE 9.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00
GILBEY'S GIN SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 $8.49 1.75L AFTER REBATE
JIM BEAM $12.99 1.75L
CANADIAN MIST SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 $7.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE
not responsible for typographical errors VISA
OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 11/4/93 THRU WEDS. 11/10/93
Full Redemption Center

◆ Trax

continued from page 6

favorite songs along with a handful of originals. This time it's open season on such big acts as Aerosmith and Billy Ray Cyrus, only the humor is wearing thin. What made Weird Al so funny in the past was his ability to make fun of popular music's overinflated ego, but on "Alapalooza" the humor seems forced, almost as if he were desperate for laughs.

A prime example of this is "Bedrock Anthem," where Al sings the praises of Fred Flinstone and Co. to the tune of the Red Hot Chili Pepper's "Give It Away" ("yabba dabba, yabba dabba dabba do now") While this is, at best, amusing, they just don't live up to his older material.

The album does have its merits, but even the parody of Billy Ray Cyrus ("Achy Breaky Song") can't save Alapalooza. Maybe it's safe to say that after a decade-long career of being "rock 'n' roll's supreme parodist," "Weird Al" Yankovic has seen his day. D — (M.A.)

Respect
Shootyz Groove
Mercury

If touring with the Mighty Mighty Bosstones taught Shootyz Groove anything, it would be the art of being loud and annoying. Surely there are better topics for a young band to sing about than getting high and being braggadocious.

Shootyz Groove tread in the hardcore/rap road paved by Living Colour and maintained by bands like Follow For Now. Problem is, it's done with no character and only marginal musicianship. D — (Adam Goulston)

Rise
Bad Brains
Epic

It's a shame when a band breaks new ground for some 15 years and doesn't get signed to a major label until it's on the way downhill. Such is the case for these disciples of reggae/rap/hardcore/hard rock.

Rise has all the cohesiveness of a smashed atom — such is not an unusual characteristic for a Bad Brains album. But in the past, this disorder would all be tied together with energy and a true Rasta spirit. With new singer Isreal Joseph-I taking the helm after a motley crew of past experiments, the spirit is barely alive.

The title track is a shallow anthem, wholly uninspiring. When Bad Brains ventures into a reggae groove on "Love is the Answer" and "Yes Jah" is when they shine. The album never hits the comfortable off-tempo stride of past efforts. It's a long-overdue major release, just a bit late. C — (A.G.)

COURTESY MERCURY RECORDS
Shootyz Groove: same old, same old...

Farmer Must Have Her Revenge On Seattle Dumb Very Apt Milk It Pennyroyal Tea Radio Friendly Unit Shifter Tourette's All Apologies Serve The Servants Seamless Apprentice Heart-Shaped Box Rape Me Frances
NIRVANA
NOV 10 7:30PM
TICKETS ON SALE NOW!
theBreeders HALF JAPANESE
SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER
TICKETS ON SALE NOW AT THE SPRINGFIELD CIVIC CENTER BOX OFFICE (413) 787-6600
FILENE'S • MOVIES & MORE • B.D. MUSIC • VIDEO PARADISE
(413) 733-2500 • (617) 931-2000 • (203) 525-4500
Produced By Jim Koplik/Shells Finkel/John Scher/Metropolitan Entertainment

"...a perfect amalgam of Memphis and Chicago, and the hybrid is timeless. Cray was called a prodigy, now he's a master." [illegible]
"[Hammond's] guitar is brilliant, his voice vivid... This is the blues lived-in and alive, satisfaction guaranteed." [illegible]
Grammy award-winning blues guitarist
Robert CRAY
with John Hammond
Nov. 10, 1993 8pm
UMass Fine Arts Center
$16 w/ UMass ID, $18 all others
Tickets available only through FAC Box Office (545-2511)
A UPC Production
Don't miss UPC's upcoming show featuring dynamic West African percussionist
Babatunde Olatunji
Coming December 11th to UMass!

4 Seasons
Thank you for your Patronage The Krupczak Family
Rte. 9 • Hadley • 584-8174
Between Burger King & Dunkin Donuts
Delivery Hadley / Amherst Area.
Not responsible for typographical errors
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE
PRICES EFFECTIVE THRU 11/10/93
HOURS: MONDAY-SATURDAY 9:00-11:00
½ BBL LOWENBRAU & DK. $42.99 + dep.
½ BBL BUSCH $36.99 + dep.
½ BBL BUD, BUD LT, BUD DRY, MICHELOB, MICHELOB LT, MICHELOB DARK, MILLER, MILLER LITE, M.G.D. & M.G.D. LT $40.99 + dep.
½ BBL NATURAL LT, MILWAUKEE'S BEST, BLACK LABEL $32.99 + dep.
ROLLING ROCK 24-12 OZ. BOTT $12.99 + dep.
BUD DRY 24-12 oz. BAR BOTT $10.99 + DEP
SIERRA NEVADA PALE ALE, STOUT, PORTER 6-PK. BOTT $6.99 + DEP
COORS EXTRA GOLD 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTT $10.99 + DEP
ICE 10 LBS. $1.25 50 LBS. $5.49 100 LB. $9.99 BLOCKS 10 LBS. $1.50
MOOSEHEAD 24-12 OZ. BOTT $15.49 + DEP
LOWENBRAU 24-12 OZ. BOTT $13.49 + DEP
LABATT'S BLUE & 50-50 24-12 OZ. BOTT $15.99 + DEP
PEPSI & DIET 12 PK. CANS $3.29 + DEP
4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L
AMARETTO DI SARONNO $16.99 750 ml
UMASS FOOTBALL AT HOME THIS SAT!!! SHOW YOUR SUPPORT!
TANQUERAY GIN $20.99 1.75L
GILBEY'S GIN $12.99 1.75L
MASS. STATE LOTTERY AGENT!!
CORONET V.S.Q. BRANDY $16.99 1.75L
PEACHTREE SCHNAPPS $7.69 750 ML
BENZIGER CHARDONNAY $7.99 750 ml
REX HILL PINOT NOIR "KINGS RIDGE" $6.99 750 ml
R.H. PHILLIPS CAB. & CHARD. $4.99 750 ml
FROGS LEAP CABERNET SAUV. $13.99 750 ml
LA VIELLE FERME COTES DU VERTOUX $4.99 750 ml
PURPLE PASSION $3.99 2.0L
BOONE'S FARM ALL FLAVORS $1.99 750 ML
WE DELIVER

Reiner's Fatal Instinct falls flat as a spoof

By EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

It's been a sad year for America's classic comic directors. This past summer Mel Brooks slipped further into career obscurity with his painfully unfunny Robin Hood: Men in Tights (The Costner version in itself was funnier.) From the same school of "Yuk it up, Yiddish is funny" thought, Carl Reiner embarrasses himself with his latest comedy Fatal Instinct, a spoof that always seems one jab off its stilted punchlines.

Instinct is the cracked film noir of cop/defense attorney Nick Ravine (Armand Assante). That's right, he busts the baddies and then defends them. Into his life steps Lana Cain (Sean Young), a seductress with a penchant for ice picks and a disdain for underwear. As Ravine juggles the Basic Instinct/ Cape Fear/ Fatal Attraction references, his tangled web captures his adulterer wife and greasy auto mechanic in a plot to collect triple indemnity on his life. Somewhere into the mix Tony Randall, Bob Ueker and Eartha Kitt figure.

A parody of the femme-fatale genre, Instinct tries to run the trademark Zucker Bros Naked Gun route where anything goes for a laugh. Hurling sight gags and double entendres at breakneck speeds, the effect is to blast the viewer with joke upon joke. If one misses, wait five seconds for the next. Plotting is minimal but comic timing is crucial.

Though he has directed capable comedies (All of Me), Reiner misses on all accounts leaving his talented cast stuck in all the wrong places. Where the Naked Gun films succeeded in Leslie Nielsen's self-aware oblivity and melodramatic delivery, Reiner's cast seems too talented for the forced humor. Assante deadpans incessantly but the comic writing just isn't there.

The Zuckers used pop culture nobodies George Kennedy, Peter Graves and Lloyd Bridges and reinvigorated their careers, playing off their established "B-movie bimbo roles."

Reiner takes "Mambo King" Assante and Oscar-nominated Kate Nelligan, both accomplished actors, and sticks them with no-brainer groaners for laugh lines. Though Assante has had his I, The Jury (soft porn masquerading as Micky Spillaine), the actors don't really have any bad career choices to play off of. They've long since graduated from this level of sophomoric hijinks.

To be fair I did laugh in Fatal Instinct. Twice! Unfortunately Carl Reiner, you are no Zucker. C- (Mountain Farms Four)

Like a filmography of shattered American dreams spread across the country's pop-cultural wasteland, Roger Weisberg's Road Scholar is that kind of contradictory documentary that at once revels in the charming eccentricities of America (Elvis lovers please stop down) while it condescends the same superficiality present.

Weisberg's camera follows National Public Radio commentator Andrei Codrescu as he travels from coast to coast on a rediscovery of America. Traveling the highways and byways of the country, the Romanian-born Codrescu makes pointed remarks at his adoptive country. And yes, he does manage to get his "kicks on Route 66."

He at once loves yet fears for the routes America has taken and as his journey progresses from Ellis Island, the beacon of immigrant hopes, to the Statue of Liberty, to the Pacific Ocean, Codrescu delves into the mystique that holds people to America. It may not be a perfect land but it's these imperfections that Codrescu discovers is part of its charm.

The only fault apparent in Scholar is that fault inherent to all documentaries. The viewer may be seeing "reality" yet it is reality as filtered through the camera. If Road Scholar were the only document of late twentieth century Americana to survive, future generations would know only a culture devoted to fast food worship and the Church of the Cadillac. Among the stops on Codrescu's journey is a visit to Roy Kroc's stomping grounds, the original McDonalds.

Turn to FATAL, page 5

TICKETS:
CONCERT • SPORTING EVENTS • THEATRE
RICHARD'S ARMY & NAVY
"Loose Fitting" Top Quality Jeans $19.99 sizes 28-42
EVERYTHING BUT THE DOG!
Next to the Iron Horse Center St. Northampton 586-0275

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

ACADEMY-MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
NOW YOUR LAST WEEKEND TO SEE IT!
Ends Nov. 11th Daily at 9:35pm only
Tickets on sale from 8:30pm
"SPECTACULARLY FUNNY!
The Ultimate Party Movie. Socially Irresponsible And Totally Irresistible"
- Peter Travers ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE
"Two thumbs up!"
Dazed and Confused
music-Aerosmith-Deep Purple-ZZ Top-Alice Cooper-War-Peter Frampton & more
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

KLEIN'S ALL ★ SPORTS "YOUR HOMETOWN STORE"
We Will NOT Be Undersold!
PRICES SO LOW
YOU CAN'T AFFORD NOT TO SHOP AT KLEIN'S ALL ★ SPORTS
3 DAYS ONLY!
CUSTOMER APPRECIATION SALE!
FRIDAY - SATURDAY - SUNDAY
bauer CONVERSE asics DUNLOP Cooper HEAD AVIA INSIDE CODE NIKE CSA Champion BRINE Sports B CCM Columbia Sportswear Company NUTMEG Reebok It's time to play. umbro
KLEIN'S ALL ★ SPORTS
20%* OFF
OUR EVERY DAY LOW PRICE
WITH THIS COUPON ONLY. EXPIRES 11/07/93
ALL NAME BRANDS
*SKI HARD GOODS, OAKLEY, AND STARTER NOT INCLUDED
3 Days Only Fri., Sat. & Sun.
CUSTOMER APPRECIATION SALE!
Col.
HAMPSHIRE MALL • HADLEY, MA • (413) 585-0470

Now you can receive a doctorate in HRTA Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
53° Friday November 5, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 41
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Mmm... Look at that produce

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Gabrial Johnson refills the bins at the People's Market.

Blocking of clinics to be criminalized

By ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press

BOSTON — Abortion foes will no longer be allowed to block access to clinics that perform abortions under a bill signed into law Thursday by Gov. William Weld.

Operation Rescue, the anti-abortion group that sometimes blockades clinics with a variety of drastic measures, vowed to test the law of the court.

Supporters hailed the law as the first abortion rights law passed in Massachusetts.

"Finally, the Massachusetts Legislature, particularly the Massachusetts Senate, has listened to the people," said Sen. Lois Pines, D-Newton, one of the bill's main sponsors.

The Law, which takes effect in 90 days, sets a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for the first offense and up to 2 1/2 years in jail and a $5,000 fine for subsequent offenses.

Now, a Superior Court order prohibits about 40 activists and certain organizations from continuing to block access to clinics. Sixteen anti-abortion demonstrators were jailed under the injunction, and seven still are serving sentences.

"An injunction is no substitute for state law," Attorney General Scott Harshbarger said.

Harshbarger and Weld said they were satisfied that, by outlining the difference between peaceful demonstrations and blockades, the law would not violate the rights of anti-abortion demonstrators.

"In our view, this bill is secure against a constitutional challenge," Weld said.

Operation Rescue spokesman Phil Lawler said the law would not pass court muster because it singled out anti-abortion demonstrators for special punishment. He also said the law was too vague and would prompt confusion over what constitutes blocking a clinic's entrance.

Operation Rescue members have used unusual tactics to blockade clinics, such as parking disabled vehicles in front of clinic doors and welding them shut, and bolting themselves to doors and rails with kryptonite locks.

Scott visits Greek community, praises efforts

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Chancellor David Scott reversed his role Wednesday night, becoming the student learning all about Greek Area life with Pi Kappa Alpha as his teacher.

With members representing almost every fraternity and sorority on campus as the curriculum, Scott said he learned about the Greek community and how valuable they can be.

The fraternity invited Scott to their house for dinner and an information session about the Greek Area and University-Greek relations.

"I went to talk to the Chancellor one day and I realized he didn't know much about Greek life," said Joe Vozza the vice president of the Inter-fraternity Council. "So I invited him and people from the whole Greek Area to let him know what we're all about."

After dinner with Scott, the brothers of Pi Kappa Alpha held an informal meeting with representatives from the rest of the Greek Area.

"In 15 years at Michigan State, no one had ever invited me for an event like this," Scott said.

Sitting at the dinner table with the brothers, Scott said he was reminded of the experience he had as a student at Oxford University because of the tremendous sense of community.

"Faculty and staff would get together over dinner and just talk," Scott said.

Scott highly noted the community service efforts of the Greek area saying despite the bad patches that the Greek Area sometimes has to go through, they have always been consistent by being committed to the community and community service.

He compared this to Michigan State University, also a large school, which he said does not come close to having this sense of community.

"Greek Area could be leaders in bringing the community together to give people a sense of unity," Scott said, "and I think more students will get involved in Greek life."

Vozza said in a discussion with Scott about a community service project, he realized it was not the Chancellor's fault he didn't know much about the Greek Area. Vozza decided to introduce Scott to the Greek community.

According to Vozza, the project is to raise money for AIDS. He went to talk to Scott because Pi Kappa Alpha and the Greek Area need support from the University's faculty, students and other RSOs.

When he talked with Scott, Vozza said the Chancellor was open to the idea and suggestions.

"We appreciated Chancellor Scott's open-mindedness and his willingness to work with us in the future," said Mark Weiss, president of Pi Kappa Alpha.

Weiss said other community service projects his fraternity has been involved with included donating money to the Jimmy Fund by having a non-alcoholic social gathering last semester.

According to Weiss, the fraternity is also involved in a fundraiser for Cystic Fibrosis, and organizing a date-rape seminar for the Greek Area.

"Everybody wins with the service of the Greek Area," Scott said. "The students win, the university wins and most importantly, the community wins."

Fires claim homes of the stars

Millions of dollars in property destroyed in Malibu

By JOHN HORN
Associated Press

MALIBU, Calif. — Alice Kavaldgian cried as she trudged through the ashes of her home. "This is it," she said, pointing to the clothes she was wearing. "I don't even have a sweater."

Kavaldgian was among thousands of residents chased from this celebrity enclave by an arson wildfire that roared out of the Santa Monica Mountains on Tuesday and burned 200 houses. One person was killed.

Some returned Thursday to see whether any of their past was still standing. Others waited at roadblocks hastily put up to allow fire or aircraft bombing runs over the remaining hot spots.

By Thursday, firefighters had contained 70 percent of the 10,500 acre wildfire, one of the series of blazes that have destroyed 1,000 homes, blackened 200,000 acres and injured nearly 200 people in Southern California since Oct. 26. Several were blamed on arsonists.

The Malibu fire claimed actor Sean Penn's $4 million Spanish style mansion along with Ali MacGraw's home, with its panoramic view of the Pacific Ocean.

"I'm grateful to be alive. I'm grateful to my friends who helped save my animals. And I'm grateful to all the firefighters for their extraordinary efforts in saving so many people's lives," the star of 1970 hit movie "Love Story" said in a statement released through her publicist.

Many celebrity homes, including 100 mansions in the exclusive Malibu Colony, were spared.

With cool sea breezes mixed with wind gusts in the hills, crews and firefighting aircrafts focused Thursday on the hot spots around Fernwood in Topanga Canyon.

Forecasters weren't expecting a return of the hot, dry Santa Ana winds from the deserts northeast of Los Angeles that fanned the worst of the fires.

Mike Pierson, 33, returned to his wooded sided house to find it intact. His relief is subdued.

"My cousins's home is gone, my best friend's home is gone. Every person I grew with, their home is gone," Pierson said. "I look here and I can't even tell where people live.

The blaze claimed it first fatality Wednesday night.

British movie director Duncan Gibbins, 41, died of burns suffered when he tried to rescue a Bluepoint Siamese he had taken a liking to.

A $250,000 reward was posted for information leading to the capture and conviction of whoever set the Malibu fire.

A witness said they had seen two men in a pickup truck near the fire's point of origin.

Authorities searched for clues but ruled out the involvement of these two men. The men had apparently spotted the fire and unsuccessfully tried to put it out, said Deputy Sheriff Ron Ablott.

In Riverside County, firefighters Thursday contained an 8,000 acre brush fire that destroyed or damaged 11 homes.

Strike closes off business, Haiti's capital

By MICHAEL NORTON
Associated Press

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti — Pro-military rightists used a general strike Thursday to shut down businesses in the Haitian capital, already brought to crawl by the international oil embargo.

Army leaders still weren't saying whether they would show up for meeting Friday aimed at solving the political standoff over the return of exiled President Jean Bertrand Aristide.

U.N. and Haitian officials said they would meet in Port au Prince, with or without the military. Representatives of Aristide also said they would attend.

It was unclear what the meeting could accomplish without the military.

Most businesses in Port au Prince were closed Thursday and traffic was reduced to trickle by the strike, called by the rightists to pressure the government to release gasoline stored in country.

Traffic had been light anyway due to a worsening gasoline shortage caused by a U.N. oil and

Turn to HAITI, page 2

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor-in-Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan L. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanitis
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Martin
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Bianco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Brunea
Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majkrzewski, Mary Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone (413) 545-3500
Fax (413) 545-1592

MAKE LIFE A PARTY. . .
. . .WRITE FOR
The Collegian

For Your Information

This are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, November 5

Meeting — The Undergraduate Economics Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Machmer W-24. All are welcome.

Service — Shabbat service will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hillel House Lounge with a Kiddish following.

Service — A student-led, creative Shabbat service with guitar will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hillel Conference Room.

Meeting — The Shabbat Coalition, an education and support group for those interested in learning about and observing Shabbat, will meet every Friday at Hillel House after services, at about 8:45 p.m.

Study hall — The Latin American Cultural Center, located behind the Southside Room in Hamden Commons, is open from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Lecture — Alice Brown-Collins, assistant professor of African American studies and advisor to ministry to Black women, will speak at the meeting of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. Check campus directory for room number.

Theatre — UMass Theatre Guild presents Peter Shafter's Black Comedy at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $4 for students, $6 general public, and are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Poetry — A fundraiser for the publication of Susan Stinson's Belly Songs: In Celebration of Fat Women will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Northampton Unitarian Church, 220 Main St., and will be followed by a reading by Valley Lesbian Writers Group. Admission is $5 at the door; women only.

Saturday, November 6

Discussion — Dr. Abel will speak from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Cape Cod Lounge. Sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, he will hold an open discussion about sexual awareness and answer questions submitted to him at the opening of the session.

Rake Day — SHARE will be having a Rake Day at 12:30 p.m. Anyone interested, call Judy at 546-5233.

Party — The Black Mass Communications Project is holding its 16th Annual Jeans and T-shirt Party in the Bluewall. Doors open at 10 p.m. Buy tickets in advance at TIX Unlimited. College ID a must; call 545-2426 for more information.

Sunday, November 7

Service — ALANA Christian Alliance will sponsor church services at 10 a.m. in the Campus Center. Services will feature the UMass Gospel Choir and Elder Willie Wright. For more information call 545-2301 or 546-4079. All are welcome.

Skits aimed at high schoolers

By JOHN CURRAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Dongman Pak wouldn't take no for an answer.

After kissing, cuddling with and giving a brief shoulder massage to Nital Patel on Thursday, the Boston University senior wanted more. He climbed on top of her, pressing her down into a couch, kissing her around the face and neck.

Terrified, struggling to push him away, she was on the verge of tears.

"No, no, no. Stop!" she said.

The scene, a simulation performed in front of about 100 people, was like hundreds of similar encounters played out for real at keg parties, fraternity houses and dormitories all over America.

But the date rape vignettes are being performed at high schools, colleges and other organizations across New England as part of a program aimed at showing people what sexual assault is and how it can be prevented.

"One in six college women is raped on their campus. We think that's that's a terrifying statistic," said Maureen Hurley, president of the New England College Sexual Assault Network.

On Thursday, Hurley's group gathered 140 students, administrators and faculty members from 32 northeastern colleges for one day seminar that included panel discussion, group sessions and instruction aimed at a form of sex education that doesn't always get taught in high school health class.

At Boston University, the 22 member "interactive theater" group performs up to 200 times each school year, beginning with shows for incoming freshmen. The group also is invited to perform at high schools and other colleges. It charges about $300 per performance to pay for traveling expenses.

Thursday's performance included two sexual assault skits involving nine people. In the second, a man was coerced to have sex with his girlfriend even though he didn't want it.

Though the acts were left to the imagination, audience members easily got into the picture asking questions of the players who answered while remaining in character throughout.

Correction

In yesterday's paper, Matt Pavesi, the undergraduate student speaker was misquoted. He is an Amherst resident who is originally from New York. The Collegian regrets the error.

■ Haiti

continued from page 1

arms embargo imposed Oct. 19 to pressure the military to allow Aristide to come back.

The strike was to continue today, but the organizers canceled it out of concern for the "the difficulties of the population who live from one day to the next," Louis Jodel Chamblain, co-leader of the Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti, or FRAPH, said over Radio Metropla.

A Haitian court was to have ruled Thursday on a lawsuit by gasoline dealers against Shell, Texaco and Esso, Haiti's three gasoline distributors, to free the supplies. The court was closed by the strike.

The army has not said whether it will take part in Friday's talks, U.N. special envoy Dante Caputo said Aristide representatives and the president of Haiti's Senate has agreed to participate.

The head of the Chamber of Deputies, Antoine Joseph, said he would attend the talks, but only if all other parties did do.

U.S. Ambassador William Swing urged Haitian army commander Raol Cedras to attend the meeting , State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said in Washington.

Lawmakers with close military ties say it is unlikely the army will attend because Aristide has called for the immediate resignation of the high command.

The presence of Aristide's representative Michael Darnes, a former U.S. congressman, at the negotiating table was another sticking point, Joseph said.

"Why does Aristide need a foreigner to represent him when he has a handpicked prime minister?" he said.

Prime Minister Robert Malval was installed in August but has been unable to make his authority felt.

Many pro-Aristide lawmakers are hiding in fear for their safety, some anti-Aristide members are interested in scuttling the accords and movement has been restricted by the gasoline shortage.

No Brainer.

$10
COLLEGE DISCOUNT

Hey, you don't need a Harvard degree to ski for less at Stratton. Just a college ID.* Present it at any Stratton ticket window and you can ski for $10 off any Sunday thru Friday! ($5 off Saturdays and holidays.)

So, c'mon, do the ski thing, and get 92 mind-bending trails, a speedy 57-cabin gondola and all the downhill your brain can take! Heck, with great savings like this, you can ski all year and not be a poor student.

* Must be 25 years of age or less, with other supporting I.D. (license)

Stratton
VERMONT

©1993 Stratton Corp.

Local News

New program offers degrees to HRTA grads

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

A new doctoral program has recently been approved in the department of hotel, restaurant and travel administration and will begin in Sept. 1994.

The program is for extensive research is areas such as human resources, food and beverage, rooms division, tourism, engineering, marketing, finance and education.

"This program will be able to provide a Ph.D. in a research degree and to strengthen the involvement of higher level research," said Larry R. Klar, Ph.D. coordinator in the department of HRTA.

Klar said this is the only Ph.D. program in New England involving HRTA.

"The program itself is grounded very firmly in excellence in that it has recently undergone a full accreditation and it has exceeded accreditation requirements," Klar said.

The program initially began several years ago. It was started by Stevenson Fletcher, department head of HRTA.

The main goal of the program is to further studies in HRTA programs and to involve more people where there is a shortage of Ph.D. candidates.

"This doctoral program will help alleviate the shortage of qualified Ph.D. candidates for faculty positions throughout the country while enhancing the national and international visibility, recognition and stature of the UMass HRTA program," Klar said in a recent press release.

The program is going to be aimed at attracting people who hold research positions, people who hold high level management position, people who would like to be able to oversee research in HRTA and people hoping to teach in the future.

"We have announced the program in a couple of professional publications. There is considerable interest of the program from everywhere," Klar said.

Brochures are being finalized this semester and will soon be going out to appropriate places throughout the country. The application for the program will be the same as the graduate school application.

"The application is quite extensive. The number of Ph.D. students admitted in the fall will be relatively small. We will be accepting about three to four students. Ultimately the program will grow to about fifteen students," Klar said.

There will be a small number of applicants accepted because the program is hoping to be able to fund the Ph.D. students.

"Many faculty members in our department have strong ties to the professional industries. These industries will be working to expand the opportunities for research," Klar said.

Klar said the program will benefit the Universities HRTA program. "Undergraduates will benefit by this addition of the Ph.D. program because the department as a whole will be enriched by the extended efforts in research," Klar said.

An adoring fan club

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN
Two unidentified students spend time admiring an obviously famous canine.

Professors form lecture lineup

The cream of the faculty crop honored in series

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"The watch-word is excellence," explained Professor R. Glenn Brown, of the nominees for the Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series.

Originally titled the Chancellor's Lectureship, this year-long series is described by Brown, the chairperson of the Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series Committee, as an equivalent to the Nobel Lureate, but "there's no half million attached to it."

The Lecture Series mission is to provide an opportunity for University of Massachusetts faculty to present a lifetime's worth of achievement to their peers, students and public. Brown said the distinguished individuals who are considered for this honor are those who are recognized from a broad range of colleagues.

How do these faculty members get nominated? "First thing you do is get out of grad school and work like mad for 30, 35 years," explained Brown.

In order to be considered for the honor, a faculty member has to be nominated by one of his peers. The nominator then brings in the person's achievements, external recognition and even a resume. The next step is for a committee to review the nominations. Everyone in the committee is given about a dozen packets — some with nominees in their specific field, some not.

They then come together and rank all of the nominees from one to five or seven. After taking the names of people who ranked the highest, the members go through the whole process again, now picking the top six, four people who are given the award and two alternates.

"It's a question of picking the best from the best," said Brown.

If you are not picked the first time, do not fret. According to Brown, nominees who are passed over are automatically considered for next year's nominees.

Brown said he is disappointed in the fact that not too many undergrads come to listen to these faculty members who are being recognized for their excellence in the multitudes of fields offered on this campus.

"Some professors have international status and walk around the campus unassumed," said Brown. "This place...is populated with first class professors."

The Distinguished Faculty for the 1993-94 year are E. Harris Nober, from the department of communication disorders; Robert P. Creed, from the department of english; Robert W. Lenz, from the department of polymer science and engineering; and Ronald K. Hambleton, from the School of Education.

The remaining lectures, held at Memorial Hall at 4 p.m., are Creed on November 18, Lenz on March 22 and Hambleton on April 19.

WMUA aims program at women listeners

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Staff

Hey, WMUA listeners! If you enjoy listening to women's music and their issues, then "Bitches Brew" is for you. Every Sunday night from 9-12, take a break from studying and relax to the sounds of talented women musicians performing their hearts out.

From Regaae to Rock to traditional Folk, Stacey Horne, Director of Women's Issues for WMUA, provides her show with a variety of music and topics surrounding women's issues. Also, one can hear public service announcements and guests that deal with women's issues.

"Since women already have a tough time getting into the music business, I want to help by bringing their music out into the public," Horne said.

Horne took over the show and changed the name to "Bitches Brew" which is "more accessable to college students," she said.

According to Horne, women today are taking over their rights which comes out through their music. The new type of music, which she provides for her listeners, is very aggressive and loud.

"I play music that hasn't had any exposure yet, to give all women a chance to be heard," Horne said.

She said her show is also open to public affairs as well as women's affairs. Horne gets her topics from the program for Gay, Lesbian, and Bisexual Concerns and the Women's Center. Informing the public of women's accomplishments is very satisfying, she said.

According to Horne, there has been a change from last semester to this semester. The show has received a great response and more students are becoming interested in women's issues and are tuning in.

"I feel that the talent of women should be heard and is very important for the future of women's rights," Horne said.

Nationalism discussed

Profs talk about 'working together'

By MARTIN JONES
Collegian Staff

"Working together" was the theme hammered home again and again at last night's discussion on Black Nationalism, held in the Gorman House 2nd floor lounge.

Sponsored by Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, the talk featured Professor Asa Davis of Amherst College, and Professor Ernest Allen of the Afro-American studies department.

Allen defined Black nationalism as a community existing within the larger state system, bound together by a common goals values.

Allen further defined Black Nationalism as "people of African descent seeking self-determination over their collective communities."

Allen talked of the famous Black nationalist Marcus Garvey who, in the 1920s, built a steamship line which was designed to ship raw materials and manufactured goods between the United States and Africa. Garvey also called for the establishment of an independent state in Africa which would be colonized by African-Americans seeking to escape racism in the America.

In the 1960s, cultural nationalism was expressed by the wearing of African dashikis, afros, and beads, and involved widespread participation in African cultural traditions such as dance, artistry, and storytelling, according to Allen.

Professor Davis discussed international Black nationalism and reflected on his 10-year experience living in Nigeria, Africa's largest and wealthiest Black-ruled nation.

Davis taught as a professor at the University of Ibadan in Nigeria. He described Nigeria as a "fantastic country," with great economic potential from its large oil reserves.

Davis said the potential of Nigeria to prosper has been stagnated by internal strife between its three major tribes. Nigeria was created by the British as a colony which combined the eastern Ibo with the western Yoruba and the northern Hausa. The nation was devasted by the 1977 Biafra civil war in which the eastern Ibo attempted to secede from Nigeria and form the independent republic of Biafra.

turn to NATIONALISM, page 4

Abduction witnessed by many

Sixty-one people saw parts of toddler's last miles

By KAREN DAVIES
Associated Press

PRESTON, England — A young man noticed a small boy sobbing outside a shopping mall. A cab driver watched the two older boys drag the child away. A delivery man saw one boy kick the crying toddler.

No one intervened.

Sixty-one people remember seeing 2 year old James Bulger at the mall or on the 2 1/2 mile journey that ended in his tortured death last February.

On Thursday, some shed tears of remorse as they testified at the trial of two 11 year old boys accused of abducting James from a Liverpool shopping mall and stoning him to death.

"It will never leave me because it upset me so much," said Kathleen Richardson.

From her seat on the top of the bus, she saw two boys each holding on the frightened toddler's hands, swinging him high and one letting go.

She shouted, "What the hell are those kids doing to that poor child?" and the bus moved on, she said.

The pudgy, dark haired boys were seated beside social workers on the fourth day of the hearing at Preston Crown Court.

The boys, who may be identified only as Child A and Child B by the press, were 10 at the time of the slaying and are the youngest children ever to be charged with murder in Britain.

They have pleaded innocent, although prosecutors say Child B confessed to the police and Child A said he was there but only stood by while the child was killed.

James strayed from his mother while she was shopping in the mall on Feb. 12. Minutes later, security videotapes show the toddler being led from the shopping mall by the two boys.

The journey ended at a railroad track where James was battered to death with bricks, stones and a piece of metal. The boys left his half naked body on the track where a train later sliced it in two, prosecutors said.

Taxi driver David Keay said he was parked outside the shopping mall and saw two boys dragging the toddler. One lifted the child and held him in "a bear hug sort of thing," he said.

Child B's parents listened with their heads down. Child A's parents have not attended.

James mother is pregnant and has not attended the trial, which opened Monday. Her husband left midway through Thursday's testimony.

Ten is the youngest age children can face criminal charges in Britain. If the two boys are convicted, they will be detained indefinitely.

New state law requires use of safety belts

By ROBERT W. TROTT
Associated Press

BOSTON — The Senate gave preliminary approval to a mandatory seat belt bill Thursday after backers defeated a move to put the question before voters on the November 1994 ballot.

The Senate passed it on a 27-11 vote after adding amendments. Senators must take one more vote before sending the amended bill back to the House, where it originally passed 100-50 a month ago.

Senator James Jajuga, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, defended the bill against opponents who said the voter repeal of a mandatory seat belt law in 1986 was proof that people thought the bill was an unwarranted government intrusion.

"I think that's a real stretch," said Jajuga, D-Methuen. "I don't see how anyone can make that an argument when it's a privilege, not a right, to drive in the commonwealth."

The margin in the Senate was big enough to override an expected veto from Gov. William Weld, and supporters were confident House supporters could muster a few more votes to make it veto proof there.

Under the bill, those caught not wearing their safety belts would be ticketed and fined $25. The old fine was $15. Police could not pull motorists over for not wearing seat belts, but could cite offenders only if they were pulled over for another traffic offense.

Supporters of the measure say Massachusetts will miss out on millions of federal highway project dollars in coming years without it. Weld has said he can transfer money from other accounts into the highway fund to make up the difference.

The bill would require the state Division of Insurance to cut bodily insurance rates by 5 percent if seat belt use in the state rises to 50 percent. Currently the rate is about 32 percent.

■ nationalism

continued from page 3

Davis encouraged "economic nationalism" by supporting local black businesses. He cited "Dorthy and Leeroy's" soul food restaurant on route nine in Hadley as an example, and said members of the local black community should eat there "at least twice a month."

"There is no such thing as an individual in African tradition," said Davis. "Everyone is part of a family, groups of which make up clans, which are combined to form a tribe."

Davis said the Yoruba of western Nigeria is Africa's largest, numbering at over 12 million.

Both Allen and Davis declared the current status of the Black community both locally and globally as "the worst they've seen in their lifetimes." Allen said "there are no solutions coming from the outside."

Davis said in closing of Black Nationalism, "We ain't gonna survive without it."

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家湘園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over- $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Thrills
Write for the Arts & Living Section.
You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!
113 Campus Center
545-1361
The Collegian Party Band

Joe Satriani
Time Machine
Specially Priced Double CD & Cassette
19.99 CD
14.99 Cass
Sale Ends 11/14
Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES
HADLEY, Russel St. & Route 9 (413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St (413)536-2222
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St. (413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd. (413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave. (413)737-4128
ENFIELD, CT., Rte. 190 Hazard Ave. (203)741-3030

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
MT. FARMS 8
Call Theatre For Showtimes
HAMPSHIRE 8
Call Theatre For Showtimes

LOST CAMERA
CANON T-90 #1153793
$$ REWARD $$
545-1701 or 665-0589
NO QUESTIONS!!!

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
Open 7 Days a week
20 % OFF MEALS FRI. AND SAT. EVENING WITH COMEDY SHOW with this ad
Comedy Shows Friday and Saturday at 8:30pm with dinner
Monday -Thursday Dinner Buffet $5.99 Sunday Brunch $6.99
566-1200
VISA FREE PARKING
北京園
ON RT. 9 HADLEY MASTER CARD

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Belittling women's safety

Is the University of Massachusetts advocating rape? Are women's safety issues given lip service in the press, but ignored in practice? Can women depend on a safe ride home, or are they being refused the protection the University claims to provide? On Saturday Oct. 30, the UMass division of Public Safety was put to the test. You decide.

Four women asked Jon, the man working security, for the number of the Escort Service. He gave it to them. They then placed a call to the Escort Service at approximately 11 p.m. asking for a ride from Patterson, in Southwest, to Baker, in Central. The man who answered the phone rudely responded that four women are too many for a driver to take because they won't fit.

A.J.
STEWART

When one of the women pointed out that the mini-vans the Service uses can fit many more than four, she was told that it was against policy to pick up the women. Sorry ladies, but find your own way home. Besides, the man said, four women will be safe.

The women and Jon were shocked. Jon could tell the women were scared and that they had been drinking. He knew the women would not be safe walking on the Saturday night of Halloween weekend, and advised the women to call a few minutes later and go two at a time. They called and the first two girls were picked up.

Ten minutes later, the remaining women called for a ride. The same man answered and informed the women that the call was being traced. He said he knew they were the same women who called earlier and that they were not going to be given a ride. The women offered to wait another 30 minutes in order to secure a ride, they were still denied a ride. It was against policy.

At this point the women were petrified. Jon called the Escort Service and politely asked why the women were not given a ride. He was informed that sometimes people who call are insincere. In order to provide rides for those who really need them, the Escort Service can't send a driver to everyone who asks for a ride.

Jon assured the man that they were right in front of him, and they were most sincere. He repeated the offer that they were willing to wait if it was busy. The man on the phone continued to refuse and told Jon to mind his own business.

At this point Jon became frustrated. He demanded a driver be sent to pick these women up. The man on the phone began yelling, asking Jon if he knew who he was talking to. He told Jon he was his supervisor and if he didn't shut-up, he would lose his job. Jon then repeated his demand, indicating the supervisor could fire him if he wanted, but that the women were going to get a ride.

Jon was put on hold, and after a few minutes a flustered operator told Jon that the women had to hurry over to another dorm to catch their ride. Finally, only after nearly an hour of harassment, insulting treatment and threats did the women secure a simple ride home.

Just what do women have to do to get a ride? Apparently they have to put up with a ton of crap. Perhaps the University wants women to stay at home at night. Or maybe they think that women don't get raped here. Or maybe they just don't care.

In any case, the position taken by the UMass Department of Public Safety is an outrage. It belittles and threatens women's safety, and puts everyone at risk. It is a shame that this university can't act nearly as well as it talks. Those women deserve an apology. The next time, it may not be enough.

A.J. Stewart is a UMass student.

Butthead is not to blame

It's an age old question, right up there with the chicken and the egg. Does life imitate art, or does art imitate life?

Recently the question has been popping up all over Washington and Hollywood, our nation's capital and the world's movie capital. The people discussing the question aren't nickel-and-dime philosophers, and the stakes aren't nickel-and-dime either. This is now a question for our government leaders and billion dollar movie makers.

The practical significance of the question is whether or not the entertainment industry, with its rampant violent images is glorifying the violence, and inspiring destructive and criminal acts.

Derek
MILOSAVLJEVIC

We've all heard the news reports...a five year-old boy apparently imitating Beavis and Butthead's antics with matches, sets his house ablaze, killing his two year-old sister...young people copying a scene from The Program, lie down in the middle of a busy street, leading to at least one death...a cassette of rapper Tupac Shakur's music is found in the player of a car driven by a cop-killer at the time of the murder. The music is blamed for suggesting the act...the list goes on.

Many people take these stories as gospel, as proof that the entertainment industry is destroying our country, without asking questions. Where were those children's parents? A five year-old should not be allowed to watch night time TV unsupervised, let alone be left unattended with his little sister and matches. Those fools lying in the street were old enough to know the difference between the movies and real life, old enough to know it hurts, even kills to get hit by a car. At least one of those daredevils was 21, yes twenty-one years-old. Movie and television producers should not have to be in the business of teaching common sense.

What is truly frightening is these entertainment bigwigs are folding under the media, not necessarily public pressure. The studio cut the street scene from The Program, and MTV has stopped airing Beavis and Butthead at 7:30 p.m. and now leads into the late-night show with a heavy disclaimer, urging the viewer basically, "don't try this at home."

These measures have been taken voluntarily by the studio and network, but now the government is threatening to step in. Attorney General Reno testified last week that if Hollywood does not take steps to curb all the violence, the administration will take steps to curb it for them. It all smells very Orwellian, and one has to wonder if Ms. Reno couldn't find more crucial issues with which to occupy her time.

The Senate also turned to the issue recently, with the esteemed Senator Hollings from good ol' South Carolina taking the forefront. Showing he really has a finger on the pulse of his younger constituents, the senator condemned Buffcoat and Beaver as well as the network production Love and War. The Honorable Mr. Hollings brought a videotape of the latter show, demonstrating the gratuitous violence it airs. Of course the offending scene was in fact a slapstick barroom brawl. That's comedy, Senator. Ha, ha? I'm willing to bet that Mr. Hollings has enjoyed his share of Three Stooges movies throughout his life. Heck, he may even have been to the premieres of a couple. Presumably Moe and friends never once inspired the senator to gouge someone's eyes out or smack 'em in the head with a frying pan.

There is no doubt that crime and violence are tremendous issues troubling our country. The entertainment industry is not the instigator of these problems, it reflects them. To try to eliminate violence from TV and films would be as illegal as it is not plausible. Violence exists, and sometimes it makes great entertainment. Hamlet wouldn't be much of a show without the murders.

As for Reno, Hollings and co., they would do well to work on the real causes of violence and crime, poverty and social injustice, and stop watching so much damn TV.

Derek Milosavljevic is UMass student.

No justice for Sutton's victims

What is justice? Justice is in fact indefinable but injustice is something everyone understands. Lorenzo Sutton knows about injustice. He had a promising career cut short by an accident. He sits in jail while cancer spreads through his body. Lynn Montibello [Collegian, Nov. 2] sees this as an injustice and is mounting an effort to petition the parole board for Sutton's release.

But who shows any understanding for the women Sutton attacked? Lorenzo Sutton destroyed three women's lives with violence. They also know about injustice. They know what it is like to fear for their lives. They know the side of Lorenzo that doesn't appear in sympathetic bylines or memories of UMass hoop games past. They know exactly what Lorenzo is capable of. Who empathizes with them?

There will be no justice for Lorenzo Sutton or his victims. His victims will never forget the terror they experienced at his hands. They will never forget the look on his face while he attacked them. They will never forget the fear they felt after.

Let Lorenzo's mind be free in a prison hospital not on the streets of your community. Let him receive treatment but not a revocation of his sentence. Lorenzo Sutton committed violent crimes on more than one occasion and he should be held responsible for his actions. What if he attacked your sister? Mother? You...?

Name withheld at author's request.

MassPIRG battles for a student voice in Beacon Hill's quagmire

The signatures have been counted and the word is out! Students and citizens all across the state have collected over 86,000 signatures — almost twice the amount needed — in the first petition drive to protect our rights in the Legislature.

This is a major victory for student empowerment in this state. But the fight isn't over yet. Take a minute to find out why you, a college student, should know about the war that the state government and special interest groups are waging on your rights.

Succumbing to pressure from corporate strongholds, Gov. Weld passed a law this summer that makes it illegal for us — students at public college campuses in Massachusetts — to effectively form and fund groups like MassPIRG that lobby for political action. Associated Industries of Massachusetts (AIM), one of the biggest industry lobbyists in the state, generated much of this pressure.

They persuaded the Legislature to outlaw the collection of student-elected waivable fees. The fee for MassPIRG — currently $4 per semester here at UMass — has for 20 years provided a financial base for student activism on Beacon Hill. Taking away this right severely restricts the impact of our voice on the environmental and consumer issues that concern thousands of college students across the state.

Moreover, when those in positions of power use their money and influence to silence different views and preserve the status quo, that's not democracy. That is tyranny.

The law says to students that while we can vote for our officials, we can't unite and organize ourselves effectively to tell them what issues we want addressed.

The overwhelming support for the repeal of this law sent a message to our legislature that people in this state recognize this assault. It says that people believe in preserving the power of the student voice to effect social and political change.

We believe it too. At UMass alone, over 80 percent of the voting student population has supported assessment of this waivable fee for the past twenty years. And activist groups such as MassPIRG — the Massachusetts Student Public Interest Research Group — have successfully transformed these student-elected funds into critical consumer and environmental legislation. We are actively working for legislation that is for the benefit of many, not the profit of the few.

Join us in the fight to protect our rights and clean up the democratic process. Believe in the power of your own voice. Sign the petitions.

We have less than three weeks to push for the next stage in protecting our rights. To volunteer some time in this fight, find us in the Student Union, Room 423B, or call 545-0199.

Erica Habert
MassPIRG, UMass chapterv

No, you can't stop me!

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN

Jennifer Calvani, a sophomore psychology major, is saved from a hideous fate by Sean Donnelly, a junior engineering major.

NAFTA debate rages

Treaty opposition boils over in Mass.

Boston (AP) - Several Massachusetts environmental groups spoke out Thursday against the North American Free Trade Agreement, fearing it would weaken protections for the consumers and the environment.

The agreement would sharply reduce trade barriers among the United States, Canada and Mexico. It was supported by President Clinton and Gov. William Weld and opposed by organized labor and several environmental organizations. The state's congressional delegation is divided.

Congress is expected to vote on the plan this month.

Rob Sargent of the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group said he is concerned the treaty could result in local and state environmental and consumer protection laws being struck down as "technical barriers to trade."

"NAFTA represents an immediate threat to state and local governments' sovereignty and their ability to establish rules to protect their citizens," Sargent said.

He said the treaty could result in state laws being struck down as trade barriers without giving the states any chance to argue the case.

The treaty, he said, also could challenge purchasing policies designed to create markets for recycled goods and energy conservation technologies.

It would continue subsidies for fossil fuels without giving the same treatment to renewable energy or conservation and it provides too little money for cleaning up border pollution caused by companies that move across the border to avoid U.S. environmental laws, Sargent said.

"If NAFTA is not good for the environment, it's not good for anyone," James McCaffrey, director of the Massachusetts Sierra Club, said.

Other groups attending a news conference to oppose NAFTA were Clean Water Action, the Massachusetts Toxics Campaign, Massachusetts Citizen Action and Massachusetts Save James Day.

CopyCat PRINT SHOP

We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!

228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840

RESUME ECONO PACKAGE only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting (3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles

*Bulk Rate Copies... OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

Sign up now for Winter Session

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

You won't regret it!

Winter Session '94 January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education 615 Goodell Building 545-3653

TEACHER VACANCIES
HISTORY 17), MATH (5) ALSO ART, ENGLISH & PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR OAK PARK ILLINOIS PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOL (A CHICAGO SUBURB). RICH CURRICULUM DIVERSE COMMUNITY AND STUDENT BODY. DROP-IN SESSION AT MATHER CAREER CNTR. MONDAY, NOV. 8, 1993 10:30 TO 1:30 OR WRITE DR. FRANK DANES, 201 N. SCOVILLE, O.P. 60302; 1-800-251-3475 B.A. $29,000+.

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS

WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.

79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst 413-256-1261

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

BOWE HOLYFIELD REPEAT OR REVENGE

WORLD HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1993 9 PM EST / 6 PM PST

$6.00 Admission

$6.00 Admission

University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435

NOW YOUR LAST WEEKEND TO SEE IT!
Ends Nov. 11th Daily at 9:35pm only
Tickets on sale from 8:30pm

"SPECTACULARLY FUNNY! The Ultimate Party Movie, Socially Irresponsible And Totally Irresistible." - Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE

"Two thumbs up!" - SISKEL & EBERT

Dazed and Confused

music-Aerosmith-Deep Purple-ZZ Top-Alice Cooper-War-Peter Frampton & more

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Arts & Living

Merl Saunders, yeP! to jam at Pearl Street

PHOTO COURTESY SUMERTONE RECORDS

Merl Saunders will light up Pearl Street tonight with opening band, yeP!

By PHILIP LEVASSEUR
Collegian Correspondent

Merl Saunders & The Rainforest Band will bring their own unique flavor of high-energy music to Pearl Street tonight in Northampton. Opening for Merl and the guys, is the local band yeP!, winners of a preliminary bout of the Battle of the Bands three weeks ago. Tonight's show should prove to be an interesting blend of R&B, jazz, rock and new-age that reverberates the San Francisco bay area's style charisma and sound.

The band includes Merl Saunders (keyboards, vocals), best known for his collaborations with Jerry Garcia of The Grateful Dead, Michael Hinton (guitar, vocals), who has played with the Grateful Dead's drummer Micky Hart on the compilation LP entitled High Noon. Norton Buffalo of The Steve Miller Band, Michael Warren (bass, synthesizer, vocals), who has performed with the likes of Charles Brown, and The Carribean Allstars and Vince Littleton (drums, percussion, vocals), who was discovered by Merl when he sat in for Spencer Dryden of Jefferson Airplane.

A native of San Francisco, Saunders has been in the music business for over 30 years and is widely known for his expertise in blues, jazz, rock and new-age. His last project entitled Blues From The Rainforest that was composed, arranged and produced by Saunders is a collaboration with Jerry Garcia, Muruga (George Clinton, Weather Report, Dave Brubeck) and Eddie Moore (Stanley Turrentine, Sonny Rollins). It was on Billboard's New-Age Chart for 27 weeks and topped the chart at no. 4. In Billboard's 1991 "The Year in Music," Blues From The Rainforest was the no. 9 top new-age album, while Saunders was voted no. 7 new-age artist.

Saunders co-wrote the theme for the CBS television series "The Twilight Zone," and his new group The Rainforest Band has performed the music which Merl composed called On a Deadman's Chest for the season premier of HBO's "Tales From The Crypt," which aired on June 27, 1992. The band's latest release entitled IT'S IN THE AIR received a considerable amount of airplay nationally. Save The Planet So We'll Have Someplace To Boogie is a double live CD with over two hours of live music in which the band has performed on.

Merl Saunders discography includes eight solo albums on Fantasy Records, the most renowned of which is Live at Keystone with Jerry Garcia. His earlier works Heavy Turbulence and Fire It Up (also with Jerry Garcia) have been compiled and released on a CD by Fantasy Records entitled Fire It Up +. He also recorded Do I Move You? for Crystal Clear Records.

Tunes for our times

Insight on the music scene near & far

For some very silly reason, Radlohead and Belly put on a fantastic show in our SUB to an enthusiastic house, and the event was passed over in the review column here. Well, the show was intense and sweaty, and Tanya Donnelly is poised to be the hippest rock-sex symbol since Belinda Carlisle sported a chubby smile and claimed to have the beat...Belinda actually joins Evan Dando for a duet on the Lemonheads' latest Come On Feel the Lemonheads, and makes one realize that the group is truly an early 90s male version of the Go-Gos - pure pop for pop people.

It took 45 minutes for the Smashing Pumpkins to sell out the Avalon in Boston on Saturday. They are quite a supergroup waiting to happen, and with a little luck, Billy Corgan can keep them from rattle and humming through superstardom like some other groups today...

Wonder why you've heard so little about Nirvana's latest? Hmmm...let's see. Perhaps it's because Nirvana didn't compromise themselves to appeal to the masses. They played music they like - loud, ugly and distorted music that didn't try to emulate the bountifully produced and over-publicized Nevermind. As a result, they're not going to sell half the copies they did with their last album and they probably wouldn't have it any other way...

For the last time, Pearl Jam is not alternative. They are a hard rock band writing catchy hooks with a lot of soul, riding on the coattails of the alternative-to-mainstream transformation...

Why is it that when rap stars and rock stars get together, they have nothing better to sing about than rap stars and rock stars getting together?... Hey, Stone Temple Pilots, remember them? You used to like them. I'm Crazy Weiland Guy, now gimme some money...Bring back Solid Gold, I miss Marilyn McCoo...

Have you been wondering what happened to My Bloody Valentine? I sure have. Since 1991's breathtaking Loveless and the ensuing tour, the Vals have been nowhere to be seen. There is however a taste of their genius on the Peace Together compilation, a benefit disc for irish children. The song, "All the Love in the World" sounds nothing like anything the band's done so far. This experimentation should come as no surprise to the band's followers. It's an eerie and gorgeous tune, almost alone worth the price of the album.

Now don't get me wrong, I don't dislike Lenny Kravitz, but for those diehard Lenny fans, I have two words - Jimi Hendrix. Go listen to Are You Experienced, then come talk to me...Speaking of whom, there is a tribute disc to the Voodoo Chile coming out. Many worthy musicians contributed songs, but who decided that The Cure should cover "Purple Haze?" Well, Robert Smith and Jimi do have similar hair...

It would seem that the 90s are shaping up to be a decade founded on revivals. The first three years has seen the music industry cough up everything from big 70s rock riffs (that Seattle-sound thing), 70s soft rock (Soul Asylum, Toad the Wet Sprocket), to classic disco beats (check your local dance charts).

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY
Compiled by Brian Babineau & Adam Goulston

The feeling here is that in the next few years, an 80s music revival (uh-oh) will most certainly be regurgitated. So watch this space for weekly updates on the 80s revival. This week's update - Frankie Goes To Hollywood, and their synth-pop ode to orgasm, "Relax," have resurfaced in the top 10 in Britain. So brace yourself for skinny ties and feathered hair - the John Hughes Generation is about to take control.

UPCOMING STUFF

•The Hatch - Here's one you want to see: Stick and Clutch this Sunday. New talent and a good price.

•Amherst College's Buckley Recital Hall - Matthew Sweet, that modern-day master of the pop tune brings his tasty show to Amherst also on Sunday. Hollyfaith opens.

•Pearl Street - Jerry Garcia protege Merl Saunders & the Rainforest Band play tonight. The name may not ring a bell, but the jamming should be first rate. More jams Thursday with Col. Bruce Hampton & the Aquarium Rescue Unit.

•Bay State Cabaret - More quality on Sunday with the Poster Children, Eric's Trip and Red Red Meat. Catch local favorites New Radiant Storm King on Tuesday. Remember, Bay State shows are all 21+.

•Show worth traveling for - Tanya's gone but the Muses live on. Throwing Muses play Providence, R.I.'s Club Babyhead tomorrow night sans Tanya Donnelly. This may be one of the last great shows at Babyhead which is going the dance route.

A comic look at why dogs are better than men

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

For as many reasons as Jennifer Berman gives "Why Dogs Are Better Than Men," (and there are quite a few,) I still hope she'd choose me over a slobbering basset hound as a dinner date. It would turn heads to see a woman walking hand-in-hand, well...paw, with a dog into a movie theater, for example. Well, stranger things have happened, I suppose.

Berman is president of Humerus Cartoons, a national line of postcards, and is a syndicated cartoonist in M.S., New Age Journal, The Chicago Times, and 50 other publications nationwide.

She expresses the often-voiced sentiment that men are more often like the gum on the bottom of a shoe than not, and that Fido is much easier to deal with, relate to, and understand. Conversation-wise, the dog simply agrees with everything a woman says and wags his tail, and no dog ever bragged about who he slept with.

The book depicts the battle of the sexes in a humorous way, and utilizes the title as a parallel to guys' often-muttered quote: "Why a beer is better than a woman."

The book is separated into three sections, the thickest one ("of course," she emphasizes) being why dogs are better than men. This, in turn, makes me wonder why a woman calls a man a dog when he seems like he's only out for one thing. Guess we'll never understand 'em, boys. Anyway, the second deals with why dogs and men are equivalent, and, finally she manages to scrounge up 10 areas in which men are superior, ending the pseudo-manual on what I'll call a so-so note.

Some of the other comparisons she noted that I could at least partly understand for their validity, however laughable (remember this was written as a guide by the women, of the women, and for the women,) were that dogs don't criticize your friends, are trainable, understand what "no" means, and best of all, dogs look you in the eyes.

"I love you for your mind, baby—really!"

One interesting and thought-provoking reflection she noted was that man's best friend is color-blind. Definitely a turn to DOGS, page 8

PICTURE BY JENNIFER BERMAN

According to Berman, our canine friends are better than men because, "Dogs admit it when they're lost."

■ dogs

continued from page 7

good point, since many of us claim to not have any prejudices hidden anywhere, yet we know wholeheartedly that we've got the "ism's" and are just too ignorant to admit it.

Dogs, on the other hand... er, paw (gotta get it right or I'll undoubtedly have an animal lover writing letters,) can't distinguish white from black from burnt [expletive] umber, and probably don't give a whoop.

The book was an interesting read and rather easy on the eyes, with lots of cutesy pictures and no more than 41 words on a single page. In other words, it wasn't another psychology-based, in-depth, data-laden, sour message of how men need to clean up their acts.

Rather, it was something both genders could look at and say, "Hey, do I DO that?"

It is a relationship handbook in its simplest and most logical form, and for facts per reading minute, it brings the message home well. The only squack I could make, I suppose, is the $8 price tag. I don't need to pay that to know I, like a dog, fart shamelessly.

Attention Arts/Living writers:

There will be a mandatory meeting on Monday, Nov. 8, at 5:30 p.m. to discuss our 1993 Best and Worst Issue. All correspondents and staff are encouraged to contribute, so bring ideas to 113 Campus Center.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA PETE'S DRIVE IN

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM • Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 EXPIRES 11/27/93
Northampton Bowl

Amherst College Presents . . .
Matthew Sweet
with special guest
Holly Faith
Sunday, November 7
8pm Buckley Recital Hall
$7 Amherst ID
$10 General
tickets now on sale at For the Record in Amherst, the Northhampton Box Office: 586-8686 and the Campus Center room 103 or at Buckley Recital Hall the night of the show only
Paul Westerberg
Monday, November 29
9pm Buckley Recital Hall
$10 Amherst
$15 General
tickets on sale now at the Campus Center room 103, For the Record in Amherst and the Northampton Box Office for more info, please call: 542-5773 do not call Buckley Recital Hall

See What The Excitement Is All About
Come To Bob's Information Session
Date: November 8, 1993
Time: 7:00 pm
Place: The Campus Center, RM 811-15
Bob's Stores, a division of the Melville Corporation, provides a dominant selection of brand name casual clothing and footwear for the entire family. Bob's is a company that is positioned for growth! We are looking for people who want to be part of a fast-paced environment where quick decision making is the norm. Bob's unique retail methods and company atmosphere give our employees the opportunity to use their talent, exercise their common sense, and develop their ability to learn from mistakes. As a Management Trainee with Bob's, you'll experience the benefits of a 12-week management training program that offers the opportunity to rotate through every area of our store.
Make it a point to attend our Information Session. Whether you're graduating now or in the future, don't miss this opportunity to find out about an exciting career with Bob's.
Great Benefits
Bob's offers a benefit package that includes tuition reimbursement, merchandise discounts, comprehensive medical, dental, life, disability, retirement plans and much more.
BOB'S STORES
Everyone's Favorite Store!
A Subsidiary of Melville Corporation
160 Corporate Court, Meriden, CT 06450-8313
An equal opportunity employer

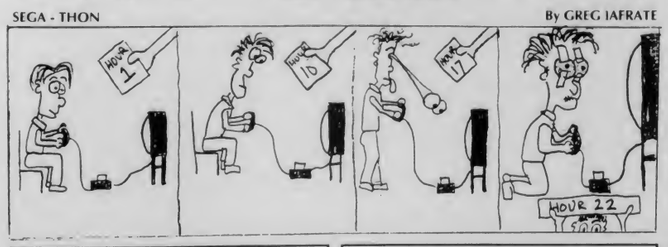
Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
Friday Happy Hour
4 til 6
Miller Genuine Draft
T-Shirts & Prizes
Free Pizza Slices
$1.25 Weekly Special
Newly Remodeled Dining Area
Satellite TV • 4-Pool Tables
University Drive & Amity
Amherst • 549-4040

swatch
FOSSIL
J•RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst • 253-2013 Open 7 days
22 Masonic St. Northampton • 586-6336 Open 7 days • Thurs. nights 'til 9

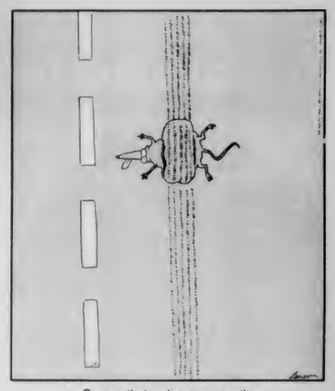
CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



LIZ & EMMA By M. GATELY



VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

SEGA - THON By GREG IAFRATE

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

Scenes that make a crow smile

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"When he is late for dinner and I know he must be either having an affair or lying dead on the street, I always hope he's dead."
– Judith Viorst

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tend off a persistent admirer. Be as emphatic as possible. Long-range savings programs are a great idea. Welcome an opportunity to purchase your dream car or plan a fabulous summer vacation!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Students now know what they want to do next. Be as financially generous to your family as possible. Anyone working in the medical field should make real progress this month.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Plunging headlong into a sideline love affair is not a good idea. Fulfill an agreement to the best of your ability. A large-scale project may take more time than anticipated. Settle down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There is no need for financial panic; you have a reserve or resource you have forgotten about. Face a setback stoically. Tomorrow will look brighter once you talk things over with your partner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not go to extremes or open your wallet too widely. Negotiate for better terms before signing a contract or agreement. Refuse to act without full knowledge of something taking place behind the scenes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seek good advice and act on it. You may have to travel on short notice. Show greater flexibility and understanding when dealing with loved ones. A romantic tie is strengthened by your words.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Beware of taking too much time for granted where your dear ones are concerned. Do not tempt them with too much money. Concentrate on communications and visits that could brighten your financial future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be patient when others are slow to grasp your meaning. Great successes, like oak trees, can grow from something small. Your passionate nature is a turn on to someone who knows you well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Continue to rely on your own intuition. A healthy skepticism can avert embarrassing errors in judgment. Practice preventive medicine; make appointments for dental and medical checkups.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your congenial mood sets the stage for successful teamwork today. Telling others what you hope to accomplish rallies support from fans and big thinkers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A powerful professional or personal alliance gives you new clout. People listen when you bring your ideas to the table. A longtime battle will end in victory.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A wave of inspiration sends your spirits into orbit. Apply your innovative ideas to the field of service. Seniors will get great satisfaction from involvement in humanitarian causes. Fortune is on your side; use it!

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Sandy Bogage
Production ..... Tony Morse
Marni E. Helfner

MENU

LUNCH
Duchess Meat Pie
Clam Roll
BASICS LUNCH
Veggie Grinder
Clam Roll

DINNER
Cajun Baby Fish
Chicken Tenders!!!!
BASICS DINNER
Ratatatatouille
Chicken Tenders!!!!

OPEN HOUSE

The Collegian would like to invite any and all interested students, faculty, staff and administration to an open house today from 1 to 3 p.m. The open house will be held in the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center (downstairs). Refreshments will be served.

Sweaters

100% cotton turtlenecks, v-necks, roll-necks
& cropped styles.
100% wool sweaters
from Equador.
$34.95-$59.95

Basic DUDS at Faces

northampton • main st. • 7 days

A-10 preview

continued from page 12

Donnelly.

Rutgers will be relying on A-10 leading scorer Heather Jones to lead them to victory.

"Sure we'll rely on her, but we have to know that other people can score," said Petracco.

"All season we've been putting our best defenders on opposing teams leading scorers," said Donnelly, who also added that Leslie Caito would get the unenviable task of marking Jones.

When the two teams squared off in mid-September, Rutgers came away with a 1-0 victory. Donnelly expects another close game.

"It will definitely be an even tougher game," said Donnelly.

The winner of the UMass-Temple game will play the winner of the URI-Rutgers contest in the conference championship Sunday at noon.

picks

continued from page 12

starting; plain and simple. This week Parcells' boys go after the Buffalo Bills in a sold-out Foxboro Stadium. Unbelievable. I receive complaints about a lot of things, especially my treatment of the Bills. Well, heading into the contest with the Patriots, it's all uphill for Kelly and company. Buffalo 11, New England 9 (of course, finding another way to blow a game. Try a safety).

Before I pick my last game, which is Dallas vs. NYG, a veteran writer of mine has been on my case asking for his own column. Well, he'll split with me during the NBA season, goin' by-weekly with yours truly on Notes from the Hardwood. But for now, Andrew Bryce "Clav" has to stick to the Ed/Op pages. However, due to the side-splitting laughter and the tears he has caused with other columns in the past, I've decided to give him some space. Go ahead, Bryce:

"Thanks, Arthur, for the patronizing, pity space of your column. A few things to say while I bask in my glory. For the NFL, I unfortunately have to agree with you for once. The Cowboys are the best team in the league. That does not necessarily mean that you have to be covered by a despicable Cowboys blanket every night, but they are the best. For college, the Minutemen are on a roll. Keep it up this week. As for my bi-weekly NBA column, I hope everybody will be interested in my insight during the upcoming season. Back to you, Mr. Sports Editor."

Thanks, Ange. As for the Cowboys, even though Rodney Hampton is back for the Giants this week, it will be no contest. Dallas 55, New York 10.

Arthur Stapleton is a Collegian columnist.

VISA

With Visa® you'll be accepted at more than 10 million places, nearly three times more than American Express. And that's not a misprint.

Visa. It's Everywhere You Want To Be.®

©Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1993

The Massachusetts DAILY COLLEGIAN

IN SOME COUNTRIES, THIS IS WHAT THEY CONSIDER FREEDOM OF SPEECH. NOT GOOD.

DAILY SINCE 1967

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM - Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 expires 11/17/93
Northampton Bowl

Women's Clothing & Accessories

Amherst 413.253.2563
Brattleboro 802.254.4421
Williamstown 413.458.9858

SPORTS NOTICE:

Tickets for Saturday night's hockey game against Worcester State will be given out at the north end of McGuirk Stadium on Saturday.

Tryouts for singers interested in doing the national anthem for basketball and hockey games will be held in the Curry Hicks Cage Tuesday night at 7 p.m.

The Mullins Center will have a tailgating party near the north end of McGuirk tomorrow before the football game, beginning at 11:45 a.m.

football

continued from page 12

Reid. "At his job in Richmond, the team won three games the year before and since he's been there his record speaks for itself."

It hasn't been easy for either the University or the Reid family. The athletic department has purged itself since the incident, and a renewed commitment to UMass football has been instituted by a new head coach, a new chancellor and a new president.

Suffice it to say that two years ago, the head of the University system wasn't banging on the windows of his private box after a Reid-coached player ran for a touchdown.

"I think things probably changed because he left," Pickett said. "If he had stayed, maybe things would have remained the same."

Although the Richmond defense has given up 65 points in the last two games, the Minutemen aren't fooled. They said they know Reid's defense will come ready to play.

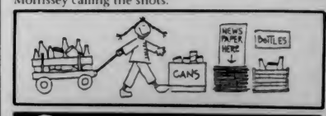
"I have a lotta respect for the guy and we saw him last spring," said captain Bill Durkin. "What it all comes down to is that we're playing Richmond, not Jim Reid, and we know he's got his kids down there playing like us. We have to be ready to play tough."

On offense, the Spiders have quarterback Greg Lilly, who is a extraordinary passer. He has Rod Boothes at wideout and Uly Brown in the backfield to throw to. The team has only been able to muster 17 points in its last two defeats, and last year the Minutemen held Lilly to 87 yards passing.

Many of the players at UMass are Reid-recruited and said they still respect him. The two teams are battling each other, with a playoff berth on the line, but when they line up against each other on that first play of scrimmage . . .

"in a sense, it will be a Jim Reid team playing another Jim Reid team," Pickett said.

Game Notes: The game can be heard on WTIT 1440 AM with Mike Fagerson and Jim Degnim and on WMUA 91.1 FM with Anthony Guido and Michael Morrissey calling the shots.



Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive
253-7727
Next to Price Chopper
Introductory Tanning 8 Visits For $29.00

Classifieds

- 20c per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Computer BBS
Tons of games, applications, pictures and utilities. Message areas, and 50+ multi-player on-line games!
Set your TAU to 19,200 bps · ANSI-8N1 & dial 3-6481

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name and address to GroupOne PO Box 276 Dayon, Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Free Condoms
Listen to WOCH Thurs 12-3 pm

ATTENTION TREKKIES!

Would you like to see "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation" for free?
Student Valley Production needs ushers and other misc. help for the performances on Nov. 17th-20th. For more information please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale: 1972 Chevy Chevelle, mint condition, 8 cylinder, auto, white. Asking $5500. 229-2622

78 Grand Prix 301 V8 runs good needs little to pass inspection t-tops Nathan 546-5144

1985 Mercury Lynx 60000 miles 546-6279

1985 Chrysler LeBaron GTS · Hatchback, powerblocks, windows/cruise/AM/FM/Tape deck, very reliable, needs new tires. 1500/Eric 253-0744

86 Chevy Cavalier new motor plus more! $1200. 72 Saab "as is" $250. 70 Cadillac antique Deville $2000. 665-7114/531-9027 24 hours

1986 Ford Escort
$950 Neg.
546-3793

1989 Honda CRX, Excellent condition, $6000 or BO. Call (413)773-9720 after 6 pm.

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

Subar '88 DL Wagon 5 spd., am/fm stereo Cass, 110K No rust! Ask for $2500 323-5574 (nights) 545-0188 (day)

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

FOR RENT

1 bedroom Apt. All utilities. Available immediately. Stephanie 665-2947

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

Take Over Our Lease
Have 2 need 2 females for Brandywine Jan 1st
Call Sherry or Sue 549-8248

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Billy Joel Tickets for sale cheap. Sunday 11/07 at the Centrum 516-797-7469

DIGITAL SPEAKER - perfect for walkman and diskman. With adapter $60. 546-0301 leave message

Famous Sports, film, comic characters lifesize stand-ups $20. See gigantic display Poor Boyz, Sunderland Center Weekendz only 24 hours "Everything"

Full Size Bed/Boxspring $60
Wicker Shelving $10
Kitchen Table $8
TV Table $5
End Table $3
Call Melissa at 256-8570

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition - Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Roundtrip Peter Pan Bus ticket to NY $40 546-0938

Sony CD Player
1 Disk w/remote
New! $95
Steve 546-4173

Sterter Pullover
Hartford Whaler Pullover Jacket $50
Never worn
Reg: $109
Call Rich at 6-5665

Top of the line Sony Discman
Good condition - ton of features
Call Mark 6-5093

HELP WANTED

College Students 1 1/2 Hrs: $25
NES is seeking college students considering teaching careers (jrs, srs, and grad students) in the fields below to take sample tests: English, History, and Math. Nov. 9, 1993 at the Newman Center, N. Pleasant St. Amh. Any 1 1/2 hrs 9-5:30. $25 per test. If interested, bring student ID and #2 pencils. Pre-registration not necessary.

Cruise Ships Now Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month + world travel. Summer and career employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Experienced Babysitter w/own transportation needed. Ghd area Fri., Sat., or Sun. Susan 825-2598

Travel Free!! Spring Break
Quality vacations to hot destinations! Cancun, Jamaica, Florida, Bahamas, S. Padre! Sell "Professional" tour packages! Best commissions/service! Sun Splash Tours 1-800-426-7710

INSTRUCTION

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Classes start Nov. 10th, at 7 pm in Campus Center room #811. For registration info call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOST

Backpack. Dark Blue Eastpack lost in/near Franklin. Bummed out - need notebooks desperately. Any info call 6-0429

Gloves lost! Black, above the wrist, winter gloves lost on campus. Reward for their return or info leading to the return. I need these. Please call 256-3480 leave message if no answer.

We have almost lost hope for our distinctive leather jacket distressed and slightly green (the jacket, not us) Dark 5-pockets U2wearmeout label in it. Big reward. (Big!) Call 546-7407 Please

Withoutmy racket, I am useless! Purple, pro kennex, racquetball racquet. Lost in Herter. Call 6-2422

MINUTEMAN T-SHIRT

Want to show your school's colors? Wear the "Minuteman and Proud!" t-shirt. Send $12.50 ($10 + $2.50 s/h) in cash, check or money order payable to 'LexiCon Productions' to P.O. Box 2814, Amherst, MA 01004.

MUSICIANS

Bassist needed for alt/punk band
Call Adam 6-6888

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

PERSONALS

Allyse:
Get off my back!
Burrell

Crab
Happy Birthday
Lizard

Danielle
Wonder, excitement
Who would it be?
Can't wait 'til you find out
We're PHIfamily
Love Your Big Sis

Dear Michelle,
I can't wait to be your big sister!
You are truly PHInominal!
Love, Your Big Sis

Dear AEΦ Pledges:
Keep up the good work - you guys are doing awesome!
Phi Love, Leann

Devil Children
Let's keep our heads up and finish strong.
We will survive!
Love Always
"Little One"

Dimoe
Mr. European Club
Happy Birthday Nov 6
No Party - No gift
Your fun club and all the ups
P.S. We will miss you!

Erika U. and Alison L.
Have a Phi nominal birthday!!
We love you!
The Sisters and Pledges of AEPhi

Erika
Happy 20th Birthday!
We Love You!
Love Jahmel

Happy Birthday Tokunbo
Wish you many more
Katumu

Heidi
You may be surprised
I'm not who you think
I'm so happy you're part of my family
I love you
Phi Love, Your Big Sis

Jackie-
I'll crash for you.
I'll fall for you.
Just name it little sis!
Phi Love

Kore
I can't wait til you know who I am
Get ready for a PHInominal semester!
Love
Big Sis

Mary Lyon Crew T.W., D.B., K.L., C.D., J.H., S.K., C.B., A.B., M.M., L.M., S.E., A.G. I'm vaclempt Gotta love me!
Love,
Tara

Men's Novice Crew Team
Good Luck!
Row well at the Yale Invitational
Be Confident!
Be Strong!
Be Relaxed!
Be AGGRESSIVE!
Love, Your Coxswains

Merri
I'm psyched you're my lil sis!
We are gonna have a great semester together!
Phi Luv
Your Big Sis

Mr. Bowes is back & kickin'!
Happy 21st!
Love, Jacqui & Marsa

Nancy Alpert
All your hard work has come to this.
May you shine like never before!

Pete K.
is
A Big Tool!
IBMs are overrated typewriters

Pookie – Just a little reminder 3- per day!! Pook

Those great guys from Canada
Good luck on Saturday, eh?
We'll be cheering for you!
Lova Your Two Biggest Fans!

Tokunbo Thompson
Happy Legalized day
May God in his goodness grant you lila's happiness
Love,
Family

Tokunbo
Happy Belated Birthday
I will always love you
Deji

Wayne Keefner
What will we do with two pairs of hand cuffs? Thanks for being such a great boyfriend. I love you!
Tootse

Women Swimmers and Divers
Great preseason! Now the fun begins
Swim fast and rip em
Bob Dorsey Ed Tarry

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roommate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

November 12th is the last day to contact the Legal Services Center about a Spring, 1994 Internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TO SUBLET

We want to sublet
Your 2 bedroom
Puffton Apartment
Spring Semester!
Melissa 549-3952

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov. 19-21 Killington Weekend $99
Winter Break Ski Week Killington
Jan. 16-21 $275 sign up today at Con course tabla or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Type/edit papers $1.50/pg Tanya 549-5519

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 548-4722

Sound Board and Light Board operators for Student Valley Productions "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation." Performance dates are Nov. 17-20th. You will also be needed for tech rehearsals. For more information, please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

To rent a room near campus Preferrably in Amherst. Call 546-6730

WANTED TO RENT

Need someone to take over your Amherst area house lease
Call 549-7213

2 Bedroom Apt. /house in Hadley only Late Dec./early Jan. 549-5840

Sports

No. 25 football battles Richmond, Reid

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

A sign on the wall of the University of Massachusetts football team's locker room this week reads "Back in the House," and after squeaking out a 21-17 win at Northeastern last week, the team is back at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium for its final three games of the season.

On Saturday when the Minutemen (6-2) play the University of Richmond, there will be somebody else who is back in the house for the first time in a while: former UMass Coach Jim Reid.

Reid left Amherst in February 1992 after 18 seasons at UMass when the athletic department decided to pull 15 football scholarships out from under him without prior notice.

Out of principle, Reid resigned rather than go back on his word to recruits whom he promised scholarships.

"He's a person of principle," said former UMaine Head Coach Walter Abbott, who Reid credits as the second-most influential person in his life after his father. "He's the type of person who when he commits his word, he backs it up.

"Many years ago, he decided that you pass the baton forward in a race, you don't look back and you don't belly-ache," said Abbott. "That's the way he's approached this — looking positive and forward."

Reid served as a graduate assistant, an assistant coach and head coach at UMass, and was the winningest UMass football coach in the decade of the 1980s.

He won three Yankee Conference championships in six years, went to the Division I-AA Playoffs twice and was named Kodak/Coaches I-AA Region I Coach-of-the-Year Award in 1990.

After leaving Massachusetts, Reid was quickly gobbled up by the Richmond football program. It meant he would have to leave his wife and three children, one of whom attends UMass.

"What else can you say about him as a coach?" asks Assistant Athletic Director Bob Pickett, who coached with

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Brian Corcoran and his mates from the No. 25 University of Massachusetts football attempt to extend its winning streak to six games when they host former Coach Jim Reid and the Richmond Spiders Saturday.

Minutewomen ready for A-10 championships

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team looks to successfully defend its Atlantic 10 Tournament championship this weekend in Philadelphia.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

A No. 6 national ranking and a 16-3 record (4-0 in conference play) are the credentials that the University of Massachusetts field hockey team brings into this weekend's Atlantic 10 Tournament, but on the field that doesn't mean very much as all of their A-10 rivals will be hoping to upset the top-seeded Minutewomen.

The tournament seeds had an unexpected shake up on Tuesday when Rhode Island upset Temple 1-0 in penalty strokes. The victory vaulted URI (1-2-1 in A-10) into the third seed, while the Owls (1-4 in A-10) fell to fourth. Tournament host St. Joseph's did not qualify for the tournament.

The first round should prove very competitive as most of the A-10 regular season games were decided by one goal.

No. 1 Massachusetts versus No. 4 Temple

When these two teams met earlier this season, the Minutewomen beat the Owls 3-0 at UMass, in a game that the Minutewomen dominated from start to finish.

Lack of consistency has plagued the Owls all season. Temple Coach Lauren Fuchs hopes that her Owls will be prepared to play UMass.

"This is a big rivalry. Our players will be up for the game," said Fuchs. "We will have to play well and play good defense."

Fuchs will need improved performances from leading scorer Debbie Utz, who was a virtual non-factor in the previous match up, and goalie Lori Benner, who gave up three goals to the Minutewomen, if Temple has any chance of upsetting UMass.

Despite losing more games last week than they did all season, UMass Coach Pam Hixon refutes all rumors that her team is slumping.

"This team is hungry to compete," said Hixon. "There is new energy and a feeling of rejuvenation around this team."

Hixon, although surprised to be playing Temple, said it does not change her outlook on the game.

"Temple will be physically more difficult," said Hixon. "URI beating Temple means we don't have to play St. Joe's on their home turf."

"UMass is the heavy favorites," said URI Head Coach Megan Donnelly.

No. 2 Rutgers versus No. 3 Rhode Island

The University of Rhode Island returns to the tournament after not qualifying last year. The upstart Rams hope to extend their streak of upsets in the first round against the the Lady Knights of Rutgers.

"We want to prove that we belong here," said

Turn to A-10 PREVIEW, page 10

Hockey hopes to build on last week's success

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

It's tradition in the making.

When the University of Massachusetts ice hockey team routed the Villanova Wildcats 9-1 in front of a crowd of 5,124 fans, everyone involved got the sense that this was the start of something special.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has always had one of the largest bases of ice hockey fans south of the Canadian border, but the absence of a team at the state university for the past 15 years made it questionable how knowledgeable these fans would be on college hockey.

When Mike Evans scored the first goal in the Mullins Center to give the Minutemen a 1-0 lead, the crowd erupted, but more than that, showed its character as college hockey fans. In keeping with a long-standing college hockey tradition, squid, fish heads and tennis balls rained onto the ice celebrating the goal.

"That was fabulous. That's all part of college hockey," said UMass Coach Joe Mallen. "We would hope that the game was exciting enough for the fans to come back and hopefully bring somebody with them. We're pleased that we had that many people, but if you don't ask for more or expect more, you're never going to get more."

Now that the original hoopla surrounding the team has died down a bit, the Minutemen can focus on achieving yet another first — their first winning streak. They will play Worcester State on Saturday with no governors and no dedications, just hockey.

Worcester State plays its home games in the Hart Center at Holy Cross College, a facility that holds about 1,300 (over 3,000 fewer people than the Cage) so coming into to an 8,000 seat arena with an Olympic-sized rink could be overwhelming for the Lancers.

"It is a great opportunity," said Worcester State Coach John Guinie. "We're a pretty quick team. We'll try to dump the puck in and bottle them up in their own zone."

"We just need to go out and play our game, the UMass game," said Mallen. "They play in a small rink. They're going to be used to dumping the puck in and chasing it. It's going to be hard for them to play in our rink."

The "UMass game," which has become a favorite expression of Mallen's, appears to feature a hard checking (to the delight of the Mullins Center crowd), forechecking and an explosive offensive style of play.

It appears that with a few seasons under his belt, Mallen could follow in the footsteps of John Calipari, Pam Hixon and Jim Rudy before him, on the path to a winning tradition.

Chatting about the NFL

It's been a long and tedious road back to this space after a two-week hiatus, but I'm back nevertheless. I've decided that the NFL has been very weak thus far; the only excitement has come from the Dallas Cowboys' Emmitt Smith, Troy Aikman and Michael Irvin and the Miami Dolphins' Scott Mitchell.

Scott Mitchell?

Art Stapleton's PIGSKIN PICKS

Yep, the lefty QB ripped apart Kansas City last week, outshining Joe Montana in the contest, who left with an injury. I said a few weeks back that without Marino the Fish couldn't win a Super Bowl — I still stand on that one. But the point remains that if Mitchell can play consistently enough to get in the playoffs, the Dolphins have a shot.

And a shot is all Don Shula needs to get the job done.

Before Miami makes the playoffs, though, the Dolphins travel to the swamps of the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., to play the Jets. New York is coming off a "road victory" over the Midgets in Small Stadium. This is a must-win for Blindsided's Anthony Guido's team, the Jets. Standing at 3-4, Coslet's Clowns could turn this thing around by sweeping the season series against the 'Phins.

Guido better hope the Jets fare better than Florida State will at South Bend come Nov. 13.

As for my Pigskin Picks staffer, Bill "How 'bout those Western Carolina Catamounts" Balfour and his prediction — "Dolphins 24, Jets 13. The mighty Dolphin D, all they have to do is put 325 on the board, and its their's." That's what I like to see. Picking your favorite team blindly. Bias is not just good, it's very good. Personally, I like the underdog. It's time for the Jets to roll; New York 27, Miami 17.

Congrats go out to Justin "I" Doyle "My Baby's Number, And Get a Click Every Time" and his quick rise to Collegian staff status. Doyle is the Scott Secules of this page; he's been bouncing around a couple columns, but just hasn't been able to get Into print until this week. Hopefully it is a sign of good things to come . . .

Unlike the horrible performances the past few weeks of Secules. My friend Greg "Betty, when you call me, you can call me Al" Iafrate has a chance of overtaking Scottie as the number one quarterback of the Patsies. His forearms have bulked up ever since he started playing NHL '94 on Sega.

Anyway, Scott Zolak should be

Turn to PICKS, page 10

Minuteman Marching Band to perform in the Hoosierdome Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
42° Monday November 8, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 42
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Creation of nursing Ph.D stalled out

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

The implementation of a doctoral nursing program in the University of Massachusetts system is stalled, and no one knows what course of action is necessary to win approval of the program.

A collaborative Nursing Ph.D between the UMass Amherst and Worcester campuses was approved by the University Board of Trustees last April. If passed, the program would be the only doctoral nursing program in a public institution in Massachusetts, said Susan Spencer, a senior nursing major.

The program was then sent to the Higher Education Coordination Council (HECC), responsible for reviewing all public higher education programs, for approval.

Upon review, HECC found a few problems with the proposal in need of answers before the program could be passed, said Joe Joyce, a HECC member working on the University proposal.

"The way the council was created," Joyce said, "it must act within six months upon submission of a program or it is considered approved."

HECC deferred the University program because it reached the six month submission point and the University still had not addressed the problems, according to Joyce.

"The application is active and still before the council," he said. "We cannot go any further until the University states its intentions."

The nursing department in Amherst does not understand what is wrong with the proposal or what it should rework.

"I'm not really sure what they want us to do with it," said Dr. Ellan Cole, graduate program director and associate professor. A group of faculty from both campuses are still meeting to continue work on the proposal, but Cole does not know what to amend in the plan.

Turn to NURSING, page 3

UMass takes A-10s again

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Jenn Salisbury was named Atlantic 10 Offensive Player of the Year on Friday night.

PHILADELPHIA — Let it be said that the University of Massachusetts field hockey team is very selfish.

The Minutewomen stormed through the City of Brotherly Love over the weekend, grabbing every major Atlantic 10 award in sight, leaving nothing for their conference mates and playing strong hockey on their way to repeating as champs of the A-10 via wins over Temple University and Rutgers.

"I told the upperclassmen that I really believed for us to get into the [NCAA] tournament, that we had to win the Atlantic 10," said Minutewomen Coach Pam Hixon.

Massachusetts looked to be tested right away in the tourney semi-finals as it faced the fourth-seeded Temple Owls Saturday morning. This game was a rematch of a Sept. 24 matchup at Totman Field, which the Minutewomen easily won 3-0.

The Owls appeared to have an advantage coming into this one because the game was in their backyard and also because the game was being played on turf, a surface the Owls are accustomed to playing on and one that Massachusetts has had limited success on so far this year.

All that went for naught as the Minutewomen rolled to another 3-0 victory over Temple.

Freshman Kyle Rothenberger, who continually shines in the big games, got Massachusetts off and rolling when she tallied her seventh game-winning goal of the season at 13:03 on a penalty corner feed from senior co-captains Holly Hockenbrock and Tara Jelley.

Rothenberger doubled up for the first time all season when she later took a pass from senior Jenn Salisbury in a scramble in front of the Temple cage and shot it past Owl keeper Lori Benner at 48:32.

Salisbury would get in the goal-scoring column herself when she scored unassisted at 53:28. The Minutewomen had set up junior sweeper Natalie Hart for a penalty corner strike that was blocked by Benner right onto Salisbury's stick who had all the time in the world to put it by Benner.

Massachusetts was again outstanding defensively, taking away the Temple passing game and its outside speed — namely junior forward Crystal Carr. Carr was being marked by sophomore Andrea Cabral who did a good job of keeping the ball out of Carr's possession and also on cutting down Carr's angle to the net when she did get the ball.

The Minutewomen then faced Rutgers on Sunday for the tournament championship. Rutgers made it to the finals with an impressive 5-0 win over Rhode Island, which included four goals by senior Heather Jones.

Hixon said she knew if the Minutewomen were to have any success against Rutgers, whom they defeated 5-1 Sept. 25, they would have to contain Jones.

"The biggest thing was to not let Heather Jones do her thing. We had to do everything possible to shut her down."

Everything possible meant turning to defensive stopper Kyri Sparks and having her mark Jones.

"I thought Kyri played great," Hixon said. "We had to make a decision as to how we were going to play her and we decided that Kyri should just mark her and just stay on her wherever she went on the field and I think that was unnerving for Rutgers."

Also unnerving for the Lady Knights was the play of Hart, who rebounded from an off day on Saturday, when she mishit on many balls, to completely crush any hopes Rutgers might have had of winning this one by registering a first half hat trick, leading Massachusetts to a 4-0 victory and the tournament championship.

All three of Hart's goals came on penalty corner strikes: the first one was assisted by Jelley and Hockenbrock at 9:05; the second from Hockenbrock and Salisbury at 17:47; and the third came at 22:30 assisted by Hockenbrock and Jelley again.

"Today I was stepping into the ball really well, whereas yesterday, I was stepping back before I hit it," said Hart,

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 2

COMEC collects donations for a variety of area organizations

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

If you look on campus employee paycheck stubs, campus office phones and e-mail, you will see the words "pledge COMEC."

COMEC stands for Commonwealth of Massachusetts Employee's Campaign and is an organization stemmed off from the United Way agency. UMass has participated in COMEC for the past several years.

An executive committee of 15 people comprise COMEC. There are 150 other departments working on this campaign on campus as well.

The organization is aimed at giving donations to area agencies, such as disaster aid, nutrition programs, day care, family counseling, medical assistance, shelter and home health care.

"COMEC gives people the opportunity to give more then just what the United Way gives to. There are a lot of organizations COMEC offers that United Way doesn't offer, especially local organizations," said Celina Ouellette, campaign manager of COMEC.

People can receive a brochure with the listings and can choose from a number of organizations to pledge. One person from every department is responsible for collecting the pledges. Every pledge is confidential.

"We send the brochure with a pledge card with all their information and a letter from the chairman of the campaign explaining why you should give and the importance of it," Ouellette said.

Letters to pledge go to all campus employees and graduate students. They can pledge by either giving a donation by check, cash or payroll reduction.

Payroll reduction gives employees a chance to pledge by giving a certain amount of money from their paycheck every week.

"Payroll reduction is the easiest way to give. People give a dollar a week or five dollars a week. Most people don't notice the reduction at all. It is the most popular way people pledge," Ouellette said.

Pledges to organizations can be chosen specifically or they can be chosen for them.

George Parks, director of the marching band and COMEC campaign chair, does a lot of publicizing in order to receive pledges.

"George Parks has given people who pledge the opportunity to conduct the marching band for one song. It is our way of saying 'thank you'," Ouellett said.

COMEC's pledge goal is $130,000. "We are halfway in reaching our goal, and we are positive that we are going to be able to reach it," Ouellette said.

"People can return pledge cards any time of the year. It is a small effort for a big cause. Anybody who is interested in giving can contact our office in Whitmore," Ouellette said.

Hillel-sponsored vigil set to raise awareness

By STEPHANIE EISENBERG
Collegian Staff

This Tuesday on the Student Union steps, there will be a vigil sponsored by Hillel to mark Kristallnacht, the night of broken glass.

Kristallnacht was the largest government organized anti-Jewish mob riots and its aftermath were the events directly leading up to the Holocaust.

This event was called the night of broken glass because the Germans and Austrians, under Nazi influence, destroyed synagogues, as well as Jewish-owned homes and businesses.

The effects of this mass destruction was a shattering of glass, and at the culmination of this event the streets sparkled because they were covered.

The vigil has been organized not only to remember this event but to show the community's united stand against the rise of reported anti-Semitic incidents on the UMass campus.

"I want the campus to be aware of what is happening in our community and I want people to realize that one form of hatred is connected to all forms of hatred," said Robin Novick, the organizer of this vigil.

Novick also stressed that this awareness-raising "event is not a rally, it is a vigil."

It is a peaceful movement designed to raise students awareness on both recent anti-Semitic incidents and about the horrors of the Holocaust.

On the steps will be a set-up of barbed wire and broken glass to give a visual image of what Kristallnacht looked like.

There will also be actual photographs of that night, Holocaust music, and students reading Holocaust poetry and literature.

There will also be a lighting of candles, to symbolize both awareness and remembrance.

In addition to the individual lightings, there will also be six memorial candles lit, to remember the six million Jews who perished in the Holocaust.

The vigil will take place from noon to 1 p.m. tomorrow and Novick ureges all to participate because "Kristallnacht was an action where citizen rose up against citizen."

"Participation means awareness, it means caring" said Yehudit Heller, assistant director of Hillel.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor.....Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor.....Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor.....Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Maierowski, Marty Pappas
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Reminder

The University of Massachusetts will be following Thursday class schedules today, Monday, Nov. 8.

This Thursday, Nov. 11, the University will be closed for Veterans Day.

Classes will resume on Friday, Nov. 12.

In addition, the Collegian will not publish this Thursday, but will print this Friday.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian celebrates Freedom of Speech. Anything less would be uncivilized.

A free and responsible press. Daily since 1967.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, November 8

Workshop — "Searching for Employment After Graduate School: Hiring Trends of Female Graduate Students" will be presented at 5:30 p.m. in 1033 Lederle Graduate Research Tower. Graduate women students and faculty in engineering, science and technical fields are invited to attend.

Slide show — Scott Darsney will show his slides of K2 and Mount Everest expeditions following the Outing Club meeting at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Blood drive — The UMass Blood Drive continues today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 168.

■ field hockey

continued from page 1

who earned tourney MVP honors for her performance.

Salisbury secured victory for the Minutewomen, if it was not already secure, at 36:14 when she picked up a Jelley rebound and put it to the right of Rutgers goalie Rebecca Donahue.

Joining Hart on the All-Tournament team for Massachusetts were Jelley, Salisbury and senior co-captain Tracy Barclay.

The Minutewomen cleaned up at the annual awards banquet Friday night, garnering three of the four major awards and placing a league-high six players on the all-conference team.

Named to the All-Conference first team were Salisbury, Hockenbrock, Hart, Jelley, Barclay and freshman keeper Hilary Rose.

Salisbury was named Offensive Player of the Year, an award she shared last year with teammate Ainslee Press. Salisbury led the A-10 in assists with 20 and was second in scoring, behind Hart.

Hixon was named Coach of the Year for the fourth year in a row in a surprise over Ann Petracco of Rutgers and Rothenberger was recognized as A-10 Freshman of the Year.

The Minutewomen must now sit and wait until they find out when, where and whom they play next as they await an NCAA Tournament invitation. Massachusetts likely will either have a home game this Thursday, or will be given a bye and a home game on Sunday.

MUSLIM STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
of the Five College Area cordially invites you to a lecture by
Imam Warith Deen Mohammed
Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective

7:00 PM Tuesday,
November 16th, 1993
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts,
Amherst

ADMISSION FREE

W. Deen Mohammed delivers statement at 'First Liberty Summit' in Williamsburg, VA.

Sign up now for Winter Session. You won't regret it!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building

545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

RESUME WORKSHOP

Special Presentation by IBM/EMPLOYMENT SOLUTIONS

A Resume is an Employer's First Impression of You.

Find Out From Someone Who Hires What Your Resume Should Look Like.

Monday, November 8
4:15 PM
101A Mather Career Center
545-6263

Minuteman Marching Band set to hit the road

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegain Staff

The University of Massachusetts Minuteman Marching Band will perform at the Bands of America Grand National Championships at the Indianapolis Hoosierdome on Nov. 11-13, according to Marching Band Director George Parks.

Parks said UMass has been selected to be the exhibition band that plays at the close of the events. The competition will feature 66 high school bands from all parts of the country. The bands will be judged on their performance and the visual aspect of their show and will be narrowed down to 12 bands which will perform at the finals on Saturday. At the end of each high school competition, UMass will be playing the songs it performs at the halftime of UMass football games.

Parks said the band is excited about this competition because it is an opportunity to show the rest of the country UMass has a first-rate marching band.

"There is no question that this is the biggest event we have ever done in the 17 years I have been here," Parks said. "When we play at a football game we always get a real nice response from the audience, but at this competition we are playing for an audience of connoisseurs, people who really know the art form. It's a chance for us to show that UMass has a real quality program.

"This is just as important for us as it is for the basketball team to make the 'Sweet 16,' or for the football team to make the playoffs," he said.

Kevin Conboy, an alto saxophonist, said the band will be playing 4-5 songs from the movie "Hook" and the theme from a 1970s film, "The Wind and the Lion."

"The theme from 'The Wind and the Lion' is an amazing piece of music," Conboy said. "It is the best piece of music this band has ever played."

Conboy also said the band has put in a lot of extra practice and rehearsal time in preparation for the trip.

"There has been a lot of pressure for Mr. Parks, a lot," he said. "We have been working for this since the last week of August and now it is payoff time. For a long time UMass has been considered to have the best marching band in New England, but now we are moving out of New England and it is a defining moment for the band."

Conboy said the band will have an intense final few days of practice in order to make the final preparations for the trip.

"In this next week we are not quite ready for what we are going to be doing in Indiana," he said. "But by the end of the week we will be ready."

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The Minuteman Marching Band will perform as the exhibition band at the Bands of America Grand National Championships. The competition, which features bands from 66 high schools across the country, will be held Nov. 11-13 in the Indianapolis Hoosierdome.

■ nursing

continued from page 1

Joyce said the proposal was unclear to whether the Amherst and Worcester campuses would be one program. A clarification was needed on the collaboration of the campuses.

"It is ridiculous," Melanie Dreher, dean of nursing, said. "It was offered as a joint program."

The nursing department thinks the cooperation between Amherst and Worcester is clear and it does not know what could be changed to make the proposal more specific.

The title of the program is "The Amherst-Worcester Collaborative Ph.D. Program."

Students would have full access to all resources on both campuses, courses will be cross referenced and all decision would be made by a collaborative committee, Dreher said.

"It is absolutely absurd to even indicate it is not collaborative," she said.

Dreher recently submitted her resignation as dean in response to the stalling of the program, but she said her resignation was not an ultimatum.

"The University made a commitment to me to start a doctoral program," she said. "So far it has not honored its commitment."

Her resignation will be effective at the end of the academic year, on June 31, but Dreher said she does not know what she will do. She said she will not resign from the department, only as dean.

Ron Story, interim vice president for academic affairs in the President's Office, has worked with HECC on the proposal.

"I'm optimistic," he said, "We'll come to some agreement."

HECC first brought its concerns to the University in August. In September, Joyce said he met with the University to discuss the problems.

In October, right before the six month period of the proposal expired, Story wrote a letter to HECC asking it to deactivate the program, according to Joyce.

"I did not want them to turn it down," Story said, "so deactivating was my way of putting it on hold."

However, Joyce said only the Board of Trustees could remove the proposal for consideration.

The nursing department was angry when Story deactivated the program, but Story said it did not understand what was meant by "deactivation."

"We are all pretty much up in arms," Spencer said.

Boston College is the only nursing doctoral program in the state, but the program is expensive and cannot meet the needs of all prospective students interested in a nursing Ph.D. because it is small. Cole said most nursing students interested in a Ph.D. need to leave the state to earn their degree.

A doctoral nursing program will have a great impact on the department as a whole, according to Cole.

"In order to be in the big league, you need a doctoral program," she said.

A Ph.D. program is a way of attracting faculty and also federal money. Cole said the department is presently applying for a federal grant, but if the program is not passed, the money will not be awarded.

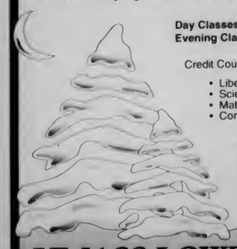
The nursing department is comprised mainly of women both on staff and as students. There are concerns the deferral is a gender issue, according to Dreher.

"It makes us wonder if gender has anything to do with this," Cole said. "Maybe they are not taking us seriously because we are women or they may not think our work is scholarly."

Dreher said other public and private nursing departments have endorsed the plan. She said even the Boston College dean is in full support of the proposal.

"It is an embarassment that the University ranks 22nd in the country for doctoral awards, but doesn't have a nursing program," she said.

MICHAEL'S
Billiards and Sports Bar
AMHERST, MA
Mon.-Thurs. 4-1
Fri.-Sat. 1-1



FREE PIZZA
Every Sunday & Monday Night
For All NFL Games
2 for 1 SPECIAL
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
2 hrs of pool for the price of 1
LIVE D.J.
Every Thursday & Saturday Night
Friday is Karoke Night
OPEN POOL TOURNY
Every Weds. at 7:30 pm
$ $ CASH PRIZES $ $
Route 9 East, Amherst, Next to Hunan Garden

Winter Intersession 1994

Make Your Winter Break Really Count!

January 3 - 15

Don't put your education on ice this Winter Break – enroll in UMass Lowell's Winter Intersession. This highly concentrated session is perfect if you want to earn college credit to get ahead in your educational program. If you're enrolled in another university, it's a great way to earn transfer credits!

Day Classes: Mon-Sat, 9:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Evening Classes: Mon-Fri, 6:00-9:30 p.m. and Sat, 1:00-4:30 p.m.

Credit Courses (3 credits) available in:
- Liberal Arts
- Sciences
- Mathematics
- Computers
- Social Sciences
- Management
- Music

Cost: $100/undergraduate credit

UMASS LOWELL
Continuing Education

For a Winter Intersession Course Bulletin, call the Division of Continuing Education/Office of Enrollment Services at (508) 934-2480. Or just fill out the coupon below and mail it to: University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Avenue, Lowell, MA 01854-2881.

AP
Name:
Address:
City: State: Zip:
Phone: ( )
Institution Currently Attending:

UMASS LOWELL
Continuing Education
UMassLowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Title IX University.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

In New York and New Jersey, nice guys finished last

Last Tuesday's elections in New Jersey and in New York City helped to confirm a long-standing political truth: Nice guys finish last.

These two key races, in which Governor James Florio of New Jersey and Mayor David Dinkins of New York were turned out of office, mean a lot more than the spin doctors are letting on. But their true meaning has less to do with the Clinton administration or with taxes than it has to do with the voters' knee-jerk reaction to cast out any pol who has dared to do the right thing.

Florio was elected in 1989, at which time he implemented the largest tax increase in New Jersey's history. He did this because he had to — because the state's economy was in bad shape, and because the deficit was mounting.

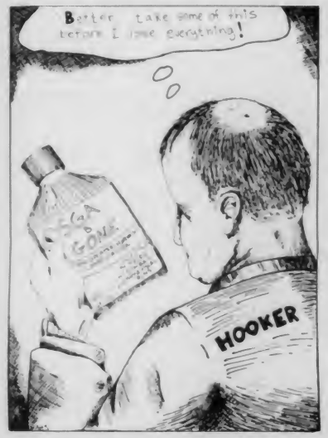
Florio was that rare form of politician, a selfless executive who, in doing what had to be done, realized that he was dooming any chance he had of ever being re-elected. Most successful politicians would have just hidden away the fiscal problems and let them continue to mount. Florio, though, decided not to let some future governor be confronted with the budget mess he had found when he entered office. The governor took on the situation, and stared it down. Vacillating crowd-pleasing politicians like Bill Clinton could learn a lot from Jim Florio.

Dinkins was also elected in 1989, succeeding New York's old-line mayor Ed Koch. He was the first black mayor in a city where racial prejudices run strong, in both the depressed black areas of Bedford-Stuyvesant and Harlem, and in the middle-class white regions of Staten Island and Queens. Confronted with the possibility of rioting following the acquittal of white police officers in the Los Angeles beating of motorist Rodney King, Dinkins appealed for calm, and was sincere enough to keep relative peace.

Peter
ORVETTI

Faced with another crisis of prejudice involving the banning of Irish gays and lesbians from the city's St. Patrick's Day parade, Dinkins took the shockingly bold step of shunning the parade's planners and marching with the gays. As he did this, he knew he was alienating many of those who had elected him. Dinkins, like Florio, chose to do what was right.

Tuesday night, therefore, was a celebration of cynicism. Florio was defeated by the patrician Republican Christine Todd Whitman, a Reagan conservative with millions of dollars to spare. Whitman's only reason for running was that she was wealthy and bored.



Dinkins was defeated by political opportunist Rudolph Giuliani, whom Dinkins defeated four years ago by a narrow margin. Guiliani played upon the politics of division, and won the election with the support of paranoid white voters on Staten Island, where he received 85 percent of the vote.

Guiliani's boldest assertion of the campaign was that as a boy, he had been a Yankees fan in a Dodgers neighborhood. The rest of his campaign was negative. He now inherits a city poisoned with crime and poverty. Guiliani says he will tackle these problems with law and order.

So what can we say for the United States this week? In two of the three most important elections of 1993, good men, who took the risk of offering true leadership, were contemptuously rejected in favor of the backward ideas, policies, and angers that put New Jersey and New York in such bad shape to begin with.

In the third major race, for governor of Virginia, a progressive was defeated by a supporter of the Radical Right. In 1992, American voters sent the message that they needed a change. In 1993, they seem to be saying that the change need not be for the better.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

HOOKER TRIES TO PLUG A LEAK

The importance of feminism

Feminist. Don't cringe! What's wrong with being a feminist? Why is the word feminist always used as an insult? It's not a bad word. It's even more than four letters!

Feminism is defined in most dictionaries as "belief in the social, political, and economic equality of the sexes." Sounds great to me. Women should undisputebly have equality to men in every aspect of life. If feminism calls for the equality of men and women, doesn't that make most of us feminists? Don't we believe men and women should be equal? So why do we fear feminism and not identify with it?

Stacy
MALONE

It bothers women that their opinions are valued less than men's. It upsets women that they are politically represented less than men. It angers women that they are paid less than men. Doesn't that mean women want social, political and economical equality of the sexes? When women prove they are knowledgeable and their opinions are valuable, when women run and vote for female candidates for more political representation and when women protest for equal pay for equal work — aren't those feminist actions?

I am a woman and I support feminism. When people call me a feminist I take it as a compliment. I support equality of the sexes 110 percent, because as a woman if I don't support equality who will? The men? Although both sexes benefit from what women contribute to society, equality of the sexes will most radically advance the lives of women. Women being equal to men is important. Being a feminist is important.

I admit. I use to call myself a humanist, because it was an expression of my support for all people. I will always support all people, but it is not all people who are oppressed. Women are oppressed.

My words, my actions are needed as part of the feminist movement. The words and actions of every woman are needed for the feminist movement in order to bring forth the equality of the sexes. It is very dangerous for a woman not to be a feminist. By not speaking and fighting for the equality of women I would be accepting and encouraging the oppression of women.

It is important for women to identify with feminism. If you are a woman there is no reason for you to not be concerned with the feminist movement. Like it or not, the feminist movement has given women the opportunity to go to college, to have accessible birth control, to have safe abortions, to work, to be individuals...

The feminist movement gave women choices that women take for granted. If feminism continues to deteriorate and die because we are satisfied with the continual unequal society that we live in, then we are only to blame.

Our mothers and our grandmothers have paved the road that today women drive on. It is time we stop taking the little equality we have for granted and fight for the true equality that we don't have — for ourselves and the women who follow.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

The ethnic floors build solidarity

I would like to address the issue of whether certain "minority" groups on this campus should or should not have cutural centers and "ethnic floors" in dorms. The cultural centers and "ethnic floors" represent space where one group will feel most comfortable. On a deeper level, they are places where students from targeted and discriminated against groups can meet to build solidarity, share support, and empower themselves.

Is segregation being established by using state money to pay for these spaces? The cultural centers and floors are asked for by minority groups, it is not segregation. Segregation is not asked for, rather, it is imposed upon one group by another which dominates by force. Thus, cultural centers and ethnic floors cannot be a form of segregation. Neither can they be an example of "reverse racism," as some would like to claim. An oppressed group cannot be racist when they exclude members of the dominating group from their activities. It is a means of self-defense and a way to help ensure cultural integrity and survival.

If students and other members of the dominant white majority want equality and justice for all, they can find a common ground with members of oppressed and targeted groups in non-violent work which seeks to understand and find creative solutions so that all may be comfortable on this campus and planet.

Anne R. Nwokoye
Everywoman's Center

These 'roommates' have to go

Lately we have been visited by some unwanted guests. My friends and I have seen cockroaches in several rooms and bathrooms in both Orchard Hill and Southwest, Franklin D.C. and the Campus Center. We have notified Dorm Maintenance and have had our rooms exterminated, but those nasty critters just won't leave.

After letting Maintenance know they did not stop the problem we were told the only way to completely get rid of the roaches would be to exterminate the entire building "which we won't do."

It seems as though we pay enough tuition to come to this University and room and board to stay in the residence halls, that we should not have to live in unsanitary conditions. We are sure the Board of Health would like to hear about this.

We cannot express our disgust and our outrage at the University for refusing to clear up the roach problem. We know we are not the only students who have seen the roaches and have been ignored by Maintenance. SOMETHING MUST BE DONE.

Patricia Cauley
Orchard Hill
This letter was signed by 135 people.

Seeing Greeks for what they are

Walking to and from classes, it's not uncommon to see even five people wearing letters of the Greek alphabet sewn across sweatshirts, hats and other various paraphernalia. And on my way down North Pleasant Street on my frequent travels into Amherst, I see all those houses belonging to some sorority or fraternity. Greeks, Greeks, Greeks, everywhere I go. Tailgating in the parking lot before and during games, at parties, uptown, basement of the library — everywhere. And it never seemed to me like they did anything other than socialize and drink voluminous amounts of alcohol.

But once last spring on an early Saturday morning, when I was running errands in town, I saw tons of college students sweeping the streets, picking up litter, painting the bus stop and many other tedious jobs to clean up the community. Aside from thinking to myself "Glad that's not me," I noticed all of them were wearing those Greek letters.

Around the same time, I was watching the news and heard some story about UMass students, so I turned the volume up. As it turns out the broadcaster was relaying that some people were actually running from Boston to Amherst — with a chariot on their backs, nonetheless, to raise money for the Jimmy Fund. "Unbelievable," I thought to myself, as the journalist explained that it was sponsored by a UMass fraternity.

And even last week, I saw a group standing around the campus pond under a little canopy of balloons. When I went over to see what the celebration was about, I saw two women riding a seesaw. I asked the nearest person what was going on and she explained that it was a marathon of seesawing to raise money for the Hearing Impaired. I asked what group organized the whole thing, and I was not the least bit surprised when she relied that it was being run by a sorority here on campus.

If all these examples are true, I just can't figure out why the Greek Area has such a horrible stigma here at UMass. Sororities and fraternities are openly and visibly contributing so much to the community and many other miscellaneous nation-wide organizations that their reputation seems completely misconceived to me. Every time I turn around, someone's fund raising for the library, study of Alzheimer's Disease, or needy children, and it always seems like the group participating and running them is Greek. I think it's very refreshing to see so many people giving some of their time and money back to the community, and for me, the criticism against them appears harsh and unfounded and personally, I applaud their efforts.

Marie Kalliney
Amherst

Arts & Living

Local blues band jams comic irony

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

The Fabulous Heavyweights
The Iron Horse
Nov. 5, 1993

For three local guys doing their own rendition of the blues, the Fabulous Heavyweights really get around, both geographically and on stage. However, one might say that you would have to sit through a couple swanky sets to really believe how good this three-man band is.

Upon first sight, smiling lead vocalist and guitar player Ed Vadas looks more like someone who has spent a lot of time talking people out of, rather than singing the praises of the blues. Clad in sneakers and a characteristic red cap, Vadas joked easily and sang soulfully about middle age, loneliness, political correctness and love.

Although he approached the audience in a friendly, back-porch manner, behind his comic rhetoric was a strong belief that playing "good" blues entails revealing a little heart and soul.

"You can't copy the blues," he said. "If somebody breaks your heart, I can't tell people what it's like - your broken heart. I have to convey my broken heart. I can use your words, but it's got to be my broken heart."

Featuring songs from their latest album, South Side of Fifty, Vadas and Heavyweights Patrick Lavery and Jean Bruno manipulated swanky tunes, clear-cut changes, driving backbeats and gut-based vocals to focus on middle age.

"We try to relate to younger people, even though we're getting old," Vadas told the crowd. Claiming that women are better adapted to old age, Vadas chuckled, "After 50 [years] you start forgetting stuff. Women are better in old age, though," he said, adding that men tend to need to be reminded of things like putting their pants on before going to work. Regardless of the musicians proclaimed "maturity," audience members of all ages got down and grooved to tunes that were far from lifeless.

Traditional themes and hard-core blues constituted the greater part of the show, with songs like "Empty Pockets Blues", "Two Steps Beyond the Blues", "Long Distance Call", "Start All Over Again", and "Help Me."

For anyone who has ever suffered a broken heart, Vadas and the Heavyweights jammed consolation best summed up by one song titled "Everybody Gets the Blues." Each tune conveyed the essence of good, old fashioned, heartache, invoking faith and spirituality to heal emotional wounds.

Of local background, Vadas said that early influences crept into his home when he was a child quite by accident. The musician explained that while his brother was off fighting in the Second World War, he used to play with his 78 records instead of toys, which his family could not afford. It was not until age 20 that Vadas realized that his "toys" were actually albums from blues greats such as Elmo James.

Since then, Vadas has been carried all over the country by his passion for the blues.

"Passively, this is my life, it's what I chose to do," he said. The band typically travels to various states during the week to play, and returns to Northampton every Monday, to do a night performance at the Baystate Hotel. This hectic schedule may seem crazy to some, but the band's activity falls in line with Vadas' philosophy on life.

"Get out, enjoy life, 'cause time passes quickly," he advised. One listen to the Heavyweights' experienced lyrics and spiritual riffs supports this theory, and explains sadness as an inevitable part of life. Their performance, laden with comic irony, also communicates that one can always find it within to smile, even through the Blues.

The Fabulous Heavyweights perform every Monday night at the Baystate Hotel, 41 Strong Ave., in Northampton. Call 584-8513 for more information. There is no cover charge for Blue Monday shows.

CONTACT LENS CARE
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
•••
Offering a broad array of contact lenses with a large in house inventory.
•••
The new daily wear disposable and frequent replacement contact lenses are now available.
•••
All fittings are done by our eye doctors with experience in contact lens care and solving contact lens problems.
•••
Emphasis is placed on your ocular health and professional service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and convenient on campus location. For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

LOST CAMERA
CANON T-90 #1153793
$$ REWARD $$
545-1701 or 665-0589
NO QUESTIONS!!!

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

FREE This coupon good for one FREE COLLEGIAN™ brand student paper
Offer good while supplies last. One COLLEGIAN brand student paper per person per day.

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES
WITH THIS AD Additional 10% off any one item
We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies, Posters, Portfolios, Special Orders Encouraged
HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8, Saturday 9:30-5:30, Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA 01003, 413-253-5592

Get Acquainted Special $12.99 Reg. price $25.17 OIL & FILTER SERVICE SPECIAL*
HONDAS and 4CYL. ACURAS only
HONDA SureThing PARTS & SERVICE
*Offer good with this ad only. Expires 11-30-93
171 King Street Northampton 586-8626 HONDA
COUPON

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY NUMBERS ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS 9 a.m. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street House 9 Hadley MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-ins are Welcome

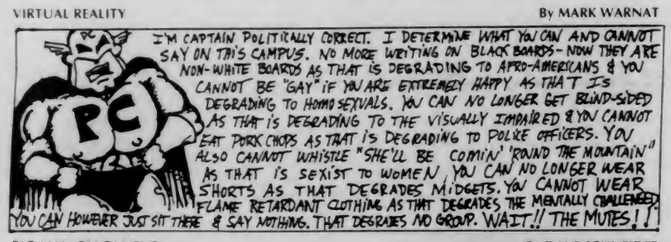
Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family
Tuesday - November 9
6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
University Health Center - Room 304
I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?
I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?
I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?
If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.
For more information, please call 549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:
Boston-LONDON $139
Boston-PARIS $224
Boston-MADRID $255
New York-FRANKFURT $225
New York-ROME $269
New York-CANCUN $199
Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

The Collegian 545-3500

LSAT GRE GMAT MCAT SAT
KAPLAN RULES
Expert Teachers
Permanent Centers
Total Training
CALL NOW:
1-800-KAP-TEST
150 Fearing Street (UMASS)
Amherst
KAPLAN

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON



CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

GLEESON By DAVE

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I hate to blow my own horn, but 'beep beep.'"

– Alex P. Keaton, Family Ties

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A love from the past could reappear without warning. Defer to the financial judgment of an older relative. Family harmony is more important than ever.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your conscience prompts you to do the right thing today. Visit an ailing friend or family member. Do not make a romantic commitment until you know what is really in your heart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your creative abilities win widespread admiration. Those at the top like what you have to say about speeding progress along. An electrifying business idea leads to new fringe benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Share your ideas with people of influence. Whether you expand on a work project, approach a VIP or gamble on love, your effort will meet with success. Avoid bragging to subordinates.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be flexible. Otherwise, you could be out in left field while someone important to your future makes other plans. An exciting travel opportunity appears from out of the blue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could run into some strong opposition to your plans. Try some sweet talk. You may be able to get your way if you turn on the charm. Take someone under your wing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is your turn to lend a helping hand to someone who needs assistance. Be a good friend. A genuine effort will be greatly appreciated. Rearranging your office uncovers lost items.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Guard against overlooking some very important financial issues. Spending time alone could help you find solutions faster. Get an agreement signed before evening so that you can relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Somebody could renege on a promise. Luckily, you handle tense situations extremely well. Resolve not to be so trusting in the future. Your backup plan is even better than the original one!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick with an agreement you made; the possibility exists for long-term financial gains. Be more security-conscious. Give your mate or partner a vote of confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep close tabs on machinery, cars and electrical appliances. If you are not up to date on maintenance procedures, let a knowledgeable pal help you. Relax with a good book tonight.

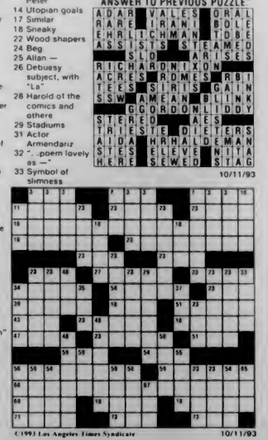
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): "Up and at 'em" while your energies are at their peak! A nutritious diet and daily fitness routine help you maintain top efficiency. Romance on the rebound could be risky. Play it cool.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE

ACROSS

1 Gov. agcy.
4 Before Moines or Plaines
7 Shea Stadium players
11 Sen. Carol Moseley —
13 Against
15 American author James
16 —, Charlie Brown
19 Board ship
20 — out existing
21 Corn product
23 Alternative vote
24 Ewing or Grier
27 Ot birth
30 Box
34 Describing some statesmen
36 Clipped
38 Summer, in Le Havre
39 Stiller's partner
40 " — Haw"
41 Composer Previn
43 Washington of tennis, for short
44 Actress Close
46 Worn out
47 Summer coolers
49 State in NE India
51 Author of "The Pit and The Pendulum"
52 Summer time in NY
54 Actor Alastair —
56 Most canny
61 Sweet white wine
66 "— Love, Charlie Brown"
68 Path
69 Went quickly
70 Liqueur flavoring
71 Sashes for Yum Yum
72 "— is me!"
73 Padre or Angel, for short



DOWN

1 "— Here to Eternity"
2 Smear
3 Halo
4 Diplomat Hammarskjold
5 Baseball's Slaughter
6 Cease
7 Sugar and syrup sources
8 Personalities
9 Actress Garr
10 Paving block
11 So long
12 Pianist Peter
14 Utopian goals
17 Similar
18 Sneaky
22 Wood shapers
24 Beg
25 Allan —
26 Debussy subject, with "La"
28 Harold of the comics and others
29 Stadiums
31 Actor Armendariz
32 "...poem lovely as —"
33 Symbol of slimness
34 Sammy or Thompson
35 Scott-Joplin opus
37 Dine
42 Sharp bite
45 Most recent
48 Fine French china
50 Puccini heroine
53 "— Fledermaus"
55 "I Remember —"
56 French town near Caen
57 Melville's Captain
58 —, vidi, vici
59 Weather report
60 Corrida principal
62 Entertainer Horne
63 Has — fumes
64 Golly
65 "— you there?
67 Prop for Peete

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	D	A	R		V	A	L	E	S		O	R	A	L
A	R	R	E		I	R	A	N		B	O	I	L	E
E	H	R	L	I	C	H	M	A	N		T	O	B	E
A	S	S	I	S	T	S		S	T	E	A	M	E	D
		S	L	O			A	R	I	S	E
R	I	C	H		R	O	M	A	N		R	B	I
A	C	R	E	S		R	O	M	E	S		R	B	I
T	E	E	S		S	I	R	I	S		G	A	I	N
S	S	W		A	M	E	A	N		B	L	I	N	K
			G	O	R	D	O	N		L	I	D	D	Y
S	T	E	R	N			A	E	S
T	R	I	E	S	T	E		D	I	E	T	E	R	S
A	I	D	A		H	R	H	A	L	E	D	M	A	N
S	T	E	S		E	L	V	I	S		N	I	I	A
H	E	R	E		L	E	W	I	S		T	A	I	L

10/11/93

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 10/11/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor ..... Jeff Crofts
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Tara Dixon, Bob Hope

MENU

LUNCH
Turkey Bacon 'n Swiss
Meatball Grinder

BASICS LUNCH
Turkey 'n Swiss
Hummus Pocket

DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Veal Cordon Bleu

BASICS DINNER
Mandarin Chicken
Eggplant Casserole

WINTER BREAK IN ISRAEL!

Spend two weeks as a student volunteer working and living on an army base.

LOW PRICES FROM $649 + REG. FEE

INCLUDES ROUNDTRIP AIRFARE, ROOM KOSHER BOARD & TOURS

Departing from New York December 20, 26 and 29
Some restrictions apply
Call for other dates and cities

Contact: National Student Coordinator: JILL GREENEBAUM
VOLUNTEERS for ISRAEL
Hope to see you soon
Love, Israel
330 WEST 42ND STREET SUITE 1818 NEW YORK, NY 10036-6902
212-643-4848
FAX: 212-643-4855

For application and free information kit, please fill in below and mail with ad.
Name
College Address

The Club

The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.

Less than $1 per day* for all of this

- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Cardiovascular Machines
- On Bus Route
- Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Child Care

*When you purchase an academic year membership. Installment payments are available.

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

"Back in my day, we used to wait in line for hours starting at 3 in the morning just to get one class during add/drop. We didn't have 'telephone add/drop!' Back in my day, we didn't even have phones..."

the COLLEGIAN

Oh, the stories we could tell. Join us.
113 Campus Center
545-3500

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER 7:30-8:30
Followed by NFL Monday Night Football

TALK Football with Mike Hodges

- Free T - Shirts
- Halftime Appetizer Blitz
- Pre-game Buffet

Rusty Nail SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

CNN WTTT AM 1430

work in BRITAIN & IRELAND student exchange employment programs campus presentation speakers from London and Dublin

Tuesday, November 9 at 7:00 pm
Machmer Hall, Room W26
& display/info table 8:30am - 3pm.
Campus Center

visit sponsored by U Mass International Programs Office, Goodell Building
Campus tel: 545-2710

BUNAC COUNCIL

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Come Find Out About
Sorority Life
Open House at
Kappa Kappa Gamma
32 Nutting Ave.
Tuesday 7 pm

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name and ad dress to GroupOne PO Box 276 Dayon, Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Free Condoms
Listen to WOCH Thurs 12-3 pm

Race Relations in America An Islamic perspective, talk by Imam W. D Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.49 for 1 HOUR call! 413 467-7476

Mala Vocalist
looking for cover & originals band ready or close to playing out. 549-6918 Leave Message

ATTENTION TREKKIES!

Would you like to see "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation" for free?
Student Valley Production needs ushers and other misc. help for the performances on Nov. 17th 20th. For more information please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale: 1972 Chevy Chevelle, mint condition, 6 cylinder, auto, white. Asking $5500. 229-2622

'78 Grand Prix 301 V8 runs good needs little to pass inspection t-tops Nathen 546-5144

'79 Olde Cutlass Supreme Mint condition needs nothing $2500 B.O.

1985 Mercury Lynx 60000 miles 546-6279

1986 Ford Escort
$950 Neg.
546-3793

1988 Honda CRX, Excellent condition, $6000 or BO, Call (413)773-9720 after 6 pm.

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

Subar '88 DL Wagon 5 spd., am/fm stereo Cass. 110K No rust! Ask for $2500 323-5574 (night) 545-0188 (day)

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

FOR RENT

1 Bedroom Avail. in two bedroom apt Southpoint Apt. $225/month on bus route. Starting Jan 1st Call Jane 256-1382

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

Take Over Our Lease
Have 2 need 2 females for Brandywine Jan 1st
Call Sherry or Sue 549-8248

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Computer 2 Floppies modem VGA Software mouse stmmy 253-3779 $400/bo.

DIGITAL SPEAKER perfect for walkman and diskman. With adapter $60. 546-0301 leave message

Full Size Bed/Boxspring $60
Wicker Shelving $10
Kitchen Table $8
TV Table $5
End Table $3
Call Melisse at 256-8570

IBM PS/230
Excellent for WP, games, database
Loads of Software!!!
WPS 1, multimate, Lotus 123, alot of Games come w/mouse, disks
500 or b.o. Matt 546-3576

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

1982 Honda V45 Sabre Motorcyle Shaft drive, liquid cooled $650.00 13 1/2 Foot Fiberglass canoe with paddles $125
Must sell - graduating in January
Call 253-4773

Queen S2 H2O Bed - Complete $200 OBO
665-0935

Sony CD Player
1 Disk w/remote
New! $95
Steve 546-4173

Starter Pullover
Hartford Whaler Pullover Jacket $50
Never worn
Reg. $109
Call Rich at 6-5665

Top of the line Sony Discman
Good condition ton of featuree
Call Mark 6-5093

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. incanneries or $3000-$6000+/mo. on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

College Students 1 1/2 Hrs: $25
NES is seeking college students consideringteaching careers (trs, srs, and grad students) in the fields below to take sample tests: English, History, and Math. Nov. 9, 1993 at the Newman Center, N. Pleasant St. Amh. Any 1 1/2 hrs 9-5:30. $25 per test. If interested, bring student ID and #2 pencils. Pre-registretion not necessary.

Free Trips & Cash********
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre! Now! Take a Break Student Travel Call 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

$267.50 Sell 50 hilarious college T. shirts - profit $267.50. 22 designs include alcohol, safe sex, misc. Airtek free Program. Call now for free catalog. 1-800-304-3309

INSTRUCTION

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fracbon of the cost of most schools. Classes start Nov. 10th, at 7 pm in Campus Center room #911. For registration info call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOST

Backpack. Dark Blue Eastpack lost in/near Franklin. Bummed out! need notebooks desperately. Any info call 6-0429

Have you found my green Wire framed glasses? If So, please call: Trish 546-0368

We have almostlost hope for our distinctive leather jacket distressed and slightly green (the jacket, not us) Dark 5 pockets. U2wearmeout label in it. Big reward. (Big!) Call 546-7407 Please

Withoutmy racket, I am useless! Purple, pro kennex, racquetball racquet. Lost in Herter: Call 6-2422

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

Congratulations to David Berkowitz on winning the Easter Seals
Raffle

Happy 21st Birthday Em!!
Your are finally legal!!
We are going to party
Love
Your old Roomie

Happy Birthday Takunbo
Hope you enjoy it
Femi

Hey Kay Baby!!!
Just thought I'd tell you that
I Love You!!!
Forever Yours Love, Matt
P.S. Surprised??

Hey Ricecake!
Orange ya glad you met me?
Smile Big, Lemon, I love you!

Jen - You mean everything to me. When I'm with you my troubles are gone. The warm fuzzies take over. Thanx for following your heart. Love Always. Marc

Jim,
Happy Birthday
I love you
Stephanie

Liz Walsh
Just want to
Say that you
Are an awesome
friend
Keep smiling
Love Karen D.

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413 467-7476

Ode to Dobbalina:
Jesus is Our Hope
Jesus is Our Bob
Jesus is Bob Hope

Ranger Bob,
Liberty IV at night
And the stars from 6P
You're the best!!
Deb

Teach
Happy 21st Birthday
Probably make fools
of ourselves
Again tonight
Meegs

To My Little Sister Emily,
Hope you had a great weekend!
Keep that Sigma spirit high and keep on guessing!
Sigma love and mine,
J

To my Little Sis Ally of AEPhi
Your are PHInominal!
Guess who???
Phi Love,
You Big Sis???

To the 4 people who called the escort service for me in Southwest on Friday 10/15 at 3 am: THANK YOU!!! - shoeless women in Central

WHOOO-OOO
Happy 21st Molly
Now you can drink like a fish
(Or like a crab)
Yea!
Love, Amanda, Alex, Kristen & Jane

RIDE WANTED

Ride Desperately Needed
To Ithaca NY/vicinity
Will chip in for gas
Wed or Thurs 11/10 or 11/11
546-4210

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share one bedroom apt. in Puffton for Spring semester $220/mo Call 549-7290

Female Roomate wanted in Pulfton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Looking to exchange living space in your home for elder or child care? Need an affordable place and willing to provide services in lieu of paying rent? Stop by the Homesharing Office 428 Student Union to apply

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pragnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

November 12th is the last day to contact the Legal Services Center about a Spring, 1994 Internship! Get hands-on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TO SUBLET

Huge Room w/fireplace
In coed Apt. Cool housemates
Pref Female Jan May
$168+util 549-4318 Chris
10 minutes to campus

Intersession Sublets. Do you have an apartment or room to sublet over intersession? Are you looking for a place to stay over intersession? Come to OCHO, 428 Student Union.

Tired of Dorms?
Take over our 2 bedroom townhouse
Jan 1st Call 549-0310

We want to sublet
Your 3 bedroom
Puffton Apartment
Spring Semester!
Melissa 549-3952

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Typing $1/pg 24 HR turnaround 586-5268

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 546-4722

Sound Board and Light Board operators for Student Valley Productions' "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation." Performance dates are Nov. 17 - 20th. You will also be needed for tech rehearsals. For more information, please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

WANTED TO RENT

Need someone to take over your Amherst area house lease
Call 549-7213

Sports

UMass wins sixth straight over Spiders

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

In August, University of Massachusetts Football Coach Mike Hodges promised a more wide-open, mix-it-up offense, complete with (of all things!) passing.

Last Saturday, it all came to pass as Vito Campanile threw for 186 yards, including a critical 53-yard touchdown toss to Eric Thimas in the fourth quarter, as the Minutemen defeated Richmond, 29-24, at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

Richmond	24
Massachusetts	29

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts football team won its sixth-straight game with a 29-24 victory over the Richmond Spiders. The Minutemen remain undefeated at home.

With time running down and UMass only up 23-17, Campanile calmly called an audible on a second down running play, dropped back and lofted a near-perfect pass to Thimas, who was covered man-to-man. Thimas caught the ball and raced down the right side line, squirming out of a near-tackle at the 5-yard line en route to the decisive TD with 4:14 left.

UMass boosted its record to 7-2, winning six games back-to-back for the first time since the 1985-1986 seasons. The win does not count in the Yankee Conference standings, but it keeps the No. 25 Minutemen in contention for a Division I-AA playoff berth.

"That was just a scramble for us," said Hodges. "The defense did an excellent job; we had all kinds of guys going down but we settled down in the second half and they found a way to win."

UMass lost fullback Rene Ingoglia in the second half when he sprained his knee on a carry. Ingoglia, who has rushed for 1,126 yards in eight games, left the game under his own power and had a Magnetic Resonance Imaging Sunday night at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

"It wasn't stable when I tried to cut, so I figured it's better to be safe than sorry," Ingoglia said Sunday afternoon. "It's a day-to-day thing but I'd like to be optimistic about it."

Backup David Smith filled in nicely, rushing for 78 yards on 18 carries and providing the Minutemen with the time-churning attack they desperately needed in the fourth quarter. UMass held the ball for 10:03 in the fourth and was 7-for-13 on third down conversions. Richmond was 0-for-6.

"David Smith was just awesome," said Hodges. "He isn't like Ingoglia because he's a different style runner. But I'll tell you what, there are some guys on the other side in the locker room who are hurting right now."

"It's easy running behind that huge offensive line," Smith said. "When they open holes that big it builds confidence in you."

UMass was locked into an offensive battle with Richmond. Although quarterback Greg Lilly, the 1992 YanCon Player of the Year, was sidelined, backup Jason Gabrels proved almost as competent. He threw for 151 yards and three touchdowns, two of those in the fourth quarter.

It was the Minutemen who struck first on the team's first series with an Eric Oke 29-yard field goal. UMass got its first touchdown on a typical 6-yard Ingoglia run. Both series were bolstered by 30-yard passes by Campanile.

"I felt a lot more comfortable taking what they gave us," Campanile said. "They were giving us the fade so we threw it all day."

The Spiders got going in the second quarter after it appeared it might be another McGuirk blowout. Jason Rydalch caught a 14-yard pass from Gabrels to make it 10-7, but UMass countered with a chip shot Oke field goal on third down right before the half.

Hodges said he would have gone for the touchdown but was out of timeouts and was frustrated at the inability of the Minutemen to punch the ball in before the third down.

In the second half, UMass jumped out to a 23-10 lead on a Frank Alessio run and Oke's third field goal, but Richmond would not to go down without a fight.

Gabrels drove his team 60 yards in eight plays, elapsing only 2:42 off the clock and cutting the lead to 23-17. It was time for Campanile to step up, and step up he did. His audible on second and 12 stomped the Spiders' chances, and Richmond was unable to get the ball back twice. Gabrels to Rod Boothes cut the score to 29-24, but Campanile and Co. ran out the clock.

Campanile shows confidence in second start

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Vito Campanile casually strolled into the Massachusetts football locker room before Saturday's contest with the University of Richmond wearing a black 10-gallon cowboy hat on his head, gold chains around his neck and a look of confidence on his face. His teammates, all in their warm-ups, just laughed at the freshman.

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Freshman quarterback Vito Campanile showed poise in coming of age in the Minuteman victory at Warren McGuirk Stadium on Saturday.

But after the quarterback led the Minuteman offense down the field late in the fourth quarter, completing an audible pass to flanker Eric Thimas for a 53-yard touchdown which sealed the 29-24 UMass victory over the Spiders, Campanile's teammates and coaches only smiled at his performance.

"Immense, just immense. I mean, he [Campanile] just shouldn't be able to do that as a freshman. Really," Minuteman Coach Mike Hodges said. "What you saw last week is what you kind of expect. [The team just] hangs on, [we'd tell him] `you don't have to win the game for us, Vito.'

"Today, he did — he needed to help us win the football game — he did a great job. A great job."

Campanile's stats do not appear to be impressive; he only completed 9 of 22 for 186 yards and one touchdown. However, the poise he showed on several crucial downs early as well as late in the game, especially on third-and-long downs, meant more for UMass than those stats ever could.

With a little over five minutes left in the first quarter and leading by three, the Minutemen were at the Spider 40-yard line, facing a third-and-seven situation. Campanile promptly dropped back in the pocket and drilled a 34-yard strike over the middle to Thimas, picking up the first down and setting up UMass' first TD on the very next play, a six-yard TD run by fullback Rene Ingoglia.

Later in the game, on the final scoring drive for the Minutemen, Campanile and company faced a third-and-nine on their own 37-yard line; the young QB once again had plenty of time behind his offensive line and was able to find Thimas yet again for a 12-yard gain, keeping the drive going and setting up another opportunity for the duo to shine.

"I knew he was the man when he was runnin' over to the sidelines and yellin' out some play," said UMass senior co-captain Scott Assencoa. "Coach was like, `go ahead', and then he pops Eric Thimas for a first down. I was like, `This kid's calling his own plays.' It's a good feeling."

After a Frank Alessio carry that yielded a two-yard loss, Campanile changed the second-and-12 play from a run to a pass at the line of scrimmage, dropped back and hurled the 53-yard TD to Thimas, who tip-toed along the sidelines past a defender into the end zone for the score.

Throughout the afternoon, Campanile benefitted from a tremendous pocket, thanks to his mammoth offensive line. He said one of the differences in the transition from high school to college was throwing behind such a big line.

"Yeah, that's a difference from high school, I have to say that," said Campanile. "I mean, I'm not a big quarterback and it's a problem sometimes. There are certain routes that you have to really feel for where your receivers are going to be, because you can't deliberately see them.

"I felt a lot more comfortable today throwing the ball. Deeper drops work, but I was never really looking over [the line]; I was looking in between them."

And Campanile's teammates or opponents probably won't be overlooking him for the rest of the season as the Minutemen have finally established an offense that can beat you in the air or on the ground.

What are the consequences of the U.S. embargo against Cuba? Page 7

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Tuesday
50°
November 9, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 43
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Artist at Work

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

Andy Cavanagh, a sophomore plant and soils science major, prepares a silkscreen for making T-shirts at the Craft Center, located in the Student Union. Cavanagh said he plans to concentrate in floraculture.

Gore, Perot to debate

By JOHN KING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — After days of hype and hoopla, when Vice President Al Gore and Texan Ross Perot square off Tuesday night over the North American Free Trade Agreement the arguments are likely to be as familiar as the faces.

The stakes are high as the White House tries to debunk NAFTA's loudest critic in its struggle for the votes to pass the trade agreement with Mexico and Canada.

The great debate between Gore and Perot isn't a debate in the formal sense at all. "Discussion" might be a more accurate description, although "free for all" is the favored phrase of those who expect things to get a bit unruly.

The program is on CNN's "Larry King Live," and only 60 percent of the nation's households receive the cable network.

On a good night, King's audience is about 1 percent of the nation's TV viewing households, although CNN is predicting a big audience because of the advance publicity.

For those who can tune in, here are some things to look for, in style and substance, as Gore and Perot debate the merits of NAFTA:

FORMAT: Like any other edition of "Larry King Live," King will mix his questions with those from viewers and allow Perot and Gore to mix it up as he sees fit.

SOUND BITES: Look for Gore to use a variation of the "facts against fear" phrase his boss the president favors, and to bring one or two new zingers along as well. Don't expect Gore to out sound bite Perot, whose "giant sucking sound" of jobs going to Mexico is far and away the most recognized phrase in the NAFTA debate.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said Gore was "reading, sort of buffing up on NAFTA" including some staff meetings. Perot's office did not immediately return a reporter's telephone call Monday.

JOBS: Look for Gore to press the administration's case that NAFTA means a net plus of 200,000 jobs, most of them in such higher paying fields as computers when Mexico's markets are fully opened to American goods.

Perot will warn of massive job losses as manufacturers rush to low-wage Mexico. In his anti-NAFTA book, Perot says 5.9 million jobs are "at risk" under NAFTA. On Sunday, he dramatically upped the ante, saying 85 million people could lose their jobs to the trade deal.

That's out of 120 million people in the entire U.S. work force. "Another wild claim," said White House communications director Mark Gearan.

PROTECTIONISM: Gore will frame a defeat of NAFTA as a devatating American retreat from the global economy. Look for the vice president to advance this argument, made Monday by Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen: "It would be a tragedy if we would return to the days of protectionism here and fear of competition."

Bill to halt state privatization

By MARTIN FINUCANE
Associated Press

BOSTON - The Senate on Monday sent to the House a bill meant to put the brakes on Gov. William Weld's plan to "privatize" state services by contracting work usually done by state employees to private firms.

Sen. Marc Pacheco, D-Taunton, the bill's sponsor, told his colleagues that delays in moving the bill forward threatened to kill it.

But Senate Minority Leader Brian Lees, R-E. Longmeadow, who had attempted to sidetrack the bill, vowed to continue fighting it. The bill faces more votes in the Legistature before it becomes final and then, possibly, legislators will try to override a veto by Weld.

"I want every member here in this chamber to realize this is a lousy piece of legislation," Lees said.

The bill's supporters say it would require the governor to prove that the state will save money and get same quality service if a given task is contracted to a private firm.

But Republicans say it gives the state auditor too much power over privatization contracts and presumes that state employees are performing at what Weld calls "fantasy land" efficiency levels.

Weld's administration says the state saved $273 million through privatization since 1991.

Lees also said Monday that the bill told the state's human services contractors, "We don't like what you're doing."

Pacheco said, "We are opposed to moving forward with public policy decisions without having all the facts before us and that is exactly what has been taking place with this administration."

Pacheco warned the bill needed to get to the governor's desk by the Thanksgiving holidays or the bill would die.

The Senate voted 9-28 not to lay the bill on the table, as requested by Lees. It also voted not to reconsider the bill and sent it to the House for enactment.

The bill's supporters said they were happy with the winning margin, saying they had more than the two-thirds needed to override a veto.

"We have to maintain that. I don't count my chickens until they're hatched. But I'm very pleased with the vote," said Phyllis Harlow, president of the Denver Association for the Retarded Inc.

Dracula visits Brown House

Student encounters bat inside Sylvan residence hall

By ERIC LEBOFF
Collegian Correspondent

Rob Foley, a sophomore computer science major living in Brown House in Sylvan, awoke Friday morning to a high-pitched shrieking sound in his waste basket.

He approached the barrel and discovered a full-grown bat trapped inside. With its wings pinned, the creature was unable to free itself.

"At first I thought it was a squirrel," Foley said.

Foley said he thinks the bat managed to enter the suite and deposit itself neatly in the trash. He also said he came up with a theory.

"I really don't ow how he got in. I figure he came in through the lounge window, which was ajar," Foley said. "I think it was attracted to the garbage, maybe by the smell of it."

But when he saw the bat's teeth, Foley said he knew it was not so. The bat's body was four inches in length , and its wingspan was over a foot, Foley said.

The bat was laying on a heap of coffee grounds in the waste basket and appeared to be frightened, Foley said.

Foley said he chose the most logical response to finding a winged rodent in one's living quarters — he panicked.

He then consulted with officials from the Brown cluster office. He said there was no one there who could help him.

Lacking options, Foley said he proceeded to remove the creature himself. He carried the basket down the stairs and out to the parking lot.

Foley turned the barrel over, freeing the animal. Unhurt, the bat flew away into its natural habitat, the trees surrounding the Sylvan residence halls.

"I have never heard f anything like this. The closest to this is the spiters in Southwest," Foley said.

Despite this new incident with bats coming into his dorm, Foley said he is used to animals coming into his home.

Foley, who is from Duxbury, said he has had a bird and a mouse get lost in his house. His cat brought in he mouse, Foley said.

Collegian staff Christina Rothwell contributed to this report.

UM student dies in crash over weekend

Although helmets provide some safety while riding a motorcycle, they do not always save a life.

Last Saturday night, Todd Welsh, a University of Massachusetts student, died when his motorcycle struck a minivan, according to Amherst police.

Welsh, 22, of Rutland, was a junior engineering major.

Welsh was living at Brittany Manor apartments.

Police said the accident occurred at 10:20 p.m. on South Pleasant Street near Amherst College.

Welsh, riding south on the road, hit Stanley Sun as he was driving north.

Sun was attempting to turn left, heading west onto Snell Street, when Welsh struck the minivan, police said.

Both vehicles were totaled in the accident.

Sun and Welsh were taken by ambulance to Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton.

Welsh was still alive when he was transported to the hospital, according to police.

The Union-News reported Welsh died at the hospital shortly after 11 p.m. because of multiple injuries, including head and chest injuries.

Welsh was wearing a helmet at the time of the crash, police said.

Police said Sun had leg injuries in need of medical attention.

Sun was released yesterday from the hospital according to the Daily Hampshire Gazette.

Sun, 45, is a Hadley resident.

Amherst Patrolman Michael Johnson was the investigating officer at the scene.

Police said the accident is still under investigation, and that Sun was sober at the time of the incident. No citations have been issued, police said.

Investigators are waiting for Welsh's toxicology report to determine if alcohol was involved.

Dr. Loren Medick, a medical examiner in Springfield autopsied Welsh yesterday morning, according to the Daily Hampshire Gazette.

—KELLY SPANG

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0579

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Developing Nations Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Recycle this Collegian.

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, November 9

Support group — The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Support Group will meet from 3:30 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. Check in at 127 Hills North on day of group, or call 545-2337.

Social — LBGA Infosocial will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center. The LBGA will have nominations for open positions and will show the film Tongues Untied.

Wednesday, November 10

Brown Bag Series — Psychology professor Bonnie Strickland will discuss "Planning a Course in Lesbian Studies" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 811.

Rap group — Bi Rap Group is holding a pizza and video party from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Lecture — Andrea Weiss, author of Vampires and Violets: Lesbians in the Cinema, will present "A Queer Feeling When I Look at You: Hollywood Stars and Lesbian Spectatorship in the 1930s" at 7:30 p.m. in Stirn Auditorium, Amherst College.

Thursday, November 11

Political caucus — The LBGA Politlcal Caucus will meet at 8 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Friday, November 12

Social — The GLB Grad Group will hold a social from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Dance — The LBGA will hold an '80s dance from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. in Hampden Southside Room. Admission is $3.

Sunday, November 13

Radio show — "This Way Out," the GLB radio news magazine, will be broadcast at 1:05 p.m. on radio station WTTT 1430 AM.

Monday, November 15

Women's Union — The Lesbian Bisexual Women's Union will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Notice:

The FYI listing of Tuesday events appears on page 10 in today's paper.

Interested in writing for the Jewish Affairs page? Come down to the Collegian located at 113 Campus Center basement.

Complete RESUME Package ALL INCLUSIVE
Campus Design & Copy
403 Student Union, above Credit Union
STUDENTS WORKING FOR STUDENTS
$15
At Campus Design & Copy our experienced Resume staff can execute the professional resume you are looking for and at one of the lowest prices in the area. The $15 all inclusive charge includes complete layout and typesetting, 10 copies on our high quality resume paper, 10 matching envelopes and storage of your resume on our Macintosh System for one year so you can update and change it when needed. All for $15.

PIER 9
DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
$1 Off Second
Fresh Fish & Chips
$1 Off Second Giant Gander
Exp. 12/31/93
Small Coffee and buttered bagel for $1.00 all day
10% Discount with this ad
Exp. 12/31/93

TOMORROW!
Grammy award-winning blues guitarist
Robert CRAY
with John Hammond
Nov. 10, 1993 8pm
UMass Fine Arts Center
$16 w/ UMass ID, $18 all others
Tickets available only through FAC Box Office (545-2511)
A UPC Production
Don't miss UPC's upcoming show featuring dynamic West African percussionist
Babatunde Olatunji
Coming December 11th to UMass!
Stop by the Cray promo table on the CC Concourse today from 9 to 3!

TWISTERS TAVERN
30 Boltwood Walk
253-2663
This Weekend:
THURS. COORS Lite Night - Prizes - T-Shirts Disco Hell with DJ Bob
FRI. Greg Cabral Acoustic 5-8pm DANCING with DJ Bob
SAT. The Guitar Dudes
Call 253-2663 For More Information
BEER of the month COORS Lite only $1.50
Drink of the week: Vodka and Tonic only $1.75

MUSLIM STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
of the Five College Area cordially invites you to a lecture by
Imam Warith Deen Mohammed
Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective
7:00 PM Tuesday, November 16th, 1993
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts, Amherst
ADMISSION FREE

W. Deen Mohammed delivers statement at 'First Liberty Summit' in Williamsburg, VA.

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan

Come on baby light my fire

Rutherford Platt, a professor of geography and planning law at the University, has just returned from California where he studied the aftermath of the 1991 Oakland fires that ravaged 3,400 homes. He has been studying government response to determine how to rebuild and redesign communities to make them safer against the possibility of wildfires.

Platt said the conditions in Oakland and Los Angeles were similar. Both had homes built of materials unsuitable to their environment, houses in isolated areas with narrow roads making evacuation difficult and bat water pressure.

Oakland officials have been good about educating residents and reducing the amount of flammable vegetation. Platt is available to speak on the topic of the raging wildfires in California.

Natural Sciences and Mathematics earns a new dean

The Faculty of Natural Sciences and Mathematics has earned a new dean in Linda Slakey, a professor of biochemistry. Slakey was appointed by Provost Glen Gordon, and her appointment takes effect on Nov. 15.

Slakey has been a member of the faculty since 1973 and served as head of the biochemistry department from 1986- 1991. She spearheaded a review of the undergraduate biochemistry program and worked with other department heads to design and implement joint courses for majors in the life sciences.

Slakey graduated from Siena Heights College in Michigan and received her doctorate in biochemistry from the University of Michigan. She performed doctoral research at the University of Wisconsin.

She has published extensively, and her research has been funded by the National Institute of Health and the American Heart Association.

Slakey, who will also oversee the Scientific Reasoning Research Institute, replaces Frederick Byron Jr., whose resignation became effective in August.

Senator Rosenberg files plans to aid UMass

Senator Stan Rosenberg filed a legislative plan that includes authorizing the University of Massachusetts Trustees to lease real property to other public and private entities for economic development projects. The projects will mix the needs of education with those of industry. This bill will attempt to enhance educational opportunities and also address the need for long-term job growth.

Rosenberg is also co-sponsoring a bill to create a University of Massachusetts research center to study the state's economy. The center, which would be the clearinghouse for economic development, would also emphasize development strategies for state, regional and local economies.

Thes bills will come before the legislature during the 1994 session.

Colloquium held to sponsor Melusine

The 600th anniversary of Jean d'Arras's romance novel Melusine was celebrated at the University with a two-day colloquium. Held this weekend, the event was co-organized by Donald Maddox and Sara Sturm-Maddox of the department of French and Italian, who are preparing the first English translation of the novel.

The 14th century work is a pseudo-historical account of the founding of the medieval Lusignan dynasty set against the backdrop of the 100 Years War and the Crusades. It was commissioned by Jean Duc de Berry to substantiate his claims to the domain of Lusignan.

The symposium invited scholars from North America, Oxford and Paris to present papers on the cultural context of the romance from literary and historical perspectives.

Students discuss dating

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

MATT KAHN/COLLEGIAN
Nic Tyler, a junior theater major at UMass, and Indira Lopez, a senior at MHC, depict a sexual harrassment scene.

The variations of "body space" and social practices in different cultures can cause confusion when determining what is and what is not sexual harassment, according to some international students at Mount Holyoke College.

The students participated in a workshop for international students that aimed to help them recognize sexual harassment in this culture. The workshop is part of a week-long "Victim/Survivor Week" at Mount Holyoke. The events are sponsored by the Mount Holyoke Women Against Sexual Harassment or W.A.S.H.

The workshop began with a short skit. The multiple scene skit illustrated a situation of sexual harassment. The students then participated in a discussion which compared dating patterns and practices cross-culturally.

Ilham Harati, a first year student at Mount Holyoke, is from Brazil. She said it was hard to interpret a man's actions in another culture.

"In a foreign country you don't know what his intentions are, and what you can do about it," Harati said.

She said she had much more of an idea about such things in her own country.

Tala De Los Santos, a first year student at MHC from the Philippines, said dating practices in her homeland are different from this country. People don't just meet randomly she said. They are introduced.

"It is hard to imagine men and women just meet each other and exchange phone numbers," she said. "Usually, if he has called enough and sent her enough gifts, a girl will say yes to a date," she said.

According to the students, dating practices are much more informal in the United States.

The word, date, is vague in meaning in this country, according to international students.

"Here a date can mean a lot of things. In Portuguese there are different words for people going out romantically, out with friends and out for work," Harati said.

The words help to define the relationship better, she said.

Indira Lopez, an MHC senior from Mexico, said sex is not a goal of a first date in her country. She said she felt sex was much more a part of the first date in American culture.

Body language was another topic of discussion. Rhae Parkes, an MHC senior from Jamaica, said in her culture people are very openly affectionate, and this is often misinterpreted here.

"I have been in the situation where my intention is innocent, and it is misunderstood," Parkes said.

Faizun Kamal, a first year MHC student from Bangladesh, said she finds it strange that in American dating practices, there seems to be a goal or something to accomplish besides just getting to know the person.

And, it all comes down to deciding where your own boundaries are, according to Nic Tyler, a junior theater major at UMass.

UMass grad demands access

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"If politics was a moshpit, ... young people are getting slammed," said Nick Nyham, deputy director of Lead or Leave, a new grassroots campaign taking America's college campuses by storm.

Created by Rob Nelson and Jon Cowan, two 20-something college graduates, Lead or Leave is a political action group whose main goal is to empower the younger generation in the political arena.

"We're not telling people how to vote. We're just telling them to be aware," said Nyham, a 1992 University of Massachusetts graduate.

One of the goals of LOL is to battle the bad economic time generation X, the current generation of America's youth, is facing. Nyham cited the AIDS epidemic, racial strife and the environment as examples of how everything is affected by the U.S. economy.

"We can't fund AIDS research when there is no money for it," said Nyham in a recent telephone interview. "There's a war on the streets of America ... And, it is exasperated by the economy."

Nyham visited the UMass campus last week to speak to the Undergradute Student Government about the Washington, D.C., — based organization. Speaking to the SGA, Nyham encouraged the senators to pass a resolution to have a seat on the national LOL board.

Pointing out that UMass is a perfect example of how students attending state schools are the ones taking hits during a budget crisis, Nyham said state officials do not think twice to slash another 15 percent out of money allocated for education purposes.

He explained that every year, 4,000 students graduate from UMass, many without a job and a very bleak future because of the economic strife the country is experiencing. He said he has friends who are living at home with no jobs wondering "what happened to the American dream?"

"UMass, as the flagship school ... needs to lead the

Turn to POLITICS page4

Cuban writers criticize change

By EVELYN A. DE JESUS
Collegian Staff

Current political and economic changes in Cuba do not necessarily represent what the Cuban people want, according to two prominent Cuban writers.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Two Cuban writers spoke about the political oppression in Cuba last night in Amherst.

More than 60 people at the Amherst College Converse Hall listen to Manuel Diaz Martinez and Jose Lorenzo Fuentes, who were both imprisioned in Cuba for their political beliefs.

These "superficial" changes, such as the use of the dollar in currency and permission from the government to work independently, are "desperate" means of Fidel Castro to control the country, Lorenzo said.

"These are not the changes which should be done," said Lorenzo, 65, who left Cuba last December.

After the Miami Herald columnist was incarcerated for three years in the late '60s, he was not allowed to publish for 12 years.

In contrast to other immigrants in the United States, Cubans deserve to be exempted from U.S. immigration policies, taking into account that "they do not have a country to go back to," Diaz said.

The Cuban government not only prohibits Cubans to defect, but they also ignore human rights, said Diaz, 57, who left Cuba 21 months ago.

Like Lorenzo, Diaz was censured from publishing for 17 years in 1969 because he criticized the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Diaz described this experience as hellish and humiliating because he was "disposed from his condition as a citizen in Cuba."

Turn to CUBA, page 4

Society honors grads

Seniors recognized for achievements

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

The Delta Chapter of Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society at the University of Massachusetts is now accepting applications for fellowships from graduating seniors.

Phi Kappa Phi's national office will award 50 competitive fellowships worth $7,000 and 30 honorable mentions worth $1,000 to outstanding seniors, who are moving on to graduate or professional study.

UMass seniors with scholastic achievement, high standardized test scores, honors and enrichment programs, and leadership and participation in University and community activities are encouraged to apply.

That, along with future plans and evaluations by faculty, will help judges in the selection process.

According to Professor John Nelson, president of the society's fourth oldest chapter, the competition includes all UMass seniors, not just society members.

"The competition is very stiff," said Nelson, who encourages students with a 3.85 grade point average or above to apply.

In the past UMass students have received the award, Nelson said.

Phi Kappa Phi, founded in 1897, has more than 250 chapters at universities and colleges throughout the nation.

It is the only major national scholastic honor society that recognizes academic excellence in all disciplines.

The Fellowship Program was established in 1932 and has given more than 1,200 fellowship awards and 400 honorable mentions since then.

Students interested in applying for the Fellowship Program can contact Phi Kappa Phi representative Wanda Bak, at 452 Bartlett Hall.

■ politics

continued from page 3

way for other schools to get involved with politics," Nyham said, pointing out how he wants to highlight this campuses activism nationwide.

According to Nyham, this generation made up of college students is the first to have a lower standard of living than their own parents. He brought up how "baby-boomers" had the chance to feel the period of prosperity enabling them to buy BMWs and high tech toys.

He used the analogy of the economy being like a party, saying generation X is "now in the hangover stage."

LOL's function with the many colleges and universities, involved with the organization, is to open up a communications pipeline to show people in political office that students mean business when it comes to the country's economic future, Nyham said.

Paul Tsongas, Barbara Jordan, Val Kilmer, Christian Slater, Lee Iacocca and governors William Weld and Ann Richards are just a few of the names that appear on LOL's national advisory board.

■ Cuba

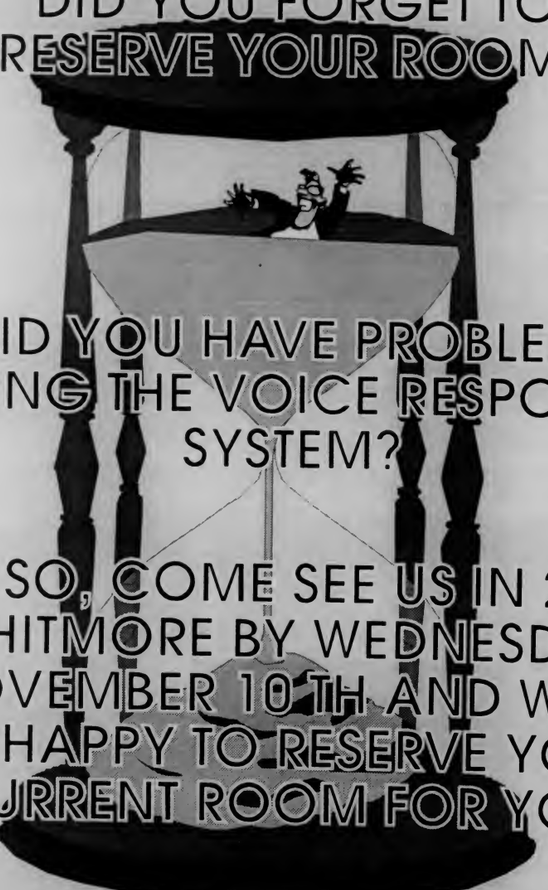
continued from page 3

"Just for the fact that they [the Cuban government] did not let me publish, it did not mean I stopped writing," said Diaz, who teaches Spanish American literature at the University of Great Canary Islands in Spain.



Both men agree that the economic embargo of Cuba, sponsored by the United States, should be lifted, while the Cuban government also lifts the embargo of its people on their human rights.

Diaz is currently exiled in Miami. He has contributed columns on Cuban affairs for El Nuevo Herald, the Miami Herald Spanish division and El Nuevo Dia newspaper in Puerto Rico.

As for Lorenzo, he is currently living in Canary Islands, Spain and has not applied for political asylum in this country at press time.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

DID YOU FORGET TO RESERVE YOUR ROOM?

DID YOU HAVE PROBLEMS USING THE VOICE RESPONSE SYSTEM?

IF SO, COME SEE US IN 235 WHITMORE BY WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10TH AND WE'LL BE HAPPY TO RESERVE YOUR CURRENT ROOM FOR YOU.

IF YOU WANT TO RESERVE A DIFFERENT ROOM IN YOUR BUILDING CONTACT YOUR CLUSTER OFFICE WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17TH DURING ANNOUNCED HOURS. THANK YOU.

Thrills
Write for the Arts & Living Section.
You'll enjoy fun times with some swell guys and gals!
113 Campus Center
545-1361

The Collegian
545-3500

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON
$140 $280
PARIS
$209 $418
AMSTERDAM
$195 $390
FRANKFURT
$209 $418
.....Roundtrip
TOKYO
$769
Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Eurailpasses issued on the spot.
Customs-Immigration & departure taxes apply.
Fares subject to change w/tice.
Int'l student I.D. cards may be required
PRISM TRAVEL
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Censorship stifles debate

Editor's note: The following column has been endorsed by the Collegian Executive Board.

I appreciate that members of the community cared enough to write letters to the editor concerning recent advertising for Anthony's Pub, an adult entertainment club. This column is a response.

Michelle
BAYLISS

The executive board of the Collegian, which is responsible for rejecting controversial or questionable advertising, has endured long spirited meetings discussing and debating this particular ad and the issue of adult advertising in general.

It is understandable that readers may find ads for adult entertainment such as Anthony's offensive or objectionable for a number of reasons, including the exploitation of women. It is also understandable that readers may support an ad illustrating the dancers' right to express themselves freely.

However, if the Collegian chooses to reject the Anthony's Pub ad on the basis that some find it offensive, it is you the reader who suffers, for the choice to support or object to the club's business would have been made for you. The Collegian is not in the business of limiting publication to only what is pleasant. We are, however, in the business of striving to represent the truth. And, the truth is we are all adults and adult entertainment is a reality.

By publishing the ad, the Collegian hopes to empower you, the reader, by both informing you and increasing your awareness. Our goal is to expand the marketplace of ideas, not discriminate or limit it. Only through awareness can you make an informed decision, like whether or not to simply turn the page, conduct a rally, or write the owner of Anthony's a letter. The Collegian is not advocating people to go to Anthony's, just as we are not encouraging people to go buy a bottle of Wild Turkey at Scott's Liquors. What we are providing is a public forum for everyone.

By publishing the ad, the positive outcomes outweigh the consequences of prohibiting the ad. By censoring the ad, there is no awareness. Debate is stifled. There is no outrage, disgust, joy, enthusiasm . . . no causing the executive board high blood pressure, headaches, ulcers or low G.P.A.'s.

I ask that you consider the thoughts I've offered regarding publication of controversial ads and not hold The Collegian responsible for the content or product of what any advertiser sells, for we only wish to inform you. "Freedom of speech is better than sex." — Madonna.

Michelle Bayliss is Editor-in-Chief of the Collegian.

Violence against men is ignored

I want to voice my objection to your advertisement portraying a smiling woman, who is obviously pleased with herself for having just shot her dog and her husband [Collegian, Nov. 4]. If the advertisement had portrayed a smiling man, with a gun, proclaiming his inability to refrain form killing his dog and his wife, every woman in this country would be outraged.

Violence against men is ignored, accepted, invisible or, as in this case, portrayed as funny. There is nothing funny about it. And, as with violence against women, it should no longer be acceptable.

Stephen Smith
Amherst

Thanks for the suggestion

And now for something completely random...

Of all the little quirks and stipulations of Chancellor Scott's little smoking policy, I really get off on the 20 foot rule. This is going to be such a bitch to enforce.

Perhaps something like a goalie's crease should be enforced. And referees, yeah referees with uniforms and whistles.

Adam
GOULSTON

"Aww dude, i was outside the Campus Center today smoking a butt, and they got me at 17 feet. Yeah man, they threw me in the penalty box, and I got to class 15 minutes late."

"Wow man, that sucks, but i bet you felt healthier."

"Yeah, I sure did. I'm sure glad someone can tell me how to take care of myself!"

Your word of the day: petty.

It was so cool. The nearby Army base has diverted some of their bombers to the strip in front of the Campus Center. There's room for them to land and take off without even coming close to the bicycle racks.

Seeing that I'm on the subject of bitching, I'd like to devote a little space to discussing the minor warfare being waged on the students as much as three times a day.

It may be a stale topic, but the dining commons seem to be progressing from dreadful to preposterous. The menu selections, service and facilities are an entirely absurd array of incompetence.

Here's just a taste (and a very unpleasant one):

•Heat is a key element in a hot meal. The fact that I have to pay (about $5) to eat cold soggy waffles soaked in cold syrup baffles me. How do they get the waffles below room temperature? Is it really such an insane request that food be a few degrees above tepid? What's the point of heating wells if they don't keep the food hot? Would it be the least bit of an imposition to request a few microwaves be installed in each D.C. if the food is going to continue to be cold?

•Were there other selections (especially in the morning), perhaps I wouldn't mind so much. But there are not other selections. The D.C. rotation is waffles — French toast — waffles — pancakes — French toast — and so forth. There is no experimentation, no variation. The same damn thing every day. Cold eggs, cold waffles. This is gross. This is garbage.

•By the way, whose idea is the donut bar? Granted i come from a town far, far off called Brookline (it is two hours away), but I didn't realize eating habits in the Pioneer Valley were so drastically different. Wow, they put strawberries and marshmallow fluff on plain donuts here!

•Why can I not be trusted with a toaster? Why does it take a certified Bagel Steward to toast my bagel?

•Why oh why do three fat fried fish nuggets constitute an entree? At what point am I worthy of having my plate refilled? Do I have to lick it first?

UMass D.C. food is the epitome of industrial, mass quantity, canned, frozen and insultingly dreadful quality food. If the meal plan were not required of residents and the D.C.s were offered as a desperate but affordable alternative to those who didn't have the time or abilities to prepare their own meals, they would still be low quality but understandable.

However, since the D.C.s are a mandatory consequence of campus housing and are quite expensive, an attempt must be made to revise their menu (especially at breakfast), heat their food and treat the students with a little respect rather than throwing them little wise-ass remarks on their pink comment cards like, "Thanks for the suggestion. We will forward it to food services."

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

Campus smokers have plenty of room, outside

Late in the evening on Nov. 1, a small group of us were sitting in the Graduate Lounge. It was my first time there, and I only went because I was informed by a friend that "it was the place to be," since it was now smoke-free. We were enjoying a warm, comfortable atmosphere, when our calmness was suddenly interrupted by a young man, who came over to us to see if we had a light. We could only offer him a succinct "no." So, he walked away to inquire elsewhere.

No words were spoken among us, we non-smokers, but surely we were all thinking the same thought, "I hope he's planning on smoking that cigarette outside." Yet, it became clear that this individual hadn't heard about the new smoking policies. All the people, who turned to look at this smoker to be, were wondering the same thing. We all silently inquired. Would he smoke in this beautiful, pure room? Would he so rude as to disrupt our pleasure?

Well, indeed he did. The saddest thing about this whole incident is not one of us said a word. No complaints were issued, no reprimands, not a single request that this person please go outside to smoke that butt. While most of us were able to deal this smoker a self-confident snub (regarding our inability to provide a light), none of us were actually able to vocalize our very crucial concerns. Underneath our brave facades, lay apprehension and a sense of powerlessness.

To this smoker I say: Please familiarize yourself with the new policy. We said nothing because we did not want to embarrass you. I said nothing because I did not want to embarrass my friends.

To the Collegian I say: Non-smokers do not smoke for a variety of reasons. The Collegian's board of editors do not seem to understand this simple fact. They seem only to understand the health aspect of this campus-wide ban.

Second-hand smoke is not the only way to smokers affect the non-smokers around them. While I feel some degree of understanding for smokers, they are addicted to a life-threatening substance. I do not wish to have smoke-scented clothing and dirty air to breathe.

The editors also suggest University smokers be allowed to smoke in at least one designate area in the Campus Center. Well, is this "100 percent fair?" They also claim that smokers needs have not been addressed. As far as I can tell, smokers at UMass have plenty of open space in which to smoke. Want a butt? How about going outside and polluting our air out there.

Letting people smoke inside the Campus Center is something terribly unnecessary and gross. It leaves the air malodorous and stale. The Collegian said, "[smokers] have been left out in the cold." Yeah, I think they have.

Celia Rossi
Orchard Hill

Education essential

Last week, a doctoral program in nursing, jointly proposed by the Schools of Nursing in Amherst and Worcester, and approved by the Board of Trustees of the University of Massachusetts was "deactivated." This action prevents the opening of a publicly funded nursing doctoral program in Massachusetts.

Every other school in the University system has a doctoral program. The hotel, restaurant, travel administration program requested a doctoral program after the School of Nursing did, and received one. What is this saying about the value of nurses? Are we not worth educating at the doctoral level?

Nurses are vital to the future of health care. Their responsibilities and roles will increase with President Clinton's health care reform. We need to be educated at the doctoral level to meet these increasing demands. Therefore, it would be unwise to prevent such an education.

It is my hope that the doctoral program in nursing does not remain deactivated, but approved and funded so that nurses in the Commonwealth receive the education that we need and deserve.

Katie Lord
Worcester

The University must act, not react, to anti-Semitism and ignorance

A year ago this fall a Black resident assistant was the target of a racial assault. Anyone present at the University of Massachusetts during this time can distinctly recall the public outrage and protest which resulted from the incident.

Sadly, little has changed in one year's time. Six documented appearances of Nazi swastikas have demonstrated that UMass remains an institution blemished by hate and ignorance.

One such incident occured in a classroom, where on the blackboard, the words "I will murder you" were accompanied by the swastika. To some such threats might seem harmless. But to a growing number of Jewish students, they have become a disturbing dynamic of campus life.

During my time at UMass Hillel, I have met students, whose experiences range from threatening phone calls to late night harassment and death threats by roommates. Many of these students, frightened and feeling as if there was no where else to turn, have called Hillel anonymously. Often due to poor training, the students' resident assistants and teachers prove to be useless in dealing with violence.

A large number of these problems have been ignored by a university, which would rather promote a facade of multiculturalism, than deal with real solutions.

It is the University's responsibility to educate its staff on these issues. The administration must implement stronger disciplinary actions, or enforce the existing policies more vigorously. If students were aware of their rights, and staff were trained on how to be more supportive, most of these incidents would be handled appropriately.

This task could be accomplished, in part, with the rejuvenation of the dorm educators program, which at one time traveled through the dorms, addressing these very issues. This campus desperately needs less show and more action. It is ironic these acts of violence against the Jewish community have largely occurred after a highly publicized conference on racism. It is indeed time that the Univerisity act, and not react, by making a commitment to all minority students on this campus.

Steve Sparling
Amherst

Chillin on the Curb

COLLEGIAN

Nick Billikas, a psychology major; Paul Tambolleo, a history major; and Tim Galanis, an English major practice the art of relaxing.

Jury selected in marital circumcision court case

By ANNE GEARAN
Associated Press

MANASSAS, Va. — A jury was selected yesterday to hear the case of a man accused of abusing his wife before she cut off his penis.

John Wayne Bobbitt, 26, and his wife, Lorena, briefly faced one another in court as Bobbitt's trial began on a charge of marital sexual assault. She also faces trial later this month for the mutilation, which she says she did in a rage after being assaulted.

Prince William County Circuit Judge LeRoy F. Millette Jr. chose the jury, nine women and three men, from a pool of 30 potential jurors.

He rejected three people who said they had heard about the case and formed an opinion too strong for them to fairly consider it. Another was rejected when she said she would be embarrassed to discuss sexual matters.

Millette initially refused requests from Bobbitt's lawyer to remove another potential juror, who said she was the victim of a sexual assault. But she was not one of the people eventually chosen.

Sheriff's deputies barricaded streets surrounding the courthouse and examined reporters and spectators with metal detectors.

Reporters and cameramen outnumbered the curious, and there were some empty places in the courtroom, which has space for 150 spectators and reporters. Officials said they expected larger crowds later in the week when Bobbitt is to testify.

Are you artistically inclined?

The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!

Contact E.C. Thomas at 113 Campus Center for information.

My Period Is Late.

QUESTION

My period is two weeks late. Does this mean I'm pregnant?

ANSWER

Absence of menstruation, known as amenorrhea, is most frequently caused by pregnancy, but it may also be caused by a hormonal imbalance, stress, travel, change in a method of birth control, rigorous exercise or dramatic weight loss. Another possible cause is a disorder of the ovary. If you have reason to believe you may be pregnant, look for other symptoms which may include nausea and vomiting, breast tenderness and tingling, and frequent urination. You can get a pregnancy test from a doctor or clinic, or perform a home pregnancy test, to find out for sure. If the result is positive, be sure to schedule an appointment with your obstetrician/ gynecologist for ongoing care. If the test is negative, your doctor may want to schedule further tests to identify the cause of your missed period. In any case the cause of the missed period should be identified.

If you have a health-related question you'd like answered, or if you need a referral to an area physician, make a free call to the registered nurses at The Professionals at 784-CALL or 1-800-377-HEALTH.

Baystate Medical Center
A Member of Baystate Health Systems

THE PROFESSIONALS
Healthy Answers from People Who Know

Monday - Friday, 7 a.m. - 10 p.m. Weekends and holidays, 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Ever Get Somebody Totally Wasted?

FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500

THE EDITORIAL PAGE IS LOOKING FOR EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS.

INTERESTED?

CONTACT E.C. THOMAS AT THE COLLEGIAN

JOE BOXER

WHITE UNDERWEAR LIKE THIS. WHO NEEDS PANTS.

191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-2013

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN

22 Masonic St. Northampton 586-6338

Open 7 days - Thursday nights in Northampton

CopyCat PRINT SHOP

We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!

228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840

RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles

Bulk Rate Copies...
OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.

$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

Developing Nations

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

What kind of future will Puerto Rico and Puerto Ricans have?

Miss Puerto Rico, USA 1993 & the winner is no one

By Jorge Matos
Collegian Correspondent

It had been a tradition in my family, back in the island of Puerto Rico, that all its members had to get their college degrees from some U.S. university, preferably some Eastern one.

I have always been the rebel. I asked to be allowed to study at the University of Puerto Rico. As a result, I was sent to Spain. Somehow, I had the feeling that I was being punished for violating some unwritten family rule.

Analysis

This was the saga that some upper-middle class Puerto Ricans had to go through back in the '70s. My questions at the time were, why was I compelled or forced to continue my college education here? Why not in Puerto Rico? Why did all my friends and everyone I knew, from the different Catholic and private schools in San Juan, felt it was some sort of obligation to get a degree from whatever university or American college existed, as long as it was on the mainland? Any college was better than the University of Puerto Rico, even Guacamayo College, a term coined in the island to refer to those mediocre colleges that exist in every country.

My family, from both sides, belongs to either of the island's two main political parties, the pro-Commonwealth or pro-Statehood parties. I can identify only a few distant relatives that used to belong to the Nationalist Party and a couple of first cousins that are pro-Independent advocates. I can vividly remember the tragedy it was when I came back from Spain, without a law degree, a decision to return to the University of Puerto Rico, and worse of all, a desire to join the ranks of the pro-Independence party, as a result of the Socialist influence I was exposed in liberal Valencia, Spain.

This reality has not changed much in many middle class Puerto Rican families. The "imperial class," a class that has ruled the island for more than a hundred years, are less tragic about the island's independence. They view it as something "exotic" that will never happen, as they say and I quote,"just look around in Latin America's 'sovereign nations,' they are worse off than we are. They are not as sovereign as they think they are, and they are migrating to the United States and Puerto Rico, instead of the other way around." This is the perception that the United States taught Puerto Ricans to have about Latin America, a group of corrupt nations ruled by permanent oligarchies.

But, they do not want a crime ridden island either, with over a 1,000 murders perpetrated every year, an official unemployment rate of 18 percent (unofficially it can go as high as 35 percent - 40 percent) and with no voice in a place where decisions affecting them are taken routinely by the U.S. Congress.

So what do the Puerto Rican really want? According to poll taken, as a result of a campaign for a plebiscite to be held in the island next Sunday, most Boricuas prefer statehood as the option, securing the island's future for the rest of eternity.

What does statehood mean for the island? How is it going to be implemented? Can we get out of the Union if we do not like it? What secret do they know that we island Puerto Ricans do not know? Do racists in Washington want a state composed of what they call "minorities," "Latinos" or "Hispanics"?

Having these and a million of such questions, Puerto Ricans are going to vote in a contest that the three main parties and the Puerto Rican media have baptized as the "plebiscite."What the island's political parties are going to do with the results of such consultation should be a feast to political observers around the world.

One thing has been sparked by the passions generated by this intent, in the island and here in the mainland: Puerto Rican bashing. This phenomenon has actually never stopped since the island was invaded by the United States. Time magazine in its Nov. 8 issue calls statehooders "light skinned, fearful, U.S. dependent islanders." The Union-News in its June 16 issue displayed photos of the island's poorest neighborhood, in the island's poorest town and portrayed it as being Puerto Rico. The Boston Globe, in its Nov. 7 issue, portrays Puerto Ricans as people without identity, even though the author talks about "Puerto Ricans" all the time. It fascinates me. Not only the lack of information on the "Puerto Rican question", here in the United States, but also in the island. The invaded people are blamed for their poverty, U.S. dependency, their lack of national identity and self-esteem, the presence of American in the island, etc. The United States, the invader, the colonial power, is exonerated by everyone else, including the international community. I can only cite a couple of nations that have always advocated for Puerto Rico in the United Nations: Cuba and Namibia. I cannot recognize as support the accidental assistance most of our Latin American counterparts, European and Asian nations have given Puerto Ricans in our national struggle.

If we have been a colony of the world's most powerful nation for 100 years, it is the result of a military occupation, internal violence in Puerto Rico and the indifference of a world too busy competing economically with the United States, setting up partnerships with Americans, or enjoying American exploitation of their "sovereign nations."

Puerto Ricans can be found fighting alongside Bolivar in the liberation of Colombia, Venezuela, Peru and Ecuador. Boricuas have fought with Duarte in the Dominican Republic, Marti in Cuba and Morazan in Central America. It is payback time Latin America! Help us denounce the atrocities being committed against one of your own, the Puerto Rican people. Reaffirm your own sovereignity and independence. Let us establish DEMOCRACY in this our America, once and for all. For democracy as it is known today, is highly questionable.

The struggle for DIGNITY by the people of Puerto Rico should be the struggle of all Latin Americans. We will, all, be held accountable for the outcome by the future generations.

Cuba in the 1990s: a new crisis

Consequences of the United States embargo on Cuba

By Meryl Nass and Graeme Sephton
Special to the Collegian

Fidel Castro became Cuba's leader in 1959, following a limited popular revolution. Many people claim that he was not initially anti-American, but merely independent and nationalistic. Within a year of his assuming power, the United States under Eisenhower clapped an embargo on Cuba.

For 34 years the embargo has remained. Cuba survived, primarily due to aid and trade from the Soviet bloc.

Cuba effectively developed other resources, particularly its human resources. After the revolution there was a "literacy campaign" in which those who were literate went out to the countryside and taught others to read. Cuba now has 99 percent literacy. All education is free. Medicine is free as well. Compared with 3,000 medical doctors left in Cuba in 1959, there are now over 40,000. From one medical school, there are now close to 20.

Cuba was eventually able to guarantee a job for everyone, free health care, home ownership, a pension or retirement and other social services. Food and other essentials were rationed, guaranteeing that necessities were cheap and available, though luxuries were harder to come by. Until recently, Cuba was said to have the highest standard of living in Latin America.

On January 1, 1990, the Soviet Union ceased to exist. With its sudden demise went Cuba's trade agreements, markets, sources off raw materials and many other items. The economy contracted 40 percent overnight. Suddenly, everyone could not have a job, for there were shortages of materials for factories to process. An acute scarcity of petroleum soon shut down most public transportation and nearly all private vehicles, eventually leading to electrical breakouts for much of the time.

Exarcerbating the problems, the U.S. government tightened the embargo through passage of the "Cuban Democracy Act" in October, 1992. The Cuban Democracy Act extends the existing embargo against Cuba to foreign subsidiaries of U.S. firms, and prohibits international merchant vessels from entering U.S. ports for six months after any stop in Cuba. Seventy percent of the trade eliminated by the act was in food and medicines.

As if that were not enough, Cuba was hit by Hurricane Andrew, the "Storm of the Century," which caused damage worth $1 billion. As Cubans tried to rebuild after the storm, the U.S. embargo made it very difficult to obtain supplies.

As a result, Cuba is reeling. Available foodstuffs are severely limited. Almost everyone has lost weight. A recent epidemic of blindness, which affected 50,000 Cubans, is almost certainly due to nutritional deficiency plus exposure to a toxin, and should not have occurred in a reasonably nourished population.

Not only is there no food, but also there are no spare parts, no soaps, and little else. Workers are leaving home at five in the morning to get to work, since few of the buses run, and there is no fuel for cars. It's surprising that people still go to work under the conditions Cubans are facing. Moreover, there is almost nothing available to buy with the money earned.

Perhaps the embargo made sense before the Cold War ended. It cost Cuba an estimated $40 billion. The facts that Cuba sent troops to Angola, and aided Nicaragua, were also invoked to explain the embargo.

Today, there is no Cold War. Cuba has no soldiers overseas, and has cut the size of its military. Furthermore, Cuba is willing to negotiate on many issues with the United States in order for the embargo to end.

What does the United States stand to gain by maintaining the embargo, which is bringing 11 million Cubans to their knees?

Why is the U.S. government now refusing to negotiate on issues it previously claimed were critical, such as human rights, and compensation for nationalized properties?

President Clinton has never explained his Cuba policy. Perhaps his policy is designed to assuage the one million Cuban emigres who, residing mostly in Florida and voting Republican, could swing to give him Florida's large electoral vote. Clinton personally may have no policy, maintaining existing U.S. strategy until one is developed.

U.S. policy makers have long felt threatened by Castro, and his creation of a thriving socialist society. As a result, reportage on Cuba has been very limited, travel to Cuba by Americans has been restricted, and U.S. media were prevented from maintaining offices in Cuba. Thus the truth about Cuba has been kept from U.S. citizens. The ultimate impact of U.S. policy is now becoming clear, the economic destruction of Cuba.

We went troops to Somalia to save the people from civil strife and starvation. In Cuba, the United States is trying to create precisely that situation. If this is not the U.S. objective, then let us take advantage of Castro's willingness and negotiate now.

Going Places?

Wednesday, November 10: A panel, led by Hussein Adam from Holy Cross, will discuss "The crisis in Somalia and its international implications" at 7:30 p.m. in Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College.

Thursday, November 11: A lecture and performance of Korean Rhythmic Patterns and Farmer's Drumming, at 5 p.m. in Sage Hall at Smith College.

Saturday, November 13: A conference entitled "Exposing Asian America" will be held at Wright Hall Auditorium in Smith College between 8:45 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

The film Muslims in America, followed by a discussion and refreshments, will be shown in the Campus Center at 7 p.m.

Wednesday, November 17: Professor Efrain Barradas will lecture on "Towards a History of Puerto Rican Arts" at Mount Holyoke College Gamble Auditorium at 4 p.m.

Thursday, November 18: Profesor Kamal Salibi, University of Beirut, will lecture on "Bhamdoun: Historical Portrait of a Lebanese Mountain," at Seelye Hall in Smith College at 5 p.m.

The poet Garret Hongo will be reading Asian-American poetry at 8 p.m. in room 120 at the School of Management.

IMAGES

AP PHOTO

South African Bishop Desmond Tutu, Nobel Peace Prize winner.

Arts & Living

Audience of all ages enjoys Caracas ballet

By SUZANNE A. BARBER
Collegian Correspondent

The Ballet Nacional de Caracas
Fine Arts Center
Nov. 7, 1993

The Ballet Nacional de Caracas gave an extraordinary performance to a packed Fine Arts Center, full of ballet-lovers of all ages. The company, under the artistic direction of Vincente Nebrada, performed two ballets.

The first, "Pentimento," was an extravagant display of colorful ensemble and solos. During this piece, props such as scarfs and masks add a mysterious and surreal effect. Even six-year-old Elizabeth was taken in. This future ballerina said her favorite part was "when they danced under the big Chinese Blanket."

A majority of the audience were children who dreamed of one day becoming ballerinas themselves. Their dreams may come true sooner than they think. The average age of the dancers in the Ballet Nacional de Caracas is under 21. These dancers display a blithe, youthful spirit that make them compelling to watch.

After a brief intermission, the company performed "Firebird." Nebrada's adoption of a neo-classical performance style that allows for more freedom of upper body movement, seems to transform the dancers into the birds, dragonflies, and iguanas they portray in this tale. This ballet is based on a Russian folktale, in which a magical bird is captured by a young prince. In return for her own release, she uses her powers to help the prince free his beloved princess from the clutches of the evil sorcerer.

In this ballet, the plot seems to be the least important part of the performance. Here, the fantastic embellishment of form, color, and grace is the most enthralling. As in most fantasies, the show ended with a prince, a princess and a "happily ever after."

Sweet show against odds

PHOTO COURTESY ZOO ENTERTAINMENT
Matthew Sweet played at Pearl Street Sunday night.

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

Matthew Sweet
Amherst College
Nov. 7, 1993

Amherst's Buckley Recital Hall provides an atmosphere much more conducive to note taking or viewing a nice string section. Matthew Sweet, clearly not in the highest of spirits, did his best to tolerate a seated crowd, most of whom would rather have been standing.

Opening act Hollyfaith had to cancel because their equipment van had been stolen two nights prior in Boston. This left Matthew Sweet responsible for carrying the show on his own.

In support of his latest album, Altered Beast, Sweet delivered a straight forward pop beat to a T, and ended on a much higher note than he began, taking a while to prove to the audience that he actually cared about performing. Once comfortable in the Barney-purple glow of the stage lights, Sweet came alive.

Songs done earlier in the set like "The Ugly Truth" and "I Wanted To Tell You" were for the most part rigid from the standpoint of Sweet and his touring band with the exception of guitarist Richard Lloyd whose free form licks played nicely under the stiff rhythm.

The set picked up momentum with "Super Deformed" off the No Alternative AIDS benefit compilation album. The band found a more energetic groove and drummer Will Rigby's predictable fills became a little less blatant. "Knowing People," "a song for the day when you hate everyone in the world," Sweet said, as his voice showed a nice, angry restraint.

"Reaching Out," a slower tune was quite beautiful as Sweet and bassist/backup vocalist Tony Marsico established a soft and passionate harmony. Sweet capped his set with "Girlfriend," his biggest hit to date, which appealed with its humble and simple lyrics and upbeat rhythm. The crowd, which had cheered enthusiastically, yet had been quite still, came alive.

By this point, Sweet came back for a two song encore including "I've Been Waiting," a tune very much like "Girlfriend," which brought the crowd to its feet, dancing in the aisles.

The enthusiastic response led to a second encore which featured "I Want You," a Troggs song which sounds virtually identical to their classic hit, "Wild Thing."

Buckley Recital Hall is just that, a recital hall, and it shouldn't be used for shows of this caliber. The Frontroom would have been much more appropriate. Thankfully, Matthew Sweet was able to adjust to this odd setting and piece together a solid and eventually appealing show.

Saunders sounds off

Battle of the Bands winner yeP! opens

By PHILIP LEVASSEUR
Collegian Correspondent

Merl Saunders and The Rainforest Band
Pearl Street
Nov. 5, 1993

Merl Saunders brought his Rainforest Band to Pearl Street nightclub in Northampton for a night of music and mutual harmony. Opening the show was the first round Battle of the Bands winner yeP!

Twin white VW microbuses parked outside of the club stood as icons for what the show was all about.

The band yeP! opened the show with their melodically sweeping R&B and jazz compositions. At one point in their set the music became dark and haunting, like a ghostly echo from the past, somewhat reminiscent of the harpsichord style found at the beginning of the Doors' song "Wishful Sinful." By the time their set was almost complete, many people were taken in by the grooves. They were laying down and dancing around the stage area. Creative and talented, yeP! were playing the sounds of an expanding universe, and succeeded in pleasing the crowd.

When Merl Saunders took the stage with his Rainforest Band, the club was nearly at capacity for the ground-floor room. The Rainforest Band began their first two sets with the song "Expressway To Your Heart," which is an extremely intense and powerful R&B groove that immediately got the audience dancing in full force. Saunders himself was not to be denied the respect of a master musician, as he made even the most difficult compositions appear to be easy to play.

Grateful Dead fans should find the rhythmically fluid mechanics of the Rainforest Band impressive, alluring and enjoyable. "Fire On The Mountain" is a song that maintains a tropical influence that one could say is rather like Carlos Santana with the Grateful Dead.

"The Rainforest Band is compatible with the Dead but has a slightly different style...the atmosphere is the same," said Dead fan David Bird, who traveled from Taunton, to see the show.

During the song "Blues From The Rainforest," which by the way is the song that inspired the album, drummer Vince Littleton played an interesting solo that was kept within the spiritual parameters of the song, while demonstrating his percussion talents. Near the end of the second set, the band played a fantastic rendition of the Jimi Hendrix song "Fire" with such up beat tempos and charisma that no doubt Jimi would have enjoyed it.

In an interview, Merl Saunders said that environmental causes, such as the rain forest have been a big interest for him.

"I've been involved in causes for 25 to 30 years ... In 1969 Jerry Garcia and myself did the Ethiopia relief benefit," Saunders said. He also said that he shares a symbiotic relationship with his audiences, both affect one another. The band does not use a preset song list, but rather lets the audience dictate the show.

"If the audience wants to hear something, we'll do it for them ... We try to make each show a little different."

The band will be traveling through Europe including England, Germany and Switzerland. They will also be producing a soundtrack for a documentary to be aired on the Discovery Channel about the rain forest and its indigenous peoples.

New world theatre's Dream shows allegorical vision

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

A Dream of Canaries
Nov. 3, 1993
Curtain Theatre

In the coal grey of the Curtain Theatre stage, four bodies appear.

They are male and female, young and old, with faces covered by burlap hoods, and hands grasping at candles. Frozen in the portals of Fang Guo-Wen's scenic design, these figures appear first as cavemen, transfixed by the fire they hold. But as they move cautiously into the light they are revealed in ties and evening dress. The flames they hold, in flickering glass bubbles, illuminate the fragmented lives which cover the stage: books, shoes and toys from people we will never meet, embedded in the landscape.

The scene is an invocation. The summoning of candlelight vigils for the "disappeared," in which the participants are both victims and mourners. It is also a moment of brilliance from director Roberta Uno, and the perfect expression of a play in which the living and the dead walk side by side.

In the opening scenes of A Dream of Canaries, Diana Sanenz's allegorical vision of Latin America, the worlds of life and death are quite separate. Scenes of the "Desaparecidos," missing political prisoners with their bound hands and covered faces, are contrasted with stories from the life of a soldier.

Jesus Utimo (Nathan Schechter) is a promising recruit for the nation's Special Services, assigned to a position with great promise of advancement. A peasant, former gigolo and child of a servant, Jesus is fighting to enter the ranks of those patricians in whose presence he feels shamed. In military life, he sees honesty. In revered leaders such as the diamond-edged Col. Sensezoz (Robert Corddry) he sees respectability and peace.

His desire for improvement is echoed by Nita Durme (Frances Anderson), the teenage prostitute, whom he befriends. The pupil of a scientist (Rachel Solomon) concerned with perfecting life, Nita has begun to see herself as Galatea — a developing image of perfection, a society flier in the wings — who is left unfinished when her creator "disappears."

As presented by Saenz, the struggle for advancement in such militaristic society is merely a substitution of one hell for another. Looking heavenwards from the squalor of the streets, neither Jesus nor Nita sees that the sanctified elite they are pursuing is responsible for the bloody reprisals and disappearances, which they have spent their lives fearing.

As played by Nathan Schechter, Jesus is nothing more than an eager servant, hiding behind the empty respectability of uniforms and guns. He does not understand the abductions and executions he performs. He does not question them.

As Jesus continues his blind flight to this spurious ideal, the drama becomes increasingly urgent. Scenes from the lives of Jesus and his victims grow shorter, faster, until finally the worlds collide. In one stunning

Turn to DREAM, page 9

PHOTO BY BEN BARNHART
Nathan Schechter, Miguel A. Rodriguez and Norma Garcia Vega star in A Dream of Canaries.

■ Dream

continued from page 8

scene, the revolving scenery of cafes, prisons and barracks begin to blur. The soldier and gigolo join together, and solicit drinks from bloodied waiters with hoods over their heads.

The result is a sort of magic realism, in which no states are allowed to exist for themselves. Conditions as extreme as life or death are merely interdependent planes, which not only affect one another, but define each others meaning.

There is a strong message in here, about the prevalence of death squads and Desaparecidos in the fantasy kingdom which Jesus inhabits. But it is a message which extends itself to cover injustices from the ovens of Hitler's Germany to the death squads of Argentina or Chile. What Saenz is condemning, here, is the self-inflicted blindness of neutrality. The refusal of persons living with injustice to see the bodies around them, or hear the cries and muffled gasps in the air.

Honesty, she suggests, can only be found by caring for those outside of yourself.

"Until then, we are all cavemen staring at the fire," she said.

When Jesus experiences his shattering epiphany in the center of the evening, he looks away from the fire toward the sandals of a prisoner and the smell of Nita on his skin. But his discovery comes too late. He has already trapped himself and Nita with him, in a system of self-destructive hate.

As directed by Roberta Uno in the World Premeire New WORLD/UMass Theatre production, Canaries is cause for celebration, an expertly directed, gorgeously designed, and achingly poetic story.

Among a powerful cast, actor Robert Corddry stands out for his impressive treatment of the villainous Col. Sensezoz. Laughing with hollow drunkenness in the bar where we first see him, or sponging sweat from his face as he leads an abduction, Corddry hides himself behind razor pleats, dagger medallions and a sharp, angular goatee. But his twist of brow and curve of eye reflect only that soft, indefensible pain which comes from hopelessness.

Sensezoz is the unlikely victim of this story, a progression of Jesus who was denied his chance at redemption, and Corddry plays him perfectly. Incapable of looking outside himself, Sensezoz preens for hours at the mirror, concealing his pain and losing his soul.

When Jesus and Nita finally flee, through the twisted looking glass of Fang Guo-Wen's scenery, Sensezoz is left behind — with a galaxy of small, guttering candles, burning for him.

Art feeds the senses.

It makes sense to read the Collegian.

Therefore The Collegian is art.

Understanding Eating Disorders:
Strategies for Friends and Family

Tuesday - November 9
6:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.
University Health Center - Room 304

I think my roommate has an eating disorder. How can I be sure? What should I do?

I think my sister is anorexic and she isn't getting any help. How can I convince her to see a professional? Who should I suggest...Where should she go?

I'm concerned about my friend who has bulimia. She says it's under control, but I don't think it is. I'm really afraid...What can I do to help?

If you're concerned about someone who you know or suspect is struggling with an eating disorder, come to this informal workshop to explore how you can help and cope with these issues.

For more information, please call
549-2671, Clinic 4 - ext. 233 or 234

THE INEXPENSIVE ALTERNATIVE
SNOW RADIAL RETREADS
Full Warranty • Safe • Free Road Hazard • Economical
30,000 mi. Tread Life • 90 Pay Repalcement Guarantee
AS LOW AS $19.95
GURANTEED USED TIRES
TOP QUALITY FULL WARRANTY
13".....9.95
14".....12.95
15".....14.95
HADLEY TIRE
AND BRAKE CENTER
439 Russell St., Hadley
253-9911 or 253-9054

LOST CAMERA
CANON T-90 #1153793
$$ REWARD $$
545-1701 or 665-0589
NO QUESTIONS!!!

A DEDICATION SERIES EVENT
BOSTON POPS
A Special Holiday Concert
with
The Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra
and
John Williams Conducting
His Most Popular Film Scores
Don't miss John Williams in one of his last appearances as conductor of the Boston Pops!
Friday • December 10th • 8 pm
Mullins Center
Tickets On Sale Now!
$25.00 Adults • $18.50 Students
$50.00 for Cabaret-style Floor Seats
Discounts Available for Full Tables of 8 at Box Office only Special – $9.25 tickets available for 5-College students with I.D. at Box Office only Group Discounts available - Call (413) 545-3001
Tickets Available at the Mullins Center Box Office (413) 545-0505, all TicketMaster locations, or Charge by Phone at (413) 733-2500
Co-sponsored by
Fine Arts Center
MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst

BAM
LOUD MUFFLER?
SAVE ON MIDAS EXPERT CAR CARE
$10.00* OFF ANY LIFETIME WARRANTY MUFFLER
*Off regular price. No double discounting. Discount does not apply to other needed parts and services. Coupon must be presented at time of purchase. Offer good through 12/4/93.
50% OFF 2ND SHOCK OR STRUT
*Off regular price for part only. No double discounting. Coupon must be presented at time of purchase. Offer good through 12/4/93.
FREE Shuttle Service to Campus
NORTHAMPTON
143 KING STREET
586-4840
MIDAS
HADLEY ROUTE 9
(near Hampshire Mall)
586-9991

You believe in the Man in the Moon. You believe in the Tooth Fairy. Your mother tucks you in at night. And, to top it off, you have the Massachusetts Daily Collegian. Looks like you're gonna be alright.

FREE
This coupon good for one FREE
COLLEGIAN brand student paper
Offer good while supplies last. One COLLEGIAN brand student paper per person per day.
FREE

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Tuesday, November 9

Placement exam — The English as a Second Language Placement Test will be given from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Bartlett Hall room 301. Students, who wish to take ESL courses in the spring, must take this test.

Vigil — A daylight vigil in remembrance of Kristalnacht will be held from noon to 1 p.m. on the Student Union steps.

Meeting — SHARE will hold a general meeting at 7 p.m. in the Newman Center cafeteria. All members should attend.

Lecture — Brian Eagan will present "The Polka World: Yesterday and Today" at 8 p.m. in Hasbrouck Hall room 134. It is not only sponsored by the department of Slavic languages and literature, but also by the program in Soviet and East European studies.

Blood drive — The blood drive continues today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center room 168.

Meeting — Women in Sport Management will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. in Herter Hall room 205. The meeting is open to all University women interested in pursuing a career in sport management.

"Gimme a job... Please?"

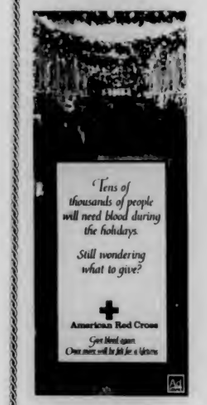
You'll have to do better than that.
Offer them experience. Write for the Collegian.
113 Campus Center • 545-0719

Read all about it

Don't miss a beat. Be in the know. Collegian.

SPELL IT OUT

1-800



O-P-E-R
A-T-O-R

There's no lower price for a collect call℠

For long distance calls from public phones.
You don't have to be an Economics major to see that AT&T's new 1 800-OPERATOR service is lower priced than anyone else's standard operator service rates for long distance collect calls. Use it from any phone on or off campus. When you call, just spell it out.
Dial 1 800-OPERATOR (1 800 673-7286).

AT&T

Pending tariff effectiveness. © 1993 AT&T

UMASS ARTS COUNCIL

GRANT DEADLINE FRIDAY, NOV. 19

Grants for:
- Visual Art & Design
- Literature, Theatre, Performance Art
- Film & Video
- Music
- Artistic components in multicultural programs

PROPOSALS ARE ENCOURAGED FROM STUDENT GROUPS

Applications, guidance & information: Student Activities Office or the the Arts Council
101 Hasbrouck
545-0202

Volleyball gets Atlantic-10 bid

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team improved its record to 13-12 when the Minutewomen picked up two Atlantic-10 victories this past weekend at the Curry Hicks Cage.

The Minutewomen defeated West Virginia (9-18 overall, 5-6 A-10) on Friday night in three straight games. UMass won the first two games 15-13, 15-3 and came back to win a thriller in the third game, 16-14.

UMass won its third-straight match when the Minutewomen defeated St. Bonaventure 15-9, 15-2, and 15-10 on Saturday night. The victory raised UMass' A-10 record to 4-8 and earns a bid to the A-10 Tournament.

UMass went into Friday night's game with a 2-8 A-10 record and needed to win the home match. The Minutewomen fought through early trouble with passing the ball and managed to keep pressure on West Virginia all night. Their hard work payed off, and they came back in the third game to shut West Virginia down for the night 3-0.

UMass head coach Bonnie Kenny was impressed at the teams performance and how the women have been improving with every game.

"I was really proud of the way they fought to come back," Kenny said. "[We're] finding ways to win. I thought everybody did a grat job."

UMass controlled the second game, winning 15-3, but went down in the third game, 13-7. Just as the game seemed to be coming to an end, the Minutewomen stormed back. Kenny spoke of how "it just took one person in the backcourt Michelle Shepherd," who made some key digs and a big block up at the net to turn things around.

Dionne Nash also contributed continuing her offensive assault, powering through a series of kills to keep the Minutewomen in the game. Nash had an all-star night, collecting 20 digs and 18 digs, making each play more spectacular than the last.

From there, UMass thrilled the crowd at every turn, closing the gap and inching up on West Virginia. Cass Anderson gave a quick set to Rachel Sky, who knocked it down to make the score 14-12. Anderson then served up an ace in the back corner to make it 15-14 in favor of UMass.

To finish out the match, Nash and Sky combined on a block to stop the Mountaineers at 16-14. The Minutewomen had no trouble bringing the energy from the game with them when they played St. Bonnaventure the following day.

UMass was led by Susan Maga in Saturday's match, as she collected nine kills with a .413 hitting percentage. Kimberly Mizner also contributed eight kills and four service aces.

The Minutewomen, playing at home against Northeastern, returned to action last night. Results were not in before press time.

■ women's soccer

continued from page 16

Nov. 7 at William & Mary. The Friars are an up and down team, but boast 6-foot-2 goalkeeper Jen Mead, who can even a game on her own. Offensively, Providence is limited, relying on speed and counter attacks to strike for a goal.

"They are the type of team which you can be beating soundly, but have the score 0-0," Rudy said. "That is because of Mead."

Rudy recalls the wild crowd at the 1987 Final Four, held at UMass, when he was coach of Central Florida.

"That crowd was worth a goal," Rudy said. "I'll never forget the towels waving and the organized chanting and singing. It was a great show by the UMass fans. I would love to get that again."

UMass will rely on a large turnout from area fans and youth soccer players, but Rudy insists student attendance could be a key for the Minutewomen.

"At UConn or Hartford it can get nasty with their fans," Rudy said. "They have quite an advantage. I'd love to have our students there."

Tickets can be purchased at the gate and are $4 for the general public, $2 for students with an a school ID and $1 for kids under 12.

In the Central Region Wisconsin will face William & Mary, while Notre Dame squares off with George Mason (and former UMass goalkeeper Skye Eddy). In the South, seven-time defending champion North Carolina plays SMU, Duke and Florida International play in the other game. In the West, Stanford plays California and Santa Clara plays Portland.

A day in the life of the Patriots

One step onto the grass field at Foxboro Stadium. One look up into the crowd of 60,000 plus. One glance at the arms of linebacker Vincent Brown. One heartbeat away from the Patriots savior, Bill Parcells.

At first I thought I must have been dreaming. It was a day in the life of a ballboy.

But the reality of it all unfolded on Thursday during a phone conversation with a good friend from back home. He's been a ballboy for two years now, and he needed some extra help for the weekend because the other ballboys were busy with the SATs. I accepted anxiously, being the true diehard Pats fan I am.

ALL THE BALLS
Mike Reiss on the Patriots sidelines

We arrived at the stadium around 9 a.m. Saturday for pre-game preparation. We entered the locker room and waited for the players to clear out before starting our work. Later, we ate some of the 15 dozen doughnuts Drew Bledsoe brought in for the team.

Signs in the locker room read: "Blame nobody — Expect nothing — Do something." "Prove you can win on the road. "Good players inspire themselves. Great players inspire others. Individuals play the game. Teams win championships."

As the players left to go into individual meetings to discuss the individualized game plans, we went to work.

Each helmet was scrubbed and shined to perfection. Each locker was cleaned out and organized. The floor had to be vacuumed. The players laundry had to be sorted and folded. Footballs had to be pumped.

Before the players left for the day, I got some personal introductions. Chris Slade, Scott Sisson and Maurice Hurst were favorites.

Sunday was game-day, and we reached the stadium at 9:30 a.m. After setting up the sidelines with water, we did more general preparation around the locker room. We then proceeded onto the field to loosen up our arms. Scott Zolak took some tosses with us.

As game time was only 30 minutes away, the players came out and ran through their drills. I relayed balls to Sisson, who was kicking practice field goals. After that, I relayed balls to punter Mike Saxon.

Finally, it was game time. My job was to stand 25 yards down the line of scrimmage and shag overthrown balls. Also, I was to pull the field goal net so the ball would bounce right off the net.

Unfortunately for me, the most action I received came from Steve Christie's winning field goal, when the ball descended through the uprights directly into my arms off the net.

And just like the loss, it hurt.

Michael Reiss is a Collegian staff member.

The Sports Page.
We always save the best for last.

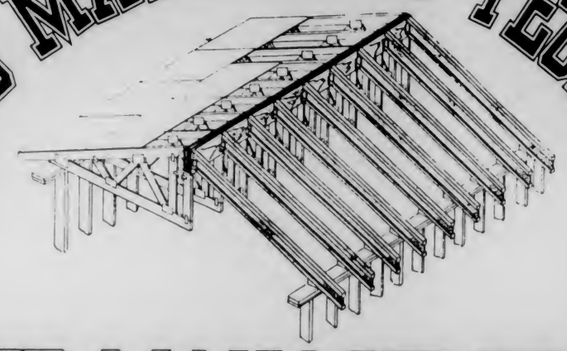
CHECK OUT SORORITY LIFE AT UMASS
Join ΚΚΓ & ΔΖ
for an Open House
at ΚΚΓ
tonight at 7pm
FOR INFO, CALL KIM AT 549-1407

BIKE SWAP
SUNDAY NOVEMBER 14th 9am-4pm
at DOUGLAS AUCTIONEERS, RT.5 S. DEERFIELD
HUNDREDS OF USED MOUNTAIN BIKES, PARTS, CLOTHING & MORE. ROAD BIKE STUFF, BIKE SHOP CLOSEOUTS, MANUFACTURERS OVERSTOCK, AND MORE.
DOOR PRIZES, VIDEOS & REFRESHMENTS!!!
$5 ADMISSION, SELLING SPACE $5 FOR INDIVIDUALS, $10 FOR BUSINESSES
CALL JD AT 413-665-2877 FOR MORE INFORMATION OR SPACE RESERVATION
RECYCLE THAT USED CYCLE STUFF

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment
With
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
Only $2.00
from 9:30-10:30
THE PUB CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993 IN AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

SARAH LAWRENCE COLLEGE IN
PARIS
Study for a semester or a year at the Sorbonne, the Ecole du Louvre, and the Institut d'Etudes Politiques. Work closely with French faculty in small seminars and private tutorials. Two years of college French required
For information and an application, contact:
Sarah Lawrence College in Paris
Box UMAP
1 Mead Way
Bronxville, New York 10708-5999



BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

THIS ADVERTISEMENT IS SPONSORED BY THE STUDENTS IN THIS MAJOR

BUILDING MATERIALS TECHNOLOGY AND MANAGEMENT

A 4-YEAR DEGREE PROGRAM FOR CAREERS IN THE BUILDING MATERIALS INDUSTRY

- ARE YOU INTERESTED IN MARKETING & SALES?
- ARE YOU INTERESTED IN CONSTRUCTION & DESIGN?
- ARE YOU INTERESTED IN BUSINESS MANAGEMENT?
- DO YOU WANT TO GET A JOB WHEN YOU GRADUATE?

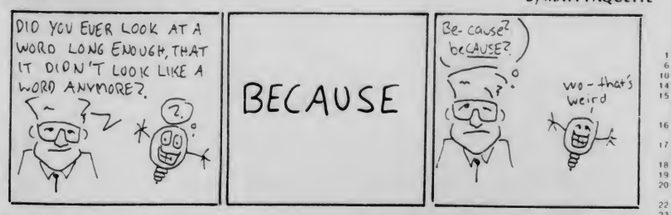
You might like to know...

- Our program is small and tightknit
- We have excellent job placement
- There is no language requirement
- Most graduating seniors line-up jobs prior to graduation

FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL PAUL FISETTE AT 545-1771
IN HOLDSWORTH HALL ROOM 126

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

STEVE By MATT PAQUETTE

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor ..... John Winchell
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Tony Morse, Sean Ramsey

MENU

LUNCH
Tri-County Sandwich
Chicken Burrito
BASICS LUNCH
Tomato,Egg Sandwich
Bean Burrito

DINNER
Glazed Harvest Ham
MIDNITE CAKE NIGHT
BASICS DINNER
Spinach Squares
MIDNITE CAKE NIGHT

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Everybody want to go up to heaven, but nobody want to die."

– Peter Tosh

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Promises could be unclear. You want a full description of what someone plans to do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A chance you take gets excellent results. Love is a sweet persuader. Brighten up a cold day with a little Marley and some hot java.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Renewed confidence in your work impresses other people. It's a good day to play with children; so reward yourself with some fun time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your personal resources help a friend through a tough time. Replacing outdated goals with new ones brings about key changes. Self-discipline and efficiency are essential to prosperity. Write to your mother or someone else's.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Taking extra care with your funds and belongings is particularly important when you are rushing around. Watch your step when taking care of urgent matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can turn an average plan or romance into something extraordinary. Even if you lack money or authority, strong faith alone will make you a winner! Exercise is should be on the agenda.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your strong desire to reach a work or financial goal may need tempering. Pushing others too hard could backfire; making them uncooperative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Exciting news or a bold idea fuels your hopes. Take a chance in romance. Long walks reduce stress. You will have a meal with one who loves you most-star.

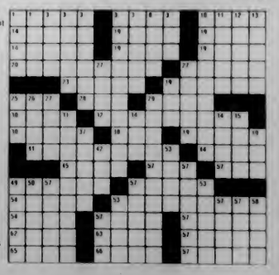
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You have the Midas touch now! Ask for funds, favors or love and you will get a surprisingly favorable response. Taking chances begins to pay off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The services you perform for a VIP attract recognition. A raise or promotion could follow. A co-worker enthusiastically applauds your new methods.

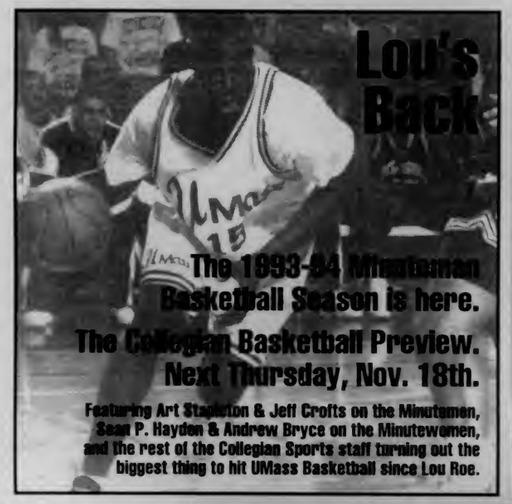
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The door opens to a new understanding with friends, higher ups or creditors. Give more thought to your educational needs. Love is on the way.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Teamwork gets you through your duties. You enjoy excellent rapport with VIPs and may be offered a special role. Do not let a golden opportunity slip through your fingers.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 French money
6 Furrow maker
10 Gobs of gum
14 Vulture's nest
15 "Sticks and Bones" playwright
16 Jennings of the films
17 Like college halls
18 "Garfield" dog
19 Superior
20 First class bedmate
22 — throat
23 Eastern Indians
24 Command
25 Western Indian
28 Pitches Maglie
29 Cabbage type
31 Upset
32 One who detains
36 Combine
38 "Long — and far away
39 Fourscore and —
41 Newspaper section
44 Jerry's straight man
45 Leave out
46 — a long way
48 Far down
49 Inflated
52 Print
54 Educators
55 Buddies
59 Bridge seat
60 Sledge
61 Madrid museum
62 Pot starter
63 City on the Oka
64 On the up and up
65 Mob follower
66 Montana's option
67 Certain curves



DOWN
1 Equitable
2 Dream, at Dijon
3 Saharan
4 Sister's daughter
5 Cedars evergreens
6 Rocket fuel
7 Takes on cargo
8 See 41 Across
9 Tiny, in Angus
10 Wilmstood
11 Love, to Loren
12 Eats
13 Shoehorned
21 Inlets
22 Musical of the credits
24 Rotten
25 Circle
26 Work the soil
27 Spread for bread
29 Smart alecks
31 Meet
33 Vital statistic
34 Corrupt
35 Jewel of Justice
37 Fonteyn and Makarova
40 Women's gp.
42 Topper
43 Remain
47 Easy
49 Concepts
50 Intended
51 Stitch temporarily
52 Setbacks
53 Challenges
55 Legal precedent
56 Puts the runner out
57 Entertainer Adams
58 Tippler's
60 Swallow's need

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

F	I	D	A			O	E	S		M	E	T
B	R	A	U	N		A	N	T	I		A	G
Y	O	U	R	E		A	G	O	O	D	S	P
E	M	B	A	R	K		S	P	E	L	L	S
			O	I	L			A	Y	E
	P	A	M		N	A	T	A	L		S	P
E	L	O	E	R		T	E	R	S	E		E
M	E	A	R	A		H	E	E		A	N	D
M	A	I	L		G	L	E	N	N		T	I
A	D	E	S		A	S	S	A	M		P	O
		E	D	T			S	I	M
S	A	V	V	I	E	S	T		M	A	L	A
T	H	E	R	E	S		N	O	T	I	M	E
L	A	N	E		T	O	R	E		A	N	T
O	B	I	S		T	W	O	E		A	T	H

10/12/93

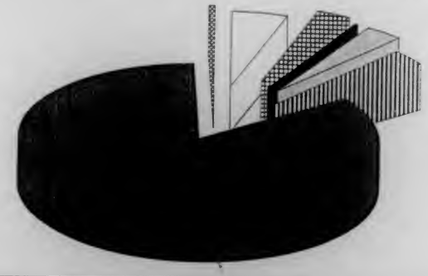
Introductory Special
2 Haircuts - $20!
KATIE
AT
Hair Phanatix • 241 Main St.
NOHO
584-7798
Offer Expires 12/31/93

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

Another satisfied customer...

"I was riding along on my cool mountain bike, when I suddenly decided that I didn't really want to ride a bike any more and that I would really like a guitar. I put an ad in the Collegian, and someone called the first day to buy my bike. And, when I was looking through the Collegian classifieds, I saw the guitar of my dreams. I sold my bike and went to buy the guitar. Thank you Collegian!"

Collegian classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500



MAKE YOURSELF HEARD

Help make Umass a more culturally diverse place for yourself and others.
Come find out what you can do for your community and establish yourself in an organzation dedicated to fighting for students rights both on and off campus.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

WHICH PIECE IS YOURS?

Racial/Ethnic Composition of UMass Undergraduate Population (Fall 1993)

□ Asian-American (5.2%) ▒ Black (non-Hispanic) (3.1%) ■ Cape Verdean (0.2%) □ Latino/a (3.4%)
■ Foreign (3.2%) ■ White (non-Hispanic) (84.7%) ▒ Native American (0.3%) Source: OIRP

GET INVOLVED

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, PLEASE CALL
545-0341
OR COME BY OUR OFFICE AT 420 STUDENT UNION BUILDING

Collegian Advertising
545-3500
We reach students.
19,000 copies, every day!

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY.
BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

■ hockey

continued from page 16

effort," Moriarty said. "I couldn't have done it without the other guys. I'm really proud of the guys."

Rissling got his second point of the night at 8:06 of the second period when he slapped a shot in from the right side to make it 3-0 after the teams had been playing pretty even.

haircuts always $10
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N. PLEASANT ST. AMHERST | 256-0732

Palazzo

Women's Clothing & Accessories
Amherst 413.253.2563 Brattleboro 802.254.4421 Williamstown 413.458.9858

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
Tuesday
SHARK NIGHT
Singles Pool Tournament
• $2.00 Entrance Fee
• Free Pizza Slices
• Play For Cash
• Sign Up: 7:00-7:45
• 20 oz. Drafts $1.95
WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

Classifieds

- 20c per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

UPC General Committee meeting tonight Tuesday at 6 pm in CC 904-908. Concerts are fun and so are we! Everyone is welcome.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Circle K International
Informational Meeting
Nov 11 8:30 pm RM 811 CC
Join in on community service, leadership and friendship.
More info: 546 2547

Come Find Out About
Sorority Life
Open House at
Kappa Kappa Gamma
32 Nutting Ave.
Tuesday 7 pm

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Free Condoms
Listen to WOCH Thurs 12-3 pm

Male Vocalist
looking for cover & originals band ready or close to playing out.
549-6918 Leave Message

Spectrum General Meeting Tonight!
Current AND new members please attend. 8:30 pm room 174-76 Campus Center.

Spectrum, the fine arts and literary magazine of UMass, is now accepting submissions of art, photos, prose, and poetry. HAND DELIVER to 406E Student Union, above Credit Union. Students are also invited to join any of these four staffs to help critique submissions. 545-2240

Race Relations in America. An Islamic perspective; talk by Imam W. D. Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call!! 413-467-7476

ATTENTION TREKKIES!

Would you like to see "Star Trip: The Next Mutiabon" for free?
Student Valley Production needs ushers and other misc. help for the performances on Nov. 17th 20th. For more information please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale: 1972 Chevy Chevelle, mint condition, 6 cylinder, auto, white
Asking $5500 229-2822

78 Grand Prix 301 V8 runs good needs little to pass inspection 1 tops Nathan 546-5144

1984 Nissan Sentra
A Definite Must See!
$2995.00!!
For exciting details
Call Anna at
Superior Subaru!
743-4964

1985 Mercury Lynx 60000 miles 546-6279

1986 Ford Escort
$950 Neg
546-3793

1989 Honda CRX, Excellent condition, $6000 or BO. Call (413)773-9720 after 6 pm.

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

1992 Grandam Sedan 16V 4cyl., auto, ABS, cruise, alarm system, AC, am/fm/tape deck 3 yr/36,000 miles. Warranty 28,500 miles $9300 neg. 256-4153

Subar '88 DL Wagon 5 spd., am/fm stereo Cass. 110K No rust! Ask for $2500 323-5574 (night) 545-0188 (day)

BELL'S PIZZA

69 cent slices
Every day 8-11 pm
65 University Drive

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

We must announce new hours & prices
Hours M-Th 7p-1a / F & S 7 p 2 a
Cookies now 4.00 a dozen
(Still the best deal in town)
Milk 1.25 a qt Ben&Jerry's still 3.50
#549-MIX4

We are pleased to say
We're here to stay
And its all because of you
The Cookie Man

FOR RENT

1 Bedroom Avail. in two bedroom apt Southpoint Apt. $225/month on bus route. Starting Jan 1st Call Jane 256-1382

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

Take Over Our Lease
Have 2 need 2 females for Brandywine Jan 1st
Call Sherry or Sue 549-8248

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Full Size Bed/Boxspring $60
Wicker Shelving $10
Kitchen Table $8
TV Table $5
End Table $3
Call Melissa at 256-8570

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition -- Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

1982 Honda V45 Sabre Motorcycle
Shaft drive, liquid cooled $850.00
13 1/2 Foot Fiberglass canoe with paddles $125
Must sell! graduating in January
Call 253-4773

Queen S2 H2O Bed - Complete
$200 OBO
665-0935

Sony CD Player
1 Disk w/remote
New! $95
Steve 546-4173

Technics Ski Boots size 6 1/2 womens
Only 2 yr old 253-3130

Top of the line Sony Discman
Good condition - ton of features
Call Mark 6-5093

2 Inch Pirranhas
Fun and exciting to watch
20 dollars each
549-8036

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo. on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Free Trips & Cash********
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre! Now! Take a Break Student Travel Call 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

GREEKS AND CLUBS
RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority or club
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling!
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions, great benefits
Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

INSTRUCTION

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Classes start Nov. 10th at 7 pm in Campus Center room #811. For registration info call (617)277-2075.

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOSE WEIGHT NOW!

Diet that works like magic! Natural 100% guaranteed. Effective. Affordable. Call 549-8139

LOST

Brown Hat
w/2 stripes lost in Campus Center
Please call 253-9568

Have you found my green
Wire framed glasses? If
So, please call Trish
546-0368

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

AHG,
6 months, right?
I Love You!
Love,
Scooter

Amy Henson
My little sister
It's going to be a surprise who I am
But until then let's jam!
Phi Love
Your Big Sis

Christine Peroyan!
Happy 21st!
You can finally hang out with the big kids!
Love, Your Roomates + Your Pup

Happy Birthday Dina Burke!!
We are going to rage!
Love
Kirsten
Amanda
and Cindy

Liz Walsh
Just want to
Say that you
Are an awesome
friend
Keep smiling
Love Karen D.

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Monica,
Happy 20!
1 year left
Tell you are legal!
Love,
Labob Ali, Lara, Katia

Rebecca
Welcome to Sigma Kappa!
Hope you are having fun pledging
In Sigma Love
Your Big Sis
Melissa

Toenail - You're a twit! Whatcha doing this weekend?

RIDE WANTED

Ride Desperately Needed
To Ithaca NY vicinity
Will chip in for gas
Wed or Thurs 11-10 or 11-11
546-4210

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share one bedroom apt in Puffton for Spring semester $220/mo Call 549-7290

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

SERVICES

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Looking to exchange living space in your home for elder or child care? Need an affordable place and willing to provide services in lieu of paying rent? Stop by the Homesharing Office 428 Student Union to apply

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

November 12th is the last day to contact the Legal Services Center about a Spring, 1994 Internship! Get hands-on experience in the legal field, work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12. contact Legal Services today: 545-1995. 922 Campus Center.

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TO SUBLET

Huge Room w/fireplace
in coed Apt. Cool housemates
Pref Female Jan-May
$168+util. 549-4318 Chris
10 minutes to campus

Intersession Sublets. Do you have an apartment or room to sublet over intersession? Are you looking for a place to stay over intersession? Come to OCHO, 428 Student Union

We want to sublet
Your 3 bedroom
Puffton Apartment
Spring Semester!
Melissa 549-3952

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov 19-21 Killington Wknd $99
Winter Break Ski Week Killington
Jan 16-21 $275 sign up today at concourse table or call 545-3437

WANTED

For Anti-Drug Video Program: People who have stopped (or never started) using drugs to discuss what attitudes they've formed, the alternatives they've found. John 549-0638

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 546-4722

Sound Board and Light Board operators for Student Valley Productions' "Star Trip: The Next Mutiabon." Performance dates are Nov. 17 20th. You will also be needed for tech rehearsals. For more information, please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

WANTED TO RENT

Need someone to take over your Amherst area house lease
Call 549-7213

A Day in the life of a Patriots' ballboy Page 11

Sports

A first for water polo: the NCAA tourney

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

It was the morning after a weekend of intense water polo against the most prolific competition at the Easterns. The morning after a plane ride that stretched from coast to coast. And the morning after the University of Massachusetts water polo team garnered its ultimate goal, an NCAA berth.

Nestled in his compact office in the Boyden basement, Coach Russ Yarworth had that glare in his glazed eyes. It was excitement, euphoria. A feeling he has waited seven years for.

UMass 0, Navy 4
Umass 14, Bucknell 7

It took three hard-fought games to earn the automatic bid to the NCAAs, which will be held in Long Beach, Calif. beginning Nov. 26. Here's how it was done:

UMASS 11, UALR 4

The Minutemen had their work cut out for themselves in this first round tilt, facing the host team of the tournament, University of Arkansas at Little Rock. Tasan Engin potted five goals, as the visitors jumped out to a 5-0 lead, effectively taking the crowd out of the game.

Alex Mujica stopped 10 shots in net, performing tremendously, as he did all tournament.

"We came out and went up 5-0," Yarworth said. "They have very skilled players, but we played a much better team game than them."

UMASS 10, NAVY 4

A win in this contest would almost assure the team of a berth, and the unit picked up right where it left off.

The Minutemen stormed out to a 5-2 halftime edge, playing with confidence against a team it had never beaten. This was the same team that eliminated UMass from a tournament berth last year.

Mujica turned aside 10 shots, while providing solid leadership in a game that was undoubtfully the Minutemen's toughest.

"I was nervous," Yarworth said. "This was the game; if we win it we go the nationals, if we lose it, we're in the same bridesmaid spot as last year."

There was no deja vu.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts water polo team made school history this past weekend: Russ Yarworth's squad received a bid to the NCAA tourney for the first time ever.

UMASS 14, BUCKNELL 7

In this championship game, the Minutemen darted out to a 8-1 halftime edge, and cruised from there.

Javier Gonzalez scored three goals, while Luis Limardo and Engin added two.

One of Engin's two scores was a dazzling two-pointer that wowed the crowd.

"Immense," said Yarworth of the goal. "He was about nine meters out on the left side of the pool. Luke [Harlan] had the ball on the right side and he fired it across the pool. [Tasan] came out of the water to his suit, and just cranked a high bounce shot into the upper left corner."

TOURNAMENT NOTES:

Engin, Mujica and Gonzalez garnered first-team All-East honors.

"They were incredible," Yarworth said. "They raised their level of play ... Seeds for the NCAAs will come out sometime next week. We don't want to just go there. We want to go out there and play the best polo we can."

The team shaved its bodies, an action that, Yarworth said, brought the team together.

"They adopted the team mentality," Yarworth said. "They played with heart and spirit, and the whole team stepped up."

Hockey shuts out Lancers behind Moriarty

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The Minuteman hockey team, raising its record to 2-0, blanked Worcester State Saturday night 4-0.

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

Every time Worcester State College looked as if it was locked in a competitive battle with the University of Massachusetts hockey team, the Minutemen would pull away.

UMass pulled away when it had to at the end of the first period with two goals in 14 seconds and at the beginning of the third with a power play goal to defeat the Lancers, 4-0, at William D. Mullins Center.

Worcester State	0
Massachusetts	4

Although the game was short on suspense, the Minutemen (2-1) got two goals from Blair Wagar to secure a victory that Coach Joe Mallen said he wasn't sure his team could get.

"Six months ago, when we didn't have a hockey team at UMass, we didn't know if we could beat the Worcester States or if they'd lip us," Mallen said.

After an almost entirely first period, Wagar struck at 16:46 to put the Minutemen on the board. Captain Jaynen Rissling dug the puck out of the corner and fed Wagar, who drilled it into the lower right corner past goalie Craig Silvestri.

Wagar's goal was his first of the season, and the freshman formerly with the Yorkton Terriers said the team felt no layoff playing seven days after its last game.

"At first it seemed like a long time between games. But we practice at such a high pace with a lot of intensity, that there isn't much difference between games and practice," Wagar said. "Practices and games are almost the same intensity."

UMass struck swiftly and powerfully only 14 seconds later, when Tom Perry notched a goal on a two-on-one break, taking a pass from Rob Bonneau and lifting it into the top left corner while skating straight in. The goal gave UMass a 2-0 lead at the first intermission.

"Coming in we had great expectations, and I think we played well, we played well defensively," Worcester State Coach John Guiney said. "I told the players not to be awed by the rink but I was standing on the sidelines, and I was affected."

Silvestri faced 52 shots in the game, turning back 48, but the story was Rich Moriarty, who collected a shutout in his first collegiate start.

"A shutout is not a goalie's night, it's a whole team

Turn to HOCKEY, page 15

Women's soccer to host NCAAs

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

When the Northeast bracket for NCAA women's soccer tournament was revealed yesterday on a television set at Rafters, University of Massachusetts Coach Jim Rudy gave out a celebratory yell, then after shaking the hands of a few athletic department heads, sank back in his chair and said, "Whew, what a relief."

Massachusetts not only qualified for the NCAA Tournament for the 12th time in 13 seasons but also, as the region's No. 1 seed, will host the tournament this weekend.

The Minutewomen (15-2-3) will face Providence (10-8-1) on Saturday at 1:30 p.m., while Connecticut (16-5-1) will play Dartmouth (12-2-1) at 11 a.m. The winners of each game will meet on Sunday at 1 p.m. for a trip to the Final Four. All games will be held on Richard F. Garber Field.

"This is great for the players," Rudy said. "This team really came together this season and gambled when we changed our style of play from man-to-man to a zone. They earned the right to play in front of their fans."

UMass went 9-0-1 in the region to earn the top seed and hosting honors, but the NCAA selection committee has a history of partisan politics and clique voting, so Rudy was on edge until the end. UMass finishes the season ranked No. 5 nationally, UConn was No. 11 and Dartmouth ended up ranked 14th. Providence was not ranked.

Hartford which was ranked as high as No. 3 this season and finished at No. 17 fell victim to a late season slide. Providence beat them out. Hartford finished the season with a 0-4-1 run, while Providence knocked off UConn Sunday in the Big East Championship game.

UMass defeated Providence, 1-0, in overtime on

Turn to WOMEN'S SOCCER, page 11

SPORTS NOTICE:

Tickets for next Thursday's Massachusetts-Cleveland State game will be distributed this Thursday morning at 7 a.m. Students with their activity cards will be charged $5 and can only purchase one ticket.

Ass. Athletic Director/Ticket Manager Thorr Bjorn said lines will not be formed before 6:30 a.m., and if they are, measures will be taken to affect the students.

"We don't want any lines the night before. So, if people wait, it will hurt everyone," Bjorn said. "We'll change it to a lottery that morning if people line up earlier than we want them to. This way, you won't benefit by getting there the night before."

Roaches invade Orchard Hill, Southwest and Dining Commons Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday
50° November 10, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 44

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Gore, Perot trade blows on NAFTA

By JOHN KING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a combative debate Tuesday night, Vice-President Al Gore charged that Ross Perot has a financial stake in the defeat of the North American Free Trade Agreement. Perot dismissed the charge as "propaganda" to defend a deal that would punish American workers.

The high stakes, prime-time showdown was contentious from the outset. Gore and Perot repeatedly interrupted each other and then traded a barrage of charges, some of them substantive, others more personal.

Gore said Perot abandoned his one-time support of the trade deal during last year's presidential campaign "to bring out the politics of fear." Later, he upped the ante, saying a Perot family business in Texas stood to make huge gains as a trade center should NAFTA be defeated.

"If NAFTA is defeated this family business that has a free trade zone outside Dallas will continue... to distribute goods in the United States and Mexico," Gore said.

Perot fired back.

The feisty Texan said that in pushing for NAFTA, the Clinton administration was in essence a front for a greedy corporate elite in America and a corrupt Mexican government he said had no interest in democracy or boosting the living standards of its people.

"Our problem is we do the world's dumbest trade agreement," he said.

"You will hear the giant sucking sound" of jobs flooding to Mexico if the agreement

Turn to NAFTA, page 7

Sharpton covers all bases

Controversial figure discusses racism, legal system

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"We are entering a time that is pregnant with possibilities in our country," the Rev. Al Sharpton told a crowd estimated at about 300 inside the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center last night.

Rev. Sharpton discussed Black Nationalism, America's institutionalized racism, the double standard in the criminal justice system and activism.

Explaining how America has a tendency to put down activists, Sharpton pointed out those who cause the trouble are dismissed about the debate, but those who point that out are considered troublemakers.

Sharpton stressed the need for people to talk out their problems concerning the racial divisions in today's society.

"If we have an open and frank conversation we could find out where we agree and disagree and we may find a common agenda or common ground," said Sharpton.

Sharpton questioned the progess of President Clinton's administration. He brought up the plight of the Haitian immigrants and said Clinton turned his back on them after promising to help them. He also pointed out his dismissal of Lani Guinier and Clinton's advocation of the North America Free Trade Agreement.

Discussing Black Nationalism, Sharpton said there is nothing wrong with being proud of one's roots. He said throughout the country there are many self sufficient communities, but it is considered reverse racism for blacks to have a neighborhood like Chinatown and Little Italy.

"People that are of Irish descent are not looked upon negatively when they relate to what is going on in Ireland... the same with Jews who are not looked upon negatively when they relate and support Israel," He said. "But why is it scandalous when Blacks say they want to relate to Africa and want to have a self sufficient community?"

Sharpton also discussed the challenge he gave to Black college students not to forget their scholastic

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

The Rev. Al Sharpton

ability was not the only thing that helped them get into college, but the people who struggled to allow black students to attend these universities. He told the students to go back to their own communities and work with the younger generations and to encourage them to succeed with their dreams.

"It was the struggle of many people, some who never read a book that made it possible for you to be here," said Sharpton.

During his speech, a man who did not identify himself started to heckle Sharpton about the riot that happened in the Crown Heights section of New York City last year. The heckler accused Sharpton of inciting the riot, an accusation which he denies.

"I responded to a call of a family who lost a child and if they called me tonight I would go again and I would do the same," responded Sharpton.

Bobbitt pleads innocent

Denies allegations of sexual assault

By ANNE SEARAN
Associated Press

MANASSAS, Va. — A man whose penis was cut off by his wife took the stand today and denied he sexually assaulted her beforehand.

John Wayne Bobbitt described initially feeling a "tug" on his penis when his wife sliced it off with a filleting knife as he slept the night of June 23. "It hurt a lot," he said.

Bobbitt said he did not realize at first what had happened. "I grabbed myself, I jumped up," he said. Bobbitt said he then he woke up houseguest Robert Johnson and asked him to take him to the hospital.

He answered "no" when he asked if he ever sexually attacked his wife and or told her, as she had claimed, that forced sex excited him.

Bobbitt, 26, is charged with marital sexual assault. Mrs. Bobbitt, 24, faces her own trial Nov. 28 on a malicious wounding charge; her lawyer has said he will likely use a temporary insanity defense. Each spouse could be sentenced to 20 years in prison if convicted.

Bobbitt admitted creating a list of women he had slept with but denied a prosecution suggestion that he tormented his wife with it.

"It was my own private copy. I didn't

Turn to BOBBITT, page 2

Veterans claim illness linked to chemical warfare in Gulf

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Persian Gulf veterans with life threatening illnesses accused the government Tuesday of ignoring the possibility they were sickened by an Iraqi chemical or biological agent attack.

"I know that something is terribly wrong," Nick Roberts of Columbus, Ga., told the House Veterans' Affairs Committee in recounting his own experiences with a Naval construction battalion in Saudi Arabia during the war.

Roberts, one of some 15 veterans and family members to testify, told of how immediately after a Scud missile attack on Jan. 20, 1991, he experienced numb lips, a burning sensation on his skin and an uncontrollably running nose.

He said decontamination teams the next morning revealed positive tests for mustard gas, but when he complained of health problems he was given an aspirin and told he was tired and under stress.

He has since been diagnosed with lymphoma, and has received chemotherapy treatment.

Thousands of Gulf War veterans have complained of undiagnosed ailments that have come to be called "Persian Gulf Syndrome." Among the suspected causes have been fumes from oil fires, pesticides and radiation from depleted uranium used in munitions.

But in recent weeks, following revelations that a Czech military team detected low levels of chemical agents during the war, focus has turned to possible chemical contamination.

Employers must pay in harassment cases

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court strengthened workers' protection against sexual harassment Tuesday, ruling unanimously that employers can be forced to pay monetary damages even when employees suffer no psychological harm.

"I don't think the court could have sent a clearer signal that employers have to take sexual harassment in the workplace seriously."
– Marcia Greenberger

"So long as the environment would reasonably be perceived, and is perceived, as hostile or abusive, there is no need for it also to be psychologically injurious," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote as the court revived a Tennessee woman's lawsuit against her ex-boss.

The woman said her boss, among other things, had asked her to retrieve coins from his front pants pocket, suggested they go to a local motel to negotiate her pay raise and asked if she gained a sales contract by providing sexual favors.

"It's a big win for women," Marcia Greenberger of the National Women's Law Center said of the ruling. "I don't think the court could have sent a clearer signal that employers have to take sexual harassment in the workplace seriously."

The 9-0 vote emphasizes that "sexual harassment is just as much a violation of the law as other forms of discrimination," Greenberger said.

The decision comes at a time when complaints over alleged sexual harassment in employment are increasing.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission says such complaints rose 53 percent in the year following Anita Hill's accusations during Justice Clarence Thomas' 1991 confirmation hearing.

Hill said Thomas had harassed her years earlier, but Thomas strongly denied any such conduct.

He sat silently during courthouse arguments in the Tennessee case last month, and he offered no separate written opinion Tuesday.

The high court ruled in 1986 that on the job sexual harassment is illegal — a violation of the anti-bias law known as Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 — if it is "sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the conditions of the victim's employment."

That ruling banned "hostile" or "abusive" workplace environments caused by various discriminatory motives.

Tuesday's decision reaffirmed, and clarified somewhat, the 1986 ruling.

"When the workplace is permeated with discriminatory intimidation, ridicule and insult that is sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the conditions of the victim's employment and create an abusive working environment, Title VII is violated," O'Connor said.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanito
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, November 10

Open house — 2-in-20 SIRP will be held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in the Mary Lyon classroom.

Film — Frederico Fellini's 8 1/2 will be shown by the University Film Society at 8 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 227. Admission is free; for more information call 549-5261.

Marathon fund-raiser — Runners interested in participating in the Boston Marathon and raising money for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute can join the Marathon Challenge; contact Mark Samperi at 549-5266 for more information.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive continues in Campus Center Room 168 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Meeting — The Undergraduate Student Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163. The meeting is open to the public.

Friday, November 12

Vigil — A transformation vigil to show support for victims of sexual abuse, assault and/or harassment and have become survivors will be held at Skinner Green at 7:30 p.m. Part of Victim/Survivor Awareness Week, the event is sponsored by Mount Holyoke College Women Against Sexual Harassment. Call 538-2000 for more information.

Registration — A one-day workshop, "Beyond Grants," will be held at Westfield State College Nov. 20. The workshop is intended to help organizations develop financial self-reliance and efficiency.

■ Bobbitt

continued from page 1

show it to her ever," he said.

Mrs. Bobbitt had testified Monday that her husband pinned her to the bed and raped her in their Manassas apartment. After he fell asleep, she said, "I lifted the sheets and I cut it."

He said that the couple had discussed separating. They were married in 1989.

The prosecution rested earlier today, and Judge Prince William County Circuit Judge LeRoy F. Millette Jr. denied a routine defense request to dismiss the charge.

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Hours: Mon-Thurs 8-1 Sunday 7:30-1

Every Monday — GAY NIGHT! DJ Steve — 21+ with DJ Steve • Draft Beer • No Cover Until 10pm
Every Thursday — UMASS NIGHT! — No Cover w/UMASS I.D. Great Drink Specials. Come experience 7000 watts of High Energy Dance Music
Every Saturday — The Area's Biggest Dance Night — Come Party with 600 of your Closest Friends!! Come Party to Around the Town!! Cheap Drinks!!

Upcoming Events
Nov 12 — Larger Than Life Productions Dance Party — free shuttle from horseshoe
Dec 3 — 70's Party with a 90's Twist M & M Productions
Book Your Christmas Party Now!!

• 18+ Always
• 3 Minutes from UMASS
• Call to book your team/organization's/private party! We can hold over 600 people in the club
• We are looking for UMASS Bands to participate in a National Showcase Competition.

Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

STUDENT TRAVEL
1·800·777·0112
THE WORLD'S LARGEST STUDENT & YOUTH TRAVEL ORGANIZATION
STA TRAVEL

University Store's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
is now taking orders for winter session and spring semester.

1. We research the availability of your books and locate the amount you need.
2. We try to locate used copies to help keep the cost to your students to a minimum.
3. We buy back books from students several times each semester.
4. We are able to accommodate late orders when necessary.

How the Textbook Annex can aid your class:

Course packet: A collection of works from different sources or your own material for the total instruction of your students.

1. We take care of the time consuming work of trying to secure copyright permissions.
2. We design your course packet to individual specifications.
3. We sell your course packet at the Textbook Annex along with any books you might order so your students can obtain all materials at one location.

For further information, please call 545-3570.
If you need information regarding course packets please ask for Katera.

Sign up now for Winter Session You won't regret it!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Local News

Let us not forget

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts version of the Vietnam Memorial outside Memorial Hall stands as a reminder to honor the veterans who fought for our nation.

Darsney's ascent to the top

Local man part of a team that reaches summit of K2

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

A former resident of Agawam, Mass., was a member of the only expedition team last summer to reach the summit of the 28,000-foot K2 mountain in Pakistan without a fatality.

Scott Darsney, 32, was a part of a nine-member Anglo-American team that began climbing on June 23 and sent the two leaders, Dan Mazur, an American, and Jonathan Pratt, an Englishman, to the summit on Sept. 2. Pratt became the first British summiteer to return alive from the K2. There were six other expeditions who successfully climbed the K2, but each of them had a death, Darsney said.

After arriving at their base camp at the Gilkey Memorial on June 23, the team climbed for the next two months, establishing six more camps along the way. Two of the members had to be rescued via helicopter due to frostbite. The frostbite was so bad on Frenchman Etienne Fine that all of his toes had to be amputated, Darsney said.

Darsney, whose other job is installing electronic systems on ships in the Bering Strait, said he does not mind risking his life to mountain climb because it is what keeps him going.

"Name something that is a real passion of yours, whether it's basketball, fly fishing, beer drinking, sex, drugs, whatever keeps you going," he said. "Mountain climbing is a real passion of mine."

Darsney, who is also a part-time photographer and writer, also became the 162nd American to summit Mt. Everest last year. His ascent of Mt. Everest took 10 weeks and during the expedition he added 3,000 photos to his personal library of 50,000.

Some of Darsney's other accomplishments include sailing a small boat halfway around the world and bungee jumping off a 200-foot bridge in New Zealand. Darsney is two peaks away from reaching the highest points on all seven continents and is planning to write a book about the "seven summits" when he finishes.

Darsney began his mountain climbing career as a teenager by climbing in the Berkshires, Green and White Mountains. After graduating from Northeastern

Turn to DARSNEY, page 7

Roaches' war rages on atop Orchard Hill

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

What has six legs, repulses all upon sight, headquarters in Orchard Hill, and eats in the Franklin Dining Commons for free? The answer to that is the only living thing to outlast the dinosaur: the cockroach.

According to many residents in Webster House in Orchard Hill, the dorm is infested with cockroaches. The fifth floor residents who are housing the lovable creatures said the roaches have been seen in the rooms and even in the bathrooms.

According to Jennifer Press, a junior journalism major and the first victim of the roach infestation, she has seen roaches in the food at the Franklin Dining Commons.

"We saw one in the bread — it was really disgusting," Press said.

Press said the first time she saw the roaches in her room was Columbus Day weekend. Next came Patricia Cauley and other residents on their side of the hall.

They contacted maintenance through their Resident Assistant to exterminate their room. Housing Maintenance responded to the complaint within 48 hours and exterminated the rooms and gave them "roach motels."

But those bugs just can't get enough of those friendly Webster residents and keep coming back. Last week Cauley saw some in her room and Press said they haven't left.

Press said she notified maintenance and housing of the problem and that her room should be exterminated again. But, according to Press, maintenance responded that the roaches had probably spread in the building and a complete extermination of Webster would be necessary.

Press said maintenance would not take that action.

"We shouldn't have to live like this," said Press. "Maintenance is giving us the runaround. We are spraying Raid and our room is completely clean."

John Findley, the Assistant Director of Housing Services, said the number of complaints received were "very low." And according to a statement in the Daily Hampshire Gazette yesterday, 16 of the 18 requests for extermination had come from Southwest and only two came from Orchard Hill.

"I don't care what the cause was- it is a problem that needs to be taken care of immediately," said Savas Gunduz, the 5th floor RA in Webster.

A few rules for students who do not want uninvited guests: don't leave food or open containers with food in your room and keep your room clean.

But the roaches keep on living and hiding out in the Campus Center, Thompson and in the dining halls.

The score is Roaches 1, Students and Maintenance 0.

Diverse themes pondered in relation to Indian mythology

By B. A. CANNISTRARO
Collegian Correspondent

In a thought-provoking lecture at Mount Holyoke College last night, Dr. David D. Schulman invited his audience to ponder the themes of self, memory and perceived reality as present in Indian mythology.

STEVE PEDULLA/COLLEGIAN
Dr. David D. Schulman

Schulman, a professor of comparative literature and Indian studies at the Hebrew Univerity of Jerusalem, illustrated these complex and often ambiguous themes through lively narration of traditional Indian stories.

In his lecture, entitled "Loving and Forgetting," Schulman recited 16th century poetical verses in both Sanskrit and English, as well as telling Indian folk tales of love lost and love regained, and the misadventures of foolish people.

In one entertaining story, which evoked laughter from the audience, Schulman recounted the tale of a foolish guru and his "12 idiot disciples," as a humorous example of the recurrent theme in Indian folk culture of self-affirmation through initial self-denial. Sometimes the affirmation is not always pleasant.

In this story, which Schulman said has been found in various forms in many different cultures, 13 men who are on an outing together decide to count heads to see if anyone is missing from their party. Each man takes a turn at counting but always comes up one man short, foolishly forgetting to count himself. They conclude that one of their counterparts is missing.

In the end their problem is solved by a passerby who claims he can magical-

Turn to MYTHOLOGY, page 12

Panel pro-awareness

By NICOLE BURKE
Collegian Staff

"Women's issues are an important topic that warrants a lot of attention," said Charmaine Wijeyesinghe, dean of students at Mount Holyoke College. "Each of us has had some experience and individual experiences are an important part of this discussion."

The Victim/Survivor Awareness Week continued at Mount Holyoke last night as Women Against Sexual Harassment (W.A.S.H) held a panel discussion regarding issues focusing on sexual correctness in today's society.

Wijeyesinghe said that most rape crisis centers generally receive little or no national or federal funding and that the centers often have trouble surviving because of lack of money as well as lack of research and data.

"It is important to know that there are some individuals who believe that there is a 'rape crisis hysteria'

Turn to AWARENESS, page 4

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

Left to right: Jean Grossholtz, professor of political science and women's issues at Mount Holyoke College, and Charlene Elvers, director of student activities at MHC.

Thank you Massachusetts Daily Collegian!

Northhampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME 50¢ HOT DOGS 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and 3 New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

■ awareness

continued from page 3

going on," she said, "and my response is to have enough information and confidence to go forth and challenge these people about their beliefs."

Charlene Elvers, director of student activities, said that such expressions as "just say no" or "leave me alone" are too simple and are not effective enough measures a woman can use to protect herself.

"Women have to work twice as hard and be twice as talented to get to the level that men are," Elvers said. "Society tells us not to be assertive and not to raise our voices."

Elvers said colleges need to educate their students and provide information to women on how to handle campus- related decisions such as dating, meeting people or the male/female roles.

"A lot of women want to talk about women's issues," Jean Grossholtz, professor of political science and women's issues said. "We live in fear of the reality of rape and violence and we need to gather strength in numbers to overcome it."

Grossholtz said rape and battery are the violence that keeps male-dominance in place and although women are trying to change this, the structure of power continues to lie in this male-dominated society.

"I want women to get angry and loud and to fight back," Grossholtz said, "and I want women to be non-violent warriors."

Tonight at MHC, W.A.S.H. will present "Dreamworld", a video and discussion that explores the depiction of women in the media at 7:30 p.m. in Hooker Auditorium. On Friday, W.A.S.H is holding a Transformation Vigil at 7:30 p.m. on Skinner Green. Any questions about either event can be answered by a W.A.S.H. counselor at 538-2000.

Handicapped robber given jail term for heist

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — A judge who once pitied a robber paralyzed by a shopkeeper's bullet showed less forgiveness when he the same man returned Tuesday, this time accused of a bank heist in his wheelchair.

Anthony C. Garafolo, 33, of Holyoke, rolled himself from the courtroom, escorted by security officers, to begin his term of 15-25 years in prison.

Judge John Moriarty of Hampden Superior Court initially imposed the sentence but suspended the prison time in 1991, when Garafolo pleaded guilty in the wake of a four-day robbery spree ended by his paralyzing wound. At that time, Garafolo also robbed the same bank branch that he was accused of hitting again on Sept. 28 in his wheelchair.

But even the assistant district attorney handling the case Tuesday defended the same judge's original leniency, which was prompted largely by Garafolo's paralysis.

"Who would have thought that somebody in his condition would be out doing what he did?" Howard Safford, the assistant district attorney, asked a reporter. "I think he was given an opportunity to better himself."

Safford also uses a wheelchair as the result of a sports accident years ago.

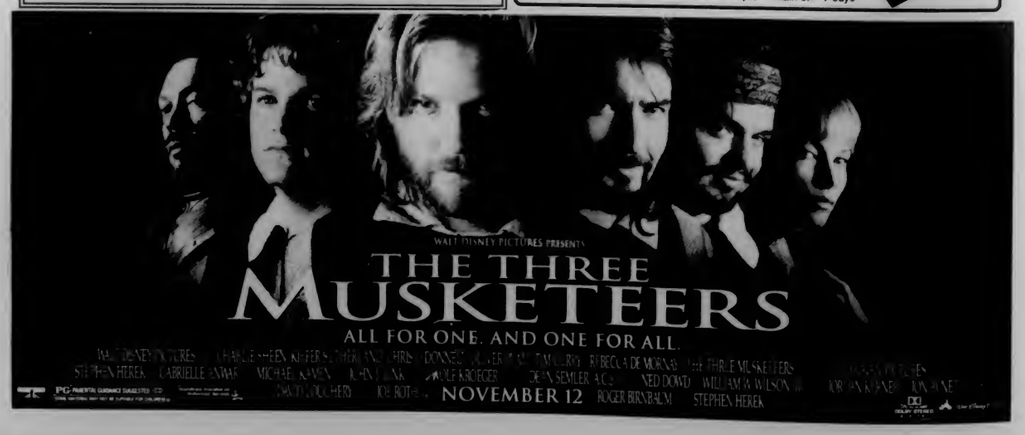
Judge Moriarty ordered Garafolo to prison Tuesday for violating his 15-year probation by robbing the same bank. He was charged with other recent probation violations, including an attempted robbery at a drug store, heroin possession, and forgery to obtain a pain-killing drug.

His lawyer, Jim Hammerschmith, blamed many of Garafolo's problems on the gunshot wound and a heroin addiction.

In the latest bank robbery, Garafolo rolled into a Springfield branch of Northeast Savings and demanded money from a teller, according to police. He showed no weapon but escaped with about $2,500 in cash. Authorities say an accomplice helped him pack the wheelchair into a car and drove him away.

Garafolo was arrested the next day when a police officer spotted him in a cab.

The accomplice has been charged in a sealed indictment with unarmed robbery, Safford said. Both the accomplice, who has not been identified, and Garafolo still face prosecution in that case.



Authorities say they have bank camera pictures of Garafolo in his wheelchair and an identification from a teller who was at the bank during the earlier robbery.

Prosecutors say Garafolo has a history of criminal convictions that include eight larceny cases dating back to 1979.

CopyCat
PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840
RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles
*Bulk Rate Copies...
OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

Downstairs at Faces

Posters
Lighting
Bedspreads
Rugs
Bookcases
Chairs and more good stuff
Lighting: task lamps, desk, clip-on, halogen & floor models. Choose from many styles. From $7.95 to $79.95
northampton • main st • 7 days

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

In the future, the death penalty will be Sunday night fun

A few years from now, on a typical Sunday night, you're watching the top-rated TV program in the country: "America's Most DEAD". Forget the "wanted" crap; that's old news. In the future, things get hard-core. They're going to have to get hard-core. You see, TV reflects reality, and reality has gotten brutal in the future, where criminals — all kinds of criminals — are marched into a big metal room with cameras and then fried for ratings points.

However, quickly flash back to today: crime has evolved into a widely reported national sport. Hell, crime is one of the backbones of our world. All sorts of crime, from your so-called pristine "white collar" crime to your average scuzzy killing of an old woman for a few dollars kind of thing. Violent crime is completely out-of-hand RIGHT NOW, never mind the future. Watch the news. Read a newspaper. It's getting more rampant every day, which can only cause a person to wonder what violent crime is going to be like in ten years.

I'm wondering if anyone else has noticed this, but America seems to have lurched a good distance towards Hell. The litany of ways our country has done this is really impossible to catalog. Take crime, for instance. The topic at hand today. I'm a simple person who is basically numbed by all of the violence in this world, but I'm not numbed enough so that I don't feel a slowly boiling sense of directionless anger. I've come to an unfortunate, calloused place in my life where I'm starting to feel no sorrow, no compassion for people who lavish violence on other human beings. Physical violence in particular, but any kind of mental, emotional, spiritual, or financial violence. Crime, pure and simple: the deliberate abuse of another human being's soul, in any way.

Mark Tyler
WENHAM

I've gotten to a sad junction where I not only support the Death Penalty, but recommend extending it to anyone who commits a crime. Anyone, any crime. It seems to me that our current system of dealing with crime and those who commit it is pitifully failing, something to be laughed at by the wide world of those who would be criminal. Intellectually, I agree with our standing system of law and justice and all that happy crap. But realistically, I see a society that is steadily going up in increasingly violent criminal flames.

The legal system that we currently have, while great in conception, is falling woefully behind the actual state of our society. We have been applying creaky old dictums to a rapidly corroding social structure for too long, and while I would love to keep the old legal concepts forever, I can't help but consider the sad reality that those who laid the foundations of our legal and penal systems long ago didn't get an all-expense-paid opportunity to time-travel into MODERN DAY America.

So yes, perhaps the hard-line Death Penalty should be considered for all criminals. Murder someone? You're dead. Rob a 7-11? You fry. Rape someone? Burn. Kidnap a child? Fry twice. Beat your wife? You die. Cut off your husband's penis? Say goodbye, Gracie. Kill your neighbor's dog because it was barking?

That'right...you're dead. It would be a new kind of law: you commit a crime, you die. Simple, brutal, and very clear: crime equals death. To hell with the hard-luck-bones crap. If you're lucky, you get to be on "America's Most DEAD," and become a very quick, very cooked celebrity.

There is no excuse for crime. I'm sorry. My patience with human beings and their violent, ethically-dying ways is wearing very thin. I'm only 23, but having grown up in this warped and deranged world, half of me dreads spending the rest of my life with my own race.

Mark Tyler Wenham is a Collegian columnist.

You hurt the ones you love

It seems like the people we love the most, we hurt the worst. It's an unwritten law, the closer you get the more damage you can do. Damage that isn't only unavoidable but impossible to predict.

Sadly, this was a conclusion I was forced to make after a recent conversation with my ex-girlfriend. She does not want me back, doesn't want to even give it any thought. If you are a person who had a relationship end badly, I will warn you now: what I am going to say might upset you.

Mike
EINHORN

I have vivid memories of a nurturing, warm beautiful creature that knew me better than I knew myself. Only communication dried up and what we had fell apart. There were so many times I tearfully told her there was nothing I could do, since we were both in so much pain. I began to feel a great deal of guilt, and much doubt about my decision to let her go.

So as I have tried to explain countless times before, there was and is an incredible amount of social pressure for us to have the perfect relationship. We all hear about co-dependency, dominance, manipulation, and the eternal fear of commitment. It leads to a great deal of fears, and more than a few decisions based on anxiety. For me, it lead to a false hope that I could have something better with another woman.

It's not worth it to turn your back on what you have just to obtain what they say is correct and acceptable. The ideal woman or man (like the ones on MTV or in beer commercials) is not out there. Having the perfect relationship is unrealistic. Although with a little work, and a little time, you can make a shaky relationship better. Or at least something that makes you both happy. So work, don't give up.

I believe to err is human, but to love is divine. Don't forget this: even in the most powerful of hearts, in the most steadfast of commitments, there lies the possibility of a mistake that can ignite the hydrogen and burn the zeppelin right to the ground. Ripping past the stairway and all the work it took to get to heaven. So don't throw it all away because it's not so perfect.

And I'm crying again, because I brought it all back for her, and for me. I went to see her this past weekend, having no idea that she didn't want to get back together. No Idea, since there was cosmic grey in this conversation:

"I'd like to come down this weekend, to see you and talk about things... things like us." I said.

"Sure I'd love to see you Mike, I think we have a lot to talk about." She said. But she was over me, and all I did was make her confused, angry, and upset.

And with that, the one I had loved the most, I hurt the worst. And it was out of a harmless hope that we could be happy again.

So I was driving back, and love song after love song thundered out my open windows. I raced those 167.5 miles, while attempting, and hoping, to quiet my guilt and inwardly face rage. But I still love her, time and distance will never change that. So whatever you do, don't give up if it's not perfect.

Mike Einhorn is a UMass student.

Veterans Day is for remembering

Tomorrow, there is an entire group of Americans who won't be sharing in our "day off." They can't spend time with their family and friends, and they won't be enjoying any activities we so often take advantage of. They're commonly called P.O.W.'s. Millions of Americans, however, prefer to call them brothers.

Over 2,000 Americans remain unaccounted for in Southeast Asia alone. Many other service members were lost at sea in other locations. It is because of these brave individuals that we as Americans are taking tomorrow as a "day off." How often tomorrow will you honestly take time to even think about why you are getting this day off? Once? Twice? It's not enough. It can never be enough.

Tomorrow is Veterans Day. It is a day which we as Americans should all be proud of. We should use some time in this day to thank the countless veterans who gave so much to serve their country. Many of these veterans are your grandparents, parents, brothers and sisters. If you do have veterans in your family, give them a call. Thank them for their outstanding service. Thank them for answering the call.

More than 2,000 families won't be able to thank their veteran family members. They probably won't be enjoying tomorrow nearly as much as we will. Instead, they'll be mourning the loss of their loved ones, praying for some word, some sign, some hope that they can put an end to their wait. And that number of families is small compared to the number of families who have buried their veterans killed in action.

For 24 hours, starting at 11:00 a.m. on Wednesday, in front of Memorial Hall, the members of the Air Force and Army ROTC units on campus will stand at attention in a silent vigil to honor these men and women who have given their lives so that we may have freedom. As you walk by them today and tomorrow, please stop and say a silent prayer or have a moment of silence. Or merely reflect on why they are there, and why you will have tomorrow as a day off.

Don't feel guilty for having the day to yourself. Surely, that is what these veterans were fighting for, your freedom. But please take some time and show some respect. At least think for a moment about these men and women who have given you so much and asked for nothing in return.

Keep in mind that although this is "free time" for you, it wasn't quite so free for them. Do not forget the sacrifices which these veterans made for you. Don't forget what their families are going through even today, after 20 years of waiting.

Enjoy your day off. As students, you work hard and you deserve it. But don't forget the men and women who have died giving it to you, for surely, they will not forget you.

Glen F. Roberts
Amherst

Students want considerate staff

Professors at the University of Massachusetts need to wake up and have a dose of reality.

You are here to educate students and, in many ways, the future of this country.

We have an obligation to treat you with respect, understanding and a willingness to learn from our endeavors. When that is not reciprocated we become disgruntled and begin to feel disenfranchised with the system as a whole.

The undergraduate Student Government Association is compiling information given to us from our constituents both on and off campus, about professors, faculty and administrators who are not accessible to students and/or do not treat them with the same respect they command.

This information has been submitted to us by random students in an effort to begin analyzing which people on this campus need to be re-educated as to the full plight of each and every student.

This is the beginning stage of an overall effort put forth by the SGA to begin scrutinizing student services and those people who have an actual effect on our quality of life here at UMass.

We ask all students to stop by room 420 of the Student Union building or call 545-0341 with problems and situations that have affected or are affecting your stay at UMass.

The effort can only succeed if we as a collective institution work together to analyze the task and rectify the problem.

Get involved and make yourself heard.

Manuel Aguilar
SGA Public Relations

We are all victims and oppressors

This is in response to the article "I'm sick of ignorance," [Collegian, Nov. 4].

A point I would like to make right at the beginning is that I am merely commenting, not attacking. Ignorance is one of the favorite labels attached to anyone on this campus who has an opposing view to whomever is trying to make a point. It seems that if you cannot think alike, then you are obviously ignorant.

Does this somehow tie in with Malcolm X's immortal words, "If you are not part of the solution, then you are part of the problem?"

This, I believe simply gives us an excuse to blame others when something goes wrong.

To combine, if you do not side with me, you are ignorant and of course you cause the problem.

Where are the neutrals?

As R.A.s one of our goals should be to enhance people's education.

As a diverse campus, one of our goals should be to both learn from and teach others. Unfortunately, we also have to realize that we are primarily students and not professors.

Attempting to educate people is fine. However you cannot force everybody to learn, relate or understand. It should never be our aim to educate or attempt to, and expect immediate results.

Everybody is a unique individual who understands them. Maybe this is naive, but if someone is unwilling to learn then I see no point in trying to force them to.

The most important point we have to remember is that there is never a point in time when we are just a minority. Everybody is a majority in some category and a minority in another.

Result: even though you do not necessarily oppress others yourself, at some point in your majority category, you reap the benefits of that oppression of others, the same way they do when engaged in similar activities.

Unfortunately, judging others on your own merits and seeking results for your attempts is as self-centered as those who are unwilling to change their views.

You are only continuously oppressed if you choose to be.

Wanjiru Macharia
Southwest

The Anatomy of the Citibank

Classic card: a body of services and peace of mind

for students. For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa® card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely, the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined. ¶ At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card. Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150[1]. Along the Oops-It-Slipped Disc, Buyers Security℠ can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase[1]; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty℠ allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years[2]. So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support. ¶ The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. You can actually see it on the top left hand corner of the card. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard has the head of the cardholder on it, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will make a good form of ID as well, since you get to choose your own photo. ¶ But what about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn't have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it has is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, an involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anewcardeus activates the Lost Wallet℠ Service which can replace your card usually within 24 hours. ¶ As suspected, there's another involuntary muscle: the heart—a beating and caring heart, big enough to give students special discounts and savings. You'll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights[3]; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%[4]; and, no annual fee. (In other words, the card itself doesn't cost a forelimb and a hindlimb.) ¶ Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts, 24 hours a day. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. Citibank representatives each have a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc. ¶ So call to apply. You don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19. ¶ If we take an overview of the whole body of services that make up the Citibank Classic Visa card, and consider that it will facilitate building a credit history, then you must shake a leg, flex your index finger and call today.

Scientists theorize that the mind of the Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. A) is secure because it receives superior service; the mind of the non-Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. B) is not secure because—could it be—it has a screw loose?

Not just Visa. Citibank Visa.

Monarch Notes® Version: With your purchases covered, no fee, and a low rate, the Citibank Classic Visa card will go easy on your Nervous System. Call 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19.

[1]Certain conditions and exclusions apply. Please refer to your Summary of Additional Program Information. Buyers Security is underwritten by The Zurich International UK Limited. [2]Certain restrictions and limitations apply. Underwritten by the New Hampshire Insurance Company. Service life expectancy varies by product and is at least the minimum based on retail industry data. Details of coverage are available in your Summary of Additional Program Information. [3]Offer expires 6/30/94. Minimum ticket purchase price is $100. Rebates are for Citibank student cardmembers on tickets issued by ISE Flights only. [4]The Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for purchases is 15.4% as of 10/93 and may vary quarterly. The APR for cash advances is 19.8%. If a finance charge is imposed, the minimum is 50 cents. There is an additional finance charge for each cash advance transaction equal to 2% of the amount of each cash advance transaction, however, it will not be less than $2.00 or greater than $10.00. Monarch® Notes are published by Monarch Press, a division of Simon & Schuster, a Paramount Communications Company. Used by permission of publisher. ©1993 Citibank (South Dakota), N.A. Member FDIC.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

becomes law, Perot said, repeating his trademark anti-NAFTA slogan.

The agreement, if approved by Congress, would remove most tariffs and trade barriers among the United States, Canada and Mexico over a 15-year period.

Short of votes with a week to go, President Clinton sent Gore into battle with Perot hoping to shake up the dynamics of the NAFTA debate. Hours before the debate, the White House won the support of five previously uncommitted Democrats — and got one more as it got under way. Still, Clinton was roughly 25 votes short in the House and Speaker Thomas Foley rated NAFTA's chances of passing at "50-50."

The cacophony throughout the capital on a frenzied day of morning-to-night NAFTA jockeying suggested both sides viewed it that way.

The Gore-Perot debate was the climax, and the combatants both came to the 90-minute "Larry King Live" program on CNN armed with props. In addition to fighting among themselves, Perot and Gore fielded questions from viewers in the United States and abroad, including one from Croatia.

■ Darsney

continued from page 1

University with an electrical engineering degree, he worked in New England, Dutch Harbor, Alaska and Seattle, Wash.

Darsney plans to be the leader or co-leader of another expedition to the summit of K2 within the next three to five years.

Go Speed Racer

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

A Mario Andretti-in-training passes the time by playing video games at the Campus Arcade.

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
TONIGHT
PIZZA SLICES
50¢
9 TIL 1
Miller Genuine Draft
12 oz Bottle
$1.25
Newly Remodeled Dining Area
Satellite TV • 4 Pool Tables
University Drive & Amity
Amherst • 549-4040

ATTENTION GRADUATES
With the average help wanted ad attracting 400 responses, you need a resume that STANDS OUT.
Get a
Professionally Prepared Resume
Special UMass Price $19
$10 off regularly published price
Resume Package Includes:
• Artwork for one page resume, letterhead, & envelope
• Four laser copies of each on selected paper
• Special update coupon good for one year
• Choice of layouts & styles
Satisfaction Guaranteed
For a free resume style sheet and order form, call or write To receive a Step-By-Step Resume Guide, send one dollar to cover postage and handling
Marketing Services - Resume PRO
P.O. Box 60873, Dept. UM, Longmeadow, MA 01106
(413) 567-0361

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
Now your last weekend to see it!
3rd week! The only area showing!
Tonight and Thursday at 9:35pm only!
"SPECTACULARLY FUNNY!
The Ultimate Party Movie, Socially Irresponsible And Totally Irresistible."
Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE
"Two thumbs up!"
SISKEL & EBERT

music-Aerosmith-Deep Purple-ZZ Top-Alice Cooper-War-Peter Frampton & more
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692
The Prices Are Falling with the Temperature At Scotts!!
IT'S IN!!
NEW LOWER KEG DEPOSITS
Budweiser Bud Light & Bud Dry ½ Kegs $39.99
No Permit Needed To Purchase Kegs
Michelob ½ Kegs $41.99 & Michelob Light
LOWEST KEG PRICES IN TOWN!
MICHELOB & MICHELOB LIGHT 12 PK. BOTTLES $6.99 + dep.
MILLER HIGH LIFE 24-12 OZ. CANS $9.99 + DEP.
BERINGER BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU $4.99 750 ML
BACARDI RUM 750 ML $7.99
COLUMBIA CREST CHARDONNAY $4.99 750 ML
CLUNY SCOTCH $14.99 1.75
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

GET EXTRA CREDIT WITHOUT KISSIN' U.P.

WITH NO ANNUAL FEE AND A $1,000 CREDIT LINE, YOU CAN KISS ALL THOSE EXPENSIVE CARDS GOOD-BYE.

IF YOU DON'T GOT IT, GET IT.SM

MEMBER NOVUS NETWORK ©1993 GREENWOOD TRUST COMPANY, MEMBER FDIC

Arts & Living

FAC hosts Robert Cray

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Staff

One of the advantages of UMass is that the students have the opportunity to enjoy some of the top music acts the business has to offer. From box office successes like Elton John and Metallica to traditional jazz performers like Wynton Marsalis, the University attracts the best, and sometimes worst, to this area.

Tonight, the Robert Cray Band will bring its own distinct mix of rhythm and blues to the Fine Arts Center for UPC's latest concert. From being an opening act for the legendary Muddy Waters, to studio collaborations with Eric Clapton and Johnny Lee Hooker, there is no doubt that Cray has put in the hard work necessary for stardom.

Unfortunately, the basis for the music business is commercial success - put simply, money. In 1986, Robert Cray achieved that with the release of Strong Persuader, which brought him a Grammy and two international hits, "Smoking Gun" and "Right Next Door (Because Of Me)". His follow-up album in 1988, Don't Be Afraid Of The Dark, also won him high critical acclaim, and another Grammy.

Recently though, that popularity has diminished slightly, and his last two releases have not done as well as his more popular works. This, however, is not for the lack of trying. The past couple of years have been spent solidifying Cray's position in the world of blues and soul that his band calls its home.

From appearing on stage with a plethora of blues greats, such as Albert Collins, at the World Expo in Seville to one-on-one pairings with the likes of B.B. King at the 1991 San Francisco Blues Festival, Robert Cray has not been idle, lacking the huge success he was accustomed to in recent years.

Now with the release of his newest album, Shame And A Sin, Cray has gone back to his roots. With the approach of his band's 20th year in the business, the return to straight-up blues has a special importance.

"After exploring R&B and other styles on the past few records, I feel like I have a new approach to the blues," Cray explained. "By comparing the way I play the blues now with what I've done in the past, I'm hearing it with a whole new set of ears."

In a fickle business that discards even the most talented of musicians, the Robert Cray Band has ridden the waves of popularity and discontent. Fortunate UMass students will have a chance to see and hear one of the most respected blues guitarists today.

The Robert Cray Band will have Delta bluesman John Hammond as his opening act. The show begins at 8:00 p.m. at the UMass Fine Arts Center tonight. Tickets will be $16 for UMass students with valid ID, and $18 for all others.

Marsalis to make music at the cozy Iron Horse

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

Wynton Marsalis

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Trumpet guru and jazz great Wynton Marsalis will fill the intimate Iron Horse Music Hall Thursday night with music that has earned him universal acknowledgment as one of the most accomplished trumpet players of our time.

Marsalis' latest work is called Citi Movement, a three-movement piece depicting life in a modern city. Although his agenda at the Iron Horse is unclear, Citi Movement has gotten much acclaim.

Marsalis collaborated with Garth Fagan and sculptor Martin Puryear to create this 132-minute suite which the New York Times hailed as "superb in its evocative colors," painting a vivid picture of modern-day New Orleans.

"Citi Movement is firmly in the epic tradition, not only in its length but also in its themes and historical fervor," according to the Times. "It is Marsalis' most complete declaration of intention yet, and it is brilliant."

Born in New Orleans in 1961, Marsalis pays tribute to the city on the river in which he began to play traditional jazz in the Fairview Baptist Church Band, led by Danny Barker.

Marsalis has favored classical music throughout his career. Having studied various musical contexts, he has opted to perform over the years with such ensembles as the Brooklyn Philharmonia, the New Orleans Symphony Brass Quintet and the New Orleans Civic Orchestra. While popular music held Marsalis' interest only briefly, musicians such as Clifford Brown and Clark Terry most strongly influenced his more traditional style of straight jazz.

"Not very much is similar between jazz and classical," says Marsalis, "but both are about the elevation of the audience, both have spirituality."

In his latest effort, Marsalis utilizes the Turn to MARSALIS, page 10

Family theme in Sofie

By AMY S. BURNS
Collegian Correspondent

Liv Ullman, the star of several Ingmar Bergman films, makes her directorial debut with the film Sofie. This two-and-a-half hour film (in Danish with English subtitles) follows 20 years of the life of Sofie, a Jewish woman in Copenhagen at the end of the 19th century. As the film begins, Sofie is unmarried and still living with her parents at the age of 28, and the film follows Sofie through a brief romance, marriage and motherhood.

The theme of family runs throughout the film and brings it all together at the end. Early in the film a painter who is fascinated with Jewish culture and paints a portrait of Sofie's parents, which comes to symbolize this Jewish family throughout the film. The portrait shows the warmth and love between this middle-aged couple, yet at the same time emphasizes their isolation from the rest of the world. As the film progresses, the portrait changes hands several times, but is always present.

The film's decor is full of dark wood and fabrics, as might be expected for late 19th century Europe. Instead of pre-

Turn to SOFIE, page 10

Collegian Classifieds They Work! 113 Campus Center

Before I was just a lowly frosh who only had two friends. Then I started writing for The Collegian. I have three friends now. Campus Center 113

Northhampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-3232
50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling
Continuous Exotic Dancing!
Now Open!
Holyoke's Hottest New Night Spot
Race St. Pub
★ Rte. 202 to Rte. 141 East to 268 Race St. ★
Open Mon-Wed 4p.m. til 1:30 a.m.
Thur-Sat 12p.m. til 2 a.m. 532-1422
Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

The Club
The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.
Less than $1 per day* for all of this
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Cardiovascular Machines
• On Bus Route
• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Child Care
*When you purchase an academic year membership. Installment payments are available.
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

■ Sofie

Continued from page 9

senting an austere atmosphere, the dark colors are warm and homey. The cobblestone streets of Copenhagen are charming — they make the city seem smaller and bring everything closer together.

Karen-Lise Mynster does a great job as Sofie, resembling a middle-aged Andie Macdowell, except of course, that she speaks Danish. She is convincingly naive as a 28-year-old "little girl" at the beginning of the film. Though her physical appearance remains almost completely unchanged, she is just as convincing as a mature and experienced mother at the end of the film.

Particularly enjoyable are Sofie's four "old maid" aunts, who all lived together with their mother, though they must all be in their fifties. They are friendly, lovable and perfectly happy with their lives, apparently oblivious to the rather constricting social norms of the time. Ullman compares them to birds as they gather together at the window and flap their hands to wave good-bye to Sofie, but like birds they are free, and are not bound to the constraints of society.

Ghita Norby and Erland Josephson are great as Sofie's lovebird parents. They are constantly looking each other in the eyes, smiling and laughing, as if they share a very special secret. Their marriage is the cornerstone of the family structure in the film.

Overall, Liv Ullman does a good job in depicting the developments in Sofie's life and the permanency of her family. The changes in Sofie's personality are subtle and not immediately recognizable, but at the end of the film as Sofie returns home, the changes become evident. Ullman does not spell things out for us, she simply shows us Sofie's life as it is and lets us figure it out for ourselves. B (Pleasant St. Theater) fundamentals of his genre to create the sounds of people walking down a busy city street, traffic, awe at the vastness of a city through the eyes of a newcomer and even a view of the city from the perspective of a skyscraper.

■ Marsalis

Continued from page 9

Regardless of the material Marsalis chooses to perform this evening, no doubt will he live up to his reputation of pleasing crowds with his magical trumpet, emitting sounds clearly from his soul. Audience members will not likely forget his spectacular take on Jazz, which can, for many reasons be best described as classical.

Wynton Marsalis will perform at the Iron Horse Music Hall, 20 Center Street, Northampton. Call 584-0610 for more information.

Nirvana comes to Springfield

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

Nirvana, the band that started this whole Seattle grunge/ alternative thing, is coming to the Springfield Civic Center Wednesday, Nov. 10. This will be their first major tour of the United States.

The band is a power trio consisting of Kurt Cobain (vocals, guitars), Chris Novoselic (Bass), and Dave Grohl (Drums). They have created a niche that is often emulated, but never quite surpassed.

Nirvana has four albums to their name. Bleach, their first album is a hidden gem that was mostly passed by college radio. It has the catchy riffs that are the band's trademark, yet a more raw sound than later work. Cool songs include "Blew", "Floyd the Barber" "Love Buzz" (which they released on 45) and the cult classic "Negative Creep". The album touches on some of the themes (anger, despair, and ultimately alienation) that would be the focus of Nevermind.

"Smells Like Teen Spirit", the surprise hit of the '90s, launched an onslaught of media attention to the band. The polished, strongly produced Nevermind also contains releases "Come As You Are", "Lithium" and "In Bloom". The beauty of seeing Nirvana at this point in their career is that you'll probably get to hear almost all their material.

As a follow-up to the unbelievably successful Nevermind, Nirvana made a compilation of B-sides, covers, and some new stuff with Incesticide. The album is more of a return to Bleach than Nevermind mainly due to the band's desire to get out of the spotlight. It's a hit-or-miss album that has some really great gems such as "Sliver", "Molly's Lips" and "Downer".

The band's latest effort, In Utero, was caught in a wave of controversy. When producer Steve Albini of the now defunct Big Black reported that the band was under pressure by their label (Geffen) to make their album more mainstream, the media cried sellout. Wrong answer, In Utero is certainly not commercial. It is a brutal album, that shows no mercy to anyone including themselves.

The opening band for the show will be Kim Deal's (formerly of The Pixies) band The Breeders. They may be heard doing their new release "Cannonball". You may also remember them from the song "Safari".

Tickets are still on sale at the Springfield Civic Center Box Office. The price is $19.50 and the show begins at 7:30 p.m.

A treat from the Top of the Campus

By BROOKE C. WHEELER
Collegian Staff

Pizza is inevitable, they say. This is told to be the cold, bare truth of college life. But one can only eat so much bread and cheese and pureed tomatoes before the palate begs for a change.

"Real food!" it whines. "Something with flavor, maybe some little herbs, perhaps some veggies on the side...pleeease!"

A little surprise awaits from a most unexpected source: the center of campus. Actually, at the Top of the Campus. And not only is the food real, but it's good, and it's smack in the middle of your home away from home. After all, who is going to hoof it all the way into town for some mozzarella sticks?

"I wanted to make it have the same atmosphere as Houlihan's or TGIFriday's," says T.O.C. manager Dennis Scott.

"We've spent a lot of time and effort every semester changing the menu. When I took over, the menu hadn't changed in about 10 years," Scott says. "I spent a whole semester changing attitudes."

It seems to have done the trick. The offerings from our local restaurant-in-the-sky are some of the same friendly fare as your average neighborhood pub. Favorites like chicken fingers and mozzarella sticks fill out the appetizer menu, which ranges in price between $1.95 and $4.50 per item.

However, no pub I know of has a view this incredible. From this 11th floor Campus Center establishment, you can see the local countryside and campus as you never expected to, in a wide, sweeping aerial vista. At night, the effect is almost as dazzling, as the Southwest towers fool you into thinking you are at a glamorous nightspot in the big city. Back in the '60s, it was one of the only

Turn to TOC, page 12

THE COLLEGIAN

Circles? Tired of going around in circles? We have the info you need.

Come visit Information Data Bank at Whitmore, or call 545-1555. Monday - Friday 8:30-6:00

BIKE SWAP

SUNDAY NOVEMBER 14th 9am-4pm
at DOUGLAS AUCTIONEERS, RT.5 S. DEERFIELD

HUNDREDS OF USED MOUNTAIN BIKES, PARTS, CLOTHING & MORE. ROAD BIKE STUFF, BIKE SHOP CLOSEOUTS, MANUFACTURERS OVERSTOCK, AND MORE

DOOR PRIZES, VIDEOS & REFRESHMENTS!!!

1$ ADMISSION, SELLING SPACE $5 FOR INDIVIDUALS, $10 FOR BUSINESSES

CALL JD AT 413-665-2877 FOR MORE INFORMATION OR SPACE RESERVATION

RECYCLE THAT USED CYCLE STUFF

WHERE DO YOU GO FROM HERE?

We have a suggestion, the GRE®/CGS Forum on Graduate Education.

BOSTON
Westin Copley Place
10 Huntington Avenue
Saturday,
November 20, 1993

Registration begins at 8 a.m.

Ask representatives of graduate schools about their programs and obtain catalogs and application forms.

In addition, you can attend special workshops on various graduate disciplines, financial aid, and preparing for the GRE exam. There are also workshops for minority and returning students.

Best of all, the admission fee is only $5, which makes the GPE Forum the smart place to go.

GRE® FORUMS

For more information call (609) 951-1562.

Individuals who are hearing impaired and wish to request an interpreter must contact ETS at least four weeks prior to The Forum.

Sponsored by the GRE Board and the Council of Graduate Schools. EDUCATIONAL TESTING SERVICE, ETS, the ETS logo, design, and GRE are registered trademarks of Educational Testing Service.

CELEBRATING 25 YEARS 1968-1993

THE PUB

Fun, Food & Spirits

TONIGHT
DANCING
with
D.J.
PETE FREE
MILLER GENUINE DRAFT
12oz. BOTTLE
$1.50
ANY MENU NACHOS
$2.00
9:30-10:30

15 EAST PLEASANT·AMHERST

Interested in Film Studies?

Sign up for the Film Studies Certificate in the Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies, 101 South College. You get:

- a certificate for 18 credits of coursework
- individual advising
- the only on-campus resource for graduate programs and schools in film and video
- info on exciting internships around the country
- free subscription to the quarterly newsletter In Focus
- advance notice of upcoming film screenings and lectures
- an active community of students interested in film and video, incl. the Student Film Society

Stop by our office, 101 South College (M/W 10-5; Tu/Th 1:30-5) or call 545-3659 for information.

Black Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

UJAMAA (COOPERATIVE ECONOMICS) To build and maintain our own businesses and to share the profits from them.

Along the Color Line: Why conservatives fear multiculturalism

In January, 1992, I appeared on the ABC television news program "Nightline", in a debate with former Secretary of Education William Bennett. The issue under discussion was whether schools should adopt new textbooks and teaching techniques to include a full range of America's ethnic, racial and gender diversity.

Manning
MARABLE

I knew that Bennett, a conservative idealogue with reactionary credentials relating to people of color, would attempt to dismiss ethnic pluralism and increased emphasis on non-White contributions to the larger society as irrelevant to quality education.

So from the outset, I explained that "multiculturalism" really means two fundamental things: first the recognition that American history and this nation's accomplishments are not reflected solely in the activities of only one race (Whites), one language group (English speakers), one ethnicity (Anglo-Saxons), or only one religion (Christianity). African-Americans, Latinos, Asian Americans, Native Americans and others have also made central contributions to our society.

And secondly, that beneath these differences are some underlying principles and values which bring us together, such as the ideals of human equality, democratic government and individual liberty.

"Multiculturalism" is an anecdote to the poisons of racism and sexism, which distort young minds in our classrooms.

Presented in this manner, even the archconservative Bennett couldn't disagree.

Where Bennett and I expressed sharp disagreement was in the issue of textbooks. Bennett argued that history books should report the "truth" and any deviation from the central facts in history was nothing less than propaganda. Bennett also insisted that the "truths" of "Western civilization" should be the basis for our educational system.

Bennett was wrong on at least two counts. As a professor of history, I know that there is no "truth" in anyone's history or textbooks. The history books in the past have always reflected the interests and perspectives of people in power in America.

COURTESY COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
Dr. Manning Marable

That's why, until recently, Native Americans, Latinos and African-Americans were excluded from all textbooks, and our achievements were ignored or stolen. When oppressed people successfully struggle for their democratic rights, the textbooks inevitabiy are changed.

Moreover, despite the achievemeots of Western civilization, many of the greatest scientific, technological and cultural advances in world history have come from Asia and Africa. To overcome the prejudices reinforced by their parents, many White students need to read the works of scholars of color.

William Bennett is only one of many intellectuals who are currently campaigning against the specter of "multiculturalism." Other conservative educators hostile to multiculturalism include civil rights critic Linda Chavez, writer Dinesh D'Sourza, and University of Chicago professor Allan Bloom.

What these ideologues also have in common is that they have all been richly subsidized by the conservative Olin Foundation, which is headed by William E. Simon, former Treasury secretary under Presidents Nixon and Ford. According to the Chronicle of Higher Education, in 1991 the Olin Foundation awarded a $175,000 fellowship to Bennett, $25,000 to Chavez, $98,400 to D'Souza, and $800,000 to Bloom's program at the University of Chicago.

Unlike other foundations, Olin has clear partisan party affiliations and an extremely reactionary agenda without even a shred of scholarly balance or objectivity.

Why are conservative intellectuals and foundations so frightened by multiculturalism? Behind their public rhetoric are several political realities. The one threat which unified conservatrives was Communism. Now that the Soviet Union has gone out of business, American reactionaries don't have a common "enemy." By attacking multicultural education and affirmative action, they are deliberately manipulating racial and gender symbols to mobilize their supporters.

Conservatives aiso recognize that racial minorities will soon total one-third of the U.S. population. Pushing Blacks, Latinos and other people of color out of the textbooks is only a precursor to pushing back their political rights within society.

Dr. Manning Marable is Professor of History and Political Science, and Director of the African-American Studies Institute at Columbia University, New York City. "Along the Color Line" appears in over 250 publications and on 75 radio stations internationally.

Black Affairs Calendar

Friday, Nov. 12,1993

The Graduate Brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha are sponsoring a weekend leadership institute for 15 African-American and Latino-American males from Amherst High School. Four workshops will be held throughout the weekend on leadership, exploring possibilities, dispelling myths, and male health issues. Presenters will include: The Honorable James Fason, Magistrate for Northampton District Court and Leon Campbell, leading sales representative for 3M, a Fortune 500 company and independent consultant.

Amherst College presents "Harlem Renaissance". 9 p.m. - 12 a.m. $6 per person, $10 per couple. For more information call 542-3336.

Saturday, Nov. 13, 1993

Hezekiah Walker & Love Fellowship Choir. 8 p.m. F.A.C. Admission: $6,$9,$12.

Party at the Malcolm X Cultural Center. $1 before 11 p.m. $2 after 11 p.m. Begins at 10 p.m. and continues throughout the night. Sponsored by the African Students Association.

Tuesday, Nov. 16, 1993

Imam Warith Dean Mohammed — lecture 7 p.m. Student Union Ballroom. Speaking on "Race Relations in America: An islamic Perspective". Sponsored by the Muslim Students Association.

Saturday, Nov. 20, 1993

Cape Verdean Night. 7-10 p.m. 10th floor Campus Center. $3 for students. For more information, call Ana Lisa Silva at 256-0271.

—Your View

Compiled by MARC COUSINS
Photos by ARAM COMJEAN

"What is a pressing concern that you have regarding campus life?"

Brett Gadsden
"Getting more people of color here to the University and creating an environment conducive to academic and personal growth. That's my most pressing concern."

Sid Sarin
"I would like to see things [about People of Color] in the Collegian everyday, not just once a week. Previously in the Collegian, things in World affairs have only been concerning the United States, this is supposed to be a multicultural university."

Angie Gabriel
"I think there is a lot of institutionalized racism here on campus and I think a lot of students and administration are insensitive to the needs and feelings of People of Color on campus. I feel that there is an over emphasis on creating diversity for the wrong reasons on this campus."

Danielle Baptiste
"My present concern is in my major, which is theatre. I don't think there are enough African-American roles for actors and actresses."

Jennifer Frederick
"It's whack. Not enough of us. There are a lot of minority organizations on campus. They need to come out and get us."

Sucharitha Seetharaman
"I think that as a community of minorities we need a place of meeting. There are a a lot of minorities on campus that feel edged out of activities."

Michelle Barnes
"The University actually following through on their plans of multiculturalism, not just in words but in actions."

Jo~ao Evora
"The food in the D.C. sucks, it's not like the food at home. They need better food."

This Week in Black History

Compiled by BRIAN ALLEN
Collegian Staff

Nov. 2, 1930 — Haile Selassie was crowned Emperor of Ethlopia.

Nov. 5, 1968 — Shirley Chisolm becomes the first African-American elected to congress.

Nov. 7, 1955 — Segregation in recreational facilities is outlawed by the United States Supreme Court.

Nov. 9, 1731 — Birth of engineer and scientist Benjamin Banneker.

Write for the Black Affairs Page!

Be a part of the Collegian's bi-weekly forum on issues concerning the Black community.

For more information contact Michele Monteiro, Black Affairs Editor, at 113 Campus Center.

■ TOC

continued from page 10

restaurants in the area, and UMass alumna Natalie Cole got her career started singing in the dining room. Now, on Thursday and Friday evenings, a piano player entertains diners.

Dinner entrees range from $8.95-$13.95, and include some zesty seafood dishes such as cajun catfish, the ubiquitous New England scrod and scallops, sirloin steak and a variety of other things.

Good-looking burgers ($4.50-$5.50) include the Mexican Burger or the Western Mass. Burger, a loaded deal with onions, peppers, mushrooms, swiss and BBQ sauce. The T.O.C. also offers a host of salads ranging from Thai Chicken to Tex-Mex.

The Top of the Campus Restaurant serves lunch Mon. - Fri. from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., dinner is served Mon. - Sat. from 4:30 - 9 p.m. Students receive a $3 discount with a student ID, and receive a free non-alcoholic beverage with meal during the month of November.

■ mythology

continued from page 3

ly bring back the missing disciple for a fee. He tells the guru and his followers to take a turn pressing their noses into fresh cow dung. Each man takes his turn and in the end 13 impressions are left. The men rejoice and pay the passerby all the money they have in their possession.

Whether the story is taken for its surface value as an entertaining tale, or pondered for its deeper philosophical meanings, Schulman's presentation was enjoyable and understandable.

Even newcomers to Indian literature can enjoy Schulman's stories, which he tells with a vigor sure to engross audiences of scholars and laypeople alike.

Schulman's lecture was the second in a three-part series that began last night at Amherst College. The final lecture will take place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Smith College, Seelye Hall 102.

It all starts next Thursday...

They're calling the 1993-94 season the beginning of a new era in UMass Basketball. Find out why with the Collegian's Season Preview next Thursday, November 18th...

Here's what you can expect...

A look at the Super Six — Kentucky, Oklahoma, Manhattan, Florida State, Cincinnati and DePaul...

Bill Balfour with a national perspective on the Massachusetts program...

Mike Reiss explores one of the biggest rivalries in the East — UMass and Temple...

Kate Pulley gets inside the marketing of a major college basketball program...

Michael Morrissey details the recruiting and scouting process...

And, of course, Art Stapleton and Jeff Crofts with in-depth coverage of the Minutemen, and Sean P. Hayden and Andrew Bryce take a close look at the rising Minutewomen.

Plus features on all the individual players... all this and more next Thursday. Don't miss it!

SMITH COLLEGE
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14
AT 8:00 PM
DOORS OPEN AT 7:30 PM

$9.00 WITH SMITH ID
(2 PER ID)
$10.50 OFF CAMPUS

TICKETS ON SALE
NOVEMBER 8
FROM 10:00 TO 4:00
AT SMITH COLLEGE MAIL ROOM
TICKETS ON SALE AT THE DOOR

SPONSORED BY REC. COUNCIL

MUSLIM STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
of the Five College Area cordially invites you to a lecture by

Imam Warith Deen Mohammed
Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective

7:00 PM Tuesday,
November 16th, 1993
Student Union Ballroom
University of Massachusetts,
Amherst

ADMISSION FREE

W. Deen Mohammed delivers statement at 'First Liberty Summit' in Williamsburg, VA.

BUD NIGHT TONIGHT

FREE T-SHIRTS, HATS AND OTHER PRIZES

TIME OUT

Come Celebrate No School Tomorrow

FREE CHICKEN WINGS 9-11

GREAT PRICES

CALVIN & HOBBES — By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

DR. SCIENTIFIC — By BEN COURTNEY

GLEESON — By DAVE

PSYCHIC EYES — By ED SUTHERLAND

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sean P. Hayden
Copy Editor ..... Arthur C. Stapleton Jr.
Photo Technician ..... Matthew J. Simoneau
Production Supervisor ..... Michael J. Carvalho
Production ..... Andrew D. Davidson, Lisa A. Jezowski, Marni E. Helfner

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Tacos	Turkey Divan
Fishburgers	BBQ Ribs
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Veggie Tacos	Turkey Divan
Fishburgers	Veggie Croquettes

P.S. MUELLER — By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"You got your passion, you got your pride. But don't you know that only fools are satisfied? Dream on, but don't imagine they'll all come true. When will you realize Vienna waits for you?"

– Billy Joel, 'Vienna'

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES(March 21-April 19): Your long range thinking is on target. Trust your own know-how, not other people's suggestions. Distant events hold special interest. Move forward with confidence where romance is concerned.

TAURUS(April 20-May 20): A positive attitude keeps a project moving ahead even when interest wanes. Do not allow rumors to upset you. Romance gets a shot in the arm when you reveal your tender side.

GEMINI(May 21-June 20): Serious consideration of an intriguing proposal is pivotal. Confiding in a higher up brings valuable input and an important reality check. Widen your social circle by joining a community group.

CANCER(June 21-July 22): Look forward to a lucky day for personal relationships. Romance reaches a new plateau, or a friend steps forward to lend a helping hand. Your faith in a loved one will be rewarded.

LEO(July 23-Aug. 22): Deciding not to put yourself or your frustrations in the spotlight now is a smart move. Your quiet diligence will impress high-ups more than an angry confrontation. Play a waiting game.

VIRGO(Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Another person's maneuvers may upset the balance of an agreement. Your diplomatic manner helps keep the scales tipped your way. A night on the town or phone calls up to great fun.

LIBRA(Sept. 23-Oct. 22): VIP's suggested procedures may seem constricting. Relax. The money you save today will mean much more to you tomorrow. Events at a distance raise your hopes. Good times lie just ahead.

SCORPIO(Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Discuss your ideas with those in a position to implement them. Put more warmth into your personal relationships. A partner needs to know that your alliance is more than just a convenience.

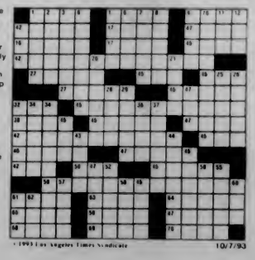
SAGITTARIUS(Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A casual conversation with someone you barely know gives you valuable food for thought. Your experience and specialized knowledge give you and advantage in the marketplace.

CAPRICORN(Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Close ties are strengthened now, with the accent on long-term commitment. Alliances on the job, however, could shift. Modulate your enthusiasm today.

AQUARIUS(Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Once you solve a difficulty or two, you will see the advantage of a new plan. Turning on the charm lets you get your way on the job. Tonight invite friends over.

PISCES(Feb. 19-March 20): Seize an opportunity to perform a valuable service for someone influential. A fatness program pays off handsomely. Woo the object of your affections with music, poetry.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 That just won't — 5 King of comedy 9 Joyride 13 Canadian peninsula 14 Alone 15 — take arms: Hamlet 16 Buckets 17 Labor 18 Burden 19 A Woman — Russell film 22 Braga from Brazil 23 Bard's twilight 24 Pay stretcher? 27 Domesticated 30 More on line 32 Pershing's op 35 "A Girl — Remick film 36 City area 40 Fall sign 41 A-F link 42 "A Boy —" Robinson film 45 DC time letters 46 Former Vietnam state 47 Unflappable 49 Sea creature 50 Audit org. 53 Dutch painter Jan and family 56 "A Man —" Schofield film 61 Athletic group 63 String instrument 64 Diamond points 65 It's enough, sometimes 66 Stocking hue 67 Lake and lake port 68 Garden spot 69 Lascivious look 70 Lairs

DOWN
1 WWII service women 2 "... say not —" 3 Fracture support 4 Mercenary soldier of 1776 5 Vino center 6 Doctorow's — Lake 7 Carroll character 8 "Cape Fear" star 9 A way to fly 10 Say 11 Give — go: try 12 Wynken and Blynken's companion 13 Mail ctr. 20 Mexican food treat 21 Come — 25 Yorkshire city 26 Stop sign in Paris 28 Let out 29 Markers 31 Al Reiner 32 "— Is Born" 33 "Maria —" 34 Astaire/Hepburn film 36 Contound it! 37 Wilde drama 39 Graphics dec. 43 Desert prince 44 Late riser 48 Basso Siepi 51 Bolero composer 52 Pizza portion 54 Violinist's need 55 Large knives 57 Sign of the future 58 Body of knowledge 59 Disparage 60 Draft org. 61 Foot pad 62 Close the books on

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	B	A	B	■	B	A	A	L	■	P	R	A	T	A
B	O	L	E	■	T	O	L	E	■	E	V	E	R	Y
C	O	L	L	E	G	E	S	T	U	D	E	N	T	S
D	R	A	I	N	■	L	O	T	■	T	I	E	■	■
■	■	E	S	T	■	A	N	O	T	H	E	R	■	■
B	A	R	O	O	T	■	E	T	H	E	R	■	■	■
A	B	E	■	L	E	A	V	E	■	E	A	S	E	■
C	L	A	S	S	■	P	R	E	S	I	D	E	N	T	S
K	R	N	■	E	N	T	R	E	■	N	U	T	■	■
■	■	A	P	E	S	T	■	M	A	L	O	N	E	■
M	E	R	G	E	R	■	P	A	R	A	■	■	■	■
A	R	E	■	N	O	B	E	T	H	R	E	E	■	■
G	R	A	D	U	A	T	E	S	C	H	O	O	L	S
S	E	D	E	R	■	T	A	T	A	■	R	O	S	E
D	E	N	Y	■	O	D	O	R	■	E	T	A	S	■

10/7/93

© 1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

10/7/93

Men's tennis at Rolex tourney

Three members of the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team competed in the Rolex Men's Tennis Championship this past weekend in Princeton, N.J.

Keith Murray lost to Harvard's Danny Chung, the tournament's No. 6 seed, 6-1, 6-1. The Crimson, arguably the best team in the east, saw all six of its players and its alternate qualify for the draw and three, including the No. 1 seed and eventual tournament champion Todd Meringoff, were seeded in the top seven of 64 places.

"It wasn't a blowout," Murray said, though the score might indicate otherwise. "I had my chances, but on the key points he came up with a big serve or a great shot."

UMass' top doubles tandem of Kasper Vaala and Dave Bradley lost to Tom Botzler and Bill Rusler of Colgate, 6-1, 6-4.

Murray said that facing such a high level of competition will help him and his teammates prepare for the spring.

"[The Harvard players] were in really good condition," Murray said. "Chung was really fast. So, during the off-season we're working on our conditioning: lifting weights, running, aerobics. I'm even going to do some swimming with a couple of the other guys."

— Ted Kottler

Hart-breaker

ARAM COMEAN / COLLEGIAN

Atlantic 10 Tournament MVP Natalie Hart leads the University of Massachusetts field hockey team as they host Boston University in an NCAA Tournament first round game Thursday at Totman. Game time is 1 p.m.

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

Complete RESUME Package ALL INCLUSIVE
Campus Design & Copy
403 Student Union, above Credit Union
$15
STUDENTS WORKING FOR STUDENTS
At Campus Design & Copy our experienced Resume staff can execute the professional resume you are looking for and at one of the lowest prices in the area. The $15 all inclusive charge includes complete layout and typesetting, 10 copies on our high quality resume paper, 10 matching envelopes and storage of your resume on our Macintosh System for one year so you can update and change it when needed. All for $15

1st ANNUAL Career Fair
Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors
ALL MAJORS WELCOME
100 COMPANIES INVITED
Co-op, Internships, Entry Level Jobs
Undergraduate Research Projects Available
DATE: Wednesday, Noverber 17, 1993
TIME: 9:00am - 5:00pm
LOCATION: The Campus Center Auditorium
•For more info call Julius Randall or Alba Brown at 545-2030•

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50c HOT DOGS, 50c SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

MAKE YOURSELF HEARD
TUITION, FEES, HOUSING, BUREAUCRACY, DIVERSITY, MULTICULTURALISM, LITIGATION, VOTING, TOWN ISSUES, TEACHING AND LEARNING, FINANCIAL AID, HEALTH SERVICES, ACADEMICS, COMMUTER SERVICES, ETC...
STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION
NO MORE CUT
GET INVOLVED
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION, PLEASE CALL 545-0341
OR COME BY OUR OFFICE AT 420 STUDENT UNION BUILDING

ATTENTION LADIES
Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Are Only at Anthony's"
PRESENTS
Amateur Contest
Begins Sunday Nov. 7 • Every Sunday for 10 Weeks
1st PRIZE $300 • GRAND PRIZE $1000
Cash Prizes plus a photo shoot w/the "Famous" Warren Tang
Opens @ 5pm • Starts @ 9pm
LADIES: For More Info Call 1-800-358-0502
THIS WEEK!
Candy Gram
Centerfold
NEXT WEEK!
SAVANNAH
Sun-Tues 5pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5
left on Rt. 33, turn right across from BigY (413) 536-0502

Scurry

continued from page 16

the NCAA Tournament, 2-1, last season, in a game where Scurry was immense. It's a wonder Husky Coach Len Tsantaris didn't revoke Denise's scholarship after that one.

Scurry says the development from her first year in Amherst to now is remarkable.

"When I came, I was long on athleticism, but short on experience and knowledge," Scurry said. "I've improved about 300 or 400 percent since then."

While Rudy saw her as a back-up, she said, "I didn't come here to be a bench warmer."

The idea of being an All-America candidate "definitely feels good," Scurry said. "The only people who believed I could do it were probably my team, my parents and myself. And in that order."

What Scurry brings to the net is unbelievable athletic skill. She is a tremendous leaper and is quick around the net. She was recruited to play basketball at Division I schools such as Minnesota and Missouri, and considered until recently to walk on to the UMass team. (Her first cousin is Moses Scurry, who started at center for UNLV two seasons ago). She may be the school's finest all-around athlete.

While Rudy likes to talk of Scurry's goaltending prowess, he can not stop raving about her pleasant disposition and her tight family.

"Bri is such a nice person who has such nice folks," Rudy said. "She is just a decent kid. There are not many negative bones in her body."

And this weekend she will try to lead the Minutewomen into the Final Four with two performances any "back-up" would be proud of.

Blindsided

continued from page 16

so look for him to throw a couple of razz-matazz plays that FSU doesn't expect nor will they be ready for.

The Florida State offense is as potent as any in the nation, there is no denying that. Its edge has always been that it has been able to out-quick its opponents and come up with the big plays, but Notre Dame has speed of its own, particularly in the defensive backfield with Jeff Burris, Bobby Taylor, Greg Lane and John Covington patrolling the ground back there.

CELEBRITY PICKS: Due to the magnitude of the contest, many experts would like to make their picks:

Lamar Chance: 'Noles 28-23.

Andrew Bryce: ND 27-23.

Tracy Monahan: the Irish by 10.

Dan Wetzel takes Notre Dame 35-27 with a Scott Bentley broken leg thrown in for good measure.

Michael Morrissey has jumped on the bandwagon and says ND 23-21.

Art Stapleton predicts ND 16-14 with Scott Bentley short on a game-winning field goal.

Notre Dame nemesis and fellow Blinsider Anthony Guido says 'Noles 28-23.

Jeff Crofts, the heretic, predicts a Seminole victory dance to the tune of 34-20.

Mike Reiss likes the Patriots' chances this weekend.

THE ONE AND ONLY PICK THAT MATTERS: Mine, and I say giving Lou Holtz two weeks to prepare for a team is like giving the Roadrunner two weeks to prepare for Wile E. Coyote. FSU will score late to make it interesting, but Burris will knock away a last-minute touchdown pass a la Pat Terrell vs. the Hurricanes Oct. 30, 1988.

NOTRE DAME 33, FLORIDA STATE 29.

See you in South Bend.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist who will be leaving tonight for the big game.

Pipes

continued from page 16

It's about time the Bruins took Dmitri Kvartalnov out of cold storage. Despite the fact that he has been in Coach Brian Sutter's dog house, the Russian winger has netted key goals in the B's last two games. They'll need more offensive output from every one as Joe Juneau is out for a month with a broken jaw.

Rumor has it that the NHL is bringing in former New Jersey Devils Coach Jim Schoenfeld to help in the negotiations between the league and the referees. Schoenfeld has reportedly offered to include Dunkin' Donuts gift certificates in an attempt to convince Ref. Don Koharski to accept the league's proposal.

The refs want a 60 percent pay raise while the league is offering 15 percent. Nov. 15 could find college officials blowing the whistle in the NHL. Stay tuned.

I'm resisting the awful temptation to make yet another attack on the Mighty Ducks of Anahiem, but they're only a point worse than the Islanders, who I picked to finish first in the Atlantic conference; Mickey Eisner gets the week off.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian Columnist.

SPORTS NOTICE

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team will have an intra-squad scrimmage Thursday night at 7 p.m. The scrimmage will be held in the William D. Mullins Center and will be open to the public. Players will be in full game uniform.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY v
D.J. Tasos
Friday, Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Circle K International Informational Meeting Nov 11 8:30 pm RM 811 CC Join in on community service, leadership and friendship. More info: 546-2547

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name + address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

Free Condoms Listen to WOCH Thurs 12-3 pm

Male Vocalist looking for cover & originals band ready or close to playing out. 549-6918 Leave Message

Spectrum, the fine arts and literary magazine of UMass, is now accepting submissions of art, photos, prose, and poetry. HAND DELIVER to 408E Student Union, above Credit Union. Students are also invited to join any of these four staffs to help critique submissions. 545-2240

Race Relations in America An Islamic perspective, talk by Imam W. D. Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

ATTENTION TREKKIES!

Would you like to see "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation" for free? Student Valley Production needs ushers and other misc. help for the performances on Nov. 17th-20th. For more information please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

AUTO FOR SALE

Car For Sale 1984 Buick Skyhawk Good Condition $1500 546-4751

78 Grand Prix 301 V8 runs good needs little to pass inspection t-tops Nathan 548-5144

1984 Honda CRX red excellent cond. $1850.00 546-2921 Leave message

1984 Nissen Sentra A Definite Must-See! $2995.00!!
For exciting details Call Anna at Superior Subaru! 743-4984

1985 Marcury Lynx 60000 miles 546-6279

86 Chevy Cavalier new motor plus more! $1200. 72 Saab "As Is" $250. 70 Cadillac antique Deville $2000 665-7114/ 531-9027 24 Hours

1986 Ford Escort $950 Neg 546-3793

1990 Hyundai Excel 29000 Miles only Excellent Condition $4000 Call 546-1482

1992 GrandAm Sedan 16v4cyl., auto, ABS, cruise, alarm system, AC, am/fm/ tape deck, 3-yr/36,000 miles, Warranty 26,500 miles $9300 neg. 256-4153

Subar '88 DL Wagon 5 spd., am/fm stereo Cass. 110K No rust! Asa for $2500 323-5574 (night) 545-0188 (day)

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

We must announce new hours & prices Hours M-Th 7p-1a; F & S 7 p.2 a Cookies now 4.00 a dozen (Still the best deal in town) Milk 1.25 a qt Ben&Jerry's still 3.50 #549-MIX4

We are pleased to say We're here to stay And its all because of you The Cookie Man

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line 3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route Oil heat - fireplace

1 bedroom available for female this Spring in Puffton Village call/leave message 549-7756

1 Bedroom Avail. in two bedroom apt Southpoint Apt. $225/month on bus route. Starting Jan 1st Call Jane 256-1382

Room For Rent Starts Jan 1 1 mile to campus Call 549-2709

Take Over Our Lease Have 2 need 2 females for Brandywine Jan 1st Call Sherry or Sue 549-8248

Uptown Apartment 2 females 185.00 each Starting in January 256-4137

FOR SALE

Famous Sports Film comic characters lifesize stand-ups $20. See gigantic display. Poor Boyz - Sunderland Center Weekendz only 24 hours "Everything"

Full Size Bed/Boxspring $60
Wicker Shelving $10
Kitchen Table $8
TV Table $5
End Table $3
Call Melissa at 256-8570

Mountain Bike 1993 Specialized Hard Rock Excellent Condition - Like New $300/BO 256-4137

1982 Honde V45 Sabre Motorcycle Shaft drive, liquid cooled $650.00 13 1/2 Foot Fiberglass canoe with paddles $125 Must sell graduating in January Call 253-4773

Personal Protection Device - (PAAL) Compact electronic alarm about the size of a beeper. Easy to use and carry. Available in black and yellow. Must sell. If interested call Jarrett at 256-3076. Very Cheap.

Profesional Loud Speaker System Lineer Acoustics 520. Never been used Retail $1500 asking $450 OBO 546-1842

Queen S2 H2O Bed - Complete $200 OBO 665-0935

Sony CD Player 1 Disk w/remote New! $95 Steve 546-4173

Technica Ski Boots size 6 1/2 womens Only 2 yr old 253-3130

HELP WANTED

AA Cruise + Travel Jobs Earn $2500/mo + travel the world free! Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, Asia. Cruise Line now hiring for busy holiday Spring and Summer seasons. Guaranteed employment. Call 919-929-4398 ext. 114

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Exotic Dancers Wanted Great pay, flexible hours Race St. Pub, 268 Race St., Holyoke MA Call Bob 532-1422

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK! For your fraternity, sorority or club. Plus $1000 for yourself! And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling! 1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Typist Needed! Typist needed to type law school applications. 253-9916

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender Days/evenings -one week! Placement/Assistance Boston Bartenders School Call 747-9888 for Nov & Dec. classes Special Student Rates Remember: To be professionally trained takes more than one evening.

Learn to Bartend with University Bartending's on campus instruction, at a fraction of the cost of most schools. Classes start Nov. 10th, at 7 pm in Campus Center room #811. For registration info call (617)277-2075

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOSE WEIGHT NOW!

Diet that works like magic! Natural 100% guaranteed. Effective. Affordable. Call 549-8139

LOST

Brown Hat w/2 stripes lost in Campus Center Please call 253-9568

Lost Wallet: Please return license and any other article you don't want Or call 549-4226

MUSICIANS

Bassist Needed for alt/punk band Call Adam 6-6888

Guitar Lessons Beginner-Advanced Lessons may be taken for course credit 256-6848

PERSONALS

Alison You are the best little sister Keep the shade down! Get psyched for the second half L&L Angela

Amy Grodsky, I'm so happy to you as my little sis. Now you have made my family grow. Phi Love You, Your Big Sis

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN I see you every day as you're walking to class and am marvelled by your beauty. I have long dreamt about approaching you but never quite find the courage. I watch as you cross the campus pond each day at around 11:00 in the morning and as you stop to perform your daily ritual of dropping some bread to the ducks and wonder where you're going and if you're happy while you're there. I almost took a chance on Thursday when I saw you but chickened out at the last minute. Risking a dream is a hard thing to do. I just wanted to let you know that I think you're wonderful and that you make my day a little bit brighter. One day soon I'll find the nerve to say hello but until then I'll just speak to you from here. Just sign me "Norman"

BR - UR my favorite. Warm muffin for a Tender Vittle? I love you- button

Hey IGU's - I hope your dashing has paid off. See you all tonight. I.L. Shannon

Hay Goober- You're finally 21! I hope you have a good day Don't get knocked off your ass tonight. I'll see you after Indian. Love, Chris

Hey Little Chit Happy 22nd Hope you enjoy it AX Love, Jen and Chris B.

Kelly Happy 18th Birthday! "That's what friends are for" Love Ya, Sarah

KIM Don't Be Sad I know the weather is bad I'll send you the sun So you can tan your buns Happy 18th Birthday Becky

Lauri — You're the best little sister. Get psyched for tonight! Love, Your Big Sis

Liz Walsh Just want to Say that you Are an awesome friend. Keep smiling Love Karen D.

MARINO & MONO Do you guys miss us yet? South Bend is fun, but it is no JA. The weather is here, wish you were beautiful. Peace til Sun day. FONZIE AND RITCHIE

Sarah, You're doing an awesome job As an RA! Can't wait for the Bahamas!! Love, Dave

Sometimes I get soooooo frustrated hoping these personals. I mean, you people are so lame! Get original!!! We're having a sale, the classifieds are only 10 cents per word, so why don't you make my job just a bit more interesting! Reply here.....

The Classifieds Women

SWF 20 seeks eligible bachelor for an evening of frolicking. Serious inquiries only please.

Tara - you don't have even go here and you get personals! We're gonna have so much fun tonight. It wouldn't be the same without you! Love, The Evil Elf

Thank you St. Jude TMB

To My Roommate Franny - Another date party. Hopefully it will be worth all the stress! I.L. Pebbles

To Our Pursuels, Beware of all houlegans pulling shannanagans. We are traveling incgognito. Unreal. -The dynamic duo

To the Sisters and Pledges of IGU - hope everyone has fun tonight. Get psyched for an awesome date party! I.L. Danielle

You watched me go in and out of the library late Wednesday night. You're really cute Respond here

RIDE WANTED

Ride Desperately Needed To Ithaca NY/vicinity Will chip in for gas Wed or Thurs 11/10 or 11/11 546-4210

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share one bedroom apt. in Puffton for Spring semester $220/mo Call 549-7290

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

SERVICES

Looking to exchange living space in your home for elder or child care? Need an affordable place and willing to provide services in lieu of paying rent? Stop by the Homesharing Office 428 Student Union to apply.

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

November 12th is the last day to contact the Legal Services Center about a Spring, 1994 Internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 - contact Legal Services today 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TO SUBLET

Huge Room w/fireplace In coed Apt. Cool housemates Prefemale Jan-May $168+util. 549-4318 Chris 10 minutes to campus

Intersession Sublets. Do you have an apartment or room to sublet over intersession? Are you looking for a place to stay over intersession? Come to OCHO, 428 Student Union.

We went to sublet Your 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment Spring Semester! Melissa 549-3952

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips Nov 19-21 Killington Wknd $99 Winter Break Ski Week Killington Jan 16-21 $275 - sign up today at concourse table or call 545-3437.

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1 800 942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 548-4722

Sound Board and Light Board operators for Student Valley Productions' "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation." Performance dates are Nov. 17 - 20th. You will also be needed for tech rehearsals. For more information, please call Linda at 665-7509 and leave a message.

WANTED TO RENT

Need someone to take over your Amherst area house lease Call 549-7213

Field Hockey to host NCAA tourney game Thursday Page 14

Sports

Scurry a keeper in goal for the Minutewomen

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

When University of Massachusetts Women's Soccer Coach Jim Rudy went looking for a goalkeeper in 1990, he was looking for a back-up, someone who would not demand any scholarship money, someone who could challenge highly-touted freshman Skye Eddy in practice and maybe develop into a legitimate player.

What he got was Briana Scurry, who has developed into a flat-out talent, someone who is no one's back-up, someone who every coach in the country is kicking themselves for not recruiting.

Scurry has proven herself the last few years and is now regarded as one of, if not the, nation's finest collegiate goalkeeper. When Eddy transferred to George Mason at the beginning of the season, in an effort to find more playing time, Scurry assumed full control of the Minutewoman net. She has allowed only eight goals on the season (0.36 goals against average) and shutout the opposition 13 times. She will be in net this weekend when the fifth-ranked Minutewomen host the NCAA Regional Tournament and face Providence (1:30 p.m. Saturday).

Once considered a back-up, she is now a leading candidate to be named first team All-American and her future after UMass will likely include the U.S. National Team and possibly the Women's World Cup in 1995.

"I would have to honestly say, that Bri is the best keeper I've seen this year," said Rudy. "And we've seen some good ones."

Scurry, who hails from Dayton, Minn., has the benefit of playing with a dominating defense in front of her. She is the first to admit that some of those shutouts come from facing only a few shots. But when the pressure is on, Scurry responds.

Against No. 4 Santa Clara earlier this season, the Minutewomen were badly outplayed, but Scurry held the Broncos' powerful offense scoreless through regulation. Santa Clara finally scored in overtime, but Scurry almost stole a 0-0 tie.

"At Santa Clara she was under a lot of pressure from top players," Rudy said. "But she showed a high maturity level and came up big, time after time."

Rudy came across Scurry when his friend Pete Swenson informed him that he had seen this super-athletic keeper playing in Minnesota. Ironically, Swenson's daughter, Denise, was a high-scoring forward at Connecticut.

"I will always remember what Pete told me," Rudy said. "He told me 'This keeper will win games for you.'"

One of those wins ended Denise's career. UMass eliminated UConn from

Turn to SCURRY, page 15

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

University of Massachusetts women's soccer keeper, Briana Scurry, and the rest of the No. 5 Minutewomen host the Northeast Regionals of the NCAA Tournament this weekend at Richard F. Garber Field.

Irish vs. 'Noles: Glitz vs. Grit

It's being hyped as Catholics vs. Creminoles.

I searched and I searched, but I could find only one game on the slate for college football this weekend. Lucky for you, it's Notre Dame vs. Florida State.

BLINDSIDED
Sean Hayden on College Football

I circled this game on my calendar at the beginning of the season as the match up that would determine the national championship and it appears as the winner of this one will have gone a long way to wearing the rings.

The most-hyped game of the year is a distinct contrast of styles. Florida State is glitz and glamour, fueled by a high-powered offense that features Heisman Trophy favorite Charlie Ward. For all the attention the offense has received, the Seminole D has been equally impressive.

The most points allowed by the defense came last week when it allowed 20 to the lowly Maryland Terrapins. Don't be fooled into thinking that if the Terps were able to strike against FSU, then the Irish will be able to run it up. Seminole Coach Bobby Bowden pulled a page out of Lou Holtz's playbook by looking soft against a weaker opponent so that the upcoming juggernaut will come in overconfident.

It works, just ask Michigan Coach Gary Moeller who was left with his head shaking after ND made mincemeat out of them a week after looking horrendous against Northwestern.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, is meat and potatoes to the Seminoles' cracked crab. Seminole players hang out with rap stars, Irish players hang out with priests. FSU players go to the beach for fun, the closest water to the Notre Dame campus is Lake Michigan — a two-hour drive.

GAME ANALYSIS: Lou Holtz was 100 percent correct when he said Florida State is the only team in the country capable of embarrassing every other Division I team. The 'Noles appear to have only one weakness — an inability to stop the run. Notre Dame's major strength is ... Surprise! — running the ball.

When ND has the ball, look for them to try to establish the run right away. The massive offensive line of the Irish, led by All-American Aaron Taylor and senior Tim Ruddy, will wear down the front seven of the Seminoles which will enable them to control the clock, especially in the key moments of the second half.

The backfield for Notre Dame isn't Bettis, Brooks and Mirer, but a healthy Kevin McDougall over center and Ray Zellars, Lee Becton and Randy Kinder in the backfield have done an outstanding job of terrorizing Irish opponents. Holtz knows this is a big game and the Seminoles will be ready for normal Irish fare,

Turn to BLINDSIDED, page 15

Freshmen produce for X-C

By JONATHAN GANGI
Collegian Staff

In this day and age, sports fans distribute great amounts of hope on young talent, as if it were penny stock waiting to multiply over and over and bring unimaginable riches. On the professional level in this area, much of this "stock" is put into rookies such as Drew Bledsoe and Acie Earl.

On campus, we rave about the newcomers to the men's basketball team, like Marcus Camby and Donta Bright. While much is made of these big names, however, other young talent is less recognized. Such is the case with the freshman women of the University of Massachusetts cross country team.

Have you heard about Melissa Langevin? Atlantic-10 Freshman of the Week in all but one week of competition, Langevin had to settle for second in Freshman of the Year honors, as she was outrun by an opponent she had previously defeated. In the New England Championships, she placed seventh overall in a field of 163 and was the first freshman to cross the finish line.

The New Englands served as a showcase for the Minutewomen's abundance of young talent. The first three freshmen to cross the line were all wearing the maroon.

Katie Greenla, who has run consistently well, finished second for the women, followed by Kristin Donaldson. Coach Julie LaFreniere said that she was extremely pleased with the continued improvement of Donaldson.

"She ran the best race of her career," said LaFreniere.

But the striking statistic that caught many-a-spectator's eye came out of the open (non-varsity) race. UMass frosh completely dominated, placing three runners in the first four slots. Molly Dunlap and Mariska Pierce came in second and third respectively, with times that would have landed them among the top 52 runners of the varsity race. Jennifer Barry capped off the UMass destruction as she finished fourth.

The ECACs this Saturday will determine if the women's season will continue with the Nationals or come to an end. Even if this weekend fails to bring the Minutewomen success, there is still the promise of a bright future — so bright that looking directly into it could possibly cause blindness.

So now when someone mentions a name like Langevin, Greenia, Donaldson, Dunlap, Pierce, or Barry, you'll be able to say "Hey, I've heard of her!" and your stock is sure to rise.

Blues need Hull to catch Toronto

Imagine my surprise when I picked up a milk carton last week and saw a picture of Brett Hull on the back. Underneath the photo read:

Missing since early October, any offensive output. Last seen on an occasional power play.

BETWEEN THE PIPES
Matt Vautour on the NHL

The Golden Brett has appeared to be more like fool's gold in the early going this season, as he can't seem to get anything going. In a recent game against the Bruins, Hull played sparingly, used mostly on power plays.

The usually potent sniper's goal production is so down that Craig Janney, of the "don't make me shoot it" fame has six goals to Hull's five.

Amazingly enough, Hull's lack of production hasn't hampered the Blues at all. They've started 10-2-1, good enough for second place in the Central division. If they have any chance of catching Toronto, Hull has to catch fire.

The best in the business squared off as Super Mario invaded Wayne's World in attempt to see who is the best in the NHL. Gretzky's Kings came out victorious as they rolled 8-3. The Great One tallied four assists while Lemieux added two in the Pens losing battle.

The best player in the league right now may not play in LA or Pittsburgh, as Eric Lindros is fulfilling the hype that preceded him. In 14 games, Lindros has 13 goals. Flyer fans have a reason for hope as the Broad Street Bullies are 11-3 and in first place — on track to make the playoffs for the first time after three years.

The New York Rangers added another aging player on the downside of his career as they acquired Steve Larmer in a three-way trade last week. The Blackhawks sent Larmer to Hartford in exchange for promising young froward Patrick Poulin and defenseman Eric Weinrich. The Whalers then traded Larmer and Nick Kypreos to New York for Darrin Turcotte and James Patrick.

Although the Rangers got the biggest name in the deal, the Whalers and Hawks seemed to have gotten the better ends of this deal. Poulin will provide some badly needed scoring help for Jeremy Roenick. Weinrich will add an offensive defenseman to the Blackhawk mix.

Hartford gets talent and experience in Turcotte and Patrick — something that is badly needed in a franchise that is still searching for leadership and direction.

Turn to PIPES, page 15

SPORTS NOTICE:

Tickets for the next Thursday's Massachusetts-Cleveland State game will be distributed this Thursday morning at 7 a.m. Students with their activity cards will be charged $5 and can purchase only one ticket.

Ass. Athletic Director/Ticket Manager Thorr Bjorn said lines will not be formed before 6:30 a.m., and if they are, measures will be taken to affect the students.

"We don't want any lines the night before. So, if people wait, it will hurt everyone," Bjorn said. "We'll change it to a lottery that morning if people line up earlier than we want them to. This way, you won't benefit by getting there the night before."

GEO rallies to change union contract Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
57° Friday
November 12, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 45
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Chancellor hands out top posts

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Chancellor David Scott announced Wednesday the hiring of two administrators from Michigan State University during a hiring freeze at UMass.

Scott created the position of deputy chancellor for Marcellette G. Williams at a salary of $110,000 starting on Jan. 17, according to UMass officials.

Her husband, Keith Williams was appointed to the new position of associate vice chancellor for University Advancement and UMass officials say he will be paid $75,000.

According to Scott, he had worked closely with Marcie Williams while he was provost at MSU and she executive assistant the president.

"The role of chancellor means many times I will be taken away from the University to play an external role," Scott said. "Marcie is the person who will an internal role as a collaborator and communicator, and that's what we need for the University's future."

Scott said the money for the new positions will come from the present University budget.

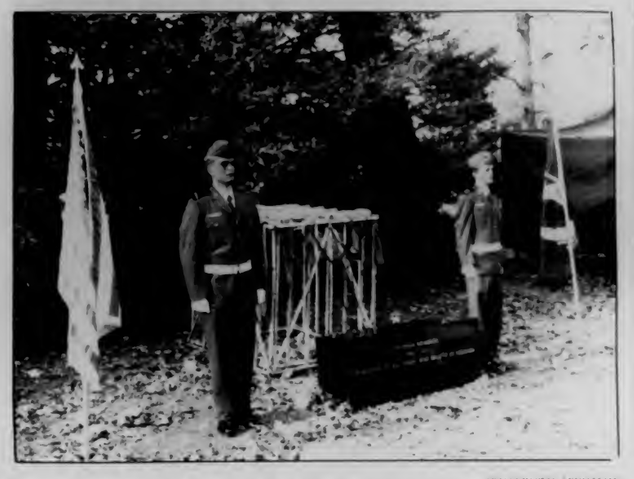
The two posts were not sudden, according to Scott, but he had discussed them with President Michael Hooker when he was recruited for the position of Chancellor.

"When new administrators are appointed it is quite common to bring key people with them," Scott said, "people they feel they can work with closely."

According to Scott, he has been negotiating this for a while. The Williams' have been to the campus on several visits, and Scott says negotiations have finally converged.

Hooker declared the hiring freeze in July which will continue until Dec. 31. According to Bill Wright, from the president's office, exemptions have been made for some positions.

As deputy chancellor, Williams' responsibilities include "developing and coordinating policy, planning and strategic planning for all campus operations; and serving as the principal liason for the chancellor with the president's office and the other four UMass campuses. Also as deputy chancellor, Williams will have direct responsibility for several offices within the chancellor's area as well as coordinate the budget of the chancellor's office."



"I have enormous admiration for Marcie's remarkable qualities as an administrator and a leader," Scott said.

In his new job Keith Williams will be "responsible for the design and implementation of programs that interpret the mission of the campus to internal and external audiences. He will also oversee the offices of community relations, special events, state relations, and public affairs which include publications, the alumni magazine, the campus newspaper and the press relations office."

Marcie Williams has reportedly served as executive assistant to the president at MSU and secretary of the school's Board of Trustees since 1992. Previously she was in the provost's area as a project coordinator and assistant to the provost for internal institutional advancement.

Veterans Day remembrances

Vietnam's POWs and MIAs still accounted for

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

ROTC cadets stand outside Memorial Hall as part of a 24-hour vigil commemorating Veterans Day.

By JAMES SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

For Eugene Trudeau, a veteran of World War II, nothing is planned on Veterans Day but time to remember.

"It's a silent commitment on my part to those in World War II who never came back," Trudeau said. "I served on the front lines and I remember."

Remembering those who never came back, was the theme of a 24 hour Vigil held at Memorial Hall.

From 11 a.m. Wednesday to 11 a.m. Thursday, members of the Army and Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps at the University of Massachusetts stood at attention beside the new Vietnam Memorial in rememberance of Prisoners of War (POWs) and soldiers not accounted for in past wars.

The highlight of the vigil was a speech by Air Force Lt. Col. Charles A. Brown Jr., a veteran of the Vietnam War who spent 101 days in the Hanoi Hilton and Zoo POW camps, and a fly-by of four A-10 attack aircraft.

Brown spoke of the events leading up to the shooting down of his B-52 bomber over Hanoi in December 1972, and his experiences as a POW.

"Hilton is not the right word," Brown said explaining that the prisoner camp was no hotel, "they treated us very rough, trying to get information."

On Wednesday afternoon, Gregory Scott, a Vietnam Veteran and POW-MIA activist, had a table set up outside Memorial Hall to distribute information on the current state of over 2,000 POWs and MIAs still unaccounted for in Vietnam. Scott hopes that by "educating" people on the issue, these same people will push the President and members of Congress to force the Vietnamese government to release information on the whereabouts of American soldiers unaccounted for.

"If I can get the word to one person who can tell two people," Scott said, "before you know it, everyone will know."

Scott said he was pleased with the amount of attention and support he received from students, saying that many people visited and talked with him during the day.

Brown said he was also pleased with the amount of support from the UMass community and in particular the cadets of the Army and Air Force ROTC.

"These cadets are doing a super job," Brown said, adding that the work which they did in organizing the vigil helps "get the word out."

Scott and Trudeau said they hoped that the vigil, and other events which focus on the plight of POWs and MIAs will make people realize that the "war" isn't over. Both men said that until each individual soldier is accounted for, the economic embargo against Vietnam should not be lifted.

However, there is much students can do to help bring the POWs and MIAs home, Scott and Trudeau said, even if it is just educating themselves on the issue and talking with friends.

"People will listen to the college students," Trudeau said, "their the next leaders."

Katch pleads guilty to conflict of interest charge

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

After two months of speculation, University of Massachusetts exercise science professor, Frank I. Katch, pled guilty to a conflict of interest charge at the Hampshire County Courthouse on Wednesday.

Katch was indicted before a grand jury on Sept. 14 as a result of a broad investigation on abusive spending within the Athletic Department on the campus. Prosecutors said their accusations stem from his role in helping to set up Body Shop Fitness Centers in 1988.

The panel said he encouraged a $168,000 purchase of exercise equipment from Hydra-Fitness Industries, a Texas based company, without any competitive bidding. While he was promoting this company's equipment on campus, Katch was being paid at least $200 a month as a technical consultant to Hydra-Fitness, and received reimbursements for attending meetings and trade shows.

According to state law, Katch should have submitted a written statement concerning his affiliation with the Texas company to the state Ethics Commission and former UMass Dean of Physical Education David Bishop, his boss at the time.

During a phone interview, Katch said no one ever told him he had to notify anyone about his consultation job in writing, even though he was very open about the position verbally.

"Had I known, I would have immediately complied," Katch said.

At Wednesday's hearing, Judge John Murphy placed Katch on two years probation, fined him $3,000 and ordered him to perform 500 hours of community service. Katch said he pleaded guilty because he did not want anymore publicity for him or his family and he just wants to do his job.

"I'm guilty, it was a technical violation of the law," Katch said. "I just wish I had known."

Katch has been a professor of exercise science at the University since 1977 and has authored dozens of scholarly articles and eight textbooks. He stepped down as chairman of the department in 1990.

A University spokesperson said Katch's "status at the University is under discussion."

Walter Kroll, head of the exercise science department, did not know of Katch's plea when contacted yesterday, but told the Collegian he was "sorry to hear that."

Jonathan Souwiene, Katch's attorney, said there are no allegations of any kickbacks or payoffs from Hydra-Fitness, a division of Hydra-Gym Athletics. He said this is just a technical charge which has been violated by other University employees, including high ranking administrators.

According to the state's conflict of interest law, state employees who are involved with a university purchase and are connected with the company that is selling the goods must give written notice to their particular boss and the state's Ethics Committee.

The Daily Hampshire Gazette contributed to this story.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-3500

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1392

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, November 12

Vigil — A transformation vigil to show support for women who have transformed from victims to survivors of sexual abuse, assault and/or harassment will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Skinner Green. The vigil is part of Victim/Survivor Awareness Week, sponsored by Mount Holyoke College Women Against Sexual Harassment.

Meeting — Muslim Students Association is holding Jumaa Salat on Friday, November 12 at 12:30 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Saturday, November 13

Observatory observing — Free observatory observing will begin at 9 p.m. at Amherst College Wilder Observatory, Snell Street, if skies are clear.

Sunday November 14

Solar observing — Free solar observing will begin at 1 p.m. if clear on the Amherst Town Common.

Memorial — A memorial mass for Todd Welsh will be offered Monday, November 15 at 5:15 in the Newman Center.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $140 $280
PARIS $209 $418
AMSTERDAM $195 $390
FRANKFURT $209 $418
TOKYO $769
Roundtrip
Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Extra/bypasses issued on the spot. Customs/Immigration & departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change w/notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

Sign up now for Winter Session
You won't regret it!
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼
Over 100 credit courses.
3 credits in just 3 weeks.
Affordable. What a deal!
Winter Session '94
January 3-24
Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653
▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

IT'S NOT LUCK! OUR PRICES ARE LOW EVERYDAY!!
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS
CATAMOUNT CHRISTMAS ALE $4.99 - DEP. 6 PK. BOTTLES
BUDWEISER REG.-LIGHT-DRY $12.49 - DEP. CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
NATURAL LIGHT $8.29 - DEP. CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS
LABATT'S ICE BEER NEW $4.99 - DEP. 6 PK. BOTTLES
COORS EXTRA GOLD $10.99 - DEP. CASE OF 24-12 OZ. BAR BOTTLES
INGLENOOK WINES $6.49 3.0LT
FRENCH COLUMBARD, CHENIN BLANC, RHINE, WHITE BARBERA, BURGUNDY, VIN ROSE, CHABLIS, BLUSH, WHITE GRENACHE
SUTTER HOME $6.49 1.5L
WHITE ZINFANDEL
KENDALL-JACKSON $6.99 750 ML
SAUVIGNON BLANC
GEORGE DUBOEUF $5.99 750 ML
BEAUJOLAIS-VILLAGES
FREIXENET $5.99 750 ML
CORDON NEGRO BRUT
GORDON'S VODKA $8.99 1.75L
SALE 10.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 AFTER REBATE
CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH $10.99 1.75L
SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 AFTER REBATE
CANADIAN CLUB $10.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE
SALE 15.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00
SOUTHERN COMFORT $11.99 1.75L
SALE 13.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 AFTER REBATE
CAPT. MORGAN SPICED RUM $11.99 1.75L
SALE 14.99 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE
not responsible for typographical errors
OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 11/11/93 THRU WEDS. 11/17/93
Full Redemption Center

Read all about it
Don't miss a beat. Be in the know. Collegian.

Northhampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

Local News

Grads rally to support contract improvements

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Employment Organization held a small rally outside Whitmore on Wednesday at noon to try to gain support in the battle with the UMASS administration over contract negotiations.

Karen Adkins, a graduate student working in the writing program, said GEO received a new contract from the University in 1991, which is subject to negotiations this month. She also said GEO wants to improve on the old contract.

Graduate employees make up 50 percent of the teaching labor on this campus," Adkins said. "We want a better contract which includes more job security."

The main area that GEO is fighting for improvement in is working conditions, according to James Henninger, president of the United Auto Workers, local 2322, GEO's parent union. He also said the factors involved are a raise in employee salaries, a better health care plan, an increase in diversity, and protection against sexual harassment and discrimination on the job.

Adkins said negotiations have moved slowly and the university administration has made few concessions. She said their main concern is the school's budget.

"It is frustrating because we are asking for things that will really improve the lives of people who make less than $10,000 a year," Adkins said. "These employees provide a lot of the research for the university. They say we have no money. But they do have money, just not for the people on the bottom."

Adkins was referring to the recent hiring of Marcellette Williams and her husband Keith Williams to positions in the university in the midst of a hiring freeze. Marcellette Williams will assume the job of deputy chancellor next semester and will reportedly be earning $110,000 a year.

Her husband received the newly created job of associate vice chancellor of University Advancement. He will reportedly be making $75,000.

MATT KAPIN / COLLEGIAN
Members of GEO rally outside of Whitmore on Wednesday.

"The university claims that there is a budget crisis, yet today Chancellor Scott announced he was bringing in two employees from Michigan State to work here," said Wendy Mataya co-speaker of GEO and graduate employee.

Another point the GEO representatives made was about the president of the five UMASS campuses, Michael Hooker.

"Hooker makes approximately $175,000 a year and received a free condo in Cambridge when he took the job," said Adkins. "He is the highest paid state official in Massachusetts."

GEO members said they want the administration to give the graduate students a fair contract. They said their primary concern is raising employee salaries. The administration says do not have the money for raises yet they hire new administration at six figure salaries.

GEO has a meeting on Monday in the Student Union Ballroom. They said they are going to decide whether to ratify the new contract.

Promoting AIDS awareness

Boston's Hynes Center to host benefit dance-a-thon

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts is ranked the 10th highest for the number of AIDS cases in the country, according to the AIDS Action Committee of Massachusetts, Inc. In Boston alone, over 1,500 people have died from AIDS and over 2,800 have been diagnosed with the disease.

Yet students from all over New England are going to make a bad situation look brighter by dancing.

The AIDS Action Committee is sponsoring a dance-a-thon on Nov. 6 at the Hynes Convention Center in Boston's Back Bay.

Students will be coming from the Boston area, but also as far as Providence, R.I. to Castleton, Vt., according to Greg Brown, outreach coordinator for the AIDS Action Committee.

"It's a dance-a-thon, not a dance marathon," Brown said. "You don't have to dance straight through the four hours."

There will be four dance floors playing a variety of music, ranging from ballroom dancing to hip hop music and a live D.J. Brown said lessons will be provided for various dance steps.

In order to participate, students must raise at least $50 and have the money when they register, according to Brown.

All the money will benefit the AIDS Action Committee, a service organization for people with AIDS in eastern Massachusetts.

Among the services provided, Brown said the committee brings people to the doctor, picks up medication, lobbies legislatures at all levels, finds people housing and distributes condoms.

There is also a buddy program where someone "stays with you until the end to do things for you or just to hold your hand when you are scared," said Brown.

Last year, $350,000 was raised by 2,500 people. This year Brown is hoping for $400,000 and expects 3,000 people to participate.

"The support from the college community has been phenomenal," he said. Last year Brandeis University raised over $5,000 with 60 dancers.

High schools do participate as well. Last year, Newton North High School raised the most money of any other organization.

All the UMass campuses, with the exception of Amherst and Dartmouth, are participating.

Turn to AIDS, page 10

Elvis qualifies for sainthood

By DAVE LAFONTANA
Collegian Correspondent

What do Jesus, Saint Simonen, pilgrimages to the Holy Land and Elvis have in common? More than you think.

Gary Vikan, the assistant director of the Walters Art Gallery in Baltimore, gave a lecture at Mount Holyoke College last night comparing the Elvis phenomenon to people's reaction to saints and religion.

His lecture, entitled "Saint Elvis," showed how Elvis Presley is considered by many to be somewhat of a religious experience.

Vikan said saints have followers, during their life and after their death who want to keep relics of the saint. He said they pilgrimage to where the saint died, and that ground is considered holy ground.

Elvis had millions of fans, his estate makes a fortune on merchandise and 800,000 people come to Graceland every year. According to Vikan, many of the people who travel there are more pilgrims than tourists.

"To qualify as a pilgrimage, one needs a place to go, a well as points of intersection between the sacred and material," Vikan said.

To show an example, Vikan told of Saint Simonen, an early Christian who had powers of healing and could tell the future. When he died on July 29, 459, the army had to take his body away for fear of his followers ripping it apart for relics.

A church was built at the site where he died, and every July 29th, many still pilgrimage there.

Elvis died on August 16, 1977, and in very much the same way, thousands hold a candlelight vigil outside Graceland, according to Vikan.

Outside the estate is a wall that fans are encouraged to write on. Quotes, like "Elvis is Lord" and "Elvis Lives" with a crucifix underneath, have to be sand-blasted off about once a year to make room for more inscriptions.

Brochures handed out at Graceland tell of how Elvis had to take amphetamines to play all the gigs he was wanted at, then needed downers to relax afterwards. In other words, he did it for us, "he suffered for us."

According to Vikan, dirt from the grounds is sold and when Jerry Lee Lewis drunkenly smashed into the Melody Gate, (one of many times, apparently) people kept parts as souvenirs.

Local store gives support to area center

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Members of the community were given a chance this week to donate clothing for men, women and children to the J. Rich stores. In return, they were able to receive 20 percent off of anything in the store.

November 7th-12th, J. Rich clothing stores for men held a holiday sale supporting both the Northampton and Amherst Survival Centers.

Both of the survival centers supply items such as clothing, household materials and food. They are offered to individuals or families who request any of these services.

"People make donations through us to the survival centers during this week. If you come in with a shirt that you don't want, you could trade it in to us and receive 20 percent off something in our store. This system has worked great in receiving donations," said Joseph Rich, the store's owner.

Edwina Askew, Volunteer Coordinator of the Amherst Survival Center, said they are extremely grateful for the help of J. Rich in receiving donations.

"This year, more than ever, the Survival Centers need all the community support we can give them," Rich said in a recent press release.

"We are starting to distribute clothing again because we have recently been renovating the center and we are in need of warm clothing to distribute," Askew said.

This is the fourth year J. Rich clothing for men has run this sale. They were one of the first stores around the area to participate in giving donations to the survival centers.

"Several years ago J. Rich came to us with this idea. We appreciate a great deal what they have done. They have always given us clothes of good quality and in good condition," Askew said.

"We first got the idea from a store in New York City, and by the time we tried to get involved it was too late. So we decided to try it here," Rich said.

turn to CLOTHES, page 10

"Back in my day, we used to wait in line for hours starting at 3 in the morning just to get one class during add/drop. We didn't have 'telephone add/drop!' Back in my day, we didn't even have phones..."

the COLLEGIAN

Oh, the stories we could tell.
Join us.
115 Campus Center
545-3500

THE DOVE'S NEST
Rt. 116 Sunderland • 665-7969
Open Mon-Sat 6am - 3pm
Sunday 7am - 3pm
THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL
2 Pancakes, 2 Eggs
& 2 Bacon or Sausage
for $2.15

Judie's
"Oh, I shouldn't...I'll have Banana Chocolate Chip Cake with Espresso Chocolate Mint Ice Cream and extra Whipped Cream...and a 'Sweet and Low', please..."
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S!"
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

CopyCat
PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840
RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles
•Bulk Rate Copies...
OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay

IRONICALLY, THE TIME TO START SAVING FOR RETIREMENT IS WHEN IT LOOKS LIKE YOU CAN LEAST AFFORD IT.

Can't afford to save for retirement? The truth is, you can't afford not to. Not when you realize that your retirement can last 20 to 30 years or more. You'll want to live at least as comfortably then as you do now. And that takes planning.

By starting to save now, you can take advantage of tax-deferral and give your money time to compound and grow. Consider this: set aside just $100 each month beginning at age 30 and you can accumulate over $154,031* by the time you reach age 65. But wait ten years and you'll have to budget $211 each month to reach the same goal.

Even if you're not counting the years to retirement, you can count on TIAA-CREF to help you build the future you deserve—with flexible retirement and tax-deferred annuity plans, a diverse portfolio of investment choices, and a record of personal service that spans 75 years.

Over a million people in education and research put TIAA-CREF at the top of their list for retirement planning. Why not join them?

Call today and learn how simple it is to build a secure tomorrow when you have time and TIAA-CREF working on your side.

Start planning your future. Call our Enrollment Hotline 1 800 842-2888.

TIAA-CREF
75 years of ensuring the future for those who shape it.™

*Assuming an interest rate of 6.50% credited to TIAA Retirement Annuities. This rate is used solely to show the power and effect of compounding. Lower or higher rates would produce very different results. CREF certificates are distributed by TIAA-CREF Individual and Institutional Services.

© 1993 Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
The SMITH Ada Comstock Scholars present a Benefit for our Renovation Fund
TONIGHT and SATURDAY at 9:45
(ticks. from 8:30) CELEBRATE
"CHARMINGLY ECCENTRIC."
"HILARIOUSLY FUNNY!" - Lance Loud, DETAILS
★★★★★ DELIGHTFUL! - Jami Bernard, NEW YORK POST
STRICTLY BALLROOM
The movie that has the whole world dancing!
YES! COMING BACK - Sun. thru Thurs.
Nov. 14 to 18 CURTAIN DAILY 9:35
The Ultimate Party Movie, Socially Irresponsible And Totally Irresistible." Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE
Dazed and Confused
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a psuedonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, it's staff or the Editorial staff.

Heading to face the music

Isn't it always fun to open up the closet which houses all of your skeletons? That's what I will have done early Thursday morning when I drive through the city of Buffalo, New York.

I interned there this summer, and suffice it to say I had a lot of fun times and a lot of not-so-fun times. I made a couple of friends and I know of a few people who never want to see me again. And although I had a good experience, I made a pledge never to set foot in the city again.

Mike
MORRISSEY

Well, here it Is not even four months since I left, and I'm going to stop (I'm writing this before I get there) for drinks in the city on my way to South Bend, Indiana. A few of my friends have packed up to see the Notre Dame — Florida State game, but that's another story I'm sure you'll hear about soon enough.

Many people who spend their last summer before graduation have regrets on what they wish happened. I can't really say I'm any different. I wish I didn't have to work 18-hour days. I wish I didn't miss Independence Day because I was working all day. Then I wish I didn't spend the rest of the holiday in Canada.

What's done is done, and should be forgotten, but going back to the location where so much was accomplished in so little time forces me to remember. I can't help but remember how rude the people who put my friends and I up for two months were to us, and how they made us scrub their bathroom.

I can't forget how we got them back by giving them a cheap bottle of white wine aged since 1991. They were wine connoisseurs.

I can't forget how on the last night in Buffalo I walked from the city to the suburbs — a cool nine miles — because my date walked out of a bar on me. It only took me until sunrise to get home.

And I certainly can't forget hanging out with my friend Sean at work and having one of our Swiss counterparts shouting, "Oh Chawn, I neeed you! Can you come here and type something in for me?" Yeah, well I guess you had to be there.

It's not like I feel apprehensive about returning; actually, I want to confront my memories head on and put them to rest for good. But can that really be done?

There's no doubt the Buffalo excursion is going to kick off a banner weekend, but there's still this fear of facing my past. Maybe I have a fear my boss will grab me, pull me into an alley and force me to work 14 hours straight like I did over the summer.

What was it that bothered me about the city? Was it the fact that I got a glimpse of what the real world is all about?

I think that may be it. Having to go back to my old haunts, even if it's just for a few hours, will remind me that the business world looms right on the horizon. I'm a college student right now, and I don't really want to be told that in a few months, I'll be wearing shirts and ties instead of jeans and tee-shirts.

At this point, I don't want to remember all of the negatives of the summer and my life. I just want to cruise down the pike remembering the good times. Unfortunately, that just ain't gonna happen.

Stopping at Buffalo is something that has to be done, one of the many things in my life I don't want to do but have to. I know it will be a good time, but there's always that cloud of doom and regret lurking in the background. I just hope it didn't rain on me in the early Thursday morning.

Mike Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

Hoping for a little more accuracy

As the author of the two Dia de los Muertos articles [Collegian, Nov.2], I am outraged that multi-cultural affairs knew nothing of Dia de los Muertos before I brought in my articles, yet totally misconstrued the meaning and grammar of my work which reflects on this folkloric tradition.

First, why did you take a perfectly spelled word, altar, and replace it each time with an out-of-context word, "alter?" You butchered both my articles with this misusage. Might I suggest a dictionary next time?

Secondly, my original title, "Remembering the Altars" was very deliberate and if you had taken the time to "read" my article, you would have known that during my narration of my personal experience of viewing the altars, I didn't actually know the people presented in the altars; I wanted to, but I wouldn't have the pleasure of knowing them. Your title, "Remembering the past Faces," incorrectly implies that these were faces once personally known to me — WRONG! So you see, you have misconstrued a very important idea.

I hope in the future, your journalism is met with accuracy and precision, for what you print with my name holds me accountable for what inevitably is printed. Therefore, how can I expect my colleagues and friends to view my work, and to take me seriously as a writer and a student of learning?

Barbara Reyes
Hampshire College

Bulletin misdefines love

Rumor had it the REAP office on the 5th floor of JQA had some great bulletin board kits. I decided to give it a try.

The alcohol information was wonderful — fact filled and eye catching. Good job!

Initially, the relationship violence material seemed equally as well done. Until the last last poster — a large piece of white paper entitled "Love is.../Love isn't..."

I assumed the "Love is..." section would list some redeeming traits to look for in a relationship. The list read "Love is ... Responsibility, Hard Work, Pleasure, Commitment, Caring, Honesty, Sex..."

Stop the press. Since when did love become sex?

Diana
D'AVANZO

If love is sex then does a man attacking and violently raping a woman constitute love? Does someone coming on to you after they have had one too many constitute love? Does date rape constitute love? Does sexual harassment constitute love? Does a man saying, "But if you loved me you'd have sex with me..." constitute love?

Not to mention the young, hurting college woman who finds herself in a violent relationship. Imagine a woman reading this information, in hopes of finding a way out and making sense of what is going on, only to discover that her situation is not harmful because, even if it is not everything else, it is sex — and love is sex, right?

As if this were not enough, the "Love isn't..." section offers just as much confusion. The list reads "Love isn't... Jealousy, Possessiveness, Pain, Violence, Sex..."

Hold on a second. Love is and is not sex? Does this message offer any help to a victim of relationship violence? Doesn't this add to the confusion and helplessness? Though the words surrounding "sex" may be different, the author is still telling us that love is, and is not, sex. There is something seriously wrong here.

Is love sex? I expect to hear this type of nonsense on T.V. I do not expect to read it in an informational package put out by a university service. Call me silly, but I feel more consideration could have been put into action.

After much conversation with floormates, we finally decided that the poster was probably trying to say that, depending on the context, sex may or may not be associated with love. (It took us a while to figure this out and not one of us is currently involved in an abusive relationship. Consider what this piece would do to a woman who is.)

So what is the proper context and is the hurting victim aware of it? Allow me to clarify.

The bad news is, when sex is not in the proper context it is destructive and someone is scarred in some way — emotionally, physically, spiritually and/or psychologically.

The good news is twofold. First, sex, in the proper context, is a physical, emotional and spiritual bond meant to be a wonderful, lasting union between two people who love each other in the first place. Sex, in the proper context, is something God ordained, looks favorably upon and blesses. The proper context is marriage.

Second, is a little bit of information that this university will not offer. It has to do with someone who can help you recover from relationship violence. His name is God.

Not only is God forgiving, he is also a great physician, in every way. Though people may harm you and let you down, God will not. God will heal your wounds and accept you and really love you NO MATTER WHAT.

The conclusion? Love is not sex. Rather, "Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails" (I Cor 13).

Diana D'Avanzo is a Collegian columnist.

Construction in campus core: the 'real' story behind the mess

The Collegian recently printed a column written by Adam Goulston titled "New, Improved UMass" [Collegian, Nov. 2]. It referred to the construction currently being executed in front of the Campus Center.

Mr. Goulston has claimed an effort that could have taken a "baby step" towards improving the campus is going to leave behind "another plot (and a pretty substantial one) of faceless, flattened land with a few miserable attempts at arbor."

The Department of Planning and Facilities Development would like to take this opportunity to share with the readers the facts regarding the Hasbrouck Landscaping Project.

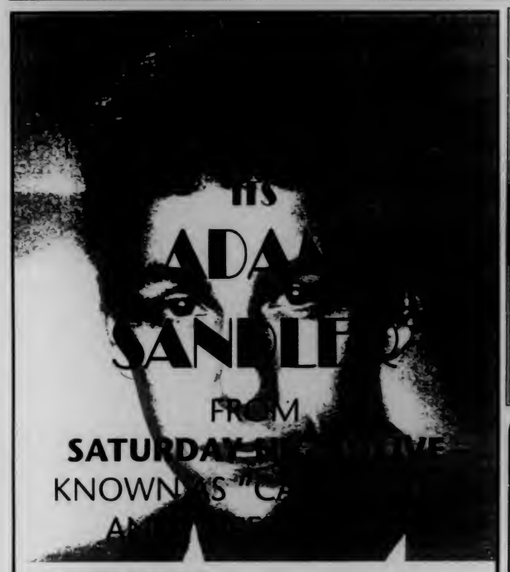
The planning phase for this project commenced in October 92, when the Physical Plant decided to construct a new steam trench from the area near Goessmann Annex to North Pleasant Street. From that point, until construction started in May 93, the project went through many changes.

The scope of work was increased to include the area in front of the Campus Center and the south side of Hasbrouck with the intention of creating a new landscaped area that was representative of the visual and aesthetic appeal appropriate in the core of the campus. BSC Group, a firm of landscape architects, was hired to design these landscape improvements.

Over the summer the steam trench was completed. The pathways are presently being done but it will be the spring of next year before the project is complete. The size of the construction area did not allow us a tighter schedule.

Upon completion, the area will have new walkways which have been designed based on where people walk. It will have new lighting which will conserve energy while providing a greater amount of light than the present fixtures. More than 100 new trees will be planted.

The area in front of the Campus Center will have a granite seat wall where people can sit. The east entry into the building will be fully accessible and there will be mechanisms in place that will restrict all vehicular traffic within that area and create a "pedestrian zone."



The Hasbrouck Project has always had a number of goals which we wanted to accomplish. The underlying factor behind all these goals has been increased student and campus community satisfaction with their physical surroundings. Construction within the campus core is not easy.

Most people we have spoken to in the past have expressed a positive opinion about the project because they have been able to focus on the finished product.

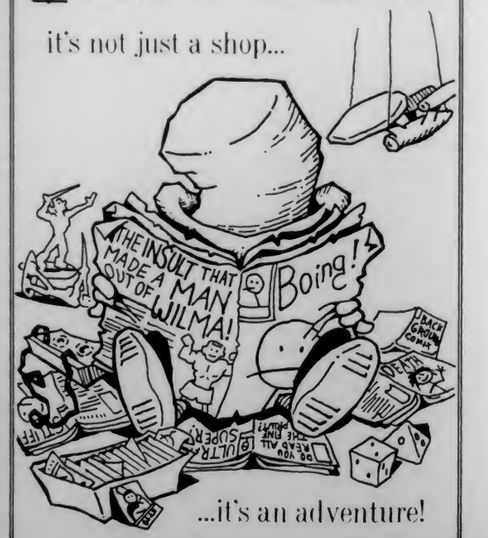
The column by Mr. Goulston was premature since the project is not yet complete. We appreciate the campus community's patience in having to deal with inconveniences due to construction.

We encourage the campus community to approach us with questions related to construction projects on campus.

Niraj Dangoria
Project Manager,
Planning and Facilities Development

SMITH COLLEGE
JOHN M. GREEN HALL
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14
AT 8:00 PM
DOORS OPEN AT 7:30 PM

$9.00 WITH SMITH ID
(2 PER ID)
$10.50 OFF CAMPUS



TICKETS ON SALE
NOVEMBER 8
FROM 10:00 TO 4:00
AT SMITH COLLEGE MAIL ROOM
TICKETS ON SALE AT THE DOOR

SPONSORED BY REC. COUNCIL

1st ANNUAL
Career Fair
Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors
ALL MAJORS WELCOME
100 COMPANIES INVITED
Co-op, Internships, Entry Level Jobs
Undergraduate Research Projects Available
DATE: Wednesday, Noverber 17, 1993
TIME: 9:00am - 5:00pm
LOCATION: The Campus Center Auditorium
•For more info call Julius Randall or Alba Brown at 545-2030•

BE AN R.A.
HELP SHAPE YOUR
PIECE OF THE WORLD
Applications for Spring 1994 RESIDENT ASSISTANT Positions Now Being Accepted.
Applications Available in Cluster Offices
DUE NOVEMBER 22, 1993

SEVEN O'S
LIVE COUNTRY MUSIC
EVERY WEDNESDAY
LIVE MUSIC BY
The Snowman & JUD
EVERY THURSDAY
KARAOKE
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Live Bands & Dancing
EVERY SUNDAY
OPEN MIC
Next to Cinnside • Minutes from U-MASS
Never a Cover
M-F 3PM to 1AM • Sat & Sun Noon to 1AM
Rt. 116 • Sunderland
665-8788

SHOWCASE
COMICS • GAMES • CARDS
AMHERST
Phone 253-2000
48 North Pleasant Street
Downtown
under D'Angelos Subs
HADLEY
Phone 586-8711
Hampshire Mall
Route 9
next to movie theatre
it's not just a shop...

...it's an adventure!

Arts & Living

Fearless tops the chart

Weir earns this week's highest grade

By JON LUPO
& EDWARD W. HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Fearless — Peter's Weir's profoundly affecting emotional drama will get under your skin if it doesn't indeed penetrate your soul. Weir has crafted an eerie tale of love, death and the tangled concept of fate; a film totally devoid of drippy sentiment and empty soliloquies on the "human spirit" and the like.

A plane crashes in a California corn field. Max (Jeff Bridges, in a Oscar-worthy performance) emerges from the smoky corn stalks carrying a baby and holding the hand of a frightened little boy. An emergency worker asks if he was in the crash. "No," he replies as he leaves the scene, rents a car and drives for four days until he eventually flies (on the same airline) back to his worried wife (Isabella Rosselinni) and child.

For Max, the crash was a test of his fears. He believes that since he's looked in the face of death and was not afraid he's invicible; a ghost who has already died. The airline psychiatrist (John Tutturro) pairs him with Carla (Rosie Perez), a young woman who lost her baby in the disaster. Carla, a devout Catholic, is loaded with guilt over the incident and questions her belief in God. They attempt to "save" each other as Max slips slowly away from his family.

Bridges' subtly engrossing performance is the key here, as he overcomes some predictable family entanglements in the plot. Bridges aptly expresses his character's transcendent awareness and sense of freedom. Rosie Perez, in her first dramatic role, is fine, although her vehemently nasal voice detracts from some of the more wrenching emotional scenes. Isabella Rossellini does a wonderful impersonation of her mother Ingrid Bergman, as it is the most this underwritten role will allow her to do.

Though the film falters slightly in some scenes, Fearless is the stuff of good drama, going beyond the obvious, exploring something deeper, trickier and ultimately more moving. B+ (Amherst Cinema) — J.L.

Robocop 3 — This is that kind of action movie that views like a bad nightmare. You keep slapping yourself saying "This is intentional parody." Alas it is not. It is a film that takes itself too seriously and thinks that it's running revolutionary ground.

Once again, Big Business rules the cops in Old Detroit. But there are big shakeups at Omni Consumer Products (OCP). A Japanese firm is now the mother company and they are not happy with poor profits, so they order the dilapidated neighborhoods surrounding OCP raised to lay ground for an urban Eden, Delta City.

But Robocop is on line with past memories and emotions forever bursting in his titanium skull. When city tenants are forced into the streets to make way for construction, Robocop, a.k.a. Officer Murphy (Robert Burke), takes up with a rag-tag group of resistance fighters to bring "the fight to the people." In his way stands two samurai cyborgs and the malicious Urban Rehabilitation Commander, McDaggert (John Castle).

Brit actor Castle is the only player in the cast who notices the absurdity of the plot so he plays his role to sleazy perfection. He manages a performance recalling Sir Anthony Hopkins' elegance mixed with wiseguy Bruce Willis, serving up tongue-in-cheek menace. As for Burke, his cheek and jaw are about all that's displayed on screen and his line-delivery is robotic and stiff (though I suppose that is a good excuse.)

Amid the explosions and shattered pains of glass, Robocop 3 fails where its predecessors marginally succeeded. The original Robocop was a nihilistic piece of pop-culture trash that skewed the late eighties "greed decade." Forget the sociopath Boddicker, Big Business was the real villain and the corporate circling by suit-clad sharks was just as menacing as the urban jungle beyond the boardroom confines. D+ (Hamphire Six) — E.H.

Look Who's Talking Now — Mikey and Julie are grown up, so now we get talking dogs rather than babies. The plot is pure sitcom. With mom Kirstie Alley

Turn to FEARLESS, page 8

Happy valley music scene lacks consistent source

There's a problem in our Happy Valley and it involves music. How is this area (which could be an even more thriving music zone) ever supposed to garner the support of the student body without a consistent source of good new music?

When I transferred here from UMass Dartmouth, the butt-ugliest, most boring school in the Eastern hemisphere, I was shocked to learn that there's less interest in music here than down in Dartmouth. "Are you kidding me?" I'd say to myself again and again.

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY
Compiled by Brian Babineau & Adam Goulston

It's not that the stations around here are bad, WMUA has some great shows, I just don't have the time to figure out when the music's good and when it's a polka-fest.

WAMH has consistently good programs (with the exceptions of that wretched afternoon hip-hop barrage,) but no one even knows they're there.

Any good music scene needs a good station to rally around. Providence has a tremendous scene with three good clubs hosting great shows. WBRU is cheesy but at least it gives the students a common source. A common source is what our valley lacks...

With all the rock journalists going out of their way trying to discover the next big thing, I'd like to throw my couple of cents in. Swervedriver's latest album Mezcal Head is easily a winner. It's received some MTV support & airplay and with the right buzz, this band can go places. The tunes are catchy with a rough edge and smooth vocals. It's kind of like The Posies with balls...

Not to give this band too much more press, but kudos to Pearl Jam for not releasing a video or a single along with their new album. Makes you remember that there were days when music meant more than Billboard charts (Or at least wonder what they were like)...

Want to share a scary thought? Look at your CD collection and figure out exactly how many of them you bought after hearing them on the radio, and how many you bought after seeing them on MTV. The music station has dominated our youth culture for years, and has gained a head of steam lately, virtually spearheading the alternative-to-mainstream movement, and not only telling us what to listen to, but how to dress, how to act, etc...Video killed the radio star indeed...

I was looking at one of those Columbia CD and Tape Club forms recently, and I noticed, lumped under the headline "Grunge," and sandwiched between Screaming Trees and Mudhoney was Neil Young. I couldn't help but think this was an insult to the ageless, feedback loving mongrel...

This week's John Hughes

Turn to HAPPY, page 8

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE
All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
Miller Lite ..... $13.99 16 oz cans suitcase
Sam Adams Ale, Lager, Octoberfest $4.99 6pk
Busch, Busch Light ..... $10.99 suitcase cans
Lowenbrau ..... $7.99 12pk bottles
Fosters Lager ..... $4.69 6pk bottles
Just Arrived "Winter" Brews From
Catamount, Sierra Nevada, Harpoon, Gearys, Petes, Sam Smith, Sam Adams, and More!
Poland Spring Vodka ..... $9.99 1.75 liter
Gordons Pepper Vodka ..... $5.99 1 liter
Martell V.S. Fine Cognac ..... $18.99 750 ml
Glen Livet 12 yr old single malt .... $21.99 750 ml
Southern Comfort ..... $8.99 750 ml
Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
Open 9 am - 11 pm
RTE 9E 338 College Street/253-5384
One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

TICKETS:
CONCERT • SPORTING EVENTS • THEATRE
RICHARD'S ARMY & NAVY

Winter Sock Sale!!
Wigwam Wool, Cotton, Acrylic Socks 4.99!!
(Slight Irregulars)
EVERYTHING BUT THE DOG!
Next to the Iron Horse
Center St.
Northampton
586-0275

Bookbags

In nylon, canvas & high-quality synthetics.
From $11.95-$39.95
Basic DUDS at Faces
northampton • main st. • 7 days

Pearl Street Northampton

DANCE CLUB

▼ Wednesday ▲
GAY NIGHT MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
11/24-Win a Thanksgiving Dinner for Four from Bread & Circus in Hadley

• Thursday-WHMP •
EIGHTEEN & OVER DANCING
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
WHMP's Nick Dapper broadcasting Live
Free Pizza Courtesy of Nini's

• Friday •
DANCING WITH DJ PETE D.
Playing More Top 40 Music
Look for Jammin' DJ's from Area College Radio Stations
11/12 - DJ Woody from WSCB
Listen To WHMP In The Morning For Your Chance To Win An Office Party

• Saturday •
DANCE PARTY
with DJ Pete D.
Playing more Top 40 Music
Every Saturday at 8:00pm
THE DATING GAME
Presented by Introductions Dating Service and WHMP

• Sunday •
11/21-Area Mall Employee's Networking Party
12/5-Country/Western Dancing
November Drink Specials
12oz. Budweiser Draft $1.00
Coors Light $2.00
Jose Cuervo Gold $2.00

LIVE MUSIC

Fri. Nov 12-8:00pm/WRSI
GRAHAM PARKER
w/La Bamba & The Hubcaps
Ray Mason Band

Sat. Nov 13-8:30pm
THE OUTLAWS
The Wiskey River Band

Mon. Nov 15-9:00pm/18+
CRACKER
Flop

Tues. Nov 16-8:15pm/18+
X
from Boston TRIBE
Green Apple Quick Step

Thurs. Nov 18-8:00pm/18+
Western Mass Battle of the Bands
SLOWPOKE/VEIN CAGE/ROCK GODS FROM CHICOPEE/SKUNK JUICE/THE ORPHANS/S.M.A.

Fri. Nov 19-7:00pm/WRSI
Celebrating their 20th Anniversary
LOS LOBOS

Sat. Nov 20-9:00pm
WHO'S KIDDIN' WHO

Tues. Nov 23-8:00pm/16+
Tuesday Night Rock Series
SAM BLACK CHURCH
Doom Nation/Drawback

Fri. Nov 26-9:00pm
THE SIGHS

Sat. Nov. 27-9:00pm
THE EQUALITES

Tues. Nov 30-8:00pm/16+
PAW

Thur. Dec 2-9:00pm/18+
CHUCKLEHEAD

Sat., Dec 4-7:00pm/WRSI
WRSI Holiday Party
SQUEEZE

Fri., Dec 10-7:00pm
From J. Geils Band
PETER WOLF

Sat., Dec 11-8:00pm/WRSI
BAD BRAINS

Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office: 586-8686. For The Record in Amherst
10 Pearl Street Northampton
584-7771

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS

WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or age restriction.

Council Travel

79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

Nirvana has blast

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

Nirvana blasted through the Springfield Civic Center Wednesday night with an intensity that left the crowd shellshocked by the end of the night.

Playing songs from all four of their albums, Nirvana leaned heavily on In Utero and Nevermind, playing almost everything off both. "Sliver" was the only song played off Incesticide, and "School" and "Love Buzz" were played off Bleach.

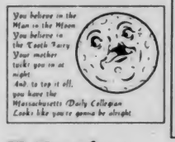
The stage was a combination of the "Heart Shaped Box" video and a light show screen in the back. Some of the highlights to the show were the brutal punk song "Territorial Pissings," the dark, somber "Polly" and anti-anthem "Rape Me." Other interesting moments were when Kurt Cobain threatened to leave for an hour while his guitar played feedback if one more person threw a coin up on stage. Also noteworthy was when Chris Novoselic joked around by trying to hang himself with a strap that someone threw on stage.

The crowd was up for the show. The front half of the floor was one giant mosh pit that had more people riding the crowd than I've ever seen before. Throw in a couple of stage divers and you've got the anarchy needed for a rock show. It was cathartic experience for everyone on the floor.

COURTESY SPIN MAGAZINE
Nirvana

■ happy

continued from page 7



Generation, '80s revival update...last weekend at separate parties, the songs that got the hugest crowd response of any played were Tony Basil's "Hey Mickey," and "Come On Eileen" by Dexy's Midnight Runners. And in case anybody hasn't noticed, Ice Cube's hit "Check Yo Self" sounds more than a bit like the early rap classic, "The Message" by Grandmaster Flash. So get out your pastel sportjacket, rewind your Miami Vice video and re-embrace your adolescence...

Upcoming stuff...

•Pearl Street - Tonight it's ageless Graham Parker. He's recorded a dozen records of some of the best rock of our day. Don't forget about the ongoing Battle of the Bands. This Thursday it features seven local bands of the louder sort.

Cheniille

Women's Clothing & Accessories
Amherst 413 253 2563 | Brattleboro 802 254 4421 | Williamstown 413 458 9858

■ Fearless

continued from page 7

out of work and the holidays approaching, dad John Travolta freelances as a corporate pilot for his lecherous boss (Lysette Anthony). A Merry Christmas seems dashed unless pets Rocks and Daphne (as voiced by Danny Devito and Diane Keaton) can come to the rescue.

With a script that's out of laughs and a once-inspired premise out of air, what's needed is a St. Bernard (please no celebrity voices) to brave these desolate peaks of "entertainment" and put this franchise out of its misery. C- (Hampshire Six) — E.H.

Potential
Six-Figure Income

OLDE Discount is looking for energetic people to start a career in the brokerage business. Requirements include:

College Degree
General Market Knowledge, and
Excellent Communication Skills

OLDE offers:

6 to 12 Month Extensive Training Program
Competitive Salary and Commission Structure Relocation Possibilities

Call Jay Berube for more information:
1 800 937-0606

OLDE
America's Full Service Discount Broker℠
Member NYSE & SIPC

Get Acquainted Special
$12.99 Reg. price $25.17
OIL & FILTER SERVICE SPECIAL*

HONDAS and 4CYL. ACURAS only

HONDA SureThing PARTS & SERVICE

*Offer good with this ad only. Expires 11-30-93

171 King Street Northampton 586-8626
HONDA

COUPON

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT

Open 7 Days a week
20 % OFF MEALS FRI.
AND SAT. EVENING WITH COMEDY SHOW with this ad
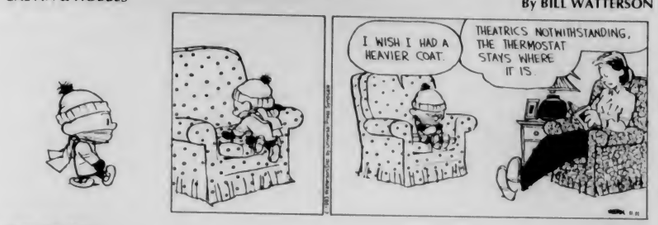
586-1202
VISA FREE PARKING

Comedy Shows
Friday and Saturday
at 8:30pm with dinner

Monday -Thursday
Dinner Buffet $5.99
Sunday Brunch $6.99



北京園
ON RT. 9 HADLEY
MASTER CARD

BIKE SWAP
SUNDAY NOVEMBER 14th 9am-4pm
at DOUGLAS AUCTIONEERS, RT.5 S. DEERFIELD
HUNDREDS OF USED MOUNTAIN BIKES, PARTS, CLOTHING & MORE. ROAD BIKE STUFF, BIKE SHOP CLOSEOUTS, MANUFACTURERS OVERSTOCK, AND MORE.
DOOR PRIZES, VIDEOS & REFRESHMENTS!!!
$3 ADMISSION, SELLING SPACE $5 FOR INDIVIDUALS, $10 FOR BUSINESSES
CALL JD AT 413-665-2877 FOR MORE INFORMATION OR SPACE RESERVATION
RECYCLE THAT USED CYCLE STUFF

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

GLEESON By DAVE

MUELLER By P.S. MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"In my sex fantasy, nobody ever loves me for my mind."

– Nora Ephron

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Treat others as you would like to be treated in the same circumstances. Too much daydreaming could allow the competition to pass you by. Give romance a second chance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your interest in current events helps you uncover valuable inside information. A languishing love relationship could catch fire again. Buy some sports apparel and gear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An excellent day for making important new contacts. Follow your hunches when handling private affairs, but stick to logic in business. Diplomacy helps you ward off hostile remarks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Intellectual ties become stronger now. You form an important friendship. Those seeking new work for next fall had better get busy! Honing your skills will increase your earning potential.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Pay more attention to a co-worker's suggestions; they could save you time and money. To improve your mind, enroll in a special course. It may be time to change your whole strategy in romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Certain restrictions are lifted now. You are finally able to take off in a new direction. Do not try to move too quickly. Romance must develop at its own sweet pace.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A financial disagreement could cause a rift. Work away from the public eye but keep in touch with someone who can provide valuable information. The pieces of a romantic puzzle fall into place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who are nearing graduation should not worry too much about the future. Do your best and you will find the opportunities you seek. A financial situation improves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be careful not to pull all of your eggs into one basket when making financial investments. A so-called "sure thing" is actually pretty risky.

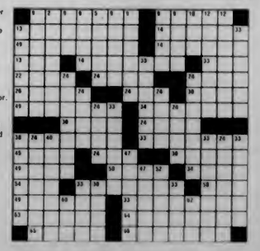
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Careful planning and attention to detail will make a public event a huge success. Think big today! Ask for a large financial donation from a corporation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Arguments can be averted if you move swiftly to separate potential antagonists. Your patience will not go unrewarded. Doing a favor for someone who is shy will help break the ice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An agreement is strengthened by news received from those at a distance. Legal documents are found. An inspired idea receives strong support from your friends.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 "Arabian Nights" woodcutter
8 Venetian magistrates, once
13 More heavily studded with heavenly twinklers
14 Punish
16 Inconstant
17 Abase
18 Rubber tree
19 Explosive force
21 Mme., in the USA
22 Gave out
24 Gainsay
25 Greg Louganis specialty
26 Biological subdivision
28 Work unit
30 Virginia willow
31 Writer Caldwell
34 Chair part
36 College in North Carolina
37 High time of day
38 Posed a poser
41 Describing a coupe
45 Small lacquer box
46 Moon vehicle
48 __ cog. er
49 First lady's mate
50 Half, in Hamburg
53 — pickings
54 Position: Abbr.
55 Rabbits' homes
58 Type of relief
59 Large beaked bird
61 Terrific!
63 Synthetic fabrics
64 Whatnot holders
65 — Fe Trail
66 Orders back

DOWN
1 Workplace for Wyeth
2 Mediterranean boats
3 Fury
4 Bones of Sleepy Hollow
5 Ventilated
6 Neutral shade
7 Esoteric
8 Part of a column
9 Portent
10 "Columbia, the __ of the ocean"
11 Religious recluse
12 Boas
13 Smear
15 Put upon the throne
20 Warlord
23 Realm of a nobleman
25 Alpine costumes
27 Window part
29 Mushroom
32 Seasonal song
33 Win one's heart
35 Bossy's bellows
38 Theater district
39 Not alfresco
40 Bram Stoker character
42 Guacharo
43 Sedatives
44 Name of several Egyptian kings
47 Jessica Fletcher's subject
51 Island in the Philippines
52 Part of Vietnam
55 Desire
56 Saturn's rings projection
57 A long story
60 Swindle
62 Bipeds

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

W	A	S	H		A	L	A	N		S	P	I	N
G	A	S	P		S	O	L	O		O	N	T	O
P	A	I	L	S		T	O	I	L		L	O	A	D
O	F	D	I	S		I	N	C	T		O	W
	S	O	N		A		E	N		O	L	A
		T	A	M	E	D		T	R	U	E	R
A	E	F		N	A	M	E	D		S	O	D	N	E
S	L	U	M		L	I	B	R	A		D	E
T	E	M	P	E	S	T		A	L	L		E	S	T
A	N	N	A		S	T	O	I	C
R	A	Y		I	R	S		M	E	E	R	S
	F	O	R	A	L	L	S		A	S	O	N	S
T	E	A	M		V	I	O	L		B	A	S	E	S
O	N	C	E		E	C	R	U		E	R	I	E	S
E	D	E	N		L	E	E	R		D	E	N	S

10/8/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Sandy Bogage
Production ..... Susan Nasberg
Sarah Davis

MENU

LUNCH
American Chop Sewer
Grilled Sneeze

BASICS LUNCH
Macaroni, Lentils
Grilled on Branola

DINNER
Chicken Stew
Quarter Pounder!!

BASICS DINNER
Chicken/Veggie Stew
Eggplant Grinder

AIDS

continued from page 3

Geralyn Thompson, a sophomore psychology major, is going from UMass Amherst with a few friends, but she said she is not aware of anyone else from UMass Amherst attending the dance-a-thon.

Thompson said next year she would like to talk with coordinators and try to bring a dance-a-thon to Amherst, possibly to the Mullins Center.

Boston College will be among the 50 plus schools in attendance. Brigitte Payette, a junior psychology major and the co-director for the student AIDS Awareness Committee at B.C., said approximately 30 students will be participating.

To advertise the event, she said students put up posters and also did some "chalking" which involves writing statistics of AIDS around campus in chalk and also telling students how they can help. The awareness committee also sent flyers to anyone interested and set up an interest table in the dining commons to give students information about how to participate.

Payette said AIDS awareness at B.C. is difficult because many of the Jesuits "look at AIDS as a homosexual or a premarital sex disease" which is against the Catholic religion.

She said other students at B.C. are apathetic towards the disease.

"A lot of students here feel they are immune to the disease," she said, "but I think that is the case all over the country."

clothes

continued from page 3

In 1990, 500 items were donated to the store. Since then, donations have increased up to over 700 items. "The sale was a success in the past, and has even become more successful," Rich said.

J. Rich only holds the sale one week every year. "We try to keep the sale to a limited time in order to push for donations because holiday time is very hectic and donations are needed," Rich said.

Donations can be given at any time. If you have any questions you cant contact either Edwina Askew at the Amherst Survival Center or Carol Rothery at the Northampton Survival Center.

soccer

continued from page 12

meet in the Final Eight on Sunday at 1 p.m.

The Minutewomen (15-2-3), who finished the season ranked No. 5 in the nation, will have their hands full with the dangerous Friars (10-8-2).

Providence epitomizes the team which does not have the finest record, but no one wants to play. The reason starts in the Friar net, in the imposing form of goalkeeper Jen Mead.

The 5-foot-10, former center on the PC basketball team is as good of a goalkeeper as UMass will face this season. She uses her size and great hands to pick off nearly anything in the air. The nonchalant way she grabs off the most challenging of shots has a way of completely frustrating forwards.

Mead held off the Minutewomen attack on Oct. 2 (the game was played at William & Mary), until overtime, when Rachel LeDuc onetimed a Heidi Kocher cross to Mead's left, with just 7:13 remaining in OT.

"She is very solid," Rudy said. "I'm impressed with the way she looked when we played her, but I want to see how she'll do when she faces a steady diet of balls. We didn't give her that in the first game."

"She brings everything for us," Providence Coach Nicole Crepeau said. "She is not only a great athletic keeper but she is also tactically strong. She is not just a glory keeper, who makes flashy saves, she knows where to play."

Offensively PC relies on its speed to create counter attacks. Forward Kerry Lyons (seven goals) is a burner, who will not create her own shots, but finishes the opportunities she is presented well. Karen Stauffer has six goals, including the game winner against UConn Sunday, which propelled PC into the tournament.

"Their team speed is much better than ours," Rudy said. "They are very quick. They have some good marking backs and they have a kid out of the middle (Marilyn) Pompeo, who is quite good on the free kick."

Rudy is excited by his team's determination and hopes it can offset a two-week layoff.

"We've had a great two weeks of practice," Rudy said. "(On Tuesday) they hit the iron and then wanted to run and do sprints. They are hungry. I can't remember the last time a team asked me if they could do sprints."

Providence is coming off a huge weekend, in which it captured the Big East Championship with a thrilling, 1-0, victory over UConn. Despite never appearing in the NCAA before, Crepeau is confident her team will be ready.

Dartmouth (12-2-2) and Connecticut (16-5-1) will be a battle of two different teams. The Big Green play a slow zone defense, which lulls teams to sleep. Dartmouth has allowed only seven goals all season. Meanwhile UConn is more physical and developed on the attack. All-American sweeper Karen Ferguson leads the Huskies.

Tickets can be purchased at the gate and are $4 for general public, $2 for students and $1 for kids under 12.

"We hope we have a huge crowd with positive support," Rudy said. "We want our fans to leave the opposing players and the referee's alone and cheer us on to a glorious victory."

Organic Cotton

Super-soft, organically grown cotton tees & socks. In naturals and vegetable dye colors.
Tees from $11.95
Socks $5.95

Basic DUDS at Faces

northampton • main st. • 7 days

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM - Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 expires 11/17/93
Northampton Bowl

saves

James H. McManus 256-6889
Hrs. Sun. - Thur. 6am - 3am
Fri. & Sat. 24 Hours
FREE! Breakfast or Lunch
Buy 1 Dinner Get 2nd Dinner 1/2 Price
RTE. 9 • CAMPUS PLAZA • HADLEY

PIER 9 DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
$1 Off Second Fresh Fish & Chips $1 Off Second Giant Grinder Exp. 12/31/93
Small Coffee and buttered bagel for $1.00 all day 10% Discount with this ad Exp. 12/31/93

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive 253-7727
Next to Price Chopper
Introductory Tanning 8 Visits For $29.00

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed.
HOURS 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk in's are Welcome

THIS SATURDAY!
AT THE comedy CONNECTION CHICOPEE
The CERTS guy Host of VH1 "Stand-up Spotlight"
BOBBY COLLINS
NEXT SATURDAY!
Star of "IN LIVING COLOR"
JAMIE FOXX
Memorial Dr., Chicopee 413-593-5222

field hockey

continued from page 12

cult to battle back from a goal down."

Junior Natalie Hart absolutely dominated the game, scoring the game winning goal and playing exceptional defense to lead the Minutewomen to victory.

"Natalie Hart eats up so much territory," said BU Coach Sally Starr. "UMass is unique in that style of play. I've been coaching 13 years now, and I've never seen a player be able to dominate a game in that manner. It is just so hard to defend."

Hart opened up the scoring at 22:00 in the first half on a penalty corner blast from Jenn Salisbury and Holly Hockenbrock.

"After the first goal, we really settled into our game," said Rose.

Rose settled into her game, stopping 11 shots. Her counterpart in the BU net Kerry Windgardner was impressive as well, but could not hold off the Minutewomen.

Kyle Rothenberger scored an insurance goal at 56:59 to ice the victory for UMass.

"We had a score to settle," said Rose. "There was no way I was leaving that field unless we won."

The Minutewomen will head south to College Park, Maryland for a battle with the No. 3 Maryland Terrapins and a chance to return to the final four.

Hixon is confident in her team going into the game.

"I have confidence in our team," said Hixon. "They're competitors. They've been to the Final Four and they want to get back. They've tasted it and they've felt it and they want to get back."

Hixon believes that this year's tournament is up for grabs.

"Everyone is among the mortals," Hixon said. "We have to relax and take the risks to be a winner."

football

continued from page 12

od. Standouts for the Tribe include QB Shawn Knight and tailback Derek Fitzgerald. While the injuries have affected the Minutemen defense, the play of the Minutemen bench will determine the result.

The Minutemen will be going for their eighth win of the season, which would tie a school record. It would also surpass last season's record of 7-3.

The Minutemen will enjoy tomorrow's game at McGuirk, where they are 5-0 this season. They have scored 178 points in the five games, to their opponents' 84.

SPORTS NOTICE

There will be a Minutemaniac reception at 6 p.m. before tonight's hockey game versus Iona in the VIP room on the third floor of Mullins.

MAKE LIFE A PARTY. . . . . WRITE FOR The Collegian

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY. BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

100% BEEF 2 BURGS 2 BUCKS Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA PETE'S DRIVE-IN

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM - Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 expires 11/17/93
Northampton Bowl

549-3555 COME IN AND SEE US
BIG GUY LIQUORS
New Beers
Labatts ICE
Pete's Wicked Winter Ale Brew
Catamount Christmas Ale
Harpoon Winter Warmer
Coors Winter Fest
Beer Balls
Rt.63 25 Montague Rd.

R&P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday, Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

Turkey Trot Road Race
Free prizes with entry and 1st place prizes sign up Nov. 15 20 on C.C. concourse
Sponsored by UMass Crew Club

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name + address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

Orthodox Christian Lithurgy Sat Morn., Nov. 13 10 am Chapin Hall Amherst College all are welcome info: 549-7705

PRE-MED Club
First Meeting Sunday 14th
Newman Ctr. Cafeteria 8 pm
All Pre Med's and Wanna-be's are welcome! Any questions
Call Tanya @ 253-4735 or Phil @ 546-1495

Race Relations in America. An Islamic perspective, talk by Imam W. D. Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

Audi 4000S 1985, 4 dr auto loaded Good condition $2200 b/o 586-8486

Car For Sale
1984 Buick Skyhawk
Good Condition
$1500 546-4751

1984 Honda CRX red excellent cond. $1850.00 546-2921 Leave message

1984 Nissan Sentra
A Definite Must-See!
$2995.00!!
For exciting details
Call Anna at
Superior Subaru!
742-4964

86 Chevy Cavalier new motor plus more! $1200. 72 Saab "As Is" $250. 70 Cadillac antique Deville $2000 665-7114/531-9027 24 Hours

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

1992 GrandAm Seden 16V4cyl., auto, ABS, cruise, alarm system, AC, am/fm/tape deck. Warranty in effect 26,500 miles $9300 neg. KAYO 256-4153

Subar '88 DL Wagon 5 spd., am/fm stereo Cass. 110K No rust! Ask for $2500 323-5574 (night) 545-0188 (day)

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

We must announce new hours & prices Hours M-Th 7p-1a; F & S 7 p.2 a Cookies now 4.00 a dozen (Still the best deal in town) Milk 1.25 a qt Ben&Jerry's still 3.50 #549-MIX4

We are pleased to say We're here to stay And its all because of you
The Cookie Man

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat - fireplace

1 bedroom available for female this Spring in Puffton Village call/leave message 549-7756

1 Bedroom Avail. in two bedroom apt Southpoint Apt. $225/month on bus route Starting Jan 1st Call Jane 256-1382

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

Take Over Our Lease
Have 2 need 2 females for Brandywine Jan 1st
Call Sherry or Sue 549-8248

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Car Stereo System
JVC/CD receiver and 350W Kenwood Speakar Box with Acoustic Amp call Matt at 596-8543

Famous Sports Film comic characters lifesize stand ups $20. See gigantic display. Poor Boy Sunderland Center Weekendz only 24 hours "Everything"

For Sale brand new women's ski boots size 7 $70 256-1511

Laser/CD Player, monitor, radio, cassetta recorder, tennis & raquerball racket 546-5698

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition -- Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Personal Protection Device - (PAAL) Compact electronic alarm about the size of a beeper. Easy to use and carry. Available in black and yellow. Must sell, if interested call Jarrett at 256-3076 Very Cheap.

17 1/2" Specialized "Stumpjumper" mountain bike in excellent condition $200 Call days 549-1728

Sony CD Player
1 Disk w/remote
New! $95
Steve 546-4173

Technica Ski Boots size 6 1/2 womens Only 2 yr old 253-3130

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Exotic Dancers Wanted
Great pay, flexible hours
Race St. Pub, 268 Race St., Holyoke MA
Call Bob 532-1422

Free Trips & Cash* Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre! Call now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

PCA for male quad age 25 Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings Saturday evenings call 546-0666

Postal Jobs available!! Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

Typist Needed!
Typist needed to type law school applications
253-9916

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender
Days/evenings -one week!
Placement/Assistance
Boston Bartenders School
Call 747-9888 for Nov & Dec classes
Special Student Rates
Remember: To be professionally trained takes more than one evening.

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

IT'S THE BEST

Mill Valley - what a place to live! And you can join us in our wonderful two bedroom apartment. Just think free heat and hot water!!! We're looking for two people to share one BIG bedroom with its very own bathroom. Call 253-4789 for details. Don't delay!

LOST

Lost Wallet
Please return license
and any other article you don't want
Or call 549-4226

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

ALC –
A bushel and a peck!
MJK

Dear Michelle:
Here's one last clue -- if I could have anyone in the world I'd want someone who can shoot!
Phi Luv, Your Big Sister

Deji Odunaike
I can't wait for your arrival
I love you always
Ranb Thompson

Gi Shi,
Hope you feel better now
Sleep more
And certainly no diets!
I'm always here for you!
Gi Mai

Gimal Daar,
Thanx for everything. Good luck with daddy & take care of my nephews
Love,
Tingy

Happy Birthday Megan
For your 18th have a great day
Always, Jason

Hey Novices:
Ready for Sunday??

Larocca
Happy Birthday Big Man! 21!
I'll see you Uptown!
AHH! Salam
Your Roomate

"My newly found passion"
Don't wait - act now! :D

Novica Women's Crew
Good job last weekend and good luck in Boston Saturday!
The Varsity Women

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female to share one bedroom apt. in Puffton for Spring semester! $220/mo Call 549-7290

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995.

SERVICES

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Today is the last day to contact the Legal Services Center about a Spring, 1994 Internship! Get hands on experience in the legal field - work directly with attorneys and clients. Earn up to 15 undergraduate credits. No experience in the legal profession necessary. Training provided. Deadline to begin application process is November 12 -- contact Legal Services today: 545-1995, 922 Campus Center.

Tarm Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 546-4722

WANTED TO RENT

Need someone to take over your Amherst area house lease
Call 549-7213

Volleyball tries to extend winning streak to 5 tonight vs. URI

Sports

William & Mary next challenge for Minutemen

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

Coach Mike Hodges and the University of Massachusetts football team have said in the past that they prepare for next game and next game only.

That next game may just be the biggest game of the year.

The Minutemen (7-2 overall, 4-2 Yankee Con.) will host the Tribe of William & Mary (7-2 overall, 5-1 Yankee Con.) at 12:30 tomorrow afternoon at McGuirk Stadium. It is safe to say that the winner of tomorrow's game will have an excellent shot at a NCAA Division I-AA playoff berth.

The Minutemen moved up four places in the Top 25 poll to 21st after their 29-24 victory over Richmond last weekend. Freshman quarterback Vito Campanile, who replaced the injured Andrew McNeilly, was named Yankee Conference Rookie of the Week for his 9-22, 186 yard performance against Richmond.

Campanile, starting for the second consecutive week, showed tremendous poise as he failed to throw an interception, and his 186 yards were the most since Tom Iasano threw for 194 yards in the final game of the 1991 season. Hodges was impressed with his young QB, who is 2-0 as a starter.

"Vito throws the ball very well," said Hodges. "Statistically, his completion rate has to improve, but a lot of those are offset by some of the situations we were throwing in - man to man deep coverage, the deep ball.

"The best part about his game was he did not throw an interception."

While Campanile's effort was a strong point for the Minutemen, the worst scenario that could occur in a victory occurred. Rene Ingoglia, the main cog of the Minutemen's offense, suffered a knee injury in the second half and will most likely miss tomorrow's game.

It does not end there. Injuries were also suffered by linebackers Roger Kotlarz and Trejo Rust (knee injuries), nickel back Jason Mumford and defensive lineman Ken Bello (ankle sprains), and wide receiver Darryl Thomas (index finger). McNeilly, DT Silas Burke, and DL Vernard Fennell were already out due to injuries. Despite the injury factor, Hodges downplays the situation.

"The problem is we are getting bumped up at the same spots," said Hodges. "When all the injuries start coming out of the same place, it really starts to get tough. Yet, we have had injuries before, and we continued to play and continued to win."

The Minutemen defense will be going up against a

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The Minutemen battle a tough William & Mary squad this weekend. UMass hopes to continue their winning ways on route to a possible playoff berth.

Tribe offense who is currently riding a six-game winning streak while averaging 46 points during that peri-

turn to FOOTBALL, PAGE 11

Minutewomen set their sights on Final Four

Field hockey advances over BU

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Revenge was sweet for the No. 6 University of Massachusetts field hockey team as they defeated No. 10 Boston University 2-0 in the first round of the NCAA tournament yesterday.

The Terriers, who defeated the Minutewomen earlier in the season at BU, were overmatched as UMass advanced to the second round of the tournament.

B. U.	0
Massachusetts	2

Strong defense dominated the early going. BU looked like they might take the advantage when Anne Maxwell eluded UMass goalie Hilary Rose, but senior Tracy Barclay came out of nowhere to prevent the goal.

"That play was huge. BU is a very opportunistic team," said Minutewomen Coach Pam Hixon. "Tracy is a great back. She has made several great saves in crucial situations. Mentally it would have been more diffi-

turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Field hockey avenged their earlier loss to BU by beating the Terriers 2-0 yesterday. The Minutewomen take on UMD at College Park on Sunday.

Soccer hopes for success at home

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

There is something in the air in Boyden this week and it smells like the postseason.

It is filled with pressure, heartache, joy, sweat and fierce competition. It can mean gut wrenching finishes and wild celebrations. But most of all it is what sports is all about. The absolute winner and definite loser which rarely can be visualized in real life, comes out in black and white on the playing field.

Four women's soccer teams will enter into a free-for-all on Richard F. Garber field this weekend and the last one standing will advance to the Final Four, the others will go home and think of what might have been.

"This is what it is all about," Massachusetts Coach Jim Rudy said. "You work the long hours for a reason and that is the postseason."

UMass will square off with Providence, a team it defeated in overtime, 1-0, earlier in the season, on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The winner will face the victor of the Connecticut-Dartmouth game (11 a.m. Saturday), to

turn to SOCCER, PAGE 10

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

UMass will be hosting the first round of the NCAA women's soccer championships this weekend. The Minutewomen will play Providence.

Freshman checks in

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

If you asked most hockey coaches what qualities they look for in a defensemen, they will list leadership, maturity, a hard shot, and strong checking as necessities. If you ask the average hockey fan what they want to see from a defenseman, most will tell you hard, board rattling checks. Freshman Jaynen Rissling gives the University of Massachusetts hockey team a combination of the two.

The roots of Rissling's hockey skills run deep in the Edmonton, Alberta native. He has been playing hockey since he was five, competing against older players to keep improving his skills. His brother Gary, who played for the Penguins and Capitals in the NHL, has been an inspiration to Rissling.

Mallen discovered Rissling at a showcase tournament in June, on a team from Alberta, with future Minutemen Blair Manning and David Kilduff.

Rissling was recruited by several top US hockey schools including Maine and Wisconsin, and was strongly considering attending a Canadian university, but decided to play his college hockey at UMass.

"It was the best offer at the time," said Rissling. "It is a beautiful facility. Right away they made me feel wanted, and I felt I could contribute."

"I think Jaynen was better than a lot of players going to Hockey East schools," said Mallen. In a lopsided vote, Rissling's teammates elected him to be the first captain of the resurrected UMass program.

"Leadership is the number one thing he brings," said Mallen. "He fits exactly into the UMass style. He's an aggressive player. He's a smart player. He has speed and he wants to win. Those are four things I want every UMass player to have."

Rissling has been a big reason that fans are starting to follow UMass hockey. His big goals (2 goals, 2 assists in 3 games) and big hits have been bringing Mullins Center crowds to their feet.

"I like to think of myself as a real rugged defenseman. I like to muck it up in the corners and make the big hit," Rissling said.

"It's fantastic just to say that I play on UMass hockey," said Rissling. "We're bringing hockey back to UMass. In 10 or 20 years down the road, I'm going to say that I was part of something that we started off in a great direction."

XC heads to IC4A's

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

This Saturday the University of Massachusetts men's cross country team will complete their regular season in Leesburg, Va., at the IC4A Championships.

The IC4A Championships, which serves as the NCAA qualifying meet for District I and District II, is a 10,000 meter race that features some of the top teams in the country.

Six teams currently ranked in the Top 25, including no. 4 Villanova and no. 10 Georgetown will be participating in the meet. New England champion Boston University and perennial powerhouse Providence College will also be in Leesburg on Saturday.

Last season the Minutemen finished a disasterous 30th but a repeat performance is not likely.

"I see us finishing in the top 15," said head coach Ken O'Brien.

O'Brien said UMass is capable of a top 15 finish if it can produce an effort similar to its performance two weeks ago at the New England Championships. UMass placed second at the New Englands.

"We need to respond to the high level of competition," he said.

O'Brien said there is a feeling of confidence on the team that has allowed it to grow as the season has progressed.

"Most good teams move the level of performance up as the season goes on," he said. "This team has done that."

O'Brien said the team has learned a lot this year and is ready to perform at a high level.

UMass will look to Ethan Nedeau, Ted Towse and Kevin Greenhalgh to be the team's top group of runners with Jonathan Way and Matthew Behl closely behind.

"Our success comes from a tight finish top to bottom from our runners," O'Brien said.

While some teams place runners in first and second with their third runner one minute behind, O'Brien said UMass' strength is just the opposite.

"Our strength comes from our runners finishing close together," he said.

UMass student victimized by homophobia Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Monday
62° November 15, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 46

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Commonwealth gets approval of Puerto Ricans

By DAVID BEARD
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — With all 1,784 precincts reporting, commonwealth received 823,258, or 48.4 percent of the vote; statehood 785,859, or 46.2 percent; independence 75,253 or 4.4 percent.

The remaining ballots either were left blank or were disqualified. The election commission said 73.6 percent of Puerto Rico's 2.31 million registered voters cast ballots.

Thousands of commonwealth supporters filled the streets and started a blocks-long caravan. One of the celebrants, Nereida Rodriguez of the central city of Caguas said commonwealth changed the poor, sugar-farming island into an industrial success, and she was forever grateful.

Screaming over salsa music and honking horns, Rodriguez, 56, said: "We've affirmed that we're Americans — but we're Puerto Ricans, too. We have our own separate Olympic teams, our own Puertoricaness.

"See this flag," she said, pointing to her single-starred red-white-and-blue Puerto Rican banner. "This is my flag!"

Political status has been debated here almost since the moment U.S. troops captured the Caribbean island in 1898, ending four centuries of Spanish rule.

Celeste Benitez, campaign director of the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic party, credited the heavy turnout of more than 70 percent to a party campaign of calling 20,000 supporters a day to bring out the vote.

Commonwealth supporters expressed a reluctance to begin a long campaign to seek statehood, fearing closer ties with Washington would lead to destruction of the island's culture and threaten the use of Spanish, the sole language spoken by 60 percent of the island's 3.8 million residents.

The commonwealth victory may stall the recent momentum toward statehood. Puerto Rico became a commonwealth with some autonomy in 1952.

But Rossello characterized the narrowness of the loss as an indication that his movement is gaining. The vote, he said, "came closer to the truth than ever before."

The race was closely watched by District of Columbia residents, also in line for statehood, as well as the U.S. mainland's 22 million Hispanics, 2.6 million of them Puerto Rican.

In the last plebiscite on status in 1967, 67 percent of voters opted to maintain commonwealth, known in Spanish as "free associated state."

A great day for Massachusetts

LeDuc's goal leads women's soccer to Final Four

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Jubilant UMass goalkeeper Briana Scurry revels in the applause of the fans while the rest of the women's soccer team celebrates after the team's 1-0 victory over the University of Connecticut which put the Minutewomen in the NCAA Final Four.

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Briana Scurry stood on her team's bench following the University of Massachusetts' women's soccer team's 1-0 victory over Connecticut, which propelled them into the Final Four, pumped her fist a few times then held her hands straight up in the air and basked in the cheers of the 2,152 fans at Richard F. Garber field.

The joyous, proud and wonderful smile which spread across the goalkeeper's face, summed up the afternoon for the Minutewomen.

There could be few victories any sweeter and few feelings more complete than the ones felt yesterday. For Massachusetts, a pinnacle had been reached.

Playing under a sign, constructed during the preseason, which reads "We Believe," the unheralded and often underrated Minutewomen made believers of not only Connecticut and the throng of fans on hand, but soccer observers around the nation.

UMass (17-2-3) will next face seven-time defending national champion North Carolina (22-0) on Friday, at a sight yet to be determined, but likely to be Chapel Hill, N.C.

UMass played another strong knock-around game and used an opportunistic offense to make its usual stingy defense stand.

It was Rachel LeDuc who provided the heroics. in the 60th minute, Rebecca Myers collected a Nicole Roberts pass at center field. Myers moved the ball into the Husky zone and spotted a streaking LeDuc making a run, from the left flank, toward the UConn box.

The freshman midfielder sent a long serve into the box, where LeDuc charged for it. UConn goal keeper Jill Gilfenbine came out of the net to get it, but LeDuc was able to get her right foot on the bouncing ball and tip the ball over Gilfenbine, before the two collided about eight yards in front of

Turn to SOCCER, page 11

'Big mouth' returns

Former aide behind NJ voting scheme

By JOHN KING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If Ronald Reagan were still in town, he might turn to old friend Ed Rollins and say, "There you go again."

A decade after Reagan had to muzzle his controversial political aide, Rollins is again embroiled in controversy, this time over whether he concocted a scheme to discourage blacks from voting in the New Jersey governor's race.

Rollins last week said he orchestrated a $500,000 effort to do just that, and said it was a big factor in Republican Christie Whitman's win over incumbent Democratic Gov. Jim Florio. Within 24 hours, Rollins found himself in a familiar position: under fire for opening what he admits is a big mouth.

In this case, Rollins quickly recanted and said he had "left the impression of something that was not true and did not occur."

Whether he made the whole thing up or exaggerated a smaller-scale voter suppression effort remains a mystery, and has created political turmoil in New Jersey.

While all that is sorted out, there are questions galore in Washington, too, many of them directed at a suddenly silent Rollins.

Why would he brag about such a controversial strategy, whether it happened or not? Why would he so eagerly do something sure to impugn his client? And why would a man who appeared on the verge of re-establishing his Republican campaign credentials — and making a ton of money — do something to throw it all away?

"Would Freud like to get this guy in a chair or what?" former Virginia Democratic Party Chairman Paul Goldman asked last week as the political world wondered whether Rollins had finally created a storm he would not survive.

Survey predicts a tight vote as NAFTA debate nears end

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Foes of the North American Free Trade Agreement seem a handful of votes shy of being able to kill the pact in Wednesday's House showdown, leaving President Clinton with an uphill but achievable fight to save the deal, an Associated Press survey has found.

With opponents of the agreement needing 217 votes to prevail, 203 representatives said they would vote against the measure or were likely to do so, the survey found. The figure included 178 who said they would vote "no," and 25 who said they were leaning that way.

Arrayed against them were 180 supporters of NAFTA, which would phase out tariffs and other restrictions on trade among the United States, Mexico and Canada. Of these, 165 said they would vote for the agreement and 15 said they were likely to do so.

That left 51 undeclared lawmakers and a daunting task for Clinton and his congressional allies, who would suffer a major political setback should the pact be rejected.

Even if they retain all 15 representatives leaning toward the agreement, they will need the votes of 39 of the undecideds, nearly four of every five. The measure will need a majority of votes to pass, which means 218 if everyone casts a ballot. There is one House vacancy.

Both sides in the battle exuded cautious confidence Sunday, based on their own secret surveys of sentiment.

"I see a horse race, a down-to-the-wire, hand-to-hand battle that will be decided during the vote," Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., a vote-counter for supporters, said Sunday. "My prediction is a narrow victory."

"I think we're going to win," House Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., a leading congressional opponent, said.

But in a reference to deals on citrus fruits, window glass and other items the

Turn to NAFTA, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Developing Nations Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

The date for the AIDS dance-a-thon was incorrect in the Friday, Nov. 12 issue of the Collegian. The event will be held on Nov. 20.

Also, the photograph accompanying the Veterans Day article was improperly credited. The photograph was taken by Matt Kahn.

The Collegian regrets the errors.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, November 15

Canned food drive — Non-perishable items to benefit the Amherst Survival Center can be dropped off on the Campus Center Concourse from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and at Hampshire and Berkshire Dining Commons from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The food drive is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

Information night — The Five College Coastal and Marine Sciences is holding an information night at 7:30 p.m. in McConnell 805, Clark Science Center, Smith College. For more information, call 585-3799.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive continues from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Memorial — A memorial mass for Todd Welsh will be held at 5:15 p.m. in the Newman Center.

Lecture — "Modern Day Slavery: The Pornography Industry" will be presented by Cara Lee Birch at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 168C. The lecture is presented by The Women's Research Center for Graduate Students.

Information session — The National Student Exchange will hold an information session at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 903.

Tuesday, November 16

Meeting — The Jewish Appeal will hold its first meeting at 4 p.m. in Hillel House.

Celebration — Rosh Chodesh, the celebration of the New Moon for Jewish Women, will begin at 8 p.m. in the Hillel House lounge. Bring a candle and a pillow.

Lecture — Imam Warith Deen Mohammed will speak on "Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective" at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. The event is free, and is sponsored by the Muslim Students Association.

Canned food drive — Non-perishable items to benefit the Amherst Survival Center can be dropped off on the Campus Center Concourse from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and at Worcester Dining Commons from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The food drive is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

Lecture — Janet Harris will speak on "Coalitions in Multi-ethnic Disadvantaged Communities" from 11:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in Hasbrouck 230. The lecture is sponsored by Massachusetts Community-based Public Health Initiative.

Information meeting — Students interested in a Five College Spring Break Puerto Rico trip to Isla Magueyes Marine Sciences Laboratories will meet at 5 p.m. in Morrill 203.

Pre-registration social — The Society for Women Engineers will hold a pre-registration movie/pizza night from 6 to 8 p.m. in Knowlton Lounge.

Lecture — Pamela Quiroz will speak on "Examining the Structural Carrying Capacity of the High School Extra-curriculum and its Effects on Student Opportunities" at 4 p.m. in W32 Machmer Hall. The lecture is sponsored by the Social and Demographic Research Institute.

Information session — The National Student Exchange is holding an information session at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
YES! IT'S BACK - DAILY AT 9:35
(ends Thursday Nov. 18) - SEE IT!
"THE ULTIMATE PARTY MOVIE. SOCIALLY IRRESPONSIBLE AND TOTALLY IRRESISTIBLE." - Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE
The 'American Graffiti' of the next generation - smarter and tougher but just as much fun." - Dave Kehr, NEW YORK DAILY NEWS
"A crushingly funny and knowing ode to misspent youth." - Jeff Giles, NEWSWEEK
Two thumbs up! - SISKEL & EBERT
Dazed and Confused
R
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Thursdays in November are Student days.
All Haircuts $10.00*
Regency Hairstylists
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA • 253-9526
*long hair $2 extra

Sign up now for Winter Session
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼
Over 100 credit courses.
3 credits in just 3 weeks.
Affordable. What a deal!
You won't regret it!
Winter Session '94
January 3-24
Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653
▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

BEFORE YOU PRE-REGISTER
Eat, Drink, and
come meet Economics Faculty and learn about Spring Economics Undergraduate course offerings.
The Economics Course Info Social
Tuesday, November 16
7:00 - 9:00 pm
Campus Center Room 163
That's Tomorrow Night!
Sponsored by the Economics Department of course.

Complete RESUME Package ALL INCLUSIVE
Campus Design & Copy
403 Student Union, above Credit Union
$15
STUDENTS WORKING FOR STUDENTS
At Campus Design & Copy our experienced Resume staff can execute the professional resume you are looking for and at one of the lowest prices in the area. The $15 all inclusive charge includes: complete layout and typesetting, 10 copies on our high quality resume paper, 10 matching envelopes and storage of your resume on our Macintosh System for one year so you can update and change it when needed. All for $15.

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:
Boston-LONDON $139
Boston-PARIS $224
Boston-MADRID $255
New York-FRANKFURT $225
New York-ROME $269
New York-CANCUN $199
Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

Local News

Graffiti on automobile decried as homophobic

By DEBORAH WHITE
Collegian Staff

Is the University of Massachusetts, with its reputation for open-mindedness and its strong commitment to diversity, a safe place for lesbian, gay and bisexual people?

Ask Deven DeMarco. The sophomore film major returned to his car last week to find it covered with graffiti, which DeMarco describes as "homophobic."

"Watch out faggot, I know where you live;" "Faggot die;" and "God hates fags," were among the comments DeMarco found scratched into the dust of his car.

"I was too tired to be scared but definitely a little nervous," DeMarco said.

He said campus security was immediately called in to investigate the matter. DeMarco said the campus police officer who assisted him was very helpful.

DeMarco said he believes this not a random act. He said he thinks it was probably done by someone who knew of him and recognized his car.

"I'm so out, someone might have seen me," DeMarco said. "The reason I've been so visible is for people who aren't, to encourage them to come out."

According to DeMarco, his car was defaced sometime on Nov. 9 between 7:15 and 10 p.m. on the third level of the Campus Parking Garage. He was at an LBGA social at the time of the incident.

Despite the best efforts of campus advocates, like the Program for GLB Concerns, to create a safe enviroment for queer students, homophobic incidents are still common at UMass.

DeMarco said last semester he was harrassed and followed to his dorm by a group of about eight men. DeMarco said he knows a queer resident assistant that has recently been harassed. A source at the Program for GLB Concerns said that

Turn to GRAFFITI, page 4

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Homophobic graffiti was found on UMass sophomore Deven DeMarco's car parked in the Campus Parking Garage last Tuesday.

"Night of Broken Glass"

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Jack Lohan, a UMass engineering student, checks out last week's Kristallnacht display put on by Hillel House. The "night of broken glass" remembers the government organized anti-Jewish violence which escalated into the Holocaust.

Bursar's office struggles on

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts hiring freeze, a five percent budget cut and the fact that Stafford loan money has been reaching the University late are all problems plaguing the Bursar's Office this semester, the director of the Bursar's Office says.

"Because of the [five percent] budget cuts we have lost two positions. We have only three tellers on-line, and if one is out you see some stressed out people."
— Bursar Robert R. Mishol

UMass Bursar Robert R. Mishol said the Bursar's Office has been overwhelmed this semester because it has had to handle 12,000 loans this semester as compared to 4,000 loans last year. He also said this problem has been compounded by the Bursar's inability to replace two of its tellers because of the University hiring freeze.

"Because of the [five percent] budget cuts we have lost two positions," Mishol said, "It hurts the teller area. We lost two tellers to maternity leave, and in order to hire two more tellers you have to go through the 'freeze committee.' We have only three tellers on-line, and if one is out you see some stressed out people."

Mishol said another problem has been that American Student Assistance, the agency responsible for disbursing Guaranteed Student Loan funds to the University, has been late in wiring the money electronically to the bursar.

"We try to get the financial aid money out right after registration so that students don't have to borrow," he said. "But the Guarantee Agency has been experiencing technical problems and it has caused the money to come in dribs and drabs."

Turn to BURSAR, page 6

Vigil celebrates transformation

Women go from victims to survivors of sexual abuse

By STACY MALONE
Collegian Staff

"I am extremely glad you are dead" was one message written by a victim to an abuser in chalk on a sidewalk at Mount Holyoke College. It could be read under the light of over 70 women's candles at a vigil Friday night.

Amy Horne, the coordinator of Women Against Sexual Harassment (W.A.S.H.) who sponsored the event, said the vigil was a celebration of the transformation from victim to survivor.

Laura Wood, a senior at Mt. Holyoke, said she wished there wasn't a necessity for transformation. She said fear, anger, sadness and transformation were the four steps necessary to move from being a victim to becoming a survivor.

"As we move through the four stages, the crucial steps for transformation, we celebrate our ability to survive our pain," Wood said. "We gather so we may gain strength from each other."

Wendy Weiss, a W.A.S.H. alumnae, said that a woman always knows there is a possibility she will be assaulted. She said this fear is what limits where women go, when they go and how they dress.

"It is fear that plays the part that motivates us to make the transformation from victim to survivor," Weiss said. "We need to have our fear acknowledged."

Aimee Letson, a W.A.S.H. alumnae, said angry women have been called names like bitches and femi-Nazis, but she believes what they meant to say was warriors, feminists, activists and beautiful.

Letson said men steal women's freedom from going where they please and dressing how they wish. She said the restrictions men put on women doesn't allow them to pursue "life, liberty and happiness" to their fullest extent.

"It is up to us to find our true voice," Letson said "We can't let our anger overwhelm us and silence us. Let us shout and listen, respect and heal."

Letson led over 70 women in stomping their feet and screaming "No" to show that they will not take

Turn to VIGIL, page 4

TEAMS helps students & tutors

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

On Tuesday, Nov. 16, the TEAMS Project will be holding its Open House at FarthFoods in the Student Union Building from 4 to 6 p.m. During that time those who attend will be able to hear coordinators, seminar facilitator, tutors and students speak about the special program.

TEAMS, or "Tutoring Enrichment Assistant Models for Schools," is a nine-year partnership involving the Division of Continuing Education and School of Education with the public school and alternative education programs in local communities. Started in 1984 by Professors Robert Maloy and Byrd Jones, this program has had more than 750 University of Massachusetts students offering over 43,000 hours to several thousand diverse learners.

UMass undergraduates who become involved with TEAMS have the opportunity to offer after-school tutoring to students from various language or cultural backgrounds, learners who are at academic risk and adult learners.

Students who participate are required to do 60 hours of tutoring per semester and attend a 3 credit course concerning tutoring in schools. The seminar each week covers different subjects pertaining to diversity in schools, various tutoring methods and gives the tutors a chance to discuss what went on during their sessions with the students.

Jodi Bornstein, the TEAMS coordinator, describes the seminars as a good time for people to "reflect upon what's going on and make some sense of it."

"I'm giving back to the community what it gave to me," said Sarah Henderson of the TEAMS Project.

Henderson, a sophomore education major, wanted to do something to help the community and saw TEAMS as a way to do just that. During her tutoring hours she assists ESL (English as a second language) students in different subject areas and with their college and SAT applications.

With TEAMS, Henderson was able to become a tutor and a mentor to these students. She said while tutoring the students, she learned how difficult it is to be mainstream, to learn and write in a different language for them. Henderson also feels that work-

Turn to TEAMS, page 6

Positions in the Collegian Night Graphics Department are available for the Spring semester.

Intersted? Regardless of whether you have applied in the past, fill out an application at 103 Campus Center soon.

"BOB" will be glad you did.

The Club

The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.

Buy next semester's membership now and get intersession free!

Pay $140 Today & Secure Your Membership From 12/23/93-5/31/94

- Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Cardiovascular Machines
- Tanning
- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Child Care
- On Bus Route

Pay $9.50/Week for the Rest of the Fall Semester

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

graffiti

continued from page 3

posters advertising GLB events are often found defaced or torn down. Homophobic graffiti has also been discovered in Brown House and on the walls of the Bartlett Tunnel.

"I am angry," DeMarco said, "Homophobia is one of the few, still legal, forms of oppression and it's blatantly encouraged.."

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO

EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES

WITH THIS AD Additional 10% off any one item

We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies, Posters, Portfolios, Special Orders Encouraged

HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8, Saturday 9:30-5:30, Sunday 12-5

65 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA 01003, 413-253-5592

vigil

continued from page 3

violence against women.

The messages written by victims on the sidewalk became more apparent as women stomped and screamed. Some of them read, "My uncle. He served three months for four years of abuse." and "You know goddammit. Well you raped me! And yes I'm pissed at you and with you."

"I am a woman warrior today but as a child I was a victim of sexual abuse," Maria Zavala, a Mt. Holyoke alumnae said. "It is the woman in me that can take care of the child."

Zavala said she believes survivors of child sexual abuse can only heal by letting out what the child felt. She said it is important to allow the sadness to come through and to say "the woman in me will take care of me."

Rochelle Calhoun, the Mt. Holyoke College ombudsperson, said there can be no transformation for a victim from darkness into light without emotion.

"Allowing us all to use our feelings to move us from the place of darkness to light with our candles," Calhoun said. "We illuminate the world on a path of true transformation."

"Let our fear, our anger, our stomping, our support and our fighting against oppression move us to true transformation."

Pearl Street Nightclub

Monday, November 15, 9:00pm /18+/

CRACKER

Flop

Tuesday, November 16, 8:30pm /18+/

X From Boston TRIBE Green Apple Quick Step

Advance Ticket Info:

10 Pearl Street, Northampton • 584-7771

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS

HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS

NO SELLING INVOLVED

Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm, Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.

We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday, (413)586-8635.

Abt Associates Inc.

Telephone Research Center

Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9

Hadley, MA 01035

An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Abt

1-800-COLLECT

America's Inexpensive Way To Call Someone Collect.

Dial it instead of "0" and save up to 44%.

For long distance collect calls. Vs. AT&T operator dialed 3 min. interstate call.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Men, you may comprehend – but you'll never understand

"You just don't get it."

That line has been the rallying cry of the American women's movement ever since those dark days in 1991 when Professor Anita Hill had the gall to expect the United States Senate to care that she had been sexually harassed by a nominee for the Supreme Court. Clarence Thomas just didn't get it. Ted Kennedy and Joe Biden didn't get it. Bob Packwood certainly didn't get it.

Two years after that line made history, and one year after the anger that the Senate's slanderous attacks on Hill brought about carried four women to the Senate, sexual harassment is again the lead story on the evening news. Bob Packwood is fighting a Nixonesque battle to keep evidence away from the so-called Ethics Committee, and, on a more positive note, the Supreme Court - now enriched with Thomas' presence - finally decided that sexual harassment is something a bit more serious than a seventh-grade boy snapping a girl's bra during math class.

Watching the Senate rehash the Hill-Thomas atrocity with the sleaze-ridden Packwood playing the lead role, that phrase comes to mind once again: "You just don't get it." So what is a man to do when confronted with that attack? When a woman says to a man, "You just don't get it," there is only one thing a self-respecting American male can say in return...she's right.

No, men, we don't get it. No man should ever claim to understand how a woman feels. No man has ever woken up in the morning to find a note on his bedstand that says, "Thanks," and then has had to carry a stranger's baby for the next nine months - and care for that child for a lifetime beyond. No man has ever tried to access the legal right to an abortion, and had that heart-wrenching choice made even worse by the jeers of pious zealots on the sidelines. No man will ever have to feel that pain.

Peter ORVETTI

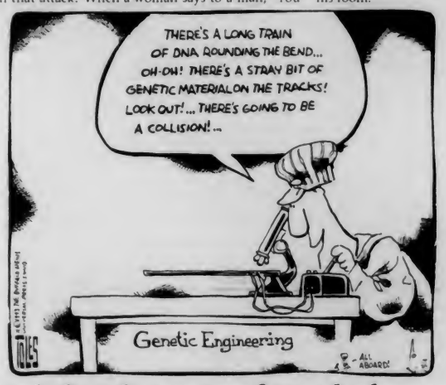
No man has ever been humiliated in a courtroom and turned away without justice, sent home with emotional scars because a judge decided that he deserved to be raped because his biceps were bulging through a tight T-shirt. No male member of the Armed Forces was ever afraid to carry out his duties because a hallway filled with lecherous female soldiers would be grabbing at his crotch as he tried to walk to his room.



No man has to stand by and have his appearance insulted by an employer, or has to be told to wear a tighter pair of pants the next day if he wants to hold onto his job. No man has to let his boss pat his private parts every morning if he ever wants a raise. No man needs to have that raise because he makes less than three-quarters of what the women in his office make. No man will not be promoted because he's just a dumb boy and boys can't be trusted with high posts that require a lot of thought.

No man will ever have a baby and be told not to come back to work afterward. No man will have no compensation for maternity leave, and no man will have his wife force him to stay home and take care of the children, then come home every night, get drunk and beat him until his face is blue and swollen.

No man has to endure all of these things because less than 10 percent of his nation's governing body is made up of members of his gender, and because a good number of the members of that body are guilty of all these harassment crimes themselves.

No, men, we just don't get it. We may be able to comprehend, and to feel angry about it, but not understand. We can never understand.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist

End the rhetoric of symbols

It seems in society we often place symbols over substance. Some of us go to Christian churches on Sunday, but for the rest of the week oppose the welfare system and support capital punishment. Others would die for a piece of cloth with stripes and stars that symbolize democracy, human rights and freedom, caring little that, in reality, we are tools of a big-business backed foreign policy that continually contravenes the very concepts we seek to uphold.

At UMass, the instances may be different, but the case is the same. We hold rallies and debates over the content of symbols like the Minuteman. More substantive demands made by the DuBois Coalition for greater representation in the student body for students from disadvantaged backgrounds are conveniently ignored. I wonder if those who so ardently argue that the Minuteman symbolizes freedom, democracy and equality will go out of their way to pressure the administration to make these aspirations a reality on campus?

Somehow, I don't see the Young Republicans lighting up the Whitmore switchboard protesting the outrageous under-representation of low-income students of color. Perhaps by remaining forever within the realm of symbols, we escape the hypocrisy of our lives.

Above any other segment of our community, the administration appears most content with image over substance. They appoint task forces on harassment, create committees on LBGA concerns, hold conferences on multiculturalism and respecting diversity. Bill Cosby rolls into town, tells a few jokes, collects his speaking fee and tells the media and the world that UMass is committed to ending racism and promoting diversity. The university's mission statement extols its commitment to providing education to everyone in Massachusetts. But where's the beef? Committees meet without resolution, and their proposals barely impact the situations they were formed to address.

Graduate employees are currently negotiating a contract with the University. Several of the proposals provide real solutions to the increasing inaccessibility of higher education to low and middle income students and students of color in Massachusetts and nationally. As students, we graduate employees are faced with rising fees and a higher cost of living and one of the lowest average stipends among New England graduate schools. Many of us have to work part-time jobs in addition to our teaching and research duties just to make ends meet. Sometimes it isn't enough.

As workers, we are concerned at how there are few to no African-Americans, Latinas or Latinos in many departments throughout the University. We do not wish to be associated with a racially-biased institution. We recognize how diversity among students and faculty enriches the quality of our work environment, what we teach and how we teach it. Chancellor Scott has responded by granting us vague promises without guarantees on stipends and only enough money for a handful of additional stipends for students of color over the next three years.

Both graduate employees and the administration have an opportunity to go beyond rhetoric and make good on our professed commitment to equal opportunity in employment and education for all residents of the "Commonwealth." In a month we'll all know whether symbols have yet again prevailed over substance. The choice is ours.

Greg Maney
Prince

Struggle personified by image

Sometimes at a critical moment in world affairs, a televised image has been able to galvanize public sentiment and impact history. How can a mere image change history? When there is already a critical mass concerned about events — whether killing during the Vietnam War, emaciated children in Africa or wanton political terror as in Haiti today — an image that is compelling and widely disseminated can seize the moral conscience and force change.

For me such an image was conveyed on the public television series "Frontline." While probing the history of Haiti and explaining the current forces blocking the way for the rightfully elected priest, Jean-Bertrand Aristide, to return to power, the camera focused on a nameless black man writhing in agony on the sun-baked street. He had been shot down and lay helpless, beseeching any brave passerby to save him. The only actual response he received was that of an enraged fellow citizen who stuck him with a straw basket. And the documentary's commentator somberly announced that he finally bled to death on that very spot.

Some will wonder what the man did to die so ignominiously. In Haiti today, the truth is one may be murdered for no reason. Of course, to dare to publicly support exiled leader Aristide is to risk violent assault by the "attaches," vicious defenders of the current status quo. A status quo that translates into the chance of victimization if you are one of the 67 percent of the populace who supported Aristide and is entrenched with the help of the wealthy elite who are glad to have Lieut. Gen. Raoul Cedras and his henchman, Lieut. Col. Francois use force to ensure that democracy does not flourish.

Cedras and Francois are also among those who insist on complete amnesty for themselves and others who deposed Aristide and are believed responsible for the upsurge in political murders since then. Such men also are suspected of coordinating an elaborate drug smuggling operation using Haiti as a linkage point for $100-500 million in profits, most of it from the U.S. tellingly, our government's evidence is sketchy. Meanwhile, everyone from pundits to policy makers laments the current stalemate in Haiti.

Some argue that with a 75 percent illiteracy rate, unrelenting poverty (Haiti is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere) and no history of citizen participation in governance, the current reign of terror is unavoidable.

I will keep thinking of that dying man in the dust and ask why his countrymen - and mine - did nothing. Perhaps the poet T.S. Elliot was right. The world will not end in a bang but with a whimper. As long as someone else is the victim, it is easy to be unaffected. But who will be there when you are the target? Will anyone hear the whimpers then? Does anyone hear it now?

R. Jay Allain
Springfield

The duck and the leprechaun

Many casual drug users are finding an alternative to marijuana. By discarding the junkie image as a scare tactic of conservatives, they're venturing into the gilded corridors of heroin.

Little do they know that these doors form a maze. Pardon my poetics: I hope to liven up an issue that you may believe you have heard many times before.

Once upon a time there was a duck. He was very sad. The duck's life was falling to pieces, because he had to spend all his time and energy searching for food.

Then one day a leprechaun visited him, saying: "I am the Ruby Bein of drug deals. I can give you all the happiness you need, if you'll but do me a favor. You see the most beautiful flowers are growing in the center of the pond. But, as you know, if leprechauns so much as touch water they disintegrate. But, with you being a duck and all, it would be so easy for you—"

"Yeah, yeah, yeah!" grunted the duck impatiently. "What could you possibly give me that would cause me to have all the happiness I need?"

"Didn't you know?" said the leprechaun in surprise. "Leprechauns can give any mortal creature whatever the creature wants."

"Great!" exclaimed the duck. "Give me bread and I'll give you the flower."

"Very well. See that cave over there? From now on whenever you enter it you will be showered with bread."

So the duck gave the leprechaun the flower and then the duck lived happily ever after..? No, it's not that simple.

Because the duck had no reason to roam the countryside in search of food, the duck missed out on all the beautiful sights of this countryside.

And whenever he thought: "Maybe I should go for a stroll," the duck's stomach would answer: "Why not simply grab a bite to eat? That's much easier!"

Soon, the duck grew so fat that he couldn't walk anymore. He just sat in the cave, eating bread all day long. Friends came to visit, but his mouth was too full of bread to speak.

The point? Without some sort of pain, there cannot be beauty. When one tries to make all of life beautiful, then life becomes completely painful. Please, take my fairy tale seriously.

Francis Tokarski
Southampton

■ TEAMS

continued from page 3

ing with the students has also helped her strengthen her patience and understanding.

Henderson calls TEAMS a "very rewarding experience," and she knows first hand how benefitting a project like this could be for all high school students. During her junior and senior years in high school, a young woman from Harvard was her mentor through a program between Boston English High School and Harvard University.

Monica Nascimento, a graduate student in the School of Education has been with TEAMS for a year a half and is now a seminar facilitator.

Nascimento became interested in education while being a teaching assistant as an undergraduate in Los Angeles helping mostly ESL students. She wanted to find out why ESL students were kept separate from the mainstream and felt it was unfair. When she arrived at the UMass campus she came across Maloy, was recruited and has remained with the program ever since.

"It is a huge commitment," said Nascimento. "And you get exactly what you put into it."

Collegian Classifieds
113 Campus Center
545-3500
Mon. - Fri.
8:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

White House has offered lawmakers for their votes, Bonior added, "It will depend on how much pressure members of Congress fell from their constituents whether we hold our own."

Richardson said he had tallied 199 votes for the treaty and about 192 opponents. Bonior said he counted 221 NAFTA opponents, 10 others leaning that way, 161 backers and 20 leaning toward support.

As expected, the AP survey showed that support for the trade compact is much stronger among Republicans than Democrats.

Among Democrats, 78 House members support the agreement or are likely to, while 155 oppose it or probably will.

On the GOP side, there are 102 supporters or likely "yes" votes, and 47 certain or probable opponents.

■ Bursar

continued from page 3

In addition to handling the University bills and the disbursement of loan money, the Bursar's Office is responsible for all of the campus receipts, totaling $27 million. The Bursar's Office also handles the mail for each department on campus, Mishol said.

Mishol said relations between the Bursar's Office and students can be improved if both sides understand each other's situation.

"[Students] need to understand we are not holding money back and that we don't control funds, we just distribute them," he said. "The process [of distributing loan checks] is frustrating because it takes so long."

Mishol said despite its short staff and lack of funds, the Bursar's Office is committed to serving students.

"We are primarily a student office," he said. "We have only three professionals and 14 employees for the entire office, but we are continually trying to be helpful. People who come to the Bursar's Office are usually there to pay a bill, and we try to make it as easy as possible for them."

CopyCat
PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840

RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles

*Bulk Rate Copies...
OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

There's A New Way to Get to Mt. Tom.
Here's a hint:
Now it's even easier to ski closer to home! And purchasing a combination bus/lift ticket saves you money, too! Take the Peter Pan bus, any day of the week, from any one of these locations and enjoy great skiing day and night at nearby Mt. Tom:
AMHERST/UMASS HARTFORD
NORTHAMPTON MIDDLETOWN
SPRINGFIELD MERIDEN
BRIDGEPORT NEW HAVEN
Mt. TOM SKI AREA
Peter Pan
Route 5, Holyoke, MA • Call Peter Pan for info: 781-2900

TRAVEL SMART THIS WINTER!
FROM NEW YORK
Roundtrip One Way
London $305 $165
Paris $398 $219
Rome $525 $320
Oslo/Stockholm $458 $229
Tel Aviv/Istanbul $639 $329
Guatemala City $390 $205
Costa Rica $430 $225
Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Customs-immigration and departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

MICHAEL'S
Billiards and Sports Bar
Mon.-Thurs 4-1
Fri.-Sat. 1-1
AMHERST, MA
FREE PIZZA
Every Sunday & Monday Night
For All NFL Games
2 for 1 SPECIAL
Tues., Wed., & Thurs.
2 hrs of pool for the price of 1
LIVE D.J.
Every Thursday & Saturday Night
Friday is Karoke Night
OPEN POOL TOURNY
Every Weds. at 7:30 pm
$ $ CASH PRIZES $ $
Route 9 East, Amherst, Next to Hunan Garden

MUSLIM STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
of the Five College Area
PRESENTS
IMAM WARITH DEEN MOHAMMED
TO LECTURE ON
RACE RELATIONS IN AMERICA: An Islamic Perspective
Malcolm (X) Shabazz inquires of W. Deen Mohammed
7:00 PM
TUESDAY, NOV 16
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
FREE ADMISSION
COPYRIGHT: ZETA PSI THETA FRATERNITY INC.

Arts & Living

Gospel choirs sound off at FAC

Multitude of voices raised in unison for the Lord

By TARA CONNELLY
Collegian Correspondent

Love Fellowship Choir &
Western Massachusetts District Choir
Fine Arts Center
Nov. 13

You can dance to pop music, swing to jazz, and mosh to most alternative tunes, but nothing quite lifts your soul and sends you to your knees like gospel. The powerful sound of a multitude of voices raised in perfect unison and harmony is something few people get to experience, yet on Saturday night at the Fine Arts Center, some people had a chance to see the light.

The evening's performance opened up with the University of Massachusetts' own Gospel Choir. The house lights went down, and from off-stage came the singing of voices rising in volume as they approached the stage.

"Trust in the Lord with all your hearts and lead us into our own understanding," began the first song as members of both the choir and the audience clapped hands and swayed to the music. The choir sang three more songs and left the stage with a well warmed up audience.

Next to take the stage escorted by the slow, funky beat of a bass, piano and drums, was the Western Massachusetts District Choir directed by David Marshall Jackson. The choir began chanting, "Go down Moses, way down in Egypt land. Let my people go." This is a popular hymn that was used by Martin Luther King during his freedom marches and was also used by the Underground Railroad to signal that someone was escaping.

Among the highlights of their performance was a "duet" sung by two women whose voices were echoed by the choir. The two women filled the hall, blending their voices in harmony and causing both the choir and the audience to throw themselves into the heartfelt and soulful vibrations of the song.

Finally, Hezekiah X. Walker appeared to lead his Love Fellowship Crusade Choir. The choir of approximately 20 people filed in casually, as if attending a church social rather than facing a concert hall filled with an expecting audience. Yet, when music began, Walker didn't disappoint them. Their first song opened up with a loud bass riff. The choir immediately threw themselves (literally) into the music and began belting out, "Jesus is the light of the world."

From their faster, funkier songs like, "Lord Send Your Spirit Down" to their slower more reflective songs like, "I'm So Grateful You've Blessed Me," Walker kept the choir and the audience whipped into a constant frenzy.

"I sing to administer to the heart," said Walker, wiping his sweating brow, "not to make your flesh happy. If I reach your heart you'll be happy regardless of what happens. That's what gospel music is all about."

Walker then invited anyone who wanted to go up on stage where he then led the entire audience in a final song that had people dancing and clapping, suddenly being charged with a wave of energy. People left the concert hall after the show smiling, maybe just a little bit more hopeful about the world then when they first stepped in.

Cracker brings humor and rock

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

Dave Lowery, formerly of Camper Van Beethoven fame, and his new band Cracker will be hitting Pearl Street tonight in support of their new album Kerosene Hat.

Cracker released their self-titled debut album at the beginning of last year. The name of the band is a joke on trying to be a "soul" band, Cracker is slang for white boy. The album has a more rockin' guitar sound that has obvious influences of blues and country. It has a sense of humor that is refreshing and typical of Dave Lowery. One of the more memorable lines from the album is found on the classic "Teen Angst," which says, "What the world needs now is another folk singer, like I need a whole in my head/ What the world needs now, is a new Frank Sinatra, so I can get you in bed."

Other great tunes off their debut are, "Happy Birthday to Me", "St Cajetun" and the aptly put "Don't Fuck Me Up with Peace and Love".

Their newest release, Kerosene Hat, takes on where the last album left off. The first single off the album, "Low" is catchy little ditty amidst other rocking songs, like "Movie Star", "Get Off This" and a song with no name (Song 88 on CD).

"I think the real test is if you can put on an exciting show live. That's the part that I enjoy the most. Every night we just want to rock. Nobody's worrying about the hotel room, or what the catering was like," says Lowery, of the band known for their manic, anything-goes gigs. Tonight's show should be no exception.

Cracker is performing at Pearl Street tonight with opening band Flop. Call 584-7771 for ticket info, and showtime.

1st ANNUAL
CAREER FAIR
Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors
ALL MAJORS WELCOME
100 COMPANIES INVITED
Co-op, Internships,
Entry Level Jobs
Undergraduate Research Projects
Wednesday, November 17, 1993
9:00am - 5:00pm
The Campus Center Auditorium
•For more info call Julius Randall or Alba Brown at 545-2030

The UMass Armenian Students Club cordially invites you to An Evening of Middle Eastern Folk Dance Instruction
by
Apo Ashjian
Director and choreographer of Boston's Nationally Renowned Armenian Dance Company Sayat Nova Day: Monday, November 15
Time: 8:00 pm
Place: UMass Student Union Building [go in through main entrance, follow signs for "Armenian Dancing"]
Admission is free and refreshments, including beverages, will be served.
Plagued by the burning question, "Just what is Armenian Folk Dancing, anyway??
Looking to add to your repertoire of dance moves?
Curious about Armenian culture?
Then this event is for you!
Here is your chance for a fun and relaxed introduction to Middle Eastern Folk dancing. All are welcome to participate. A treat for novices and experienced dancers alike!
Call Hank at 584-5503 or Chris at 253-9721 for more information.

ROOM CHOOSING PROCESS
FOR SPRING 1994
PLEASE READ CAREFULLY: IMPORTANT INFORMATION

CHANGING YOUR ROOM OR YOUR HALL

If you wish to move to another room in the same residence hall, you must sign up with staff on duty during the room choosing process on Wednesday evening, November 17. All room changes will be determined by your seniority and rank. THE ONLY EVENING TO SIGN UP FOR A NEW ROOM IN YOUR CURRENT HALL IS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17.

If you wish to move to another residence hall, you must complete a Housing Preference Form. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR CURRENT RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT WHILE ALSO REQUESTING A HALL CHANGE YOU MUST DO THE FOLLOWING:

1. Reserve your current room on or before November 16 or reserve a new room on Wednesday evening, November 17.
2. Fill out a Housing Preference Form. On the Preference Form in the lower right hand corner is a box you must "check" if you wish to be returned to your current hall if your choices cannot be met. YOUR OLD RESIDENCE HALL ASSIGNMENT IS GUARANTEED ONLY IF YOU DO BOTH STEPS.

ROOMMATE REQUESTS

If you wish to move to another residence hall to room with a student already assigned to that residence hall, you must together complete a green ROOMMATE REQUEST FORM. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING ROOMMATE REQUEST FORMS TO THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE IS THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

If you wish to become roommates with a student in a residence hall to which neither of you is currently assigned, you must each complete a Housing Preference Form. These forms should be identical, (with the exception of the "check" box) and stapled together. DEADLINE FOR RETURNING HOUSING PREFERENCE FORMS IS WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24.

DIDN'T GET THE ROOM YOU WANTED?

If, during the regular Room Choosing period, you were unable to secure a particular room or type of room (single or particular double), please contact the Housing Assignment Office to fill out a blue Room Change Request Form. Rooms that become available during Intersession will be assigned, according to seniority, to those residents who filled out these forms and returned them to the Housing Assignment Office.

PAY BILL BY DUE DATE

Your Spring 1994 fee bill will be mailed to your home in early December. If complete payment of this bill is not received by the Bursar's Initial Due Date (usually the first Friday in January), your assignment will be subject to cancellation. IF YOU ANTICIPATE HAVING A PROBLEM PAYING YOUR BILL PLEASE CONTACT THE HOUSING ASSIGNMENT OFFICE. WE WILL MAKE ARRANGEMENTS TO HOLD YOUR HOUSING UNTIL YOU ARE ABLE TO MAKE FULL PAYMENT.

OTHER THINGS TO REMEMBER

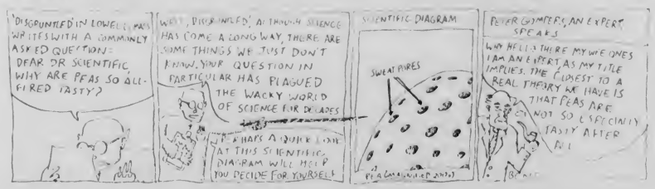
In addition to properly completing room choosing all students are required to remain in good standing with the University at all times. Being withdrawn for any reason after the end of the semester may automatically subject your assignment to cancellation. Check to make sure you do not owe any fees to the Bursar BEFORE you leave for intersession.

QUESTIONS? If you still have questions about the Room Choosing process, please contact the Housing Assignment Office (545-2100), 235 Whitmore. Thank you.

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH



BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Copy Editor ..... Dan Wetzel
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Susan Nasberg
Jamie Bearse

MENU

LUNCH	DINNER
Ravioli Alfredo	Stuffed Shells
Chicken Pucks	Beef & Snow Peas
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Ravioli Alfredo	Stuffed Shells
Falafel Pocket	Polynesian Veggies

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"How should they know about mystique? They've never been around it, so they wouldn't be able to recognize it."
– Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz referring to previously undefeated Florida St.

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An older person really means well. Make allowances. Rearrange office furniture to kill time and impress your boss. Jot down any money-making ideas that could come in handy later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Work conditions are gradually improving. Do not expect too much too soon. A meaningful romance fills you with joy. Your social plans may change at the last minute. Make time for children.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The emphasis today is on protecting your financial security. Throw away any unpaid bills. Go slow where your love life is concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You could feel indecisive or pressured this morning. Why force the pace? Feel free to bail on appointments, classes and dates. Just wing it. Your intuition is reliable in family affairs.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Now that you can almost taste the success you pick up a real bargain or gain an opportunity. A true meeting of minds is possible. Buy picture books and big crayons.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The financial picture brightens. You make lots of money and don't spend any of it. Family members apprise of a romantic commitment. The illness of a loved one makes you reassess your priorities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your career prospects improve, thanks to a lucky break. Share confidences with your recently-returned loved ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The emphasis now is on developing an enduring relationship with an attractive member of the opposite sex. Your friends love you, read the classifieds.

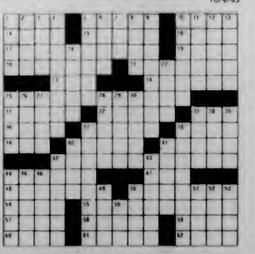
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You cannot afford to risk your money, not even for the sake of friendship. Wallow in materialism, you find yourself whistling while you work!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cultivating an unusual relationship could yield surprising rewards. Take time to talk to all the weirdos you can find. Creativity pays big dividends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Career advancement is a top priority now. Record gains come through publicity and advertising. Romance could take an upward turn or plummet. Count daisy petals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Think twice before you speak and look before you leap. In short, take the precautions any sensible person would to prevent errors and losses. Check with your mom before you make any decision.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Jewish month
5 Low-lying areas
10 Type of exam
14 Seldom seen
15 Tibetan resident
16 Tree trunk
17 Domestic counselor for 25 Across
19 Start of a soliloquy
20 Covers and 21 Lay some claims
23 — -mo. film speed
24 Sprays (in the air)
26 Fuel (see also 1993-51)
31 Having supplies of vital material for the navy
36 Pigeon N. England
37 Tropical Asian tree
38 Achieve by opposite of NHI
40 — -Unions (unit)
41 Twinkle
42 White House aide for 25 Across
44 Sound system
47 HDI opponent
48 Ballet support
50 Weight watchers
54 Verb opera
55 White House chief of staff for 25 Across
57 Ft. Indy women
58 Pupil to Pierre
59 Actress Talbott
60 Pursuit
61 Stitched
62 Doe's mate

DOWN
1 Locality
2 Morse code sounds
3 Opposites of depts.
4 Appreciates
5 Author Hugo
6 Brit. gardening members
7 Take it on the — line
8 Namesakes of Rainbo's aunt
9 Levies on vices
10 Achieve
11 Spanish salsa
12 Flyweight Ederle
13 City in Yorkshire
18 Mattress by Mizpah
22 Spot of beer
25 Bird pigs
28 Summer setting
27 Hood employees
28 Mom pairings
29 U.S. can. in command
30 Continuing on and
32 Assault on the hedge
33 Captured
34 Hide away
35 As dark as night
37 Evens out
38 Shines like the sun on snow
39 Ripens
41 Run as mates
42 John Travolta's son
43 Captured
44 Hide away
45 Well-worn
46 Sea duck
49 Perry and Della's creator
50 Baseball's Winfield
51 Express
52 Pro —
53 Impedimenta
56 Chop

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

A	L	I	B	A	B	A		D	O	G	E	S
S	T	A	R	R	I	E	R		A	M	E	R	C	E
M	E	T	E	O	R	I	C		O	E	M	E	A	N
U	L	E		M	E	G	A	T	O	N		M	R	S
O	I	E	D		E	D	E	N	Y		D	I	V	E
G	I	N	U	S		E	R	G		I	T	E	L	A
L	A	S	A	I	N	E		A	R	M	R	E	S	I
			E	L	O	N		N	O	O	N
R	I	D	O	L	E	D		I	W	O	D	O	O	R
I	N	R	O		L	E	M		S	L	I	P	A
A	D	A	M		A	U	L	A	S	L	I	M
L	O	C		W	A	R	R	E	N	S		B	A	S
I	O	U	C	A	N		O	Y	N	A	M	I	T	E
D	R	L	O	N	S		E	T	A	G	E	R	E	S
S	A	N	T	A		R	E	M	A	N	D	S

10/9/93

Angst, sickness underly tunes

Possum Dixon
Possum Dixon
Interscope Records

Every once in a while a band comes along that breathes some fresh air into the sometimes stale music industry. Possum Dixon, who hails from Los Angeles, is on of these bands. "Quirky" pop songs that vaguely recall early '80s new-wave (remember Devo?) highlight their debut.

Trax On Trax Off

What makes the band's sound so distinct is vocalist/bassist Rob Zabrecky's whiny, angst-ridden voice. Zabrecky delivers his vocals, which range from songs about working dead-end jobs to being jilted by a girlfriend, with the intensity of a madman. This unique vocal style mixed with catchy pop hooks will leave these songs stuck in your head for days.

If you're sick of the rut that alternative music seems to be stuck in, give Possum Dixon's twisted pop world a try. A- (Matthew Audette)

Not Richard, But Dick
The Dead Milkmen
Hollywood Records

It's always been a stretch to count The Dead Milkmen as a legitimate band and not just a gimmick. But hey, if the Milkmen are a gimmick, so too must be Zappa and They Might Be Giants. This one's not just goofy, it's downright sick.

The Milkmen exhibit their infamous sardonic approach, with a halfway decent musical backing, and halfway decent is all that's needed. "Let's Get The Baby High" tells of a twisted mom who derives pleasure from forcing her baby to inhale gas fumes until she encounters a man of conflicting views. It's funny, really.

Masterfully executed goofiness and sickness - a fun listen. B (Adam Goulston)

Sleepwalking
Kingmaker
Chrysalis

It's refreshing when a band with the talent for writing catchy hooks with accompanying neat lyrics falls into the hands of good production. And once they sound great, it seems natural. Sleepwalking is this British band's catchy and neat second disc.

Lawrence "Loz" Hardy's very English pipes work best on snappier tunes; "Armchair Anarchist," "Queen Jane," "Ten Years Asleep." When he takes the tempo down, "Sleepwalking in the Five O'Clock Shadow," he faulters a bit. Some of the lyrics stretch to be profound.

So long as the tempo stays up, there's plenty of alternative radio-friendly (but not too cheesy) hits here. B- (A.G.)

Lilies bloomed

By JASON BRAD
Collegian Correspondent

Water Lilies
Kirby Theater, Amherst College
Nov. 13

People from as far away as Columbus, Ohio, came to Amherst College last Saturday to see this year's final U.S. appearance of Water Lilies, the dance piece of father and son team, Kazuo and Yoshito Ohno. The sold-out performance earned Kazuo, the acknowledged master and co-founder of Butoh, a dance movement he originated in Japan, in reaction to the traditional Kabuki form, two standing ovations.

French painter Claude Monet provided Kazuo with inspiration for the six-scene performance.

"The paintings are a record of his attempt to overcome a nearly impossible challenge. Inspired by Monet, I decided to use all of my experiences, to create a world of transparency, of reality and fantasy, floating up from within beauty," Kazuo writes.

Although the dance master exhibited an ageless grace during his performance, the parallel between him and the old painter with fading eyesight suggested kinship between the two elderly artists.

The show fluctuated between continuous performances by Kazuo and Yoshito. Each gradually supplanted the other from the stage, the characters representing opposite themes; light and darkness, man and woman, contortion and rigidity. These scenes were distinguished by fades to darkness, subtle changes in the color of light, costume and, most importantly, music. The choice of music was notably western, and varied from opera by Schubert to Pink Floyd.

The reaction of the audience ranged from praise and awe to confusion. Although the theater remained crowded from the performance through the reception afterward, people lingered in groups and obviously reluctant to leave, many found the show difficult to follow. One audience member noted that the tie between the Ohnos' performance and Monet's painting was obscure; others said that it took some time to get used to the form. Judging by the faces of the audience, however, very few must have left unmoved. Two encore improvisations by Kazuo provided the most affecting performances of the night.

WHERE DO YOU GO FROM HERE?

We have a suggestion the GRE/CGS Forum on Graduate Education.

BOSTON
Westin Copley Place
10 Huntington Avenue
Saturday,
November 20, 1993

Registration begins at 8 a.m.

GRE FORUMS

Ask representatives of graduate schools about their programs and obtain catalogs and application forms

In addition, you can attend special workshops on various graduate disciplines, financial aid, and preparing for the GRE exam. There are also workshops for minority and returning students

Best of all, the admission fee is only $5, which makes the GRE Forum the smart place to go

For more information call (609) 951-1562.

Individuals who are hearing impaired and wish to request an interpreter must contact ETS at least four weeks prior to The Forum

Sponsored by the GRE Board and the Council of Graduate Schools. EDUCATIONAL TESTING SERVICE, ETS, and the ETS logo design and GRE are registered trademarks of Educational Testing Service.

BRANDYWINE REGIMENTS

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE.
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street House 9
Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-in's are Welcome

Winter Intersession 1994

Make Your Winter Break Really Count!

January 3 - 15

Don't put your education on ice this Winter Break – enroll in UMass Lowell's Winter Intersession. This highly concentrated session is perfect if you want to earn college credit to get ahead in your educational program. If you're enrolled in another university, it's a great way to earn transfer credits!

Day Classes: Mon-Sat, 9:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Evening Classes: Mon-Fri, 6:00-9:30 p.m. and Sat, 1:00-4:30 p.m.

Credit Courses (3 credits) available in:

- Liberal Arts
- Sciences
- Mathematics
- Computers
- Social Sciences
- Management
- Music

Cost: $100/undergraduate credit

UMASS LOWELL Continuing Education

For a Winter Intersession Course Bulletin, call the Division of Continuing Education/Office of Enrollment Services at (508) 934-2480. Or just fill out the coupon below and mail it to: University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Avenue, Lowell, MA 01854-2881.

Name: _____ AP
Address: _____
City: _____ State: ____ Zip: ____
Phone: ( ) _____
Institution Currently Attending: _____

UMASS LOWELL
Continuing Education

UMassLowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Title IX University.

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER 7:30-8:30
Followed by NFL Monday Night Football

TALK Football with Mike Hodges

- Free T - Shirts
- Halftime Appetizer Blitz
- Pre-game Buffet

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

CNN WTTT AM 1430

■ soccer

continued from page 1

the net, leaving LeDuc motionless on the field.

The ball headed for the goal, where Husky defender Susan Stabach was able to get a piece of the ball, but could not stop it from going in.

"(Rebecca) chipped it in to me and I was running and I just chipped it over (Gilfenbine)," said LeDuc, who scored the game winner in UMass' 2-1, overtime, playoff victory against UConn, last season. "Then I got knocked out. I didn't even know it went in. I had to ask my trainer when she came out if it went in."

LeDuc, who suffered a bruised shin in UMass' 5-0 victory over Providence Saturday, in the NCAA First Round, almost didn't play. When she awoke Sunday morning she was unable to walk and went to the team breakfast on crutches.

"When I got to the field I just said I have to push through one more game, I have to play," LeDuc said.

Massachusetts was able to run the rest of the hard fought game out, as the defense was its typical stifling self. Paula Wilkins, Amy Trunk, Heidi Kocher and Erin Lynch stuffed most opportunities in front of Scurry, who recorded her fifth straight shutout and 15th in 22 games this season.

As with most UConn-UMass battles, defense controlled the game (neither team had many great scoring opportunities), and the difference between victory and defeat rested on who got the break. Yesterday it was UMass.

"Usually one team gets a break and that's the difference," said UConn Coach Len Tsantaris. "This was a back and forth game, we had our moments and they had their moments."

It will be UMass' first Final Four appearance under sixth year coach Jim Rudy, who was treated to a water-jug-over-the-head shower after the game by a group of rambunctious fans. UMass last qualified for the national semifinals in 1987. The victory proved a Rudy-led UMass team could clear the final hurdle and make the Final Four.

"This is a pretty good feeling," said Rudy, who celebrated his 42nd birthday yesterday. "The team gave me a great birthday present."

The task on Friday is daunting. North Carolina has won 79 games in a row, captured 10 of the 11 NCAA Championships and stars midfielder Mia Hamm, who scored her 101st career goal yesterday, in the Tar Heels' 3-1 victory over Florida International.

But Friday is four days away, plenty of time to worry about Carolina. Yesterday needed to be savored, at least for a few hours, because it was a great day for the Minutewomen.

■ field hockey

continued from page 12

including three more penalty corner chances, but could not convert.

"In the second half we showed a lot of character and poise when we got down 2-0 to come back and have a chance to tie the game," said Hixon. "Once we scored we played a much stronger game."

The Minutewomen finished their season at a very impressive 19-3. Hixon paused to reflect on the season following the game.

"We had a great year," said Hixon. "We showed character all season. They were a lot of fun to work with."

■ hockey

continued from page 12

goalie Rob Horn played well for the Falcons, giving up only two goals and turning back 17 shots to keep his team in the game, but like the night before, UMass' offense exploded in the second period.

The Minutemen tallied two goals early driving Horn from the net. His replacement Aaron Abitz was shelled as well, giving up two power play goals in the second period, to give UMass a 6-2 lead.

UMass scored four more in the third to complete the blowout.

"We couldn't control their size and speed," said Fitchburg Coach Dave Fuller. "They completely controlled the neutral zone.

UMass Coach Joe Mallen was pleased with his team's performance.

"I'm damn proud of these guys," said Mallen. "I think we did a really good job."

The Minutemen return to action next week when they travel to UMass Dartmouth.

■ football

continued from page 12

Knight throwing two TD passes to Michael Tomlin (including a beautiful one-handed catch) and Troy Keen running for a 6 yard touchdown. With the score 45-21 late in the fourth quarter, Campanile again connected with Thimas for an 18 yard TD, but it was too little too late.

"These kids work very, very hard, and they lay their guts out on the line play after play," said Hodges. "It's hard for them. We'll be back though."

"We're going to try everything we can to send that senior group out of here at 8-3, because they deserve it."

■ Knight

continued from page 12

motions and looks, combined with Knight and a slew of fine receivers and backs make the package complete.

"Sean Knight is a great football player," said Massachusetts head coach Mike Hodges. "He's as good as we've played against in a long time. They've got all the weapons."

"A team like that, you can't give them too many chances," said wideout Eric Thimas (two touchdowns). "They have a high-powered offense."

The Tribe came out throwing confidently from the first play from scrimmage, not afraid to air it out on first down. That proved to be key in keeping the Minutemen's defensive pressure in check.

With a post season berth at stake in the game for both teams, it was all-or-nothing on both sidelines.

"[William and Mary] really executed well," said Hodges. "We threw the house at them. We gave them everything we had in our playbook."

"We were the masters of our destiny at one o'clock this afternoon," said Thimas.

But as it became dark over Warren McGuirk stadium, there was no denying the Knight and William and Mary.

It's coming...

The 1993-94 Massachusetts Basketball Season Preview

With features on all the Minutemen, the outlook for the Atlantic 10 Conference, and a look at UMass' non-conference schedule.

Only in the Collegian.

This Thursday, November 18th.

Don't miss it!

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J.: Tasos
Friday, Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Entrepreneurs College Pro Painters will be running an informational session on Wednesday in CC room 802. Come in and find out about us.

Come find out about
Sorority Life
Open house at 38 Nutting, Tuesday 7pm
Alpha Chi Omega

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name + address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Interested in Video Production?
Call Jim or Teri at 586-6922 to find out more about internships at a local television station!

Rece Relations in America: An Islamic perspective, talk by Imam W. D. Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413 467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

Audi 4000S 1985 4 dr auto loaded Good condition $2200 b/o 586-8486

For Sale - 86 Pontiac Firebird Mint condition a/c alpine auto w/overdrive $3900 Call Kevin 256-3119

1982 Dodge Colt (Mitsubishi) hatch back 100,000 miles, reliable, well maintained $995 586-5447

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 Miles only
Excellent Condition
$4000 Call 546-1482

1992 GrandAm Seden 16V 4cyl., auto, ABS, cruise, alarm system, AC, am/fm/tape deck. Warranty in effect 26,500 miles $9300 neg. KAYO 256-4153

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

We must announce new hours & prices
Hours M-Th 7p-1e, F & S 7 p 2 a
Cookies now 4.00 a dozen
(Still the best deal in town)
Milk 1.25 a qt Ben&Jerry's still 3.50
#549-MIX4

We are pleased to say
We're here to stay
And its all because of you
The Cookie Man

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat - fireplace

1 bedroom available for female this Spring in Puffton Village call/leave message 549-7756

Room For Rent
Starts Jan 1
1 mile to campus
Call 549-2709

Take Over my lease
2 bedroom Puffton
Jan 1 549-6267

Take Over our lease! Spacious 2 bedroom townhouse. On bus route. Call 549-0310

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Car Stereo System
JVC CD receiver and 350W
Kenwood Speaker Box with
Acoustic Amp call Matt at 596-8543

For Sale
Neon signs $50 100
"Roller Blades" $50
Call 549-3749

For Sale brand new women's ski boots size 7 $70 256-1511

Laser/CD Player, monitor, radio, cassette recorder, tennis & raquetball racket 546-5698

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Moutain Bike $80
Grand Prix Guitar $50
Sims Blade Snowboard $225
Dave 549-8188

Personal Protection Device - (PAAL) Compact electronic alarm about the size of a beeper. Easy to use and carry. Available in black and yellow. Must sell. If interested call Jarrett at 256-3076. Very Cheap.

17 1/2" Specialized "Stumpjumper" mountain bike in excellent condition $200 Call days 549-1728

Skis - Fischer 200 mm, bindings Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

HAYDEN & STAPES

Welcome ho-me, boy a! The weekend just wasn't the same without you, but somehow we survived. We're still beautiful, the weather was there. See ya in JA. Love, the M&M Sisters.

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000 $6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1 206 545 4155 ext. A5001

EARN UP TO $10/HOUR
Motivated students needed for P/T Marketing positions at your school! Flexible hours Call today! 1-800-950-1037 ext. 3024

Free Trips & Cash*******
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre!
Call now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617 424-8222

Get up, stand up! Work on Clean Water Action's Campaigns Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA, activists wanted Flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week Need work over break start working for us now Call Dan 584-9830

PCA for male quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 548-0666

$287.50 Sell 50 hilarious college t-shirts - profit $287.50 22 designs including alcohol, safe sex, misc. A risk free program call now for free catalog 1-800-304-3309

INSTRUCTION

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

IT'S THE BEST

Mill Valley - what a place to live! And you can join us in our wonderful two bedroom apartment. Just think free heat and hot water!!! We're looking for two people to share one BIG bed room with its very own bathroom. Call 253-4789 for details. Don't delay!

LOST

Lost Wallet:
Please return license
and any other article you don't want
Or call 549-4226

MIKE MORRISSEY

Happy 21st Birthday, Mike!! Tonight - all of us - uptown. Shot for shot. Love, the Happy Days Gang

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

Anne,
Remember, AMS! Cheer up!
- Erin

BUDDY WE'VE GOT PROMISES TO KEEP AND MILES TO GO BEFORE WE SLEEP.
I'LL WAIT. LOSER
YOUR BUDDY

Colonial
I can't wait for formal
I love you!
Your favorite chicken

Dear Dee - Danny thanks you for your companionship. I love you guys. Love Rick

Happy Belated Birthday Mo. F. and only seven days Janey M.! Love your roomie, Cheryl

Jessica
Get ready for an incredible
night uptown!
Happy Birthday!!
Love,
Lisa and Beth

Laurin
Have a great birthday
!
Love
You
Love
Chris

MATT
Keep working hard with all your projects! Remember I LOVE YOU with all my heart
Jenn

Melissa Myers,
Happy Birthday!
Phi Love,
The Sisters and Pledges of AEPhi

Michelle,
Thanks for the best
month yet!!
Happy 1 month, honey
I Love You!!
- Pervez

"My newly found passion"
Don't wait - act now! :D

Nazim,
Meh tumse pyar karti houn
tu chica lleana

Norman
You sound like a loser
Get a life!
Beautiful woman

Sororities Beware
The Sig Ep Tsunami is coming
We have already saturated
Sigma Kappa and Chi Omega
You could be next

To Lisa Berkowitz
Best of luck on your 21st Stay Sober
From Mom and Dad Berkowitz
Say hallo to Jovial

SWM, 23, 6 ft tall, 150 lbs., brown eyes/hair w/an athletic build enjoys cycling, quiet w/nter nights, and good conversation. Looking for an attractive 20- SWF who is athletic, mature and intelligent to spend some quality time with
Please Respond Here

To the Greet Girls of 6 Griggs
Here's to a great sr. year.
Love, Clarice
P.S. Love ya suit!

To number14 on the hockey team
I am sooo hot for you
Love
Your Secret Admirer

Walter
I love you more than my cat does
Ethyl

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village. 190/mo 549-1816

One Bedroom Available in two bedroom apartment
Amherst Center
237.50 + month
Call 256-3586

SERVICES

Have you been ripped off by a retailer? Contact the Legal Services Center regarding your rights as a consumer 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable 413 467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential service. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Facthinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

Typing, Spellcheck, laser quality $1.50/pg. Roadrunner 585-9434

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 548-4722

Sublet
Looking for a 2 bedroom apt
Preferably in Puffton. Call 8-1196

WANTED INTERSESSION Off Campus Housing ommuter students and landlords. We have students who want to sublet over intersession. Please register your room, house or apartment with us at CSHRC (formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am 4pm, 545-0865 428 Student Union.

Sports

Minutemen defeated by powerful Tribe, Knight

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

On a cold, cloudy day amidst a crowd of just 3,222, the University of Massachusetts football team had their six game winning streak snapped as they fell to William and Mary 45-28 on Saturday afternoon at Warren McGuirk Stadium.

William & Mary 45
Massachusetts 28

Shawn Knight, the junior All-American quarterback for the Tribe (8-2 overall, 6-1 in Yankee Conference) befuddled the Minutemen defense, completing 25 of 32 passes for 318 yards and three touchdowns.

In several instances in the game, the Minutemen (7-3, 4-3) had Knight in their grasp, and in those instances, he somehow scrambled away and was able to pass. Other plays, he had all the time in the world, as the strong offensive line failed to let the high-powered Minuteman defense get to the quarterback.

Knight threw a 30 yard pass flatfooted, and hit the receiver in the numbers in the process, during the first half. He proved to be one of the most talented players the Minutemen has faced this season.

"I'll tell you what, Shawn Knight is a great football player," said coach Mike Hodges. "He's got great poise, great ability. We tried changing things up on him, but it didn't phase him a bit. He's as good as we have played against in a long, long time."

"Intelligence and decision-making (are Shawn's best qualities)," said Tribe coach Jimmye Laycock. "He makes it easy to coach. Just put the ball in his hands."

Another key ingredient of the Tribe's powerful passing attack was the number of options Knight had. All in all, seven receivers caught passes for the Tribe, led by Cory Ludwig, who had 7 catches for 98 yards.

There were some standouts on defense for the Minutemen. Junior defensive end Brian Corcoran had two sacks on the day, including one on the last play of the first half for a loss of 13, giving him a team-high 12 QB sacks for the season. Senior free safety Matt Rajotte, who once again led the team in tackles on the day with eight, also had an interception, a pass deflection and a forced fumble.

The Minutemen looked to gain momentum from the outset. On just the second play of the first quarter, senior tailback John Johnson (11 carries, 90 yards) had a beautiful run of 56 yards.

After a couple of runs by Johnson and sophomore Rene Ingoglia (13-50), the Minutemen were in scoring position, but failed to convert against the top-ranked defense in the Yankee Conference. A 29 yard field goal attempt by freshman Eric Oke was blocked.

On the very next drive, Tribe kicker Chris Dawson booted a 29 yard field goal of his own. In the second quarter, the Minutemen took their only lead of the game on a 45 yard drive culminated by Ingoglia's 1 yard touchdown run. The Tribe then answered the Minutemen on the next drive with a TD by Greg Parker.

The next touchdown drive of the first half for the Tribe was assisted by Minuteman penalties, as a 10 yard face mask call and a 15 yarder for roughing the passer were assessed. Troy Keen ran 3 yards to put William and Mary up 17-7 with 22 seconds left in the second quarter. Minuteman QB Vito Campanile (7-13, 129 yards) had his first pass of the drive intercepted by Tribe free safety Erin McGuire, and the first half ended.

William and Mary once again gained momentum in the second half as they scored on a 10 yard run by Keen. The Minutemen then answered on the next drive as Campanile threw 62 yards to Eric Thimas (3 catches, 86 yards) for a TD.

In their last four drives of the game, the Tribe scored on three of them, with

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The Minutemen saw their winning streak snapped at the hands of a talented William and Mary squad on Saturday. They finish the regular season Saturday at home against New Hampshire.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

Tribe QB Knight proved too much for Minutemen

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

The tide was turning toward UMass.

In a five minute spurt during the third quarter, the Minutemen put 14 points on the board. A Rene Ingoglia 3-yard jaunt with 5:05 left in the quarter brought the hosts within 3 points at 24-21.

But that would be as close as they would get. And the main reason why was a 5-foot-11-inch, 170 pound scrambling demon named Shawn Knight.

The William and Mary quarterback, poised and composed, promptly drove his team to the UMass 12-yard line. The senior then set under the center, hollered the play call to his left and right, and proceeded to gracefully drop back into the pocket.

His soft pass to the back line of the end zone extended over the UMass coverage, just barely. Receiver Michael Tomlin, fully extended, snared the throw one-handed for the score. It was 31-24 William and Mary. Two Tribe possessions later, the lead was up to 45-21.

"The momentum during the game changed hands so often," said Knight. "That particular play really helped to keep it going in our favor. That was very important coming down the stretch to keep that momentum in our favor."

Knight was spectacular throughout the topsy-turvy matchup. He was 25 of 32 for 318 yards, with three touchdowns and one interception (a Matt Rajotte beauty). His agility and versatility posed a problem to the UMass defense, which simply could not bring him down when it had to.

"He's such a phenomenal athlete," said the gritty Rajotte. "We had some of our best guys in his face, wrapping him up and tearing him down. He'd just brush them off, spin out of tackles and rush downfield. He makes their offense three dimensional."

"He made minus yards into five yard positives," said defensive back Tony Williams. "That was the big difference."

Take nothing away from UMass here. They played an emotional, gutsy game. Simply, the William and Mary offense is high-octane, and very hard to shut down, let alone contain. Its different

Turn to KNIGHT, page 11

Minutewomen fall to Maryland

Two goal deficit too much for UMass to overcome

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts field hockey team fell to the Maryland Terrapins, 2-1, in the second round of the NCAA tournament yesterday.

Maryland 2
Massachusetts 1

No. 3 Maryland, who has been unbeatable at home this season, dominated UMass in the first half, but buoyed by the strong play of goaltender Hilary Rose, who had 20 saves in the loss, the game remained scoreless through most of the first half.

With less than two minutes remaining in the first half, Sabrina Salam dribbled up the right side and passed it across the penalty circle to Shannon Petrick. Petrick tapped it to Tara Everly who shot it past Rose giving UMD a 1-0 lead.

Taking a 1-0 lead into halftime, the Terrapins were in complete control of the game.

"We started sluggish and tentative," said UMass Coach Pam Hixon. "Maryland really controlled the ball in the first half."

At 11:36 of the second half, UMD scored again. Penalty corner setter Maureen Scott caught the Minutewomen off guard, when she flicked the ball in front of the net to Josephine Blauw who tapped it by Rose to give the Terrapins a two goal advantage.

The Minutewomen did not give up, and less than five minutes later cut the deficit in half when a Natalie Hart penalty corner blast was deflected by a Maryland defender past Terrapin goalie Irene Horvat.

The Minutewomen had chances to tie the score,

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 11

UMass whips Iona, Fitchburg St.

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

In its season opener, the University of Massachusetts ice hockey team was pounded 8-2 by Merrimack. They have not forgotten and have taken it out on every opponent since. The Minutemen extended their winning streak to four games as they pounded Iona (7-2) and Fitchburg State (10-3).

UMass 7, Iona 2
UMass 10, Fitchburg St. 3

The Minutemen were hitting on all cylinders on offense. Mike Evans tallied 5 goals and an assist to lead UMass. The Killer B's line of Rob Bonneau (4 goals, 2 assists), Blair Manning (2 goals, 2 assists) and Blair Wagar (2 assists) also played brilliantly.

The Iona Gaels came in touted as a Division III power, but left shaking their heads in amazement, Iona could muster very little on offense, learning the hard way, that dump and chase hockey is ineffective at UMass.

Bonneau opened up the scoring less than four minutes into the game, when Dennis Wright hit him with a cross-ice pass, that Bonneau slapped home.

Evans made it 2-0 with a shorthanded goal 10 minutes later flipping a a pass from Wright past Gael goalie John Balough.

Sean Braziel cut the Minuteman lead in a half at 18:20 as he stole the puck and beat Kilduff on the

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Mike Evans and the Minutemen put on a offensive display this weekend as they swept their weekend games against Fitchburg State and Iona.

short side, but it would not be nearly enough.

Thirty-seven seconds later Manning beat Balough to put UMass up 3-1 and the flood gates opened up. Warren Norris scored two second period goals and Evans added another to put the game out of reach.

After the first period it looked as if Saturday's game might be a close one as UMass only lead 2-1. Fitchburg

Turn to HOCKEY, page 11

Reasons for signing the W.E.B. Du Bois petition Page 6

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
55° Tuesday November 16, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 47
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

More votes are needed, Clinton says

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Struggling for votes with time running out, President Clinton leaned on Democrats opposing a trade agreement with Mexico on Monday and tried to hold Republican supporters. The White House tried to pick up farm-state votes with a wheat deal.

Two days before the showdown, the outcome rested with 42 House members, who said they were still undecided. Both sides said they had the votes to win.

Clinton argued there was nothing to lose by giving the agreement a chance.

"If all the nay sayers turn out to be [correct], the treaty gives us a right to withdraw in six months," he said.

"Why don't we just wait and see whether we're right or they're right?" Clinton said to small-business owners. "Ring the phones up," He implored, seeking to increase pressure on fence-sitting lawmakers.

The White House claimed to have picked up 15 votes over the weekend.

An Associated Press count found 206 lawmakers saying they would vote against the agreement or were likely to do so. On the other side, 186 lawmakers said they would vote for it; 42 were undecided. Clinton needs 218 votes to win.

Congressional sources said the administration struck

Turn to CLINTON, page 10

Just hanging around

MATT KELLY / COLLEGIAN

Clarissa and Jason Anderson take time to play after a hard day at school.

UMass enrollments inch upward, SAT scores drop

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press

Enrollment increased slightly this year at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, but standardized test scores of this year's freshmen are more than 15 percent lower than those five years ago. The number of students at UMass-Amherst increased by 16 to 24,298 — but that figure is 11 percent below the numbers for fall 1989.

Enrollment at the five campuses of the University of Massachusetts bounced back slightly this fall from a four-year decline, according to figures scheduled to be released next week.

But the average standardized test scores of incoming freshmen continued to plummet. At the flagship Amherst campus, for example, SAT results have fallen more than 15 percent in five years.

"I suspect they have to dig down further in the applicant pool," said Leo Richards, president of the UMass-Amherst faculty union.

University officials blame higher tuition, a drop in the number of high school graduates, the recession and other factors for enrollment declines. They say the brightest students are being wooed away by private colleges with scholarship offers that the struggling public universities can't match.

"Our bottom has remained the same, our middle has grown a bit, but the number of students at the top has fallen sharply," said Paul Rahmeier, vice president for academic affairs at UMass-Lowell, where overall enrollment is down this semester for the fifth straight year.

The dropping SAT scores are "a concern," said Rahmeier.

"It's not the sort of thing you want to do anything about. I wouldn't like to start getting elitist and turn down those students."

Lowell's engineering school is operating well below capacity as the demand for engineers declines. And the region from which it draws its students has been devastated by high-technology industry layoffs.

Meanwhile, as at other state schools, tuition and fees at the campus nearly tripled, from $1,764 a year for full-time resident undergraduats five years ago to $4,602 this year. Tuition and fees at Amherst total $5,467.

Other than Lowell, all the campuses posted incremental gains this fall. Average SAT scores at UMass-Amherst have declined from 1056 to 995 during that same period of time.

"It didn't just happen this fall," said Richards. "We lost about 250 faculty during the hard times of the late '80s and the early '90s, which means everyone has bigger classes, and there's less interaction."

He criticized the University for hiring two new administrators at a total cost of $185,000 a year instead of spending the money on student services. UMass-Boston Chancellor Sherry Penney also has received a controversial 44 percent raise, to a salary of $144,374.

At UMass-Boston, enrollment rose 2.6 percent to 13,820. The number of students at UMass-Dartmouth is up to 1 percent to 6,694. And at the medical school campus in Worcester, enrollment increased 2 percent to 591.

Statewide, enrollment was 57,888, versus 62,671 five years ago, according to the figures.

— Collegian staff member Darienne Hosley contributed to this story.

NAFTA: a stronger message

International community looks in hope to vote

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

Editors note: This is the first in a two-part news analysis on NAFTA

When Congress decides tomorrow on the faith of the North American Free Trade Agreement, it will send an important message to the world. NAFTA has become more than a trade pact. Latin America, the European Community and many Asian nations look at NAFTA, as the direction in which U.S. foreign policy will go. The stakes are high.

News Analysis

The Mexican government has pushed the trade agreement as the cornerstone of its reform package. Without NAFTA, Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari will lose important support for the painful measures his government has taken. These measures have proven effective for the economy, but at a strong social cost. The big free trade winners are the export-oriented sectors of the Mexican economy, while the losers appear to be the poor, at list within the next 10 years.

A recent conference on NAFTA held at UMass estimated that more than 10 million Mexicans, most of them from agricultural regions, would be displaced if the trade agreement is approved. In theory, the growing economy will create new opportunities for these workers and would earn them better wages. Then, they would be able to buy more material items (hopefully from the United States and Canada). It would make them able to eventually modernize their country. The Mexican government has chosen a development model based on free trade and, without NAFTA, the model falters. NAFTA also puts pressure on the Mexican government to enforce labor and environmental laws.

"NAFTA will not hurt and may help the environment," said Paul Krugman, professor of economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Moreover, there is no room for free zone enclaves where every article of a labor code is broken in a free trade environment.

Turn to NAFTA, page 10

Buttafuoco is sent to prison for rape

By PAT MILTON
Associated Press

Mineola, N.Y. — The saga that began in a Long Island auto body shop ended Monday in a courtroom where a handcuffed, smirking Joey Buttafuoco was led away to the same fate that befell his former lover, Amy Fisher — jail time.

Buttafuoco's expression never changed as he was sentenced to the maximum six months in prison, $5,000 fine and five years' probation for statutory rape.

Fisher, now 19, faced Buttafuoco for the first time since she shot his wife, Mary Jo, on May 19, 1992. In a nervous, barely audible voice, she spoke of the ill-fated relationship that began "when I was a 16-year-old with braces."

"This man took me to expensive restaurants and cheap motels," she said softly. "I am sad to say that he taught me well. He taught me to disrespect myself and to deceive my parents. Unfortunately, these were lessons that I learned too quickly."

The midday drama provided a certain closure to the case that has provided the grist for countless talk-show

Turn to BUTTAFUOCO, page 4

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, November 16

Support group — The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Support Group will meet from 3:30 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. The ongoing, drop-in group requires no pre-group interview. Check in at 127 Hills North on day of group, or call Lydia at 545-2337.

Social — The LBGA Infosocial will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center. Check schedule by elevator for room number.

Wednesday, November 17

Brown Bag Series — David Halperin, Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor of literature, will discuss "What is Lesbian and Gay Studies" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 917.

Rap group — The Bi Rap Group will meet from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Faculty seminar — David Halperin will present "The Queer Politics of Michel Foucalt" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center room 903.

Thursday, November 18

Political caucus — The LBGA Political Caucus will meet at 8 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

Friday, November 19

Social — The GLB Grad Group will hold a social from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Sunday, November 21

Radio show — "This Way Out," The GLB radio newsmagazine, will be broadcast at 1:05 p.m. on radio station WTTT 1430 AM.

Cafe — GLB Cafe, featuring folk singer Leah Zicari and local musicians Muddy Gene Pool, will begin at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theatre. Admission is $3 for UMass students, $5 general public.

Monday, November 22

Women's Union — The Lesbian Bisexual Women's Union will meet from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413B Student Union.

25 North Pleasant St.
256-8225
Call for Pick-Up or come in and choose your own slices!

Uptown Pizza
WOW!
Now Enjoy Two Different Styes of Pizza
The Traditional Thick Crust Pan Pizza and New York Style Pizza

FREE
Soft Drink with any Slice of Pizza*
*PER CUSTOMER

FREE FREE
This coupon good for one FREE
COLLEGIAN™ brand student paper
Offer good while supplies last. One COLLEGIAN brand student paper per person per day.
FREE FREE

STUDENT TRAVEL
1·800·777·0112
THE WORLD'S LARGEST STUDENT & YOUTH TRAVEL ORGANIZATION
STA TRAVEL

Advanced Lighting Workshop

Techniques and equipment of amateur and professional film and video production

Wednesday, November 17 from 7:00 to 8:30 PM

Union Video Center
Behind the Hatch or call 545-1336

1st ANNUAL CAREER FAIR
Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors
ALL MAJORS WELCOME
100 COMPANIES INVITED
Co-op, Internships, Entry Level Jobs Undergraduate Research Projects
Wednesday, November 17, 1993
9:00am - 5:00pm
The Campus Center Auditorium
•For more info call Julius Randall or Alba Brown at 545-2030

Local News

Muslim leader gives Islamic perspective

By MICHELE MONTEIRO
Collegian Staff

Son of the late Elijah Mohammad, and recent convert to true Islam, Wallace D. Mohammed, better known as Imam Warith Deen Mohammed, will share his unique perspective on how Islam deals with the issue of racism in America tonight at 7 in the Student Union Ballroom.

"Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective" is sponsored by the Muslim Students Association.

Imam Warith Deen Mohammed, born to the late Elijah and Clara Mohammed in 1933, is currently Imam or the Muslim religious leader in the society of Muslim Americans.

Mohammed acquired this leadership position through his work with the Muslim community. Mohammed, the Muslim American Spokesman for Human Salvation, has promoted human excellence through dialogue with leaders of Islam, Christianity and Judiasm.

Studying the Qur'an, God and humanity, Mohammed questioned the teachings of the Nation of Islam, as given to his father Elijah Mohammed, from the former leader, W.D. Fard. This challenging of the validitiy of the theology of the Nation of Islam, led to Mohammed's "excommunication" on February 26, 1975.

This day, following Elijah Mohammed's passing, was the date of his proposed succession to the leadership of the Nation of Islam.

Mohammed, understanding that the original intent of the Nation of Islam was to bring dignity to African-Americans, shifted his leadership scope to a more international focus.

He said in an interview with the Chicago Tribune that Islam wasn't "just about race." "Though we continue to identify with African-Americans," Mohammed said, "and to serve their special needs, we believe that all people should be welcome and included in the religion regardless of race, nationality, ethnicity or culture."

Islam, according to Deen Mohammed, is a "religion of unity" and "does not allow any discrimination."

Muslim Students Association President, Sabuur Abdul-Kareem said that the purpose of Imam Mohammed's speech this evening was to "contribute to the multicultural discussion on campus" by providing information to students about Islam.

The event according to Abdul-Kareem will commence with the welcoming address from the Dean of Students, Joanne Vanin.

Opening remarks will be given by Professor David DuBois of the Journalism and African American Studies Departments and Dr. Yvonne Haddad, professor of Islamic history..

Abdul-Kareem also said that Ishaa-Salat, one of the five Islamic prayers offered daily, will be given in group setting at the Cape Cod Lounge at 6:30 p.m.

COURTESY MUSLIM STUDENT ASSOCIATION
Imam Warith Deen Mohammed

Pornography promotes violence

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Staff

Exploitation, torture and the enslavement of women is the main focus of pornography today, said Cara Lee Birch, a legal advocate for the battered women's center, Necessity/Necessidadas.

Birch, who spoke in the Campus Center Monday night, said pornography can lead to violence against women.

The program, titled "Modern Day Enslavement: The Pornograghy Industry," was sponsored by the Women's Research Association for Graduate Students, a group that educates students about the effects of pornography on society.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIA
Cara Lee Birch, a legal advocate for Necessity/Necessidadas, spoke last night on the pornography industry.

According to Birch, 59 percent of women are forced into pornography, which can lead to torment and even murder. Every three minutes, a women is raped in our society and one out of four children are abused by either their father, brother or a stranger.

"Violence against women is displayed through pornography and our society gives consent," Birch said.

Objectivity, rape, torture, death and dismemberment are the five types of pornography that are present in today's mass media, Birch said. The pornography industry uses women's bodies to make a profit. The industry profits $20 million a month and $12 billion a year, Birch said. The CBS, NBC and ABC television stations combined is smaller than the pornography industry, Birch said.

In 1953, Hugh Hefner brought Playboy into our society and displayed women as "whores" and that their main goal in life is to please men sexually, Birch said. "Bunny" was used for women to display them as less than human and that sex was the only thing on a women's mind, Birch said.

The cartoons that are printed, joke about rape, molestation and murder of women and children, which gives the notion that violence is funny, Birch said.

"Advertising and pornography today are not that much far apart from each other," Birch said. "The women in the ads just have more clothing on."

The slavery of women is represented in pornography by displaying them in chains or tying them to objects, Birch said

"We [society] think that slavery has stopped, but it has not, especially in pornography," Birch said.

In society today, pornography is accepted in the mainstream. Because 80 percent of the photographs in pornographic magazines are made at home, boyfriends take pictures of their girlfriends and send the photographs to be printed, Birch said.

Registrar has a close watch on academics

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

Editors note: This is the second article in a three part Student Government and Collegian collaborative profiling the Bursar's, Registrar's and Financial Aid offices.

The Registrar's office at the University of Massachusetts is responsible for the scheduling of classes, record keeping and enforcing the academic policies set by the faculty senate, the director of the Registrar's office said.

Because most of the records at the Registrar's office are confidential, it does not allow students to send their documents to other parties without their own written consent, said Nancy Fitzpatrick, director of the Registrar's office.

"Students are considered adults by the Registrar's office," Fitzpatrick said. "We cannot release documents to another party without a written statement by the student, even to the parents."

"Students are considered adults by the Registrar's," Fitzpatrick said. "We cannot release documents to another party without a written statement by the student, even to parents."

Because the Registrar's office is bound by the policies of the faculty senate, it cannot make exceptions for individual students, Fitzpatrick said.

"We have to enforce the academic policies of the faculty senate, so we are not able to make exceptions for students," she said. "If you want to add a course late, you have to go to the undergraduate dean. It is not the registrar's job to make exceptions for students."

Some students have problem preregistering for classes because they overlook the specific date and time of their access period deadline, Fitzpatrick said.

"The times are staggered on Nov. 22 and Nov. 23 because students wait for the last minute to preregister," she said. "Students need to pay attention to the date and time of their own deadline, not their roommates."

A major advance for preregistration and the add-drop period was the the touchtone system, Fitzpatrick said. Once student's requests are in, the rosters are sent to each department.

The departments then send the rosters back to the registrar with instructions on who to drop from the courses.

Because of the University hiring freeze and the five percent budget cut, the office has not been able to replace the two people it lost in the registration department of the office, Fitzpatrick said. Despite these losses, the office has been able to continue without any significant loss of service to students, Fitzpatrick said.

The Registrar's office is now looking into the possibility of a computer screen that would show the student's information at the Registrar, the Bursar's and the Financial Aid office, Fitzpatrick said. She said this would help close the gap in communication between the three offices and would allow students to find out if they have a problem with any of the offices without having to go to each individually.

Student wins big in RSO raffle

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Imagine winning a raffle ticket that would pay for $5,000 of your semester's tuition. Freshman Eric Gancarz experienced that feeling during halftime at the 1993 Homecoming football game.

It was a new Resident Student Organization on campus called STARS who gave him the winning ticket.

STARS, Students Alumni Relations Society, is a student alumni organization created this past September. It was originally organized to bring students and alumni closer together.

"The alumni relations office initiated the conversation with student activities to start a group to help create tradition and spirit and keep alumni in touch with the students," said Karen Drumm, assistant director of Alumni Relations and advisor to STARS.

The group hopes to organize activities involving the entire campus, Drumm said. Homecoming weekend, including the parade and the pep rally, was sponsored by STARS.

"STARS would have a student group who would help to support and organize activities such as reunions, family day and parents day. Also to help initiate the sports teams pep rallies, or as in our recent case, organizing Homecoming," Drumm said.

Along with the alumni office, eight students are presently involved with STARS.

"What we have been doing is getting together the students who we have been normally working with on a regular basis to interest them, and to get them informed on what STARS is going to be doing," Drumm said.

After Thanksgiving, the group will be going to residence halls to introduce the group and to try to get other students involved.

"Our biggest project this semester is getting out and recruiting people. We need more students for activities coming up. We are also looking for different ideas," Drumm said.

A great deal of the group's funding so far has come from the raffle drawing at Homecoming. They started selling last year the tickets, priced at five dollars each. Five-thousand dollars of the money collected went to the prize award, and the remainder went to the treasury fund.

"The idea of giving money towards tuition to a student came from a conference from another school. The money is a specific award for a specific semester," Drumm said. Several future activities the group is organizing are the Senior Leadership Banquet, the Senior Campaign and Reunion. STARS is also running a program to raise the spirit at the Nov. 18 NIT Basketball Tournament.

Derek Cheeseboro Weaver, president of STARS, said this RSO will work together with the other RSOs on campus in developing different programs.

RECYCLE THIS NEWSPAPER.

Buttafuoco

continued from page 1

jokes and three made-for-TV movies.

A year ago in the same courthouse, Fisher had been sentenced to five to 15 years for shooting Mrs. Buttafuoco, who still has a bullet lodged next to her brain.

Buttafuoco, 37, stood ramrod straight, glaring at Fisher as she spoke.

Buttafuoco's attorney, Dominic Barbara, argued for probation saying his client "is a devoted and loving father, a devoted and loving son."

Great Sexpectations
Bedspins
Some Body to Love
How to be a Better Lover
S.T.R.E.S.S. How do you spell relief?
Drink Smart
The Travelling Medicine Show
Total Harmonic Distortion
Not Ready for Bedtime Players

Check out one of the best courses at UMass. Get up-to-date information, enjoy engaging, stimulating discussions, and teach cool stuff to your peers. Limited class size means lots of fun & friendship.

PEER HEALTH EDUCATION I & II
PUBLIC HEALTH 213 OR EDUCATION 213

6 CREDITS - 2 SEMESTER COMMITMENT REQUIRED
For more information & permission of instructor call
Division of Health Education, 549-2671 ext. 181.

Seniors!!
Yearbook Photographers
Will be On Campus until this Friday!
Call Now for your portrait sitting
1-800-836-0558.
Don't Be Left Out!

Syracuse University
Division of International Programs Abroad
119 Euclid Avenue
Syracuse, New York 13244-4170
1-800-235-3472

SYRACUSE ABROAD
Something to write home about!

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE

- Programs in Africa, Australia, Belgium, Czech Republic, England, France, Germany, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Poland, and Spain
- Prior foreign language not always necessary
- SU credit
- Field trips/traveling seminars
- Internships
- Study for a semester, a year, or a summer
- Home or limited apartment placements

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS
NO SELLING INVOLVED

Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm, Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.

We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday, (413)586-8635.

Abt Associates Inc.
Telephone Research Center
Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9
Hadley, MA 01035

Abt
An Equal Opportunity Employer.

STUDY IN CUERNAVACA, MEXICO THIS JANUARY

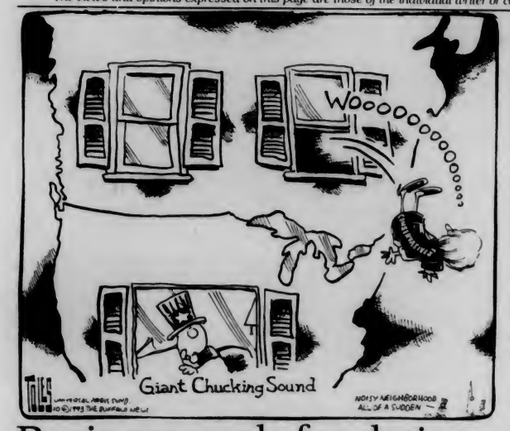
UMass Boston offers a special winter session program in the beautiful city of Cuernavaca, Mexico, for students interested in learning Spanish or studying the political economy and culture of Mexico. The program emphasizes experimental learning; participants can earn up to six academic credits in economics, political science, or Spanish.

The registration deadline is November 19.

Call today for more information
617 287-7915

UMass Boston
Division of Continuing Education

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST



Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Business cards for dating

Hi, my name is [your name here], and you don't know me. That's OK because I don't know you either. I would, however, like to know you better. This doesn't mean I'm trying to get in your pants or anything. I just think you look like someone I'd like to know better. So if you can spare a few minutes please call me at [your number here]. Hope to hear from you soon. — [your name here]

It could be that simple.

Adam
GOULSTON

Now don't lie to me. It's occurred to you time and time again that there are so many interesting, pretty, hot, handsome, studly, fine and (depending where you're from), maybe even pissa girls and guys who you'd love to know better. You just don't have a pretense under which you can begin talking to them.

How many times have you hugged the wall or clung to a group of friends at a party, slugging liquid courage, while you pathetically try to make eye contact with some object of desire, hoping and praying that by some stroke of luck, (s)he will wander over and start talking to you?

How many times have you meandered through campus, and while you've stopped to chat with a friend, your eyes fixated on what at the time seemed to be the ultimate in beauty, grace and good hygiene? You kept staring; the person left.

A while back, I was at a party with a couple of friends, one of whom had "balls of steel." What he did was nothing miraculous when you think about it. He went up to random girls, introduced himself and started talking to them. Sure, he probably got a chilly reception a few times, but that's to be expected. Yet for some reason, hardly anyone can do this. Balls of steel (or whatever the female equivalent of that is) are a tough commodity. Here's where I come in.

Imagine spotting that object of interest, and instead of being led away by your friends at the end of the night, cursing your apprehension, instead of missing what could be a golden opportunity, going up to him/her and giving him/her a card which says exactly what I wrote in the first paragraph.

It could be that simple.

There's someone in your "Geology of Guam" lecture who you've been eyeing every period. Time and again you think to yourself, "How the heck am I supposed to talk to this person?" Try this — at the end of the lecture, you take out a card, walk over to who you've been gawking at and slip it in his/her hand. Maybe you'll get a call that night. Maybe you won't. At least that person knows you're interested and you made his/her day a little brighter.

For some reason, our society is setup so that we cannot merely approach a stranger and begin talking. You need a reason, "Hey didn't I see you shearing sheep in Hadley last Sunday?" "You work at Joe's Pizza, right?" Unfortunately, there isn't always an opener. That's why these cards are necessary.

Hi, I'd like to know you better. A simple premise. A new wave of introduction - no risk, no grief, just a little note.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

What to do with Bosnia?

There is some good news about Angola and some bad news about the situation in the former Yugoslavia. If you read my previous article on the civil war going on in Angola, you should be happy to find out that things are looking up. The UNITA rebels and the Angolan government are renegotiating the 1991 peace accord. The bad news is that many people are losing interest in Bosnia, and things are getting worst.

Brian C.
O'NEILL

Last winter was relatively mild in Bosnia, and many lives were spared from hypothermia, but this winter could prove to be devastating for the already war-torn region. Bosnia continues to be besieged and bombarded by Serb artillary.

With supply lines to the capital Sarajevo severed, analysts predict that this winter could be one of the worst Europe has seen since World War II.

Last month at a European Community summit the French President Francois Mitterand warned members about the dangers the Bosnian people will face this winter if humanitarian aid is not provided. Mitterand also warned that if the Serbians are not stopped, the war will spread out of former-Yugoslavia and turn into a European war.

With the threat of NATO air strikes against Serbian artillery positions becoming less and less likely, it is anyone's guess what the next step might be for the Serbs.

There is still some talk about a partial lifting of the arms embargo to let the Bosnian government protect itself. But would the UN or NATO be ready for such a decisive initiative? Probably not.

The Serb-chetnic drive to complete "the Map", the land grab the Bosnian Serbs have planed out since April 1991, is almost complete. But there is still no clear picture of what this has done for the Serbs.

There is growing suspicion Serbian leader Slobodan Milosevic might seek to rechannel the nationalist movement south into Kosovo. Kosovo is an ethnically Muslim Albanian region of the former-Yugoslavia. Kosovo is also historically sacred to the Serbian people. Kosovo seems to be the next likely place for Serbian aggression.

Milosevic has long been losing support at home in Serbia. Many things have contributed to this loss of support, including the tightening sanctions on Serbia. Thus far, Milosevic has risen to power by using nationalism to motivate age-old hatreds. Milosevic might try to turn domestic attention from international sanctions by seeking to extend the borders of greater Serbia again.

Some analysts think if this happens the Albanians in Kosovo will seek the support of Albania proper. Albania is a country weak from the collapse of communism. Albania could likely draw support from their Muslim neighbors in Turkey, as well as the Albanians in the Macedonia region.

It is clear that if the Serbian campaign of ethnic cleansing is not stopped the war could soon draw in many other countries and cost thousands of more lives.

There is still some talk about a partial lifting of the arms embargo to let the

Brian C. O'Neill is a Collegian columnist.

Above all, we are human beings

I would like to respond to Maia McClinton's column [Collegian, Nov. 4].

I too am a resident assistant, and I attended that workshop. I find it ironic that you missed the entire point of the lecture by focusing on the argumentative nature of the audience. It was a lecture about change. It was a lecture that stated all spaces, no matter whether the floor is a special interest floor or not, should be "safe spaces," that we should all flourish in a comfortable community. It stressed that from all people, "there needs to be some introspection." We, as RAs, are here to teach change with an open hand, not a fist.

I have been on this campus for five years, and i too have been disgusted with the attitudes I find here. Everyone is using fighting words. We yell at one another over words and tell one another that there are certain words we cannot use. We limit language and get angrier . We need to stop fighting words and start fighting one another to eliminate the meaning behind the words. Only as a community, can we effectively wipe out racism, homophobia, ageism, or any and all hate-based ignorance.

Satre asked, What do you do when you realize the society you live in is wrong, that its rules are unjust? One answer is to confirm and kill the spirit itself. The other is to fight for change in the society.

The first place to start is yourself. We are taught to hate, to hate European Americans, African-Americans or homosexuals. We are taught to mistrust one another because we are different or because one group has power.

Hate perpetuates that. To live together, we must learn to walk in another person's moccasins under the guide of the Great Spirit. We must see each other as individuals, not as a color or a religion or a sexual preference. There is more to all of us than one facet of our personality.

I understand your hate and distaste for "White oppressors," but such emotion are not effective in creating unity. Learn from the workshop. Embrace everyone's background, everyone's facilities and everyone's humanity. A friend is more likely to affect change on someone than an enemy.

Maybe this is all idealistic. But if you don't live for a goal, you can never get anywhere. Martin Luther King stated, "I have a dream." He had a goal and the spirit to move him towards that goal.

How can we teach his dream if it is everyone's fault but your own and everyone's job but yours to teach unity? We are all teachers. Get up and teach the change. Only then can a dream be realized.

By the way, i am not African-American, Asian-American or Eurpoean-American. i am not Hispanic-American or gay or Jewish or Catholic or Anarchist. i am a human being. I treat you as such. Treat all of us as such.

Steven Matulewicz
Southwest

Collegian misguided on ad issues

This University has a newspaper, which I presume is supposed to appeal to and represent the students, who it serves. In an environment which is supposed to nourish and enrich, i would assume a campus paper would be the icon of student (group) attitude. In further proof of that assumption, the newspaper seems to be run by young, intelligent and progressive human beings. In that mode I would expect a responsible attitude towards every, no matter how seemingly remote, interest that exists on this campus.

However, sometimes the goals become a little clouded with more mundane matters, like financing the production of a newspaper, and advertising, as we all know, is the oil that lubricates the free press. Who chooses the oil and is that particular grade in the best interests of the icon's presumed representation?

From another angle, advertising for a group, supporting and encouraging slavery of a race or sex would probably not be considered as a source of advertising revenue. Advertising for a group that promotes gas chambers as a means to eradicate undesirable minorities (again defined by race and sex) would probably not be considered as a source of advertising revenue. Advertising for a group that promotes, supports and encourages the prostitution of a human body should not be considered as a source of advertising revenue.

This is not a denial of the First Amendment, nor is it a denial of the right of any individual to choose to die in a gas chamber, become a slave or prostitute themselves. However, I think a responsible publication, that presumably represents interest of the whole student body, should take into account the interests of the collective and not the selective when seeking revenues. If a campus newspaper cannot support itself without grossly offending at least 50 percent of the student population, then perhaps it is not truly representing those it purports.

Jay Sinclair
Sunderland

Death penalty: a cause for crime

I am writing in response to Mark Tyler Wenham's exceedingly simple-minded and spiteful diatribe on crime and punishment [Collegian, Nov. 10].

In the first place, capital punishment represents perhaps the most abject form of institutionalized racism in this country.

Secondly, did it ever occur to Wenham that the death penalty, by its barbaric nature, is a severe catalyst for violent crime, and not the deterrent he wishes it was for?

i have a pen pal who has been on death row for eight years, convicted for a murder he didn't commit. Like many death row inmates, his biggest crime against the state is that he is African-American and poor.

He is endowed with a strength of character, spirituality and an overall sense of magic, which people, such as Mark Wenham, will never know.

Kevin J. Smith
Hadley

Multicultural Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

UMass and America at a crossroads

By COLIN S. CAVELL
Collegian Correspondent

The W.E.B. Du Bois Petition Coalition would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those members of the University community who have signed the petition which calls for:

1) Keeping the UMass administration to its pledge of increasing minority enrollment up to 20 percent of the UMass student body.

2) Increasing financial aid for the many students who are unable to afford the high costs of college.

3) Naming the tower library in honor of the African-American and Massachusetts-born scholar W.E.B. Du Bois.

4) Changing the UMass logo and mascot from the Minuteman to a symbol which is reflective of the cultural and gender diversity of the University and society at large.

Some individuals who might have a tendency to support the Coalition's efforts have, however, objected to the petition for several reasons, one of which we would like to address herein:

OBJECTION: "The media hype was unnecessary and places too much focus on the mascot issue which is of secondary importance; hence, I'll not sign."

RESPONSE: If you mean to imply that a few student organizations at UMass have it within their power to dictate to the national news media what is and isn't of importance, then surely we have underestimated ourselves. What is perhaps closer to reality, however, is that attacking a symbol of a White man with a gun touched a deep nerve within the American psyche and was utilized by pundits from Pat Buchanan and Rush Limbaugh to Dan York and UMass's own Minuteman to further the practice and rhetoric of PC-bashing.

PC-bashing is when the defenders of the status quo apply the label of "Political Correctness" to anyone who challenges the asymmetrical distribution of resources in our society and the cultural apparatus, which such uneven parcelling out requires. Once so labelled, such "defenders" feel there is no need to address the substance of the issues raised, laughing it off, as Massachusetts' own Governor Weld noted it as, "political correctness gone amok." And, because there is no shortage of right-wing political pundits on the airwaves, we understand why you are hesitant to sign a petition which may get you branded as one of the "politically correct students gone amok."

Changing the UMass logo from the Minuteman (and whatever attributes one may ascribe to the symbol, it is still a White man with a gun) to a symbol which is more reflective of the cultural and gender diversity of the University community is not any less important than the other three aspects of the petition. While it is important to increase minority enrollment and ensure that such students have the ability to stay in the University by increasing the amount and sources of financial aid (and even lowering or perhaps abolishing tuition in general), it is no less important to make the University culture an inclusive place for such students.

Naming the library after one of the preeminent African-American scholars of the 20th century, and changing the mascot are ways to enhance this inclusiveness. That these last two aspects of the petition are symbolic in nature cannot be denied. That they are purely symbolic, however, and hence unimportant. We beg to defer.

Having a commitment to a multicultural campus without changing the symbols of that campus is akin to having a capitalist Russia in the stages of primitive capital symbolized by the hammer and sickle and statues of Lenin with no visible sign of the Golden Arches in sight! Such a contradiction between substance and symbols would have all sides aghast at such an imbroglio—surely one or the other would have to go.

Similarly should the University's espoused commitment to multiculturalism be judged, for certainly if symbols of inclusion are not to be found on campus while offensive symbols remain unscathed, then the University's commitment to multiculturalism would have a hollow sounding ring and would be merely a mantra to dust off now and then when student unrest occurs. If, on the other hand, the administration's commitment is sound, then of course, by all means, should such symbols be changed posthaste.

All of the burden, however, is not to be placed on the administration alone, for unless there is a genuine commitment on the part of the student body to accept a multicultural campus — and all that entails, then all efforts imposed from above will be for naught.

The University, therefore, like the United States in general, is at a crossroads. One road wreaks of imperialism, racism, patriarchy, homophobia and greed. The other requires an acceptance of a multiplicity of cultures, languages and peoples of all shades and hues, males and females and transgenders of various sexual orientations and a commitment to equality, freedom and peace.

Much of humanity has traversed the former road for all too long only to find that it is a narrow street leading nowhere, a circular conduit of eternal recurrence of war, destruction and death.

The other path, however, is still rugged and largely uncharted. It has been taken by only a few. Its contours are still to be navigated and developed, and it has many vistas which remain to be explored. It is, of course, no utopia, and some effort will need be expended to observe what beauty it beholds. Still, this other path is infinitely more spectacular and conducive to the profusion of life than the well-worn monotonous alley our species has trekked to date.

Colin Cavell is a UMass Graduate Student

NAFTA & the New World Order

By SHYAMALA IVATURY
Collegian Correspondent

In the post Cold War era, former imperialistic powers find themselves in the midst of a realigning world and a depletion of their economic and military power. A case in point, referring to heroin, is the United States.

The hallmark of President Bill Clinton's domestic and foreign policy has been the usual liberal stance of waffling and indecision. It is a foreign policy that reflects the clash between the expansionist Anthony Lake and the cautionary pragmatist Warren Christopher. Adventurous interventions in Somalia and Haiti have been unmitigated disasters for the U.S. military. After the euphoria surrounding the Gulf War, the sight of an American soldier being dragged through the streets of Mogadishu is a sobering reminder of the slow, but steady decline of a decaying empire.

Shifting to the tribal war in Europe, the catch phrase amongst the participants in the Balkan civil wars is the murmur of "paper tiger" ascribed to a United States unable and frightened to commit to any concrete action. It has become clear that America is no longer able to project its power the world over as it did in the '50s and into the '60s before the sobering experience of confronting the forces of the Viet Cong.

On the contrary, the policy today is one of multilateral coalitions acting under the auspices of the United Nations to support U.S. imperialistic actions. But here too the United States finds that it has to deal with countries it cannot fully control and cries foul when American officers are not put in charge.

The U.S. domestic economy, despite the prognosticators predictions of a recovery, is performing sluggishly, and that the United States is still in recession few can deny. Ironically, the North American Free Trade Agreement is being touted as the answer to the economic problems of the United States. It is being sold to the American population as a measure that will bring economic gains to Canada, Mexico and the United States, including higher wages, an increase in employment, an increase in exports to Mexico and so on.

The real purpose of NAFTA is to open Mexico and other Latin American countries to transnational investment. Unable to compete with the vibrant economies of the South East Asian nations, such as Japan, Singapore, Korea and China, the United States is struggling to get its economy back on its feet by standing on the backs of its workers.

We are told to believe that the solution to the crisis in capitalism in the United States is through hemispheric integration. Third world nations are told that their comparative advantage lies in abundant cheap labor. The ruling elite in the third world are asked to sell the labor power of their captive mass populations at low cost to transnational corporations. In return, this elite is offered a share of the profits so long as they fulfill their roles as local dons and keep the masses quiet and passive.

The electronic infrastructure for transnational cash flows allows for this development. New information technology and communications have provided a means for capital flight from the advanced high-wage nations of the north to the low-wage nations of the south and vice versa.

Whether NAFTA passes will not prevent transnational companies from relocating to Mexico and other low-wage nations. The challenge for organized labor is to comprehend the contradictions facing the world in the next century and figure out effective strategies to combat them.

For example, is United States labor capable of overcoming its racist education and fight for higher wages for their Mexican comrades? In short, is it possible to have true solidarity with workers from different parts of the world even though it might not be in the immediate interest of the U.S. working class?
Organized American-based transnational capital, for its part, has its hands full. Having historically relied on racism to divide workers in the interest of profit, it now has to secure a larger internal market to compete internationally. In a multi-ethnic market, how is this possible without transgressing the demands of capital accumulation?

Shymala Ivatury is a UMass graduate student.

A childhood remembered

By WENPING JIN
Collegian Correspondent

I was born in the same year the Chinese cultural revolution began. My parents were sent to one of China's remote mountain areas for re-education. So I grew up with my grandmother at a small village in Northern China.

Life was simply hard at that time. Food was not enough to feed everybody and not to mention not having any any toys to play with for a child like me. But the village was surrounded by sunflowers — so fascinating and beautiful that I dreamed to have them all over my grandmother's dirt yard. The dream was so enticing, yet so hard for me to realize when I was five. Each time the seedlings I had planted began to grow, the wicked destroyer came and uprooted every single one. Right from the first, dream was accompanied by struggle.

I went to a big city for college at the age of 17. I walked out of hills and walked into the real world. From then on I was filled with bold dreams. ...I was going to learn, to study, to struggle and to be somebody.

Immediately after graduation I had a chance to come to the United States for higher academic degrees. I planned to conquer the world by accomplishing a great many things. Grandmother's little dirtyard and the sunflowers — I had never once again given them another thought.

Gradually however, I began to relaize my own maturity and naievety. Life was never as simple as I thought. I came to realize my own insignificance and was forced to undo expectations. I started to feel like a helpless little girl drifting in a foreign land.

Just at this moment, grandmother passed away. Mother wrote to me in her letter, "Since you left for college 10 years ago, grandmother had planted sunflowers all over the dirtyard. She had always protected them, shielded them, nourishing them with water and fertilizer...."

I couldn't continue to read more, I was full of tears. Oh, the dirtyard! How could I have abandoned you while I drifted aimlessly in another land, forgetting all about you in my callousness and indifference?

Thinking of my grandmother who truly loved me, and I would never have the chance to see her again. I felt my heart full of deep sorrow and regret, for the loss of my grandmother, and the little dirtyard full of sunflowers.

Wenping Jin is a UMass Graduate Student

For Your Information

Muslim Students Association presents Imam Warith Dean Mohammed who will be speaking on "Race Relations in America: An Islamic Perspective" tonight at 7 p.m. at the Student Union Ballroom.

Graduate School Information Workshop, designed especially for Hispanic and other underepresented minority students, will be held today from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Campus Center room 168. For more information contact Project 1000 at 1-800-327-4893 or Judy Toyama at 413- 545-4893

FILM: SALAAM BOMBAY!, (1988 Indian-British) directed by Mira Nair, chronicles of a young country boy and his experiences among the street hustlers, drug peddlers and prostitutes of Bombay. It will be shown 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Amherst College Frontroom at Amherst College.

Arts & Living

A wondrous Remains

It would easy to accuse the folks at Merchant-Ivory of appearing redundant. What with tackling three well-received adaptations from E.M. Forster — A Room With A View, Maurice and Howards End — and nearly a dozen other period triumphs, their latest film, a version of Kazuo Ishiguro's 1989 novel The Remains of the Day would seem to be one tea party too many.

But like the pseudo-repertory company that appears in many of their films, returning to Merchant-Ivory country is more than just a trip back to the corsets and classes, the accents and the decor. It is like a journey into an elegant looking glass, one that mirrors today more than one would think.

THE REEL WORLD

Remains reunites Emma Thompson and Anthony Hopkins from Howards End, Hugh Grant and Patrick Godfrey from Maurice and Christopher Reeve from The Bostonians in a magnificently passionate tale of unrequited love and regret that finally puts to rest the erroneous notion that Merchant-Ivory make boring, stuffy soap operas. At the very soul of Remains is a kinetic ballet that rivals any slam-bam actioner.

Anthony Hopkins, as mesmerizing as he was in Silence of the Lambs, plays Stevens, the head butler of Darlington Hall, a sprawling English manor that serves as both the venue for various political showdowns and as the home of Lord Darlington (James Fox). Stevens takes immense pride in his work and runs the mammoth estate with remarkable efficiency.

Told in flashback as an older Stevens, now in the employment of former American politician Lewis (Reeve), reflects on his years at Darlington Hall and specifically how his unblinking faith in Lord Darlington and his work cost him dearly in his personal life.

That personal life takes the shape of the Hall's head housekeeper, Miss Kenton (Thompson), a free-spirit whose love for Stevens can only be expressed through a series of quarrels, as Stevens suppresses any sort of emotional attachment.

Eventually Kenton gives up, choosing marriage and leaving Darlington Hall. Now, years later, Stevens travels across England to meet up with Kenton. Their reunion is a bittersweet one, with the cloud of lost time and missed opportunities hanging over them.

At the center of Remains is Hopkins' superlative performance; one filled with stoic charm and repressed emotion. Hopkins reveals how Darlington Hall became both Stevens' glory and ultimate prison and how his faith in Lord Darlington — even in the face of Darlington's stunning weaknesses — remained relentlessly loyal.

The unique chemistry Hopkins shares with Emma Thompson, which was ignited in Howards End, blossoms wonderfully in Remains. Neither fall back on their past characterizations, delivering honest and affecting performances. While Thompson's Miss Kenton is slightly underwritten, Thompson says more in a glance or a sliver of a smile than pages of dialogue.

As usual, James Ivory's direction is assured, seamless and slyly deceiving. Ivory shows that, beneath the arty, expensive trappings and the sweeping acreage, lies an England hopelessly tangled in class, honor and emotional subjugation. In the end, Darlington Hall — like Howards End — remains a not-so-quiet metaphor for England, with Stevens standing alone as its silent majority. A- (Mtn. Farms)

Jon Lupo is a Collegian columnist.

Comic Sandler engages crowd

By SUZANNE A. BARBER
Collegian Correspondant

Adam Sandler
Smith College
November 14, 1993

Live from Northampton. ... It's Adam Sandler! Most of us are used to seeing Adam Sandler in skit format on "Saturday Night Live." However, on Sunday night we caught a glimpse of an uncensored Adam, full of wit and song. Song? A comedian? Adam has a background in playing the guitar and using this talent in his stand-up routine and on "SNL"'s 'Weekend Update.'

On Sunday night, when he reached for his guitar, the audience cheered in anticipation of his medley of silly odes. The first song, "Red Hooded Sweatshirt", received a great response as the audience sang the chorus: "I love you sweatshirt..."

This was followed by several musical impressions including: Bono, Eddie Vedder and Bruce Springsteen. He called on two people to help sing his ode to his mamma. The first to help him was a UMass student in the audience. For the end of the song, he called on his friend and co-star, David Spade. This surprise guest thrilled the audience and was an added bonus to an already hilarious night of comedy.

Saturday Night Live has launched the careers of comedic geniuses such as Dan Akroyd and Bill Murray. Every comedian coveter follows in the footsteps of these living legends. Sandler and Spade say they have tremendous respect for their predecessors. They were both inspired to be comedians by watching the original cast of Saturday Night Live.

"We know that they're the reason why we're here," Sandler said.

Adam Sandler and David Spade wrote a lot of the skits they're famous for on Saturday Night Live.

"Lorne Michaels is the producer, and he's starting to trust us with what we think is going to work. So we get a lot of freedom," Sandler said.

That creative flexibility is what attracted Sandler to Saturday Night Live. Though he enjoys performing stand-up, Sandler said, he loves

Turn to SANDLER, page 10

There's A New Way to Get to Mt. Tom.
Here's a hint:

Now it's even easier to ski closer to home! And purchasing a combination bus/lift ticket saves you money, too! Take the Peter Pan bus, any day of the week, from any one of these locations and enjoy great skiing day and night at nearby Mt. Tom:
AMHERST/UMASS HARTFORD
NORTHAMPTON MIDDLETOWN
SPRINGFIELD MERIDEN
BRIDGEPORT NEW HAVEN
Mt. TOM Peter Pan
Route 5, Holyoke, MA • Call Peter Pan for info: 781-2900

Student Valley Productions presents
The Fops
in
STAR TRIP:
The Next Mutilation
a hilarious tribute to
Star Trek: The Next Generation
to benefit the Western MA
Foodbank and Midwest
Flood Relief Fund
Nov. 17- 20 8pm
Southside Room, Hampden commons
Tickets: $3 students, $5 others
Call Tix Unlimited 545-0412
$1 off admission with 2 canned goods
Funded in part by the Student Government Association.
Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund & UMass Arts Council

ACADEMY of MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Cinema Treasures 584-8435
YES! IT'S BACK - DAILY AT 9:35
(ends Thursday Nov. 18) - SEE IT!
"THE ULTIMATE PARTY MOVIE, SOCIALLY IRRESPONSIBLE AND TOTALLY IRRESISTIBLE." Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE MAGAZINE
"The American Graffiti' of the next generation - smarter and tougher but just as much fun." New York Daily News
"A crushingly funny and knowing ode to misspent youth." Jeff Giles, NEWSWEEK
"Two thumbs up!" Siskel & Ebert
Dazed and Confused
R

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas
THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax where applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.
LARGE CHEESE $6.99 $1.25 each add. topping
MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99 .99¢ each add. topping
Any Two Large Subs $7.99

X marks the spot

In the early '80s, the punk music scene was taking much the same route through the United States this country's original settlers did.

Beginning with British imports the Sex Pistols and the Clash, which surfaced in New York, then zoomed across the plains, exploding in Los Angeles with a group, named X, and an album named after that west coast metropolis.

With that album, X introduced searing punk to the Pacific coast kids, anchored with agnst-filled lyrics and stunning harmonies between singer-guitarist John Doe and singer Exene Cervenka.

They became as important a part of the punk scene, as either of the aforementioned bands, yet unfortunately received much less public attention.

Now, with the release of the fine new album Hey Zeus, they are unleashing their pop-punk masterpieces in a live show that arrives at Pearl Steet.

This show is a chance to see history incarnate, as well as thrash to what is sure to be a mosh pit and heavy hitting guitar fest. Although the Clash and the Pistols are through, we are lucky enough to still have one of the crucial members of the '80s punk birth still intact and more than ever ready to kick out the jams.

Also, be sure to arrive early, as Boston alterna-poppers Tribe open the evening showcasing their unique guitar and keyboard tunes from their latest album, Sleeper, as well as their 1991 album, Abort.

X will play Pearl Street, Northampton tonight with special guests Tribe at 8:30 p.m. Show is 18+. Call 584-7771 for advance tickets.

— BRIAN BABINEAU

NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS
Fall 1993 Performance Schedule
All Performances Begin: 8:00 P.M.

November 17 — Sylvan Area at McNamara Main Lounge
December 1 — Southwest-North at Thoreau Main Lounge
December 8 — Orchard Hill at Webster Main Lounge

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

Collegian Classifieds
545-3500
113 Campus Center

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We offer...
...quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
...courteous, friendly, professional staff.
...reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
...a comprehensive contact lens service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671
X244

The 32nd Annual
LAS VEGAS NIGHT
Thursday, November 18 from 7:30 to Midnight
in the Campus Center Auditorium
Your winnings from our mock-casino can be used at our end of the evening auction to bid on over $1,200 worth of prizes donated by local merchants.
PRIZES INCLUDE:
Dinner for two at Boltwood Tavern at the Lord Jeffery Inn
A nightgown from Le Boudoir
A perfumed soap and lotion basket from The Cedar Chest
A Samual Adams mirror from La Fuente
Compact Disks from Musicland & NRM Music including:
Aaron Neville's Soulful Christmas, Rick Astley's Body & Soul, Daryl Hall's Soul Alone, & many more
This is just a taste of the prizes available. Come down and try your luck!
Admission: $3.00 in advance or $5.00 at the door.
All proceeds go to the Everywoman's Center.
SPONSORED BY: ΑΦΩ & HMPFM Radio 99.3 FM
NATIONAL CO-ED SERVICE FRATERNITY

MAKE LIFE A PARTY. . . . . WRITE FOR

The Collegian

Thursdays in November are Student days.
*All Haircuts $10.00
Regency Hairstylists
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA • 253-9526
*long hair $2 extra

CHECK OUT SORORITY LIFE AT UMASS
Join ΑΧΩ, ΣΣΣ & ΙΓΓ
for an Open House
at ΑΧΩ
tonight at 7pm
FOR INFO, CALL KIM AT 549-1407

BEFORE YOU PRE-REGISTER
Eat, Drink, and
come meet Economics Faculty and learn about Spring Economics Undergraduate course offerings.
The Economics Course Info Social
Tuesday, November 16
7:00 - 9:00 pm
Campus Center Room 163
Yes, it's Tonight!
Sponsored by the Economics Department of course.

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
Tuesday
SHARK NIGHT
Singles Pool Tournament
- $2.00 Entrance Fee
- Free Pizza Slices
- Play For Cash
- Sign Up: 7:00-7:45
- 20 oz. Drafts $1.95

WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

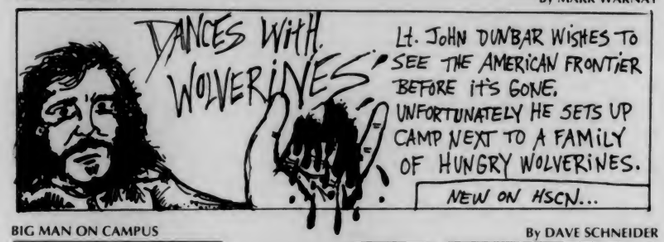
BE AN R.A.
HELP SHAPE YOUR

PIECE OF THE WORLD
Applications for Spring 1994 RESIDENT ASSISTANT Positions Now Being Accepted.
Applications Available in Cluster Offices
DUE NOVEMBER 22, 1993

TRAVEL SMART THIS WINTER!
FROM NEW YORK
Roundtrip / One Way

London
$305	$165
Paris
$398	$219
Rome
$525	$320
Oslo/Stockholm
$458	$229
Tel Aviv/Istanbul
$639	$329
Guatemala City
$390	$205
Costa Rica
$430	$225

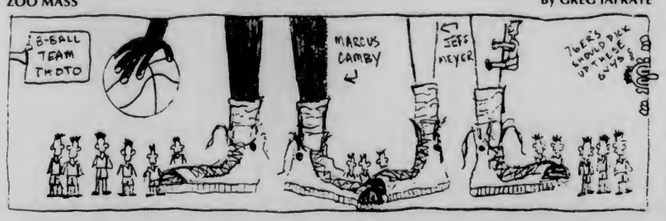
Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Customs/immigration and departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY, NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC



JIM'S JOURNAL — By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS — By B. DEUTSCH

VIRTUAL REALITY — By MARK WARNAT



BIG MAN ON CAMPUS — By DAVE SCHNEIDER

THE POND — By JEREMY THORPE

ZOO MASS — By GREG IAFRATE

P.S. MUELLER — By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Two kisses and a twizzler just don't do it for me."

– Overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Secure your valuables in a safe place. Inspiration comes in mid-morning. Jot down original ideas. A romantic reconciliation could put you in a euphoric mood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): New skills will help you move up the career ladder. Who you know can affect your professional and social success. Use tact when mediating a family feud. A compromise works better than expected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Travel is featured. You could land a lucrative contract. Someone you meet for the first time will play a major role in your happiness. Be more sympathetic to an unlucky relative.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It is all right to be tough on business so long as you are thoroughly professional. A consulting job brings extra cash to pay urgent bills. Settle accounts with a family member.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It is not necessary for success to stop just because you are retiring. A child will learn an important lesson if you step aside for once. Sell the car, and your money worries will vanish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A whole new world awaits you once you get off the fence and make a decision. A computer proves to be a welcome aid. The results are amazing! Keep your energy level high.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Others may try to enlist your help for a political cause. Think carefully before going ahead with this. Spend more time with someone confined indoors. Talk sense to your mate or business partner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Show more initiative and finesse. Have confidence in yourself and others will follow suit. You and an older individual enjoy special rapport. The love bug could bite tonight.

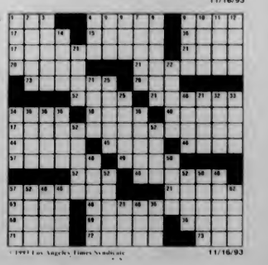
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good news from afar arouses your enthusiasm. Your efforts to stir up action will bring new profits. Getting in touch with a long-lost friend could lead to romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may have to work harder to prove yourself. Involvement in a community project will give you a higher profile. A move to a new home is a real possibility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your uneasiness regarding a personal matter will evaporate today. Avoid jumping the gun or you could jeopardize an exciting opportunity. Spend quality time with your friends. They'll always be there for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): An academic program may hold special appeal. Use your good sense when handling a private matter. Your social life may be interfering with your employment responsibilities.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Period
4 Wide open
9 Exchange
13 Namesakes of a Reiner
15 Gets up
16 One's partner
17 Emphasizes
19 Ionian Sea gulf
20 Unearthly
21 Sincerely zealous
23 Commuters need these
26 "The Catcher in the —"
27 Out of 29 Prim
34 Sacred chest
38 Pub choices
40 Wise lawgiver
41 He's all eyes and ears
44 Acid type
45 Positive
46 Town near Padua
47 Keep
49 Hang ten
51 Maytag?
53 Scruples
57 Most precious
61 "Iliad" and "Odyssey", e.g.
63 Incite
64 Go over big
68 Fish stones
69 Prufrock's creator
70 Green land
71 For fear that
72 Dimples, in a sense
73 Wed another way?

DOWN
1 Gaelic
2 Lassoes
3 Cancel a mission
4 Biblical lion
5 Entertainer's engagement
6 Bat wood
7 Barrie's Pan
8 Themes
9 Grownup cygnet
10 Telegram
11 Barbecue buttinskies
12 Bog product
14 Cooking direction
18 Fall tumbler
22 An artful Dodger?
24 Worship
25 Divas' goals
28 Bills of fare
30 Medicine unit
31 Scenic sight in Switzerland
32 Blow a whistle
33 Duck in Dortmund
34 Gaping
35 European capital
36 Voucher
37 Pavlova or Magnani
39 Play the uke
42 Racket
43 Protagonist
48 Snacked
50 Liberated
52 Wall steps
54 Church nook
55 Living cell component
56 Twenty
57 Uninspired
58 Buffalo's county
59 Ripens
60 Take ten
62 Pickle of sorts?
65 Metal container
66 Little one
67 Elevs

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

H	A	G	S	S	W	A	M	I	D	O	O	R
E	X	I	T	A	L	O	N	C	I	D	E
R	E	V	E	L	A	T	I	O	N	A	P	E
D	E	N	O	T	E	N	O	B	L	E	S	T
				P	E	O		L	E	O	D	E
S	A	P	P	O	R	O	L	E	O	D	E
O	G	R	E	S	S	C	A	N	T	A	I	M
B	E	E	N	A	L	L	E	R	T	A	B	L
I	N	O	D	E		O	A	K		O	E	R
R	T	E		H	A	W	N	S	P	E	O	Y
		S	T	A	R		A	C	T
R	E	T	I	N	A	L		C	A	T	C	H
A	R	O	M	A		M	O	T	O	R	A	D	E	S
F	I	N	E		A	D	O	R	E		R	E	A	P
T	E	E	S		N	E	W	S		O	N	L	Y

11/16/93

© 1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 11/16/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor ..... John Winchell
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Sean Ramsey, Tara Dixon

MENU

LUNCH
Pizza
Phish Munchies
BASICS LUNCH
Pizza
Sesame Noodles

DINNER
Fried Steak
Chicken Fajitas
BASICS DINNER
Spinach Strudel
Tri Bean Casserole

■ Sandler

continued from page 7

Saturday Night Live because there he has the opportunity to "get in costume and act like a goofball."

Beyond weekly appearances on one of the country's most popular comedy show and several stand-up appearances, Adam Sandler has a movie in the works to be released in the spring. Airheads features Sandler as the drummer of a rock band that holds a radio D.J. hostage until he plays their song.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

For the rest of Latin America, NAFTA represents their future. Chile, Argentina and Colombia have already expressed their interest in joining NAFTA. Other Latin American countries hope to follow the Mexican example. Mexico does not expand the North American market much more than its current size. According to William Orme, a Latin American expert, Mexico's GDP is "equal to an Ohio or half a Canada."

The addition of other Latin American countries in the future, would create a much stronger effect. Each country would be like a wagon waiting to be pulled by the train NAFTA is heading. At another level NAFTA exemplifies United States willingness to treat Latin America as a partner.

For the rest of the world a no vote on NAFTA means a protectionist U.S. policy. President Clinton is scheduled to attend the Asian Pacific Economic Cooperation forum on Thursday. The approval of NAFTA can only give leverage to U.S. interests in the discussions on world trade.

■ Clinton

continued from page 1

a deal with congressmen from Oklahoma and Texas to impose quotas on durum wheat if Canada does not change its pricing policies within 60 days.

"They've done a deal with everybody but working people," charged House Whip Kavid Bonior, D-Mich., a leader of the anti-NAFTA forces. But he said, "I think we're going to win."

On the Capitol's West Front, several hundred civil service union members, mostly from New York state, chanted "Dump this NAFTA," and carried placards depicting a monkey perched on the shoulders of a hardhat-wearing worker.

■ volleyball

continued from page 16

could score and make it a 6-3 game. Duquesne then made it 11-5 and never looked back winning it's only game of the match 15-8.

Game three was another close one with the leads going back and forth until Duquesne took a seemingly commanding 13-9 lead. But once again behind the great play of Mizner UMass came back. Mizner had three more kills and an ace to help the Minutewomen tie it at 15 apiece. Then behind the serve of Michelle Sheperd UMass scored the next two points on a double block by Cass Anderson and Sky and then a kill by Susan Maga, winning the game 17-15.

In Game four with the score tied at four apiece, UMass scored six out of the next seven points, helped by an Anderson ace, to take a 10-5 lead. The Lady Dukes did come back to tie it at 12 and take a one point lead but with Maga serving the Minutewomen closed out the game 15-13 and the match 3-1.

UMass had four players with double-figure kill totals in the match. Nash led the team with 16, Mizner had 15, Maga had 14, and Sky had 10. Mizner and Sky also had 17 digs each.

"I thought Kim Mizner and Rachel Sky were outstanding," Kenny said. "And Cass [Anderson] set a very good match, she established the middle which sometimes we are not capable of doing."

■ women's x-c

continued from page 16

their college careers on a high note, finishing third and fourth for UMass and 25th and 29th overall. Junior Julie Moreau also ran well despite being less than 100 percent. She was the fifth Minutewomen to cross the line at 40th overall.

Sophomore Jen Wager and freshman Kristin Donaldson both set personal bests at sixth and seventh, placing all UMass runners in the top 57 slots.

"The women showed a tremendous improvement in attitude from the Paul Short [Invitational], their last big meet," said LaFreniere. "It was an exciting day."

The women showed their depth and strong will by gritting through an injury plagued fall and still going undefeated (5-0) in the regular season.

With the loss of only two members, the future looks extremely good for the young squad. If Kristin Diggs and Julie Moreau come back healthy, and freshmen like Langevin, Greenia, and Donaldson continue to improve, the leadership of LaFreniere should take them as far as they desire to go.

ADDED COURSE - SPRING 1994
Philosophy 166: Environmental Ethics
Instructor: John Brentlinger
Sched no: 550245 Gen Ed. Credit: AT TuTh: 11:15 - 12:30
Lecture and Discussion. On the one hand, the course will discuss the world environmental crisis in its relation to European capitalist and imperialist economics and the traditions of human-centered, patriarchal and hierarchal values and priorities. We will consider a variety of alternative approaches, including that of Native Americans, "deep ecology," Marxists, eco-feminists, socialist feminists, and others. Emphasis will be placed on practical problems and solutions. A wide variety of reading and considerable writing will be required. No prerequisites. Course fee $2.

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS* OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

PIER 9
DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
Sm. Coffee & Buttered Bagel for $1.00 all day
Exp. 12/31/93
10% Discount with ad
Exp. 12/31/93

The Five College Program in Peace & World Security Studies
PAWSS
Presents:
"WITHER THE U.S. MILITARY? GLOBAL TURBULENCE AND DOMESTIC CHALLENGES"
The Army War College Current Affairs Panel
The Army War College
Carlisle, PA
7:30 PM
Tuesday, November 16th
School of Business Administration, Rm. 116
University of Massachusetts
This event is free, open to the public, and wheelchair accessible.
For more information call PAWSS at 582-5519

Why Do I Need Another Immunization Shot?

QUESTION

I just received a letter from the college I started this fall telling me I need to be immunized for measles. If I received the shot when I was a baby, why do I need it again?

ANSWER

Immunizations are used to strengthen the body's defenses against specific disease-causing organisms. Older children and adults benefit from booster immunizations because the body's immune system protection can wear off and may need to be renewed. People who were born in 1957 or later, who work in places where transmission of the measles virus is likely to occur, such as a school or a hospital, or who are entering college or planning foreign travel are likely to be required to get a booster shot for the measles. You should not receive a measles booster if you are pregnant, suffer from immunosuppression, are allergic to eggs, or are hypersensitive to neomycin.

If you have a health-related question you'd like answered, or if you need a referral to an area physician, make a free call to the registered nurses at The Professionals at 784-CALL or 1-800-377-HEALTH.

Baystate Medical Center
A Member of Baystate Health Systems
THE PROFESSIONALS®
Healthy Answers from People Who Know
Monday–Friday, 7 a.m.–10 p.m. Weekends and holidays, 8 a.m.–5 p.m.

■ NHL

continued from page 12

this season.

• Remember this name: Radek Bonk. The 6 foot 2 inch, 200 pound 17-year old is having a good season for the Las Vegas Thunder of the International League and will be the first pick in this year's entry draft.

• NHL players took to heart my plea to increase violence in the game; fighting majors are up 32 percent over last year.

• I think the Islanders and Nordiques would like to undo the Ron Hextall trade. The Isles have floundered with him, the Nords without.

• Was that Al Pacino I saw taking in a Bruins-Nordiques game at the Garden? Perhaps he wants to add the Bs to the Corleone Family empire, so he can make Harry Sinden "an offer he can't refuse" and install brother Fredo as head coach.

• The All-Name team? Frank Pietrangelo (the man with three first names), Jyrki Lumme (who edged out Kari Takko), Uwe Krupp, Bob Beers (why ask why?), Alexei Zhitnik and Steve Konowalchuk (of the Albuquerque Konowalchuks).

• This past week both Mario Lemieux and Eric Lindros went down with injuries, giving Pennsylvania the only two Franchises to wear street clothes.

• Speaking of Lemieux, for my dough, he is the greatest ever. Has there ever been a more intimidating offensive force?

• Rudy Poeschek - is he the Shawn Cronin of the East?

• Anyone who says hockey is not TV-friendly (shame on you, Marv Albert) need only pick up a copy of the '87 Canada Cup Final between Canada and the Soviets. All three games were 6-5 thrillers, with Canada winning two games to one. Where else can you see footage of Lemieux and Gretzky playing on the same line and proof that Grant Fuhr was once the world's best goalie?

• Chicago coach Darryl Sutter called Ed Belfour "the best goalie in the league." Maybe Darryl should call brother Brian, who as Bruins' coach knows something about this goalie named Roy who plays in Montreal.

• Speaking of goalies, it would be a criminal act to keep Florida's John Vanbiesbrouck off the All-Star team. The former Ranger is 6-5-2 with a GAA of under 3 for the expansion Panthers. This year's Mid-Winter Classic will be played at Madison Square Garden, and what would make a better story than VBK returning to his New York City stomping grounds?

• Hartford's Geoff Sanderson is easily the league's best value. Making less than $200,000, he scored 45 goals last year and is on track for over 50 this season.

• Is Glen Featherstone the NHL's only oxymoron?

• How valuable is Alexander Mogilny to Buffalo? They were 1-8 without him and 3-1-1 since he returned.

• How is Ottawa's Bob Kudelski in the top 15 in scoring?

• Anaheim boss Michael Eisner (he of the anti-violence movement) plans to push the overtime shootout at the league meeting in December. I hope he footnotes this column properly.

Michael R. DiLorenzo is a Collegian columnist.

MUSLIM STUDENTS ASSOCIATION
of the Five College Area
PRESENTS
IMAM WARITH DEEN MOHAMMED
TO LECTURE ON
RACE RELATIONS IN AMERICA: An Islamic Perspective

Malcolm (X) Shabazz inquires of W. Deen Mohammed

TONIGHT
7:00 PM
TUESDAY, NOV 16
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
FREE ADMISSION

COPYRIGHT: ZETA PSI THETA FRATERNITY INC.

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment With
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
Only $2.00 from 9:30-10:30
THE PUB CELEBRATES 25 YEARS IN AMHERST 1968 • 1993
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

UPC General Committee Meeting tonight, Tuesday 11/16 at 6 pm in CC 168c Don't be shy - come on by! Learn more about UMass' student-run concert production company.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Entrepreneurs College Pro Painters will be running an informational session on Wednesday in CC room 802. Come in and find out about us.

Come find out about
Sorority Life
Open house
38 Nutting, Tuesday 7pm
Alpha Chi Omega

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

Interested in Video Production? Call Jim or Teri at 586-6922 to find out more about internships at a local television station!

Race Relations in America. An Islamic perspective, talk by Imam W. D. Mohammed. Tuesday, November 16, 1993, 7 pm, SUB, UMass. Muslim Student Association. FREE ADMISSION!!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.58 for 1 HOUR call! 413 467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

For Sale - 86 Pontiac Firebird Mint condition a/c alpine auto w/overdrive $3900 Call Kevin 256-3119

1982 Dodge Colt (Mitsubishi) hatchback 100,000 miles, reliable, well maintained $995 586-5447

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 miles only
$4000 call 546-1482

1992 GrandAm Sedan 16V4cyl., auto, ABS, cruise, alarm system, AC, am/fm/tape deck, Warranty in effect 26,500 miles $9300 neg. KAYO 256-4153

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat - fireplace 586-4270

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0869 428 Student Union

Room in a 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment 236.00 plus utilities.
Call 549-1920

Take Over my lease
2 bedroom Puffton
Jan 1 549-6267

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Car Stereo System
JVC/CD receiver and 350W Kenwood Speaker Box with Acoustic Amp call Matt at 596-8543

CDROM Hitashi (external) + CDs 350.00 549-6426

For Sale
Neon signs $50 - 100
"Roller Blades" $50
Call 549-3749

For Sale brand new women's ski boots size 7 $70 256-1511

IBM Computer, printer, software, disks, all 550.00/bo 549-6426

Mountain Bike
1993 Specialized Hard Rock
Excellent Condition - Like New
$300/BO 256-4137

Moutain Bike $80
Grand Prix Guitar $50
Sims Blade Snowboard $225
Dave 549-8188

New Computers. Competitive prices. Assitance/lessons available. 549-6426

Personal Protection Device - (PAAL) Compact electronic alarm about the size of a beeper. Easy to use and carry. Available in black and yellow. Must sell. If interested call Jarrett at 256-3076. Very Cheap.

17 1/2" Specialized "Stumpjumper" mountain bike in excellent condition $200 Call days 549-1728

Ski Equipment
Rossignol 17G Sz 200
Atomic 733 SL Sz 195
K2 Sz 172
Boots Sz 7,8,9
Best offer
Call Kim 256-8182

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings - Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Free Trips & Cash*******
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America s #1 Spring Break company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre!
Call now! Take a Break Student Travel 800 328-SAVE or 617 424-8222

Get up, stand up! Work on Clean Water Action's Campaigns. Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA, activists wanted. Flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break - start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Greeks and Clubs
RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling.
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

Inside Sales Positions rapidly growing cellular business in Hampshire mall and Holyoke mall and Ingleside. Capable personable with good sales skills. Permanent and holiday positions with excellent salary commissions and benefits full and part time. Call 508-393-9317 from 8 am to 5 pm. Must fill immediately.

PCA for male quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 546-0666

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions. Great benefits.
Call 1-800-436-4365 ext p-3306

RGIS Inventory Specialists will be conducting interviews at the campus center Nov. 18th and 19th from 10 am to 4 pm. If unable to attend call 413-737-7218 Springfield area 508-832-6150 Worcester area

INSTRUCTION

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

IT'S THE BEST

Mill Valley - what a place to live! And you can join us in our wonderful two bedroom apartment. Just think free heat and hot water!!! We're looking for two people to share one BIG bedroom with its very own bathroom. Call 253-4788 for details. Don't delay!

LOST

Lost Wallet:
Please return license
and any other article you don't want
Or call 549-4226

Sterling Silver fairy necklace of great sentimental value. If found please call Amy 6-3910

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

PERSONALS

Alison:
Quit smoking!
Greg

Happy 19th Skeeter!
You're a lucky woman.
Love, Skrina & Goober

Jill Cole
Didn't think you would get a personal in Switzerland
But your were wrong
We love and miss you
I'll write soon I promise
Love Lisa T. and the Sisters of SDT

Karen (Rocky-TM-SBG) Des Roches happy 20th b-day. I love you infinity to the infinity power plus one. Love Scarboy! P.S. hope you had an awesome day and you like all your goodies!

SWM, 23, 6 ft tall, 150 lbs., brown eyes/hair w/an athletic build enjoys cycling, quiet winter nights, and good conversation. Looking for an attractive 20 - SWF who is athletic, mature and intelligent to spend some quality time with.
Please Respond Here

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

RIDE WANTED

I need a ride to Maine for Thanksgiving Andre 584-5849

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1818

One Bedroom Available in two bedroom apartment
Amherst Center
237.50 + month
Call 256-3566

Your own room in a 2 bed apt.
237.50+ Call 772-3702 (Jan to May)

SERVICES

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413 467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

SPRINT

Marketing Firm Seeking Students
for paid internship. Must be ambitious
*and willing to travel. Excellent pay *
*and bonuses. Call Jessica at *
*Collegiate Advantage, 617-424-6116 *
*or FAX resume to 617-424-9788 *

TRAVEL

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov 19-21 Killington Wknd $99
Winter Break ski week Killington
Jan 18-21 $275 - sign up today at Concourse table or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

Typing, Spellcheck, laser quality $1.50/pg. Roadrunner 585-9434

WANTED

Looking to Adopt: Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Looking for females who have or are considering getting tatoo for photo assignment. Will drive to NH 546-4722

Sublet
Looking for a 2 bedroom apt.
Preferably in Puffton. Call 6-1196

Basketball season preview coming Thursday.

Sports

Party is over for soccer; Carolina looms large

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

When the University of North Carolina women's soccer team steps onto the field to play in a game which means something to them, the Tar Heels are simply a Goliath. And its poor opponent is David, but without the slingshot.

UMass (17-2-3) will be the David this Friday, when it faces UNC in the national semifinals in Chapel Hill, N.C.

There is no greater dynasty, no more powerful juggernaut ever created in college sports than North Carolina women's soccer. Carolina's all-time record is 313-13-9. The Tar Heels have won 79 straight games. Before that they went 103 games without a loss. In the last 187 games, they are 179-1-7. They haven't lost since 1990, when Connecticut beat them, 1-0, in a complete downpour in Storrs.

UNC has won 10 of the 11 NCAA Championships ever held, including the last seven in a row. This season Carolina is 21-0 and has outscored its opponents by a whopping 82-14.

"They are the cream of the crop, they are loaded through 22 (players)," said UMass Coach Jim Rudy. "They are the only team I have ever seen that can sub 15 players a game and not lose any rhythm."

Consider just one more ridiculous statistic. Entering this season, since 1986 Carolina had played some 15,060 minutes of soccer. During those 15,000-plus minutes, the Tar Heels trailed for only 73 minutes and 55 seconds.

When the game matters, North Carolina really turns it on. Last season in the championship game, Duke made a fatal error, it scored first. This angered Hamm and Company. The game ended UNC 9, Duke 1. In soccer it is difficult to score nine goals against a high school team, let alone No. 2.

The natural question is how?

The why is simple. Anson Dorrance, the coach of UNC for the last 14 season's doubles as the U.S. National Team Coach. Playing for the national team is considered the pinnacle for Olympic sport athlete's, particularly women.

Where there are no professional leagues, there is the national team, a team Dorrance holds the key to.

Year in, year out, Dorrance grabs the top five or six top recruits in the country.

"National Team is the ultimate," Rudy said. "It transcends everything else. College doesn't really matter if you play on the National Team.

And what is a coach to do when he has to play this Tyrannosaurus-Rex.

"North Carolina who?" said UConn Coach Len Tsantaris, who is the last coach to defeat Dorrance. "Just play them. Forget about who they are and just play. There are reachable."

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Massachusetts travels to Chapel Hill, N.C., to face the seven-time defending champions, the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina.

Maybe, and Rudy is talking a big game. He is confident. The UMass defense is as good as they come, and goalkeeper Briana Scurry may one day play for Dorrance on the national team. If they keep it close, who knows?

"I personally think Anson is shaking in his boots," Rudy said.

Right now, Rudy is looking for his slingshot.

Volleyball prepared for A-10s

By CANDICE FLEMMING
Collegian Staff

With the Atlantic-10 Tournament coming up this weekend, the University of Massachusetts Women's Volleyball team is riding high after winning six out of its last seven matches to end its regular season record at 16-13, 5-9 in the A-10.

During that seven match stretch UMass only lost six games, and three times it beat its opponent 3-0.

On Friday night the Minutewomen played host to two-time defending A-10 champion Rhode Island. Earlier in the year, on Sept. 24, UMass played URI in its first conference game of the year losing in five close games 9-15, 15-13, 13-15, 15-12, and 8-15. This time around however UMass thought it had a chance to beat the Lady Rams. But Rhode Island's superior blocking overpowered the Minutewomen's offensive attack and they lost in three straight games 15-12, 15-10, and 15-12, ending the five game winning streak.

"I thought we hit the ball a little bit better last time," Coach Bonnie Kenny said. "We didn't hit the ball very well."

UMass did have two players with double figures in kills however. Rachel Sky led the Minutewomen with 14 kills while also getting four blocks and 11 digs, and Dionne Nash had 10 kills for the match.

"I was happy with the way that they hung in there and didn't give up," Kenny said.

On Sunday in UMass' regular season finale, the Minutewomen played at home again against Duquesne University. When the two teams met earlier in the year Duquesne came away with a three game sweep winning 15-6, 15-6, 15-4. In that match UMass struggled offensively picking up only 13 kills. But the Minutewomen are a much improved team and they beat the Lady Dukes in four games, 16-14, 8-15, 17-15, and 15-13.

Game one was close throughout with both teams exchanging three point leads. The Lady Dukes struck first with an early 4-1 lead. But UMass came back to take a 9-6 lead with the help of a couple of Sky kills and a Nash jump-serve ace. Duquesne did pull within one at 9-8 but then Kim Mizner got hot, collecting five kills and a tip hit that completely fooled the Lady Dukes and dropped in untouched, helping the Minutewomen to a 16-14 win.

Game two was all Duquesne. The Lady Dukes jumped out to a 6-0 lead before the Minutewomen

Turn to VOLLEYBALL, page 10

Views from the NHL's blue line

BETWEEN THE PIPES
Mike DiLorenzo on the NHL

As the NHL officials enter their second day of picketing, we will take you on a rapid-fire view of the league for a veritable potpourri of information and speculation.

• Will the 80-some replacement officials be more qualified than the three youth-hockey referees who worked the '88 Bruins-Devils playoff tilt? Stay tuned.

• The NY Rangers are off to a 12-5-2 start, including a current run of 8-0-2, despite this space's prediction of otherwise. The acquisition of Steve Larmer has been a plus on two levels: the gritty Larmer has 3-4-7 totals in six games and the Blueshirts were able to rid themselves of perennial underachiever James Patrick.

• UMass' self-proclamed hockey expert, the Blott, informs me the Bruins will finish 28-28-28

Turn to NHL, page 10

UMass cross country teams finish off season

• Women place fourth at ECACs

By JONATHAN GANGI
Collegian Staff

When it comes to a foot race, there is running hard and running until it hurts. Then there is running to exhaustion — the point where runners often collapse and feel pain for days to follow. The women of the University of Massachusetts cross country team made a pact to run to exhaustion at the ECACs this past weekend, and that's exactly what they did.

Coach Julie LaFreniere said the meet was "a great way to tie up the season," as the women finished fourth in District 1 (there are eight districts in the country).

Providence and Dartmouth tied for first and Boston University edged out UMass to grab third. New England Champs Vermont placed eighth.

The ECACs has a unique format. They are the only conference to run two districts, 1 and 2, in the same meet. Then they split the meet into two races, where the better teams from both districts compete in the ECAC Championship Race and the remaining squads run in the ECAC University Race.

More than 70 teams in all were present. Two hundred runners competed in the Championship Race, in which UMass finished 10th overall. Villanova, ranked No. 2 in the country, blew the rest of the field away to win the meet.

Freshman Melissa Langevin set a personal best with a time of 18:01 and finished 14th overall for District 1. She was the third freshman in the race to cross the finish line.

Freshman Katie Greenia ran what LaFreniere termed a "super, super race", placing second for UMass and 21st in District 1. Greenia, who had previously been unable to break nineteen minutes, came in at 18:16.

Twin co-captains Kim and Kelly Liljeblad fought through injuries to end

Turn to WOMEN'S X-C, page 10

• Men snag 24th place over weekend

By MICHAEL DILORENZO
Collegian Staff

A furious rally in the final two miles in which Massachusetts runners passed about 30 other competitors proved futile as the Minutemen finished 24th at the IC4As in Leesburg, Va.

Georgetown won the meet with 131 points while UMass finished with 533.

Ted Towse was the top Minuteman runner, finishing 84th in a time of 31:08.

"We were cautious in our approach to the meet," said UMass Coach Ken O'Brien. "We spotted the top teams too much distance at the start.

"We underestimated our ability."

Rounding out the top five for UMass were freshman Jonathan Way (91st), freshman Matt Behl (94th), sophomore Ethan Nedeau (127th) and senior Kevin Greenhalgh (137th).

"Behl and Way reacted well in their first taste of this kind of competition," O'Brien said, "but I think they both left the meet feeling they could have squeezed out more."

O'Brien lauded Nedeau for competing despite a sprained ankle he had sustained at the New England Championships, saying the team would have been " ...out the window [without Nedeau]."

Despite having only two experienced runners in seniors Greenhalgh and Chris Povolny, O'Brien was said he was pleased with the overall performance of the Minutemen this season.

"[Greenhalgh] had the most experience and was the most consistent runner, and Povolny was solid as our 6th or 7th guy, but overall we were inexperienced," O'Brien said.

"We had open-ended expectations for this season because our inexperience presented a difficult situation.

"Now our feet are wet and we have to raise our level of accomplishment. I'm optimistic that next season [spring indoor] will be exciting."

Area lawyer wins nation's highest legal award Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Wednesday
55° November 17, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 48
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Famed Muslim explores race relations

By FELICIA COUSINS
Collegian Staff

Imam Warith Dean Mohammed, a national figure among American Muslims, spoke about race relations in America, last night in the Student Union Ballroom.

Mohammed was joined by a number of distinguished Imams from around the nation as well as Jo-Anne Vanin, associate vice chancellor for student affairs, Professor David Dubois,and Yvonne Yazbec Haddad, a professor of Islamic History. They spoke to a packed auditorium, on Race Relations in America: The Islamic Perspective.

"I come from an experience called Islam, " said Mohammed. He spoke of his experience as the child of the Honorable Elijah Mohammed.

"I was five years old and attending the University of Islam following the teachings of Islam." Making reference to the teachings of W.E.B Dubois, Mohammed approached the question "How do we abolish the color line?"

In his opening address, Dubois, a visiting professor of the University and step-son of the educator W.E.B Dubois, remarked, "In 1903 W.E.B Dubois wrote 'Problem of the Twentieth Century is the problem of the color line...', today the color line is still with us being institutionalized globally as a means of oppression."

Dubois said this fostering of the color line is being used to convince Christians that "Muslims are their enemy." He pointed out that this fear of Islam is being used to facilitate and justify contempt.

"All of us should have race pride," Mohammed said,"but we are all the children of Allah ... The common human person."

"But, we in our ignorance have exaggerated our racial pride and have oppressed each other." Mohammed spoke of Black-on-Black oppression saying "you cannot expect perfect treatment if you do not give perfect treatment at home."

"Sober up this idea of race," Mohammed said. He also said some of the reasons we cannot get along is due to "human deficit and human limitations, and we will always have it."

Imam Rashad Fardan from Springfield gave a historical perspective of Islamic movement among African Americans in this country. According to Fardan, Islam has had a major impact on African Americans.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Imam Warith Dean Mohammed

Bill to prevent violence of anti-abortion protests

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate moved Tuesday toward arming the Justice Department with new powers to stop abortion clinic blockades and go after violent protesters. Senators rejected complaints they were stepping on peaceful demonstrators' First Amendment rights.

In a test vote on the bill, the Senate turned back a bid by anti-abortion lawmakers to drastically soften the proposed penalties for anyone who repeatedly staged nonviolent blockades. Instead, the chamber passed, 56-40, a compromise that makes the penalties less harsh, but keeps the offense a felony.

Even strong abortion opponents backed the bill, arguing it was demanded by a growing wave of violence aimed at clinics, doctors and women. A Florida abortion doctor was shot to death earlier this year.

"I am pro-life ... but we cannot as a society allow acts of violence to promote any cause," said Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev.

"Violence is no response to the issue that divides us," added Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., another abortion foe backing the bill.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., an abortion rights advocate and the bill's sponsor, said the incidents targeted in the bill "are not peaceful protests. These attacks are more akin to assaults."

The House is scheduled to take up a similar bill later this week; Democrats in the two chambers hope to work out a compromise to send to President Clinton before Congress breaks for the year at Thanksgiving.

Critics said the bill was an affront to free-speech rights and that it singled out anti-abortion demonstrators for punishment.

Other people who stage blockades, such as gay-rights activists or union workers, don't have any special laws aimed against them, noted Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

"This raises the right of abortion above the Constitution," Thurmond said.

NAFTA gains support

Clinton converts votes in final days

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Seizing the momentum on the eve of a House showdown, President Clinton won a rush of converts Tuesday for the North American Free Trade Agreement. Opponents accused the White House of doling out billions to line up support.

An Associated Press survey showed more than 200 House members were supporting the pact or likely to do so. Opponents' numbers were dwindling, and stood at roughly 200.

"Tomorrow, the Congress has simply got to vote for hope over fear, for the future over the past. They've got to vote for confidence in the ability of the American people to compete and win," Clinton told the nation's governors, summoned to the White House to provide evidence of widespread support for the treaty.

Mickey Kantor, the administration's trade representative, worked with Florida lawmakers over terms to shield the state's tomato growers from damage in the event Mexico violates export standards.

Clinton met at the White House with Rep. Floyd Flake, D-N.Y., who emerged to announce his support. Flake said the president had pledged to support new Small Business Administration pilot programs to provide funds for urban areas. "It's my hope my district would be one of those," said Flake.

Rep. Marcy Kaptur, D-Ohio, said the administration was serving up "pork" in the "basement of the White House."

Said Rep. David Bonior, the House Democratic whip, "I shudder to think what it will take to get votes to pass a decent health care bill next year."

Clinton pledged to send thank-you notes to any lawmaker who supports the agreement. He wrote GOP House leader Bob Michel it would be inappropriate to campaign against candi-

Turn to NAFTA, page 6

What will they think of next?

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Civil & environmental engineering majors Shawn Kelly and Travis Mitchell paddle around in the campus pond in a concrete canoe designed for a competition to be held at the University of Maine in March.

Trade possibilities explored

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series analyzing the effects of NAFTA.

The North American Free Trade Agreement will phase out in the next decade all tariffs on 99 percent of the goods traded between the United States and Mexico. If it's that simple, what is all the controversy surrounding the vote on NAFTA?

The most bizarre alliances have emerged in the fight over NAFTA. Clinton and Dole on one side, and a soup of the radical left, unions and hard core nationalists on the other. Both sides fight over that fundamental question: Will it be good for the economy?

The main fear of the anti-NAFTA camp is that jobs will move south of the border where hourly wages are only 1/10 of the wages paid in the United States.

According to the Economic Policy Institute 490,000 jobs will be lost to Mexico over the next decade. That's over 4,000 jobs every month. In any random month, 200,000 workers lose their jobs in the United States with or without NAFTA. There is little reason to believe why the economy cannot deal with an additional 2 percent of displaced workers in a given month.

A more elaborate approach is given by Professor Paul Krugman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology: "the whole idea of counting jobs...represents a misunderstanding of the way the U.S. economy works...it overlooks the fact that other economic policies will almost surely neutralize any potential impact of NAFTA on jobs." The Federal Reserve has more influence on unemployment figures, through the use of monetary policy, than NAFTA.

The argument of the NAFTA lobby is the jobs the United States will lose under the agreement will be lost anyway. Instead of being lost to Korea or Indonesia, they will be lost to Mexico.

Environmental groups oppose the agreement with premonitions of an ecological catastrophe. This has been a beneficial contribution since the Mexican government has responded with a strong commitment to environmental standards. "Mexican factories will still look pretty bad compared to those in the United States, but that is irrelevant...they will be cleaner than they would otherwise have been," Krugan said in a recent article in Foreign Affairs.

Turn to TRADE, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-3500

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Howley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanitz
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-0864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezlowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Bookkeeper ..... Maureen Matejowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

The calculations in yesterday's Associated Press story on SAT scores were wrong. The drop from 1989 to 1993 is 5.8 percent. Also, the Nov. 10 photo of Al Sharpton was taken by Nathan Martin. The Collegian regrets the errors.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, November 17

Information meeting — Students interested in the Five College Spring Break trip to Isla Magueyes Marine Sciences Laboratories in Puerto Rico will meet at 5 p.m. at Mount Holyoke College in Clapp 120.

Food drive — A canned-food drive to benefit the Amherst Survival Center on the Campus Center Concourse from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and at Franklin Dining Commons from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. The benefit is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

Lecture — Len Zakim of the Anti-Defamation League will speak on "Working to Fight Anti-Semitism" from 3 to 5 p.m. at Hillel House. The event is sponsored by the Jewish Careers Group.

Meeting — The University Community Service Council will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 174-6.

Workshop — An advanced lighting workshop will be held by Alec Jarnagin at the Union Video Center from 7 to 8:30 p.m. For more information, call 545-1336.

Thursday, November 18

Las Vegas Night — Alpha Phi Omega is sponsoring the 32nd Annual Las Vegas Night from 7:30 p.m. to midnight in the Campus Center. Admission is $5 at the door; proceeds will benefit the Everywoman's Center.

Lecture — Scira Menoni will discuss "Landslide Risk Assessment in Emilia Romagna, Italy" at 4 p.m. in Morrill 161. The lecture is sponsored by the geology and geography department.

Poetry reading — Garrett Hongo, recipient of the Lamont Poetry Selection of the Academy of American Poets, will be reading at 8 p.m. in SOM Room 120.

Lecture — Robert P. Creed will present "The Death of an Indo-European King" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101. He will be speaking as part of the Distinguished Faculty Lecture Series.

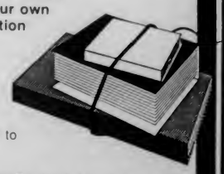
ALANA Night — The ALANA Floor Steering Committee will hold ALANA Night at 7 p.m. in the Grayson classroom.

Ongoing

Budget packets — RSOs who want to petition the SGA for a budget must pick up budget packets at the SGA office. For more information, call 545-0341 or stop by 420 Student Union.

Volunteering — Habitat for Humanity is organizing two trips to Springfield Nov. 20 and 21 to help build the Springfield Habitat House. Volunteers should call Chuck at 586-4762.

CHANGES
FULL SERVICE SALON FOR MEN & WOMEN
Student Day Nov. 19th & Dec. 3rd
9:30am - 7:00pm
$15
"Walk-Ins Welcome"
586-2600
Located in Thorne's Market • Northampton



University Store's
TEXTBOOK ANNEX
is now taking orders for winter session and spring semester.

1. We research the availability of your books and locate the amount you need.
2. We try to locate used copies to help keep the cost to your students to a minimum.
3. We buy back books from students several times each semester.
4. We are able to accommodate late orders when necessary

How the Textbook Annex can aid your class:

Course packet: A collection of works from different sources or your own material for the total instruction of your students.

1. We take care of the time consuming work of trying to secure copyright permissions.
2. We design your course packet to individual specifications.
3. We sell your course packet at the Textbook Annex along with any books you might order so your students can obtain all materials at one location

For further information, please call 545-3570.
If you need information regarding course packets please ask for Katera.

Sign up now for Winter Session You won't regret it!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Local News

Financial Aid is not a mystery

Director offers suggestions to help speed process

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

[Editor's note: This is the third of a three part Student Government and Collegian collaborative profiling the Bursar's, Registrar's and Financial Aid Offices.]

University of Massachusetts students can improve their financial aid packages and reduce the number of problems they have with it if they file their application on time and read the information they are mailed, the director of the Financial Aid Office said.

Director of Financial Aid Burt Batty said the primary function of the office is to make it possible for students to enroll in the University. The office delivers financial aid funds and educates students and their families about the application process and alternative resources.

Batty said in order for students to receive the maximum amount of financial aid, they must file their application by the March 1 deadline.

"In order for students to receive the best financial aid package, their [financial aid] application must be at the processing center by the priority deadline of March 1," Batty said. "If the application is late the student will not get a full package to meet their need or they will get a diproportionate amount of loans instead of scholarships and grants."

Batty said students can avoid the long lines at the Financial Aid Office by carefully reading all of the materials they are sent.

"It is reasonable to say that 50 percent of the students who stand in the line do not need to be there," he said. "Many of the students do not read the instructions that we send them. Students need to read and react to the information we send them."

Batty said the Financial Aid Office is looking to improve its phone system, which he called "less than desirable" by exploring the possibility of a mailbox system that routes phone calls to the appropriate department and allows students to leave messages in financial aid counselors' "mailboxes." They may also try to acquire another telephone line, but the lack of staff may prevent this, Batty said.

Batty said the Financial Aid Office is continually striving to improve the services it provides to students.

"The bottom line is that we want to improve wherever we can to make things easier for students, and nothing that we do is counterproductive to that end," he said. "Relationships [with students] are something you have to work hard at, you can't just expect them to happen."

Female art contributors lauded

By NICOLE BURKE
and KARA MATSON
Collegian Staff

"We need to bring people together from all over the valley with a variety of interests in the arts," said Karen Blair in a lecture entitled "American Women in Arts Philanthropy" at Mount Holyoke College last night.

Blair, an alumni of MHC who has written and edited articles on women's history, stressed the extent to which women have been involved in arts philanthropies throughout history.

"When we think of philanthropy, we usually think of Andrew Carnegie writing a check out for $1 million, but women traditionally haven't had the resources to do that," said Blair to an audience of 30.

Blair said women's philanthropies began as neighborhood clubs 100 years ago, and that the arts were something for women to dabble in, but not to excel in. Men were alarmed and felt threatened by women's independence.

"It was written at the turn of the century that the number of apple pies being baked was diminishing," said Blair. "Women have put down the broom and picked up the club."

Women began to attend colleges and art institutes, and used their education to plan community activities. When their children were grown, women told their husbands they could devote one afternoon a week to developing their musical and artistic skills.

"These women wanted to bestow musical opportunities on a larger community," Blair said. "'We like this,' they said, 'it should be available to those who can't afford it.'"

Between 1910 to 1920, especially in New England, it was popular to hold pageants that included volunteer actors, musicians, and dancers from a town to perform its history for the community. From the club women's perspective, this was very important for a community to engage in.

"One pageant in Hadley had as many as 700 actors on stage," said Blair, "there were no stars, just armies of actors."

Women's role in the arts continues today. Last year the Amherst Quilters Guild raised $2,000 through a raffle, and donated the money to area organizations such as a hospital, a battered women's shelter and a food bank.

Blair said women still place an importance on the arts today as they did at the turn of the century. But women still lack monetary resources, and need to think of inventive ways to support their activities.

"Professional artists are not the only ones impacting the art society," said Blair. "In all, women have had a critical role in shaping the art of the 20th century."

Guest writers add diversity to campus

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst received an infusion of diversity on Monday night when two Chicano writers read some of their work.

The event took place in Herter Hall and the audience was composed of mainly Latin Americans and Hispanics.

The first reader of the night was Gary D. Keller. He read from his book "Zapata rose in 1992 and other tales". Keller was called by the magazine Nuestro, an "important Chicano writer, a very funny man and writer with a lot to say." This characterization proved to be right.

Keller reading was impressive and the audience was captivated by the way he read. He was powerful in delivering his message, it almost seemed as he did not need the book. He was almost acting the story using hand and face movements.

Both English and Spanish were intermingled in Keller's reading. After reading a passage in English, he would add an expression in Spanish: "Carajo."

The Mexican revolutionary Emiliano Zapata, a hero from the Mexican countryside, came back to life in his reading.

The second reader was Rolando Hinojosa. He first read from his book "El condado de Belken-Klail City". This is a new Spanish edition of the book "Klail City y sus alrededores", which won the award "Premio Casa de las Americas" in 1976.

Turn to WRITERS, page 4

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Gary D. Keller and Rolando Hinojosa

King of the lamppost

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN
One of the many seagulls to be found on campus takes in a bird's eye view of its surroundings.

Local atty. earns award

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Robert W. Ritchie, the town counsel of Amherst for the past 15 years, received the "Outstanding National Public Service by a Municipal Attorney Award" for 1993. Ritchie was selected from thousands of attorneys nationwide for outstanding national public service contributions in the field of municipal law.

Ritchie was nominated for the award by the municipal bar association of Masachusetts, which he recently served as president. He is the NIMLO's regional vice-president for the First Judicial Circuit and is the founding partner of Ritchie, Ennis, Seewald & Collin, P.C. of Amherst and Boston. He is also the liaison for the state association to NIMLO.

He was noted for his excellence in his work in the area of affordable housing and solid waste disposal. He was also praised for his service on a state appointed panel that updated the regulations of affordable housing.

Ritchie, a native of Revere, Mass., graduated from Boston College as a jesuit scholar and studied at Holy Cross and Gonzaga University. After graduating from law school at Boston College, Ritchie took and passed the bar exams for Massachusetts and New Hampshire in the same week.

He began his career in New Hampshire practicing Real Estate Law. He later became the assistant attorney general from 1966-69. He took a sabbatical from practicing in 1969 and traveled to Amherst and entered the Ph.D. program for philosophy at the University of Massachusetts.

"I never received the Ph.D. because I got so caught up in practicing," said Ritchie. "I liked Amherst so much that I decided to stay."

In a statement to the Amherst Bulletin, Ritchie didn't hide his enthusiasm of winning his award. "In my profession this is the highest honor one can achieve. There's no place to go from here."

Ritchie has no future career plans for the time being and has more "personal" goals in mind.

"I want to fly my plane to Scotland. I have it all mapped out and everything," Ritchie is an avid pilot who has flown cross-country twice, and often flies his single engine plane to Martha's Vineyard whenever he has business on Cape Cod.

He and his wife, Jean, live in Amherst and consider it "home" after living in Belchertown, Palmer, and Wilbraham. He has three children and his daughter Gretchen is a student at UMass.

"I love Amherst. I like the people, the students, and the location. It is a great atmosphere," Ritchie said.

writers

continued from page 3

The book talks about ordinary people living under the legacy of oppression. Hinojosa's reading was more quiet but he sent the message of spontaneity given by the book.

Hinojosa also read from his other book "Estampas del Valle" which depicts life in the Chicano Rio Grande Valley.

Rowe waste to South Carolina

ROWE, Mass. (AP) — With a small group of protesters leading the way, the first of four massive steam generators was moved out of the closed Yankee Rowe nuclear power plant without incident early Tuesday.

The 40-foot-long, 8-foot-high tank made of three-inch-thick steel began easing down a winding mountain road to a rail siding about six miles away at 6:15 a.m., said Bill McGee, plant spokesman. For transport the 93-ton generator was filled with concrete bringing its weight to 150 tons.

In what they called a "funeral procession," about three dozen anti-nuclear activists carrying mock caskets, followed by a state police escort, walked ahead of the support vehicles and massive 56-wheel transport.

Dozens of other people dashed out of homes and gathered at the small general store in Monroe Bridge as the caravan passed down the tiny hamlet's main street. Some also fell in to walk alongside and behind the generator as dawn broke over the northern Berkshires.

McGee said he expected it would be late Wednesday before the second generator was loaded and the rail cars could begin their trip through the Hoosac Tunnel into New York state and then to a low-level radioactive waste dump in South Carolina.

Rated Class A, the lowest designation for low-level radioactive waste, and then carefully packaged, the massive machinery posed no hazard to the public, McGee said. "But it is very big and very visible."

"We agreed to disagree," he said of the protesters, who did not attempt to interfere with the movement of the generators.

The special train, travelling at speeds no greater than 35 miles an hour, was expected to arrive at the disposal site in Barnwell, S.C., on Saturday. The remaining two generators are to be shipped to the disposal site next month.

Anti-nuclear activists, who have vowed to accompany the shipment to South Carolina, contended that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission was "setting a dangerous precedent" by allowing the partial dismantling of the plant and the movement of the generators before full decommissioning hearings are held over the next two years.

However, Yankee Rowe officials say disposal costs would have more than doubled from $270 per cubic foot to about $670 if they were not allowed to move the generators to the nation's only operating low-level disposal site before it closes in June. The shipments were expected to cost more than $10 million.

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment With
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos Only $2.00 from 9:30-10:30
SETTIE
Returns for two nights next week
Tues. Nov. 23th and Wed. 24th
THE 25 PUB
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS 1968 • 1993 IN AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

INTERNSHIP AT BMG DISTRIBUTION RCA AND ARISTA RECORDS
URBAN MUSIC IN BOSTON
JOB
JOB REQUIREMENTS:
BMG MUSIC
BMG Music Inc., Kirsten Betnicke, 38th Floor
Fax: (212) 930-4862
540 Broadway, New York, New York 10036

Northampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Wholesome folks just like us rely on the Collegian for good, quality news and entertainment that our whole family can feel good about

CAREER CENTER NEWS

ATTENTION SENIORS!
ARE YOU INTERVIEWING ON CAMPUS NEXT SEMESTER?

Campus Career News will be available November 29th. This issue will list employers interviewing on campus in February. The first deadline for resumes will be Tuesday, January 5th! Leave your resume at the career center for these employers before you leave for Winter vacation. You can pick up Campus Career News at the Career Center or the Curry Hicks Satellite Office, Rm. 16. Don't miss an interview opportunity!

Special Reminder: Register your available interview times for the Spring semester with the Recruiting Office, Career Center, Rm 200 as soon as you have your class schedule.

RESUMES ARE STILL BEING ACCEPTED FOR THE FOLLOWING EMPLOYERS:

	Interview Date	Majors
Precision Connector Design	11/22	ME
Oak Ridge National Laboratory	12/3	ECE, EE, Physics
TASC	12/7	CIONS
CEIMIC Corporation	12/8	CHEM
Digital Equipment Corporation	12/8	CSE, ECE, EE

Don't Miss This Workshop!!!

The Hidden Job Market
a "Best Bet" for finding the right job

Thursday, November 18
2:30-4:00 pm
The Career Center
Room 101A, Mather Career Center Building

Questions??? Call Career Center Recruiting 545-6263

The UMass Theatre Guild presents
PIPPIN
November 17, 18, 19, 20 at 8:00pm in Bowker Auditorium
Tickets are $4/$6 and can be bought at the FAC box office or at the door
YOU WON'T WANT TO MISS IT!

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Lorena Bobbitt: An eye for an eye or just crying wolf?

So she cut his penis off?

Now, I don't have a penis but that has got to hurt. To remove someone's organ with a dull kitchen knife does not sound like a pleasurable activity. Would I do it to someone? I don't think so.

Lorena and John Bobbitt of Manassas, Virginia, have been married for four years. One night she cut off his penis, jumped in a car, drove away and threw it out the window. Sounds pretty simple doesn't it? We just call her a lunatic, right? I beg you to think further.

Mrs. Bobbitt said her husband raped her that night. In last Wednesday's paper, Mr. Bobbitt said he didn't recall having sex with her or not. If someone cut off a piece of my body, you better believe I would remember every second of that night.

In last Thursday's paper, Mr. Bobbitt said he initiated sex with his wife and she did not resist. So I suppose the sex was so good she cut his penis off to have it more accessible?

After his wife did the dirty deed, Mr. Bobbitt woke a friend sleeping in the next room for a ride to the hospital. The friend said that Mr. Bobbitt was so calm he thought they were getting up to go to work. He didn't realize what happened until he saw Mr. Bobbitt's bloody reflection in the mirror.

Now, if I had a body part chopped off, I assure you the word calm would never be used to describe my state of mind. Anyone within a 50-mile radius would know the pain I was enduring.

Stacy
MALONE

It all just seems so weird. I keep asking myself, "Why?". Why did she cut his penis off? Something very serious must have happened to that woman to make her backlash like she did.

He must have done something to his wife for her to remove his reproductive organ, to make him endure nine hours of surgery to put it back on and to face 20 years in jail if found guilty of sexual assault. What it was I don't know, but I just can't imagine that a woman would remove her husband's penis just for the hell of it.

If someone raped me and I had a knife handy, would I use it? Yes. There really isn't any doubt in my mind. I can't say what I would do — whether I would remove a body part or kill the person. But if someone can take my life, shouldn't I be able to take their's?

I never believed in an eye for an eye, but rape can kill a woman. Whether it is in a dark alley (which really isn't very common) or by someone you know (which is the highest percentage of rape cases), rape can kill a woman's self-confidence, security, peace of mind...

Mr. Bobbitt was acquitted of sexually assaulting his wife. According to our judicial system he has not committed a crime. Maybe he didn't, but maybe. Personally, I am just not sure.

He may be set free, but now Mrs. Bobbitt faces 20 years in jail. If she was reacting to what her husband (soon to be ex-husband) has done to her then I respect her for protecting herself. And letting people know that women will not stand by and be abused.

If this was motivated by something else and she used rape as an excuse, then I am disgusted. It is the few women who lie about their abuse that make it difficult for the millions of women who are abused, raped and harassed to be taken seriously by society.

Stacy Malone is a Collegian columnist.

The Hierarchy conquers again

As was recently reported, Chancellor Scott decided to expand the already large number of high priced administrators by creating two new administrative positions to the tune of $110,000 and $75,000 respectively. These jobs will go to a wife-husband team he knew at his previous job in Michigan.

These appointments strike me as a serious mistake that will further lower the morale of both the faculty and other employees of the University and will also make a highly negative impression on students.

To make such appointments at a time of general austerity and cutbacks can prompt either cynicism or outrage, or at best profound bewilderment about the way the University is run.

Few of us associated with the University will be convinced that the remedy for the numerous fiscal and other problems of this institution is to hire more expensive administrators to swell the impressive numbers of those already in place and commanding high salaries.

Neither common sense nor the possession of a Ph.D. help to understand why, especially at a time of a so-called hiring freeze, the new chancellor thinks it appropriate to expand the bureaucracy.

It is particularly galling and insensitive, (yes, insensitive) to do so while others in more lowly positions are fired, when essential services are cut back, the library can barely buy books and my department (doubtless not the only one) is under budgetary pressure to reduce the number of graduate teaching assistants.

The job description of the new appointees are far from encouraging, nor do they provide compelling evidence of their need. The new deputy chancellor (one of how many, one wonders?) "will develop and coordinate policy planning and strategic planning. . . and act as liaison with the president's office." While the other new administrator will be responsible for "community relations and planning special events."

It would be interesting to know how many people are already engaged in these PR and other activities at lower or similar salaries?

These appointments confirm what many employees of the University and citizens of the Commonwealth already suspect: that hiring freeze or no hiring freeze, money will always be found for appointments and projects high level administrators favor; that even as the University is hit by budget cuts the high level bureaucracy relentlessly proliferates and finally, that budget cuts only threaten the jobs of those at the lower end of the hierarchy while leaving intact the higher echelons.

All in all, not an auspicious beginning for our new Chancellor.

Prof. Paul Hollander
Sociology

Health Services' sense of urgency

At first, I thought maybe the stories weren't true. Maybe, just maybe, all the horror stories of misdiagnosis and hours of senseless waiting were just myths. So I gave our Health Services the benefit of the doubt.

How could I not? My throat was sore to the point where swallowing water hurt and my tongue had swelled to a strange size. Being the optimist I am, I began my journey with the call.

If you have never called Health Services, boy are you in for a ride. Grab your machete, we are diving right into the jungle of the most confusing telephone system ever invented. I don't know about anyone else, but when I'm sick I can't even open a child-proof aspirin bottle, never mind dredge my way through all those choices.

After five minutes, I finally ended up talking to a human, who told me no appointemnt was necessary, come to Urgent Care.

Right.

What does the word urgent mean? We're all in college, it's not too hard to figure out, right? To me it means in need of immediate care. I guess Health Services forgot the meaning.

Just how long did I wait, you ask? Let's see. I arrived at the Receptionist desk at 1:40 p.m. After being seen by a doctor (?) for approximately 10 minutes, I left the clinic at 4:30 p.m.

Yes, I was there for three hours to get this remedy, the one they tell everyone: "Go home, get some rest, drink plenty of fluids and suck on an ice cube for that tongue."

Wait a minute. I sat around for three hours to hear what my mom could have told me?

To say the least, my condition worsened and I had to go home to see my doctor. He told me I had a serious virus and a sinus infection to boot.

I got medicines of all shapes and forms, and guess what? The very next day, I could breathe, swallow and talk like a normal human being.

Says a lot for our "Health Services," doesn't it? Next time you feel sick, go home or else suffer for three hours and hear for yourself the good 'ole Health Services remedy.

Jessica Kennedy
Southwest

Gore & Perot trade fists

(The following is a smuggled transcript of what happened immediately following the historic debate between Vice- President Al Gore and Ross Perot about NAFTA, after the "Larry King Live" CNN show went off the air.)

KING: Okay, gentlemen, now that the show's over, let's be honest: neither one of you,and no one in this country, really knows what the hell NAFTA is, right? Mexico-shmexico. I think you're both blowing smoke out your asses. Am I right?

PEROT: Well, now, Larry, let me make it simple for you, okay? It's like there's a dog, and the dog has fleas, and the fleas get in your bed-sheets, see? It's like that, see. You know the dang fleas are there, biting your privates and all—

Mark Tyler
WENHAM

GORE: Well, if I could just respond to that thought, I'd like to think that a lot of Americans would give their dog a flea-bath, Larry. But what this has to do with NAFTA—

PEROT: Excuse me, excuse me. Can I finish what I was saying? Could I just finish one sentence tonight?

KING: Certainly.

PEROT: So what I was saying was, the fleas are in your privates, just biting away, just itching the hell out of your sore, red privates, right? And you're scratching like the dickens, right? And you can't sleep, see? So what you—

GORE: Both Tipper and I have had fleas in our privates and been able to sleep, but I still don't—

PEROT: Now dammit, I was talking, you crackerhead! You've had plenty of time to jabber, now it's my turn—

GORE: Actually, Ross, I haven't been able to say—

PEROT: Hey! Have some manners! Could a person just be able to make a simple point around here? Okay? Larry, please tell the vice-president to stop interrupting me. Could you do that, please?

KING: Now, gentlemen, we really don't have to—

PEROT: Uh, Larry, shut the hell up. You're interrupting me. Don't be rude like Mr. Stick-in-the-Mud here, okay? Think on that gorilla-dust a little, huh? Give it a thought.

KING: Well, Ross, I think you should just turn your little raging pygmy ego down a few notches. This is my show, after all. I'll say whatever the hell—

PEROT: Larry, let's get something real straight here: I could buy your show. I could buy it and make you do doggy tricks with rubber bones and little plastic kitties on prime-time television if I wanted to, hear? Now, I was talking about fleas in the average American's privates, and I've got a chart right here to show you—

KING: Hey! Just who the hell do you think—

PEROT: Larry, I'm gonna tell you one more time to shut up while I'm talking. Did you grow up in a part of the country where they don't have manners? Huh?

(KING begins to hyperventilate in anger, then suddenly starts clutching at his chest.)

GORE: Okay, Ross, I think you've gone a bit too far—

PEROT: There you go again, Al, you pickup-thumping, banjo-twanging hick. I wish America could see how rude their vice-president is. Now, if I were in office, things wouldn't be so rude, hear?

GORE: All right, Dumbo, I've heard just about—

PEROT: One more peep out of you, Al, and I'm gonna smack you around like you were a big, dumb Texas cow.

(KING's eyes roll back in his head and he topples over.)

GORE: See what you've done? Don't you know that Larry has had some 15 heart attacks recently? Now you've given him another one, you little barbecue-sucking bug—

PEROT: Oh, tough guy! You want a piece of me? Huh? I know you've been itching to take a shot at me, Mr. Smarty-pants. Hell, son, I've wrestled big Texas steer who could eat you for breakfast, and you think you can take me? Huh, Mister Ozone-head?

GORE: Oh! Don't you dare bring that stuff up! I am not an Ozone-head!

PEROT: Ozone-head.

GORE: That's it! One more time, Ross...

PEROT: Oh? Whatcha' gonna do about it...Ozone?

(Gore rips off his microphone and attacks Perot, throwing him to the floor and bashing his head against it repeatedly. Larry King lies convulsing nearby. Crew members rush in to separate Perot and Gore, but Perot manages to give Gore a swift kick to the groin before being pulled away by a cameraman. Gore seizes up, wheezing, holding his groin and looking skyward with his mouth in a big "O." End of debate.)

Mark Tyler Wenham is a Collegian columnist.

Greetings fellow stress-cases:

Just a perky little reminder that there are only four (4) weeks left in the semester — after you've stopped convulsing read on. . .

This not only means the end of all likable parts of life are over for the year, but also space for your wonderous thoughts is dwindling away — sort of like your grades and any chance at happiness ....

So piece of advice: write them down and send them to us — NOW (113 Campus Center Basement).

Another word of advice: inhale.

The Ed/Op Goddesses

WHAT'S THE KEY TO QUITTING SMOKING?

Kicking the habit can be tough, especially if you've smoked for years. The Great American Smokeout is a good time to try to quit.

After you make it through the 24 hours of Smokeout, set a goal of not smoking for two weeks. Most people give up during the first two weeks because they are the hardest. After that, you'll know you can live without cigarettes—if you take it one day at a time.

Anytime you need help, please give us a call. We have free information on quitting, and we'll support you all the way.

Pick up a FREE Smokers Quit Kit November 18

on the Campus Center Concourse

A FEW QUIT TIPS

- Get rid of your cigarettes, ashtrays, lighters, and matches. You won't need them anymore.
- Change your smoking routine. Leave the dinner table right away; don't sit in your "smoking chair"; avoid the smoking areas at work.
- Drink lots of liquids, except coffee and alcohol. They can trigger the desire to smoke.
- When the urge hits, take a deep breath, hold it, and slowly release it. The urge will pass.
- For information on quitting, call 1-800-ACS-2345

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

GREAT AMERICAN smokeout

The Third Thursday of November

Sponsored by University Health Services Health Education Division

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

support for the agreement.

The House vote is set for Wednesday, and it will take a majority of 218 votes to win approval. Passage there would send the accord to the Senate, where Democratic and Republican leaders issued fresh predictions of passage.

■ Trade

continued from page 1

ly behind NAFTA, to do otherwise would be to deny their own nature. A Mexican conglomerate bought Del Monte Fresh Produce for almost $600 million and plan to use it to infiltrate the North American market. Just as AT&T and MCI plan to go south, some Mexican companies are already going north.

One main characteristic of the NAFTA debate has been to undermine the consumption power of the Mexican economy. This is Ross Perot's main point but according to Business Week, Wal-Mart, the nation's biggest retailer, "already has 14 stores in Mexico." If U.S. exports to Mexico continue to grow, new jobs will be created in that sector of the economy. However, the gains from trade will be spread unevenly.

STUDY IN CUERNAVACA, MEXICO THIS JANUARY

UMass Boston offers a special winter session program in the beautiful city of Cuernavaca, Mexico, for students interested in learning Spanish or studying the political economy and culture of Mexico. The program emphasizes experimental learning; participants can earn up to six academic credits in economics, political science, or Spanish.

The registration deadline is November 19.

Call today for more information 617 287-7915

UMass Boston

Division of Continuing Education

Golden Key National Honor Society

All Members Meeting!

TODAY Wednesday, November 17

7:30 pm

808 Campus Center

Update on 1992-1993 Activities

Planning for 1993-1994

For more information call:

Gladys Rodriguez

Dean of Students Office • 545-2684

The 32nd Annual

LAS VEGAS NIGHT

Thursday, November 18 from 7:30 to Midnight

in the Campus Center Auditorium

Your winnings from our mock-casino can be used at our end of the evening auction to bid on over $1,200 worth of prizes donated by local merchants.

PRIZES INCLUDE:

Dinner for two at Boltwood Tavern at the Lord Jeffery Inn

A nightgown from Le Boudoir

A perfumed soap and lotion basket from The Cedar Chest

A Samual Adams mirror from La Fuente

Compact Disks from Musicland & NRM Music including:

Aaron Neville's Soulful Christmas, Rick Astley's Body & Soul, Daryl Hall's Soul Alone, & many more

This is just a taste of the prizes available. Come down and try your luck!

Admission: $3.00 in advance or $5.00 at the door.

All proceeds go to the Everywoman's Center.

SPONSORED BY:

ΑΦΩ NATIONAL CO-ED SERVICE FRATERNITY & HMPFM Radio 99.3 FM

Seniors!!

Yearbook Photographers

Will be On Campus until this Friday!

Call Now for your portrait sitting 1-800-836-0558.

Don't Be Left Out!

Michael's Fine Foods

Groceries & Produce

Formerly Watroba's Market

(Next to Watroba's Liquors)

80 Sunderland Rd.

549-6642

Arts & Living

Strangelove & meatballs: flicks reviewed

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

This week's batch of movies are really quite excellent. The group contains one of my favorite movies of all time — Dr. Strangelove. I'm going to spotlight this movie to make sure everyone who has a chance, sees it. The other two movies that get my recommendation are Close Encounters of the Third Kind and Evil Dead II.

Dr. Strangelove or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb — This is truly one of the movie greats. The movie is not only conceptually fascinating, but is really rather funny. It looks at the arms race, the military, man's reliance on machines and of course, penis envy. The cast is spearheaded by Peter Sellers who plays three different roles in the movie. Other knockout performances are by George C. Scott as an Air Force General, Sterling Hayden as Colonel Jack D. Ripper and Slim Pickens as an Air Force Pilot whose objective is to bomb "The Ruskies." The movie brilliantly juxtaposes the realism of the crisis situation, with the inevitable absurdities that the characters are forced to make decisions too. This is one of those movies you just have to see. A++

HSCN Reviews

Chinatown — Jack Nicholson puts in one of his best performances as J.J. Gittes, a private detective sent out to investigate an adultery case. Naturally, this leads to more mysteries and problems. I really like the movie because Nicholson spends most of it with a big bloody bandage on his beak. Although slightly humorous, it still works. A slick, cool movie that reminds you of some of those great old film noirs. A-

Close Encounters of the Third Kind — Steven Spielberg wrote and directed this highly entertaining movie about contact with alien life. What could've been a rather silly, superfluous movie turns into a highly imaginative and captivating experience. Richard Dreyfuss, an energetic actor if there ever were one, plays an obsessed man who's mind has been tampered with by aliens telling him to be at a certain place at a certain time. Check this flick out to see what happens. A

Evil Dead II — The reason I'm willing to recommend this film over some of the other excellent movies is because it takes a pretty dull genre, horror, and twists it into something rather amusing (in a sick way). Where else could you see a guy beat up by his own possessed hand, or a camera shot through a bloody light bulb? The camera work in this movie is really cool. Director Sam Raimi, takes the cliche, a haunted house, and makes it into a wild, weird, wacky fresh experience. The movie isn't really that deep either, so if you want a break from thinking — enjoy. A

Marathon Man — This movie contains probably one of the most intense scenes in all of film history. It happens when Dustin Hoffman is strapped to a chair and is tortured by having his teeth worked on with no novacaine. It gives you a whole new perspective on going to the dentist. The movie is a tale of international espionage dealing with a Nazi who has to go back to the states (where he'll be arrested if recognized) to get some diamonds. See it, if you have the time. B+

Meatballs — Bill Murray, in his first movie, plays a camp counselor who just goes through the motions of the job, and makes jokes along the way. At the end of the movie there is a competition between Murray's camp and a richer, better camp across the lake. My favorite scene comes when they have the "weenie competition" to see who can eat the most hot dogs. Murray gives a pep speech that is nothing short of hilarious. Watch and enjoy. B+

Not Reviewed on HSCN: Marooned, Back in the USSR, Blind Fury, Fire in the Sky, Highlander, Housekeeping, Impromptu, Just Another Girl on the IRT, Miracle Mile, Planet of the Apes, Sabrina, Staying Together, Three of Hearts, Volere Volare, Hear No Evil.

Michael Landon had his Highway to Heaven. We have our Stairway to...

THE COLLEGIAN

COME DOWN TO THE BASEMENT CAMPUS CENTER 113

San Francisco symphony to play Fine Arts Center

COURTESY FINE ARTS CENTER

The San Francisco Symphony

By TARA CONNELLY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts will be able to experience first hand the internationally acclaimed San Francisco Symphony during a one-time performance tonight.

Directed by Maestro Herbert Blomstedt, the San Francisco Symphony will play three Czechoslovakian composed pieces. The first two pieces will be "Smetana Valtava (The Moldau)" from Ma Vlast and Janacek's Taras Bulba. They will then be followed by Dvortak's Symphony No. 7 in D minor, Opus 70 after a short intermission. All three of the pieces reflect the vigor and flair of Czechoslovakia during its peaceful and revolutionary times.

Blomstedt and the San Francisco Symphony, with the San Francisco Chorus, have received a 1993 Grammy Award for its recordings of Orff's Carmina Burana. Its dedication and talent have made the symphony an indispensable cultural resource for San Francisco, having played over 200 concerts a year and traveling nation wide to more than 225 cities. The American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers have honored the San Francisco Symphony seven times for its ongoing programs to endorse new music and for its dedication to the future.

General admission tickets start at $22, tickets for Five College students begin at $11, tickets are $10 for children under 16. For tickets call the Fine Arts Center at 545-2511 or visit their box office.

Collegian Classifieds They Work! 113 Campus Center

Northampton Bowl

College Night

Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00

• 8:30 p.m.-Close

584-4830

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst

Rental Office Open Daily 10-4

549-0600

DOMINO'S PIZZA

NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S

How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.

Amherst 256-8911

Mt. Holyoke 535-1111

Open For Lunch at 11 AM

AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY

FREE DELIVERY

Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan

VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™

30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese

ONLY $9.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

LARGE CHEESE $6.99 $1.25 each add. topping

MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99 .99¢ each add. topping

Any Two Large Subs $7.99

Updated Pippin to be performed by theatre guild

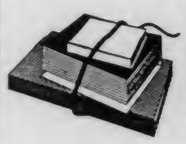
By SHAWN MCDONNELL
Collegian Staff

It has been more than a decade since Pippin ended its triumphant Broadway run, and passed into the realm of classics. In the years that have followed, Stephen Schwartz's musical has found its second life in the intimacy of amateur theatre productions, a venue which has kept the show alive on a national level.

Part of the reason for Pippin's continued popularity with amateur groups, explains Elise Schild, is the intriguing openness of Roger Hirson's script — which allows the show to grow around the actors who people it. The actors, in this case, are a 19-strong student cast whom Schild is leading through a new production of the musical for the UMass Theatre Guild.



"This has been a learning experience," Schild says, explaining how she allowed the production to form through improvisations which helped to "remake" the show.

Pippin is, in Schild's words, "a journey into the brain of a young man." Adam Goldman plays the title role of Charlemegne's son, embarking on a quest for fulfillment which sends him to war, to sex, and to politics before he finds contentment in the simplest of places. It is a journey that could be taken by any audience member, and that fact accounts for both the enduring appeal of the show and the enthusiasm with which new audiences embrace it.

"It's timeless," Schild explains, " due to the simple fact that humanity never changes."

But this Pippin has seen some changes from its earlier days. Updated from Bob Fosse's uniquely 1970's perspective, Schild and Choreographer Jen Sussman have given this production a look and outlook which better reflects the newer age — not in such indelicacies as anachronistic staging, but in the shared experiences and fresh perspectives which the young creative team bring to the show.

Pippin will be performed Nov. 17 - 20 at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are available from the Fine Arts Center Box Office or at the door.

What is a Textbook Buyback?

Three times during each semester the Textbook Annex brings in a wholesaler to buy textbooks from students. Wholesalers are in the business of selling used books to colleges and universities across the country. Therefore, in determining how much they will pay a student for a book they must consider the demand for that book as well as the shipping and handling costs involved in processing and reselling the book. This is why prices vary and indeed change frequently. Generally only current editions have value.

The best time to sell books is at the end of the semester. At that time the Annex will pay 50% of the new price for a book if we have an order for that book for the following semester and we need to purchase copies. If we do not, the wholesaler may make you an offer.

If you have questions please ask the people doing the buyback or the Annex staff. They will be more than happy to answer your questions and give you any tips that may be applicable to your situation.

*A Picture ID is Required for all Buyback Transactions.

When is the next Textbook Buyback?

Mid-semester Textbook Buyback is:

NOVEMBER 22-23
9:00 AM- 4:00 PM

NOVEMBER 24
9:00 AM - 1:00 PM

at the TEXTBOOK ANNEX

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖

The Best Chinese Buffet

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunnchеon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

TONIGHT Charlies tavern since 1978

Jägermeister Night
Wed. Nov. 17 5pm-12midnight

Prizes & Giveaways with the Jägermeister Models

25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4# Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Jumbo Jim Beam and Coke - $1.95

Open 11am - 1am 7 days a week • Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Game room with 2 pool tables • 4 TVs all on separate channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen TV • MC / VISA / AMEX Accepted • 549-5403

Great Sexpectations
Bedspins
Some Body to Love
How to be a Better Lover
S.T.R.E.S.S. How do you spell relief?
Drink Smart
The Travelling Medicine Show
Total Harmonic Distortion
Not Ready for Bedtime Players

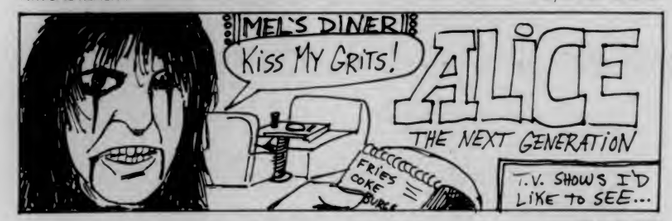
Check out one of the best courses at UMass. Get up-to-date information, enjoy engaging, stimulating discussions, and teach cool stuff to your peers. Limited class size means lots of fun & friendship.

PEER HEALTH EDUCATION I & II
PUBLIC HEALTH 213 OR EDUCATION 213

6 CREDITS - 2 SEMESTER COMMITMENT REQUIRED
For more information & permission of instructor call
Division of Health Education, 549-2671 ext. 181.

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER



CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

STEVE By MATT PAQUETTE

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sean Hayden
Copy Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photo Technician ..... Matt Simoneau
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Ganley
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski
Tara Dixon

MENU

LUNCH
BBQ Beef on a Bun
Tuna Melts

BASICS LUNCH
Hearty Latin Stew
Tuna Melts

DINNER
Cheese Spinach Strudel, Rotini

BASICS DINNER
Cheese Spinach Strudel, Rotini

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"I'm a big fan of the plastic worm."
– Overheard

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): To lend lift a persistent ailment, be as emphatic as possible. Long-range savings programs are a great idea. Welcome an opportunity to purchase your dream car or plan a fabulous summer vacation!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Students now know what they want to do next. Be financially generous to your family as possible. Anyone working in the medical field should make real progress this month.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Plunging headlong into a sedative love affair is not a good idea. Fulfill an agreement to the best of your ability. A large-scale project may take more time than anticipated. Settle down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): There is no need for financial panic; you have a reserve or resource you have forgotten about. Face a setback stoically. Tomorrow will look brighter once you talk things over with your partner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not go to extremes or open your wallet too widely. Negotiate for better terms before signing a contract of agreement. Refuse to act without full knowledge of something taking place behind the scenes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seek good advice and act on it. You may have to travel on short notice. Show greater flexibility and understanding when dealing with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Beware of taking too much for granted where your dear ones are concerned. Do not tempt them with too much money. Concentrate on communications and visits that could brighten your financial future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be patient when others are slow to grasp your meaning. Great successes, like oak trees, can grow from something small. Your passionate nature is a turn-on to someone who knows you well.

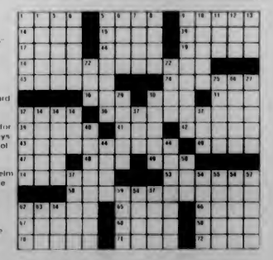
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Continue to rely on your own intuition. A healthy skepticism can avert embarrassing errors in judgment. Practice preventative medicine; make appointments for dental and medical checkups.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your congenial mood sets the stage for successful teamwork today. Telling others what you hope to accomplish rallies support from fans and big thinkers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A powerful professional or personal alliance gives you new clout. People listen when you bring your ideas to the table. A long-time battle will end in victory.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A wave of inspiration sends your spirits into orbit. Apply your innovative ideas to the field of service. Seniors will get great satisfaction from involvement in human service causes.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Actor Tandilyn
5 Tell-all
9 Shoreline
14 And others
15 Goldberg of the weird inventions
16 Multi-shaded
17 Opera favorite
18 Barley beverages
19 Pee Wee of baseball
20 SLIP
23 Loveseat
24 Actor Jack
26 Gallery display
30 Start of a Latin ten
31 RSVP card requirement
32 Freshly fruit
36 SLIP
39 Skaters maneuvers
41 Amin
42 "Ah, when?"
43 SLIP
46 "His Eye — the Sparrow" Ethel Waters book
47 Use a calculator
48 Asian GI
49 "— Pinafore"
51 Comedian Jerry
53 Displays of affection
58 SLIP
62 Pat or Richard
65 Kind of member?
66 Icicle collector
67 Bowling alleys
68 Out of control
69 On a shelf
70 Headlock?
71 Takes the helm
72 Actor Dolnce and namesakes

DOWN
1 Rings in the harvest
2 Practical
3 Egyptian statesman
4 Bias
5 After-shave lotions
6 She's back in town
7 Support
8 Top of the line
9 Certain pipes
10 Greek letter
11 Honest —
12 Future grads
13 Leisure shirt
21 13 Down sound alike
22 Principles
25 "— Theme" from "Dr Zhivago"
26 Singer's lead-in 27 Pale
29 Voluminous
30 Prone to memory
32 Of the Vatican
33 O compound
34 Canasta hands
35 Home shape
37 Actress Lupino
38 Refore center
40 Result of overdoing
44 Sentence unit
45 Sets out
50 Big — Calif.
52 Gershwin specialties
54 Make a mess
55 Former Asian defense org.
56 Ambassador
57 Enotaitis
59 Red coated cheese
60 Capital of Italia
61 Gang member
62 Diner order, for short
63 Flower
64 "A Chorus Line" song

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

E	R	A		A	G	A	P	E		S	W	A
R	O	B	S		R	I	S	E	S		W	I	N	E
S	P	O	T	L	I	G	H	T	S		A	R	I	A
E	E	R	I	E			L		E	A	R	N	E	S	T
		S	T	R	A	P	S		O	Y	E
				F	R	O	M		S	E	O	A	T	E
A	R	C	A		A	L	E	S		S	O	L	O	N
J	O	H	N	N	Y		O	N	T	H	E	S	P	O	T
A	M	I	N	O		S	U	R	E		E	S	T	E
R	E	T	A	I	N			S	U	R	F
			S	O	S		M	O	R	A	L	S
O	E	A	R	E	S	T		E	P	I	C	S
U	R	G	E		H	I	T		M	E	S	P	O	T
L	I	E	S		E	L	I	O	T		E	I	R	E
L	E	S	T		D	E	N	T	S		D	E	W

11/17/93

Northampton bookstore opens new literary doors

By AMY S. BURNS
Collegian Correspondent

Northampton boasts a new bookstore called Gabriel Books, which opened just a few weeks ago. Located in the center of town on Market Street, this small store offers an interesting selection of old and unusual books.

When you walk into Gabriel Books, you're greeted with the smell of new wood and the sound of classical music. In the late afternoon, the tiny store is filled with sunlight, making it a cheerful place for browsing around for that certain book that you haven't been able to find anywhere else.

The bookstore is owned and managed by John and Patricia Riley. Mr. Riley, the former owner of The Globe Bookstore, spent eight years putting together his new store. As a result of his efforts, Gabriel Books features a wide selection of books in foreign languages. Mr. Riley has spent time in Italy, but his collection of foreign titles is not limited to Italian. There are also books in German, Greek and French.

As a French major, I was particularly excited to find French books that weren't required for my classes, and there was even a gorgeous five volume Dictionnaire de la Langue Francaise from 1878. With such a selection, Gabriel Books reminded me a little of the tiny, used book stores in Paris's "Quartier Latin," where the books are only loosely grouped by subject, and no bookstore has the same selection as another.

Despite the fact that the merchandise was not completely unpacked, I was impressed with the rest of Gabriel Books' collection, including books on the Liberal and Fine Arts, Psychology, Religion, Cooking and even a set of shelves devoted to books about Ireland.

If you're having trouble finding a particular volume or if you're just looking for something unusual to read, Gabriel Books is certainly worth a shot.

The Rileys also plan to offer a service which will help people search for out-of-print and hard to find books, but they haven't had time to start it up yet. While there are quite a few expensive, rare books, there are also many more moderately priced treasures to fit into the average student's budget.

Gabriel Books is located at 21 Market Street, Northampton, and is open Tuesday - Saturday, 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Beavis, Butt-head hit books

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

This Book Sucks
By Sam Johnson and Chris Marcil
Pocket Books

My only message to parents everywhere is: Be glad you don't have kids like this. Mike Judge's Beavis and Butt-head, the wisecracking slackers of MTV fame, have now taken their world where everything sucks to the bookshelves with this compilation of favorite family photos, pickup lines, free guitar lessons, recipes, dirty jokes, letters from administrators, and bad character references.

So now you can catch them at their best (or worst, depending on how you look at it,) without admitting you watch too much TV.

The head-banging duo, one with a prominent gumline and empty, moronic stare and the other with a cash-register- drawer bottom jaw and constantly evil, plotting grin, offer everyone a look into their upbringing and past hysterical pranks.

From their formula of creating rock band names to their favorite hobbies (which include empty lighter collecting), to a letter to Ozzy Osbourne, to a collection of stuff in Beavis's pocket, the variety of endeavors they take on makes each turn of the page something totally unexpected and invariably funny.

These basket cases, although prone to violence, sexist jokes, and "Fire! Fire! Fire! Fire!," should bear no responsibility for subsequent events like five-year-olds burning their houses down. They're just trying to have fun and lots of it, and don't care how inarticulate or maladjusted they appear.

One of the first things the book says, on the inside cover, is "Beavis and Butt-head are not role models; they're not even human. They're cartoons. Some of the things they do would cause a real person to get hurt, expelled, arrested and possibly deported. To put it another way: don't try this at home." Enough said, Terry Rakolta wanna-be's.

As often as they seem like characters from a low-budget "High School U.S.A." movie, they succeed time and time again in their style of humor, which involves chuckling at references to anatomy, making fun of Ned Beatty's character in "Deliverance," being proud of having no personal hygiene to speak of, and alienating themselves from anyone and anything that even glimmers of good taste.

For those unfamiliar with the pair's antics, all that's necessary is to turn the book to the back cover, where they drop their shorts and offer some "moonlight" by which to read.

What makes Beavis and Butt-head the laugh sensation they are is their subtleness at times. It reminds me of someone just sitting in a chair with a group of people, spouting unplanned, unrehearsed one-liners.

Women's Clothing & Accessories
Amherst 413.253.2563 Brattleboro 802.254.4421 Williamstown 413.458.9858

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1163 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6370
13 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-3232
50 Congress St Boston, MA (617)722-0043
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

Northhampton Bowl
College Night
Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

Art feeds the senses.
It makes sense to read the Collegian.
Therefore The Collegian is art.

RESEARCH INTERVIEWERS
HIRING NOW FOR EVENING AND WEEKEND HOURS
NO SELLING INVOLVED
Interesting part-time telephone assignments to collect data on a variety of research topics. Absolutely no selling involved. Computer/typing skills required. Monday-Friday 5pm-10pm, Saturday 11am-5pm, Sunday 3pm-9pm. Must work a minimum of 20 hours per week. Start at $5.25/hour with paid training and earn up to $7.00/hour.
We're in the Mountain Farms Mall which is a stop on the free bus line. Call between 9am-5pm, Monday-Friday, (413)586-8635.
Abt Associates Inc.
Telephone Research Center
Mountain Farms Mall, Rt. 9
Hadley, MA 01035
An Equal Opportunity Employer.
Abt

COLLEGE STUDENTS SAVE BIG! AT Killington VERMONT
SKI or SNOWBOARD $25 A DAY!
HERE'S THE DEAL... SAVE 40% EACH DAY!
PURCHASE THE KILLINGTON EXTRA CREDIT CARD FOR $30 AND SKI OR SNOWBOARD FOR ONLY $25 A DAY ALL SEASON LONG! (VALID SUNDAY-FRIDAY/NON-HOLIDAY)
HERE'S WHAT YOU GET:
•The Largest Ski Resort in the East • 6 Interconnected Mountains •155 Trails spread over 70 miles of Skiing •19 Lifts–Including 7 Quads (No lines here!) •Longest Ski Season in the East–October-May. (Now that's Skier Commitment!) •3,150 ft. Vertical Drop (We're Big!)
ALSO:
•Your own Killington EXTRA CREDIT Card
•Ability to purchase $25 lift tickets, Sunday through Friday, non-holiday. (Holiday periods, Nov. 26, December 26-31, 1993, and Feb. 20-21, 1994).
Killington 1993-94 EXTRA CREDIT
NO OTHER RESORT OFFERS MORE THAN KILLINGTON!
To qualify for the EXTRA CREDIT Card you must be a full time college student age 18-24. To receive a $25 Killington one-day lift ticket valid Sunday–Friday, non holidays (Valid November 15 1993 through May 1, 1994), you must present your signed EXTRA CREDIT Card valid full-time college ID and Photo ID at time of purchase (Excluding November 26, December 26-31, 1993, February 20-21, 1994). May not be combined with other offers. Limit one lift ticket per day. Your EXTRA CREDIT Card is non-transferable.
For More Information or to Order your EXTRA CREDIT Card call: 1-800-337-9220

Eddy

continued from page 12

Rudy will not get into the logistics. He just says he wished her well and did everything he could to assist the transfer. Eddy is taking 12 credits at George Mason, which is 20 minutes from her hometown of Fairfax, Va., but she will graduate in December with a degree from UMass.

"It would be too bad if this got ugly," Rudy said. "Hey, it's a done deal. We helped her anyway we could. We are sending her flowers to congratulate her on making the Final Four. I am proud of her."

"It ended up being the best solution for everyone and I wish her good luck."

Eddy said, "I know there are mixed reactions on the team about my transfer. I haven't talked to anyone up there, but I will this weekend. I think everyone realizes it worked out the best for all of us."

George Mason is a true cinderella team. The Patriots have rolled to an 18-2 record and shocked the Central Region, dropping No. 3 Notre Dame and host Wisconsin to qualify for the Final Four. They have been doubted from start to finish, but they've proved they belong.

"We always believed we could beat anyone in the nation," Eddy said. "To finally have this dream come true is real exciting. To prove to everyone that we are one of the top four teams in the country is a great feeling."

There is one last dream Eddy would like to come true, and that is to meet her old team in the championship game and walk out a winner. She is not bitter but she still would like to prove herself on the field.

"It would be the storybook ending to a storybook season," Eddy said. "It would be the ultimate ending."

Rudy wouldn't mind the match-up either.

"It would be cool," he said. "I have no problem playing her. It would be a great story."

TRAVEL SMART THIS WINTER!
FROM NEW YORK
Roundtrip / One Way
London $305 $165
Paris $398 $219
Rome $525 $320
Oslo/Stockholm $458 $229
Tel Aviv/Istanbul $639 $329
Guatemala City $390 $205
Costa Rica $430 $225
Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Customs-immigration and departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

The Club
The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.
Buy next semester's membership now and get intersession free!
Pay $140 Today & Secure Your Membership From 12/23/93-5/31/94
• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Cardiovascular Machines
• Tanning
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Child Care
• On Bus Route
Pay $9.50/Week for the Rest of the Fall Semester
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
TONIGHT
PIZZA SLICES 50¢
9 TIL 1
Miller Genuine Draft
Weekly Special $1.25
Coach Cal-LIVE
WHMP Radio Show 6-7pm
Satellite TV • 4 Pool Tables
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549-4040

Classifieds

• 20¢ per day per word for students
• Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
• 113 Campus Center
• Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at T.I.X. Unlimited

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Entrepreneurs College Pro Painters will be running an informational session on Wednesday in CC room 802. Come in and find out about us.

Earn up to $700 in just one week mailing brochures. For info send name + address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton, OH 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543-5640

FreeShow - Come See:
It's Not Just Noyes
at 9:15pm in the Field Lounge - Orchard Hill on Wednesday
November 17

Interested in Video Production? Call Jim or Terri at 586-6922 to find out more about internships at a local television station!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US. Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413 467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

Car for Sale
1984 Buick Skyhawk
Good Condition
$1500 546-4751

For Sale - 86 Pontiac Firebird Mint condition a/c alpine auto w/overdrive $3900 Call Kevin 256-3119

1982 Dodge Colt (Mitsubishi) hatchback 100,000 miles, reliable, well maintained $995 586-5447

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 miles only
$4000 call 546-1482

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat fireplace 586-4270

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0889 428 Student Union

1 bedroom available for 1 or 2 females in 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton starting Jan - convenient - on bus route Call/ve message - 549-7756

Room in a 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment 236.00 plus utilities
Call 549-1920

Take over my lease one bedroom apt Great place $475. Call 256-1076

Uptown Apartment
2 females
185.00 each
Starting in January
256-4137

FOR SALE

Car Stereo System
JVC/CD receiver and 350W
Kenwood Speaker Box with
Acoustic Amp call Matt at 596-8542

CDROM Hitachi (external) + CDs 350.00 549-6426

For Sale
Neon signs $50 100
"Roller Blades" $50
Call 549-3749

IBM Computer, printer, software, disks, all 550.00/bo 549-6426

New Computers Competitive prices Assistance/lessons available 549-6426

Nintendo + 10 games
Must Sell $25.00
Pete or Andy 549-2849

17 1/2" Specialized "Stumpjumper" mountain bike in excellent condition $200 Call days 549-1728

Ski Equipment
Rossignol 170 Sz 200
Atomic 733 SL Sz 195
K2 Sz 172
Boots Sz 7,8,9
Best offer
Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings Look Never used or mounted 549-8180

FOUND

Found - rust-colored cat with black stripes, approximately 3 months old Call 549-5181 for more information

HARRY J. POULTON

Remember Midnite Runs to Antonio's?
Let's Do It Again!!

HELP WANTED

AA Cruise & Travel jobs earn $2500/mo + travel the world free! Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, Asia. Cruise line now hiring for busy holiday, spring and summer seasons. Guaranteed employment! Call 919-929-4398 ext. 114

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Exotic Dancers Wanted
Great pay, flexible hours
Race St. Pub 268 Race St Holyoke MA
Call Bob 532-1422

Get up, stand up! Work on Clean Water Action's Campaigns: Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA, activists wanted. Flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break - start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Inside Sales Positions rapidly growing cellular business in Hampshire mall and Holyoke mall and Ingleside. Capable personable with good sales skills. Permanent and holiday positions with excellent salary commissions and benefits full and part time. Call 508-393-9312 from 8 am to 5 pm. Must fill immediately

PCA for male quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 546-0666

RGIS Inventory Specialists will be conducting interviews at the campus center Nov. 18th and 19th from 10 am to 4 pm. If unable to attend call 413-737-7218. Springfield area 508-832-6150 Worcester area

$700/wk. Cannery workers. $4000/mo. deckhands. Alaska fishing industry now hiring for next summer. 1,000 opening. No exp. necessary. Free rm & bd. These jobs go fast! Employment Alaska. 1-206-323-2672

INSTRUCTION

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

IT'S THE BEST

Mill Valley - what a place to live! And you can join us in our wonderful two bedroom apartment. Just think free heat and hot water!!! We're looking for two people to share one BIG bed room with its very own bathroom. Call 253-4789 for details. Don't delay!

LOST

Lost Wallet:
Please return license
and any other article you don't want
Or call 549-4226

Sterling Silver fairy necklace of great sentimental value. If found
please call Amy 6-3910

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

Andy,
When Mountains Crumble to the Sea
There Will Still Be You and Me
I Love and Miss You!
Your Insecure Chickie

Bud Heppy 21st
This Budz For U
Love You, Bud

Happy Birthday Carin dear. May you be as peaceful and happy now that you are, twenty as when you were a little baby. Love and Kisses!
Nadia

Obnoxious,
Five months since
I guessed the password
I'm so glad I met you!
Love,
Shakey

Sweetal I miss you. Babydolls

This is your last chance!
Buy a ticket!
Party with AEPhi!
Support AIDS research!
Call For info 549-3589

To Our WWF Rivals:
We loved hanging out with our friends in the buck! Thanks for a great week end!
Love,
Jake the Snake
and
The Undertaker

The Brothers of Sig Ep
Don't even think it's over
The battle has just begun!
You won't know when
You won't know how
But you'll know why
Love the Sisters of Sigma Kappa

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

One Bedroom Available in two bedroom apartment
Amherst Center
237.50 + month
Call 256-3566

Your own room in a 2 bed apt 237.50+ Call 772-3702 Jan to May!

SERVICES

FINANCIAL AID for College
NO GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
1508) 543-5640

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413 467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM. Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

SPRINT

Marketing Firm Seeking Students
for paid internship. Must be ambitious and willing to travel. Excellent pay
and bonuses. Call Jessica at Collegiate Advantage, 617-424-6116
or FAX resume to 617-424-9788

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break
First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach, parties, pool deck, fun, nightclubs, sunshine.
Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans with on campus pick up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94. Call for free brochure 1-800-9 Daytona M-F, 8-6. See ya at the beach!

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov 19-21 Killington Wknd $99
Winter Break ski week Killington
Jan 16-21 $275 sign up today at Concourse table or call 545-2437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laser printing. Call Becca
586-1989

Typing, Spellcheck, laser quality $1.50/pg Roadrunner 585-9434

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-947-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted: Two Rooms in a shared house in Northampton for next semester call 546-1478 or 546-1936

Don't miss the 1993 - 1994 Hoop Preview in tomorrow's Collegian

Sports

Eddy still has something to prove to UMass

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

For three years it cooked. It simmered, steamed and bubbled. It would eventually boil over, it was just a matter of time.

It was the goaltending controversy on the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team. The problem was simple, the Minutewomen had two All-American goalkeeper's, Skye Eddy and Briana Scurry, on the roster and just one position to play them.

Coach Jim Rudy tried to manage it as best he could. Last season when it approached a boil, he split the playing time, but it only caused doubt among the two players. Neither was able to fully concentrate on their game, neither could fully relax.

It caused problems among the field players also. No one wanted to choose sides, but they were often forced into tough positions.

By playoff time last season, Eddy, for the good of the team, volunteered to play forward and let Scurry have the starting job. The Minutewomen fell just short of the Final Four.

But by preseason this year, the battle was on again. The boil grew near. Rudy decided to split the time again, "It was too close to call," he said.

Eddy had had enough. She quit in early September and quickly transferred to George Mason. Rudy assisted her in leaving, released her from her scholarship and Mason Coach Jack Sicala received the most wonderful Labor Day present he ever saw — an All-American caliber keeper.

Two and a half months later, all the players return to Chapel Hill, N.C., for the Final Four. Eddy has led a George Mason team which was not considered a championship contender in August to the national semifinals. Mason (18-2-1) will play Stanford on Friday. Massachusetts (17-2-3) will take on seven-time defending champion North Carolina (21-0).

"It just proves what we thought all along," Rudy said. "And that is if they were ever on different teams they would both be All-Americans. And they might be this season."

Amherst was not big enough for both of them. One of them had to leave. And when Eddy did, it was clearly the best solution for both of them.

"It was just too frustrating," Eddy said. "It was so tough not playing. I never felt I could be complete up there."

That feeling finally pushed her out of Amherst.

"Some people might think I was selfish for leaving on a team because I wanted to play," Eddy said. "But I don't think I was selfish, I just needed to be complete. It is just my competitive spirit. I couldn't split time. I wasn't happy."

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

University of Massachusetts goalkeeper Briana Scurry and her teammates hope to meet former teammate and current George Mason keeper Skye Eddy in the national championship game of the Final Four this weekend in Chapel Hill, N.C.

It wasn't always pretty when the boiling point hit this fall. Eddy had injured her arm in practice and Rudy said she wasn't physically ready to play. Eddy, the tough competitor she is, wanted on the field. It ended up being the final straw.

"I was (medically) cleared to play and he wouldn't let me play," Eddy said. "I felt I deserved to be treated better by Coach. I was a fifth-year senior, I had done a lot for him and I deserved better. So I quit. I told him how I felt in his office and I quit, not knowing my options.

"I had no idea where I was going but I knew I couldn't be happy there."

Turn to EDDY, page 11

Intramurals closing out

Hang Ten wins women's soccer title

By ERIC LEBOFF
Collegian Staff

When all was said and done, experience won out in women's division intramural soccer. Hang Ten defeated the Spikes in a tightly played, 2-0 championship game.

This result came as no great surprise to captain Beth O'Neill, who felt her team was capable of a repeat all along.

"We work really well as a team. It all clicks," O'Neill said. Earlier in the season O'Neill extended special praise to teammate Liz Brown, who consistently made the crucial plays from the midfield. However, in retrospect, it must be acknowledged that a championship team requires a diverse pool of talent, and that every member of the squad has immense skills.

Despite having many members returning from last year's winning team, a Hang Ten victory was by no means ensured. In the semi-finals, they faced a competent Kickers squad which featured strong defensive play centered around sophomore Erin Mitchell. In addition to a strong defense, the Kickers could count on the timely goals of Claire Tebbs. In the end, Hang Ten was simply too much for the Kickers.

After finishing off the Kickers, Hang Ten faced an even more Herculean task. Their opponent in the finals, the Spikes, had made a habit of sticking it to their opponents during regular season play. Captain Jessica Pogni was pleased with her team on the eve of the championship.

The Spikes needed every ounce of their talent to overcome their semi-finals opponent, Hangin' High. Having progressed throughout the season, Hangin' High arrived at this series in peak form. Coached by Robin Branco, this squad played hard, relying on a strong work ethic to compensate for a lack of stars. They played admirably, though they were defeated 3-0 by the Spikes.

The Hang Ten victory over the Kickers and the Spikes win over Hangin' High set the stage for an intense championship match-up. Both teams gave it everything they had in the final game. With a winning past, Hang Ten had a slight edge, and came out on top. However, all of these teams should be loudly applauded for their diligent work.

Dear Students:

We are getting ready to start another basketball season and once again go up that emotional roller coaster ride. You, "The Classiest Fans in America," have helped us take this program to new heights.

The consensus from "unbiased" people who called me about "Midnight Madness" was that Mullins was the most enthusiastic arena. Once again, you stepped up to make our University stand out, nationally.

Now we face another obstacle - the Preseason NIT. Our team faces the toughest opening round opponent in the tourney on national TV. Your support is needed to help our team get over the top, but just as important, to let the nation know that the support of your team on this campus is unmatched! The reason we were given an opening round game was because because of your support in the past. The reason we would not get a home game in the future would be because of low attendance.

My team and my staff know that we represent every student on this campus. We were your voice when it came to student seating in Mullins, and other issues concerning you. I hope that you are proud of your team — not because they win, but because they play with passion, enthusiasm, and a "Refuse to Lose" attitude.

As I have said many times, we are proud of our students because you are the classiest fans in America. You cheer for us, and not against the other team. You get us going, we don't get you going. The most important thing, when the game is over, you are just as drained as our team and staff.

I'm asking for your help - we need you on November 18. The NIT is making the University charge you five dollars. Because of this, some of you may not be able to make it, but if you can afford it, let's once again show the nation what UMass is all about!

John Calipari

John Calipari is the men's basketball coach.

Poor decisions defeat Seminoles, ND now No. 1

BLINDSIDED
Anthony Guido on College Football

Florida State's impossible dream of an undefeated season ended when quarterback Charlie Ward's last second heave to the end-zone was knocked down at the three-yard line. In truth, Coach Bobby Bowden never gave his team a chance to beat Notre Dame.

The Seminoles rammed their opening possession down the throats of the Irish with Ward's passing ability. However, Bowden should have switched the focus from wideouts like Kez McCorvey, Tamarick Vanover, and Matt Frier to his talented bunch of running backs.

After Notre Dame went up 14-7, Bowden made just a horrible call. On first down from his own 10, Ward sent a lateral pass back to running back Shawn Jackson at the five. Jackson then turned and sent a pass back across the field to Ward, who slipped and couldn't make it back to the line of scrimmage.

Why does the best team in the nation have to resort to trickery, only being down by seven? In that part of the field, at that juncture, just absolutely insane.

Irish coach Lou Holtz mixed up his plays and rarely forced QB Kevin McDougal into a tough spot. When the Irish seemingly couldn't run the ball, Holtz kept pounding it up the middle. Holtz saved his gadget play for FSU territory, with a beautiful pitch reverse working for a TD. At the end of the game Lee Becton has 122 yards rushing and ND the victory.

Conversely, Bowden went away from his ineffective running game, forcing Ward to throw 50 times. Also, linebacker Derrick Brooks went out with a foot injury early in the first quarter. There is no way to judge the severity of the injury but you have to wonder why he couldn't force himself on the field. Especially with the good start he had, superstars play hurt in the big games.

Anyway, the bowl coalition poll has the Seminoles only slipping to second. FSU still has to go through Florida and Notre Dame has a re-match with Boston College. Hopefully, we can see a second ND-FSU clash in the Fiesta Bowl.

Speaking of BC, Glenn Foley is in for another rough time on Saturday in South Bend. Sorry, experts abroad, Foley does not throw better than Ward and certainly will not fare as well. ND will blitz up the middle, like last year, and the immobile Foley will be a dead duck; won't be 54-7, but watch out.

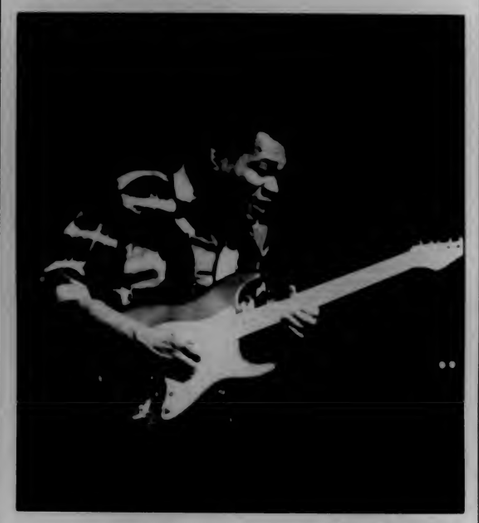
The best game of the weekend should be Alabama against Auburn. Terry Bowden (Bobby's hopefully smarter son) has the Tigers undefeated, it's a shame their on probation. But, the Crimson Tide are the defending champions playing for pride and will pull out a close one.

Would you want to be North Carolina State going into Florida State this weekend? Think the 'Noles will be angry on Saturday.

Miami still has a national title shot, has to go up to West Virginia and produce. The undefeated Mountaineers host their biggest game in five years. The Hurricanes should go with scrambler Ryan Collins, then hope they can back into the championship game. The 'Canes, the 'Noles, the Gators, anyone but Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl.

Ward has the Heisman in hand, but Errict Rhett of Florida can jump in with a stellar performance against FSU in a couple of weeks. He is the best running back in the country, if he can run through that Seminoles defense to help the gators pull off the upset, he gets my vote.

Anthony Guido is a Collegian columnist.



Marching Band returns from successful stint in Indianapolis Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

50° Thursday, November 18, 1993, Volume CIII Issue 49

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Beltin' out the blues

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Guitar virtuoso/ blues singer Robert Cray shows off in concert last Wednesday at the Fine Arts Center.

NAFTA vote wins on floor of House

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a hard-earned triumph for President Clinton, the House approved the North American Free Trade Agreement late Wednesday to fuse the United States, Mexico and Canada into the world's largest trading bloc. Republicans provided a majority of the support.

The 234-200 vote sent the measure to the Senate, where leaders predicted approval within a few days. "NAFTA is a lock," predicted GOP leader Bob Dole in a written statement.

Clinton said NAFTA will "expand our exports create new jobs and help us assert America's leadership in the global economy . . . We chose to compete, not retreat, to lead a new world economy, to lead as America has done so often in our past," said the president, who leaves Thursday for a trade meeting in Seattle with leaders of 15 Asian nations.

The House voted after a day-long debate that reflected hind-minded disagreements over America's role in the world economy and bare-knuckled politics. Dozens of labor-backed Democrats abandoned their president to oppose the accord. More than 100 free-trade Republicans signed on, though, to assure passage.

A cheer went up in the chamber when the vote count passed the 218 needed to approve the pact.

The House was packed with lawmakers; the spectator's gallery that rings the chamber was filled to capacity.

"A vote for NAFTA is in the great tradition of our party," GOP Leader Bob Michel of Illinois said. "So let it be said on this crucial vote tonight, that we Republicans did not sacrifice the jobs of tomorrow to the fears of today."

Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt summed up for the opponents who fear the pact will throw thousands of Americans out of work. "Deficient and flawed," he said. "We cannot and must not expose our workers and our corporations to unfair competition."

Administration officials and some lawmakers also said a favorable vote would strengthen Clinton's hand as he departs for the Seattle trade talks — and lead to the freer trade with Europe and South America as well.

To take effect on Jan. 1, the pact must win approval by the Senate, be ratified by the Mexican Senate — a political formality — and be officially proclaimed law in Canada.

Dole and Majority Leader George Mitchell both say a Senate majority favors the pact, and an Associated Press survey showed 49 firm votes in favor, with 17 undecided.

Newly elected Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien has said he will not act until the United States addressed

Turn to NAFTA, page 6

South Africa signs constitution

Apartheid's legacy of oppression comes to an end

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press

KEMPTON PARK, South Africa — After a frantic day of bargaining, the government and the African National Congress put the final touches Wednesday on a constitution that ends apartheid and gives Blacks equal rights for the first time.

Final agreement by the 21 parties at the talks came late Wednesday to applause from the weary delegates. A signing ceremony in which party leaders will endorse the constitutional package began soon afterward.

A smiling Nelson Mandela, the ANC leader, shook the hand of President F.W. de Klerk as he walked to his seat for the ceremony.

"The day of liberation has been uppermost in our minds," Mandela, the longtime political prisoner likely to become South Africa's first Black president, said earlier on state-run television.

"We are not there yet, but the cornerstone of our efforts to achieve national liberation... has been laid down."

Led by de Klerk's National Party and Mandela's ANC, the negotiator's task was to find a peaceful way to transfer power from an affluent but nervous White minority to the oppressed and impoverished Black majority.

Mandela and de Klerk got the Nobel Peace Prize last month for leading the negotiations process. Both have said the real prize would be getting through the coming years without bloodshed.

The historical accord depended on a last-minute deal in which the government abandoned its long-standing insistence that the next government take decisions based on a fixed percentage of votes in a multi-party Cabinet.

It settled for a vaguely-worded promise from the ANC, the expected winner of the first multiracial election on April 27, to rule "in a consensus-seeking spirit."

The ANC agreed to a strong federal system in which nine provinces can adopt their own constitutions. It also agreed that South Africa's final constitution would require at least 60 percent support from voters or the parliament.

Observers said the ANC and government both made concessions to complete the protracted negotiations and satisfy demands by an alliance of pro-apartheid Whites and conservative Black groups boycotting the talks.

The boycotting groups, known as the Freedom Alliance, want greater autonomy in a post-apartheid South Africa.

"South Africa, this is a disaster," said Corlea Kruger, chief negotiator for the conservative White Afrikaner Volksunie. "They have railroaded this deal through."

Government spokesman Dave Steward called the agreement an important step to get the boycotters involved in the transition process from apartheid to

Sutton finishes cancer treatment

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Former University of Massachusetts basketball star Lorenzo Sutton who is suffering from cancer called osteosarzona, completed his two week treatment and surgery. A team of doctors removed malignant growths from an area of bone beneath Sutton's nose. Sutton at the age of 28 has a 50-50 chance for life.

The former co-captain of the UMass basketball team and native of Albany, Georgia, averaged 19.4 points per game and graduated in 1988 with a degree in interior design. He was the last player cut from the Detroit Pistons 1989-90 training camp and played for the Continental Basketball League's Albany (N.Y.) Patroons.

In 1990 Sutton was left in a comatose state which he eventually recovered from after a hit and run car accident in Amherst. He held the all-time scoring record of 1,718 points until it was broken by Jim McCoy in 1992.

In 1992 Sutton was arrested and pleaded guilty to three counts of assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon in attacks of three women on two separate occasions. He is currently serving a 2 1/2 year sentence. He accepted full responsibility for his conduct and planned to attend a rehabilitation program for alcohol abuse.

Sutton's cancer was discovered during oral surgery at Cooley Dickinson Hospital in Northampton for the removal of what believed to be a cyst.

He began his series of surgeries at Deaconess Hospital in Boston and was relocated to Suffolk County jail so he can be in closer proximity to his

Turn to SUTTON, page 2

Peeping Tom the impetus for security

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Are access control systems necessary on the doors of residents hall buildings? After a peeping Tom appeared, students in the Orchard Hill living area seem to think so.

On Oct. 29, four separate incidences of a man peeping around the women's showers in Dickinson were reported. The description of the man was the same in every case.

"He was probably 30 something years old. He was very dirty looking and was wearing glasses. He had brown hair and was wearing dirty clothes. Specifically a blue sweater and black jeans. He was also wearing work boots," said Stacy Peck, a witness to one incident and a resident on the fourth floor of Dickinson.

Bonnie Blaney, a resident on the fourth floor of Dickinson, also witnessed seeing the peeper when she was in the shower.

"I saw him walking by when I was in the shower. I had a weird feeling when someone walked into the shower next to mine because it doesn't work," Blaney said.

The peeper was also seen by freshman Odessa Grabowski in the fifth floor women's bathroom. She said she walked into the bathroom to take a shower and was approached by the man. He asked her where the men's bathroom was and then left immediately.

"I got in the shower and less then a minute later I was shampooing my hair. When I looked up he was standing holding onto the door and looked over. I was completely startled," Grabowski said.

Grabowski immediately reported the peeper to her resident assistant. They reported the incident to the police. Flyers were also sent out around the residential halls to raise awareness that there was a peeping Tom around.

The Orchard Hill Area Government has been working on a list of ideas to ensure more safety

Turn to PEEP, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs!
Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

Student Valley Productions presents
The Fops
STAR TRIP:
The Next Mutilation
a hilarious tribute to
Star Trek: The Next Generation
to benefit the Western MA
Foodbank and Midwest
Flood Relief Fund
Nov. 17- 20 8pm
Southside Room, Hampden commons
Tickets: $3 students, $5 others
Call Tix Unlimited 545-0412
$1 off admission with 2 canned goods
Funded in part by the Student Government Association, Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund & UMass Arts Council

Police Log

Compiled by Vanessa Adelman from University reports

A 21-year-old man was arrested Friday morning in Hamlin Dorm and charged with assault and battery by means of domestic violence, police said.

Robert L. Gramer of Chelmsford was arraigned on Monday in Northampton District Court.

ARRESTS

• A 19-year-old male was arrested Friday night at Butterfield Terr. Scot A. Walker, of Island Falls, Maine, was charged as a minor carrying alcohol.

BURGLARY

• Three individuals reported damage to their cars parked in Lot 11 on Stadium Dr. Sunday afternoon. Police say one man reported his stereo system stolen from his car at an estimated value of $2,000. The second man reported his stereo speaker with a value of $400 was stolen. The third individual had the window of her car smashed which was estimated at $200.

LARCENY

•A man reported his mountain bike stolen on Sunday night. The bike was parked at Marston Hall, police said, and valued at $750.

•A mountain bike was stolen from outside the University Library, police said. A man reported the incident Sunday night. According to police the bike is estimated at $600.

•A man reported a hubcap stolen from his car Sunday night. The car was parked in Lot 44 on Sylvan Dr. and the hubcap is valued at $50, police say.

■ Sutton

continued from page 1

treatments. Sutton will begin radiation and chemotherapy treatments at the Dana Farber Cancer Institute within the next few weeks.

In a statement made to the Hampshire Gazette, Alan Rubin of the Committee of Public Counsel Services, stated that the surgery was "completed successfully" and that the rehabilitation and chemotherapy will last six to eight weeks.

Robert Drummer, a former high school classmate and fraternity brother of Sutton's visited him last week.

"He looked good," said Drummer. "The surgery is apparently very difficult for him, but he was in good spirits." Drummer and some of Sutton's Marlboro High School classmates formed the Lorenzo Sutton Cancer Fund.

Sutton appeared in court two weeks ago asking that his sentence be revoked so he could recover properly. Sutton's doctors advised that recovery from such a delicate surgery depends on his state of mind. Amherst resident Lynn Montibello organized a petition for a "humanitarian effort" requiring 10,000 signatures to face the parole board for Sutton's early release.

According to the Hampshire Gazette, Rubin has been working with Sutton's family in Georgia and New York to find housing and medical treatments for him. Sutton's medical records were presented to Judge John Murphy in Northampton District Court two weeks ago. Murphy postponed acting on Sutton's request because he wanted more information on his prognosis.

Local News

News from other "U's"

compiled by Dan Wetzel

Legal Eagle

The best Halloween costume in the nation has to go to Alan Theall of Palo Alto, California.

Theall, who is homeless, spent most of this semester disguised as a Stanford law professor. He impersonated a professor at Law School Coffee Houses and Graduate School functions, according to The Stanford Daily, the student newspaper of Stanford.

He would attend parties, chat with students and informally lecture about law, politics and life. And to some he was believable.

"He really fooled me pretty badly," said one undergraduate, who, the way he speaks, discredits the notion that intelligent people attend Stanford. "I was just sold."

"He was a nice guy to talk to," the student said. "He reads a lot. We would talk about politics primarily."

Apparently someone was not fooled. They contacted police and told detectives that Theall was "weird." While police did order Theall to stay off campus, they said because Theall received no "obvious gain" (besides a free meal) from the impersonation, charges could not be pressed.

Brady Babe

If Mike and Carol Brady knew then what Carol's oldest daughter Marcia knows now, there never would have been a Brady Bunch. Probably just a Brady Family with 2.4 kids.

This is all according to a lecture given recently at the University of Pennsylvania by actress Maureen McCormick on "Birth Control Matters." According to The Daily Pennsylvanian, the student newspaper at the Philadelphia School, McCormick knows her stuff.

The now-30-something mother of a four-year-old said young people today need to educate themselves on contraception, not only for birth control, but also sexually transmitted disease.

"When I was a teenager, I was so afraid to discuss sex — it was like no way. I could never do it," said McCormick.

Marcia is lying of course. The way we all saw her oogle over football stud Doug Simpson, we know that not only did Marcia like a roll in the hay, but she didn't mind talking dirty about it.

But back to the lecture. Things got interesting when McCormick opened the discussion up to question and answer. Some of the gems included:

Question: "What kind of birth control did Alice and Sam the Butcher use?"

Answer: "I don't know, I wasn't there."

Question: "What about the Brady hook-ups?"

Answer: "I did have an innocent crush on Barry (Williams, who played brother Greg), but it was really nothing."

McCormick concluded by encouraging everyone to use birth control. Of course, if her TV parents had done such a thing, Alice would have been unemployed.

Bare truth

According to super police reporter Jon Burnstein at The Arizona Daily Wildcat, a fraternity on campus had a revealing pledge class assignment.

The pledge class of Sigma Phi had to wear nothing but Birkenstocks and jog in the buff across campus, about a half mile, to a local bar, run in and then jog back home.

Burnstein says no arrests were made. Of course, what would the cops handcuff?

Reader Feedback

"News from other 'U's" would like to extend a challenge to its loyal and intelligent readers. We are looking for stories about interesting and funny fraternity pranks, sort of like the above item.

No hazing stories, just items about gags, such as stealing a rival school's sacred cow or sending the chancellor's underwear up the flag pole. Good natured, but slightly demented stuff. It need not occur at UMass, any school will suffice. If you got a story, call the "News from other U's" Hotline, 545-0719. If Dan is not there, leave a detailed message and we'll get back to you.

Fund allocations questioned

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts President Michael K. Hooker has expanded his office by 72.5 percent, costing students over $1 million since he took office in 1992, the speaker of the Student Government Association said at the SGA meeting last night.

SGA speaker Matt Pavesi said because of the financial crisis facing the the University, President Hooker should be looking to downsize his office rather than to expand. UMass students pay $5,467 in tuition and fees, making it the most expensive state school in the country, according to a Student Center for Research and Advocacy report.

"The numbers are frightening," Pavesi said. "Tuition at UMass has increased 161.5 percent in the past five years. I would like to see the job description of the people Hooker has hired. At a time of financial crisis you don't increase the size of your staff while education is being killed. You act responsibly and bring the money on campus."

Pavesi said President Hooker, whose $220,000 salary makes him Massachusetts' highest paid state employee, is viewing UMass more as a place for professors to conduct research than as a place to teach. He said Hooker's attitude, along with the $7.6 million shortfall facing the University for fiscal year 1994, will cause teaching assistants to be dropped and an overall lessening of academic standards.

"A lot of teaching assistants are on one-year contracts, and with the budget cuts we could lose 5 percent of our teaching assistants," he said. "This may not seem like a large amount, but look at the number of classes that do not have teaching assistants already. A lot of professors don't grade anymore and they rely on teaching assistants to grade and teach discussion sections.

"If teaching assistants are dropped, academic standards will go down and classes will be [the size of] Mahar Auditorium classes all over campus," Pavesi said.

Pavesi also condemned the University for recruiting more wealthy and out-of-state students than in-state students from the middle and poorer classes.

"Thirty-one percent of UMass students come from the top 20 percent of the state per capita income average, and only 7 percent come from the bottom 20 percent," he said. "There are more students at UMass from Rochester, New York than from Roxbury, Massachusetts. Can you call this an accessible state college? Forget it."

Pavesi said students can help make UMass more affordable by lobbying their state representatives for a higher appropriation for the University from the state legislature.

"I'm tired of students asking if their representatives will listen to them when they call," he said. "State representatives will listen because a lot of state reps barely squeaked by when they were elected."

And now for some foliage . . .

SUZANNE GARB / COLLEGIAN

As the Amherst area enjoyed a few days of warm weather, the last few leaves on the trees foreshadow the change from autumn to winter.

And the band was marching on

UMass stirs Indianapolis with the sound of music

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Stepping in time to the beat of their own drum, the UMass marching band played their way into Indianapolis.

Last weekend, the Minuteman Marching Band performed in the Hoosier Dome at the Bands of America Grand Nationals.

"It was the most gratifying performance in the 17 years I've been at UMass," said the band director, George Parks.

According to Stephen Valutkevich, a band member, UMass was the exhibition band at the Nationals which are a high school competition. The UMass band competed last spring for this honor, he said.

After the performance at the Hoosier Dome, Dr. Ray Kramer, director of the band at the University of Indiana, congratulated Parks and the UMass marching band.

"The band was well received by people in the music business," Parks said.

Thomas Hannum, associate director of the UMass marching band, felt the band played as well as could be expected and reached their potential.

"Their performance was outstanding," he said.

According to Valutkevich, the band played music selections from the movies Hook and The Wind and the Lion, as well as an original composition written by a UMass professor.

Music and Jazz professor, Jeff Holmes composed 'Georgeassic Parks', a piece named after the band's director, said Valutkevich. Holmes performed his composition at the Hoosier Dome.

"The entire band represented UMass in grand style," said Parks.

The percussion section also traveled to Ohio on Nov. 11 for the Percussive Arts Society International Convention, sources said. According to Hannum, they performed well.

The band will have its last game performance of the season Saturday, Nov. 20 at the UMass-UNH football game.

Their last performance of the year will be the band's annual Merry Maple Concert in downtown Amherst. Valutkevich says the program will consist of Christmas carols and is tentatively set for Dec. 3.

"I really hope people will come to see us," said Valutkevich, "to hear and feel the Power and Class of New England."

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Editorial Policy

The Editorial/Opinion page welcomes and encourages columns, letters and cartoons from UMass and the entire Five College area. The following are some important guidelines to consider when submitting material to the page:

The Editorial staff reserves the right to edit letters and columns for grammar, clarity and length.

Submissions must bear the writer's name, local address and phone number. This information is subject to verification.

Anonymous submissions will be printed at the editor's discretion. Letters or columns written under a psuedonym will not be accepted.

All submissions must be typed and double spaced to be considered for publication. Untyped material will not be considered for publication.

Letters should not exceed 50 typed, double spaced lines. Columns should not exceed 70 typed, double spaced lines. Letters and columns of unreasonable length will not be considered for publication.

Letters and columns written in response to a previously published letter will not be printed. Responses to or criticisms of columns or other Collegian articles are restricted to letter form. Any exceptions to this guideline will be determined solely by the editors.

The Editorial staff is not required to print all submitted material. All submissions become property of the Collegian and will not be returned.

The opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual artist or writer and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Collegian, its staff or the Editorial staff.

* * * * * * * *

The Editorial page wants you. Yes, you, the reader of these smudgy pages. We are looking for good writers and good artists to fill this page every day with their ideas and opinions. If you're interested, stop by the Editorial desk at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center (the basement level). Your opinions count — but no one will know what you're thinking unless you tell them. 19,000 people want to hear what you think.

NAFTA: a bad idea for everyone

What will NAFTA mean to our country? The Clinton administration says it will lead to more American jobs. They say due to free trade, the United States will be able to sell more U.S. goods to Mexico and Canada. They argue that this will cause the necessity for American companies to produce more goods because of an increase in demand for U.S. products.

It is assumed this increase in production will necessitate an increase in the number of employees needed to meet this production. This sounds logical. The problem that I see in this comes with the difference in the consumer buying power of Mexico.

The standard of living in Mexico is not close to that of the U.S. If it were, we would not have to worry about the amount of people trying to illegally cross he U.S.-Mexican border. I am not suggesting that all of Mexico is poor; this is not true. I am suggesting though, that we will not be able to sell an amount of goods to them that will spark our economy like Clinton suggests. Why would NAFTA therefore be negative? The answer lies in U.S. corporations.

Put yourself at the executive level of a company. You are always looking to increase profit. Profit means more money for the company, and yourself in turn. How do you use NAFTA to your advantage? If NAFTA passes, U.S. companies will be able to move to Mexico and send their products to the U.S. without any tariff placed on them. Why would a company want to move to Mexico, when they could stay here and do the same thing?

Cheap labor. Corporations will now be able to pay a worker that currently makes $40,000 per year in the U.S. less than minimum wage in Mexico. The Mexican people are not protected by a minimum wage law like we have in this country. What is the end result? Many big time American corporations laying off thousands of American workers, and relocating into Mexico. NAFTA is not talking job gain for America, but rather job loss. In our current economic shape, can we afford this to happen? I think not.

The fact is, NAFTA would not have passed a few weeks ago, before a massive bombardment of publicity on behalf of the Clinton administration for it. Clinton has wined and dined his political foes on this issue to get their approval. He actually played golf with some of them. Should politicians change their minds on an important issue like NAFTA because of a good meal or golf game? I believe not. Politicians should decide issues on the best argument only. These politicians that were swayed to the Clinton side without argument should resign, and be ashamed.

Joseph Schmidt
Amherst

Guinea pigs for the Govt.

Last Wednesday while I was looking through The Boston Globe for the results on the NAFTA debate, I came across a short article on developments involving Gulf War veterans. It seems that disproportionately large numbers of soldiers in the areas of the Scud attacks, even the ones shot down by Patriot missiles, are now developing major health problems. These problems include cancer, heart problems, and their children are being born with birth defects.

Michael
PAGE

At the time, the government denied that chemical or biological were used during the conflict. This was despite decontamination teams reporting their presence. Now the Veterans Administration teams takes a stand that Rep. Joseph Kennedy Jr. calls "official denial." Men who eventually died of cancer were told to take ulcer medication and Maalox.

The day after I learned of this was Veteran's Day, the day on which we honor those of our countrymen who sacrificed their lives for the nation. In many cases, their deaths served a higher purpose, but that cannot be said in all cases. How many times, in how many ways, has the government treated us as mere pawns and wasted the lives of those who had believed in it?

There have been at least two wars fought under totally false pretenses. Both the Mexican-American War and the Spanish-American War were forced by the government, who claimed that U.S. forces had been treacherously attacked, then demanding war to gain territory. Slogans like "Remember the Maine!" worked well to stir up patriotic zeal, but unfortunately had no basis in the truth. Nonetheless, young men went to war and died to avenge these alleged wrongs.

The issue of whether U.S. involvement in Vietnam was a mistake will probably never be resolved. Even so, many facts remain indisputable. Young men were sent to kill and die in the name of democracy, which really had nothing to do with it. Dangerous chemical elements (Agent Orange and its chemical relatives) were used to deforest the jungles, with little to no regard for the troops in the area. The results speak for themselves. The troops were never told the truth about how the war was progressing. Information was censored in the name of morale.

However, not only in the case of military action is the government willing to use its service men and women as unwitting pawns. Time and time again, service people have been used guinea pigs for a variety of purposes. Various viruses and biological agents have been injected into soldiers who were totally unaware of what was being done to them.

Back in the 50s and 60s various drugs were tested on them. Now we realize that LSD isn't such a bad thing after all, but at the time, for all anyone knew, it was instant insanity. Nonetheless, the government was still perfectly willing to risk the lives and minds of countless citizens, looking for new ways to kill and destroy.

Obviously, joining the military involves a degree of risk; the role of the armed forces is to fight and kill when necessary. The key words are "when necessary." The government should show a reasonable regard for the lives of its supporters and citizens. It should let the men and women who choose to risk their lives know what those risks are. Sadly though, it doesn't.

Michael Page is a Collegian columnist.

'Stockie' sets the record straight

I'm a second year Stockbridge student. Contrary to popular opinions of the UMass public, I do not spit tobacco through the hole in my front teeth. Nor do I chew hayseed, wear overalls or drink moonshine. I admit I do take a class called Small Gas Engines and Welding, but if chainsaws were necessary tools for figuring out a balance sheet, I'm sure it would be required for accounting majors as well.

After my first year at Stockbridge I realized that the general population at UMass thought of us as ignorant hicks. Anybody who thinks classes like the aforementioned engines class are akin to Basket Weaving and Pottery I invite you to get off your Chem 102 butts and find out for yourselves! I'm sure you'll discover that, contrary to their simple titles, their content is about 75 percent chemistry and microbiology and 25 percent "practical" knowledge.

Beside having rigorous academics, we also have one of the most dedicated and qualified faculties of any school at UMass. The head of the agriculture department is the former Executive Director of Forestry and Horticulture for the city of New York. This is comparable to having a former Governor of California as a Political Science professor.

Although our education might be more practical, that does not mean that it is any less cerebral or demanding. Stockbridge is not Apex Tech! The next time you meet a Stockbridge student do us a favor and don't think of him as some lawn jockey hickster but as someone trying to get the most out of their education.

Jeff Snoonian
Central

Notes from the Campus Center Basement

If a team plays a basketball game and nobody's there to see it, does it really happen?

We'll all find out tonight at the William D. Mullins Center when the University of Massachusetts hoop team plays Cleveland State in the first round of the Preseason National Invitational Tournament.

The reason we will find out is because for the first time in 31 games on campus, the Minutemen will be playing to a non-sold out crowd.

How far are they from selling the Mullins Center out? Let's just say that the king himself, Coach John Calipari, has resorted to writing letters to the Collegian and was attempting to get onto WMUA last night as well in an effort to sell the student tickets.

Things did not get better when Cleveland State returned nearly two-thirds of their alloted tickets Wednesday afternoon. The problem in selling out is due to the word "sell."

Normally, students get into regular season UMass sporting events for free. The NIT, however, is charging UMass and the Mullins Center for hosting a game and asks for a certain fee, which in turn forces them to charge for student tickets.

"The problem is when you have to charge students for tickets and the game's on national television," said basketball team manager Brian Gorman. "Plus, a Cleveland State doesn't have the name recognition of, let's say a Michigan. That doesn't mean they aren't good, it just means they aren't recognized."

To complicate matters even more, the ticket office was not issuing student tickets to students who didn't have student activity cards Wednesday. To get a card, you need to fill out an application and wait two days for processing.

Michael
MORRISSEY

Hence, students who read Coach Cal's plea Wednesday and came down to get a ticket without their student activity cards were S.O.L. It will be interesting to see if the wonderful marriage UMass had with the NIT will turn ugly.

* * * * *

Last week, Chancellor David Scott made a phone call to Lansing, Mich., and told his friends Marcellette and Keith Williams that they should start packing their bags.

The reason? Despite a budget shortfall and a hiring freeze, Scott had weasled a way for his two buddies from Michigan State to take some brand-new, high-paying positions here at the UMass campus.

Marcie will earn $110,000 as a deputy chancellor, with her responsibilities including "developing and coordinating policy, planning, and strategic planning for all campus operations; and serving as the principal liason for the chancellor with the President's Office and the four other University campuses," according to the Nov. 12 Campus Chronicle.

Keith, who appears to be the tag-along in this two-horse show, will make $75,000 a year as the associate vice chancellor for University Advancement. What does a vice chancellor for University Advancement do, you ask? The Chronicle said he "will be responsible for the design and implementation of programs that interpret the mission of the campus to internal and external audiences."

The gist is that not only were these two positions completely invented, not only did they not interview other candidates, not only are these two Scott's cronies from his last job, but there is supposed to be a hiring freeze on this cash-strapped campus. Oh yeah, Marcie also demanded Keith be hired if she came to Amherst. Another red-letter day for UMass.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist

A little effort will reveal the true meaning of Thanksgiving

In a week, all of us will return home for Thanksgiving Break. We'll pack up our cars, or our friend's cars, and make that road trip a fun bonding experience. Once at home, we'll do laundry, shop at the mall, see a movie, and attend our high school's biggest football game of the year. We'll see old friends and then return home for that big feast.

In light of all the things each and everyone of us will do while at home for the break, many of us forget the meaning of the holiday: giving thanks for all the food and shelter we have etc. etc. Does anyone ever think of those who don't have a home or any family to go to? What about those who must wander the cold dark streets of Boston and other cities in search of a little nibble from the filthy trash that piles up in city garbage bins?

Most of us have been, and will remain, optimistic; being self-contained units where we only care about our own good and welfare. What about all those lonely children and adults who have nothing but the shirt on their backs? These people wander aimlessly not knowing when they'll eat again. Fortunately, most of us don't have these problems but that doesn't erase the fact that numerous people do.

Adam Scott
ROBERTS

This holiday season while you're being kept warm by the fireplace's heat, watching football games on television and eating the meal of the semester, take a minute and think about those who have absolute nothing. You'll probably appreciate the little things in life a lot more than you had in the past. Better yet, devoting a minute of your thoughts to think of others beside yourself is only the beginning.

You could do numerous things to help others. Call your local shelter and volunteer some of your free time to help serve dinner to the homeless. The slightest facial expression such as a smile from a child, or even a elderly person's whisper of "God Bless You" or "Thank you" could make you appreciate the true meaning of giving.

Give a little bit of yourself and you'll make a big difference in the lives of someone less fortunate. Another way of helping those at this time of year is by donating blankets and clothes to local Goodwill locations.

As midterms wrap up, the dorms close and the Pioneer Valley college communities empty out for Thanksgiving Break, think not only of what you should be thankful for, but also about what someone in need could be thankful for. Long, cold winter nights and the everlasting feeling of starvation are not things to be thankful for.

Time and caring from those who can help the needy is something less-fortunate people cherish and hold onto. You may only give an hour of your time, but that 60 minutes is worth a lifetime of memories for someone in need.

There's an old saying that "a little goes a long way," and "the slightest effort makes a world of a difference." We are all human beings, some more fortunate than others. However, this doesn't mean that we should only think of ourselves. Give to your community and help make it stronger. Without people who care, we can forget about having any community at all.

Adam Scott Roberts is a Collegian columnist.

DSS simply did not care

Everything started in high school when I was a junior. I wasn't living with my parents. Due to the lack of understanding between us, I was renting a room in an apartment. It was Thursday when my school advisor sent for me.

Two more people, besides him, were in the room. He introduced us. They were from the Department of Social Services (DSS). They asked me a few questions, then said I had to move out of the house I was living in. They were going to place me in a foster home.

Tania
SANG

I ran out of the office, with no specific destination. So many thoughts ran through my mind, none of them good. After I calmed myself and washed my face, I went back to the office. I sat there listening to the procedures of moving into a foster home. The woman who was supposed to be my social worker said she was going to pick me up at six that night to take me to my new home.

I felt trapped, I couldn't do anything. I didn't want to go anywhere, but I had nobody to turn to and if I ran away they were going to post my picture everywhere as a runaway. When I got home from school I packed my things and was ready before six.

A month later I tried to commit suicide. I was in intensive care for five days. The reason I tried to commit suicide was depression. I didn't know how to handle it. So many things were happening, so many changes. Maybe I just wanted attention, I don't know. I went to a recreation home for a month. After my discharge, they placed me in another foster home, then another followed.

All through this process I felt like I didn't belong. The foster parents had me because of the money they were getting from DSS.

When I turned 17, I couldn't handle it anymore, so I left to a friend's house. I appealed to DSS to be independent. I won. DSS supported me until I was 18. After that they practically washed their hands of me.

All this time I didn't have my residency. I was an immigrant. DSS was supposed to help me get my immigration status fixed. DSS didn't help me. I wanted to continue my education, but I couldn't do anything. I wasted two years of my life doing nothing because I couldn't go to college. Finally, in August 1992, I got my residence. I gave all my information to Financial Aid and the school I wanted to attend. Everything went through. I got financial aid and the school accepted me.

DSS only paid for my stay in the foster home until I turned 18. When I did, I had nowhere to go. DSS rules are that when a kid reaches 18 he is on the streets and on his own, unless he is adopted by a foster family or is in school. I feel that they have to help the kid when he reaches 18, not just throw him out on the streets.

When I turned 18 I wasn't in school because my immigration status was being processed. DSS threw me out on the streets without a second glance. DSS knew what was going on with my immigration status but they would not help me. I tried to get some answers to my questions, but they wouldn't give me any. Their argument was that I was 18.

DSS had permanent custody of me until I was 18, and they still would not help. I turned out fine with the help of my boyfriend, but what if the kid they threw out didn't have anybody to lean on? He may be on the streets using drugs or homeless, maybe even dead.

My point is that when a kid turns 18 DSS should help him get settled or like myself, they should help in arranging their immigration status. For me, none of that help was given.

Tania Sang is a UMass student.

Flasher ruins library's sanctity

Libraries have always been a safe, special, and sometimes even spiritual place for me. Growing up as the offspring of people continually interested in learning, who respected libraries' sanctity and readily available knowledge for all, I got my first library card just over thirty years ago. Self-educaton had been an integral part of my life in which many such facilities have played an important role. The library call systems are etched in my mind.

Dashing into the Tower Library Tuesday morning to check an equation, my thoughts centered on the call numbers and the question in my mind. Riding up the elevator I debated the mathematical equation again. In the stacks I found three works to check, pulled them from the shelf, sat down and opened the first volume. The interpretation was not clear. I opened up the next. Suddenly I felt threatened and unsafe. Looking up I met the angry eyes of a young man. Uh-oh, I thought, and returned to seeking page 564.

I began to feel afraid and unsettled and realized he was still there, perhaps a bit closer. The corner of my left eye caught a disturbing sight, his most private area exposed to me. Struck with near paralyzing fear, I abruptly ended my quest and gently picked up my text. "The stairs," I thought, just walk as normal as possible to the stairs." As I neared the door, I realized no, this time you must use the elevator. As my mind raced with fear the cables slowly lowered my chariot to me. The deceleration downstairs seemed without end.

Once on the land of Floor E I realized I must share this; it cannot be real; why is this happening? After I "shared" the facts as I experienced them I waited there for the person that should come. incessantly I debated the why's. Did I do something or appear in some way to inspire this? It was said recently I smile too much. I couldn't have smiled while searching for the equation could I? And what will happen to the angry young man? If my response was too subtle, will he seek another more to his liking?

Later in the day I recalled something I had planned to look up on the weekend. Can I, or will I, go back? At this point I don't know.

What have I learned? When one is in the library, one must guard one's soul at least with as much vigilance as one's material belongings.

Name withheld at author's request.

PROCESSED CHEEZ By PAUL TAMBOLLEO

The great smoking debate

I did something different today. I opened my mind and ears and listened to a side of a debate that I had never listened to before. My friend Holly is a smoker and has long championed the rights of smokers, while I always felt that smokers had no rights within our society. Finally, after a strong sense of curiosity, I was compelled to listen to her views on the entire smoking debate.

Stephanie
EISENBERG

I've always felt that smokers had no rights. After all, they are indulging in a disgusting, harmful habit that is known to cause cancer, emphysema and other diseases. When smokers demand rights they are imposing their filth on everyone else around them. Then Holly and I had our talk and to my surprise I actually learned a lot.

Holly is aware of the statistics that surround smoking. She believes in them, and she admits that they do scare her. She even said she would quit in the future and would never smoke once she becomes pregnant. And she is aware of something else — she has an addiction to nicotine. But she truly enjoys smoking, so she continues to smoke knowing that she puts herself in danger.

But that's her right. I didn't think so before we spoke but it's true. It's her right to smoke — and she is also entitled to all of the risks that come with it.

With this revelation came the great second-hand smoke debate. I honestly feel that if I don't want to be near smoke than I don't have to; it is my right to have a smoke-free life. To my surprise Holly felt the exact same way.

She sincerely believed I had every right to make my life smoke-free. She agrees with the segregations in restaurants and understands why smoking should be banned from small enclosed places. But she feels that there must be a place where she can go to smoke and enjoy her habit in peace. I guess after listening to her, I feel that way too.

Smokers are not out to get non-smokers, and after talking with Holly I feel we must respect both sides and their rights. After all, as Holly reminded me, this is America and everyone has rights. If we start to decide who deserves rights and who doesn't, we lose all semblance of democracy.

I think the basic problem between smokers and non-smokers is the lack of communication. It has become less of an issue of right or wrong and more of an issue of mutual understanding and respect. If I can respect Holly's right to smoke than she can respect my right not to and not to be around smoke.

I still believe that smoking is a filthy, dangerous habit, and I would be thrilled to see it outlawed. But until it is, I must respect the rights of others. Today is the Great American Smoke Out, and today is a great day for all smokers and non-smokers to work out their differences. It's an even better day to try and help smokers overcome their addiction.

I don't quite understand what makes some people indulge in this habit. I guess I never will. When I yell and scream that I think smoking should be banned I not only do it to protect myself but also to protect Holly. It scares me that she continues to indulge in this habit, and I hope she knows that as wretched as I can be, I only do it because I care.

Stephanie Eisenberg is a Collegian columnist.

Efficiency a top priority

Auxiliary Services seeks to cut deficit

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Seeking to eliminate the budget deficit it has been running under for three years, Auxiliary Services has taken steps to improve the service and efficiency of its operations.

Auxiliary Services runs the Campus Center's food, retail and building services as well as the campus' dining commons and "Munchy" stores.

Ashoke Ganguli, Director of Auxiliary Services, said that a number of factors have led to the deficit, including a sharp decline in state subsidies toward Auxiliary Services employee's fringe benefits. In the last three years, Auxiliary Services has absorbed the cost of these benefits, which totaled $3.1 million in 92-93.

"There's continuing pressure by the state to reduce funds," said Ganguli. "It's part of the climate of the state."

Ganguli also cited the elimination of a student fee toward Auxiliary Services in 1985, a decline in enrollment and the Services' absorption of rising utility costs as reasons for the deficit.

Ganguli put together a task force last year in order to examine possible ways in which the deficit could be reduced. Based on the findings of the task force, a number of changes have been made in Auxiliary Services' operations and policies.

Auxiliary Services will seek to reduce the size of its staff through attrition, i.e. the streamlining of operations by allowing vacancies to remain unfilled when they arise.

A committee of Hotel Restaurant and Travel Administration professors is currently engaged in a study of some Auxiliary Services operations and is examining whether student needs are being met and reasons for lack of profitability. The results of this study will likely affect the nature of campus food services, according to Board of Governors Chairman George Fitzgerald.

"I would imagine that based on the report of the committee, there will be significant changes," said Fitzgerald.

Other changes have included the closing of the Worcester Snack Bar and the installation of a computerized maintanance request system used by Building Services.

The "Service Call" system has worked well and improved the efficiency of operations by Building Services, according to Tom Niedzwiecki, Technical Specialist with Building Services.

"It has allowed us to be able to track our work orders better," said Niedzwiecki. "The way it was before was just a paper chase. Its given us better accountability."

Another step toward the elimination of the deficit and the improvement of services will be the attendance of some of Auxiliary Services managerial and supervisory employees at a seminar given by School of Management professor Robert Marx.

"We'll be doing workshops on leadership and supervisory skills," said Marx. "It's mostly to introduce people to ideas of effective leadership. We do a lot of interactive activities. People work in teams, they solve problems."

Auxiliary Services is also looking into the possibilities of allowing restaurant franchises operate in the Campus Center on a limited basis. Ganguli said that the "test marketing" of the Taco Bell cart at the Hatch has been successful thus far, but doesn't think that food services will take significant steps toward privatization.

"Some campuses have gone towards it. I don't think the Amherst campus will move toward full-blown franchising," said Ganguli.

Ganguli said that the steps taken thus far have been successful in reducing the deficit.

"I'm extremely proud of our people," said Ganguli.

■ NAFTA

continued from page 1

Canadian concerns on energy, government subsidies and dumping.

If approved, the pact would create a continental free-trade zone by gradually eliminating tariffs over 15 years. All industries would be affected, from fruits and vegetables to banking and automobiles.

For his part, Clinton said he hoped he and Congress could build on the bipartisan cooperation that carried NAFTA to passage.

■ peep

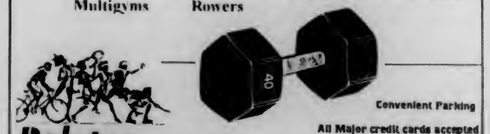
continued from page 1

around the dorms.

"We are putting crash bars on the doors of the first floor going up the stairwells so you need a key to get upstairs. We are also thinking of expanding security hours to 24 hours of protection," said Dave Krendel, president of the OHAG.

Housing services is also working on an access control system. In this system, people have to slide their identification cards through the front doors in order to get into the dorms.



Last Tuesday, a meeting was held in the Dickinson classroom, informing the residents of the peeping Tom incidents.

"I was kind of mad when I found out the resident director never called the police, and RAs did."

No Excuses!

We supply what you need to be Fitter, Trimmer, Stronger, Happier

Plates, Dumbbells, Bars, Belts, Machine Straps, Multigyms
Steppers, Exercycles, Recumbents, Air Resistance, Rowers
Treadmills, Computer Cycles, Power Lift Stations, Dual Action Air Bikes

Peloton NORTHAMPTON Sports
15 State Street • 584-1016
Convenient Parking
All Major credit cards accepted
Financing Available
Lease Programs
No Excuses!

Information Data Bank
Where you need to go for what you need to know.
Call or visit IDB at Whitmore, 545-1565
Monday - Friday 8:30-6:00

On the way to church Sunday my son Eric told me he was off to Alaska to work in a fish cannery. My daughter Wendy is going to look into sorority life. I and my wife Felicia are so proud. And it is all 'cause of you, Mass Daily Collegian.
"Wholesome Family Fare."

PIER 9 DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
5m. Coffee & Buttered Bagel for $1.00 all day
Exp. 12/31/93
10% Discount with ad
Exp. 12/31/93

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN INVITED TO OPEN HOUSE AT ΣΔΤ
Monday, November 22, 1993
8-10pm
409 N. Pleasant St. • For info call Brooke at 549-6395

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50c HOT DOGS, 50c SODAS & DJ MIKE P.
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes
584-4830

= Skiing At Mt.Tom!!
Scheduals will be available in February, but you can preregister now for Skiing I and II (PEG61 or PEG62).

Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Are Only at Anthony's"
THIS WEEK! Nov. 18 -20
SAVANNAH
Adult Film Goddess

15th Annual Thanksgiving Party
Starts @ Noon, Nov. 24 • FREE Hot & Cold Buffet
Join 20 of the most beautiful women at the Biggest & Best Party in town!
Amateur Contest
Every Sunday Night at 9!
Sun-Tues 5pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5 left on Rt. 33/turn right across from BigY/(413) 536-0502

Up, up and away

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Colleen Milliken and the University of Massachusetts women's soccer team are soaring for a national title. They play undefeated seven-time champ North Carolina this weekend.

House votes to prevent sale of assault rifles

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Heeding the nation's rising concern over street violence, the Senate voted Wednesday to ban the manufacture or sale of 19 types of assault-style weapons.

The ban was approved despite the opposition of the National Rifle Association. The action came as the Senate neared passage of a $22.3 billion anti-crime bill that would put more police on the streets and build new prisons.

NRA spokesman William McIntyre said the 56-43 vote on the assault-style ban reflected the "misguided" view "that these sort of gun control measures, gun bans, will have an impact on violent crime."

Attorney General Janet Reno endorsed the measure, saying that removing the weapons from the street is "going to be a first big step" and a sign that "America's love affair with guns is coming to an end."

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden, Jr., challenged the House to "understand the power of the idea, the idea whose time has come."

"It still will be an uphill fight in the House, but I believe the way it's moving, I believe this will pass," Biden told reporters.

Last week, the same measure barely survived in the Senate, 51-49.

Senate Majority Leader Geroge Mitchell said Congress probably would have to wait until early next year to send a final compromise bill to President Clinton. A recent poll showed that many Americans consider crime a more important problem than unemployment or health care.

Assault-style weapons have such features as pistol grips which allow weapons to be spray-fired from the hip.

"Fear has escalated in this country to a level I never thought possible," said Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., the author of the gun ban. She said the provision "addresses a fundamental right of all Americans to feel safe."

Feinstein's proposal would stop the manufacture or sale and possession of 19 specified semiautomatic assault weapons and bar production of copycat models. More than 650 hunting weapons would be exempted by name. People already owning the assault weapons would not be required to give them up.

The House has passed separate crime bills, differing in content. For example, the House bill earmarks $3.45 billion over six years to help cities put 50,000 more police on the street. The Senate's has $8.9 billion for 100,000 police officers over five years.

After the crime bill, the Senate was scheduled to move to the Brady bill that would impose a five-day waiting period and a background check on all would-be gun purchasers.

When background information is sufficiently computerized to enable instant checks, the waiting period would be phased out. Checks would then be done on buyers of both handguns and long guns.

Equality urged for Catholics

By DAVID BRIGGS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Catholic husbands and wives should move beyond the stereotypes they grew up with and strive for equality in household and parenting roles, U.S. bishops said Wednesday.

The bishops approved a pastoral statement on marriage and the family that rejects the conservative biblical view that wives should submit to their husbands.

The bishops encourage Catholic men to be caring spouses who are willing to share tears along with the laundry and changing diapers.

"Marriage is a partnership of a man and woman equal in dignity and value," the bishops state in "Follow the Way of Love: A Pastoral Message of the U.S. Catholic Bishops to Families."

"I believe that we, at this moment, have an awful lot to offer all Americans to encourage them to strengthen their families," said Bishop John J. Nevins of Venice, Fla.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance, cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 9:00–5:00 Friday 9:00–2:00

ACTIVITIES

ALANA Christian Alliance presents church services with the UMass Gospel Choir and Elder Wright every Sunday at 10:00 in CC 163c.

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

Turkey Trot Road Race
$4.00 entry fee + free thermal mug
1st place prize = Turkey
Sign up Nov 17-19 on CC Concourse
Sponsored by UMass Crew Club

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508 543-5640

Interested in Video Production?
Call Jim or Teri at 586-6922 to find out more about internships at a local television station!

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7478

AUTO FOR SALE

Car for Sale
1984 Buick Skyhawk
Good Condition
$1500 546-4751

For Sale - 86 Pontiac Firebird Mint condition a/c alpine auto w/overdrive $3900 Call Kevin 256-3119

1981 Honda Accord
Original Owner
5-speed, good condition.
$900.00 Call 256-8379

1982 Dodge Colt (Mitsubishi) hatchback 100,000 miles, reliable, well maintained $995 586-5447

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 miles only
$4000 call 546-1482

BIKERS AND JOGGERS

BE SAFE!
Night visibility waist belt
Comfortable, adjustable
Holds Walkman
Send 12.95 Check or MO to
Northern Enterprises
P.O. Box 175
Chicopee, MA 01021

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions
1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card - cost $235 gives you your next TEN Dozen free
2) The Miser Card. Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen.
(Ben & Jerry's may be sub'd)
Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW
Sun-Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am
The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat, fireplace 586-4270

For Female, big room, 3 level townhouse, fireplace, 3 bathrooms, laundry, 5 minute walk, Amity Place, 250+ 548-7098

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO)
M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0869 428 Student Union

Looking to sublet your apartment for wintersession Paula 546-6085

1-2 bedroom apartment near high school. Available January 1st 256-6053

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg. Jan or Feb 549-7290

1 bedroom available for 1 or 2 females in 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton starting Jan - convenient - on bus route. Call/lve message - 549-7756

Room in a 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment 236.00 plus utilities.
Call 549-1920

Take over my lease one bedroom apt Great place $475. Call 256-1076

FOR SALE

Car Stereo System
JVC/CD receiver and 350W
Kenwood Speaker Box with
Acoustic Amp call Matt at 596-8543

For Sale
Neon signs - $50 - 100
"Roller Blades" $50
Call 549-3749

Nintendo + 10 games
Must Sell $75.00
Pete or Andy 549-2849

Ski Equipment
Rossignol 17G Sz 200
Atomic 733 SL Sz 195
K2 Sz 172
Boots Sz 7,8,9
Best offer
Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

FOUND

Found - rust colored cat with black stripes, approximately 3 months old Call 549-5181 for more information

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info: call 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

Exotic Dancers Wanted
Great pay, flexible hours
Race St. Pub 268 Race St Holyoke MA
Call Bob 532-1422

Free Trips & Cash*******
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America s#1 Spring Break Company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona, or Padre!
Call Now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617 424-8222

Get up, stand up! Work on Clean Water Action's Campaigns. Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA, activists wanted. Flexible scheduling for students $150-300 pw/week. Need work over break - start working for us now Call Dan 584-9830

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority and club
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling.
1-800 932-0528 ext. 75

Inside Sales Positions rapidly growing cellular business in Hampshire mall and Holyoke mall and Ingleside. Capable personable with good sales skills. Permanent and holiday positions with excellent salary commissions and benefits full and part time. Call 508-393-9312 from 8 am to 5 pm. Must fill immediately

PCA for male quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 548-0666

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions, great benefits.
Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

$700/wk. Cannery workers. $4000/mo. deckhands. Alaska fishing industry now hiring for next summer. 1,000 opening. No exp. necessary. Free rm & bd. These jobs go fast! Employment Alaska. 1-206-323-2672

HEY ZIT!!!

Surprize!!
I can't wait until tonight!!!
Call me when you see this
The woman with a gun in her fist

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender
Days/Evenings - one week!
Placement Assistance
Boston Bartenders School
Call 747-9888 for Nov. and Dec. classes
Special Student Rates
Remember: To be professionally trained takes more than one evening

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

LOST

Lost Wallet:
Please return license
and any other article you don't want
Or call 549-4226

Sterling Silver fairy necklace of great sentimental value. If found
please call Amy 6-3910

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PERSONALS

BRICK HOUSE
We've been to a few of your parties. We think you're wicked HOT! Looking for ward to the next BENDER!
Your Secret Admirers

D. I have acted and I will wait!
Your Secret, newly found passion

Dotte Zato
'94 Executive Board
Shan, Rachel,
Leigh Ann, Allison,
Jill, Melissa, Carrie
Congratulations!
You Deserve It!

Dover --
Happy 21st. Be good + call me
Laura

Happy 21st Birthday Diane!
Love,
Melissa and Amy

Happy 18th Birthday Bath Finally!
Love, Amy

Jared Foldman
Happy 21st!!
Good Luck!!
Love, The Amity St. Girls

J.E.A.
Take me out for coffee.
...an Admirer

Jen,
Welcome to the family.
I'm so glad you're my little sis.
Love in DZ,
Melissa

Poppy
Where are you?

Ad

Sigma Kappa Pledges - Good luck at formal! Sing your hearts out - I'll be there in spirit! Luv Dawn

Sweets! I miss you. Babydolls

This is your last chance!
Buy a ticket!
Party with AEPhi!
Support AIDS research!
Call For info 549-3569

To Al, Melissa, Dana, Glo & Jill
Thanks for always being there
I luv you guys!!
Love, Gimpen

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roommate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

Hobart Lane, 2 brs., avail Jan. 1st ($174) g. $134 amt NO SLOBS PLEASE! 549-4166

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley, and you already know IT S tha BEST! Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're in search of two males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

Your own room in a 2 bed apt. 237.50+ Call 772-3702 (Jan to May)

SERVICES

FINANCIAL AID for College
NO GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
(508) 543-5640

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

SPRINT

Marketing Firm Seeking Students
for paid internship. Must be ambitious
*and willing to travel. Excellent pay *
*and bonuses. Call Jessica at *
*Collegiate Advantage, 617-424-8116 *
*or FAX resume to 617-424-9788 *

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break
First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach, parties, pool/deck, fun, night clubs, sunshine.

Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans. with on campus pick up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94 Call for free brochure 1-800-9 Daytona M-F, 8-6 See ya at the beach!

UMass Ski Club Trips
Nov 19-21 Killington Wknd $99
Winter Break ski week Killington
Jan 16-21 $275 - sign up today at Concourse table or call 545-3437

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

WANTED

For Anti-Drug Video: People who have stopped using drugs (voluntarily or involuntarily) - to talk about changed attitudes, their alternatives to the recreational/addictive of illegal drugs.
John 549-0638

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

WANTED TO RENT

Wanted: Two Rooms in a shared house in Northampton for next semester call 548-1476 or 546-1936

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

PSYCHIC EYES By ED SUTHERLAND

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor .....Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor .....Jake Nevala
Photo Technician .....Steve Pedulla
Production Supervisor.....Lisa Jezowski
Production .....Mike Stern, Mike Carvalho
Andrew Davidson, Housewife w/Gun

MENU

LUNCH
Reuben
Clammy Roll

BASICS LUNCH
Clammy Roll
Hummus Pocket

DINNER
Puerto Rican Night
Chicken De Carlos

BASICS DINNER
Puerto Rican Night
Chicken De Carlos

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"If you'd told me within one year of losing the election I'd be sitting in my living room rooting for Al Gore..."

– Dan Quayle on the NAFTA debate

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Needless worrying can interfere with a winning streak. An unfolding love relationship offers you another chance at happiness. Be open to new ways of doing things.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A new discovery adds fuel to your ambition today. Escape the office for java with a co-worker. Play some hockey. Easy does it in romance. Avoid asking for too much too soon!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A patient, logical approach could defuse an explosive situation. You find travel or a newcomer's company a real source of delight. Do not let your poetic license expire. Go play frisbee.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A struggle for more authority may have thrown you off-course. Get back on track by launching a pet project. An exercise session leaves you sweaty and tired.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A terrific day for parties, entertaining and getting to know people better. Loved one is an open book; you will read it right. A new linkup will delight you. Strut your stuff!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial worries can be eased by taking a weekend job. Go all-out to make a good showing — influential people will be impressed. Be open to suggestions from experts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New gains come through confidential sources. You are strongest operating independently. Heed your ESP in financial dealings. Your boss thinks you're swell. Drink lots of tea.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A lot has changed. The way you handle a new situation will strongly affect your happiness. A co-worker thinks you deserve a gold star. Pay more compliments to a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Now is the ideal time to turn over a new leaf, except all the leaves have shrivelled up and died. Do the best you can. Go beyond the obvious and you will uncover long-lasting solutions.

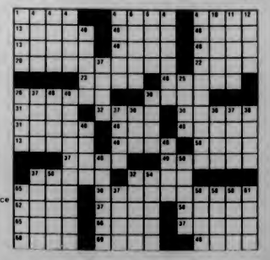
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You are a tower of strength at a business or financial meeting. Give blue chip service and win big! Flattery will take you a long way on the road to romance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your recently-completed project looks good; now catch up on your sleep. Remember that some traditions never change and you could score points honoring them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make your schedule less confining and you will find your weekends more rewarding. A streamlined approach to household chores will also help. Get your bookkeeping up to date as soon as possible.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Check
5 Large pear
9 — Marian
13 Gemstone weight unit
15 Elliptical
16 Otherwise
17 Teacher of Stradivari
18 Far from blue Jay
19 Painted metalware
20 Science of making alloys
22 1954 sci-fi flick
23 "— of Eden"
24 Brilliance of success
26 Fanciful notion
30 Homonym of an adored one
31 Now's partner
32 WWI fighter plane
35 Useful thing
39 Up in arms
41 Lyric poem
42 Watered silk
43 Restricted as to purpose
44 Misplace
46 Conduit
47 Eye
49 Course for a future MD
51 Binge
53 Nobelist Wiesel
55 Ankle bones
56 Precise
62 Arbors
63 Algerian seaport
64 Perceive
65 Rose or Fountain
66 Back of the neck
67 Musical exercise
68 God of love
69 River of France and Belgium
70 PDQ

DOWN
1 Con game
2 Docile
3 QEF word
4 Hari, the spy
5 Oversized pill
6 Open to view
7 Rattled on
8 Satiated
9 Spirited
10 Greeting in Hilo
11 Small land mass
12 Judge
14 Mah-jongg pieces
21 Minstrel's ballads
25 Silent one
26 Ace
27 Overstuffed sandwich
28 Persia now
29 Visitors from outer space
30 Roman date
33 Race car position
34 Hubbub
36 Thailand, once
37 New York canal
38 Watch over
40 "The Razor's —": 1984 movie
45 Homer opus
48 Citric
50 Salvage
51 Cavalry weapon
52 Mickey's dog
53 A day's march
54 Steamship
55 Recording
57 Noteworthy periods
58 "— smile be your umbrella"
59 Burden
60 Farm agcy.
61 Ooze

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

R	U	S	S	■	B	L	A	B	■	C	O	A	S	T
E	T	A	L	■	R	U	B	E	■	O	M	B	R	E
A	L	D	A	■	A	L	E	S	■	R	E	E	S	E
P	L	A	N	T	C	U	T	T	I	N	G	■	■	■
S	E	T	T	E	E	■	■	S	C	A	L	I	A	■
■	■	■	A	R	T	■	A	M	O	■	A	N	S	■
P	O	M	E	■	S	H	I	P	S	B	E	R	T	H
A	X	E	L	S	■	I	O	I	■	S	P	A	R	E
P	I	L	L	O	W	C	A	S	E	■	I	S	O	N
A	D	D	■	R	O	K	■	H	M	S	■	■	■	■
L	E	S	T	E	R	■	■	■	R	U	S	S	E	S
■	■	■	U	N	D	E	R	G	A	R	M	E	N	T
B	O	N	E	■	D	O	O	R	■	E	A	V	E	■
L	A	N	E	S	■	A	M	O	K	■	A	T	O	P
T	R	E	S	S	■	M	A	N	S	■	R	O	T	S

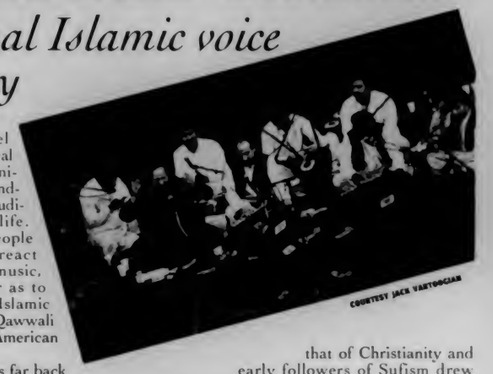
11/18/93

THIS WEEKEND

November 18–21

The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five College Area

Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan



The world's most inspirational Islamic voice brings his music to the Valley

By TARA CONNELLY
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts has been known for its multicultural student and faculty population, and what better way to celebrate and gain knowledge about this diverse campus than through sampling a culture's musical flavor?

Music has long been known as a universal form of communication, whether it be via the beat of a drum or the blowing of a horn. That is why it is with great pleasure that the Fine Arts Center at UMass will be able to share with the Pioneer Valley the world's most inspirational Islamic voice, Nusrat Fatah Ali Khan and his musical ensemble.

As part of a center series, Khan and his ensemble will sing a form of Sufi music known as Qawwali. Qawwali is an invigorating and explosive vocal and rhythmic type of music. It not only is intended to move a person physically, but spiritually as well, much like Afro-American gospel music. Khan uses his vocal talent along with harmonium, tabia drums, and hand-clapping to motivate his audience and to the lyrics life. During his concerts, people have been known to react enthusiastically to his music, some even going as far as to dance in the aisles. To Islamic music lovers, Khan is to Qawwali as Jimi Hendrix was to American music.

COURTESY JACK VARTOOGIAN

Qawwali music dates as far back as the 12th century, and is an all-male improvisational, devotional, vocal music of the Sufi Muslims. Sufism teaches beliefs close to that of Christianity and early followers of Sufism drew knowledge on Jesus' sermon on the Mount, focusing on the spiritual side of a person. Sufis believe that in order to gain inner peace and stability, a person must forsake the pleasures and demands of the body that may hinder a person's true path to oneness with Allah.

Much of Sufi's music is based on the Qu'ran and the Prophet Mohammed's teachings.

Qawwali music bases itself on Qawwali poetry. This poetry is often influenced by the formal structure and classical verse scheme of Persian poetry, and is also touched by the folk-like simplicity and emotional focus of Hindi verses.

Khan, a native of Pakistan, hails from a family that has been blessed with a long line of talented musicians stretching over 600 years. he practices both the Nortil Indian raga tradition and the Qawwali style of music. He has recorded over 150 Pakistani cassettes and 30 albums in less than 20 years of performing.

By recording on the French label Ocora, Khan has been able to share his music with the world. Peter Gabriel used some of Khan's music in The Last Temptation of Christ soundtrack, and also during concerts in London and Paris.

The evening's performance is presented by support from South Asian Music and Dance program, The Graduate School, and the South Asian Student Club at UMass. Attending the evening's affair will be his excellency Akram Zaki, Pakistan Ambassador to the United States.

The show will begin at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall. Ticket's for this program are $15 for the general public, half price tickets are available for 5 College students, tickets for children 16 and under are $8. For tickets and or information call FAC at 545-2511 or visit their box office.

Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan

Study next year in Paris!

Come to our December 2 information session.

UMass Boston's high-quality, low-cost Paris program offers

- opportunities to study at a range of institutions
- 30 or more college credits
- numerous cultural activities
- personal attention from experienced and caring faculty directors
- companionship with a small group of serious, sociable students
- varied lodging choices
- and affordability.

étudier!

Apply now! Majors from most departments are eligible (you'll need intermediate proficiency in French). To learn more, come to an information session December 2, 1–2pm, in room 903, Campus Center. You can also pick up brochures and application forms at the Clark International Center Study Abroad Office. Financial aid may be available (check with Financial Aid Services). If you'd like to set up a personal admission interview on December 2, call Prof. Gerald Volpe at 617 287-7560.

Come to our December 2 information session.

Space purchased at no cost to the Commonwealth.

UMass Boston

WEEKEND HAPPENINGS

The Weekend Happenings calendar is printed each Thursday during the academic year. Groups wishing to have an event published may send a press release containing all necessary information to the Arts & Living Editor, 113 Campus Center. The Collegian regrets that, due to space constraints, not all submissions can be published.

THURSDAY

CONCERT— Townes Van Zandt, one of the most celebrated of all Texas songwriters, will bring his blend of country, blues and folk to the Iron Horse Music Hall in Northampton. Having two songs at the top of the country charts, performed by Willie Nelson and Merle Haggard, listening to Van Zandt has been described as "dropping in on an Austin party going full tilt." Doors open at 5:30 p.m. for dinner, the show starts at 7 p.m. Tickets are $8.50 in advance and are available at the Northampton Box Office, 586-8686.

STORYTELLING— Motoko, a Japanese "mime-storyteller", who uses her body and the power of traditional storytelling of folktales to convey Asian history and culture, will perform at the Augusta Savage Gallery, UMass, 7 p.m. Admission is free and open to the general public.

THEATER— The UMass Residential Arts Program will present Euripides' "The Bakkhai-Agaves Dream." The classic Greek tragedy featuring some surprising new twists is a Hampshire Independent Production and will be at Hampden Theater, UMass, 8 p.m. Admission for 5-college students is $3 with a valid I.D., $5 for the general public. Tickets may be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511. This show will also run Nov. 19 and 20.

DANCE— The Annual Mount Holyoke College Faculty Dance Concert will be presented, featuring modern and classical ballet, accompanied by the music of Vivaldi as well as Stravinsky. To be held at Kendall Hall, Mount Holyoke College, 8 p.m. Tickets are $3 for students and $5 for general public. Reservations are recommended, call 538-2848. Also held Nov. 19 and 20.

THEATER— "Star Trek: The Next Mutilation- Starring the Fops," a tribute/spoof of "the Trek thing," will play at the Southside Room of Hampden Theater, UMass, 8 p.m. Admission is $5, $3, or $1 off with donation of two non-perishable food items, all proceeds to benefit the Midwest Relief and Western Mass Food Bank.

CONCERT— The Music at Amherst Series will present Christopher O'Reily, Pamela Frank, Paul Neubauer and The Carter Brey Piano Quartet which will play works by Faure, Aaron Kernis, and Brahms. Showtime is 8 p.m., Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. Ticket prices range from $15 to $8. Call for reservations, 542-2195.

THEATER— "Back Home," a four character play in two acts, by Ellen Kaplan and directed by Sue Clark, both Smith Faculty, will be presented at 8 p.m. Hallie Flanagan Studio Theater, Smith College. Admission is $1.

SIGNING— The Association of Pan-African Unity at Mount Holyoke College and the Odyssey Bookshop will present a reading and signing with Albert French and John Edgar Wideman, 8 p.m. in Dwight 101, Mount Holyoke College.

CONCERT— Cotton Mouth with Square Pyramid, comprised of UMass students and known as Butterfield faves, will play at the Hatch, in the Student Union, UMass, 9 p.m. This show is 18+ and without cover charge.

CONCERT— The band Minibus, with its energetic mix of reggae, funk, and blues, will play the Bay State Hotel in Northampton, 9 p.m. Admission $3 and is 21+.

FRIDAY

CONCERT— Hailed as the most inspirational Islamic voice today, Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan will bring his ensemble to the Fine Arts Center Concert Hall, UMass. Nusrat's concerts have been met with the response of that found at rock concerts. The performance will begin at 8 p.m. Admission is $15 for the general public, with half-price tickets for students.

DANCE— The Hampshire College Division III Concert will feature "Yesterday y Manana," a dance drama about the Religious Conquest of the Americas. To be held at the Main Dance Studio, Hampshire College. For more information, call 25[illegible]7109.

CONCERT— Los Lob[illegible]celebrating their twentieth anni[illegible]sary, will bamba their way into [illegible]rl Street, Northampton. Showtir[illegible]7 p.m.

CONCERT— The w[illegible] premiere of Maritin Mailman's "Conerto for Wind Orchestra," will be performed at 8 p.m. John Greene Hall, Smith College.

CONCERT— The Sage Hall Concert Series, Smith College, will feature works of Bach, Ives, and Beethoven. Sweeney Concert Hall, 8 p.m. Admission is $15 general, $10 faculty/staff/seniors, $6 students.

PARTY— The Mount Holyoke College Latina Group, La Unidad, and Something Every Friday, are co-sponsoring a party featuring the bands La Consistencia, playing merengue and saisa. D.J. Alberto will also play Hip-Hop, Reggae, and Techno. Admission is free. Blanchard Campus Center, Mount Holyoke College. 9 p.m.

CONCERT— St. Brigids Cathedral, Amherst Center, will feature the bands Puppet Museum, The Electric Noodle Factory and Yep! as part of the "Amherst Cabaret" series, featuring local bands. XANAX 25, from NYC, will also play. The show starts at 6 p.m. Admission is $5.

CONCERT— The Bands Pangloss, Jasmine Vibe, and Amanda's Dirty Secret will play at the Hatch, in the Student Union, UMass, at 8 p.m. Amanda's Dirty Secret is comprised of UMass students. This show is 18+. Admission.

SATURDAY

COMEDY— Jamie Foxx, known as Wanda "The Ugly Woman", as well as doing impressions of Bill Cosby and Prince, from "in Living Color" will be headlining the Comedy Connection at the Hu Ke Lau Restaurant in Chicopee. Coining the phrase "I'll rock your world", Foxx will surely rock your funny bone.

FILM— "The Royal Wedding", starring Fred Astaire and Jane Powell, presented by the Mount Holyoke College Film Society, will show at 7 and 9 p.m. in Gambie Auditorium. Admission is $2.50.

CONCERT— The Black Sheep Cafe will feature Robert Hoyt, playing folk blues. Admission is $3. Showtime is 8 p.m. The Black Sheep Deli is located on Main St., Amherst Center.

SUNDAY

CONCERT— The band Heart, with lead musicians Ann and Nancy Wilson, will play the Paramount Theater in Springfield. Ticket prices are $18.50 and $16.50. For tickets and more information call 734-5874, or all Strawberries outlets.

OPERA— Ravel's "The Bewitched Child", a story of what happens when an unhappy child destroys all his toys only for them to come to life, will be performed by the Opera Workshop of UMass. Showtime is 3 p.m., Bezanson Recital Hall, UMass.

Mr. Lupo reviews a disappointing Carlito's Way

Brian DePalma's latest flick displays mediocrity for Pacino, proves rental-worthy

Carlito's Way is a big disappointment for actor Al Pacino and director Brian De Palma, whose first outing, 1983's Scarface, was a violent, near-operatic exercise in excess chic. Captured between Pacino's beady-eyed intensity and De Palma's slick visuals was a sleazy, nihilistic joyride of a film.

Now comes Carlito's Way, an okay but woefully uninspired gangster drama where the lead is a saint, the stripper-love interest is an angel, and the film gets stolen by Sean Penn's hairdo. Way is supposed to be a somber, "just when I think I'm out, they keep pulling me back in" portrait of a self-reformed dealer finding his old life won't leave him alone. Unfortunately, Way is made up of movies and (for the most part) performances we've already seen.

THE REEL WORLD by Jon Lupo

Pacino follows his hysterically overrated turn in Scent of A Woman, a film where artistic coasting passed as Oscar material, and his made-for-Oscar clip speech at the end counted as a social statement. Pacino has toned down the scenery chewing in Way, although he's still just going through the motions. Could it be true that the genius who gave birth to the tortured souls in the Godfather films, Dog Day Afternoon, Serpico and heck, even Dick Tracy, has lost the uneasy spark and settled for trading in on his soon-to-be icon status?

Regardless, there's no question that Pacino's performance in Way is engaging, competent, and probably because the role, a little boring. Pacino plays Carlito Brigante, a famed drug dealer just out of a five-year prison stint on a technicality. Carlito wants to go straight, with (get this) dreams of opening up a car rental business in the Bahamas. From De Palma's grandiose opening, we know it ain't gonna happen, so the doom lingers heavily.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Director Brian DePalma

COURTESY MYLES ARONOWITZ

Al Pacino, as seen in Scent of A Woman.

His lawyer Kleinfeld (Penn) doesn't buy it, but sets Carlito up running a trendy disco, Copacabana. After a botched drug deal Carlito unwittingly gets himself involved in, he realizes his noble goals aren't as assured as he thought. After another bungled event involving Kleinfeld, Carlito feels old and new enemies closing in, and his dream begins to shatter.

Carlito's Way moves along smoothly enough, helped considerably by De Palma's stylish camera moves and Pacino's personality. Things get rocky, though, when Carlito tries to woo an old girlfriend (Penelope Ann Miller). First of all, the pair share dubious chemistry and their scenes swell into ponderously bloated banter; a clumsy love scene, choreographed to Joe Cocker's "You Are So Beautiful" elicited embarassed laughs from the audience.

But still De Palma persists, thinking this world-weary spin on the gangster genre is actually novel. Wrong. Both Godfather parts II and III and Goodfellas had more to say and considerably more style, even for camera-angle obsessed De Palma.

The director, however, does deliver one of his trademark suspense set pieces. Unfortunately, it comes at the end of the film. The man who gave us the cleverly staged elevator sequence in Dressed to Kill, the tense-filled staircase scene in The Untouchables and the multiple dream sequence in Raising Cain, relies on old standards for the final chase. With enemies pursuing Carlito on a subway train and then through Grand Central Station, De Palma ups the tension, pitting the final shootout on an escalator. Granted, the scene is a dazzler, but those familiar with De Palma's work will catch steals from both Dressed and Untouchables. Even this kind of self-reflexive homage was already done to death in Raising Cain, now just adding to the tiredness of the whole film.

Only Sean Penn manages to be impressive, with his wiry perm and coked-out attitude. In a performance destined for a Supporting Actor Oscar, nod, Penn transcends his real-life persona, something Pacino used to do quite regularly.

Carlito's Way isn't a giant step forward for anyone except Penn, and it represents static career moves for Pacino and De Palma, two masters who know better. By travelling Carlito's Way, you may be even slightly entertained, but take my advice: go the high road to the video store and rent The Godfather Trilogy. It's an offer you can't refuse. C+ (Hampshire Six).

Hoop It Up With These Savings At Scotts!!!

Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 8 A.M.-11 P.M.
Tel: 549-2692

NEW LOWER KEG DEPOSITS

Budweiser, Bud Light & Bud Dry ½ Kegs $39.99 + DEP
No Permit Needed To Purchase Kegs

Rubinoff Vodka 1.75 ltr $8.99
Southern Comfort 750 ml $7.49

Coors Extra Gold 24-12 oz. bar bottles $10.99 + DEP
Rolling Rock 12 pk. bottles $6.99 + DEP
Michelob ½ Kegs $41.99 & Michelob Light
LOWEST KEG PRICES IN TOWN!
Columbia Crest CHARDONNAY $4.99 750 ML
O'Doul's Non-alcoholic beer 6 pk $3.49 + DEP.

WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
QUANTITY DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE !!

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Breakin the Law
Breakin the Law
READ THE PAPER THAT FLIRTS WITH DEATH

SPRINGFIELD PARAMOUNT

HEART LIVE ON STAGE NOVEMBER 21ST

BRUCE HORNSBY NOVEMBER 24TH

JACKIE MASON "POLITICALLY INCORRECT" DECEMBER 11TH

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT BOX OFFICE (413) 734-5874; ALL STRAWBERRY RECORD OUTLETS; NORTHAMPTON TICKET OFFICE (413) 586-8686; TICKETPRO PHONE CHARGE AT 1-800-828-7090

IL PIRATA RESTAURANT

IL PIRATA
27 South Pleasant St. • Amherst, MA 01002
(413) 256-0140
Mon-Thurs 11:30am-11pm
Fri & Sat 11:30am-11pm • Sunday 12pm-9pm

SPECIALS OF THE MONTH

POLENTA LASAGNE CALABRIAN STYLE:
Layers of Polenta, meat, sausage, mushrooms.
$8.50

POLENTA LASAGNE WITH EGGPLANT:
Layers of Polenta, lightly sautéed, thin slices of eggplant & balsamella sauce.
$8.25

CHICKEN PROVENSAL:
Chicken breast in garlic, parsley, and white wine sauce.
$8.95

VEAL WITH BROCCOLI & MUSHROOMS IN CREAM SAUCE
$9.95

In three languages home is where the heart is

Junior exchange student Silvia Groner sure does make balancing three languages and two worlds seem easy. The Swiss woman is currently at UMass as part of a study abroad requirement for her major in translation, which she studies at the Zurich School for Translation and Interpretation in Zurich, Switzerland.

Half a World Away
By Emily Marino

Groner is spending one semester in the United States to fill a requirement in English, her "active" language of study. In addition, she studies what is referred to as a "passive" language (French), which she is expected only to be able to understand and translate from. Add her native language, German, and three-and-a-half years at D.O.Z. (the German abbreviation for her school) and the result is a degree in interpretation and a world of opportunity.

Ambitions of working at the United Nations or for an international company are high on Groner's list. Working in international journalism or for international social organizations (like UNICEF) are options that have crossed her mind, especially if there is a future opportunity to travel. But make no mistake, Groner is certain that her home will always be in Europe.

"Europe is where I want to be," she asserts, "I love Switzerland."

Although born in Switzerland, Groner and her family moved to South Carolina when she was 11-years-old, so that her father could so some research and teaching in physical chemistry at the University of South Carolina. This gave Groner the opportunity to learn English, in addition to experiencing a different culture.

Almost a decade later, after having returned to Switzerland to live and having come back to the U.S., on exchange, Groner has drawn some conclusions about the cultural differences between her homeland and America.

As a trilingual international student, one of the biggest differences that she notices is Americans' attitude towards the learning of foreign languages, which she considers to be the "key to a culture." Groner says that because the schools require students to learn at least one other language, it is sometimes a turn-off. However, the fact that many Europeans discourage American tourists from attempting to use their native languages when visiting is also negative.

"I do resent Europeans who immediately switch to English when talking to Americans," she says.

Of her experience here, as a foreigner, Groner admits that living in South Carolina for a bit while growing up has given her an advantage in fitting in.

"I am never mistaken for anything but American," she says, "because my English is so distinctly American. I can take the best of both worlds, it works for me."

She also claims that living in America has made her more ambitious.

"They give you awards for everything," she said. "If you have motivation, they find it and further it."

Motivation is something that Groner is far from lacking, and she is enjoying her time here in what she refers to as "the big community of UMass." In light of her strong desire to travel and to learn a number of foreign languages to successfully do so, it is not surprising that Groner's most basic appreciation for her semester abroad is that, as she puts it, "it's just a good change."

Emily Marino is a Collegian Columnist.

From Boston to Amherst

Co-op columnist tells of life in the city

By STEVEN COOK
Collegian Correspondent

I am writing this article in Boston, "the city upon a hill," "the hub of the universe," "Beantown." And all I can think about is Amherst, that little town nestled in the cradle of western Massachusetts, where vast hills protect it from all the evils of the world. A place where you can express yourself freely without being judged.

Go ahead, wear those army boots with that dress, or get higher than Jesus and listen to Neil Diamond, no one will laugh. Perhaps you have always wanted to pierce your nose and not shower for a semester, maybe hunger strikes are your thing or perhaps it is lighting yourself on fire, hey whatever makes you happy. What makes me happy? My family, my friends and a warm buzz on Friday afternoons. That folks, is Amherst, and I really do miss it.

I'm working a co-op at The Boston Globe. I have been here since June 28. I finish New Year's Eve. I have experienced a great deal while working here and the plan was to share some of those experiences through a weekly column. However, I've been a little slow; you see, this is the first one, but I have my reasons. First reason: it took me this long to draft something that wouldn't offend anyone (chances are I already have.) Second reason: my brother's leather couch in South Boston. It compliments the beer in my hand just fine and it doesn't clash with the empty twelve pack on the floor.

But enough about my talents in interior decorating (and my drinking problem.) What I am really hoping for is to get a few of these columns in the paper before I get back to school in the spring. I figure if enough people get really mad or laugh really hard, the folks at the Collegian will keep publishing my articles and maybe even let me join their team of award-winning writers.

You see, I will ge ople thinking, and that I believe, will create a response,

Turn to BOSTON, page 10

Musketeers is stolen fun

Herek's film falls flat with empty energy

COURTESY WARNER BROTHERS INC

Charlie Sheen, as The Rookie.

By ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Many words can be used to describe Walt Disney Studio's latest take on the Alexandre Dumas classic The Three Musketeers. Lively, energetic, hip, retread . . . they all fit. As entertaining as it is, it never draws away from a plot that's pure paint-by-numbers repetition of that Kevin Costner Robin Hood flick from a few years back.

The similarities between the current and post popcorn period-piece swashbucklers are staggering. Once again we have a film that starts out in a dank dungeon and then transforms into an Indiana Jones-inspired chase. Robin Hood had Brit Alan Rickman as the nefarious sheriff quick with his wit and envious of the throne.

Any guesses as to what chair Musketeers villain Cardinal Richelieu (the playfully sarcastic Tim Curry) lusts for. And casting agents take notice, Rickman's darkly clad henchman and Curry's dressed in black, eye-patch adorned heavy are played by the same actor, Michael Wincott.

Still the fun in The Three Musketeers is not in the plot (summed up in three words: Save the King) but rather in the elaborately choreographed scenes and the breezy banter between the leads.

Charlie Sheen's Aramis and Oliver Platt's Porthos overshadow the tired brooding by Kiefer Sutherland's Athos. With Chris O'Donnell's D'Artagnan they are like a pair of frat boys crusading and "wenching" across France, floating buoyantly on the light atmosphere generated by director Stephen Herek (The Mighty Ducks).

Herek keeps his camera moving during the action scenes, never allowing such small contrivances as plot to slow down his "epic lite". Every slash, jab, leap and somersault are tightly planned and executed.

This is a movie in constant conflict with itself. The scenes with the musketeers are light and frothy, a Dumas' buddy movie by way of the Brat Pack, but everytime Curry opens his mouth to spout his grand schemes, the script attempts to tread serious ground committing highway robbery on itself. All fun is stolen.

Herek would have done better to stay with the action and comedic elements and drop the semi-serious subplots. Rebecca DeMornay's role as the tortured Milady de Winter and Gabrielle Anwar's lady-in-waiting are nothing but window dressing. Romance doesn't figure in Herek's whitewash so these plots are best laid to rest.

The Musketeers often cry "All for one." None for me, thanks. C (Hampshire Six)

TAKE THE KEYS. CALL A CAB. TAKE A STAND.
FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK.

4 Seasons
Thank you for your Patronage The Krupczak Family
Delivery Hadley / Amherst Area. Not responsible for typographical errors
Rte. 9 • Hadley • 584-8174
Between Burger King & Dunkin Donuts
DISCOUNT LIQUORS • BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE
PRICES EFFECTIVE THRU 11/24/93 HOURS: MONDAY-SATURDAY 9:00-11:00

½ BBL LOWENBRAU & DK. $42.99 + dep.
½ BBL BUSCH $36.99 + dep.
½ BBL BUD, BUD LT., BUD DRY MICHELOB MICHELOB LT. MICHELOB DARK MILLER MILLER LITE M.G.D. & M.G.D. LT $40.99 + dep.
½ BBL NATURAL LT MILWAUKEE'S BEST BLACK LABEL $32.99 + dep.
ICE 10 LBS. $1.25 50 LBS. $5.49 100 LB. $9.99 BLOCKS 10 LBS. $1.50
M.G.D. & M.G.D. LITE 24-12 OZ. CANS $12.99 + dep.
LITE 24-12 oz. cans $12.99 + dep.
BUSCH & LT. 24-12 oz. cans $9.99 + dep.
KEYSTONE & LT. 24-12 oz. cans $8.69 + dep.
MEISTER BRAU & LT. 24-12 oz. cans $7.69 + dep.
BLACK LABEL & LT 24-12 oz. cans $8.89 + dep.
BUD DRY 24-12 oz. bar bott. $10.99 + dep.
COORS EXTRA GOLD 24-12 oz. bar bott. $10.99 + dep.
WILD TURKEY 101° Bourbon $12.49 750 ml
4 SEASONS VODKA $8.99 1.75L
FLEISCHMANNS Whiskey $11.99 1.75L
MASS. STATE LOTTERY AGENT!!
TEACHERS HIGHLAND Cream Scotch $21.99 1.75L
UMASS FOOTBALL! vs. NEW HAMPSHIRE At Home Saturday
KAHLUA $11.99 750ml
GIBLEY'S GIN $11.99 1.75L
SUTTER HOME White Zin. $3.99 750ml.
PINE RIDGE Cab Sauv $10.99 750ml.
LINDEMANS Chard $5.99 750ml.
RENE JUNOT Red & White $4.99 1.5L
BLACK OPAL Chard & Cab $6.99 750ml.
STOCK VERMOUTH Sweet & Dry $4.69 750ml.
GEORGE DUBORUF Beaujolais $4.99 750ml.
WE DELIVER

Northhampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50¢ HOT DOGS, 50¢ SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT / THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT / THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT

the new Senate Agenda

420 STUDENT UNION BUILDING
AMHERST, MASS. 01003
(413) 545-0341

November, 1993 Published by the UMass Undergraduate Public Relations Committee

David Nuñez, SGA President
Matthew Pavesi, Speaker of the Senate
Al Lizana, Trustee
Peter Roaf, Treasurer
Josh Weissman, Academic Affairs
Jeremy Hathaway, Budgets
Erin Jackson, Public Policy
Manuel Aguilar, Public Relations
Cam Tewksbury, Government Affairs
Diego Figueroa, Chair of Finance
Andrew Berenson, Rents and Fees
Lynn Robitaille, Student Coordinator of SCERA
Megan Blanchette, Clerk of Courts
Matt Malone, Attorney General

Student government looks ahead

The future of the Student Government Association (SGA) is reliant on two key principles: Communication amongst the SGA representatives and their respective constituencies and the communication from the Registered Student Organizations (RSOs) and the Undergraduates to the Student Government as a whole. This allows us to channel information regarding student and campus life to you and empowering us to better the University.

Our goals this year in the Student Government are as follows: Visibility, responsibility, responsiveness, representation, legitimacy, and multi-cultural awareness.

As a team we need to build consensus regarding what we want to accomplish as individuals and as a student body. The building and consensus making process occurred largely during this past summer. There is a very strong core group of individuals who were dedicated enough to pledge their allegiance and time to Student Government and the fight for student's rights both on campus and at the State House.

We are actively looking for new members to join us, as evidenced by our Senatorial elections in September.

The following is a brief description of our goals and how we plan to accomplish them:

- Visibility. The Public Relations Committee is an integral part in making our goals into results on a year round basis. The Committee has devised a budget and a plan for advertising. These ideas include postering, editorial writing, knocking on doors and most importantly communicating with you the undergraduates. This allows us to better evaluate our failures and accomplishments of the next year and years to come.
- Responsibility, responsiveness, and representation. The Student Government Association has the responsibility of serving the student body and making sure your voice is heard both here on campus and at the State House. Proper representation is an imperative to the success of any branch of Democratic Government.
- Legitimacy. By improving Public Relations and renewing our commitment to responsibility and proper representation of the student body, we will legitimize ourselves to our constituents. This strategy is expected to cause a domino effect, in which the administration respects and responds to the wide-spread participation and support of the Student Government.
- Multi-cultural awareness. This is probably one of the easier tasks that the Student Government has in front of it. Both the Student Government President and Student Trustee are students of color and are dedicated to improving the quality of student life for all ALANA students and are joining the fight to better the college experience for all students here at UMass. Another reason stems from the fact that much of the hiring which has taken place this year, in Student Government and all across campus, consists of individuals who are aware and have dedicated themselves to the issues of multi-culturalism. Through short-term efforts, our long-term goal is to help modify the behavior of the undergraduate community in such a way that multi-culturalism becomes an automatic reflex rather than a concern or issue.

Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA)

The Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is the Research and Advocacy arm of the Student Government Association (SGA). SCERA acts as an advocate for student interests with the State Government and the University of Massachusetts Administration by:

- Conducting research on issues of interest to the undergraduate student body.
- Educating the undergraduate student body about these issues.
- Developing policy proposals on these issues through solicited feedback from the undergraduate student body.
- Empowering students to advocate on their own behalf.

SCERA has the responsibility of researching and advocating on many issues that directly affect the quality of life for students at this University. For example, the SCERA staff have begun to analyze the impact of the recent budget cuts on student life at UMass. The most important issue of this semester for SCERA is to assist in the regaining of litigation rights for the Legal Services Center on campus.

SCERA is an essential force in ensuring that the voice of students is heard in all aspects of the UMass administration decision-making process. The center offers work-study positions and internship credit for students who want to take an active part in making their voices heard.

Anyone who is interested should contact Dr. Marc Kenen, Director of SCERA at 545-0355.

Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center

Looking to move off campus? Have questions about moving off campus? Come to the Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center, our office is located in room 428 of the Student Union Building. We have Spanish speaking assistance available by appointment. Asistencia en espanol disponeble por cita previa.

The Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center (formerly OCHO, the Off Campus Housing Office) provides a number of free services for students who live off-campus, or who are looking to move off-campus. The most popular and widely used service that our office provides is a listing of vacant apartments in Amherst and the surrounding communities.

Listings are available for a wide variety of housing options. The office also maintains listings of people seeking housing.

Other services we provide include:

- Child care and Tuition Assistance. The CSHRC awards scholarships to undergraduates at UMass who need assistance paying for child care. This scholarship is funded by UMass student fees and is available to any undergraduate parent receiving financial aid. Awards are distributed on a sliding scale basis.
- The Homesharing Program. The Homesharing Program's purpose is to match renters with householders who would be willing to exchange low-cost or no-cost rent for services performed by the renters.
- Voter Registration. Students and other members of the campus community who live in Amherst can register to vote in our office.
- For $10.00 a year students can rent lockers in the student union building. Sign up at our office. You must provide your own lock.

For more information, call 545-0865.

Office of Third World Affairs (OTWA)

The Office of Third World Affairs (OTWA) is a multi-cultural student support service agency, and works as a division member of Student Affairs. OTWA was established in 1976 as a professional agency in response to the request of students of color for an institutional advocacy that would be of assistance to them and to address quality of life issues.

OTWA provides the general student population and especially the students of color, with a professional organizational body that assists, organizes, advocates, and provides resources that enhance and protect their rights. The expanded programs offered by OTWA have been instrumental in enhancing the awareness of students of color to the issues of multi-culturalism and other social issues, life skills development, and humanity in general. OTWA promotes the importance of learning styles, ethnic and cultural backgrounds and other unique characteristics of the differences of each individual. The message that reverberates from each activity that OTWA sponsors is that students can create a better environment in which people recognize, accept, and seek to develop the uniqueness of each individual. In this environment the validity of others' ethnicity, understanding , and appreciation for cultural difference, is a priority and is promoted and encouraged by the Office of Third World Affairs.

OTWA also works to develop programs that advocate fairness and humanity for all. OTWA is responsible for ensuring the viability and efficiency of registered student groups who are comprised mainly of students of color. OTWA teaches skills in coping with this university, and enhances the skills that complement a students academic goals and career objectives in life.

The Office of Third World Affairs is located in room 404 of the Student Union Building. For more information call 545-2517

Legal Services Center

Students come to the Legal Services Center (LSC) for a variety of reasons. We serve you by providing referral and/or advice about legal problems, depending on several factors. The policy governing which types of cases this office may handle is set by our own student governing board. Determinations about what should be done in individual cases are made by the individual attorneys, based on ethical considerations, legal judgment, the limitations of the office and the needs and desires of the clients involved.

Our case policy delineates the types of cases that we can handle. Professional ethics mandate that we cannot serve one student against another. If your problem is outside of our case policy we can offer our Attorney Referral Book to you or refer you to other resources outside of the legal profession. In most other instances , we will be making an appointment with you for further services.

The Legal Services Center (LSC) is a student-funded law office created in 1973 by a joint act of the Undergraduate and Graduate student senates, to provide free legal services to all fee paying UMass students and student groups. We offer legal services in most legal matters.

We are located in room 922 of the campus center or call 545-1995.

Center for Student Businesses (CSB)

The University of Massachusetts Center for Student Businesses (CSB) provides guidance, training and supervision for the University's ten undergraduate non-profit businesses. Undergraduate students are provided with an opportunity to gain hands-on training and education in the cooperative management of small businesses through the development and practice of group and organizational skills in team management. Students learn specific organizational and business skills in a supportive environment which encourages personal growth. Moreover, the program offers products, services, and paying jobs for undergraduate students who gain valuable job and life skills while making a positive contribution to their community.

Established ih 1975, the CSB is committed to providing high quality services and consultation to all on-campus student businesses. In our role as trainers and educators, we provide workshops on group dynamics, organizational development, and communication skills. In our role as financial intermediaries, we provide the businesses with the necessary training and support to manage all financial aspects of their business. This support includes the preparation of budgets and income statements and the reconciliation of individual business records with those of the University. Support is provided by a dedicated professional staff and undergraduate accounting majors at the center. Finally, in our role as administrators, we are both advocates for the businesses and for the University. We act as an intermediary between the Businesses and the Student Activities Office, Building Operations, and Housing to ensure adherence to all institutional policies and procedures.

Today, under the direction of a professional member and a graduate intern, the ten businesses generate annual revenues in excess of $550,000 dollars and employs more than 160 students. Any and all operating profits are re-invested into the various businesses.

We are located in room 409 of the Student Union Building or for more information call, 545-2166/2167.

THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT/ THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT/ THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT

Student Government Reports...

Judicial Advisors

The Judicial Advisors Program arose from a concern among student leaders that students were unable to deal effectively with the campus judicial system because of simple misunderstandings or misinformation. Since its inception the program's main goal has been to make the judicial process less confusing to students.

The program has two main functions intended to achieve this goal. First, the Judicial Advisors Program is a resource of information for students who have any questions concerning the campus judicial process. Hearing about the campus judicial policy from a fellow student instead of an administrator or other authority figure can often be more helpful to students. The Judicial Advisors Program provides a non-stressful, relaxed atmosphere where students can come to get understandable answers to often complex questions. Whether the person is a charged student or a complaining witness the Judicial Advisors Program is here to listen to their concerns and to help them through the campus judicial process.

Secondly, The Judicial Advisors Program acts as a mediator between students and the campus judicial system. When and if a situation arises that requires formal administrative action the Judicial Advisory program is ready to aid both the charged student(s) and any accompanying witnesses that are not represented by the administration. The program is staffed with fifteen trained and fully competent advisors who are ready to guide all parties through the hearing process. Often times students are unsure about how to approach the board or about how to present his or her case in an effective manner. The individual advisors are able to ensure that the students are presented with every relevant aspect of the his or her case before it is presented to the board.

The Judicial Advisors Program is devoted to making the students interaction with the campus Judicial system as painless as possible. Whether you have questions relating to a pre-hearing, an appeal letter or any step in between, the Judicial Advisory Program is there to assist you.

For more information stop by room 432 of the Student Union Building or call 545-1272.

•

Governmental Affairs

The Governmental Affairs Committee of the Student Government Association had a very productive year in the 1992/1993 school year. Two of the main functions of this committee are to run the fall senatorial election as well as the spring elections for the student President and Trustee. The spring election recorded the largest voter turn-out of voters in recent years. This was due to the strong campaigning tactics of now President David Nunez and student Trustee Al Lizana, as well as the Committee itself. We hope for even better results in the 1993/1994 school year.

Another major function of the Governmental Affairs Committee is to constantly review the SGA Constitution and its bylaws. These motions are made within the Student Senate and are then reviewed by the Governmental Affairs Committee. It the Committee's job to make sure at all times that Senate and RSO activity conform to the Constitution and the bylaws.

Next year the Committee will continue to clarify and make the necessary changes to allow the Bylaws to be in accordance with our Constitution. Last March the undergraduates overwhelmingly voted to accept our constitution as campus and student policy. On December 1, 1993 the Student Government Association's Constitution will hopefully become a legal binding document when it appears as a motion in front of the Board of Trustees, thus allowing the Student voice to be heard within a court of law.

For more information contact Cam Tewksbury.

•

Finance

The Student Government Associations Finance Committee allocated over $40,000 dollars in fiscal year 1992/1993, to some 70 Registered Student Organizations (RSO's), providing the campus with a variety of activities and enhancing student empowerment. Last year we allocated funds to the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity assisting them in bringing the controversial speaker Leonard Jefferies on campus. We have also had the satisfaction in providing funds to Hillel, Ahora, Parachute Club, Italian American Student Union , Alpha Chi Rho Fraternity, AFRIK-AM Society, and many other organizations. We assisted many fraternities and sororities in paying for their annual conferences, thus promoting leadership and community service.

The Student Government Associations Finance Committee feels proud to have helped those Registered Student Organizations (RSO's) reach their respective goals. This year the Committee wants to help even more groups than last year and hope to continue assisting not only the RSO's requesting funds but those student who make use of them.

For more information call 545-0341 and ask for Diego R. Figueroa.

•

Attorney General

This semester, the Student Attorney General's (SAG) Office is participating in four initiatives: First, the A.G.'s office is conducting a thorough review of the SGA by-laws; the daily operating procedure of the Student Government. This is being conducted to determine the desirability of keeping by-laws which have not been adhered to historically. Following this process, the by-laws ought to remain in force, with their constitutional integrity intact.

Secondly, the A.G's office is attempting to coordinate candidates for the Student Supreme Court; the undergraduate court charged with deciding constitutional questions and disputes between RSO's. Interested parties, who are not officially affiliated with SGA, should contact their area government for information and appointments.

Thirdly, we are attempting to dialogue with the subcommittee of the Commission on Human Relations that is writing to harassment policy, which Chancellor Scott has pledged to implement this year. The institution of this proposed change is essential to ensuring that there exists an adequate avenue to address harassment on campus.

Lastly, the office will participate in the fight to regain litigation rights for Legal Services.

Should you have any questions regarding this or any other matter, please feel free to contact Matt Malone, Student Attorney General at 5-1272.

•

Registrar

Last semester saw the formation of 25 groups. One of the most needed new groups is the Single Parents Association. This organization provides a supportive and social atmosphere for single undergraduate parents at the University.

The coming year has already brought new groups to campus, including the Women's Ice Hockey Club, Casa Dominicana, and In Focus. This semester in addition to registering new student groups, the Registrar will focus on the policy issues regarding Registered Student Organizations (RSOs) as related to the Student Government Association, thus defining more accurately the rules and regulations for all RSO's.

•

Speaker

The Speaker is the executive officer of the Senate. S/he is responsible for chairing the weekly Senate meetings, maintaining accurate records of the Senate's activities, being the spokesperson for the Senate, coordinating and communicating with the Senate's committees and meeting with University Administrators. The Speaker's office is located in 420 Student Union.

•

Trustee

The Trustee holds a seat on the University's Board of Trustees. It is through this officer that the student voice is heard on decisions concerning fee increases, University policy, and issues affecting the entire University. The Trustee spends a great deal of time in Boston meeting with the Trustees and State Legislators. The Trustee's office is located in 420 Student Union.

•

Treasurer

This past Spring I was elected to the position of Student Government Association Treasurer after having served as the assistant to the Budgets Chair for the year. As I immersed myself into the position I quickly became aware of the long list of Registered Student Organizations in need of funds and our inability at times to provide full funding for a specific event or function. My initiation into the financial process of this organization culminated with a marathon thirteen hour meeting in order to finish our fiscal year 1994 budget to the Undergraduate Student Senate.

The University system is refinancing some of its debts and beginning to issue themselves new bonds, all on the backs of the Students. The University is hoping to raise some $200 million to pay for various projects within the five college system, thus increasing your tuition and fees.

The University Capital Program Project list shows the Amherst campus receiving $60 million in the first phase and $20 million in the second phase. The question is how much is this going to cost the students, in order to pay off the Universities debts over the next twenty years?

We in the Student Government Association would like some of the monies allocated to be used to renovate some of the dilapidated Liberal Arts buildings here on campus as well as the expansion and improvement of the Student Union building.

Heading into this year (fall 1993) I see the biggest goal for my office in collaboration with the Finance and Budget Committees Chaired by Jeremy Hathaway and Diego Figueroa, is to begin reducing the current shortfall in the S-1 Budget. The Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) is drawing almost $120,000 into its reserves; at this rate the reserves will be depleted in two years . In the up coming year I hope to establish and institute a Committee to review and/or amend chapter eight of the SGA bylaws which sets the Financial guidelines for the Student Activities Trust Fund.

For more information contact Peter Roaf at 545-0341.

•

Public Policy

As Public Policy Committee tackles the 1993 fall semester and looks toward the future we must reflect on that past year with admiration and content. The Committee has long since been a fighting force for the protection and defense of student rights both on and off campus, on a town and state level and hopefully soon the federal level. As the November Presidential election approached, the Public Policy Committee focused in on election day coverage. The Committees focus was to register students to vote and providing access to Amherst polling places on election day. The Public Policy Committee has also been a driving force in getting students elected to Amherst Town meeting.

Another major project that the Committee was involved in was to help regain litigation rights for the Legal Services Center. Through research and Student initiative such as State house lobbying, the committee has met with various members of the State Education Committee, thus placing the Student voice onto the state level and educating State representatives and Senators to the fundamental right to accessible public higher education.

The Committee has been working for the past year on a "Know Your Rights" publication which is designed to inform the students of the rights here on campus thus empowering them to question any anti-student policies inflicted by housing or any other Bureaucratic avenues on campus.

•

Academic Affairs

The Academic Affairs Committe ensures that the student voice is heard in matters pertaining to the quality of undergraduate education at UMass. The committee affects the decisions made by faculty and administration concerning academic quality at the University. Lines of communiction are maintained with the Vice-Chancellor, the Faculty Senate, and various schools and colleges of the University.

•

Rents and Fees

The Rents and Fees Committee investigates all rents and fees levied by the administrations and/or the Amherst community on UMass students. The committee examines all fees and fee increases and makes responsible reccommendations. The SGA is able to further advocate on these matters to the Chancellor and the Board of Trustees.

Just a couple of helpful hints for students living off campus

By CHRISTINA ORWICZ
Collegian Staff

So you're thinking of moving off-campus? If you have been this is the time to act, even if you stood in line at your local cluster office, reserving your room. There's still time to make a change, as they don't charge you for reserving your room.

But I understand that moving out of the womb of the dorms can be intimidating, and for those of you who are feeling this way, or are skeptical about making such geographical changes, I've made a handy-dandy list of "Questions You Always Had About Living Off-Campus, but Were Afraid to Ask."

1. Does living off-campus make you cool? NOT. This ill-conceived notion couldn't be further from the truth. If you're a geek in the dorms, you'll stay a geek.

2. Is it a pain getting to classes? Not necessarily. Depending on where you live, you may have an equidistant trek to class. Of course, this does not apply if you live in Sunderland or Belchertown. But basically, any place you chose will have access to the God-sent PVTA which will get you on-campus every ten minutes in the morning and every one-half hour at night.

3. Is living off-campus more or less expensive than living in the dorms? This question's answer has a set of variables that determines the outcome. They are:

•Living in a complex is cheaper than a private house.

•If you will share your room with someone or want a single.

•Location. Amherst Center is prime location, thus prices are higher than the boonies of Belchertown. If you look around, you can get rent for the same price, if not cheaper than, the dorms.

4. Do you have more freedom living off-campus? Yes! Yes! Yes! You can cook anything you want, sleep anytime you want, have a clean (or if you prefer, dirty) bathroom, and you can walk around your place naked with little risk of being disturbed.

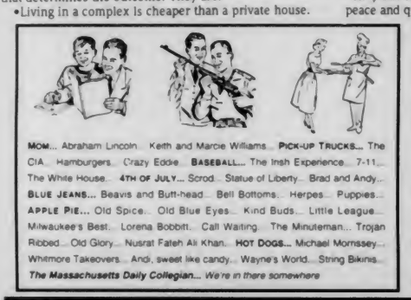
5. Are those people who walk around with full 50-lb. hiking packs "off-campusers?" Usually. If you have to spend all day on-campus there is a list of things you should always have with you:

•At least one dollar, preferably five.

•A cash card.

•Rain gear. This is where the being cool part does not apply at all; try starting off your day getting soaked in the rain, not being able to run home and change — not fun.

•Bus schedule.



•Dress in layers. UMass has a phenomenon containing at least six different eco-zones on campus. Never trust the National Weather Service — they're wrong.

As I've tried to point out, as most things in life, there are pros and cons to living off-campus. I'm very content living "off", but some aren't. I like it because it's nice to have peace and quiet as well as a rockin' party at your disposal.

Northampton Bowl
NIFTY FIFTIES
FRIDAYS FRIDAYS
9am–4pm
Only $1.50 per Game
10pm–1am NIFTY FIFTIES
$1.50 PER GAME, 50c HOT DOGS, 50c SODAS & DJ MIKE P
Spinning your favorite oldies and New Country right on the lanes.
584-4830

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE
All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
HOURS 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street Route 9 Hadley MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-in's are Welcome

Pro Street
DANCE CLUB
▼ Wednesday ▲
GAY NIGHT MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
11/24-Win a Complet Thanksgiving Dinner for Four from Bread & Circus in Hadley
• Thursday •
HIP-HOP CLUB HOUSE DANCE
Music By SPIN Inc.
Free Pizza Courtesy of Nini's
WHMP 99.3 Broadcasting Live 9:30-11:30pm plus listen to 99.3 to win Free Admission for you & your dorm.
18+ DANCE PARTY
• Friday •
JAMMIN' TO TOP 40
Dance Music by DJ PETE
New Hours 8:00pm-1:00am
Dance for free when you party on Friday
• Saturday •
SPINNING TOP 40
Dance Music by DJ Pete
New Hours 8:00pm-1:00am
Party for free when you dine in Downtown Northampton
• Sunday •
COUNTRY/WESTERN DANCING
November Drink Specials
16oz. BUD Draft $1.50
Coors Light $2.00
Jose Cuervo Gold $2.00
Limousine Service Courtesy of Michaels Limousine, 533-8470
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs., Nov.18-8:00pm/18+/
Western Mass Battle of the Bands
SLOWPOKE/VEIN CAGE/ROCK GODS FROM CHICOPEE/SKUNK JUICE/THE ORPHANS/S.M.A.
Fri., Nov.19-7:00pm/WRSI/
Celebrating their 20th Anniversary
LOS LOBOS
Sat., Nov. 20-9:00pm
WHO'S KIDDIN' WHO
Tues., Nov.23-8:00pm/16+/
Tuesday Night Rock Series
SAM BLACK CHURCH
Doom Nation/Drawback
Fri., Nov.26-9:00pm
THE SIGH
Ray Mason/L-Dopa
Sat., Nov. 27-9:00pm
THE EQUALITES
Swamp Girl
Tues., Nov.30-8:00pm/16+/
PAW
Slow Poke/Home
Thur., Dec.2-9:00pm/18+/
CHUCKLEHEAD
Fri., Dec.3-9:00pm
THE FOOLS
Sat., Dec.4-7:00pm/WRSI/
WRSI Holiday Party
SQUEEZE
Over The Rhine
Thurs., Dec.9-9:00pm
GOD STREEET WINE
Fri., Dec.10-7:00pm
From J. Geils Band
PETER WOLF
Sat., Dec.11-8:00pm
BAD BRAINS
Fri., Dec.17-9:00pm
TEXAS FLOOD
Tue., Dec.28-8:00pm/16+/
PRO-PAIN
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office: 586-8686, The Record in Amherst
10 Pearl Street Northampton
584-7771

Amherst Sunshine CAR WASH
381 College Street (Rte. 9 East)
AUTOMATIC WASH/WAX
Open Daily 8:00 am to 5:00 pm
SELF-SERVICE BAYS
Open 24 Hours
Soap/Rinse/Wax • Bubble Brush
Tire Cleaner • Engine De-Greaser
VACUUM CLEANERS
$1 & $5 CHANGER
"OUR ATTENDANTS ARE HAPPY TO ASSIST YOU"

The 32nd Annual
LAS VEGAS NIGHT
Thursday, November 18 from 7:30 to Midnight
in the Campus Center Auditorium
Your winnings from our mock-casino can be used at our end of the evening auction to bid on over $1,200 worth of prizes donated by local merchants.
PRIZES INCLUDE:
Dinner for two at Boltwood Tavern at the Lord Jeffery Inn
A nightgown from Le Boudoir
A perfumed soap and lotion basket from The Cedar Chest
A Samual Adams mirror from La Fuente
Compact Disks from Musicland & NRM Music including:
Aaron Neville's Soulful Christmas, Rick Astley's Body & Soul, Daryl Hall's Soul Alone, & many more
This is just a taste of the prizes available. Come down and try your luck!
Admission: $3.00 in advance or $5.00 at the door.
All proceeds go to the Everywoman's Center.
SPONSORED BY:
ΑΦΩ NATIONAL CO-ED SERVICE FRATERNITY & HMP*FM* Radio 99.3 FM

WHAT'S THE KEY TO QUITTING SMOKING?
Kicking the habit can be tough, especially if you've smoked for years. The Great American Smokeout is a good time to try to quit.
After you make it through the 24 hours of Smokeout, set a goal of not smoking for two weeks. Most people give up during the first two weeks because they are the hardest. After that, you'll know you can live without cigarettes—if you take it one day at a time.
Anytime you need help, please give us a call. We have free information on quitting, and we'll support you all the way.
Pick up a FREE Smokers Quit Kit
November 18
on the Campus Center Concourse
A FEW QUIT TIPS
- Get rid of your cigarettes, ashtrays, lighters, and matches. You won't need them anymore.
- Change your smoking routine. Leave the dinner table right away; don't sit in your "smoking chair"; avoid the smoking areas at work.
- Drink lots of liquids, except coffee and alcohol. They can trigger the desire to smoke.
- When the urge hits, take a deep breath, hold it, and slowly release it. The urge will pass.
- For information on quitting, call: 1 800 ACS 2345

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY
GREAT AMERICAN smokeout
The Third Thursday of November
Sponsored by University Health Services Health Education Division

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB At Echo Hill • 256-6446
The Area's Most Complete Club
One Month Membership $53.00
Free Water Bottle with New Membership 'Till 3/31 (While Supplies Last)
• PVTA bus route to Rolling Green •
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics •
• steps • nautilus • racquetball •
• massage • sauna • bikes • tennis •
• rowers • jacuzzi • treadmills •
• stairmaster • free weights •
Student Discounts
NOW INDOOR Tennis

UMass student sends greetings from Hawaii

By LORA LYNN KEANE
Collegian Correspondent

Greetings from Hawaii!! I'm a sophomore on exchange from UMass and as I've been reminiscing about my home school, I thought I'd send some news from the middle of the Pacific. There are 14 students attending the University of Hawaii at Manoa in Honolulu from UMass — we've got quite a little colony here!

I am a strong advocate of any kind of exchange program. It really is a wonderful experience to be surrounded by a completely new and different atmosphere. Just by being here I have learned so much about the Hawaiian land, legends, food, music, culture, and people.

I have learned what it is like to be a minority as the Hawaiian Islands are predominantly Asian: Japanese, Chinese, Filipino. It is a very different feeling to be one of the few Caucasians in a huge 400-person lecture class, and I feel that this experience is of great value.

The steep, green, rugged mountains, lush rainforest, and countless beaches here have to be my favorite aspect of Hawaii. I, along with several other UMass students, have gone on several trips to the neighbor islands of Kauai and Maui, and am also planning to visit the Big Island of Hawaii.

I can't even convey the many adventures we've experienced, including jumping off 40-foot waterfalls, swimming through chambers of dark caves, seeing Waimea Canyon — the Grand Canyon of the Pacific, and the Na Pali Cosat — a rugged mountain range right on the ocean that is only accessible by air or sea. What a thrill to be part of these adventures, it almost feels like a dream at times.

My main reason for writing this to all of you is to encourage each and every one of you who are interested in traveling, in seeing more of the world, in new experiences, to go to either the National Student Exchange Office (in Machamer) or the International Exchange Office (in Goddell) and JUST DO IT! (Also you can do these things on your own, hey, what ever works for you!) College is such a unique time because there are so many amazing opportunities right at our fingertips, all we have to do is actively pursue them.

A few other little notes that I wanted to send back to UMass: I really miss Albey Reiner's Bio of Cancer and AIDS class. It is such and incredible class and I highly recommend it. Also, I have realized what a special thing UMass has in its sense of community. UH Manoa is most definitely a commuter school and it has a lot less student life than UMass, so there are definitely things I miss about my home school.

To bring this article to an end I would like to remind all of you to enjoy college — this amazing time of freedom, opportunities and learning in its many forms; to dream big, don't let anyone stop you in pursuing your dreams, and don't let the opportunities and adventures pass you by. See ya soon!

Lora Lynn Keane is a Collegian Correspondent on exchange in Honolulu, Hawaii.

The Bewitched Child

COURTESY UMASS DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC AND DANCE

Twenty-one performers of Opera Workshop will present The Bewitched Child, by Ravel, on Sunday, Nov. 21, at 3 p.m. in Bezanson Recital Hall.

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
Open 7 Days a week
20 % OFF MEALS FRI. AND SAT. EVENING WITH COMEDY SHOW with this ad
Comedy Shows Friday and Saturday at 8:30pm with dinner
Monday -Thursday Dinner Buffet $5.99 Sunday Brunch $6.99
586-1202 FREE PARKING
北京園
ON RT. 9 HADLEY
VISA MASTER CARD

NEW BURSAR'S OFFICE HOURS
In an effort to catch up on administrative paperwork the Bursar's office will open at 10:00 AM until further notice.
Tellers' windows are open for cash transactions from 10:00 AM to 3:30 PM
Monday - Friday
THANK YOU FOR YOUR PATIENCE

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Bud Dry Bar Bottles $10.99 case
(Quantity Discounts Available)
S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.
Catamount (your choice) $4.99 6/pk. bots.
Beer Balls "the best prices in town"
American Beer $6.99 (10 cases or more) WOW! $7.29 case
Michael Sheas Amber $12.99cse. bots.
Colt or Haffenreffer "Double Duce" .99¢
Knickerbocker 16oz. bots. $9.99cse.
Becks reg or dark $4.99 6/pk. bots.
Bacardi Rum $7.99 750ml.
Jim Beam Bourbon $9.99 liter
All Beer plus Deposit
Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits • Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)
Delivery Available

Collegian Advertising
545-3500

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling
Continuous Exotic Dancing!
Now Open!
Holyoke's Hottest New Night Spot
Race St. Pub
★ Rte. 202 to Rte. 141 East to 268 Race St. ★
Open Mon-Wed 4p.m. til 1:30 a.m.
Thur-Sat 12p.m. til 2 a.m.
532-1422
Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

◆ Boston

continued from page 5

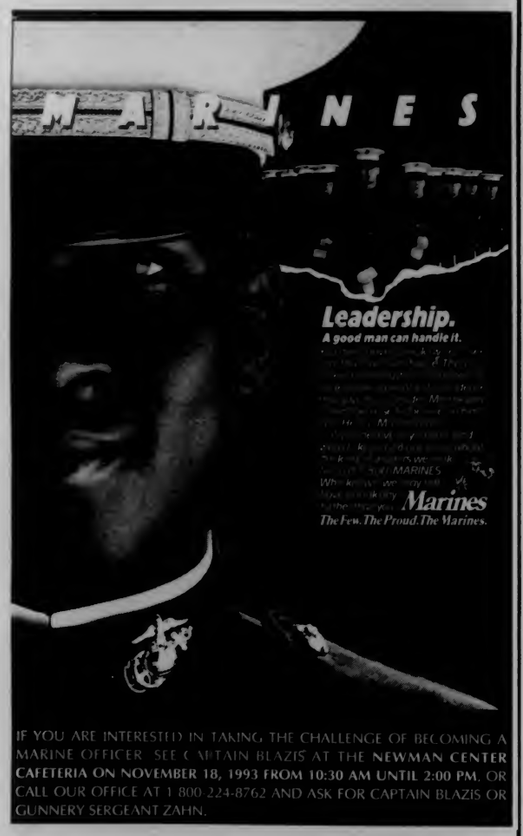
which through active debate brings change, hopefully for the better. I think I might have read that somewhere, possibly a cheat sheet, at any rate, at least I can enjoy those beers knowing I am doing something for the great town of Amherst.

So, while you're enjoying your chicken pucks, or hanging at the Campus Center, or even throwing a few back in the Hatch on a Tuesday afternoon, read my column and I will tell you a few things about co-ops and Boston. I'll let you know about the dating scene (when I find it), the office scene, and just what those baby boomers think about our Generation X.

And if I can really motivate myself, because I love you guys, I might even sneak into Faneuil Hall and the Back Bay, drink myself silly, and spy on all those B.C., B.U. and Northeastern students who were tricked into thinking they would get a better education at those private schools. I will find out why they didn't go to the Zoo, the best damn school there ever was. Stay tuned . . .

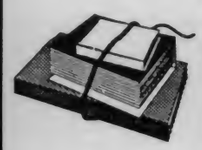
Stay tuned for the announcement of the winners of the Arts and Living Noodle Contest. The four finalists are:

Jennifer Angelovich
Angelique L. De Coste
Patrick Lao and Mio Kayoda
Elizabeth Mansager



The winners will be announced after the final cook-off, to take place tomorrow. Good Luck to the finalists, and thanks to all of you who participated.

Hats off to Hammond



ARAM COMJEAN/COLLEGIAN

John Hammond performed last Wednesday with Robert Cray.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN TAKING THE CHALLENGE OF BECOMING A MARINE OFFICER, SEE CAPTAIN BLAZIS AT THE NEWMAN CENTER CAFETERIA ON NOVEMBER 18, 1993 FROM 10:30 AM UNTIL 2:00 PM. OR CALL OUR OFFICE AT 1-800-224-8762 AND ASK FOR CAPTAIN BLAZIS OR GUNNERY SERGEANT ZAHN.

What is a Textbook Buyback?

Three times during each semester the Textbook Annex brings in a wholesaler to buy textbooks from students. Wholesalers are in the business of selling used books to colleges and universities across the country. Therefore, in determining how much they will pay a student for a book they must consider the demand for that book as well as the shipping and handling costs involved in processing and reselling the book. This is why prices vary and indeed change frequently. Generally only current editions have value.

The best time to sell books is at the end of the semester. At that time the Annex will pay 50% of the new price for a book if we have an order for that book for the following semester and we need to purchase copies. If we do not, the wholesaler may make you an offer.

If you have questions please ask the people doing the buyback or the Annex staff. They will be more than happy to answer your questions and give you any tips that may be applicable to your situation.

*A Picture ID is Required for all Buyback Transactions.

When is the next Textbook Buyback?

Mid-semester Textbook Buyback is:

NOVEMBER 22-23
9:00 AM- 4:00 PM

NOVEMBER 24
9:00 AM - 1:00 PM

at the TEXTBOOK ANNEX

The man behind Antonio's

By BETH GOLDSTEIN
Collegian Correspondent

Everybody who is anybody knows what Antonio's is, where one will never find the same pizzas with the same combinations of topping more than once. But does anyone know about the man who owns the most popular pizza joint in the area?

In an interview with Bruno Matarazzo, the owner of Antonio's I realized that he displays those unique combinations of pizza toppings as a direct reflection of his never-ending desire to continually learn about the world and all it has to offer. It is this desire that first led Matarazzo to travel to America from Italy, and then to open his famous pizza shop in the center of Amherst.

As a young boy in Italy, Matarazzo's ambitions hardly reflected where he is today.

"My goal was to be an engineer, always," said Matarazzo in an accent saturated with Italian heritage, "but it didn't work out."

While attending trade school immediately after elementary school, Matarazzo was recommended to an engineering company by one of his professors. While working for this company, Matarazzo graduated from trade school with an associates degree in civil engineering.

Although he knew he had mastered the skills of being an engineer, he still felt something was missing from his life.

"I felt like I was really channelled," said Matarazzo. "I wanted to see the world."

At the age of 19, Matarazzo left Italy to live with his older brother in America.

Upon arriving in Cambridge, Massachusetts in 1967, Matarazzo began taking classes at Northeastern University as an engineering student. Although he had attended Newman Prep School to learn English when he first came over, the language barrier proved to be a heavy burden.

"I remember, at school, studying with a dictionary always beside me," said Matarazzo.

In the end, Matarazzo had to choose between attending school and feeding himself. For him, the choice was obvious. He dropped out of school and in 1970, Matarazzo and his older brother opened a pizza parlor in Cambridge called Pinnochio's.

After two years at the restaurant, Matarazzo left and enrolled in East Coast Aerial Technical School in Lexington, Mass., where he was licensed as an aircraft mechanic and a commercial pilot after one-and-a-half years. An oil embargo in the early '70s forced him back into the pizza business by 1978.

At this time, Matarazzo moved to Amherst with his family and opened a Pinocchio's in town, while his brother remained in Cambridge. Following a succession of events where he repeated the cycle of doing business with his brother and then opening his own business once again, and finally failing to support his family as an electrician, Matarazzo came to open Antonio's in November of 1991.

It seems that owning a restaurant has been more like a financial necessity than a life-long dream, but Matarazzo insists that he enjoys what he does.

"I always liked it, don't get me wrong," said Matarazzo. "The only thing I didn't like was the hours."

Just as Matarazzo mastered the skills of an engineer, a pilot and an electrician, he has also mastered the skills of making pizza, only this time, he is making money, and lots of it.

"The restaurant has rewarded me with money in many ways," said Matarazzo.

Undoubtedly, his success in the pizza business can be attributed to his broad-minded perspective on life. Matarazzo's open mind always leads him to ask his workers and his customers for advice and suggestions, which is how he came to arrive at such a unique and successful business.

Blood Relations

COURTESY AMHERST COLLEGE DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE AND DANCE

Julia Foster, Anne Penner and Nadav Braun starred in "Blood Relations," performed yesterday at Amherst College's Fayerweather Studio Theatre.

CAREER CENTER NEWS

Is your budget a little tight? Worried about not having work experience in you major? Wondering if you've chosen the right field to study?

It's not too late to apply for paid Spring Semester co-op positions!

Fidelity Investments	Human Resources
Deloite and Touche	Accounting
IBM Boston	Marketing
Kraft General foods	Marketing, Communications
Data General	COINS, CSE, EE, ME
Charles River Analytics	COINS, EE, CSE, ME
TJ Maxx	Apparel Marketing
Massport	Marketing, SOM, Communications

New positions (Summer too!) are being listed with our program daily.

Questions??? Call the Field Office at 545-62665

The UMass Theatre Guild

presents

PIPPIN

November 17, 18, 19, 20 at 8:00pm in Bowker Auditorium

Tickets are $4/$6 and can be bought at the FAC box office or at the door

YOU WON'T WANT TO MISS IT!

DAD SAID, "YOU DON'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING."

WELL, GUESS WHAT?
HE WAS WRONG.

WE'VE MADE A BIG DEAL OUT OF NOTHING.
YOU SEE, WE DON'T CHARGE AN ANNUAL FEE.
PROVING ONCE AGAIN, WHAT
DAD DOESN'T KNOW WON'T HURT HIM.

IF YOU DON'T GOT IT, GET IT.℠

MEMBER NOVUS NETWORK ©1993 GREENWOOD TRUST COMPANY, MEMBER FDIC

1993-94 University of Massachusetts Basketball

Season Preview

Cleveland State–UMass preview inside

Collegian Sports

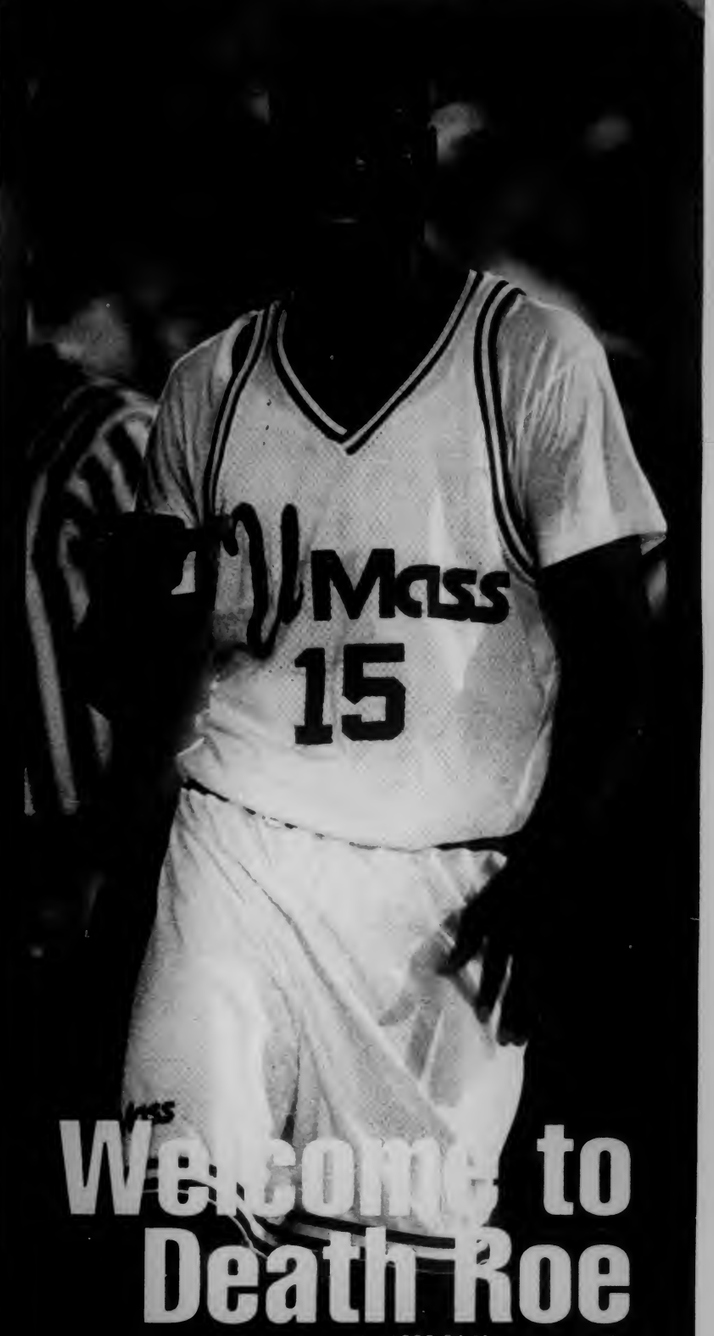
SPECIAL EDITION
Thursday, November 18, 1993

INSIDE...

Meet the 1993-94 Minutemen

How successful will UMass be this year?

What to expect in the Atlantic 10 Conference



John Calipari's brand of basketball

The Super Six — this season's toughest non-conference opponents

The Temple-UMass rivalry

A closer look at recruiting and scouting

The Massachusetts program from a national perspective

Welcome to Death Roe

Many opponents will face the 1993-94 Minutemen in the William D. Mullins Center, but few will survive the forty minute war with co-captain Lou Roe and company.

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE
Your Full Service Store
Ice, Cups, Coolers, Sundries
400 - Microbrews & Imports
40 - Singlemalt Scotches
1,000 - Domestic & Imported Wines
Specialty Cordials too Numerous to Mention Here
Full Redemption Center • Many Instore Specials
Open 9AM - 11PM
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED
338 College Strret/253-5384 • One mile East of Amherst Ctr. on Rte. 9

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
December
Schedule of Events

The John Hancock USA Hockey Tour Presents...
Team USA vs. Russia *
December 1 - 7:30 P.M.

World Cup Figure Skating Champions *
A spectacular gathering of Olympic and World skating champions!
December 2 - 7:30 P.M.

UMass Basketball vs.
Central Connecticut State
December 3 - 7:00 P.M.

Holiday Concert with the Boston Pops
John Williams Conductor *
December 10 - 8:00 P.M.

UMass Hockey vs. New England College
December 11 - 7:00 P.M.

UMass Basketball vs.
The Mexican International Team
December 15 - 7:00 P.M.

UMass Hockey vs. Gustavus Adolphus
December 30 - 7:00 P.M.

Call (413) 545-0505 for more information on all Mullins Center events.
*Call (413) 545-3001 for information on group discounts.
Call (413) 545-0810 for more information on all UMass Athletic events.

The strong rugged type.

The Dexter Overland
A stylish boot that's built for the ultimate in comfort and durability at a Dexter price.
Mathews SHOES
On the Village Green
Dexter USA
MADE IN AMERICA
99 SO. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MA 01002 (413) 256-6374

Your UMASS Basketball or Hockey Ticket Stub is redeemable for 20 Wings for the price of 10 anytime!
No Expiration Date!
The Ground Round
The Ground Round is Open
11am-Midnight daily
12:30am on Friday & Saturday
Rte. 9 Hadley • Hampshire Mall • 582-0017

HYP HATS HYP HATS HYP HATS
J•RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst 253-2013
22 Masonic St.
Northampton 586-6336
Open 7 Days • Thursday Nights in Northhampton

The first step back

By Jeff Crofts
COLLEGIAN REPORTER

One week before Thanksgiving, the Massachusetts Minutemen hope to have an early turkey dinner when they host the Cleveland State Vikings tonight (7:30 p.m. ESPN) in the first round of the Pre-season NIT at the William D. Mullins Center.

But make no mistake about it, Cleveland State will have a feasting plan of its own come game-time. After a period marked by NCAA probation, the Vikings have returned to the winning ways of old behind fourth year Coach Mike Boyd.

With a 22-6 (15-1 in Mid-Continent Conference) record last year, Cleveland State showed that it can compete with anyone.

Boyd, a former Michigan assistant, is lucky to have former Wolverine Sam Mitchell playing for him at Cleveland State.

Mitchell, a 6-foot-9 senior forward/center, is probably the best player in the Mid-Continent Conference. Tough inside, Mitchell averaged 16.8 points and 8.0 rebounds per game last season.

A pair of 6-foot-6 forwards, junior Juan Hill and sophomore Reggie Welch, join Mitchell up front. Hill averaged 5.7 points and 5.1 rebounds per contest last year while Welch chipped in with an even 5 points per game.

The Vikings will have a revamped backcourt this season thanks to the presence of two more transfers. Sophomore Malcolm Sims left Indiana to join Cleveland State while sophomore Joey Rey said sayonara to Xavier to become a Viking.

Both are expected to bolster the outside attack, which has only one returnee from last season, junior Craig Caldwell (7.0 ppg).

Cleveland State will not be the only team at the Mullins Center that will be experimenting with some newfound blood come Thursday night. UMass Coach John Calipari will be attempting to work four new players into his rotation.

Up front Minuteman fans will see the debut of two anxiously awaited newcomers. 6-foot-11 freshman center Marcus Camby will man the pivot while sophomore forward Donta Bright, a Proposition 48 casualty last year, will see time at a variety of positions.

A pair of freshmen, Carmelo Travieso and Edgar Padilla, are expected to provide some depth in the UMass backcourt.

Two juniors, power forward Lou Roe (13.8 ppg, 9.2 rpg) and shooting guard Mike Williams (11.6 ppg) will probably be the hub of the balanced UMass attack. Another junior, Derek Kellogg, will run the show as the UMass point guard.

Bulked up sophomore Dana Dingle looks as though he could be the starting small forward for Calipari. Other bench contributors include sophomore forward Ted Cottrell and junior center Jeff Meyer.

No matter what happens tonight it can be assumed that the Minutemen and Vikings will not be dining in the same manner as the Pilgrims and Indians did at the first Thanksgiving.

Game notes: — Tonight's contest can be seen on ESPN with Sean McDonough and Bill Raftery and heard on WMUA (91.1 FM) and WHMP (99.5 FM). The Minutemen are attempting to extend their 19-game winning streak on campus.

Jeff Meyer and Marcus Camby (21) are ready to take the court for the first time this season tonight against Cleveland State

25 North Pleasant St.
256-8225
Call for Pick-Up or come in and choose your own slices!
Uptown Pizza
WOW!
Now Enjoy Two Different Styles of Pizza
The Traditional Thick Crust Pan Pizza and New York Style Pizza
FREE
Soda or 50¢ Snapple with any Slice of Pizza*
*PER CUSTOMER

The Perfect Dinner Setting

Early Dinner Specials
Served nightly 5-7 p.m.
Veal Puttanesca $9.95
Sauteed veal medallions topped with tomatoes, olives, capers & basil
Coconut Chicken $8.95
Boneless chicken breast dipped in our special coconut batter & deep fried, with pineapple kiwi salsa
Canbbean Beef Fajitas $9.95
Served with fresh salsa & guacamole
Grilled Catfish $8.95
Topped with julienne peppers and pommeray mustard sauce
Penne Pasta with
Roast Autumn Vegetables $7.95
Tossed with fresh marinara and topped with rosemary & goat cheese
All served with unlimited salad bar, rolls & butter, vegetable, potato or rice pilaf
Sunday Jazz Brunch $12.95
10 a.m.-3 p.m.
Reservations Accepted
SEASONS RESTAURANT
529 Belchertown Rd
Rt 9 Amherst | 253-9909
Closed Mondays
Major Credit Cards Accepted

Coming November 29...
SportsWeekend
Get the latest news on John Calipari and UMass basketball.
Every Monday.
Only in the Collegian.

Come Clean With Us!!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-9pm • Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm • Fri. 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25 • Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

RICH'S ARMY & NAVY STORE
Inexpensive
Casual Clothing for men & women
Surplus work apparel
Camping & accessories and much more.
Open 7 Days A Week - Next To Iron Horse Cafe
24 Center Street • Northampton

SUPER STOP&SHOP
VIDEO CENTER

456 Russell Street/Hadley, MA
Phone: 256-6138 Hours: Monday-Saturday 8 am-11 pm Sunday 8 am-9 pm

TAKE A MOVIE BREAK!

NOW SHOWING

HERE'S WHAT'S IN STORE FOR YOU AT OUR VIDEO CENTER...

- Over 10,000 Titles For Rent
- Many Copies Of The Hottest Hits

Plus

- Over 700 Video Games For Rent

The 1993-94 Massachusetts Basketball Season Preview is a publication of Collegian Sports

Editor .....Arthur C. Stapleton Jr.
Design .....Mike Carvalho
Senior Writers .....Jeff Crofts
Sean P. Hayden
Michael Morrissey
Staff Writers .....Bill Balfour
Andrew Bryce
Dave Copeland
Michael R. DiLorenzo
Candice Flemming
Anthony Guido
Jorma Kansanen
Ted Kottler
Catherine B. Pulley
Michael Reiss
Matt Vautour
Production .....Lisa Jezowski
Photography .....Aram Comjean
Matt Kahn
Nathan Martin

Special thanks to Lamar Chance of UMass Media Relations, Brian Gorman, Mark Wilson, Andrew Davidson and Turley Publications.

Collegian Sports

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
113 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
(413) 545-3500

The 1993-94 University of Masachusetts Basketball Season Preview

Table of Contents

Atlantic 10 Preview.....page 2
Season Preview.....page 3
Co-captains Derek Kellogg and Lou Roe.....pages 4–5
Calipari's Style of Basketball.....page 6
Marketing the Massachusetts program.....page 6
Mike Williams.....page 7
Marcus Camby.....page 8
The Super Six: Non-conference opponents.....page 9
Donta Bright and Dana Dingle.....page 10
Carmelo Travieso and Edgar Padilla.....page 11
Fans on the Minutemen.....page 12
Rigoberto Nunez and Craig Berry.....page 13
Jeff Meyer and Ted Cottrell.....page 13
Scouting and Recruiting.....page 14
The UMass–Temple Rivalry.....page 14
A National Perspective on UMass.....page 15
Minutemen overseas.....page 16

BICYCLE WORLD TOO

Thanksgiving Repair Special

30% off of Full Tune-Ups
Reg. $35, $25 with this ad
Save $10

Also - Intersession Storage Available for your bike $14.95
Includes Safety Inspection

Our Only Business is Bikes
63 South Pleasant St. (rear) • Amherst 253-7722
Behind Bonducci's

$15 EVERY DAY
$10 EVERY NIGHT

$15 SKIING
All Day, Every Day
$10 COLLEGE STUDENT RATE
Day or Night
FREE RENTALS
Monday-Friday, Days Only, Non-Holiday

Best Skiing Value in the Berkshires!
BOUSQUET
Dan Fox Drive Pittsfield Massachusetts 01201 (413) 442-8316

Atlantic 10 Conference

Temple and Massachusetts finish one, two in our pre-season preview

By Jeff Crofts
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

1993 was a season to remember for Atlantic 10 basketball. The conference made huge strides in its continuous race for respectability.

Four Atlantic 10 teams represented the conference in the NCAA Tournament while two others made postseason trips to the NIT. Meanwhile the Big East Conference, which for years has been put on a pedestal much higher than the A-10, managed to secure only three NCAA bids.

The sudden emergence of A-10 basketball has occurred for a number of reasons. The continued excellence of Temple University coupled with the development of strong programs at Massachusetts, George Washington and St. Joseph's has given the A-10 a talent base comparable to the Big East.

A-10 teams have also scheduled tougher non-conference games in order to put their respective programs and the A-10 conference on the national map.

The upcoming season in the Atlantic 10 should be another successful one. The conference is back up to nine teams because Duquesne returns to the fold after playing one season in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

Here is an outlook on each team in the A-10 in the Collegian's predicted order of finish:

No.1 — Despite having depth problems last season, the Temple Owls finished the year with a flurry, advancing to the NCAA Final Eight and are the definite favorites in the A-10 race this season. Coach John Chaney will continue to have his troops run a low-risk offense and terrifying 2-3 matchup zone defense.

Two Owl seniors, shooting guard Aaron McKie (1993 A-10 Player of the Year, 20.6 ppg) and swingman Eddie Jones (17.0 ppg, 7.0 rpg), are probable NBA draft picks. Temple likes to give McKie and Jones the ball and let them work in isolation on their defenders.

Massachusetts native Rick Brunson (14.0 ppg, 4.5 apg) took over the point guard spot due to Vic Carstarphen's injury and his improvement as the season moved on mirrored the Owls' success. Brunson combines with McKie and Jones to form what Chaney likes to call his "3 Deuces".

After two big sophomores, the 6-foot-9, 230 pound Derrick Battie (7.3 ppg, 5.8 rpg) and 6-foot-11, 270 pound William Cunningham (3.8 ppg, 3.9 rpg), the Owls lack depth up front. Cunningham's development over the off-season is vital for Temple because he is the only true center the Owls have.

Sophomore Jason Ivey and junior Chris Ozment are expected to be the main contributors off a very slim bench. There are no new Owl recruits.

No.2 — Massachusetts (see related story, page 3).

No.3 — Entering last season the West Virginia Mountaineers were the coaches' choice to win the Atlantic 10. However, what always looks good on paper does not always look good on the court. That was the case for the Mountaineers last season. However, with much experience returning and expectations lowered a little bit, Coach Gale Catlett should have West Virginia near the top when all the smoke clears.

A pair of senior forwards, Ricky Robinson and Pervires Greene, are as talented a duo as there is in the A-10. The bullish 6-foot-8, 230 pound Robinson (15.8 ppg, 7.7 rpg) is tough to stop in the paint. Meanwhile the wiry 6-foot-8 Greene (15.1 ppg, 5.5 rpg) can jump to moon and hit the medium range jumper.

Joining Greene and Robinson up front as the Mountaineer center is 6-foot-10 Phil Wilson. The limited Wilson is on the court to set picks and take up some space.

In the backcourt 5-foot-8 senior Marsalis Basey (13.2 ppg, A-10 best 5.8 apg) is a poor man's Mugsey Bogues. Basey terrorizes opposing point guards on defense and has improved offensively so much that he had the A-10's single best scoring performance in game last year when he pumped in 36 points against against St. Joseph's.

At the shooting guard spot senior Mike Boyd (11.4 ppg) will be the starter. The slender (6-foot-1, 170 pounds) Boyd is a streak shooter who is very dangerous when he is on.

No.4 — The George Washington Colonials were a dark horse pick by many last year to win the Atlantic 10. They did not but now, one year and a trip to the Sweet Sixteen later, the Colonials remain an intriguing choice.

Last season freshman center Yinka Dare (12.2 ppg, A-10 best 10.3 rpg, A-10 best 2.8 bpg), a 7-foot-1, 265 pound specimen from Nigeria, took the Atlantic 10 by storm, winning the A-10's Freshman of the Year award and being named a member of the First Team All-Atlantic 10. Dare's presence in the middle was a big factor in GW's stalwart defense.

Undersized (6-foot-4) forward Vaughn Jones (5.4 ppg) and oversized (6-foot-6) guard Kwame Evans (5.6 ppg) are the two key sophomores not named Dare for Coach Mike Jarvis. Both are expected to fill some of the scoring void that has been created with the graduation of three starters.

Returning upperclassmen expected to lend some of their experience include the speedy 5-foot-11 senior point guard Alvin Pearsall (5.6 ppg), junior forward Nimbo Hammons (5.8 ppg, 45% 3-Ptr's) and Massachusetts native and GW's defensive stopper, 6-foot-2 junior guard Omo Moses (5.4 ppg).

A big key for GW will be whether or not someone helps Dare out on the boards. Big freshman (6-foot-9, 245 pound) Ferdinand Williams and sophomores Antoine Hart and Anthony Wise are the likely candidates.

No.5 — Temple is not the only team in Philadelphia with high expectations for the upcoming season. The St. Joseph's Hawks finished tied for second in the A-10 last season and four starters return for head coach John Griffin.

One player who was supposed to be the fifth returning starter for Griffin was Bernard Jones, but Jones (11.6 ppg) has suffered a season-ending injury during the off-season. The underrated Jones' defense and scoring knack will be missed on Hawk Hill. Junior forward Demetrius Poles is the main player Griffin is counting on to fill in for Jones.

Temple's Aaron McKie will lead the Owls to a first-place finish this season in the Atlantic 10

Seniors Bernard Blunt (18.0 ppg 5.7 rpg) and Rap Curry (12.4 ppg) are the cornerstones for St. Joe's three-guard attack. Blunt brings to the mix his Adrian Dantley-like game while Curry has a style reminiscent to Paul Pressey. Both are among the more talented players in the A-10.

The third guard in the Hawks' lineup is electrifying sophomore Mark Bass (9.8 ppg). The diminutive (5-foot-9) Bass is a streaky jump shooter who can also dunk with authority.

Up front for St. Joseph's is warhorse Carlin Warley (12.0 ppg, 9.0 rpg). Warley, a 6-foot-7, 240- pound senior, refuses to back down to anyone in the paint no matter who he's facing.

No.6 — A week ago at Atlantic 10 media day, Rhode Island Rams Coach Al Skinner said that even he was not sure what to expect from his team this year. After advancing to the second round of the NCAA Tournament last year, the Rams start of this season with a team hit hard by graduation, yet expierenced enough to be tough any day of the week.

Senior swingman, the 6-foot-6 Abdul Fox (15.1 ppg), led URI in scoring last season despite coming off the bench. Look for Fox to assume the leadership reigns for this Ram team.

Fox is just one of three senior Rams who could be classified as swingmen. 6-foot-7 Kyle Ivey-Jones (7.7 ppg) is a forward who plays a rough and tumble game. The smooth 6-foot-5 Andre Samuel (10.6 ppg) adds scoring punch for URI.

Another senior, Carlos Cofield (11.0 ppg), represents the only tried and true guard on the Ram roster. A big question for URI involves the point guard spot. The starting point man from last year, Carlos Easterling, graduated and his heir apparent, promising sophomore Jason Alexander, transferred out of Ram land.

No.7 — After spending a year in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference, the Duquesne Dukes return east to the Atlantic 10. The Dukes return with expectations for a solid season.

Derrick Alston (19.9 ppg, 9.3 rpg, 2.1 bpg), a 6-foot-11 senior center, is a crafty scorer on the inside and is Coach John Carroll's number one option on offense.

The rest of Duquesne's squad basically consists of talented athletes. Sophomore Kenya Hunter (10.4 ppg) is a slashing 6-foot-3 guard who likes to go to the basket.

Other experienced players who return for Duquesne include 6-foot-5 senior guard Effram Whitehead (9.6 ppg), 6-foot-6 senior forward Miles Powers (8.8 ppg) and 6-foot-4 sophomore guard Anthony Smith (8.8 ppg).

Freshman Tom Pipkins is a highly regarded prospect who will see serious time for the Dukes. The 6-foot-2 Pipkins is an explosive athlete.

One key for Duquesne will be whether or not someone steps up to help out Alston up front.

No.8 — Down in Piscataway, N.J. things are starting to get tough for Coach Bob Wenzel and his Rutgers Scarlet Knights. Last year, with only eight teams in the A-10, Rutgers finished seventh. This year, with nine teams aboard the conference, the Scarlet Knights should finish eighth.

Steve Worthy, Rutgers' go-to guy the last two seasons has graduated along with shooting guard Donnell Lumpkin, who would heave up three pointers even as he was munching on a hot dog at the concession stands. Their offensive output has got to be replaced if Rutgers is to stay close to the .500 level in conference play.

Two years ago, 6-foot-7 junior forward Jamal Phillips was named the Atlantic 10 Freshman of the Year. Last season Phillips (11.2 ppg, 6.4 rpg) slipped a little bit and he has got to step up this year.

One expected bright note for the Scarlet Knights will be the debut of Waliyy Dixon. The 6-foot-4 inch Dixon, a Proposition 48 casualty last season, is expected to use his explosive skills in a swingman type roll much like Worthy did before him.

Other newcomers to the Rutgers' line-up expected to contribute immediately include 6-foot-2 freshman guard Charles Jones and 6-foot-3 junior transfer from Connecticut, Rich Ashmeade.

As for experience, junior point guard Damon Santiago (8.7 ppg) and senior center Chuck Weiler (4.8 ppg, 4.3 rpg) are expected to help Phillips bring the newcomers along.

No.9 — The St. Bonaventure Bonnies played 15 games against Atlantic 10 teams last season. Their record? 0-15. With all five starters returning, things should improve for second year Coach Jim Baron, but not enough to rise out of the A-10 basement.

6-foot-8 senior forward Harry Moore (19.0 ppg, 8.2 rpg) is a legitimate scorer and potential NBA player. Helping Moore out in the frontcourt is senior forward Garland Mance (12.3 ppg, 5.0 rpg) and junior center Jeff Quackenbush.

In the backcourt, Baron depends upon a pair of juniors. 6-foot-5 point guard David Vanterpool (13.5 ppg, 5.9 rpg) runs the show while Nii Nelson-Richards (13.3 ppg) is one of the most dangerous men in the A-10 with three names.

Some excitement could come from a 5-foot-7 inch freshman sparkplug named Shandue McNeil. McNeil, already has one thing going for him. He attended the same high school as NBA point guards Kenny Smith and Kenny Anderson.

Collegian Sports
A-10 Pre-Season Honors

1st Team All A-10	2nd Team All A-10
G Aaron McKie, Temple	G Mike Williams, UMass
G Bernard Blunt, St. Joe's	G Marsalis Basey, WVU
C Yinka Dare, GW	G Rick Brunson, Temple
F Lou Roe, UMass	F Harry Moore, St. Bona
F Eddie Jones, Temple	F Ricky Robinson, WVU

Player of the Year: Aaron McKie, Temple

Freshman of the Year: Marcus Camby, UMass

The ascension continues

Despite losing three of their starting five, the Minutemen are poised for another successful year

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

In the midst of Midnight Madness last season at the University of Massachusetts, Men's Basketball Coach John Calipari told the 4,058 fans in the Curry Hicks Cage not to expect another 30-win season from the 1992-93 Minutemen. Well, last year's squad was only able to snag 24 victories.

Entering this season, Calipari hasn't mentioned anything about expecting 24 wins from this year's squad, but with the talent he has, nothing is impossible come March.

Throughout his tenure in Amherst, Calipari had always talked about just getting a bid to the NCAA Tournament. Now the coaching staff, the University and the fans expect the squad to reach the Big Dance. All everyone can talk about is how far the Minutemen can go when they get there.

This year, for the first time, Calipari mentioned the phrase "national championship," and he didn't even bat an eyelash. That is how good the talent Calipari has assembled on paper appears to be. But only a fool would think that this squad is even ready to talk about winning it all, especially a unit that lost three starters from last season's 24-7 squad [Harper Williams, Tony Barbee and Jerome Malloy].

The Minutemen return a trio of players who all were instrumental in the success in 1992-93. Junior co-captains Lou Roe and Derek Kellogg are the two returning starters for Calipari and will be looked to for leadership and experience.

Roe is the stud of the team and will be asked to pick up some of the scoring load that left with Williams, Barbee and Malloy. Over his two seasons as a Minuteman, the 6-foot-7 power forward has dominated the glass on both ends of the court, averaging 7.8 rebounds per game. Roe can also be counted on for consistency inside the paint, shooting at a 55 percent clip over his career.

In the past, Roe has been bottled up inside when the UMass outside shooting was lacking from game to game. He has, however, worked on his perimeter ball handling over the summer, and will surprise some of the slower post players with his quickness, according to Calipari.

There is no one on the Minutemen more consistent than Kellogg. According to Calipari, you know what you get every time his point guard takes the court: a strong defensive game, few turnovers on offense and an a lot of unselfishness. One of the criticisms of Kellogg has been that unwillingness to shoot.

But in the past, the Minutemen didn't need much scoring production from the point. Usually, they got it from the two-guard, the three and the center positions, so Kellogg, afraid or otherwise as his critics have cried, has never been given a chance to shoot the ball. Until now.

Junior Mike Williams is instant offense for Calipari and company; well, when he's on, that is. The 6-foot-2 spark plug can be a game breaker. Just ask George Washington and Rutgers, who were both beaten at the buzzer by a Williams' trey in their own friendly confines. As confident as Williams is, he tends to get out of control and into Calipari's doghouse. Consistency is a must for both the success of the team and Williams himself.

Dana Dingle and Donta Bright are two sophomores who will be asked to contribute immensely both offensively and defensively. These former roommates are challenging each other for a starting job, and the competition between the duo should only prove to be fruitful for the Minutemen.

Dingle has the upper-hand because of the season he already has under his belt, but Bright brings to the table a transition game which can only be matched by Williams. When the Minutemen run, Bright will excel. He is a pure slasher, while Dingle is more defense-oriented. A perfect mix of both players could see Bright in the wide-open attack and Dingle in the low post, banging the boards.

With the addition of three blue-chip freshmen, UMass is deep in talent but short on experience. Calipari will start 6-foot-11 Marcus Camby at center, and after an early learning period, the frosh should flourish in the UMass system, helping out Roe and Dingle in every facet on the baseline.

A diamond in the rough for the Minutemen will be Carmelo Travieso, a slick-shooter out of Thayer Academy in Braintree. Travieso will fill in for Malloy as the deep-threat from three-point range. He possesses more ball-handling skills than Malloy, and should fit right into Calipari's scheme of play.

Having Travieso on the wing should add another dimension to the offense; his quick, fluid jumper, rather than Malloy's slow trigger should provide a sharper half-court offense for the Minutemen.

Look for Edgar Padilla, the heir apparant to Kellogg as the floor general, to be brought along very slowly by Calipari. Throughout the season, however, Padilla will be asked to provide some relief for Kellogg when needed. Barring any injuries, Padilla will be the primary backup at the point.

Massachusetts may run into problems trying to find backups for Camby and Roe. 7-footer Jeff Meyer and 6-foot-9 Ted Cottrell stand in the wings, but are very much untested and unproven. If they fail, UMass could have a lot of trouble against teams with physical frontcourts like West Virginia.

The early tests for the Minutemen will only prepare Calipari and company for the awaited post-season. The young players, especially Camby, will use most of the season as a learning process, thus leaving the pressure on Roe and Williams to carry the team to victory.

When 1994 rolls around, however, the question won't be will they step up; it will be can they match the poise of teams like Kentucky, whom they face on February 6.

The talent is there for Massachusetts, and how Calipari molds it into his brand of basketball will be the difference come tourney time.

Last season's record: 24-7
Two-time defending Atlantic 10 Conference regular season and post-season champions
Final Associated Press ranking: 14th

Pre-season rankings for the 1993-94 University of Massachusetts Minutemen:
Associated Press: 22nd
NCAA Coaches Poll: 20th

The 1993-94 Minuteman Roster

Player	Pos.	Ht.	Wt.	Cl.	PPG	Reb/Ast.*	Hometown
Craig Berry	G	6-1	185	Sr.	2.0	0.4	Cambridge, MA
Donta Bright	F	6-6	190	So.	-	-	Baltimore, MA
Marcus Camby	C	6-11	210	Fr.	-	-	Hartford, CT
Ted Cottrell	F	6-9	210	So.	1.1	1.5	Annapolis, MD
Dana Dingle	F	6-6	200	So.	4.9	3.7	Bronx, NY
Derek Kellogg	G	6-3	185	So.	5.0	5.2*	Springfield, MA
Jeff Meyer	C	7-2	225	Jr.	1.8	1.5	Wausau, WI
Rigoberto Nunez	F	6-7	182	So.	0.6	0.7	Lawrence, MA
Edgar Padilla	G	6-2	160	Fr.	-	-	San Juan, Puerto Rico
Lou Roe	F	6-7	210	Jr.	13.8	9.2	Atlantic City, NJ
Tyrone Weeks	F	6-6	240	Fr.	-	-	Philadelphia, PA
Mike Williams	G	6-2	175	Jr.	11.6	1.5	Hartford, CT

Leaders of the Co-captain Lou Roe is the main force inside the paint for the 1993-94 Minutemen. The junior will be counted on to continue his dominance on the boards, both offensively and defensively.

MATT FAHN / COLLEGIAN SPORTS

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Basketball may not be the first thing that comes to mind when thinking of Atlantic City, N.J., but the Massachusetts basketball program turned to the South Jersey shore amidst an abundance of casinos and boardwalks to sign 6-foot-7 forward Lou Roe, who some thought took a gamble in coming to Amherst, two years ago.

Many questioned Roe's decision because he brushed aside perennial Top 25 teams like Syracuse. Now, though, the junior co-captain of the Minutemen is one of the key factors keeping UMass, not the Orangemen, in the national spotlight.

Roe said he has no regrets about his choice to sign on with Coach John Calipari and the Minutemen.

"The question two years ago was 'are we going to be on television at least once?' Now we're going to be on TV at least seven or eight times this year, not counting post-season play," said Roe. "I feel great about my decision. We're doing better than Syracuse right now."

After last season's co-captains Tony Barbee and Harper Williams left due to graduation along with then senior leader Kennard Robinson, Calipari looked to Roe and junior point guard Derek Kellogg to fill the leadership void. For Roe, the role bequeathed upon him by his coach is well-accepted.

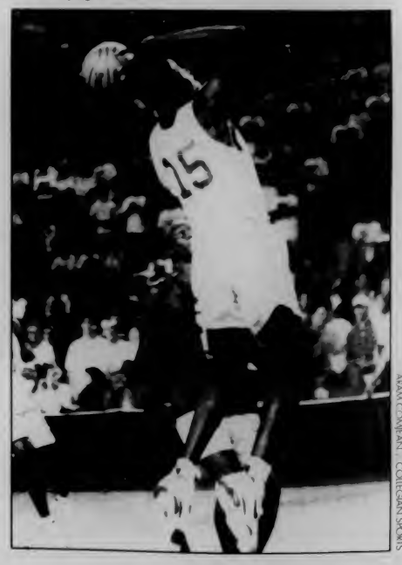
"Right now I really do feel like a leader. My job is to help bring the younger guys along. They're doing pretty well right now," Roe said. "We're just waiting for the games to start. We have some new guys on this team, like Marcus [Camby], Edgar [Padilla] and Carmelo [Travieso], that we're trying to teach how to play our style of basketball."

That style of Calipari basketball is marked by pressure defense and players that are able to run the court well, according to Roe, and he says that this season, the team will benefit even more.

"We play fast but under control, trying to push the ball as fast as we can and take what the opponent gives us," said Roe. "The younger guys started out slow, but now they're starting to understand. [The team's] leaders, like Mike [Williams], Derek [Kellogg] and myself — we have shown them the way."

Roe said that over his career here at UMass, game-time attitude had sometimes been a problem. He said that at some times, he would feel like he can turn it on when he wanted to, yet other times he would disappear and lose confidence.

"When last season ended, I wasn't comfortable with my play. I didn't feel like I accomplished anything at all that was close to my potential," said Roe. "There were games I went into that I felt I could dominate, others I just went into a mental lapse and said I couldn't do it."



However, Roe said he focused this entire summer on his game and making up for lost time. His self-esteem is higher than ever, he is in the best condition of his life, his confidence in his team is abundant — Roe said he will realize his potential.

"I am a dominating force. This is the first year I have come back really excited, ready to get it going," said Roe.

Calipari said that Roe has what it takes to be special; he just has to want it.

"Lou Roe, the light went off in his head this summer — 'I got a chance at being special'. It is nothing I can do [as a coach]. Either you want to be special or you don't," said Calipari. "Lou will be good for us. He'll be first team all-conference and we'll win our 20 games. If Lou wants to be special, that's on him."

And if Roe's new attitude is any indication of how he intends to play this season, you can bet on him being special.

ADAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN SPORTS

15
LOU ROE
Junior Forward
6-foot-7, 210 lbs.
1992-93 averages:
13.8 ppg
9.2 rpg

New School

The Massachusetts' definition of steady? Derek Kellogg. Both on and off the court, the junior co captain provides leadership by example, something that his team can always count on.

By Jeff Crofts
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

There are many different ways you could start off a story about Derek Kellogg.

Number one — In 1992 freshman Derek Kellogg played a total of 43 minutes as a third string point guard for the University of Massachusetts basketball team. In 1993, as a sophomore, Kellogg started at the point guard spot and played 901 minutes the third highest number on the team. The reason for the switch? Consistency and hard work.

Number two — After graduating from Springfield's Cathedral High School, Derek Kellogg received a scholarship to play basketball at the nearby University of Massachusetts. Now, after two years as a Minutemen, Kellogg truly exemplifies the story of the local boy makes good.

Number three — There are leaders who earn their respect from what they say and how they say it. Then there are leaders who earn their respect from what they do and how they it. Consider Derek Kellogg a member of the latter. Quiet, but oh so effective.

Number four — Entering last season, University of Massachusetts sophomore Derek Kellogg figured he would be providing backup minutes at the point guard spot to fellow sophomore Mike Williams. Williams, after all, had been Anton Brown's primary backup the season before and his explosive skills seemingly gave him an edge over Kellogg.

However, Kellogg's steadiness and consistency gave him the starting birth over the up-and-down Williams. And like Brown before him, Kellogg helped guide UMass' ship to the big ocean, the NCAA Tournament.

Number five and the real beginning of this story:

University of Massachusetts head basketball coach John Calipari knows exactly what he wants to get out of his point guard. Nothing fancy, nothing extravagant. Just someone who will do the job and do the job right.

Someone like Derek Kellogg.

Kellogg, a junior guard from nearby Cathedral High School in Springfield, started all 31 games last season for UMass and in each contest he did what he had to do. Nothing more. It was that simple. It was exactly what Calipari wanted.

"For me being steady, being consistent is more important than a burst of games," Calipari said. "And Derek is steady. He gives us something every time out and you know what you're getting. It might not be as high as some of the other guards in our league but it's on an even keel."

During his freshman campaign Kellogg played a limited role for UMass, so he was surprised that he started as a sophomore.

"To be honest, I didn't think I was going to be playing that much last year," said Kellogg. "I thought I was going to be more of a back up."

As last year wore on, Kellogg seemed to grow more and more comfortable with his role at the point. He averaged 5.0 points per game and his 5.2 assists per contest were good enough for third in the Atlantic 10. Kellogg was also member of the conference's All-Academic Team.

The 69-61 victory over Temple in the Atlantic 10 Championship Game had a typical Kellogg performance in it. Six points, eight assists, two steals and only one turnover in 38 minutes. For the season Kellogg's 2.94-to-1 assist-turnover ratio was an impressive stat, and one that kept widening as the season moved along.

UMass assistant coach and former St. Joseph's point guard James "Bruiser" Flint said he was more than pleased with the way Kellogg performed.

"You always knew what you were getting out of Derek," said Flint. "Consistency is the big thing, we (the coaching staff) knew what we were getting day in and day out from Derek."

One frequent criticism that Kellogg heard throughout last year was his reluctance to shoot the ball. But on a team with five double-digit scorers, it was not Kellogg's role to shoot. Both Calipari and Flint said the criticism of Kellogg was unfounded.

"People kept saying last year 'Why doesn't Derek shoot the ball?', (but) who do I take those shots from? Why don't we take them from Harper (Williams)? Or why don't we take them from Tony (Barbee)? Or Lou (Roe)? Or Jerome (Malloy)? Who do we take them from? Mike (Williams)? But then they say 'No we want those guys all shooting.' Okay then obviously we got to shoot a lot more shots a game than which we're shooting, which we're not. You know we are not going change our style."

"Our (UMass) point guard is asked to run the team, you (the point guard) don't have to score 25 points," said Flint.

Now as a junior and co-captain with Lou Roe, Kellogg knows that he must step up on the hardwood and handle some of the burden that comes with the loss of three double-digit scorers.

"Offensively I know I can do a lo more than I did last year and I'm going to have to go out there and show that,' said Kellogg. "I think I can take people off the dribble a little bit better than did last year and I know I can shoot a lo better than I did last year."

In addition to stepping up on the court, Kellogg must assume, along with Roe, the leadership reigns for this young UMass squad.

"We need leadership out there and I think I'm a pretty good leader," Kellogg said. "Especially this year with all the young guys coming in, myself and all the other upperclassmen are going to have to lead them. And playing at the point I think that (leadership) is the most important job as a point guard."

According to Calipari, Kellogg's work ethic and dependability are two qualities that make the point guard a team leader.

"The thing about Derek as a leader is that everybody knows how hard he works, everybody knows how unselfish he is and everybody knows he's in this for all of us, not just himself so he's easy to follow," said Calipari.

So while a story about Derek Kellogg may begin in many different ways, it should end the same way he plays. With no surprises.

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN SPORTS

14
DEREK KELLOGG
Junior Guard
6-foot-3, 185 lbs.
1992-93 averages:
5.0 ppg
5.2 apg
2.8 rpg

Calipari-style basketball

While the players might change, Massachusetts basketball stays the same

By Jeff Crofts
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

The system.

Five years ago, University of Massachusetts men's basketball coach John Calipari came to Amherst with specific goals in mind. Five years later, he has accomplished most of those goals and then some. But most importantly Calipari has done it his way, using his system of basketball.

With a boundless source of energy and wealth of basketball knowledge, Calipari has turned a once-floundering UMass program into a national power, a program which is respected throughout the country.

Like nearly every successful program, Calipari and the Minutemen have built their own style of play, a style which is commonly referred to as 'UMass basketball'. Simple, maybe even obvious, but definitely fitting.

Every season when basketball practice begins, the freshman players have got to be ready to adjust to the UMass system of basketball. Even though Calipari and his assistants seemingly bring in more talented players year after year, the system does not change for the new players. Instead the new players change for the system.

John Calipari doing what he does best — teaching basketball

"I coach a certain way, they (the players) have to adjust to me, now that might not be fair," Calipari said. "And that's why (when) somebody says 'Would you like to coach in the NBA?', I say I coach a certain way, I don't know if I go and be comfortable and be successful coaching another way. This is how I coach."

When opposing teams prepare to play UMass, they prepare for war. And that is exactly what occurs when the Minutemen take the court. The John Calipari system of basketball makes sure of that.

Cut throat, in your face, man-to-man defense has been a staple of UMass basketball during the five year Calipari era. Early on in the Calipari years teams might have had more talent then the Minutemen, but one thing other teams did not possess more of was unrelenting effort. Calipari said his coaching style has long reflected that effort.

"I was crazy my first two years, we were going to win games," Calipari said. "You (the players) were going to play your heart out. I think I've changed that (his craziness) a little bit, I've got a little more patience, not much more though."

Now as the level of talent on the court has evened off, the grittiness has remained at UMass. Opposing teams know that there will be no easy games when they take on the Minutemen. The system is built to keep the effort level high. Calipari said that talent alone does not win games.

"They (a team) have to play like it is on a mission," Calipari said. "They (a team) have to play with passion and play with emotion, which means when they face a team that is just as good and is just as much on a mission, they play with more passion and more emotion and they get that edge."

When Calipari rants and raves at courtside and in practice, he does so because it is his style and it is what makes he and his teams so successful. When Calipari's enthusiasm and passion wavered a little bit last season, the Minutemen slumped, as the team's intensity also suffered.

"Last year's thing I think affected me when Tony Barbee stood up in a team meeting and said 'You've changed; you're not as fiery, you're don't have as much passion coaching us, and it's showing how we're playing, we think we're just supposed to win,' and he was right so I coached the way I am," Calipari said.

No one player wearing the UMass maroon and white gets special treatment from Calipari. From Lou Roe to Craig Berry, they all receive praise, instruction and reprimanding when warranted.

"I think I treat them (the players) fair, they know I care about them, everyone of them from the last guy to the top guy, they know that," Calipari said. "But they also know I'm not treating them any different (from each other)."

In order to play 'UMass basketball' players have to be prepared to do a number of things. The ability to play tough, scrapping man to man defense is a top priority on that checklist. Offensively, UMass features an opportunistic running game and a balanced attack in the halfcourt game which focuses on the team's strengths.

The ability to play with sustained intensity is a must if one expects to play a lot for UMass. Junior shooting guard Mike Williams has learned some valuable lessons in the past when it comes to that issue and illustrates just how important Calipari and his staff think intensity is. Williams, one of the most talented players on the team, saw his playing time see-saw last season, depending upon how focused and ready he was to play.

In a game at St. Joseph's last season Williams lacked fire and intensity so he only saw 11 minutes worth of action during which he was scoreless. The very next game was at George Washington and Williams was ready to play. The result? In 28 minutes of action Williams scored 10 points including a memorable game-winning three pointer that capped off a ferocious Minuteman rally.

So while the UMass basketball program has changed in the eyes of many during the five years John Calipari has been the head coach, there is one aspect of Calipari and his team that has not changed.

The system.

Secret to UMass' marketing success

By Catherine B. Pulley
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Does the marketing of the Massachusetts basketball program affect or help the team's performance and does the team's performance affect its marketing?

According to Mark Wilson, the Director of Marketing for the UMass Athletic Department, it does.

"Image and perception is everything. You can't be afraid to have success," said Wilson.

Five years ago, John Calipari became the head coach of a Massachusetts program — he became the loud voice for the program and immediately changed the image and perception of the program.

He focused upon making a name for the program to a local, regional and someday a national level.

He called radio stations, local cable television and his hard work has paid off with ESPN and ABC gracing the William D. Mullins Center for national broadcasts for the 1993-94 season.

Calipari changed the logo which is now trademarked and can be found in stores nationwide with all profits going to the UMass athletic fund. Next came the uniforms and even the players.

"Picking fast and aggressive players that students can relate to was the beginning," said Calipari. "A positive academic image is also stressed. We have good guys on our team. We want the students to know that they are also here to get an education."

Calipari wanted to unify campus pride. This change came with banners, rallies and even programs in the Curry Hicks Cage.

"It is great to hear students say things like 'we won' or 'we lost'. The students have made a difference and are just as passionate as our players."

What about ABC, Midnight Madness and ESPN? National television was an important step for the UMass Basketball Program in instilling its name across the nation and for marketing purposes puts the program on a larger scale.

"When a fan, alumnus or possible recruit across the nation turns on the television and sees UMass playing Florida State or Kentucky, they see ABC or ESPN. But most importantly they see the Mullins Center. They see amazing fans, excellent equipment, and a state of the art facility," said Calipari.

When the Mullins Center was first being built, Calipari wanted to stay with the "Cage-like atmosphere."

"We all hold a special place in our hearts for the Cage, but it was time to move the program ahead," said Calipari.

Calipari ensured that students had a feel for the game and seated students around the court for support purposes during the game. The idea was successful with twelve wins at home last season.

Calipari uses his marketing skills with his contracts with Nike, Spalding and local businesses in the area. This brings the program to the community and a regional level.

In agreement with Nike, Calipari does speaking engagements but in return with his contract, the team and cheerleading squads get footwear and athletic clothing.

Then there is Calipari himself. The hype of the personable coach who is well-liked and accessible to students. A coach that has brought the program a Top 20 squad that is aiming for the Final Four.

"I don't want that attention. That is not what this program is about. This program is about Lou Roe, Derek Kellogg, all the players, coaches, students and fans. They are what make this program a success."

When you add up the Minuteman Band, passionate fans who paint their bodies for the love of UMass, sleeping in the cold to get tickets, and 31 consecutive sold-out home games what do you get?

You get a successful program.

"I'll say it again," said Calipari. "We have the best fans in America."

LSAT GRE GMAT MCAT SAT
KAPLAN RULES
Expert Teachers
Permanent Centers
Total Training
CALL NOW:
1-800-KAP-TEST
150 Fearing Street (UMASS)
Amherst
KAPLAN RULES

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413)665-3958
office hours M-F 9-5 Sat. 10-2
- 2 Bedroom Apartments Available Now
- Rents from $560 includes all utilities
- Flexible lease terms
- W/W carpeting
- On site laundry facilities
- On Bus Route (free fare)
- 28 acres of wooded hiking trails
- Pool and Tennis Courts
Only minutes to UMASS, shopping, and Rt. 91

Shooting to be the best

Stepping into a starting role, guard Mike Williams thinks it is his turn to shine for the Minutemen

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Massachusetts guard Mike Williams is on a personal mission for the 1993-94 basketball season: he wants to be considered one of the best in the nation. In order to get that attention, though, his team must remain competitive in the national spotlight, forcing Williams to play within the team and not himself.

"Coach [Calipari] always says there is not going to be one player on our team that averages 30 points. We'll have balanced scoring on the team," Williams said. "I'll probably be one of the go-to guys if we need a basket or a score, but it will be a team offense."

Last season Williams was the sixth-man for the 24-7 Minutemen and provided plenty of scoring punch off the bench, averaging 11.6 points and 2.7 rebounds in 25 games. This season, the 6-foot-2 junior will step into the starting role vacated by the transfer of Jerome Malloy, last year's fourth leading scorer (12.0 ppg, 3.1 rpg).

UMass' early exit from the 1992-93 NCAA Tournament, a second round loss to the University of Virginia, left a bad taste in Williams' mouth, but he said the bright spot was that the team never gave up and fought until the end.

"[The loss] was a big disappointment. I didn't like how the season ended. I think we could've beaten Virginia," said Williams. "We came back though; I have to give our team credit for not quitting. We had a chance to win that game."

When Williams is on, he can be a game-breaker, as was seen on two memorable occasions in 1992-93 in which he beat first Rutgers then George Washington, both contests on the road, with a buzzer-beating trey. But as explosive as he can be, there are times that Williams gets lost in the proverbial shuffle because of his sporadic play.

His inconsistency was one reason Williams did not find himself as a starter last year. However, the UMass coaching staff is optimistic that Williams will settle down and play under control.

"The only thing we need Mike to do is to be more consistent. We need him to be there day-in and day-out; he can't be up-and-down on a roller coaster," said Assistant Coach James "Bruiser" Flint. "A lot of it with Mike is mental; he has to be mentally prepared to play every game. He has to be at practice and show by example."

Williams will have a chance this year to play against some of the top guards in the country, like Aaron McKie of Temple, Travis Ford of Kentucky and Bernard Blunt of St. Joseph's. He said he feels that he is ready for the competition.

"I think I have fared well against all the top guards. I've played Sam Cassell [former Florida State guard], I've played Bobby Sura [Florida State]," said Williams. "Nobody I've played against that I have guarded has outshined me; the only player that had a real good night was Van Exel [Nick, former Cincinnati guard and current NBA guard for the Los Angeles Lakers].

Van Exel was unconscious in the game between the Bearcats and the Minutemen in which Cincinnati won, 64-53, behind his 31 points. Neither he nor any other UMass guard could stop Van Exel that night and Williams said he has not forgotten that night.

"You learn that when you see a couple of threes drop in your face the shooter will never have another night like that," said Williams. "He could have just thrown anything up and it would have went in. It was just one of those career nights and you don't forget about them."

The Minutemen now have an experienced backcourt as compared to last year. Junior point guard and co-captain Derek Kellogg teamed with Williams and Malloy to form a triumvirate of sophomores last season. One of the fears of the coaching staff was their inexperience. Now, though, the tandem of Kellogg and Williams is seasoned after playing some of the top competition in the land.

Williams said he and Kellogg will surprise some people.

"It was great experience for me and Derek. We played in some big games together, played against ACC teams, Big Eight teams and we held our own against them," said Williams. "We leaned on each other to help get through games. Now we have a little bit more confidence this year, and I think that's going to carry the team."

Mike Williams hopes to emerge as one of the nation's best guards

Williams' success last season made him a fan-favorite for the Minutemen, and he said he doesn't mind it one bit.

"I'm here to put on a show for the crowd. I want to give them their money's worth," Williams said. "As long as I do it in a positive way, the coaches don't have a problem with that. As long as I'm playing hard defensively, playing to win."

If Williams can continue to play hard, according to Flint, that is all the team can ask of him. And Williams doesn't want to disappoint his coach.

"You've just got to play all out, play to win," said Williams. "Play within your team."

Thursdays in November are Student days.
All Haircuts $10.00*
Regency Hairstylists
189 No. Pleasant St.
Amherst, MA • 253-9526
*long hair $2 extra

Spring Break
DAYTONA BEACH $109 $209
SOUTH PADRE ISLAND $219 $397
PANAMA CITY BEACH $139 $239
FOR FURTHER INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
CALL JON OR MATT
549-3749

R&P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive
253-7727
Next to Price Chopper
Mon. - Thurs.
2 for $10
1/2 hour hot tub
for 2 w/coupon

PIZZA SLICES
SLICE OF PIZZA
BELL'S Pizza
69¢
8-11pm
Every Day
549-1311
65 University Drive

DELANO'S
57 North Pleasant Street
253-5141 Proper Identification A Must
Every Thursday Night
Aaron's Beard
Now Featuring Sunday Nights
Aaron's Acoustic Beard and Acappella
Tuesday
is Taco Night - FREE Taco Bar after 9:00
Wednesday
is Wing Night - FREE Buffalo Wings after 9:00
Kamikaze Shots $1.75 everyday, everynight
Millers Best 60oz. Pitchers only $3.75

Big Man On Campus

There's a new sheriff in town. His name? Marcus Camby. His game? Everything.

There's a lot right Minuteman fans hope to see a lot of — a Marcus Camby jam

By Jeff Crofts
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

When Marcus Camby announced before his senior season at Hartford Public High School that he would be attending the University of Massachusetts to play basketball for the Minutemen, not many outside the area took notice.

Who could blame them? After all, Camby, now a lanky 6-foot-11 center, obviously had potential but had yet to play a game for Hartford Public and had yet to prove himself as a top-notch basketball player.

Now just one year later, things have changed. My, how they've changed. Camby's performances on the court over the past year have opened up eyes across the nation, all staring at him and his astonishing talents.

First, Camby averaged 24 points, 11 rebounds, 8 blocks and 8 assists a game in 25 minutes a game for Hartford Public, which went undefeated. Camby's efforts during his senior campaign earned him accolades galore, including Gatorade's Regional Player of the Year for New England. And that was just the appetizer.

The main course consisted of a summer filled with Camby's delicious performances at various all-star contests. At the Capital Classic in Landover, Md. Camby scored 19 points, snagged 19 rebounds and blocked 6 shots in just 22 minutes of action.

Following that performance, Camby took the U.S. Olympic Festival in San Antonio, Texas, by storm. The Olympic Festival featured some of the finest high school and college talent around the nation.

Camby, who played for the East squad along with new teammate Donta Bright, averaged 14.7 points, 10.0 rebounds and a Festival high 6.7 blocks in the three games he played. For his efforts, Camby was named to the All-Festival Team. Camby said it was also the capper of an eye-opening season.

"Not many people knew about me until this summer, (with) what I did at San Antonio and at the Cap Classic," said Camby.

The college basketball world finally took notice. Nearly every preseason college hoops magazine out there has Camby rated near the top of the newcomers list. Pretty good stuff for someone who many knew nothing about just one season prior.

Luckily for UMass, Coach John Calipari and his staff knew about Camby early. They recruited him during his junior season even though Camby was sitting out the season while his transfer to Hartford Public High School went through.

The early notice by UMass was huge for the school, because eventually other schools in the area like Providence, Boston College and Connecticut caught on to Camby's talents. James Madison also found itself in the hunt for Camby.

It was too late, however; Camby spurned them all, including nearby Connecticut, for which he was given a hard time about, to sign with UMass, the first school that recruited him.

The recent strong performances of the Atlantic 10 Conference was one thing which Camby said attracted him to playing at UMass.

"There are a lot of good teams in the (A-10) conference, by far it was better than the Big East," Camby said. "I was looking to play Big East ball, but the A-10 just took it to another level."

Camby has now arrived on the Amherst campus and is set to embark on his freshman campaign with the Minutemen. The A-10 impressive collection of centers has now grown by one. Camby has been named to the A-10's preseason Freshman of Influence team, along with teammate Carmelo Travieso.

Camby said that two of his goals for the upcoming season are to be named to the A-10's All-Freshman Team and to lead the conference in blocked shots.

As for the high expectations, it seems as though Calipari and his staff are the only people around who realize that Marcus is just a freshman. Assistant coach James "Bruiser" Flint said that Camby should just worry about playing his game.

"We're looking forward to some big things from him (Marcus), but he's still a freshman," said Flint. "We can only expect so much from him (right now), we just hope he realizes that he has to play hard."

The main things which Camby brings to the mix for the Minutemen are his quickness, leaping ability and skills in the rebounding and shot-blocking areas. Calipari said that he hopes Camby will help UMass on the defensive end.

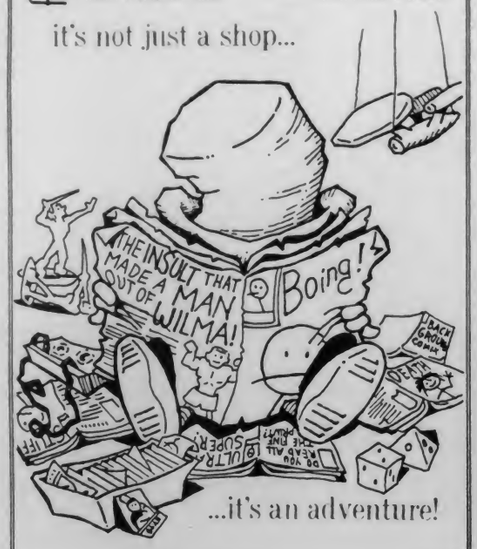
With the arrival of Marcus Camby, things are looking up for Massachusetts basketball

"I hope defensively he (Camby) will be able to guard the big guys that we have never been able to guard," said Calipari. "So we can play regular defense and not have to scramble, play traps and do things that we've had to do in the past."

As for offense, Calipari said he will not use Camby strictly in the post.

"People don't understand, he is a not a post player. He is a seven footer who just plays," Calipari said. "Will he play in the post? Yeah, if he can score on a guy, yeah."

Gaining weight and adding some strength are necessities for Camby, who currently weighs in at 215 pounds. George Washington's highly publicized center and future foe, Yinka Dare, on the other hand, stands in at 7-foot-1, 265 pounds. Until he adds the weight and strength, Camby said he would try to vary his game against his bigger opponents.



"I'm going to try bang (inside) a little bit," said Camby. "But I'm probably going to be out on the floor (a lot), I think I'm a little quicker than them (other centers), I can probably beat them off the dribble."

As for Dare, the current king of A-10 centers, Camby said he is looking forward to the match-up.

"I just can't wait to play against him (Dare), I've heard so much about him," Camby said. "I've seen him, but I just want to see what he's got."

Funny, a lot of people are saying the same thing about Marcus Camby.

SHOWCASE
COMICS • GAMES • CARDS
AMHERST
Phone 253-2009
48 North Pleasant Street
Downtown
under D'Angelos Subs
HADLEY
Phone 586-8711
Hampshire Mall
Route 9
next to movie theatre
it's not just a shop...
...it's an adventure!

SPALDING FACTORY OUTLET
521 MEADOW STREET, CHICOPEE
Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. 9-12
539-2056
FACTORY OUTLET SAVINGS
WAREHOUSE DISCOUNTS
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
Take Exit 4 off I-391, turn left, then left at the lights
Every WEDNESDAY is SENIOR CITIZEN'S DAY
SAVE 10% on your total purchase
Except for previously marked down items
Ages 62 and over, qualify with proper ID
Early Shopper Specials
VOLLEYBALLS
50% OFF ALL MODELS
SOCCERBALLS
Factory Outlet Price $8.00 to $10.00 each
BASKETBALLS
Factory Outlet Price $7.00 to $35.00 each
FOOTBALLS
50% OFF ALL MODELS

The Super Six

UMass to face the toughest non-conference opponents in Coach John Calipari's tenure

COMPILED BY JEFF CROFTS

OKLAHOMA SOONERS – BIG EIGHT CONFERENCE

Lloyd Noble Center —Norman, Oklahoma — November 28
Prime Network — 3 p.m.
Pre-season Ranking — 33rd in NCAA Coaches Poll
Head Coach — Billy Tubbs

Game Notes — Two years ago UMass jumped into the national spotlight with a nationally televised 86-73 shellacking of Oklahoma at the Springfield Civic Center. Last year revenge was sweet for the Sooners as they beat the Minutemen 93-83 at the Lloyd Noble Center. This third installment will once again take place on the Oklahoma campus. The Sooners do not return much experience but 6-foot-8 senior forward Jeff Webster (16.5 ppg) and the rabid OU fans will make it a tough contest for the Minutemen.

DEPAUL BLUE DEMONS – GREAT MIDWEST CONFERENCE

Rosemont Horizon — Chicago, Illinois — January 18
8 p.m.
Head Coach — Joey Meyer

Game Notes — At the Worcester Centrum last year, UMass had to rally down the stretch to defeat the Blue Demons 79-69. Junior forward Lou Roe scored 19 points, many of them late in the contest and pulled down 8 rebounds to help the Minutemen overcome a career day for Depaul's swingman Tom Kleinschmidt (32 points). Now a junior, Kleinschmidt (17.7 ppg) will get another crack, this time in Chi-town, against UMass. Fellow junior, shooting guard Brandon Cole (13.7 ppg), also returns along with a host of big bodies, thus creating a difficult trip for John Calipari and his team.

CINCINNATI BEARCATS – GREAT MIDWEST CONFERENCE

Myrl Shoemaker Center — Cincinnati, Ohio — January 27
ESPN — 7:30 p.m.
Pre-season Ranking — 9th in NCAA Coaches Poll
Head Coach — Bob Huggins

Game Notes — The Bearcats used a shooting exhibition from Nick Van Exel (27 points, 7-10 treys) to beat the Minutemen 64-53 in a game that featured hardly any offense, sans Van Exel. Calipari and Huggins are looked at by many as the two premiere young coaches in all of college basketball. This year Cincinnati's returnees include junior forward and Massachusetts native Curtis Bostic (8.9 ppg) and junior guard LaZelle Durden (5.8 ppg). A strong recruiting class by Huggins, which includes forward Dontonio Wingfield and guard Damon Flint, should have gelled by the time UMass visits.

FLORIDA STATE SEMINOLES – ATLANTIC COAST CONFERENCE

William D. Mullins Center — Amherst, MA — February 3
ESPN — 7:30 p.m.
Pre-season Ranking — 16th in NCAA Coaches Poll
Head Coach — Pat Kennedy

Game Notes — The Minutemen travelled down to Tallahasse, Fla. to open up the season and fell 67-64 in a tight contest. FSU's Bob Sura (14 points) waged a scoring war with UMass' Mike Williams (16 points), but it was the Seminoles' Doug Edwards who scored 12 of his team's final 15 points including two huge free throws with eight seconds left. FSU coach Pat Kennedy said at the time, "It was a war. I thought the ACC was tough." Sura returns and senior point guard Charlie Ward will be playing basketball instead of football when the two teams clash this year.

KENTUCKY WILDCATS – SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE

Meadowlands Arena — East Rutherford, N.J. — February 6
ABC — 1:30 p.m.
Pre-season Ranking — 3rd in NCAA Coaches Poll
Head Coach — Rick Pitino

Game Notes — Kentucky 2, UMass 0. That is the current score of this series. Both contests took place two years ago. The first win was a 91-69 Wildcat blowout down at Kentucky. The much better second game took place in the 1992 NCAA Sweet Sixteens. Kentucky went up big early before the Minutemen stormed back to within two, 70-68 with 5:47 remaining, before referee Lenny Wirtz' infamous technical foul call against Calipari handed the momentum back to Kentucky, which went on to win 87-77. Now after a year of peace, these two teams are ready to rage war once again. Although Pitino's star, Jamal Mashburn, has graduated, the UMass alum has a host of experienced players returning including sharpshooting Travis Ford.

MANHATTAN JASPERS – METRO ATLANTIC CONFERENCE

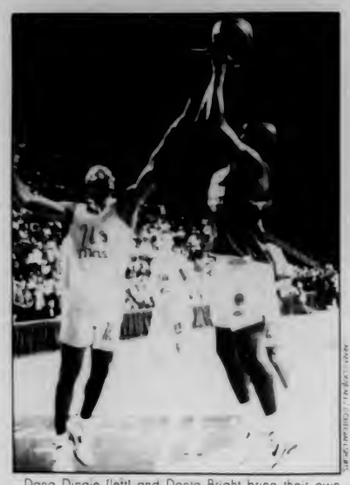
William D. Mullins Center — Amherst, MA. — February 18
ESPN — Midnight
Head Coach — Fran Frischilla

Game Notes — This game will mark the first meeting between the Jaspers and the Minutemen. It will also mark the first time Calipari will get to match wits with his friend Fran Frischilla. One thing these two teams have in common is that Virginia bounced them both from the NCAA's last year. The Jaspers lost star forward Keith Bullock, but the talented frontcourt duo of Carey Edwards and Jamal Edwards will make that much easier for Frishilla to accept and will also make a UMass that much harder for Calipari to orchestrate.

Battling for the three spot

Dingle striving for soph success

By Andrew Bryce
COLLEGIAN SPORTS



He played in all 31 games. He was the Minutemen's top reserve, before starting the last seven games. He was named to the Atlantic 10 All-Freshman team. Yet, that was not enough for Minuteman small forward Dana Dingle.

Just like any committed collegiate basketball player, Dingle looked forward to the 1993-1994 season as soon as last season ended. Playing in every game was pleasing to Dingle, as becoming a starter down the stretch and being honored for a fine freshman campaign was, too. Yet, Dingle was not satisfied. He decided to go a step further.

After undergoing routine surgery on both feet at the beginning of this past summer to prevent future injury, Dingle hit the weights. Sporting a wiry 6-foot-6, 190 pound frame, Dingle decided it was imperative for him to attain upper body strength and speed in order to earn playing time.

Last season, Dingle pulled down 116 rebounds, second among Minuteman returnees, and realized that, with some extra work, he could improve. The added muscle (Dingle bench presses 260 pounds, among the most on team) and developing quickness can only help the budding sophomore, who now weighs around 210.

"Around the end of July (after the surgery), I started to work out," said Dingle. "I did a lot of lifting, mainly to gain upper body strength for shooting. I put on some weight, and worked on things I thought I needed work on to help make me a better player this year."

Dana Dingle (left) and Donta Bright bring their own strengths to the court for Massachusetts basketball.

The coaching staff could not be more pleased in the work ethic of Dingle. Minuteman assistant coach James "Bruiser" Flint says that this training can only help Dingle's inside game.

"We were glad because even though he had the foot surgery, he didn't just sit around. He worked out and bulked up because he knows that sometimes, he'll have to play down low," said Flint.

Dingle had a solid first season, averaging 4.9 ppg and displayed a nose for the ball as he grabbed just under four rebounds a game. Dingle reached double figures in scoring on four separate occasions, including a career-high 14 points in a 93-78 win over St. Bonaventure.

This season, Dingle has been working extremely hard to keep his starting forward spot. This is not to say that Dingle strictly plays one position.

"I probably be playing a little bit of everything," said Dingle. "A little two (shooting guard), three (small forward) or four (power forward). I'll probably play three for much of this season.

"(Playing three different positions) just comes to me. I'm used to playing like this. In high school, I played forward. In A.A.U. ball, I played swing guard. I just haven't played it on this level. Last year, I matched up on defense mostly against guards, and I mostly played offense at three or four, so I'm used to mixing it up."

Dingle, a soft-spoken person, is one of the veterans on this year's team and is just a sophomore. Being a veteran also demands a leadership role, and despite not being the most vocal player, Dingle is confident of his leadership qualities.

"I try to lead by example," said Dingle. "I let my playing do the talking for me. I am going to show a little more intensity than last year, maybe try to be more vocal."

"Dana is the kind of guy when you look in a boxscore, there's nothing spectacular. But in the game, he's always diving for balls and tipping the balls back — the dirty work," said Flint.

"Well, when I went to the Olympic Festival, I wasn't good at all. I was working out, but I wasn't ready for the competition with some of the top players," Bright said. "That hurt me."

So fast forward to this season, with Bright gelling with the Minutemen, old and new. He will primarily see time at the small forward spot, battling fellow soph and former roommate Dana Dingle for the starting job.

Bright is a slasher; his shooting range is 15 feet and in, but primarily his scoring will come on fast breaks, put-backs and driving to the hoop. The forward is very comfortable around the basket and likes to create a lot of scoring opportunities with his quickness.

With the addition of quick players like Camby, Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Traveiso, the Minutemen will likely apply a lot of pressure on both sides of the ball and break more for easy scores, according to Bright.

Although Dingle has the upper-hand to win the slot because he already has one season of Massachusetts/Calipari basketball under his belt, Bright said that he is anxious to get on the court for UMass and do whatever he can to help the team.

"That's my game — running," said Bright. "With the type of team we got this year, an in-your-face defense... I'm going to try to help the team as much as I could, if that means diving for loose balls, jumping in the stands, whatever."

Even though Bright, the freshman, went without a season of Calipari's coaching philosophy, it seems as though Bright, the sophomore, knows what it takes to play for the Minutemen.

"I'm just now getting back to the old Donta Bright," he said.

Exactly the same player that Calipari wanted for his program two years ago when he recruited Bright in the first place.

Bright's long wait finally over

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

When freshman Donta Bright agreed to join the University of Massachusetts men's basketball program, he brought with him tremendous expectations of his on-court prowess. Now, after sitting a year and working on his off-court prowess, sophomore Donta Bright is ready to finally hit the court.

One question remains: what kind of expectations does he actually bring?

Bright, 6-foot-6 and 190 pounds, was one of the top five players nationally, according to Street & Smith magazine, when he was a senior at Baltimore Dunbar HS in Maryland, garnering McDonald's, Parade Magazine, USA TODAY and Basketball Times All-America honors.

He was expected to come to Amherst and contribute right off the bat last season, but failing to reach the NCAA required score of 700 on the SATs forced Bright to sit out his freshman year to work on academics.

That season is over, and Bright has worked on the weights as well as the books; he is poised to take the court for Coach John Calipari for the first time tonight against Cleveland State in the first round of the Pre-Season NIT. However, the road back to playing competitive basketball again has been a bumpy one for Bright.

Last summer, Bright competed in the 1993 Olympic Festival in San Antonio, Texas, with current teammate Marcus Camby and some of the top talent in the country. By his own admittance, the sophomore did not fare as well as he had hoped in San Antonio.

Don't Be A Turkey Plan Ahead For The Holiday Break

Earn 3 or more college credits during the holiday break

Don't miss this opportunity to earn 3 or more credits in only 4 weeks at Dean. Day and evening courses in English, Computer Science, Economics, Speech, Communications, Office Administration, Philosophy, Statistics, Taxation, Sociology, Law Enforcement and History will be offered.

Contact the Dean Office of Continuing Education for a schedule of day and evening courses beginning December 28 and concluding January 20. Registrations now being taken for all courses. Call (508) 528-9100 ext. 351 for details.

DEAN
The premier two-year college
Division of Continuing Education 99 Main Street Franklin, MA 02038-1994

Michael's Fine Foods
Groceries & Produce
Formerly Watroba's Market
(Next to Watroba's Liquors)
80 Sunderland Rd.
549-6642

Guarded optimism

Freshman guards Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso hope to provide depth in backcourt

By Matt Vautour
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

A year ago University of Massachusetts basketball coach John Calipari went out and recruited what could be one of the best freshman classes in the nation. Center Marcus Camby and shooting guard Carmelo Travieso have gained immediate attention, but not to be overlooked is hard working point guard Edgar Padilla.

Padilla learned his basketball in Puerto Rico, before coming to the United States in eighth grade.

He played his high school hoop at Springfield Central, which is legendary throughout Western Mass for its basketball prowess. He played there until his junior year, when he was named the Western Massachusetts Player of the Year.

He decided to return to San Juan for his senior year, a move that according to Padilla helped his game a lot.

"I decided to go there for a year to gain experience for college," said Padilla.

UCLA, Providence, Boston College, and UMass all recruited the 6-foot-2 Padilla, but UMass' proximity to his family in Springfield eventually influenced Padilla to come to UMass.

"It was near to my family, and I wanted to stay close," said Padilla "It's a good program. I like the team and I like the coach.

Edgar Padilla

Padilla is the point guard of the future but with the departure of Jerome Malloy, Mike Williams is expected to see a lot of playing time at the shooting guard spot, so Padilla could find himself seeing considerable playing time right off the bat as Derek Kellogg's main backup.

"So far I'm doing what coach [Calipari] wants me to do which is push the ball, penetrating.

"I'm kind of nervous because I'm a freshman and I want to be a part right away. The team and the coach expect me to do good and to step up."

With the addition a Padilla and Travieso, the Minutemen have an impressive looking future guard tandem.

"When our junior year comes, we're going to have a lot of experience," said Padilla.

The recent departure of his brother Giddell, who transfered in hopes of finding more playing time next year, has upset Padilla.

"I feel bad, because I wanted him to stay here and play, but he decided to move on and I respect that decision," Padilla said.

He considers Isiah Thomas, and Mark Price to be his idols, because of the position they play.

"I love the way they play, and the way the push the ball and the way they shoot," said Padilla. "but the best player was Michael Jordan, because that was the player that nobody could stop."

Assistant Coach James "Bruiser" Flint has been pleased with what he's seen so far.

"We just hope they [Padilla and Travieso] can come in and contribute when we need it," said Flint. "As they progress, they can get more and more time, and that gives us a strong back court, having four guys we can count on every night."

For now Padilla is working hard and preparing for the season opener against Cleveland State.

"I've been trying to fit into the way Coach Cal plays and so far I'm doing good," said Padilla.

By Anthony Guido
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Carmelo Travieso might be the best three-point shooter the University of Massachusetts has ever seen. He was the Massachusetts Player of the Year in high school last year, leading Thayer Academy to a 25-3 record and Class C New England Prep School Title.

One might think the 6-foot-3 freshman guard, who averaged 21.4 points and 4.0 steals per game last year, could come in a bit overconfident.

However, Travieso said he knows his role on this team will be coming off the bench, and he openly admits he's here to shoot the three.

"I should get some minutes, the toughest part will be to get open. If I can run the designed plays I'm supposed to, I can make the shots," said Travieso.

Travieso comes to Amherst with undeniable long-range shooting skills but he understands defense and team play are stressed by Coach John Calipari. Travieso has been working hard early on to develop into a well-rounded player.

Carmelo Travieso

"The adjustment to Coach Cal's system has been okay, it hasn't been a difficult system to learn. The tough part is making the correct switches on defense. I have to play hard on D all the time," Travieso said.

"We're excited, Carmelo is an excellent three-point shooter. We've got to make sure to get the ball out to him when he's open," said assistant coach James "Bruiser" Flint.

With the transfer of guard Jerome Malloy to Jacksonville, the Minutemen need a outside jump shooter. Travieso has shown that he isn't shy about taking the three, knowing pressure needs to be taken off the inside players.

Sophomore forward Dana Dingle said that there are differences between Travieso and Malloy.

"Carmelo's a better driver and going to the hole than Jerome, but Jerome is also a better set shooter than he [Travieso] is," said Dingle.

In the past Travieso has played on the famed Boston Amateur Basketball Club (BABC), a team made up of high school stars from the Boston area coached by Leo Papile. The team has travelled around the country, faring extremely well in various tournaments.

Travieso came to UMass to become part of the winning tradition with the Mullins Center and the national spotlight, two of the biggest attractions. The young guard has stressed being part of the team, regardless of expectations and his reputation.

Coaches and media around the Atlantic 10 Conference have rated Travieso highly. He was named to the A-10 pre-season Freshmen of Influence team along with teammate Marcus Camby.

"I'm real excited, waiting for the season to get started. I just want to come in and do whatever I can to help us win. I know why I was brought here, but I'm going to be unselfish and play team basketball," said Travieso.

Carmelo Travieso for three; remember those words.

BAM
LOUD MUFFLER?
SAVE ON MIDAS EXPERT CAR CARE
$10.00* OFF
ANY LIFETIME WARRANTY MUFFLER
*Off regular price. No double discounting. Discount does not apply to other needed parts and services. Coupon must be presented at time of purchase. Offer good through 12/4/93.
50% OFF
2ND SHOCK OR STRUT
*Off regular price for part only. No double discounting. Coupon must be presented at time of purchase. Offer good through 12/4/93.
FREE Shuttle Service to Campus
NORTHAMPTON
143 KING STREET
586-4840
MIDAS
HADLEY ROUTE 9
(near Hampshire Mall)
586-9991

Proposition 48 strikes Minutemen again as Weeks must wait a year

By Sean P. Hayden
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

University of Massachusetts freshman power forward Tyrone Weeks is following in the footsteps of sophomore swingman Donta Bright before him. And former Minuteman Kennard Robinson before him.

Unfortunately for the 6-foot-6, 240-pound Philadelphia native, these are dubious footsteps as Weeks is the third player brought into the Massachusetts program under Coach John Calipari who is ineligible to play his freshman year due to sanctions imposed by Proposition 48.

Prop 48 is a piece of legislation passed by the NCAA in which high school seniors who do not meet the requirement of 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test are not allowed to participate in varsity sports at the collegiate level for their freshman year. This is done in order to give them time to acclimate themselves to the academic environment of college.

Weeks, who averaged 25 points and 20 rebounds per game his senior year at Franklin Learning Center in Philadelphia, knows what lies ahead for him because he was able to get some insight from both Bright and Robinson.

"I talked to Donta and Kennard and they told me it's not all that pleasant," Weeks said. "They said they were upset and had trouble dealing with it at first, but if I stay strong, I should be alright."

For Weeks, the pangs of not being a part of the team hit as Midnight Madness was approaching due to all the hoopla surrounding the event that was televised live by ESPN.

"I was really upset with Midnight Madness approaching and the team getting ready for it," said Weeks. "I want to be a part of this team."

Prop 48 is a term that often comes with negative connotations and one that makes many college coaches cringe, but Weeks said he is trying to make this a positive experience like many Prop 48 players before him, including Rumeal Robinson (Michigan) and Glenn Robinson (Purdue), have done.

"This could be a positive thing for me," Weeks said. "At least that's the way I'm trying to look at it. This gives me a chance to work and focus on my studies, which are going well, and also work out and try to get in shape for next year."

Next year can't come soon enough for both Weeks and Minuteman fans who are anxiously looking forward to adding a player of Weeks' abilities to a front line that already includes Lou Roe, Marcus Camby, Bright and Dana Dingle.

"I told Ty that if he takes it one day at a time and stay focused on what he has to accomplish, the season will be over before he knows it," said Bright.

Sounds good.

The greatest fans

What do the people in the stands think about the Massachusetts basketball program?

By Dave Copeland
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

If you pay attention to any of the pre-season media hype given in magazines like Dick Vitale's Basketball, you'd find the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team picked 16th in the nation and second in the Atlantic 10.

And this seems to be the consensus across the board. Major magazines and newspapers do not feel that UMass will be able to win their third consecutive A-10 title, despite one of the schools best recruiting classes ever.

But here on campus, there is hope and optimism about the Minutemen's chances for success. The fans of UMass hoop have proven to be loyal, despite being critical at times.

Dave Olivieri, a junior accounting major, said, "I expect UMass to go to the NCAA tournament, but I'm not too sure if they'll win the A-10, mainly because Temple is returning five starters and George Washington has a future NBA lottery pick on their team."

Olivieri also said that the Minutemen's success will also depend on the play of Lou Roe. "This is his season to shine. He has a shot at winning the A-10 Player Of The Year."

Marie Deane, a sophomore communications major, was more optimistic in her outlook. "I think they'll suprise a lot of people. They have a lot of good players who will keep things exciting."

> "Coach Cal has done an awesome job recruiting, but now he has his work cut out for him. It will be a challenge for him to incorporate his younger players into his style of play."
>
> — UMass student Matt Tobin

Matt Tobin, a junior accounting major, spoke enthusiastically about the recruiting done by UMass coach John Calipari.

"Coach Cal has done an awesome job recruiting, but now he has his work cut out for him. It will be a challenge for him to incorporate his younger players into his style of play."

Other fans talked about the excitement of the games and the new atmosphere with the Mullins Center and the freshmen on the team.

"I was in Mullins for the first time at Midnight Madness," said Mike Rodriguez, a junior history major. "It's amazing how loud that many people can get."

Regardless of where the Minutemen end up in March, there will always be support from their loyal and knowledgable fans in Amherst.

This crazy fan who attended Midnight Madness is just one of many fanatics that believe in the UMass Minutemen

James H. McManus 256-6889
Hrs. Sun. - Thur. 6am - 3am
Fri. & Sat. 24 Hours
FREE! Breakfast or Lunch
Buy 1 Breakfast or Lunch at Regular Price and Receive the Second 1 of Equal or Lesser Value FREE. (Min. Purchase $3.55)
Buy 1 Dinner Get 2nd Dinner 1/2 Price
Buy 1 Dinner at Regular Price and Receive the Second 1 of Equal or Lesser Value at Half Price
RTE. 9 • CAMPUS PLAZA • HADLEY

For the Dancer...
Gymnast...
Fun Bodywear!! Great Shoes!! & Fitness Minded
Dance Stuff
We Have All Supplies for Dance Majors
220 N. Pleasnat Street (Rear), Amherst, MA
Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. - 10-5
Thurs. - 10-7
253-5201

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

We have a great selection of CHRISTMAS CARDS...
Stop in today!
A·J·Hastings, Inc.
-Newsdealer and Stationer-
"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst"
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5am to 9pm, Sundays, 5am to 5pm
253-2840

STUDY IN CUERNAVACA, MEXICO THIS JANUARY
UMass Boston offers a special winter session program in the beautiful city of Cuernavaca, Mexico, for students interested in learning Spanish or studying the political economy and culture of Mexico. The program emphasizes experimental learning; participants can earn up to six academic credits in economics, political science, or Spanish.
The registration deadline is November 19.
Call today for more information
617 287-7915
UMass Boston
Division of Continuing Education

Vying for playing time

Jeff Meyer makes strides through a hectic off-season towards finding his offensive game

By Michael R. DiLorenzo
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Despite a hectic off-season in which he got married and became an expectant father, Massachusetts junior center Jeff Meyer found time to bulk up and play in two summer leagues in an effort to acquire an offensive repertoire to compliment his omnipresence under the Minuteman basket.

Meyer, who has a career scoring average of 0.7 ppg (including 1.8 ppg last season), hit the weights and became more offensive-minded on the court.

"I got my bench press up to 260 and I played in two summer leagues," said the 7'2" Meyer. "I'm trying to be more offensive minded and get the feel back from high school when I could score 20 per game."

His offensive efforts are forcing teammates to take notice.

"He's not afraid to dunk on anyone," said forward Dana Dingle, noting Meyer has been playing his best basketball of late.

Meyer said the commitment to improving his game was a direct result of his marriage in August to JoAnn Wing of Pittsfield.

"I forgot the college social life and got down to business," said Meyer. "I've taken hoops and academics more seriously."

Meyer is quick to point out, however, that despite his new found interest in scoring, it will be his defense that earns him playing time. Meyer will be primarily expected to come off the bench as a physical presence that can rebound and alter shots.

"Jeff is more confident and intimidating," said Dingle.

"He doesn't back down from anyone and is not afraid to go for shot blocks."

Meyer, a Sultan of Swat in his two years at UMass, blocked eight shots in only 55 minutes last season. He seemed amused at the suggestion of a "Sultan's Corner," a spot in the Mullins Center where fans would record his blocked shots in a similar fashion to how Fenway faithful record Roger Clemens' strikeouts with a "K".

"Well, I like to bang bodies, so I look forward to blocking some shots this year, too," Meyer said.

Meyer may see increased minutes this season, especially against teams like George Washington, which boasts 7'1" behemoth Yinka Dare. Last season, Meyer was instrumental in holding Dare, Sports Illustrated's Freshman of the Year, to only six points and four rebounds during a 76-68 UMass win at Curry Hicks Cage last season.

"It felt good to contribute [against G.W.], but I feel it was UMass that stopped Yinka Dare, not just [Jeff Meyer] ...this year, I just want to contribute; if I only play one minute, I want to contribute something during that minute that will help us win the ballgame."

Jeff Meyer

Ted Cottrell playing a role that someday may place him in the mix

By Jorma Kansanen
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

In the collegiate and professional basketball game, the spotlight of the media and the fans usually falls on the star players. What sometimes gets lost in the shuffle are the contributions of key role players that either get the ball to the leader of the offense, or bang and slam around him to make room underneath the hoop.

With the addition of the highly recruited freshman Marcus Camby and the return of Lou Roe, UMass basketball looks good to keep up the success of the past few years. But in the shadow of these two potentially dominant forwards stands an essential part of the mix of the defending A-10 champions, Ted Cottrell.

A 6'9, 210 pound forward out of Annapolis, Maryland, Cottrell averaged only 1.1 points and 1.5 rebounds per game, but in limited playing time. He saw action in only 15 games last year, but there is the opportunity this year to assert his role more prominently. He has been busy on and off the court.

"My strengths are going to be rebounding and defending," Cottrell said. "Not so much on the scoring side, just being a body out there and grabbing some boards.

"I've worked on my body size and strength," he said about his off-season conditioning program. "Over the summer I worked hard, tried to eat right. Since last summer I've gained about twenty pounds."

There is a dream, and image, of every player in any sport to make it to the top of that profession. But reality strikes, and most realize that their contribution is more important than their individual outlook. It is a key factor in team sports, especially basketball.

"It doesn't matter if it's a scrimmage or a game," Cottrell said. "I just want to get into any game and help the team win. I'm looking to improve myself, but more importantly help the team in the same process."

It is a long season and anything might occur. An injury to a top player can bring a key role player into the spotlight. So keep an eye on Ted Cottrell, it just might happen.

Ted Cottrell

Walk-ons stick for another season

Craig Berry and Rigoberto Nunez special members of team

By Candice Flemming
COLLEGIAN STAFF

When you think about UMass basketball, you normally don't think of the names Berry or Nunez, but you should.

Craig Berry and Rigoberto Nunez are two important members of this year's team. Not only are they important but they are special. They both defied the odds by walking on to a Divison I basketball program.

To walk-on any college team is great, but to walk-on to an up-and-coming basketball powerhouse like UMass is outstanding. It takes a lot of hard work and determination, and a lot of confidence in yourself.

Berry started playing college basketball at Worcester State before deciding to transfer here to UMass two years ago.

"I was asked [to play] by Lou [Roe], a few other people on the team, and Tommy Pace, since he wasn't playing [because of a knee injury]," said Berry.

Berry had to sit out a year before trying out because of NCAA rules but when he tried out he wasn't a bit intimidated.

"I had been playing with them before so I fit in," said Berry.

Berry's role will be an important one since he will be backing up Derek Kellogg and Edgar Padilla at the point. He will be looked upon to get those two guys ready for games by playing them hard in practice.

Nunez was recruited by UTEP, Jacksonville and a bunch of Division II schools before deciding to try his luck as a walk-on here at UMass.

"I knew [Assistant] Coach [Bill] Bayno from before and he inspired me to walk-on," said Nunez.

Nunez is behind Donta Bright and Dana Dingle and he knows that his job is to get those guys ready for games while also improving his game as well.

"I've got a tough job, right now I'm a role player and my job is to keep them playing hard and get the best out of them," said Nunez. "And that way I get the best out of me also."

Both players know their roles and are confident that they can do the job when called upon.

And why not? They have already proved that they can walk-on and compete at the Division I level, now it is time for them to prove that they can star at this level.

With the confidence they have and the sense of accomplishment they got from walking-on that shouldn't be too hard.

JUNGLE RED HAIR & NAILS
Specials until December 31, 1993
Nails
Full Set $38.00 (Reg. $43.00)
Fill $15.00 (Reg. $20.00)
Manicures
Basic $10.00 (Reg. $12.00)
Hot Oil $10.00 (Reg. $12.00)
French $12.00 (Reg. $15.00)
Pedicares
$20.00 (Reg. $25.00)
JUNGLE RED SALON
549-1840
Lower Level, Carriage Shops
233 N. Pleasant / Amherst, MA 01002

haircuts always $10
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST 256 0733

PIER 9
DELI & BAKERY
Rt. 9 • Mt. Farms Mall 584-0446
$1 Off Second Fresh Fish & Chips $1 Off Second Giant Grinder Exp. 12/31/93
Small Coffee and buttered bagel for $1.00 all day 10% Discount with this ad Exp. 12/31/93

Red-hot rivalry rages

It's Temple, the team of the 80s, versus Massachusetts, the team of the 90s

By Michael Reiss
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

When Temple and UMass meet, it provides not only a unique matchup, but an intense, emotion-laden rivalry.

The storyline between the two teams stretches back to the start of the John Calipari era. Calipari, who entered the UMass scene in 1988, took over a team that had never beaten Temple.

"The tradition of it, which was we lost 21 times in a row before we beat them, started the rivalry," said Calipari. "We were the worst team in the league. They were the best team in the league."

It was 1988. UMass was the doormat of the Atlantic-10, while Temple was the supreme power. Little by little, the Minutemen, under the direction of their fiery new coach, began to ascend the ranks.

"As we started getting better, they were someone we were shooting at," said Calipari. "On this campus, everyone looked at Temple as excellence in basketball. That's who we chased."

They chased and they chased, coming so close to earning that historic win in 1990, but ending up on the short end of an epic triple overtime thriller. The games got closer, but the result was much of the same.

"We started catching up to them, and making those good games," Calipari said. "Then, it became 'The Game'."

There is an intense rivalry between the Temple Owls and the Massachusetts Minutemen

"It's a relatively new rivalry," said Temple assistant coach Dean Denopoulos. "Until a few years ago, it had been one-sided. As UMass improved, it has intensified."

Along with the matchups of Syracuse-Georgetown and North Carolina-Duke, the game is now considered one of the top three rivalries in the East. Both UMass-Temple contests will be on national television this year, one on ESPN, the other on ABC.

"I think it's the first time in A-10 history that a season series between any two teams in the conference is on national TV," said Calipari. "Now that says something right there."

In 1992, on February 16, history was made in the Curry Hicks Cage. On this Sunday afternoon, UMass defeated Temple 67-52. Fans emptied out of their seats when the final buzzer sounded, as the emotion of this historic feat bubbled out onto to the floor. UMass had turned the corner.

At the time, Derek Kellogg, Lou Roe and Mike Williams were freshmen, new to this rivalry.

"Before we got here, UMass never beat Temple," said Roe referring to the juniors on the squad this year. "Once we got here we decided we were going to have to break some rules. Once we beat them, we felt comfortable that we could beat them every year."

Since the compelling win, the Minutemen have defeated the Owls three more times, with one of those wins coming in the A-10 championship game last year.

What makes this rivalry so unique is the type of system each team operates in. Temple favors a slow pace and a half court set, while UMass likes to get out into the open and run the floor.

"It's two totally different styles," Calipari said. "One style of ball control, walk it up the court, score in the fifties, zone defense, versus an up-tempo team that plays real fast and plays all man-to-man.

"You're talking about two different styles of coaching. In Temple, they want no turnovers. We'll let up some turnovers as long as we're playing aggressive and attacking the basket."

It's old age versus new age.

"They're a rival in the league because they're supposed to be the best team in the league," said Kellogg. "They're the team of the 80s, while we're trying to become the team of the 90s and beyond."

UMass could have some trouble matching up against Temple this year with the likes of super talents Aaron McKie, Eddie Jones and Rick Brunson on the floor for the Owls.

"They're a little more physical and bigger at guard than we are," noted Kellogg. "I think we're going to have to beat them with quickness."

"They're experienced and well coached," said Calipari. "They know they're system well. They're big. They have two or three pros on that team."

The practices before these two meet, as well as the game, most definitely will be filled with a lot of pride and emotion.

"You try to keep the guys focused," said Calipari. "They get so excited because they want to play the game so bad.

"It's better now. Before, we had that monkey on our backs about not being able to beat them. Now that we've beaten them two out of the last three, it becomes the monkeys on their back. They have to beat us now."

Recruiting a key for programs in order to stay on top of the nation

By Michael Morrissey
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

When John Calipari arrived in Amherst six years ago, he was known as a master recruiter for his work at Kansas and Pittsburgh, and he made it one of his first priorities to improve the caliber of players at the University of Massachusetts.

With recruiting seen as a key function of a successful college basketball team, Calipari hired Bill Bayno and James "Bruiser" Flint as assistants in charge of bringing in blue-chip players, a difficult task in the early years when UMass was the doormat of the Atlantic 10.

"The early years were tough because we would walk into kids' homes and say UMass, and they'd think we were from Boston," Flint said. "Not only has the team and the athletic department improved, but the University itself is better now, and that makes it easier to recruit players."

Since UMass became nationally ranked, recruiting may have gotten a bit easier. Nobody laughs at the basketball program now, something that did happen when the team was losing by 50 points at road games.

Still, the pace goes on, because Flint said the program is trying to recruit now among the likes of the North Carolinas and Michigans of the sport. He said the team has a mailing list of over 300 recruits.

"We do a mailing twice a week to the high school players, along with personalized letters to some of the top players," said Flint. "We try to give positive messages about being a leader and staying in school, things like that."

With UMass attempting to muscle its way into the upper echelon of college programs, Flint and Bayno must begin recruiting kids as high school freshmen. Lou Roe, Mike Williams and Marcus Camby were just some of the players who were courted for four years.

NCAA regulations have cracked down on visits, phone calls and mailings, making recruiters' jobs more difficult. Flint said the emphasis now is on doing things in ways that were not thought about five years ago.

"It's a lot tougher now, because we used to call recruits all the time," said Flint. "Now you can only call them once a week, so we have to do everything through the mail."

As the blue-chippers begin to sort out their choices during their junior and senior years, the basketball staff is trying to determine which players will fit into the empty scholarship slots.

If the fit isn't perfect for both sides involved, chances are the recruit will not sign. Take the Chris Herren saga. Herren is an outstanding guard from Fall River who UMass was courting earlier in the year, but he will never play for the Minutemen. One reason is that Carmelo Travieso was brought in for the shooting guard position and he and Herren are friends.

"We don't like to overrecruit," said Flint. "You don't want to step on any toes and make your players unhappy. Right now we're trying to get a big jump on the [high school] juniors."

With only one scholarship opening up for next season, Calipari and company have locked in on the one player they really want: 6-foot-9 power forward Dan Fortson from Pittsburgh.

Fortson will commit this week, according to Flint, but has narrowed the choice to UMass, Cincinnati, Michigan and Duquesne. The fact that Pittsburgh is Calipari's stomping ground enabled the Minutemen to get close to one of the premier players in the country.

"It's all about who you know, and when you have people helping you out by introducing you and reminding the player how good our school is, it makes our job easier," Flint said.

"[Fortson] was up here for Midnight Madness, and we've had good success with kids who've come up on visit. They really have no idea how big UMass is and all the things this place has to offer before they come up here."

Unlike movies such as "The Program" in which players see their names on scoreboard lights and their jerseys and nameplates in the locker room, Flint said UMass has never done anything that extreme to land a player.

"That hype stuff isn't us at all," he said. "We tell the players what you see is what you get, there's nothing plastic about our program. We want to be real and paint a realistic picture for them."

They do not need to overwhelm recruits with bells and whistles. They just have to point to how far the team has come in a short period of time. The days of slammed doors and laughter have become the days of open arms and diaper dandies.

YOU'LL BE "THANKFUL" FOR ALL THE SAVINGS AT ...
LIQUORS 44
Don't Drink and Drive

BEER

BUDWEISER $12.49 + DEP REG., LIGHT, DRY CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS
LITE, GENUINE DRAFT, & GENUINE DRAFT LIGHT $12.49 + DEP CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
BECKS BEER $15.49 + DEP CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
SAM ADAMS 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP WINTER LAGER
KOCH'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY $7.29 + DEP REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS
BUSCH $9.99 + DEP BEER REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS
O'DOUL'S NON-ALCOHOLIC $6.49 + DEP 12 PK. CANS
CORONA EXTRA $8.49 + DEP REGULAR & LIGHT 12 PK. BOTTLES
BUD • BUD LIGHT • MICH. MICH LIGHT $39.99 + DEP 1/2 BARREL

WINE

R.H. PHILLIPS $4.99 750 ML CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON
GALLO LIVINGSTON CELLARS $6.49 3 LTR ALL FLAVORS
KENDALL JACKSON $8.49 750 ML VINTNERS CHARDONNAY
SEBASTIANI $5.49 + 1.5L PROPRIETOR'S WINES WHITE BLUSH, RED CHIANTI, FRENCH COLOMBARD, SAUVIGNON BLANC, WHITE GRENACHE, CARNEY, WHITE ZINFANDEL
BERINGER $3.99 750 ML WHITE ZINFANDEL
BALLATORE $3.99 750 ML GRAN SPUMANTE
MARTINI & ROSSI ASTI SPUMANTI SALE $8.49 MAIL IN REBATE $2.00 $6.49 750 ML AFTER REBATE
LOUIS JADOT $5.99 750 ML BEAUJOLAIS VILLAGES
BARTLES & JAYMES COOLERS SALE $2.49 $1.49 + DEP 4 PK. AFTER REBATE MAIL IN REBATE 1.00

LIQUORS

SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.49 1.75L
SEAGRAM'S 7 $7.99 1.75L SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 AFTER REBATE
DEWARS SCOTCH $25.99 1.75L
BACARDI RUM SILVER & GOLD $10.99 1.75L SALE 13.99 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE
SEAGRAM'S VO $10.99 1.75L SALE 15.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 AFTER REBATE
POPOV VODKA $7.99 1.75L SALE 9.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 AFTER REBATE
KAHLUA COFFEE LIQUOR $8.49 AFTER REBATE SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 750 ML
BAILEY'S IRISH CREAM $14.49 750 ML
JIM BEAM BOURBON $12.99 1.75L
BEEFEATER GIN $18.99 1.75L

not responsible for typographical errors
OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday
• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Gampus Plaza Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 11/18 TO THRU WEDS 12/1/93

The national scene

Massachusetts basketball has not only made an impact in New England, but across the nation

By Bill Balfour
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball program has taken the college basketball world by storm, gaining many accalades on its recent rise to success.

Over the last two seasons, the Minutemen have appeared in the NCAA Tournament twice, advancing to the Sweet Sixteen in 1991-1992 and the second round last season. UMass finished both seasons ranked in the Associated Press Top 25 : 17th in 1991-92 and 14th in 1992-93.

The Minutemen have also won back-to-back Atlantic-10 titles and in 1991 reached the Final Four of the NIT.

Men's basketball is the marquee draw here at the University, as evident by the 31 consecutive on-campus sellouts. And because of all the Minutemen have accomplished on the court, they have been rewarded with extensive coverage by the local media.

Now that New England knows about UMass basketball, how are the Minutemen viewed on the national scene?

"UMass is a rising program," Robert Kleine, editor of the College Basketball Guide, said. Kleine said the Minutemen are in a group of teams, like Cincinnati, who can compete with the perennial powers but overall are a step below.

"They're a second tier team," he said. "They're an up-and-coming program."

A look at this season's schedule finds the Minutemen with five nationally televised games on ESPN and two on ABC.

Curtis Pires, a publicist for ESPN, said the reasons for UMass' appearances are simple.

"We try to select teams that are considered to be post-season teams," he said. "UMass is in that group."

UMass has elevated its program into the group of teams that make frequent visits to the NCAA tournament. Over the last two seasons, the Minutemen have a combined record of 54-12.

Take a few other frequent post-season participants like North Carolina, Duke and Arizona, for instance, and you won't find much difference in records. The Tarheels are 57-14, the Blue Devils are 58-10 and the Wildcats are 48-11 over the same period of time.

"John Calipari has done a great job," Marty Blake, director of scouting for the NBA, said. "He's one of the better coaches in the country."

In a survey of 110 Division I coaches in the December issue of College Sports, John Calipari was named the "best up-and-coming" coach, beating out Bob Huggins of Cincinnati.

In his first five seasons as Massachusetts head coach, Calipari has compiled an overall record of 101-57. Mike Krzyzewski was only a mere 85-65 in his first five seasons at Duke and Dean Smith was just 66-47 in his first five seasons at the University of North Carolina. Coach K and Coach Smith went on to win national championships later in their tenure.

Another sign of a prominent national program is its ability to recruit top talent from around the country. This season the Minutemen have one of the nation's top recruiting classes.

"The recruiting has improved," Kleine said. "Most people around the country have a positive view of the UMass program."

The reasons for the ascension of the UMass program comes back to Calipari. Since arriving at UMass, Calipari has made exposure of the program a top priority.

"Calipari gives the country the opportunity to see UMass," Pires said.

For the last several seasons, UMass has participated in a midnight telecast on ESPN. This season the midnight game will be February 18 against Manhattan.

"If they [ESPN] want a midnight game, absolutely," Calipari said. "That gets some attention here."

Attention.

A lot of attention is the signal of a team that has arrived in the national spotlight. Massachusetts has arrived and deservedly so.

Coach John Calipari is interviewed by ESPN's Bill Raftery

Coming soon...
The 1993-94 Minutewoman Basketball Special
UMass
Sean P. Hayden and Andrew Bryce providing in-depth coverage of UMass women's hoop only in Collegian Sports

it's all natural.
(swear to god.)
SAUZA TEQUILA HECHO EN MEXICO
SAUZA CONMEMORATIVO
The number one tequila in mexico, and hell they're the experts.
THE NATURAL GOLD TEQUILA

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas
THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99
LARGE CHEESE $6.99 $1.25 each add. topping
MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99 .99¢ each add. topping
Any Two Large Subs $7.99
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20c. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

Former Minutemen abroad

Last season's co-captains, Harper Williams and Tony Barbee, are now professionals in Spain

By Ted Kottler
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

A college basketball program doesn't have to churn out NBA products to be certifiably great. Witness Indiana, which tripled its active NBA quotient to three on opening day this year as Calbert Cheaney donned a Washington Bullets uniform and Greg Graham did likewise for the Philadelphia 76ers.

Massachusetts hasn't seen any of its alumni play in the world's top professional league since the immortal Julius Erving. Naturally, Coach John Calipari and company would love to see one of their own ascend to this level to further boost the rapidly rising image of their program.

It hasn't happened yet, but two stars from the Calipari era are now plying their trade for paychecks in Spain. They are Harper Williams and Tony Barbee, who were Minutemen from 1989-1993.

Jim McCoy, UMass' all-time leading scorer who starred here from 1988-1992 also plays professionally in Sweden for a team called Marbo 7.)

Barbee hails from Hoosier country (Indianapolis to be precise), and his hometown links had a chance to grow even stronger following his senior year when he was invited to a free-agent tryout with the Indiana Pacers.

A twisted ankle prevented Barbee from auditioning for new Pacers coach Larry Brown. Enter Regino Olivares, who became Barbee's agent and helped him ink a one-year deal with C.C. Llobregad, an entry in the Spanish First Division with its headquarters in Barcelona.

Barbee is the only foreigner playing for C.C. Llobregad, as league rules permit teams to have only one on their rosters. He's considerably older than all but one of his teammates, who average about 19 years, and he was signed to fill a role that he grew quite acquainted with during his days in Amherst.

> "I definitely want a shot at the NBA. Every team in the ACB has at least one former NBA player, so it's been a good experience."
> — former Minuteman Harper Williams

"I came here to fill the leadership role," Barbee said from his home in Barcelona. "And to help establish a strong work ethic. But it's not easy because communicating is very difficult."

Barbee was referring to the fact that most of his native Spanish teammates do not speak English. He will begin taking Spanish lessons soon.

Why did Barbee not enter a long-term pact with C. C. Llobregad? He refers to his tenure with the club as a "stepping stone." To where? He hopes to the NBA.

"I'm here to develop my skills a little bit more, then I'm coming back in the summer and I'll try to get another NBA tryout," Barbee said.

Barbee's professional career got off to a sputtering start. He broke his hand just three weeks after landing on Spanish soil and was forced to miss the team's first four games.

After seven contests, C.C. Llobregad was 5-2. Barbee has been playing the positions he did for UMass: off guard and small forward. And, much like he was in a Minuteman uniform, for C. C. Llobregad he says, "I'm all over the place."

Harper Williams, through the same agent, Olivares, was offered a lucrative one-year deal with C. B. Leon, a team in Spain's finest league, the ACB, which Olivares calls "one of the top 20 to 25 teams in Europe." C.B. Leon started the season 10-6.

Teams in the ACB are allowed to keep three foreigners on their rosters, and Williams' two American teammates would ring a bell with many hoop afficionados. One is Joe Wolf, who was the center for North Carolina in the mid-eighties prior to a brief NBA stint, and Reggie Johnson, a member of the Sixers last NBA Championship team of 1983.

An eclectic mix of former college and NBA players can be found on ACB rosters, including Fred Roberts of former Celtics fame, and Bryant Sallier, who torched UMass for 32 points in the Minutemen's 86-73 win over Oklahoma two seasons ago, a victory many observers believe put UMass on the map.

Williams finds himself playing in Leon, a city in the northwest corner of Spain, for the same reason Barbee plays in Barcelona, some seven hours away by car.

"I definitely want a shot at the NBA," Williams said. "Every team in the ACB has at least one former NBA player, so it's been a good experience [playing in Spain]."

Williams has not ruled out the possibility of playing for C. B. Leon beyond this season, saying he must confer with Olivares before making any decisions.

Olivares figures that Gustavo Rivera, the Leon coach whose style Williams compares to Calipari's "with maybe not as much yelling," would welcome back the 6-7 power forward. On his last visit to Spain, Olivares saw his client light up a highly regarded team from Madrid for 23 points and 11 rebounds. Olivares said Williams has averaged approximately 16 points and 8.5 rebounds per game.

Barbee and Williams will never duplicate Dr. J's remarkable accomplishments, but they appear to be taking the right steps toward becoming UMass' first NBA offspring in more than two decades. And they both are quite optimistic about the Minutemen's chances in their first season since 1988-89 without the dynamic forward tandem.

"I'm hoping they go to the Final Four," Barbee said. "They have the talent."

"They can be really good," Williams said. "They just have to want it."

CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840

RESUME ECONO PACKAGE
only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting
(3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles

*Bulk Rate Copies...
OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

SEVEN O's
LIVE COUNTRY MUSIC
EVERY WEDNESDAY
LIVE MUSIC BY The Snowman & JUD
EVERY THURSDAY
KARAOKE
EVERY FRIDAY & SATURDAY
Live Bands & Dancing
EVERY SUNDAY
OPEN MIC
Next to Cliffside • Minutes from U-MASS
Never a Cover
M-F 3PM to 1AM • Sat & Sun Noon to 1AM
Rt. 116 • Sunderland
665-8788

Judie's
"Let's go catch the bus into town to get that $3.99 Lunch Special at Judie's...I gotta get back to class by 2:00...Jan wants us to bring back one for her too..."
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S!"
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Newman Center welcomes a priest for the Latino community Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
45° Friday November 19, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 50
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Pit stop

SUZANNE GARB / COLLEGIAN
A lone tractor sits awaiting its driver beside a 50s style gas pump.

NAFTA vote stirs anger of unions

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Organized labor responded cooly to an olive branch from President Clinton on Thursday after a bruising House struggle over the North American Free Trade Agreement. The Senate labored to complete passage by week's end.

Departing for an international trade conference in Seattle, Clinton said NAFTA's House passage Wednesday night would help him fight for open markets throughout the world.

He said Vice President Al Gore and Chief of Staff Mack McLarty would fly to Mexico City soon to work out implementation of the pact designed to blend the United States, Mexico and Canada into the world's largest free-trade zone.

Clinton also called for cooperation by both labor and management to make sure the accord benefits "all the working people of our country."

The beginning of Senate debate duplicated arguments that ricocheted throughout the House on Wednesday, where 234-200 vote showed more republicans than Democrats supporting the legislation.

Sen. Donald Reigle, D-Mich., complained that NAFTA would place "60 million Mexican workers in our workforce," costing Americans their jobs in the process. Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., said the accord would open the way to more markets for American goods. A vote was expected Saturday at the earliest.

Clinton followed up on a midnight phone call to AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland by expressing respect for the "opinions and conviction of those who did not" embrace NAFTA.

"We won't forget what happened here," Teamsters President Ron Carey said in an interview with the Associated Press. "We're the folks who went out there and worked for a president who talked repeatedly about jobs and here what we've done is export jobs."

Kirkland's remarks about Clinton were less pointed, and he said organized labor would do "everything that we can" to advance health care legislation.

The AFL-CIO leader attacked the House vote, saying American plants would be moved to Mexico and American workers "sold down the river."

Asked how labor would react to Democratic lawmakers who voted for the accord, Kirkland said, "The voting list on this issue will be examined very, very carefully."

House Democrats stressed unity after the vote. "It's a big happy family," said Democratic leader Richard Gephardt.

Three senior Democratic committee chairmen -- Riegle, Daniel Patrick Moynihan of New York and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina are among the opponents.

Somalia takes time to rejoice

Aidid comes out of hiding and is met by celebration

By NEJLA SAMMAKIA
Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia - Fresh from forcing a U.N. retreat on an order for his arrest, Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid emerged from hiding Thursday for a jubilant greeting from 4,000 shouting, dancing and drumming supporters.

Militiamen with rocket-propelled grenades and automatic rifles guarded him when his van drove into a marketplace for his faction's weekly "peace" rally. Crowds pressed around the van, women danced to the sound of drums and people beat the sand with their hands.

The celebration came two days after the U.N. Security council lifted an arrest warrant for Aidid that had put a $25,000 reward on his head. It was issued in June after militiamen of his clan faction were blamed for attacks that killed 24 Pakistani soldiers.

The search for Aidid in his southern Mogadishu stronghold had effectively stopped after a fierce battle in early October killed 18 American soldiers and more than 300 Somalis.

In ordering a new inquiry into attacks on U.N. peacekeepers, the Security Council also suggested Tuesday that 35 of Aidid's men would be released soon. The vote recognized that a political solution required the participation of Aidid and his Somali National Alliance along with other factions.

"He obviously has a lot of power in Mogadishu," U.S. special envoy Robert Oakley told reporters after a meeting with Aidid before the rally. "The United States realized we made a mistake in getting involved. ... I'm glad to see the U.N. Security Council changed course."

Aidid, who leads one of the country's 15 major factions, is a powerful force mainly in southern Mogadishu and parts of central Somalia.

At the rally, three men played electric drums and guitars as Aidid addressed the crowd in his first public appearance in more than five months.

"All Somalis must understand wartime is over. Without outside interference, all Somali factions can solve their problem among themselves," he said.

A pop singer, Halima Khalif, led chants of "Aidid, Aidid!" and "Gul, gul!" (victory, victory).

Smokeout offers a day of much needed relief

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Is it possible for everyone across America to stop smoking for one day? Or better yet, everyone on the University of Massachusetts campus?

Since the new smoking policy was just put into effect earlier this month, yesterday was perfect timing for the Great American Smokeout. Instead of being restricted to outdoor smoking, Thursday Nov. 18, was designated for smokers not to smoke at all.

The Great American Smokeout was originally started by the American Cancer Society. The Student Health Advisory Board (SHAB) and Peer Health Education students sponsored the event by setting up a table in the Campus Center.

SHAB was established in 1971. It is a student organization of the University Health Services. The group participates in many health programs that are involved with the UHS.

"SHAB is an organization that meets every other Wednesday in the health services. We discuss different issues about what is going on in health services and we try to do things to change health services," said Teresa Winters, co-chairperson of SHAB.

Winters said SHAB has sponsored other health service events in the past. The organ donor table last spring semester was one event. The Great American Smokeout was also co-sponsored by SHAB.

"Health education has always done something around [The Great American Smokeout], but this is the first time SHAB is having a table in the last few years," Winters said.

"The American Cancer Society sent us pamphlets on dangers of smoking, how to quit and how to help your friends stop. We made little kits to hand out to

Turn to SMOKE, page 4

Fire strikes JA dorm

Combustibles near lamp set off blaze

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Students stood outside for over an hour last night waiting for the fire department to declare their residential hall safe for entry.

At around 8:30, a fire alarm was set off on the 11th floor of John Adams residential hall in Southwest.

Kim Faria, the resident assistant on the 21st floor called the police.

"Basically the fire alarm started going off around 8:30 and most of the kids left the building right away. Two fire trucks arrived immediately," said Tara Swersie, a resident in JA.

Captain Johnson of the Amherst Fire Department said the fire was due to a lamp which was too close to a combustible material.

"The sprinkler system did not go off because the smoke was not hot enough.

Several contents of the room was burned such as some furniture, the mattress and some clothing," Johnson said.

The residents were escorted out of the building immediately.

"We're missing Seinfeld," and "I need my insulin," were some of the things chanted by students leaving the building.

Because of the delay in returning into the building, many residents went into other buildings in the area to await reentry.

Residents were allowed back into the building over two hours later.

Everyone was able to get back into their rooms except those who live on the 11th floor. They were designated to go to the 12th floor.

The person who lives in room 1113, whose name is being withheld, left campus to go home.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-3884

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY.
BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, November 19

Concert — Xanax 25 will perform at St. Brigid's Parish Hall, Amherst. Admission to the all ages show is $5 at the door. The "Amherst Cabaret" will begin at 6 p.m., and will also feature Puppet Museum, The Electric Noodle Factory and yel!

Dance — Alpha Epsilon Phi is sponsoring a dance to benefit the Pediatric AIDS Foundation and the Chaim Sheeva Medical Center. The dance will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Warehouse in Holyoke. Tickets are $8 Greeks, $10 non-Greeks. For more information call 549-3569.

Service — Shabbat services will be held at 7 p.m. in the Hillel House.

Meeting — Shabbat Coalition will meet following Shabbat services at Hillel House to discuss overcoming obstacles in observing traditional Shabbat.

Dance — The UMass Outing Club is holding the Annual Harvest Nipper Contradance from 7 to 10 p.m. in Grinnell Arena. Suggested donation is $2; refreshments will be served.

Party — The Five College European Club is holding "Eurohouse Party V" from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is $5 at the door; there will be a cash bar.

Budget packets — RSOs that want to petition the Student Government Association for a budget must pick up a budget packet in the SGA office. For more information, stop by 420 Student Union or call 545-0341.

Bus trip tickets — Commuter Area Government is sponsoring a Dec. 11 bus trip to New York City. Tickets are $20, and may be purchased at the Commuter Services and Resource Center.

Saturday, November 20

Observatory observing — Free observatory observing begins at 9 p.m. every clear Sunday at Amherst College Wilder Observatory, Snell Street.

Volunteer — Volunteers from the Five College Habitat for Humanity will donate time to the Conservation Commission of Amherst to build a boardwalk for the K.C. Trail on Old Farm Road, Amherst. Anyone interested in participating should call Chuck at 586-4762.

Sunday, November 21

Fundraiser — The Boltwood Project is sponsoring a fundraiser at Papa Gino's, Mt. Farms Mall, from 4 to 9 p.m. A percentage of profits will be donated to Boltwood.

Ribbon cutting — Tau Beta Pi, the Engineering Honor Society, will hold a ribbon cutting ceremony for the construction of the Mill River Bridge, North Amherst, at 1 p.m. rain or shine. Refreshments will be served.

Volunteer — Volunteers from the Five College Habitat for Humanity will donate time to help the Springfield chapter build a home. Anyone interested in helping out should call Chuck at 586-4762.

Service — ALANA Christian Alliance is holding church services with the UMass Gospel Choir and Elder Willie Wright at 10 a.m. in Campus Center Room 163. All are welcome.

Solar observing — Free solar observing begins at 1 p.m. every clear Sunday on the Amherst Town Common.

Planetarium show — The Amherst College Bassett Planetarium holds a free planetarium show every Sunday at 3 p.m.

Scientists say, save smallpox

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The last known laboratory cultures of smallpox are to be destroyed on the final day of 1993 in scientific history's first deliberate extinction of a biological species. Some scientists are urging a reprieve.

Researchers from the United States, Russia and the United Kingdom say the surviving smallpox cultures could be of great value to science and saving them for at least ten more years of study would not endanger humanity. They say further study of smallpox could point to a cure for AIDS.

But others argue the smallpox specimens represent a potential biological warfare weapon for terrorists. They also say since the complete genetic pattern of smallpox is already known and that little of the scientific importance would be lost if the cultures were destroyed.

Smallpox, one of the great killers in history, was officially eradicated outside the laboratory in 1980, but both the United States and the Soviet Union preserved small batches in isolation.

Sign up now for Winter Session. You won't regret it!

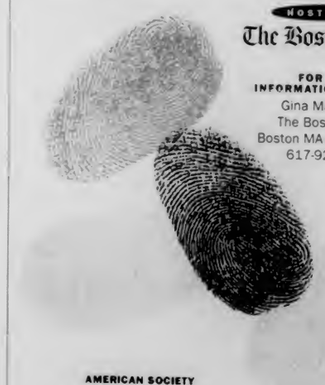
▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.



3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

HOSTED BY
The Boston Globe

FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT:
Gina Maniscalco
The Boston Globe
Boston MA 02107-2378
617-929-2539

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF NEWSPAPER EDITORS AND THE NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

Newspaper Minority Job Conference

DECEMBER 2-4, 1993

The Colonnade Hotel, Boston, MA

Local News

EWC offers aid and advice for those in need

By COLLEEN CRONIN
Collegian Correspondent

Any woman who feels unsafe, has a problem or just needs someone to talk to, can go to the Counseling Program at the Everywomen's Center.

Heyda Martinez is the new Coordinator of the Counseling Program at the Everywomen's Center. She is in charge of program development and fund-raising for the program.

Martinez was born in Puerto Rico and received her bachelors and masters degrees at the University of Puerto Rico. She has counseled for 20 years and is a licensed psychologist in Puerto Rico.

Martinez said the program provides short-term counseling at no cost and refers women to other counselors in the community. If a woman cannot afford outside services, the counseling will continue within the program, she said. This program serves women from the University of Massachusetts, the four other colleges in the area and also serves women in the community outside UMass.

The counseling differs from traditional methods which are passive in nature, Martinez said. The counselors seek to empower women through active therapy, she said.

"We see women as healthy. We don't use terms like abnormal and sick. We see women as going through passages of life," Martinez said.

Martinez said most women feel more comfortable talking to other women, and feel safe while participating in this program.

She said she has one main goal that is vital to the program: to increase funding. Three years ago the University cut off funding for this program, causing it to be cancelled. A year ago the program was reinstated. However, now the counselors have to rely on outside grants for all their programs and for their salaries, Martinez said.

She said the counselors are hoping to run a few new programs next semester. They plan to join with programs outside the University and work with graduate women and single parents.

However, Martinez said, these plans cannot be finalized until the program is assured of grants or funds from the community outside UMass.

Meanwhile, Martinez said she hopes that the University will recognize the importance of counseling for women and will support the program in the future.

"The University must see the needs of the women at the university and in the area," Martinez said.

No comment

COLLEGIAN

An unidentified man lays on an unidentified couch in the Campus Center.

Newman welcomes new priest

Father Manship hired to serve Latino community

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"It's great to come back," said Father Paul Manship, a welcomed new presence at the Newman Center.

Brought here to provide services for the Latino population in the Amherst/Northampton area, Manship uses the Newman Center as a central base, while visiting other churches and parishoners homes as far away as Lee.

Manship said he feels there is a great need for the Catholic church to be a presence for a community which has a strong Catholic tradition.

He said this presence is especially needed in this area because the Latino population has been continually growing. Many families have been immigrating to this area from countries like Puerto Rico, while others from cities like Springfield have been making the move into the five-college area.

Formerly a clergyman from the Sacred Heart Parish in Holyoke, Manship said he is looking forward to saying mass in Spanish. Sacred Heart is the only church in the area for the Latino community, but it also had an English-speaking presence within the parish.

"I was constantly doing everything twice," said Manship said.

Even though he has been here for only two weeks, the UMass campus is not new to him. In 1978, Manship started his freshman year on this campus as a theater major and lived in James residence hall in

Turn to PRIEST, page 6

GLB showcases an award-winning guitarist

Leah Zicari

By DEBORAH WHITE
Collegian Staff

Leah Zicari, a 1988 graduate from SUNY Buffalo with a masters degree in classical guitar, describes her music as "an eclectic combination of style, intensity, poignancy and raucous humor."

Zicari will perform at UMass Hampden Theater on Sunday, Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. The performance is part of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns' Cafe Series.

She sings about a variety of topics from love and politics to issues specific to women, lesbians and gay men.

Zicari's music has received world wide attention. She has won numerous awards including favorite new performer in the 1991 and 1992 Hotwire Reader's Choice Awards, the 1990 and 1992 Alternative Expressions' Community Achievement Award and an ArtVoice Music Awards nomination for best acoustic act in 1992.

Her debut recording, Wouldn't That Be Fun, features a gay-style choral version of "Glory, Glory." Zicari's work is featured on several other recordings, including Jamie Anderson's "Center of Balance" and the 1993 March on Washington's Pride Anthem. The

Turn to ZICARI, page 4

Inequalities in school

Xavier V.P. lectures about education

By CATHY CHANG
Collegian Correspondent

Black and Latino students face many obstacles to getting an education, one of which is the low expectations teachers have of them, said Dr. Antoine Garibaldi at a lecture last Thursday night at Amherst College.

Garibaldi, the vice president and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Xavier University in Louisiana spoke about his recent study of the education of Black and Latino males in public schools which surveyed students, teachers and parents.

"The most startling of all discoveries is that six out of ten teachers said they did not expect Black students to go to college," Garibaldi said.

According to his study, 65 percent of the 7,000 student respondents said teachers did not push them hard enough and that their expectations of themselves exceeded their teachers' expectations.

A reason for these negative assumptions, Garibaldi said, is that the teachers, most of whom had taught more than 10 years, had seen Blacks and Latinos drop out at a high

Turn to LECTURES, page 8

Teachers not all equal, according to research

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Teaching is a gender-biased occupation, a University of Massachusetts assistant professor of sociology said Tuesday afternoon in a seminar dedicated to social and demographic research.

"National figures mask a gender-divisioned labor operating within the high schools," said Pamela Quiroz before a crowd of about 25 at Machmer Hall, most of which were professors and graduate students. "This division of labor affects women's job performance and possibly students' engagement with teachers."

The assumption that female teachers were offered less stable and less rewarding positions within the educational infrastructure was reinforced by an array of charts and graphs she handed out.

The information used a sample of a dozen random schools in Massachusetts and showed that, first and foremost, socio-economic status (SES) among the student clientele had a direct effect on the proportion of women teachers in a particular school. The higher the SES, the lower the index of dissimilarity, or difference in numbers of men and women in teaching roles.

State legislature and the teachers' union are very influential in changing

Turn to RESEARCH, page 8

RESCHEDULING OF FINAL EXAMS ON SNOW DAYS

In order to reschedule final examinations in case of snow, 2 alternate exam periods have been devised. They are 6:30 pm and 8:45 pm each exam day. The use of these alternate periods in the event of closings is outlined below. In addition, the academic calendar (which has Thursday, November 25 as an official snow day) in the event classes on the University is missed Wed. 24. This policy goes into effect only if the University is officially closed. The snow day "hot-line" is 545-5414. If the University is open, all exams are expected to take place as scheduled. Each faculty member should inform his or her class of the planned time and location of the rescheduled final exam in the event of a snow day. All rescheduled exams will be the same length as published in the final exam schedule.

If the University is closed until 11:00 am:

8 am	rescheduled to 6:30 pm same day
10 am	rescheduled to 8:45 pm same day
11 am	held as originally scheduled
1 pm	held as originally scheduled

If the University is closed all day but open in the evening:

8 am	rescheduled to 6:30 pm same day
10 am	rescheduled to 8:45 pm same day
1 pm	rescheduled to 6:30 pm next exam day
3 pm	rescheduled to 8:45 pm next exam day
evening:
6:30 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 6:30 pm Dec. 22
8:45 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 8:45 pm Dec. 22

If the University is closed all afternoon and all evening:

8 am	held as originally scheduled
10 am	held as originally scheduled
1 pm	rescheduled to 6:30 pm next exam day
3 pm	rescheduled to 8:45 pm next exam day
evening:
6:30 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 1:30 pm Dec. 22
8:45 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 4:00 pm Dec. 22

If the University is closed all day and all evening:

8 am	rescheduled to 6:30 pm next exam day
10 am	rescheduled to 8:45 pm next exam day
1 pm	rescheduled to 6:30 pm next exam day after next
3 pm	rescheduled to 8:45 pm next exam day after next
evening:
6:30 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 1:30 pm Dec. 22
8:45 pm Dec. 21	rescheduled to 4:00 pm Dec. 22
6:30 pm Dec. 22	rescheduled to 6:30 pm Dec. 23
8:45 pm Dec. 22	rescheduled to 8:45 pm Dec. 23
6:30 pm Dec. 23	rescheduled to 1:30 pm Dec. 24
8:45 pm Dec. 23	rescheduled to 4:00 pm Dec. 24
6:30 pm Dec. 24	rescheduled to 6:30 pm Dec. 27
8:45 pm Dec. 24	rescheduled to 8:45 pm Dec. 27
6:30 pm Dec. 27	rescheduled to 8:45 am Dec. 28
8:45 pm Dec. 27	rescheduled to 10:30 am Dec. 28

AMHERST CAMPUS EMERGENCY CLOSING POLICY

Closing Options: Greatest Closing (Until 11:00 am); Fewest All Day; Closed During All Day; Cancellation Of Evening Activities

Watch or Listen: Amherst (WEGP, WMUA, WRNX, WTPT) • Brattleboro (WTSA) • Greenfield (WHAI, WRSI, WGAM) • Hartford (WTIC) • Northampton (WHMP) • Orange (WCAT) • Springfield (WSPR, WHYN, WACE, WAZY, WMAS, WGSB-TV) • Ware (WARE) • Worcester (WTAG) • Campus Dorms (WSCN)

When: Starting at 6:00 am; Starting at 6:00 am; when declared; Starting at 2:00 pm

STAY TUNED TO YOUR RADIO FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

What Will Be Affected: Classes • Day Care • Offices • Activities • Textbook Annex • TSC Recreation • Meetings • University Store • Mullins Store • Commuting Students • Blizzard

What Won't Be Affected: Dining Commons • Health Services • Police • Emergency Phones • Residence Halls • Lycurgus Services • Hampden Snack Bar

Bus Service

Library: Academic; Learning Resource Center

Exam Period: Library will close early, after 10 pm. Call Library Hours Hot Line: 545-0414

Intersession: Same as University

Spring Vacation: Library Desk; Circulation; Hours Hot Line: 545-0414

Information: Call Telephone Operator Hot Line 545-4500 for latest Housing Service Closing Information (ECS)

Mullins Center: Athletics; Fine Arts & Mullins Center events will take place as scheduled unless announcement is made to the contrary on available stations.

AMHERST CAMPUS PARKING SNOW POLICY IN EFFECT FROM 12/1/93 TO 4/1/94

The Amherst Campus Parking Snow Policy which is OVERNIGHT parking is NOT in effect during a SNOW EMERGENCY CLOSING period.

OVERNIGHT PARKING:

PARKING ALLOWED

Lot 21 • Lot 41 • Lot 25 (north of roadway to E lot only)
Lot 23 • Lot 42 • Lot 30 (west of Campus Ave. only)
Lot 27 • Juniper • Lot 43 (excluding Thatcher Way)
Lot 28 • E. Pleas. • Hicks Drive (except at ends)
Lot 29 • Lot 40 (except at ends)

PARKING ALLOWED ONLY WITH APPROPRIATE PERMIT

Lot 31 • Lot 39 • North Village • Universal Apartments
Lot 36 • Lot 44 • Orchard Apartments
Lot 37 • Lot 45 • Commuter Lot

PARKING ALLOWED ONLY WHEN AMBER LIGHTS NOT FLASHING

Lot 30
Lot 40
Lot 43

PARKING NOT ALLOWED

Lot 21 • Lot 41 • Lot 41
Lot 23 • Lot 42 • Lot 42
Lot 25 • Lot 43 • Lot 25 (south of the roadway to E lot)
Lot 27 • Lot 44 • Lot 26 (entrance to special permit only)
Lot 28 • Lot 45 • Lot 30 (west of Campus Ave. only)
Lot 29 • Lot 46 • Any vehicle parked on Southwest connector drive
Lot 31 • Lot 47 • Any vehicle parked on Southwest connector drive
Lot 36 • Lot 48 • Any commuter lot
Lot 37 • Lot 49 • Any commuter lot
Lot 39 • Lot 50 • Any commuter lot
Lot 40 • Lot 51 • Any commuter lot

SNOW EMERGENCY PARKING:

ESSENTIAL PERSONNEL

During a snow emergency closing period, essential personnel who report to work may only park in the following areas:
Lot 21 (west of Southwest)
Lot 25 (west of Physical Plant and north of roadway to E lot only)
Lot 26 (Hasbrouck, Engineering and Lederle Graduate Research Center)
Lot 30 (west of Washington and SGA)
Lot 52 (south of World Services)

SUGGESTIONS/IDEAS FOR PARKING "SMART" ON A SNOW DAY:

1. Use the UMASS bus service.
2. Car pool rides whenever possible.
3. Walk if possible.
4. Have someone drop you off.
5. If space is not available in your assigned lot, go to either lot 25 or E lot (both west of Physical Plant). During snow conditions, it is not possible to guarantee normal lot capacity will be available.
6. If you receive a parking ticket and believe it was improperly issued, you may appear at the Ticket Processing Office within 21 days from the date issued.

■ smoke

continued from page 1

the smokers or people who know someone who smokes can give them this kit," Winters said.

The idea of the kit is to encourage people to stop smoking. The kit contained items such as headless matches, candy, pamphlets, gum, stickers and buttons.

On the table, adoption papers were also handed out. These papers designated a friend to "adopt" another friend who smokes and to help them not smoke the entire day.

The Employee Assistance Program staff suggested several tips on helping a friend not to smoke throughout the day. Some suggestions included sending a card for encouragement and not to "nag" them about it.

"The idea of the Great American Smokeout is to stop smoking for a day. This whole day was designated to stop smoking," Winters said.

■ Zicari

continued from page 3

anthem, titled, "Together, Proud and Strong," was also conducted by Zicari.

Zicari has also worked in television, radio and theater including a role in Tom Wilson Weinberg's Ten Percent Revue.

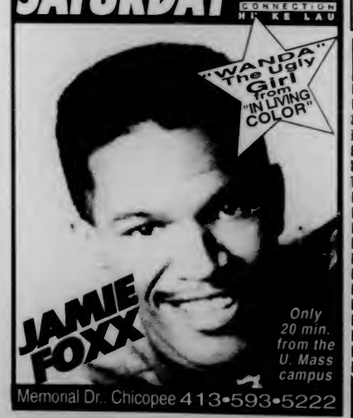
The GLB Cafe will also present Muddy Gene Pool. The group is composed of Maggie Salzberg, Tammy Stacy and Aaron Kropf. These local performers are each known for their solo work but the GLB Cafe will mark the first time they are united on stage.

The GLB Cafe series will continue on Dec. 6 featuring local folk singer Jaime Morton and Hampshire College student Collin Chase's one-act play "If You Cough While In a Metal Box."

Admission to each GLB Cafe is $3 for UMass students and $5 for all others.

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive
253-7727
Next to Price Chopper
Mon.-Thurs. 2 for $10 1/2 hour hot tub for 2 w/coupon

Mass. Daily Collegian
Chemically formulated for your enjoyment



What you already know can change a life!

All over the world people need something you have. An education. Having an education can get people jobs. It can change lives. If you have a college education, you can become a WorldTeach volunteer. As a volunteer for WorldTeach, you'll contribute your knowlege and skills to students who need them. And you'll further you own education in ways you've never imagined. Be a WorldTeach volunteer.

- Live abroad
- Learn a new culture & language
- Let WorldTeach defer your student loans
- Change your life while changing others
- Call WorldTeach at (617)495-5527

WorldTeach
Harvard Institute for International Development
Elliot Tower
Cambridge, MA 02138

SATURDAY comedy CONNECTION MR. KE LAU

Only 20 min. from the U. Mass campus
Memorial Dr., Chicopee 413•593•5222

The Collegian 545-3500.

FREE This coupon good for one FREE COLLEGIAN brand student paper FREE
Offer good while supplies last. One COLLEGIAN brand student paper per person per day.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Generation X's ongoing struggle with life's uncertainties

It is a time of great restlessness. Things that mattered so much to you yesterday now seem to be wanting. Your life has hit that stumbling block again: indifference, uncertainty, aimlessness. Where you once saw clear paths and certain routes, now only questions lie. Only you aren't curious anymore, you're just troubled.

There have been no great tragedies in your life, at least not lately. The problems in your life are trivial compared with those of so many other people. You know this and it makes you feel guilty for indulging in your petty worries while others struggle to survive. You have the security afforded by college life. Your glimpses of the business world have revealed a place of unpredictable turbulence. Sometimes you feel lucky to be isolated from that world, spending your days gaining an education. Today you don't care. You say there must be something more.

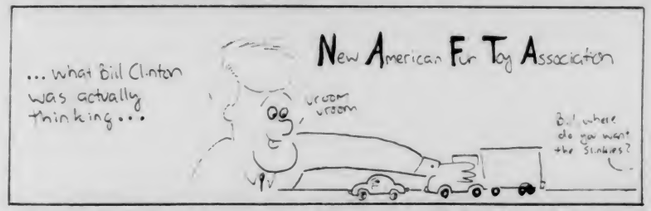
Pain seems to be building slowly. Brick by brick the walls within go up. In your fortress of sorrow, you see your efforts to halt its construction. You see that suffering cannot be stopped, only delayed. Misfortune mocks you by declaring itself stationary. Seemingly surrounded, you are too scared to reach for someone, and too petrified to reach within.

A.J.
STEWART

You are told that your friendships will carry you. But you can't even tell yourself what's wrong, never mind someone else. You see that good friends alone can't cure you, and neither can good wine. You see that there are things friends can't know. Understanding is always incomplete. You see there must be something more.

Somewhere along the line you lost your faith. You often wish life had an answer key. But you know life can never have a scale since the only grader is yourself. You, your harshest critic, know that things await that can't even be contemplated: marriage, children, spirituality, death. These are things you have pondered all your life.

Lately it seems you've only been preparing for a career. When the debits and credits of your life are tallied, you do not want to be remembered as an accountant. You want to be remembered as a man.



Your classes go on endlessly. There is always a paper to write and a library to visit. The only thing worse than the monotony is the fact that you don't know whether you believe in what you're doing. You dream of Kerouac, longing for open road and broad starlit skies. You yearn for freedom, for an end to responsibility. You imagine that a far away wind carries the mysteries of life.

If you chase that wind, maybe you can delve into its secrets. Maybe you are already too late. Perhaps it has passed by and can no longer be caught. Yet you're compelled to go anyway. You'll never stop trying to do the impossible. You pack your things, trying to exchange your pain for a higher truth. You're after something more.

And when there's nothing left to do but leave, you decide to stay. Running away, whatever its aliases, has never been your style. The problems you face will eventually pass, as surely as new ones will arise. You think the truth lying at the end of a distant road is the same truth that's staring you down in Amherst. There's no reason to leave, unless you are afraid.

You resolve not to be afraid. You will conquer your fear, and defeat your worries. You will battle for your own survival. For honor and pride you carry on. You realize questions and pain never go away, but they do subside. Each day you look for victory, knowing it is already yours. And each night you pray for her, hoping she knows what you mean.

A.J. Stewart is a Collegian columnist.

Stand up & give the world the "bird"

This past week, Bobbitt v. Bobbitt came to trial in Mannassas, Va. For those who don't know who that is, I'll give you the tabloid version: "Women cuts off man's penis because of allegations of marital rape." Wow, she sure was mad.

This weekend I took a much needed break and on my way through New York City I was struck by the funniest thing that made me recall the woman in Virginia. This woman stood in the middle of 5th Ave. amongst traffic and mayhem and graciously gave the world the finger. She seemed so proud of herself and I thought of her for many miles after I passed her. In all actuality, she made my day.

Catherine
PULLEY

And I paused to think about what would happen if I stood in the middle of Amherst on North Pleasant Street or in the middle of Campus Center and did the same thing. People would think I was nuttier than a fruit cake, but in New York it is just considered part of the average day.

Mrs. Bobbitt and Mrs. Lunatic from New York City are basically one in the same. I'm not saying that both are crazy, but that they, in a sense, took a stand against everything they are tired of.

Can you imagine if everyone did that? If people stood up in the middle of their classes, jobs, homes or any other place that they felt confined and exploited and just gave the world the bird?

Yes, you get the picture, I am tired and frustrated. I am tired of all the mess and ludicracy here at the University of Paradise at Amherst.

I am tired of the cockroaches in Orchard Hill that hang out in the Franklin Dining Commons. I am tired of the long lines and disorganization at that wonderful building that many have lovingly dubbed, "Whitless."

I am angry that the prices of Bluewall cookies went up and sodas are now 75 cents.

I have a theory: Professors get together before every semester and schedule all of their midterms and papers during the same week so you can work yourself into a frenzy. Yes I am angry about that too.

Most importantly: I am upset that race relations on this campus are deplorable and anti-Semitism is running rampant. I think it is disgusting that my friends feel the need to purchase mace so they won't feel terrified walking home at night. Sexism is driving me to drastic measures (not as drastic as Mrs. Bobbitt). I am angry that marital rape is not against the law in many states and every time I look at my watch in class another woman in America becomes a statistic.

What would happen if all of the victims of sexual harassment and rape walked down the streets of America with carving knives in their hands? Wow...that might be an effective tool. Solutions are only effective if you personally take a stand. I am taking a stand myself: I write letters, belong to activist groups, begin with myself and work on keeping people educated.

And yes, even reduce, reuse, recycle and all that junk. But every once in a while you become fed up and the smallest things will set you off.

Like the fact that those burritos in Taco Bell are $5 (or at least it feels like that) and that grinders in the Hatch cost more if you want olives. And that Speedie Burgers are never "Speedie." And that people stare at you like you have 20 heads when you walk into class late. And that Whitmore has yet to print a correct copy of my schedule. So when I go over the edge, someday you know where to find me. Say a friendly hello to the red-headed woman in the Campus Center with the overcoat giving the world the bird.

That will be me. And make sure you don't get me near a chopping block.

Catherine Pulley is a Collegian staff member.

Can you afford a Peter Pan bus ticket home?

Are you aware that a round-trip Peter Pan bus ticket to Boston costs $29.95 for UMass students, up from $25.95 in 1991?

For many students on our campus, Peter Pan represents the only means for these students to go home. It is the only public transportation in the Pioneer Valley. Students who go to school in areas like Boston have the chance of traveling by train or bus. You do not have that option.

In these hard economic times, where many students are paying their way through school, students do not have the money to afford these rising prices.

It is a disgrace that some students will be priced out of UMass, but it is a tragedy that a student can not afford to buy a bus ticket home. If enough students express their displeasure at the open forum [Nov. 29, 3:30 p.m.], then Peter Pan's owner will take notice and respond.

Please take a moment and stop by room 420 of the Student Union or call 545-0341 if you have any questions or comments. The SGA is only as powerful as the students we represent.

Andrew Berenson
SGA Rents and Fees Committee

A Dad species

For most young people, the most horrible fear is that they will get older and turn into their parents. For obvious reasons, I'm not too concerned about becoming my mother, it's my dad I'm worried about.

Don't get me wrong, it's not that I have anything against my dad in particular, it's the entire species of Dads that I'm afraid of joining.

Some of you may think that Dads are not exactly something to have nightmares about, but that's because you've been conditioned to accept the atrocities they commit without questioning them. Next time you're home, take a look around. You'll see...

•Dads wear V-neck T-shirts.

Men were not made to don V-neck shirts. Men built like myself and Jean-Claude Van Damme should not wear V-neck T-shirts. Dads certainly should never wear V-neck T-shirts.

•Dads say, "When I was your age...," incessantly.

Now, this may have been cute a couple of generations ago, but it just doesn't cut it any more. Instead of "When I was your age, I used to have to walk two miles in the snow to get to school," now it's, "When I was your age, sometimes the heat in the car didn't work too well."

•Dads find their own prehistoric jokes incredibly funny.

As many times as my dad replies, "All day," when I ask him if today is Friday, it'll never fail to put a smile on his face.

•Dads eat disgusting foods.

My dad in particular likes to eat the neck and other unappealing parts of the turkey on Thanksgiving Day. My personal belief is that Dads don't actually like these foods, it's just their version of a neat party trick. "Hey, check out the Dad woofing down the bull balls!" It's kind of like shotgunning a beer to them.

Dads like to tell people our age that we're in the easy part of our lives and that soon, "You'll have to get up and go to work from nine to five, not just to class a few hours a day." Dads don't understand that classes are the easiest part of the day. I go to campus and listen to other people's Dads (I realize there are female professors, I just don't have any Moms this semester) babble for a while. It's after class, all night, all weekend, that the real work begins. There's always something else to do.

Dads on the other hand, have no upcoming exams or papers to worry about. I imagine that my Dad waits for that clock to hit five, lets out a hearty "Yabba-Dabba-Doo," and then sets his brain on auto-pilot until nine the next morning. All night and all weekend the only thoughts that cross a Dad's mind are, "When's next food," and "What good TV's on?"

In this way, Dads are kind of like dogs. In fact, if you're fortunate enough to own both a Dad and a dog, observe them both when they're home. They lie around, occasionally scratch themselves, and eat. I believe most dogs think that Dads are in fact one of them. Watch what happens when a Dad gets within five yards of a dog's food. . .that dog will start growling. Most dogs probably wonder why the big dog gets control of the remote and gets to ride in the car.

Hmm...they say a dog's life can't be beat. Maybe turning into my dad won't be so bad after all. I wonder where I can get me a few of those V-neck T-shirts?

Derek Milosavljevic is a Collegian columnist.

Derek
MILOSAVLJEVIC

■ priest

continued from page 3

Southwest.

"I was going to be a great actor," he said. "I loved acting, and still do."

After two years of attending UMass, Manship said he decided to enter the seminary.

Now, fourteen years later, he's back on the campus and said he is experiencing some sort of deja vou. He said the atmosphere here is the same sort of energy of young people with dreams. But he said he feels when he was here the college community had a prophetic voice, now it's very mainstream.

Manship encourages "anyone and everyone" to come visit and talk anytime, particularly the Spanish speaking students. Manship holds office hours on Monday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

YOU'LL BE "THANKFUL" FOR ALL THE SAVINGS AT ...

LIQUORS 44

Don't Drink and Drive

BEER WINE LIQUORS

BUDWEISER $12.49 + DEP. REG., LIGHT, DRY
CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

LITE, GENUINE DRAFT, & GENUINE DRAFT LIGHT $12.49 + DEP
CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES

BECKS BEER $15.49 + DEP.
CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES

SAM ADAMS WINTER LAGER 6 PK. BOTTLES $4.99 + DEP.

KOCH'S GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY $7.29 + DEP.
REGULAR & LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

BUSCH BEER $9.99 + DEP.
REGULAR & LIGHT
CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS

O'DOUL'S NON-ALCOHOLIC $6.49 + DEP.
12 PK. CANS

CORONA EXTRA $8.49 + DEP.
REGULAR & LIGHT
12 PK. BOTTLES

BUD • BUD LIGHT • MICH. MICH LIGHT $39.99 + DEP.
½ BARREL

R.H. PHILLIPS $4.99 750 ML
CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON

GALLO LIVINGSTON CELLARS $6.49 3.0L
ALL FLAVORS

KENDALL JACKSON $8.49 750 ML
VINTNERS CHARDONNAY

SEBASTIANI $5.49 1.5L
PROPRIETOR'S WINES
WHITE, BLUSH, RED, CHENIN, FRENCH COLOMBARD, SAUVIGNON BLANC, WHITE GRENACHE, GAMAY, WHITE ZINFANDEL

BERINGER $3.99 750 ML
WHITE ZINFANDEL

BALLATORE $3.99
GRAN SPUMANTE 750 ML

MARTINI & ROSSI ASTI SPUMANTI
SALE 8.49 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00 $6.49 750 ML AFTER REBATE

LOUIS JADOT $5.99 750 ML
BEAUJOLAIS VILLAGES

BARTLES & JAYMES COOLERS + DEP.
ALL FLAVORS
SALE 2.49 MAIL IN REBATE 1.00 $1.49 4 PK. AFTER REBATE

SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.49 1.75L

SEAGRAM'S 7 $7.99 1.75L
SALE 12.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 AFTER REBATE

DEWARS SCOTCH $25.99 1.75L

BACARDI RUM SILVER & GOLD $10.99 1.75L
SALE 13.99 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 AFTER REBATE

SEAGRAM'S VO $10.99 1.75L
SALE 15.99 MAIL IN REBATE 5.00 AFTER REBATE

POPOV VODKA $7.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE
SALE 9.99 MAIL IN REBATE 2.00

KAHLUA COFFEE LIQUOR $8.49 AFTER REBATE
SALE 11.49 MAIL IN REBATE 3.00 750 ML

BAILEY'S IRISH CREAM $14.49 750 ML

JIM BEAM BOURBON $12.99 1.75L

BEEFEATER GIN $18.99 1.75L

not responsible for typographical errors VISA

OPEN: 9am to 11pm Monday thru Saturday

• TWO CONVENIENT LOCATIONS •
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555

SALE PRICES THURS 11/18/93 THRU WEDS. 12/1/93
Full Redemption Center

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.

Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111

Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan

VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99

LARGE CHEESE $6.99 $1.25 each add. topping

MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99 .99¢ each add. topping

Any Two Large Subs $7.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20c. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

Arts & Living

Hats off to local performances and desk graffiti

This has been a particularly exciting fall in terms of the multitude of live acts Amherst and Noho have lured to our happy valley. UMass has hosted Belly and Rage Against the Machine, while Pearl St. continues to provide consistently great shows for the locals. However, the group responsible for snagging some of the best acts this season is none other those wacky people over at Amherst College.

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY
Compiled by Brian Babineau & Adam Goulston

Thus far they have hosted the Judybats, local stud J. Mascis, Matthew Sweet, guitar-rock god Bob Mould and new age dream-poppers Stereolab. Still up ahead is guitar-rock god II, Paul Westerberg. All this before Christmas. I hope they continue to bring in similar acts to entertain us in the future...

The Cocteau Twins have just released a new album called Four-Calendar Cafe. Unfortunately, it would seem that they've been passed by on the music scene, what with the success of bands like The Sundays and The Cranberries who owe more to the Twins' sound than anything else. Still, one listen to the new album, or any of the older ones for that matter, and you can tell that Liz Frasier's otherworldly voice and Robin Guthrie's swirling guitar gorgeousness create textures and moods that those other bands only could dream of...

In this month's issue of SPIN magazine, Pavement was mentioned no less than four times as being the "greatest band in the world." I find them to be a very good band also, but after only one LP, one LP of B-sides, and a handful of singles, is it wise to hype a band so much? I just hope their egos don't get bigger than their catalog...

On a non-musical note, the roots of our generation are so obvious. Even the graffiti on our desks gives us away. The generations before us had "Kilroy Was Here," peace symbols and anarchy symbols. What is it that you can find scrawled across a desk in any classroom here at UMass? "Save Ferris." Our hero, Ferris Bueller is a symbol of what we wish our adolescence was like, a rock'n'roll Hughesian demigod. We may not have any huge wars to protest, no great youth movement to join, but hell, we all want to save Ferris...

A peculiar and humorous addition to some dates on Nirvana's current In Utero tour which recently blew through Springfield were the ageless underground pioneers, Half Japanese. Regrettably, I arrived at the Civic Center just in time for the "aaooga" part of the Breeders' "Cannonball" and missed Half Japanese. I got a chance to catch them the next night at the Bay State Cabaret and sat in shock as I endured their dreadful whining. Absolutely horrid! Hope these guys get their 15 minutes of fame and not a second more...

Kudos to UPC for bringing Murphy's Law and the Toasters to UMass. This should truly be a ska extravaganza. Regrettably ska is second only to modern R&B on the annoying scale, but I'm man enough to admit a lot of people dig this crap...

You may have been soured by the long line of retro-hippie Dead-wannabes that have had their careers boosted by that whole H.O.R.D.E. thing. It's all too easy to miss out on the fact that bands like Widespread Panic, the Samples and Big Head Todd and the Monsters are truly talented musicians doing their own completely unique tunes. Big Head Todd's Midnight Radio could be a classic someday. It's mandatory listening south of here.

Upcoming Stuff:

Pearl Street - There's more to Los Lobos than "La Bamba," they are a talented corps of Latin American musicians, and will play tonight. Tuesday brings those bundles of hardcore energy Boston's Sam Black Church.

Iron Horse - Upcoming shows of note include Ronnie Earl & the Broadcasters (tonight), local talent with Cordelia's Dad and UMass' Lumber (Monday) and Joe Keenan (Wednesday).

Springfield Paramount Theatre - Yes '70s and '80s fans, Heart still exists. If it's your cup o' tea, check them out Sunday. Multi-talented Bruce Hornsby is definitely alive, and talented. See him on Wednesday.

San Francisco Symphony plays Czech movements

By TARA CONNELLY
Collegian Correspondent

San Francisco Symphony
Fine Arts Center
Nov. 17, 1993

The San Francisco Symphony performed before an entranced audience Wednesday night at the Fine Arts Center. Despite a steady rain and cold temperature, a full house braved the elements to watch the internationally acclaimed symphony masterfully perform three Czechoslovakian composed pieces.

A warm applause greeted conductor Herbert Blomstedt who began the evening's concert with a piece from Ma Vlast. The piece was a melodious harmony composed of flutes, violins and cellos, that gave tribute to a stream that ran through Prague. The music perfectly captured the tremulous path a river follows on its path to the sea.

Taras Bulba, a Rhapsody for Orchestra was presented next, with the unusual addition of an organ, an instrument mostly associated with Bach. The piece was based on an unfinished book that tells the story of a Cossack soldier's life. It was heavier than Ma Vlast with more dissonance and volume. The last selection to be played after a brief intermission was Dvorak's Symphony No. 7 in D Minor, Opus.7. Four movements long, the symphony began with a dark mood heavy with the sound of violas and cellos. The final movement ended with a crashing crescendo that left the audience breathless as the music faded away into silence.

Will the wolf survive?

COURTESY DENNIS KEELEY

Los Lobos will perform tonight at Pearl Street. Call 584-7771 for more information.

"Mime-Storyteller" relays traditional Asian folktales

By EDWARD HURLEY
Collegian Correspondent

There was magic present at the Augusta Savage Gallery on Thursday night as Japanese mime-storyteller MOTOKO wove East Asian folk tales. The audience was filled with people, young and old, eager to hear a good story. They didn't go home disappointed.

MOTOKO recited a variety of tales, which originated in the East Asian countries of Japan, Korea and China. She typically gets her tales from books, while some she gets from other storytellers. She does, however, use contemporary stories in her performance. To MOTOKO, a tale doesn't have to be old to be good. Even though her stories are Asian in origin, the artist tells tales that presents the human experience, and deal with issues of avarice, devotion and struggle which are universal to all people.

MOTOKO has been a performing mime for nine years, but only began storytelling two years ago. She uses both vocal storytelling and mime to convey her stories, and has recently performed on the PBS children's show "Mr. Rogers Neighborhood."

As well as doing storytelling shows for children, MOTOKO also does a one-woman show called "My Snow White." This is geared more towards college and adult audiences. The story is semi-autobiographical, and tells about the plight of women in Japan. It is based on MOTOKO's own experiences as well as those from other Japanese women.

MOTOKO proves that in this day and age of elaborate, electronic entertainment, a good story told well is all that people really want.

Assertive vocal power boosts Rose Chronicles

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

You release an E.P. - bing, bang, boom, every rock journalist is comparing your band to the alternative gods du jour, praying you're the next big thing and they can claim you as their find.

"It really bothers me," said Judd Cochrane, bassist for Vancouver, B.C.'s Rose Chronicles, who have already witnessed the rock press' obscenely aggressive pursuit of new talent. "It is flattering in a sense, but in way it's almost depressive," said Cochrane.

On the band's debut E.P. Dead and Gone to Heaven (Nettwerk Records), Rose Chronicles have concocted an entirely appealing blend of Kristy Thirsk's dreamy and assertive vocals a la Natalie Merchant and a guitar driven tapestry of sound. Already they've drawn the usual "dream-pop" comparisons (Curve, My Bloody Valentine and so forth,) yet their music resembles none of them. Meanwhile journalists clamor for adjectives.

"I don't know, what's the trendy word? Ethereal? Sort of heavy? I don't know. Oh wait a minute, I've got a good one - Charles Manson meets the Cocteau Twins," mused Cochrane.

Casting pompous analogies aside, there is something special north of the border and it's not Bryan Adams.

"[Vancouver's] not really jumping, it's not Seattle. But there's some really good bands, I mean don't get me wrong," said Cochrane, describing his home as an area of "prefab houses and schools."

The young bassist acknowledges British Columbia's diversity and array of different people as helpful in formulating the band's sound, one which progressed, matured and was discovered in the brief span of a year and a half.

Rose Chronicles give deference to the power of classified ads as what brought them together. Guitarist Richard Maranda and drummer Steve van der Woerd were already together through previous musical ventures. Cochrane responded to their ad looking for a bass player, meanwhile Thirsk placed an ad looking for a band to sing with. The result of this voyage into newsprint was a band sounding somewhat different than what you hear today.

"We started out as a folk sort of thing. We just wrote pop songs for a while and then we got into this really dark and experimental phase during last winter," recalled Cochrane.

Present in the crowd of one of the group's early shows were representatives of Nettwerk Records, there on the words of good friend and local musician Dave Genn and the poster and information that Rose Chronicles had sent them. Something clicked with the ears of the small crowd and the Nettwerk guys and a match was made.

Dead and Gone to Heaven's tunes tackle such unearthly topics as eternity and doubt, yet according to Cochrane there is no underlying message in this abstraction.

"The lyrics are pretty much up for interpretation and they're also there, Kristy would say, to paint a picture just for your head to go along with the music. You can interpret something a hundred different ways and still be right."

Meanwhile the band continues to solidify their base in Canada before touring the states. Shiver will be the Chronicles' first album which is due for release in January, 1994. Meanwhile, the tunes off Dead have yielded a video for the song, "Waiting Eternity" as the band plays on.

"We're getting a really good response to it," said Cochrane. Humble beginnings for a potential "next big thing."

■ lectures

continued from page 3

rate and made the generalization.

Thirty-eight percent of Black students are seen as educationally retarded, he said, and yet 45 percent of the students in gifted/talented classes are Black.

"The problem is that people think students don't want to learn," Garibaldi said. "But it's hard for [the students] to think beyond the present," he added, referring to the impoverished conditions many minority students live in and their constant fear of a violent death.

Garibaldi said 73 percent of the young people surveyed said they feared a family member would die violently and that some students were planning their own funerals.

"We can't pretend those things don't exist out there," Garibaldi said. "There is no hope, and that's something we have to address."

Teachers often complain about how students say they do not want role models, he said.

Although a high percentage of the 3,500 parents who responded said they knew their male sons wanted to graduate from high school, only one-fourth said they had been to a report card conference at their child's school, he said.

Minority males have the highest rates of suspension, expulsion and dropout activity, Garibaldi said, and a large number of Black males are not promoted from the first grade.

■ research

continued from page 3

school practices, but no matter what those changes are, the core curriculum, such as science, math and English, is the least apt to be altered.

Those areas, Quiroz said, is where men are in the highest numbers, while women are more inclined to head home economics, foreign languages and special education, and many other areas more dispensable and susceptible to budget reductions. Foreign language was seen as one of the only female-dominated fields that could be considered as part of the core curriculum.

Teachers given the choice prefer to teach upper-level courses at higher grades," she said. "Women teachers are 20 percent less likely to do this, mostly owing to administrative tendencies."

That dilemma is topped off with a study conducted by Dan Lortie, a sociologist at the University of Chicago in 1978. Lortie proposed the existence of a "failed marriage market" where single women chose teaching as an alternative to marriage, while married women taught to continue the feeling of mothering and nurturing.

He said the single women would initially put a great deal of time into their profession, but may get discouraged as a result of not getting married, and would participate less. This problem is just one of the many constraints that provide of ceilings on the positions that women can obtain in the school.

"There is a need to create gender parity to correspond with the larger labor force," Quiroz said.

"A large part of teacher recruitment is their ability to coach athletics and head programs as well, and men are more often chosen for those positions," Quiroz said.

Group fights illiteracy

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

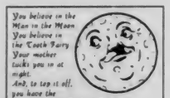
"Share the magic - Buy a book for literacy".

A group called Literacy Action is going to use this slogan this year to help raise money for the three local adult literacy centers. Tomorrow will be the designated day for the donations to be made.

Thirty-two book stores throughout the Pioneer Valley, will donate 10 percent of their sales to the Care Center in the Holyoke area, the Read/Write/Now Adult Learning Center at the Brightwood branch of the Springfield City Library, and the Literacy Project serving Hampshire & Franklin counties.

Literacy Action was organized five years ago. It is a loose affiliation of book store owners, book store staff members, writers, adult learners and readers. David Sharken, Mark Brumberg and Clovis Soleim are the people involved in organizing the group.

David Sharken said the literacy organizations have been around for over 10 years. Literacy Action has just recently been involved in raising awareness and money for these organizations.



"The adult literacy problem is tremendous. There are a lot of people in this area that we don't know about who have this problem," Sharken said.

This is the fourth year Literacy Action is running this program to help raise money for the literacy centers. "We want to make people aware of the magnitude of the adult literacy problem in the area," Sharken said.

"Last year we raised more than $5,000 to help the three literacy organizations offset cuts in public funding and continue their work with adult learners," Sharken said in a recent press release.

There are over 30 stores that will be involved in donating to the literacy centers. The Amherst stores involved include Book Marks, Food For Thought Books, LAOS. An Ecumenical Bookstore, Valley Books and Wootton's Books.

"We want to encourage students to go out and buy books knowing it is for a good cause. This is a good time to buy books especially because it is holiday season," Sharken said.

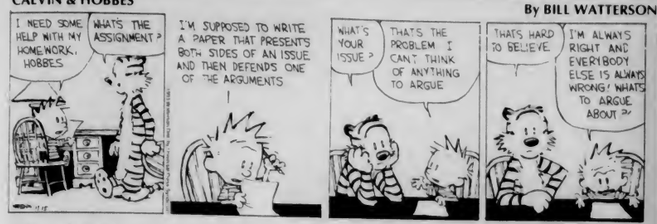
CORRECTION

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian incorrectly ran an ad for Prism Travel on Wednesday, November 17. The prices quoted in that ad are no longer valid and can not be purchased through Prism Travel. The correct ad is running in today's paper and the prices in this ad are valid and can be purchased through Prism Travel. The Collegian regrets this error.

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst•549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Sat. 10am-6pm
Tues. 2pm-10pm
Wed. & Thurs. 4pm-10pm
Fri 3pm-10pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am-10pm
Regular Wash only $1.25
Dry - one quarter for 7 1/2 minutes

Women's Clothing & Accessories
Amherst 413.253.2563 Brattleboro 802.254.4421 Williamstown 413.458.9858

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM - Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 expires 11/17/93
Northampton Bowl
525 Northampton St. • Northampton



ACA
Will Hold Church Services Every Sunday at 10am in Room 163C Featuring the UMASS Gospel Choir

25 North Pleasant St.
256-8225
Call for Pick-Up or come in and choose your own slices!
Uptown Pizza
WOW!
Now Enjoy Two Different Styles of Pizza
The Traditional Thick Crust Pan Pizza and New York Style Pizza
FREE
Soft Drink with any Slice of Pizza*
*PER CUSTOMER

The Club
The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.
Buy next semester's membership now and get intersession free!
Pay $140 Today & Secure Your Membership From 12/23/93-5/31/94
• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Cardiovascular Machines
• Tanning
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Child Care
• On Bus Route
Pay $9.50/Week for the Rest of the Fall Semester
659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $140 $280
PARIS $209 $418
AMSTERDAM $195 $390
FRANKFURT $209 $418
Roundtrip
TOKYO $769
Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Eurailpasses issued on the spot.
Customs-Immigration & departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change w/itice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

CAST OF THOUSANDS By B. DEUTSCH

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

PROCESSED CHEEZ By PAUL TAMBOLLEO

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"If you obey all the rules, you miss all the fun."

– Katharine Hepburn

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A love from the past could reappear without warning. Defer to the financial judgment of an older relative. Family harmony is more important than ever. Get a good friend know how much you appreciate their help.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your conscience prompts you to do the right things today. Visit an ailing friend or family member. Do not make a romantic commitment until you know what is really in your heart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your creative abilities win wide-spread admiration. Those at the top like what you have to say about spending programs along. An electrifying business idea leads to new fringe benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Share your ideas with people of influence. Whether you expand on a work project, approach a VIP or gamble on love, your effort will meet with success. Avoid bragging to unfortunates.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be flexible. Otherwise, you could be out on left field while someone important to your future makes other plans. An exciting travel opportunity appears out of the blue.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could run into some strong opposition to your plans. Try some sweet talk. You may be able to get your way if you turn on the charm. Take someone under your wing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is your turn to lend a helping hand to someone who needs assistance. Be a good friend. A genuine effort will be greatly appreciated. Reassessing your office routine will bring benefits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Guard against overlooking some very important financial issues. Spending time alone could help you find solutions faster. Get an agreement signed before evening so that you can relax.

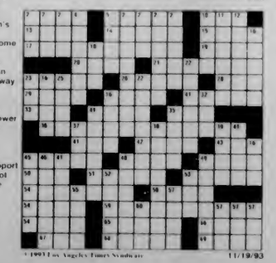
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Somebody could renege on a promise. Luckily, you handle tense situations extremely well. Resolve not to lie so much in the future. Your backup plan is even better than the original one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick with the agreement you made. The possibilities exist for long-term financial gains. Be more sensitive to others. Give your mate or partner a little extra attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep close tabs on machinery, cars and electrical appliances. If you are not up to date on maintenance procedures, let a knowledgeable pal know. Relax with a good book tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Ego and all are while your energies are at their peak. A nutritious diet and daily fitness routine help you maintain top efficiency. Romance on the rebound could be miss. Play it cool.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Skullcap
5 Tic
10 Pub order
13 "The King —"
14 Sauce for angel hair
15 Actress Merrill
17 Fancily
19 Picnic pests
20 Carte before the course?
21 Certain birds gathering place
23 Prod
26 Mortgages
28 Formerly called
29 Campus figure
30 — war bird
31 Map detail
33 Scuttle
34 Chopin's love
35 Stat for Gooden
36 Cole Porter musical
41 Snack
42 Cornetta cheers
43 Soil
45 Interred
48 Actor Kristofferson
49 Downcast
50 Labor org.
51 Beethoven's "Fur —"
53 Unwholesome
54 Weir
56 Collegiate sports assn.
58 Off-Broadway award
59 Whitney inventions
63 Costa follower
65 Pound the dough
66 Meal cut
67 Drench
68 Statue support
69 Secretary of Agriculture

DOWN
1 Crow's comment
2 Yoko
3 Bachelor's last words?
4 Rolled the camera
5 Bridge
6 Peevish
7 Bat wood
8 Hi-lo component
9 No genius
10 Ahnuhan rise
11 Trousseau stems
12 Selection in 20 Across
16 So far
18 Congeal
22 Husband of Isis
23 — bin ein Berliner
24 Pasture sounds
25 Start of a cue?
27 Not al fresco
30 Spirit
32 Singer Merriman
34 Enjoyed the surf
35 Makes do, with out
37 Oahu necklace
38 Ot a lawyer's charge
39 — monster
40 City section
44 Isle
45 Lesser Sunda island
46 Excuses
47 Colorful cat of rhyme
48 Garb for Cio-Cio-San
49 Short-coated hound
52 Needs
53 Remo or Pedro lead-in
55 Jump
57 Area or zip
60 Gumshoe
61 Hawaiian hawks
62 Partner of luck
63 Curved plank

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	T	E	M		B	O	S	C		M	A	I	D
C	A	R	A	T		D	O	V	A	L		E	S	E
A	M	A	T		L	E	N	O		T	O	L	E
M	E	T	A	L	L	U	R	G	Y		T	H	E	M
			L	A	S		E	C	L	A	I	R
W	H	I	M	S	Y		I	D	L	E
H	E	R	E		S	P	A	D		A	S	S	E	T
I	R	A	T	E		O	D	E		M	O	I	R	E
Z	O	N	E	D		O	L	O	S	E		M	A	I	N
			O	D	O	L	E		P	R	E	M	I	E	D
		S	P	R	E		E	L	I	E
T	A	L	I		M	E	T	I	C	U	L	O	U	S
A	B	U	T		D	R	A	N		S	E	N	S	E
P	E	T	E		N	A	P	E		T	U	D	E
E	R	D	S		Y	S	E	R		A	S	A	P

11/19/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Sandy Bogage
Production ..... Marni E. Helfner
Tony Morse

MENU

LUNCH
Macaroni & Cheeze
Italian Snausage
BASICS LUNCH
Macaroni & Cheeze
Red Beans

DINNER
Beef Bourguignon?
Fishwich
BASICS DINNER
Curried Chick Peas
Fishwich

bright spots

continued from page 12

and don't act like they're supermen, and tonight you saw what I've been saying."

Besides Cleveland State shooting themselves in the feet, the Minutemen won for two major reasons: offensive rebounding and Mike Williams.

As usual, UMass crashed the boards with reckless abandon. The Minutemen only outrebounded Cleveland State by five, 50-45, but the total rebound count does not tell the story. Instead the 25 offensive rebounds by Minutemen players does.

Junior power forward Lou Roe (14 points, 11 rebounds) and sophomore small forward Dana Dingle (10 points, 11 rebounds) led the way, corraling seven offensive caroms each. Viking coach Boyd said the UMass rebounding was immense.

"Look at the offensive rebounding, I mean half of those are putback scores," Boyd said. "You take those away from them and what's the score? We're right in the basketball game.

Calipari said the UMass style of basketball is geared towards rebounding the ball.

"When you have guys like Dana Dingle, Donta Bright, Lou Roe and Marcus Camby you can go after the ball on shots," Calipari said. "And the way we play, in most cases, if you watch, when the play develops and a guys shooting it, we've got three guys around the basket."

As for Mike Williams (23 points, 3 steals), the junior guard showed all the explosiveness and talent that he possesses, but most importantly, he played under control. According to Calipari, Williams is a focal point of the UMass club.

"Mike Williams is our strongest player, is our fastest player, is our quickest player and he's got more courage and ability to create shots in tough times than anybody than we've got on our team," Calipari said.

Since Towson State upset St. John's 66-65 yesterday, UMass will be hosting the Tigers at the Mullins Center Saturday, November 20 at 7 p.m.

Starting at 7 a.m. today, UMass students will be among the first to be able to purchase tickets to the 2nd Round play of the Pre-Season NIT Tournament. UMass students wishing to see the Minutemen take on Towson State can purchase tickets at the Curry Hicks Cage for the nominal fee of 2 tickets for $5.00.

Starting at 10 a.m., all season ticket holders will be

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Guard Mike Williams was tremendous on both sides of the ball, scoring 23 points and snagging three steals.

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Donta Bright hit the court after a long wait for the Minutemen last night in the victory over Cleveland State. Bright scored nine points and collected six boards.

Minutemen

continued from page 12

— UMass and Cleveland State combined for 49 turnovers. Both teams were horrendous from the floor, with UMass hitting a dismal 38 percent on the night.

However, Calipari said he was happy his team played hard throughout the game, no matter how sloppy it got at times.

"The alternative to this [type of] win was... a loss. I think I'd rather have what happened to us, winning an ugly game," said Calipari.

UMass jumped out to a 15-6 lead on the Vikings from the opening tip, but after the first television timeout at 15:29, the Minuteman offense went stone-cold, going scoreless for the next 3:10 before a free throw by Camby broke the streak. But for the next 3:06, Cleveland State blanked the Minutemen again until a Williams' three-pointer tied the game at 21.

The Minutemen led 36-31 at halftime and didn't trail for the entire second half. As for tomorrow night's game against Towson State, Calipari didn't know much about the Tigers, except the obvious.

"I know nothing about Towson," said Calipari. "I know this — if they can beat St. John's at St. John's, I imagine they could get UMass at UMass."

Game Notes: The game tomorrow night can be heard on WHMP (99.3 FM) and WMUA (91.1 FM), beginning at 7 p.m. live from the Mullins Center.

hockey

continued from page 12

considerably different than last year's process, which was cut short because of the late hiring of Mallen.

"Last year we had to recruit with caution in terms of scholarship money," said Mallen. "Now we're in a more normal type of Division I recruiting setting. It's more pleasurable."

Mallen is looking to a few more talented recruits to solidify his team as they head into Hockey East.

"I'd like to bring in a couple of key players, but not a whole bunch of players," said Mallen. "To compete in Hockey East we'd like to shore up a little bit in scoring, increase the competition among the goaltenders, and we're probably also looking for a defenseman."

This year's Minutemen will take their four game winning streak on the road Saturday for a battle with the Corsairs of UMass-Dartmouth.

The Corsairs are the defending ECAC North-Central-South Champions, but this season will be somewhat of a rebuilding year.

The Minutemen will have to adjust to playing in a smaller size rink.

"We have to be prepared to play the game along the boards," said Mallen. "The more important thing is next Saturday's game in St. Lawrence is the same size rink."

Despite losing 5-1 to Fitchburg State, who the Minutemen defeated 10-3, Mallen is not taking the Corsairs lightly.

"The UMass-Dartmouth team is a very skilled team. We have to look at every team as a challenge," said Mallen. "We can't just go in and think we're going to wipe people off the map, because if we do we'll lose."

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:
Boston-LONDON $139
Boston-PARIS $224
Boston-MADRID $255
New York-FRANKFURT $225
New York-ROME $269
New York-CANCUN $199
Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Some restrictions may apply. Fares do not include taxes. Restrictions apply, some fares may require an International Student ID and/or an age restriction.
Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

Brandywine at Amherst
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Collegian Advertising
545-3500

Legal Problems?
Call UMass Legal Services!
Housing - Family - Student Rights
Civil Rights - Workers Rights
Criminal and Consumer Law
and more...
Call 545-1995
for an appointment
UMASS/AMHERST STUDENTS ONLY

On the way to church Sunday my son Eric told me he was off to Alaska to work in a fish canney. My daughter Wendy is going to try some new exotic dancing. I and my wife Felicia are so proud. And it is all 'cause of you, you good Old Mass Daily Collegian.
"Wholesome Family Fare."

Partner, I NEED just a little more NO on my tab this month. Then I swear I'll stop by the Collegian.
Stop by room 113 Campus Center

ALL NEW
Rock N' Madness
The Lights Go Out & The FUN Begins
Every Saturday 9PM - Midnight
Fee of only $10 per person
• 2 Hours Unlimited Bowling
• Colored Pins • CASH PRIZES
Win A Trip to Foxwood Casino
$2 OFF
584-4830 expires 11/17/93
Northampton Bowl
525 Pleasant St. • Northampton

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-9 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.25
Children under 10 - $3.50
Lunncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

football

continued from page 12

STEVE PEDULLA / COLLEGIAN

The Minutemen close out their regular season tomorrow afternoon at Warren McGuirk Stadium against UNH. UMass has slim hopes of making the playoffs, so a win is a must for Coach Hodges and company.

"The NCAA poll is a secret all year long and since the conference has expanded to 12 teams, we might get three teams in the playoffs.

"That third spot would be between us and Delaware and we beat both them and James Madison. Obviously, we have to beat UNH on Saturday, but I think we've got a shot."

As important as making the playoffs would be, the players said they know they can't count on it, so they must focus on a more immediate task: winning the school-tying eighth game of the season and giving the seniors a positive final memory.

"We want to get that eighth win and send the seniors off on a high note," said junior cornerback Tony Williams. "We don't want to go out like last year, losing our last two games."

One of the defeats to end the 1992 season was to the Wildcats (6-4, 4-3 YanCon), who handed the Minutemen a 20-13 loss in Durham when UMass could have clinched a tie in the YanCon with a win.

"It seems like everybody's big game is against us, maybe because we're hated throughout the league," Williams said. "But UNH has had a little streak going against us that we'd like to stop."

What Williams was referring to was the fact that in the last three years, UNH has defeated UMass.

"We want to finish the season strong because there's a big difference between 7-4 and 8-3, and we want to walk off the field as winners," said senior captain Bill Durkin.

No matter what happens, the 17 seniors who wore the maroon and white for four years have truly left a legacy in Amherst. They went from as low as a football program has ever been to a crest that will end with back-to-back successful seasons.

"They've been through things that no college player should go through," said Hodges. "But they stuck together and in my opinion have done a lot to save UMass football."

"It feels good to go out like this," said senior receiver Eric Thimas. "We are pioneers and we're part of an upward swing in the program, and that feels good to be part of a great tradition."

Game Notes: The game can be heard on WTTT 1430 AM with Mike Fagerson and Jim Degnim.

soccer

continued from page 12

Carolina Coach Anson Dorrance. "Because of their defensive organization and their talent in goal. They just have a tremendous player in (Scurry)."

Massachusetts (17-2-3) will try to pack it in defensively and try to stop midfielder Mia Hamm (24 goals) and forward Rita Tower (14 goals), then battle for a goal. For the Minutewomen to win, the game must be physical and low scoring. UNC does not lose finesse filled shoot-outs.

"I think they will come in with that East Coast mentality," said Dorrance, who has won 10 of the 11 NCAA Championships ever held and 79 straight games. "We will have to scrap all over the field. They will come out with a wonderful level of physical play."

The players are believing because Rudy has been talking it up. He revels in this type of match-up, loves being the underdog and enjoys throwing barbs at Dorrance, who's record has created a larger than life image of the coach. There is no love lost between the two.

"While I respect Anson as a coach, there are some of us out here who do not think he is God," Rudy said. "He's a good coach but we don't need to go overboard, getting the best players in the country every year has something to do with [the streak]."

Rudy who had relative success (three ties) when his University of Central Florida teams played UNC in the 1980s said, "I really meant it when I said Anson is shaking in his boots."

Dorrance said, "In order to win, you have got get your players to believe they can win. Obviously he is taking a great strategy. I'd do the same. But send me the clips of where he said that."

There will be no awe. No ho-hum game. This one will be interesting.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ACTIVITIES

ALANA Christian Alliance presents church services with the UMass Gospel Choir and Elder Wright every Sunday at 10:00 in CC 163c.

EUROHOUSE PARTY V
D.J. Tasos
Friday Nov. 19 9pm-1 am
Student Union Ballroom
CASH BAR
$5/person on sale at TIX Unlimited

Turkey Trot Road Race
$4.00 entry fee • free thermal mug
1st place prize = Turkey
Sign up Nov 17-19 on CC Concourse
Sponsored by UMass Crew Club

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Earn up to $700 a week mailing brochures. For info send name and address to Groupone PO Box 276 Dayton Ohio 45409

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

STUDENTS
Ca, I anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

Car for Sale
1984 Buick Skyhawk
Good Condition
$1500 546-4751

For Sale - 86 Pontiac Firebird Mint condition a/c elpne auto w/overdrive $3900 Call Kevin 256-3119

1981 Honda Accord
Original Owner
5-speed, good condition
$900.00 Call 256-8379

1982 Dodge Colt (Mitsubishi) hatchback 100,000 miles, reliable, well maintained $995 586-5447

1984 VW Jetta
200000 miles still runs
$300 or best offer ASAP
Seen 549-4675

1988 Nissan Sentra blue hatchback 5-speed, 55,000 miles, VG condition, $3500 Call 584-9008

1990 Hyundai Excel
29000 miles only
$4000 cell 546-1482

BIKERS AND JOGGERS

BE SAFE!
Night visibility waist belt
Comfortable, adjustable
Holds Walkman
Send 12.95 Check or MO to
Northern Enterprises
P.O. Box 175
Chicopee, MA 01021

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions
1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card cost $25 gives you your next TEN Dozen free.
2) The Miser Card Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen.
(Ben & Jerry's may be sub'd)
Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW
Sun-Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am
The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Baichertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat fireplace 586-4270

For Famelia, big room, 3 level townhouse, fireplace, 3 bathrooms, leundry, 5 minute walk, Amity Place, 250-, 546-7098

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0869 428 Student Union

1-2 bedroom apartment near high school. Available January 1st 256-6053

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg. Jan or Feb 549-7290

1 bedroom available for 1 or 2 females in 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton starting Jan - convenient - on bus route Call/ive message 549-7756

Room in Amharet House available Jan 1-June 1
$210/mo
253-2219

Room for Rent
Looking for 2 people to share large bedroom in furnished apartment on Pelham Road
Huge Kitchen and Living Space
3 miles from campus
on bus route
Please call 253-5978

Room in a 3 bedroom Puffton Apartment 236.00 plus utilities.
Call 549-1920

FOR SALE

Nintendo + 10 games
Must Sell $25.00
Pete or Andy 549-2849

Ski Equipment
Rossignol 17G Sr 200
Atomic 733 SL Sr 195
K2 Sr 172
Boots Sr 7,8,9
Best offer
Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischar 200 mm/ bindings Look Never used or mounted 549-8180

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

ATT: Excellent income for home assembly work info 1-504-646-1700 Dept MA-1307

Exotic Dancers Wanted
Great pay, flexible hours
Race St. Pub 268 Race St Holyoke MA
Call Bob 532-1422

Get up, stand up! Work on Clean Water Action's Campaigns: Toughening pollution laws, recycling, stopping NAFTA, activists wanted. Flexible scheduling for students $150-300 per week. Need work over break: start working for us now. Call Dan 584-9830

Inside Sales Positions rapidly growing cellular business in Hampshire mall and Holyoke mall and Ingleside. Capable personable with good sales skills. Permanent and holiday positions with excellent salary commissions and benefits full and part time. Call 508-393-9312 from 8 am to 5 pm. Must fill immediately

PCA for mala quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 546-0666

$700/wk. Cannery workers, $4000/mo. deckhands. Alaska fishing industry now hiring for next summer. 1,000 openings. No exp. necessary. Free rm & bd. These jobs go fast! Employment Alaska. 1-206-323-2672

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender
Days/Evenings one week!
Placement Assistance
Boston Bartenders School
Call 747-9888 for Nov. and Dec. classes
Special Student Rates
Remember: Tobe professionally trained takes more than one evening

Spanish Tutor $84-4435

KELLY GEERS

Hey Kelly

You're almost legal

Guess Who

LOST

Lost Flowered Bracelet with stones Reward Melissa 256-3476 Great Sentimental value

Sterling Silver fairy necklace of great sentimental value. If found please call Amy 6-3910

MUSICIANS

For Sale
Washburn P-Bass $300.00
Fender tube amp $250.00
John 546-0609

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit
256-6848

PATRICK BRENNAN

Pat you've gone from being a cop who hangs out with hookers to a shining star! Go Charlemagne, go!
Good Luck! Love, Danielle

PERSONALS

AXO Sisters and Pledges put your perty shoes on and kick up your heels at Tekoa tonight! Enjoy! Love, Your Comm Chair

Blinky – you are the best little brother. It's almost over! Start counting the days until Spring Break. After all how many big bro's end little bro's do Europe. It's better than Montreal!
From your BB, ASR AKA Yente!

Cathy:
I am so glad you're my little
You're the best
Love your big sister
Elana

Charlie Brown:
You can't imagine how happy I am that you are here!

I Love You!!
Lucy (Y.E.)

Chriz Leblanc -
Turf is green
Snow is white
Boy do I have plans
For you tonight!
Love,
Sunshine

P.S. Tee time is 10:00 bring your best club!

Congrat to our newest Lambda
Kann W.
Lots of Lembda love
Your big sisters
Lambda Lambda Shh Shh

Deer Sigma Kappa,

Phriday's the day,
Phive's the time,
Phormal's the phunction,
So get really psyched!

Deborah M
Thank you for the Tenn. Nashville marble green horses. Here's to sleeping garbits leeling witty confident devastatingly feminine crazy silly and weird times! I Love You!!!
DLM

I am so excited to be
With my table buddies
Jen, Michelle, and Keren
Get ready for a wonderful formal!

Alpha Chi Love,
Katie B

Jeffrey
Happy two years
I Love You!
Love, Sophie

Melissa
Happy "18th" Birthday!
You finally made it!
Love ya,
Boo

Melissa Becker of DZ. Finally a person just for you! Aughh! Please! Could ya die? I'll miss you when I'm in London. Congrats on being treasurer! Cookies at midnight! See ya later
ASR

O Evil One the Gods have revealed that you are my dilemma. Tofu Marinara

Poppy
Where are you?

Ad

Schwartztit
You are so fine,
Swing your booty
in my direction
Your Secret Lover

To my Family: Leigh Ann, Gineen, and Wendy! You're the BEST! I love you! Have a great day! DZ Love, Amy XOXO

To my awesome family,
Wendy, Leigh Ann, Amy C.
Happy Big and Little Day
Love in DZ
Gineen

To the best family,
Happy Big/Little Day Brenda, Dane and Jen
Love in DZ,
Melissa

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley, and you already know IT'S the BEST! Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're in search of two undergrad males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

Your own room in a 2 bed apt
237.50+ Call 772-3702 (Jan to May)

SERVICES

FINANCIAL AID for College
NO GPA or income restrictions.
Free recorded message gives details.
(508) 543-5640

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413 467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 745 Main St. Nhem 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

PVOC Oil Coop. Purchase home heating at reduced cost. Register at OCHO, 428 Student Union or call 545-0865. SAVE MONEY AND STAY WARM! Join TODAY!

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

SPRINT

Marketing Firm Seeking Students
for paid internship. Must be ambitious
*and willing to travel. Excellent pay *
*and bonuses. Call Jessica at *
*Collegiate Advantage 617 424-6116 *
*or FAX resume to 617 424 9788 *

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break
First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach, parties, pool deck, fun, night-clubs, sunshine.
Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans with on campus pick up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94. Return 3/27/94. Call for free brochure 1-800-9-Daytona M-F, 8-6. See ya at the beach!

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Overwhelmed?
Wordprocessing printing
Reports resumes
Call Metamorphosis 256-3084
AMS After 9
PMS Until 12

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Sports

Cleveland State 31-29 68
Massachusetts 38-32 77

Cleveland State: Zeigler 1-2 3-5 5, Hill 1-4 1-2 3, Mitchell 11-25 1-4 23, Caldwell 1-5 0-0 3, Moore 2-6 1-2 5, Bolden 1-5 1-2 3, Welch 6-9 0-0 13, Nicholson 1-3 0-0 2, Dellinger 1-2 1-2 3. Totals: 25-61 8-17 60.

Massachusetts: Dingle 3-7 4-9 10, Roe 5-13 4-8 14, Camby 1-7 1-2 3, Williams 8-19 5-8 23, Kellogg 3-6 1-2 7, Bright 4-9 1-8 9, Padilla 0-3 0-0 0, Travieso 0-1 0-0 0, Meyer 1-1 0-0 2. Totals: 25-66 16-37 68.

Player of the Game

UMass

#10 Mike Williams

6-2 Jr. Guard

Williams tallied 23 points against the Vikings, played awesome defense and made the big shot for the Minutemen on their way to a second round match-up with Towson State, who upset St. John's 66-65.

Why the Minutemen won

UMass crashed the boards as usual as the Minutemen grabbed 50 total rebounds, including 25 at the offensive end. Forwards Lou Roe and Dana Dingle each snagged seven offensive rebounds. The UMass defense had 10 blocked shots, 11 steals and kept Cleveland State on edge throughout with their pressure. Guard Mike Williams pumped in 23 points, including seven during a key 16-5 run in the second half.

Next for the Minutemen: Towson State in the second round of the NIT at the Mullins Center tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

Minutemen power past Vikes

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

No. 22 Massachusetts outmuscled and outhustled Cleveland State, dominating the Vikings on the offensive glass and using an in-your-face defense on its way to a 68-60 victory in the first round of the Pre-Season NIT last night in the William D. Mullins Center.

The Minutemen host Towson State tomorrow (7 p.m.) in the second round after the Tigers knocked out Big East member St. John's, 66-65.

UMass held a huge advantage in offensive rebounds over Cleveland State, snagging 25 to the Vikings' 16. Junior co-captain Lou Roe and sophomore forward Dana Dingle led the way with seven each (11 rebounds total each), while sophomore forward Donta Bright and freshman center Marcus Camby chipped in with three apiece.

"Coach [Calipari] told us to be aggressive and snatch every rebound with two hands. At the half, he got on me because I only had two rebounds," said Bright, who played for the first time in a Minuteman uniform after sitting out a year due to Proposition 48.

"They're a great team, they work hard. They play extremely well off the boards, as well as any team I've ever played," said Cleveland State forward Reggie Welch.

"It was extremely hard to keep those guys off the boards, probably even harder than Michigan was last year," Viking center Matt Dellinger said.

Roe and Dingle each finished with a double-double [14 points for Roe, 10 for Dingle], but the main story on offense for the Minutemen was junior guard Mike Williams, who poured in a game-high 23 points, matched only by Cleveland State's heralded center Sam Mitchell.

With 11:26 left in the game and the Minutemen leading 48-45, Willlams took control, tallying seven consecutive points, starting with a lay-up and a free throw to complete a three-point play.

After a futile trip down court for the Vikes and a television time-out, Williams buried a jumper, pushing the Minuteman lead to 53-45. He then stole the inbounds pass near half court from Cleveland State guard David Moore and was fouled, setting up his final two points in the span that gave UMass a 10-point cushion.

"The biggest thing that hurt us — well, there were two things. One, Michael Williams would just dribble, drive and get second shots [to score]," said Cleveland State Coach Mike Boyd. "Number two was offensive rebounding. If you take away those and the put-back baskets, we're right there."

"Mike played with the emotion that I need him to play with. On the ball defensively, he was a stopper," said Minuteman Coach John Calipari. "He made big shots, he made plays in around the basket."

Early season contests are usually ugly, filled with missed shots and a lot of turnovers. This contest was no exception

Turn to MINUTEMEN, page 10

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Junior co-captain Lou Roe tallied 14 points and grabbed 11 rebounds in the 68-60 Massachusetts win over Cleveland St.

Two bright spots in an ugly victory

By JEFF CROFTS
Collegian Staff

Massachusetts 68, Cleveland State 60.
Pretty it was not.
Ugly it was.

Nonetheless, it was a victory, which was all UMass head coach John Calipari wanted. He didn't expect anything more, and he knew it was not going to be a joyride.

The Minutemen won despite shooting 38 percent from the floor and 43 percent from the line. Despite 17 turnovers.

Both Calipari and Cleveland State head coach Mike Boyd said that they knew the contest would not be artistic because of the fact that it was the season opener for both after only 14 or 15 practices. With the game taking place just three weeks into the season, Calipari said the contest was what he figured it would be.

"I'm just happy we played hard. We were ugly, but did you expect anything different [this early on]?," Calipari said.

Cleveland State weathered two UMass storms, a 13-4 run early in the first half and a 16-5 run midway through the second half, to be hang around in the end, but poor free throw shooting (six missed free throws in the last five minutes) killed any chance of a Viking comeback.

The much heralded newcomers to the UMass lineup did not have the greatest of debuts, but Calipari said he knew going in that expectations of the four new Minuteman players were way too high.

"I tried to explain to people over the last two weeks, do not expect much from Marcus Camby, Donta Bright, Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso," Calipari said. "Just let them come along

Turn to BRIGHT SPOTS, page 10

Confident Minutewomen head to Final Four

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Massachusetts is in for an uphill battle against seven-time national champion North Carolina in today's Final Four match-up.

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

Having to think about playing the University of North Carolina in the Final Four has a way of making collegiate women soccer players humble.

UNC, the seven-time defending national champion, has a mythical quality surrounding it. Too much tradition, history and mystique.

For most of the season, players on the University of Massachusetts squad would talk about the Final Four or a possible game against seven-time defending National Champion North Carolina, in purely hypothetical terms.

The opinion was that a Final Four appearance would be the ultimate dream and if they played Carolina, they'd be a little in awe and, hey, if they lost no problem, no one beats the Tar Heels.

Ask the same players, the same questions this week and the answers are far different.

"We can beat North Carolina," said senior captain Paula Wilkins. "We can definitely play with them. I think we have a shot at taking it because we play so well defensively."

Senior goalkeeper Briana Scurry said, "We can win. I'll have to play the game of my life to keep the score down, but we can do it. We do not want it to end."

No more awe. No more, "I'd be happy if we just played well." These women think they can do it. They believe they can do it. Today (1 p.m.) in Chapel Hill, N.C. they need to make believers out of Carolina. The winner will advance to face the Stanford-George Mason winner on Sunday (1 p.m. ESPN).

It will not be easy.

The Tar Heels (21-0) are absolutely loaded at every position on the field. Nearly their entire bench could start for UMass. UMass Coach Jim Rudy figures only goalkeeper Scurry could start for UNC. Besides that, Rudy figures, "Paula could play for them, because she is so smart, and maybe Heidi (Kocher) and Tex (freshman Erin Lynch)."

Only four are in Carolina's league, but the Minutewomen's game is based on a team-zone strategy. And those players (Wilkins, Kocher, Lynch and Scurry) along with the steady Amy Trunk, make up a dominating defensive front, which even Carolina could have trouble scoring on.

"It's going to be difficult for us to score," said North

Turn to SOCCER, page 11

Football still fighting for respect, playoffs

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

You mean the University of Massachusetts still has a chance for the playoffs? They could tie the school record for wins in a season? They still have one game left to play?

All of the above are true for the Minutemen (7-3, 4-3 in YanCon), who could go out on a winning note against the University of New Hampshire Saturday at Warren McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

Despite a "devastating" loss to No. 10 William and Mary, Coach Mike Hodges said he still thinks his team has a shot at the Division I-AA Playoffs.

"I feel very strongly about our playoff hopes. [The Sports Network] poll is not the definitive factor," he said.

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

Hockey signs recruit

Mallen readies troops for Corsairs

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts ice hockey team announced Tuesday that goaltender Brian Regan from Westminster School in Simsbury, Conn., would be the first recruit signed for 1993-94 class.

Regan is the captain and starting goalie for the school with a reputation for producing Division I players. In his junior season, Regan tallied four shutouts and a 2.72 goals against average.

"We are extremely excited and enthusiastic about Brian's commitment to attend UMass," said Massachusetts Coach Joe Mallen. "He is a blue chip prospect. We think he has a tremendous future ahead of him as a Hockey East goaltender."

Regan's size (6-0, 170 lbs.) makes him a natural stand up goalie, a style that Mallen favors.

"We feel that the stand up goalie is the way to go," said Mallen.

Recruiting for the second season is

Turn to SOCCER, page 10

Minutemen to face North Carolina in NIT semi-finals Page 12

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

49° Monday November 22, 1993 Volume CIII Issue 51

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

I call it, 'Ode to the Library'

GORDON FENWICK/COLLEGIAN

University of Massachusetts student Christopher Hewat jams in the shadow of the Tower Library.

Conference helps new trading rules

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press

SEATTLE — The Clinton administration is claiming a huge psychological boost as it turns ', attention from Asia-Pacific summitry ,o winning completion in Geneva of a long-stalled set of new global trading rules.

Leaders who participated in the three-day conference of Pacific Rim nations said the meetings in Seattle would help put pressure on reluctant Europeans to complete a round of trade liberalization moves by the Dec. 15 deadline.

"The president has had a terrific week," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley." "He has completed tow parts of this triple play" with the successful Asian summit and the passage this week of the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"I don't think our partners in Geneva have missed the significance of what's happened here," U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor said in Seattle.

Kantor is expected to press the point Monday in talks in Washington with Leon Brittain, trade commissioner for the 12-nation European Community.

Participants in the 17-nation Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation conference—ranging from close U.S. allies to Chinese President and Communist Party leader Jiang Zemin—were quick to pronounce the summit a success.

"One must not exaggerate. There are still great differences among the members. But a start has been made," said Hamish Macleod, Hong Kong's finacial secretary.

And Jiang, while refusing to yield on President Clinton's demands that China do more on human rights and in other trade areas, was upbeat about the meeting itself — particularly the informal heads-of-state session that Clinton hosted Saturday at a lodge on Blake Island in Puget Sound.

"APEC should be open, flexible and loose," Jiang said. "The meeting was successful and it will have a positive impact."

Christopher said he was proud of the way Clinton handled the human rights issue with Jiang, and that while there were no great accomplishments, "the meeting was the message."

Adminstration officials were jubilant over what they saw as one of the best few days of Clinton's presidency: an enormous congressional victory in passing NAFTA, followed by a warm reception in Seattle — even from Asian leaders who had eyed him suspiciously at first.

"I think we will look back in 10 or 20 years and consider this leaders' conference a turning point in the Asia-Pacific history in terms of symbolism and in terms of the beginning to move toward a genuine community," said Winston Lord, assistant secretary of state of East Asian affairs.

The leaders liked the idea of the conference — the largest gathering of Asian leaders ever — so much that they even agreed to sessions — rivalling the annual economic summits of the Group of Seven Western industrialized democracies — was a distinct possibility.

The leaders promised to work more

Turn to CONFERENCE, page 2

Jewish medical ethics featured

Grodin to discuss role of Jewish tradition in medicine

By JAMES SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

What does the Jewish tradition have to say on such issues as abortion, "pulling the plug," and the allocation of scarce medical resources?

Dr. Michael Grodin, professor at Boston University Schools of Medicine and Public Health, will attempt to answer these questions for the UMass community in an address on "Jewish Ethics and Medicine", part of the "Judaism and Social Issues" Lecture Series sponsored by UMass Hillel and Judaic Studies.

Grodin's speech will take place today, at 4 p.m., in the Campus Center, room 163.

Educated at such schools as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Albert Einstein College of Medicine and performing postdoctoral work at UCLA and Harvard, Grodin has a long and diverse list of credentials and service to the medical community both at the local and international level, including work as a consultant on Ethics and Research with Human Subjects for the International Organizations of Medical Sciences and the World Health Organization.

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter, director of Hillel House, said he hopes that not just the Jewish community but the entire UMass community will attend Grodin's lecture.

"The Jewish tradition has a lot to say about the different ethical issues of today," Perlmutter said, including the medical issues of abortion, the right to die, and the allocation of medical resources.

This Jewish perspective on such medical and ethical issues can be an important part of a "diverse education," Perlmutter said.

Grodin was co-editor of two books for the Oxford University Press, The Nazi Doctors and the Nuremberg Code: Human Rights in Human Experimentation and Children as Research Subjects: Science, Ethics and Law. He has also served as a consultant for a Responsa on Death and Dying written for the Jewish Law Committee.

However, Perlmutter said although such topics as abortion, the right to die and scarce medical resources have broad medical, religious and ethical perspectives, they also have a personal perspective as well. Such as the personal perspective woman have in the topic of abortion, Perlmutter said.

COURTESY HILLEL

Dr. Michael Grodin, professor at Boston University's School of Medicine and Public Health.

Court ruling may derail Clinton policy

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A court decision against the Pentagon's ban on gays in the military could undermine the new "don't ask, don't tell" policy that President Clinton is about to sign into law, say legal experts on both sides of the issue.

The decision last week by a federal appeals court panel that the U.S. Naval Academy could not expel a midshipman solely on the basis of his homosexual status was "a pretty resounding loss for the government," said Mary Cheh, a constitutional law scholar at George Washington University.

Cheh and other legal experts say that if upheld on futher appeal, the decision undermines the compromise that president Clinton struck with the Pentagon and Congress on the politically sensitive issue.

But they say it is likely that the panel's ruling would be reversed if reconsidered by the full U.S. circuit Court of Appeals of Presidents Reagan and Bush.

The experts noted that the Supreme Court would also be likely to side with the Clinton administration because it has long history of refusing to second-guess military policy, even when individual rights are at stake.

But Kathleen Sullivan, a Stanford University law professor, wouldn't rule out an ultimate Supreme Court victory for homosexuals in uniform.

Turn to POLICY, page 6

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, November 22

Lecture — Dr. Michael Grodin will speak on "Birth, Life, Death: Jewish Ethics and Medicine" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163. The event is sponsored by UMass Hillel and Judaic Studies.

Table — There will be a table on the Campus Center Concourse today supporting the "Free Ron Arad" campaign for an Israeli pilot shot down over Syria.

Budget packets — RSOs interested in petitioning the Sudent Government Association for a budget must pick up a budget packet in the SGA office. For more information, call 545-0341 or stop by 420 Student Union.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Tuesday, November 23

Meeting — The Undergraduate Economics Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Machmer W-24.

Lecture — MichaelAnn Bewsee and Michael Lindberg of Arise for Social Justice will speak on "The Homeless and the Uninsured: Similarities and Differences" from 11:15 a.m. to 13:30 p.m. in Hasbrouck 230. The lecture is sponsored by the School of Public Health.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Ongoing

Bus trip tickets — Commuter Area Government is sponsoring a Dec. 11 trip to New York City. Tickets are $20, and can be purchased at the Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Free trade worldwide in doubt

By CLARE NULLIS
Associated Press

GENEVA — NAFTA is finally set to make the world's largest free-trade zone a reality. But an even bigger deal to open markets worldwide may remain a dream.

Seven-year-old talks sponsored by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade face a Dec. 15 deadline to reach agreement on what would be the most far-reaching trade liberalizing package ever.

The aim is to cut barriers to exports of everything from beef to beer and from textiles to telecommunications.

Potential economic gains are huge — more than $200 billion per year, according to some estimantes— and optimism is high.

"I think we're going to make it," U.S. negotiator John Schmidt said after Congress cleared the North American Free Trade Agreement. "It's going to happen," said EC negotiator Hugo Paemen.

But the obstacles to an accord are daunting, and GATT chief Peter Sutherland and other free-trade proponents warn that trade wars, prolonged world recession and instability could result if they are not overcome.

"I will do anything and everything that is necessary to help this round come to a conclusion," said Sutherland. "The only thing I can't do is be a magician. Whereas one can bring horses to the water, they have to decide themselves whether they want to drink or not."

The two main "horses" are the United Sates and the 12-nation European Community. Their trade chiefs meet in Washington on Monday for further efforts to hammer out the differences.

High on the agenda is the long-standing row over cuts in farm subsidies. France has threatened to veto a U.S.-EC accord reached one year ago and turned defense of its farmers into a point of national honor.

U.S. trade officals have denied reports that Washington might be willing to reopen talks on the so-called Blair House accord. Even if Washington wanted to, there would only be limited scope for change.

■ conference

continued from page 1

closely in the future to promote trade and economic growth in the region. They also directed their finance ministers to meet in March in the United States to discuss economic trends and flows of capital across borders.

And leaders issued an appeal aimed a Europe to help end a logjam that is holding up a new set of liberalized trade rules being negotiated by 108 nations under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Most participants in the conference also agreed to cut tariffs on many goods traded among themselves.

Clinton's next project is trying to wrap up he GATT trade talks by the Dec. 15 deadline so they can be submitted to Congress.

The major dispute in Geneva is over agricultural trade — with the United States and most other nations favoring easing farm subsidies and European nations, particularly France, seeking to continue them.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One-Way Roundtrip
LONDON
$140 $280
PARIS
$209 $418
AMSTERDAM
$195 $390
FRANKFURT
$209 $418
Roundtrip
TOKYO
$769
Fares from over 75 U.S. cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid for one year. Most tickets allow changes. Eurail passes issued on the spot.
Custom, Immigration & departure taxes apply.
Fares subject to change w/out notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave. NY,NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*in NYC

The Massachusetts Daily
Collegian
Almost as stimulating as your morning coffee

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

I wish I may. I wish I might I wish I get my Mass Daily Collegian Tonight
Daily Since 1967

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Mullins Center Racquetball Tournament
December 2-5, 1993
Tournament for players of all ages and abilities.
Double elimination singles tournament - 32 players
Single elimination doubles tournament - 16 teams
Two men's divisions - Two women's divisions
One doubles division
First 50 entries receive a complimentary T-Shirt
Entry forms available at the Mullins Center Ice Rink
Tournament sponsored by Klein's All Sports
For more information call 545-4770

The Massachusetts Daily
Collegian
TRAVEL NICE HOME FINE CAR GOOD SALARY
Come and lead the good life
Campus Center 113

Just ended a relationship?
Want a place to talk about it?
Come to
Letting Go and Moving on
A weekly drop-in support and educational group at Mental Health Services
Mondays 1:30-3:00
Check in ten minutes before the group at 127 Hills North

BE AN R.A.
HELP SHAPE YOUR PIECE OF THE WORLD
Applications for Spring 1994 RESIDENT ASSISTANT Positions Now Being Accepted.
Applications Available in Cluster Offices
DUE NOVEMBER 22, 1993

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan and Geri Sahn

Professor named to food science post

Bruce P. Wasserman of Rutgers University was named the first Carl A. Fellers Visiting Professor in the department of food science.

The professorship was named by for Carl A. Fellers, the former department head and faculty member in the '30s and '40s and is funded by the Fellers endowment. It was established to mark the 75th anniversary of the food science department.

Wasserman is known for his teaching methods in food biochemistry and biotechnology and his research on the structure and biosynthesis of cellulose and starch.

He will institute undergraduate and graduate seminar courses and promote the study of food biotechnology, give departmental lectures and conduct research.

Student gets 'blue light special'

Katherine Labonte, a junior marketing major at the University, has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship from the K-Mart Corporation.

Labonte, a Chicopee native, participated in a 12-week internship program with K-Mart this summer and assisted in managing a store in Holyoke.

She was selected for the award because of her exemplary performance, according to a K-Mart press release.

Math professor honored for volunteer teaching

Edward A. Connors, professor in the department of mathematics and statistics at the University, was honored by the Easthampton School Committee for his volunteer help to the students preparing for the Advanced Placement examination in calculus.

Connor taught a group of eight students in the high school for an hour every morning before teaching his classes at the University.

He volunteered to help the students because the course was going to be cancelled due to insufficient funding.

UMass linebacker receives scholarship for academics

Philip Curtin, a fourth-year exercise science major at the University, received the Bernard P. Busses scholarship for having a high academic standing.

The scholarship is given annually to a University football player whose academics are on good standing.

The scholarship was first established by the family of Bernard Bussel because of his love for the University and athletics. The scholarship specifically commemorates his pleasure for football and mathematics.

Graduate program awards The Byron Prize

The graduate program in molecular and cellular biology at the University has created a prize named for former dean of the College of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, Frederick W. Byron Jr.

The Byron Prize will be given every year to the most prominent doctoral thesis in molecular and cellular biology.

Both a plaque and $1,000 will be awarded to the winners.

The prize honors both Byron's participation in establishing the University's molecular and cellular biology program in 1982 and his commitment to the program afterwards.

Lecturer calls for health changes

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

"A new paradigm of women's health is needed," according to a lecturer on women's health issues.

Janet B. Henrich, M.D., from the Yale University School of Medicine, spoke Thursday night at Mount Holyoke College. She is working on developing a Women's Health Studies program at Yale. Henrich has also worked at the National Institute of Health as Co-Director of the Women's Health Program.

Henrich said previously women's health care had focused mainly on reproduction and younger women. However, she said, with the increasing life spans of women and men, women's health care needs more to address issues like menopause, osteoporosis and breast cancer.

There is currently a grassroots movement for women's health care developing, Henrich said. It is expressing women's discontent with the lack of information regarding their health and the paternalistic nature of medicine she said.

In 1985, the United States Public Health Service developed a task force on women's health. Henrich said the task force developed a definition for women's health which essentially used men as an example of "normal" and women as "different."

They claimed, according to Henrich, that any "disease or condition that are unique to or more prevalent or serious in women, have distinct causes or manifest differently in women or have different outcomes or interventions" would qualify as a women's health issue.

Women were and are excluded from many studies and research endeavors Henrich said. As a result of this exclusion, it is very difficult to gain insight into the different effects of diseases upon the sexes.

To illustrate the severity of such lack of information, Henrich used the example of heart disease. Heart disease is a leading cause of death in women and men she said. However, Henrich said, "once women develop heart disease, their outcome is different from men."

In 1990, the National Institute of Health created the Office of Research of Women's Health. Its goals, according to Henrich, were to increase the number of women in studies and the research efforts in studies that already include women and to increase the women in biomedical careers.

Women are becoming increasingly more vocal and influential about health care issues Henrich said. "Women as consumers of health care are dissatisfied," she said.

The Breast Cancer Coalition, Henrich said, has become the largest health related lobby group. "This influx of women has called attention to sexual harassment and women's health care issues," she said.

Henrich said, it is projected that in the year 2010, 30 percent of the physician workforce will be female. A study of the number of female faculty members in the United States Medical Schools shows an increase from 15.4 percent in 1980 to 20.8 percent in 1990, Henrich said.

However, Henrich said, few of these women are tenured, most are assistant professors and none are board members.

Henrich also said often women interested in the medical field are "herded" into primary care jobs, obstetrics and gynecology and psychiatry. The primary care jobs, she said, tend to pay less and involved more time with patients.

Turn to HEALTH, page 6

No butts about it

GORDON FENWICK/COLLEGIAN
You can breathe a little easier in the Campus Center nowadays because people are smoking outside, thanks to the campus-wide smoking ban.

Casino lends a helpful hand

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

The Everywomans' Center was the benefit of the 32nd annual "Las Vegas Night" this past Thursday night in the Campus Center Auditorium. The event was sponsored by service fraternity Alpha Phi Omega, a non-profit organization that next year will celebrate its 50th anniversary of service at the University of Massachusetts.

Many of the approximately 200 people who attended benefited as well, as the end of the night brought an auction with over $1,200 in prizes that players waged mock bidding wars for, using thousands of dollars worth of fake greenbacks they won throughout the four-hour event.

On the stage was an array of prizes donated by local merchants such as the World Market, Musicland, Kinko's, the Wholesale Depot, the Mercantile, and the Lord Jeffrey Inn.

The Inn's recompensation, a $60 gift certificate for two at the Boltwood Tavern, netted the highest bid of the night, relieving its final buyer of $200,000 after a lengthy round of one-upping.

"Every year we choose a campus service in need," said Alpha Phi Omega's vice president Karen Pudelko of the annual fundraiser. "Last year it was the library, and the year before that, the escort service. The last few years we've had this event, it's been kind of slow, but even so I think everyone has a lot of fun."

Some of the service fraternity's past projects include "Scout University," where they helped 150 Boy and Girl Scouts from the tri-county area achieve badges with a series of presentations, and "Scouting for Food," a canned food drive where the Boy Scouts brought in canned goods and the fraternity brought them to a local food bank.

Last night, the plan was incorporating the public as well. Casino fans had a pick of blackjack, five-card-draw poker, roullette, craps, wheel of fortune, and a dice game called "chuck-a-luck" to choose from as they worked from the $5,000 in bogus cash they were given upon entering. Set aside from the rest of the action were two higher-stakes poker tables, where the minimum bet was $1,000.

Graduate student and Alpha Phi Omega brother (the term is used unisexually, according to Pudelko) Mary Kate Behlke, who ran the chuck-a-luck table, felt the event was successful in many ways.

"It's our main event of the year, and it's good that we can all raise money for a worthwhile cause and enjoy ourselves," she said. "It's a way to gamble without risking real bread, plus it's almost guaranteed that everyone will go away with something that at least makes up for the five-dollar entrance fee."

"It was a fun night. The friendly dealers and the people playing set the atmosphere up for a night in Vegas," said Jodie Gwozdz, a freshman animal science major.

Three cable stations to air program taped at UM

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

She's loud, she's obnoxious and she's back! Suzi Landolphi and her "Hot, Sexy & Safer" program, which was taped on the University of Massachusetts campus this past May, will be televised on the USA Network, Comedy Central and the Playboy Channel during the month of December.

This program, which is being aired on December 3 and 30, was supported by Cable Positive, the cable television industry's AIDS action organization, which is dedicated to promoting AIDS awareness.

Taped in front of a packed Bowker Auditorium, "Hot, Sexy & Safer" was part theater, part stand-up and part lecture performed by Landolphi to help get the facts about AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases across to the hundreds of students who attended.

Originally trained as a high school AIDS educator, Landolphi first used her comedic talent to get the safer sex message across at her boyfriend's college. From that point on history was being made as she toured across the country and visited such campuses as Boston College, the University of Southern California and Rutgers.

Landolphi has made such an impact on college campuses she was nominated by the National Association for Campus Activities for "Lecturer of the Year" and for the Harry Chapin Humanitarian Award. She also was the celebrity spokesperson for the first National Children with HIV/AIDS Awareness Day in 1991.

But, not everyone is impressed with Landolphi's unique brand of humor. This past summer, parents of three Chelmsford High School students filed a $3.5 million lawsuit against her and the Chelmsford School District. The parents charged that Landolphi's program which was performed at the high school, contributed to the deliquency of minors.

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO
Host of 'Hot, Sexy & Safer,' Suzi Landolphi.

Photos cause concern

Privacy the major issue being discussed

By MARTIN FINUCANE
Associated Press

BOSTON — Fourteen states and two Canadian provinces are embarking on plans to use digitized photographs of drivers on licenses, adding people's faces to their already-vast computer files.

Great, say the bureaucrats. Worrisome, say some privacy experts.

"Expecting the direct marketing industry not to exploit these pictures is like trying to roll a lamb chop past a wolf," said Evan Hendricks, editor of the Washington-based Privacy Times newsletter.

But Richard Barton, senior vice president for government affairs at the Direct Marketing Association Inc., said, "I can't think of any direct marketing use" for the photos.

The collection of the pictures in computer files adds a new twist to the debate over access to state motor vehicle department computer records.

Legislation in Congress would block the departments from releasing personal information about people to random callers. Criminals and others could use the information to stalk, harass or initiate unsolicited contact with people, the bill's proponents say.

The law also would allow people to check a box to prevent motor vehicle department information from going to direct marketing firms, which collect and analyze the data to build mailing lists.

The photographs would be protected under the legislation, which was part of the anti-crime bill approved Friday in the Senate, a staffer said in the office of legislation sponsor Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

Gary Nishite, technology chief in California's Department of Motor Vehicles, which pioneered the high-tech licenses, said storing 14 million pictures of the state's drivers makes it easier to replace or renew licenses.

He said he envisions the day a driver with a good record could move from Massachusetts, which plans its own $7.4 million system, to California and have a picture transmitted through phone lines to California where it would be placed on a new license.

Others see the new technology in less rosy terms.

"It would be the first time the government would have a photo file of virtually every citizen. Once that file is established, bureaucrats can find all sorts of uses for it," said Robert Ellis Smith, publisher of the Providence, R.I.-based Privacy Journal.

Hendricks said mailing list companies could search photo files to find people who need toupees or dental work.

"They could write, 'We checked out your picture and you were having a bad hair day,'" he said.

One major company that uses motor vehicle data for mailing lists, however, expressed no interest in the pictures.

"I don't know how we would use that information," said Dick Holloway, senior vice president at the automotive data services division of R.L. Polk & Co.

Some observers worry that police could misuse the pictures.

Andrew Good, a defense attorney who is on the board of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts, said the collection of photos raises the specter of universal identification cards, which, in some countries, have been tools of oppression.

"It's the beginning of a very dangerous power in the government's hands," he said.

Good said he worries that police could use the photo files to create photo lineups for witnesses to pick out suspected criminals.

"Rather than showing an array of mug shots... now you're going to sit in front of a computer terminal and show them eight jillion people with the potential for a very serious identification problem," he said.

Dateline: UMass/Amherst

Are you interested in working on the Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England? Are there things that you would change about the Massachusetts Daily Collegian if you were the one in charge? Well, now's your chance to stop thinking about it and put your money where your mouth is. The Collegian is now accepting applications for paid editorships for next semester.

The following positions are available:

Editor in Chief
Managing Editor
Arts & Living
Black Affairs
Developing Nations
Editorial/Opinion
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
Jewish Affairs
Multicultural Affairs
News
Photography
Sports
Women's Issues

UMass undergraduates interested in any of these positions must fill out an application by 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3. Candidates' Night begins at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5, and elections will be held on Monday, Dec. 6.

For more information or an application, see Darienne Hosley in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center Basement.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Did his administration or a bullet make JFK a king?

In 1960, Americans went to the polls and elected a bright young man to be their president. Smiling, tanned, and wavy-haired, Jack Kennedy was the most vivacious person to serve in that office in memory.

At his inauguration, Kennedy reinvigorated a nation with promise, and woke them up with a feeling of hope and expectation from a decade when they had been asleep, a decade of Cold War in the news and hot war in Korea, a decade of air raid sirens, civil rights demonstrations, and greasy-haired teenage rebellion. Kennedy offered the next generation's youth and vigor.

Within three years of his inauguration, Kennedy was placed in a casket and a riderless horse paced through the streets of Washington. His beautiful young wife's pink dress was splattered with blood, and the new president, Lyndon Johnson, tripped and fell into Vietnam.

Thirty years have passed from that moment — 1:30 p.m., Eastern time — when watchers of afternoon soap operas had their melodramas interrupted with the flash of the words "Special Report," and the appearance of Walter Cronkite on the screen. Thirty years, and now a time to once again review the question: John Fitzgerald Kennedy. How good a president?

For much of the hope and promise ended shortly after Kennedy's inaugural speech. The new president, later found to have probably stolen the election from then-Vice-President Richard Nixon through falsified vote counts, implemented many more clandestine plans to alter world affairs, including several attempts to use the CIA to kill Cuban leader Fidel Castro. Kennedy's early bumblings in foreign policy lessened the image of the United States in the eyes of the world, while the new president ignored domestic policy. Civil rights concerns were allowed to rise to a boiling point before the federal government intervened, and even then Kennedy took only minimal action because he feared losing the South when he sought re-election.

Peter
ORVETTI

Kennedy's failings in his first year came to a head with the invasion of Cuba at the Bay of Pigs, when Kennedy, having implemented the invasion by Cuban nationals living in the U.S., again gave in to political considerations and refused to offer air support. Instead, the Cubans Kennedy had sent to Cuba died on the beach.

A year later, Kennedy brought the nation to the brink of World War III over Soviet missiles in Cuba. While the careful handling of the situation on both sides averted destruction, there were great flaws in the decision process that ended up bringing the world as close to the brink as it has ever come.

By this point, Kennedy's domestic program was still rated mediocre. His greatest concern was with the perceptions game being played with the Soviets over advancements in space technology. He declared that Americans would be on the moon by the end of the decade — they would be, but the stagnation at home would persist.

By the time he flew to Dallas, again on a political mission, John Kennedy had led the most ineffective presidency since Herbert Hoover. His administration vastly increased surveillance activities on Americans, including Martin Luther King, Jr., and brought about infighting between government agencies. Those who knew him have said that JFK thought war was fun; expecting Vietnam to compare to his own PT-109 adventures in the Pacific, he pressed ahead in that war, leaving Johnson with a mess that could not be cleaned up. Tensions with the Soviets were at a peak, as were tensions between the races at home. A smile and a wave could not repair this damage.

It is not the time to condemn Kennedy as we have in the past praised him. But now, 30 years later, we can move past November 22, 1963, and judge Kennedy not solely on his last day in office, when he took a bullet and was frozen in time, but on each of the thousand days before it.

Peter Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Bleeding blue? Yeah right.

I've had dreams in my lifetime. Actually, I still have plenty. One thing I have realized is when you become content with what you have, life becomes pretty boring. So I try to keep the faith that things I want will one day be mine. As Wayne from Aurora says, "Oh, yes, it will be mine."

Arthur
STAPLETON JR.

But life is not that simple, and some dreams are never realized. I had a dream that began in seventh grade — in my mind I was going to Carolina. The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, that is. UNC was the one and only school I ever wanted to attend. I had Carolina hats, windbreakers, t-shirts, a garbage can. My mom even bought me a Tar Heel basketball hoop to put on my door for Christmas when I was a sophomore in high school.

I bled Carolina blue. Heck, it's my favorite color — the same color as a clear sky on a warm summer day. Sometimes my eyes are Carolina blue. It was meant to be; I was going to be a Tar Heel.

Well, reality set in come junior year in high school. The SAT scores came back and I did not do as well as I thought. I wasn't Tar Heel caliber anymore. But I applied anyway, thinking that a great, "kiss-ass" essay might give me a chance. I wrote about how I've always loved UNC, ever since Michael Jordan played for the men's basketball team.

I guess it would have been better to tell the Dean of Admissions I had four years to live and I wanted to spend them in Chapel Hill as a student. Oh, well, next time.

I'll never forget the waiting period and finally, the day. I pulled up to the curb in front of my house and before I could get out of my friend's car, my mom was out the door, waving a letter, yelling, "It's from North Carolina! It's from UNC!"

My heart stood still because I had already gotten into and visited the University of Massachusetts. I pretty much made my decision, but the thought of Chapel Hill was unexplainable. As soon as I felt the letter I knew I was not going to Carolina, so I opened it, laughed and packed my bags for Amherst.

Giving away my Carolina gear was fun. I didn't actually give it away — I just left it at home with my sister. Some people would think that I'm bitter over getting wait-listed. Nah, I know I could be the sports editor of the Daily Tarheel. Our basketball team could be the defending national champions. I could have the friends in Carolina that I have here in Amherst.

Yeah, right. I don't think I would want my life any other way. I'm on top of the world here at Massachusetts. My friends, and you know who you are, couldn't ever be matched by those students wearing blue. I bet UNC doesn't have Student Union rallies, newspaper take-overs, free lunches with the Chancellor. Boy, would I really miss all of that?

If I went to Carolina, though, I wouldn't see a Chancellor buy all tickets to a basketball game for the students; I probably wouldn't drink as much as I do here; I'd have a longer ride home to New Jersey; and finally, I wouldn't experience Death Roe.

So now my dream comes back to haunt me this Wednesday night when we play No. 1 North Carolina in the semi-finals of the NIT Tournament. I thought I'd never have a chance to cover a game involving Dean Smith, the coach of UNC. I will because I'm a journalist now for the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, and I'll be broadcasting the game on the radio.

I hate to say it, but I now bleed maroon and white.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Liberal politics just won't cut it

As the Board of Trustees meeting nears, the excitement in the SGA office grows. It is the moment of truth we all have been waiting for since this summer, when the agenda was set: restore litigation rights.

It was then too, that the strategy and tactics were worked out: lobby state representatives and senators, act like adults, look responsible, get cozy with anyone who will support us on this and maybe we will win partial litigation rights.

Not full litigation rights which would include the right to sue the University if it were to violate a student's basic civil rights, but partial rights, just enough to put the fear of God in local landlords.

Every person I have spoken to has been in support of this issue. But to be honest, none have been actually excited by it. For some reason, the strategy of looking adult, moving slowly, making friendly overtures to any V.I.P. who looks accessible — has convinced students that being politically active in pursuit of student power is a worthwhile activity. I think it is, and I will be there for the Trustees when they meet. Because I am not a spoiler, I believe in student power.

But for the disempowered and unexcited majority, liberal politics just doesn't cut it. Our very progressive student leaders have skirted the most important issue, consistently, since the beginning of the semester. They admit to it saying, "Just wait to next semester after the litigation business is over."

When it comes to demanding and taking political power away from the administration, the trustees, or the state house, there will always be more pressing business, because the powers that be, always have diversions to keep us weak. Making us look busy, useful, and important, is one of their tactics. It is called co-optation. And the first step is a handshake with a suit, before you know it you're wearing a suit as well.

The real progressive agenda has to do with poor, working class students, including the vast majority of people of color in this state, from families that will not and cannot afford to borrow up to $20,000. They aren't here. They might want to be, but raising tuition and fees by 125 percent over the past five years spoiled it for them.

Having the proportion of loans to grants in financial aid packages rise dramatically didn't help either. Collectively, we have failed to make this university accessible. Students who remain, for the most part not working class, or poor, have decided that litigation is a more worthy cause.

Good luck for all of us, because whether we win or lose on the partial litigation issue, liberal politics won't get us anywhere, no matter how well intentioned. And students who want real power and real changes, will have to face up to the fact that no one wins power will like them anymore. They might even accuse those students of being "radical."

Charles Lenchner, SGA Senator
Amherst

Now how's that for irony, Pilgrim?

At first I didn't pay much attention to the story about the guy in Virginia who got his penis cut off by his wife after he allegedly raped her. I was about to pass it off as little more than a tabloid-quality story, when the real significance of the event began to sink in. Sure, the story's got the violence, sex and revenge elements that we all love to hate but, oh, it means so much more. Let's take a moment and wax nostalgic.

His name is John frickin' Wayne. At first the significance may escape you but just think about it! John Wayne is the essence of the American frontiersman; the warring Green Beret; he is all that is macho and male, pilgrim. Just picture that tall, upright cowboy sitting erect in his saddle. If the Duke were anymore phallic he'd have a urethra where his Stetson should be.

Therefore, the thought of a castrated John Wayne driving around in the middle of the night, searching frantically for his missing weiner is a nightmare of Freudian proportions. If nothing else, one should recognize that a power greater than us all — call it karma, call it irony — did its work through John Wayne Bobbit or, more specifically, Mrs. Bobbit's deft handiwork.

So, for all you "penis-babies" out there, the era of machismo did not end with disco, nor did it end with "Iron John." It ended with one giant Ginsu-chop for women down in Virginia on the night of June 23, 1993.

Bryant McSmythe
Amherst

Piracy tales raising ire

By JOSE MARITINEZ
Associated Press

PROVINCETOWN, Ma. — Hendrick Quintor lived in a free democracy decades before slavery was abolished in the United States.

He also was a pirate, one more than 100 whose lives are overshadowed by controversy over their ship's slave galley past.

"The last thing Hendrick Quintor would want, I think, is not to have his story told," said Varry Cliffod, the professional slavor who in 1984 discovered the remains of the galley Whydah in the sand off Cape Cod.

Quintor was among the six men captured, tried and hanged as pirates after the ship wrecked in a storm off Wellfleet in April 1717.

While the trial was widely publicized in its day, few today know of the black sailor who turned to piracy, helped free other blacks from the decks of slave ships, and died at the end of a yard arm at 25.

But telling the story of the men who sailed with pirate captain Black Same Bellamy has met so much resistance that Clifford is contemplating taking them millions of dollars in artifacts and treasure on tour in Europe.

In nine years since the Whydah's discovery, the only successful display of has been at the small Provincetown Museum. The rest of the recomverd artifacts are in storage.

"I haven't by any means given up on this," Clifford said. "I hope they are still arguing about this 100 years from now."

So far, plans for larger exhibits twice have been scuttled in Boston. Earlier this year, developers withdrew their bid to build a 20-acre Whyday theme park in Tampa, Fla.

Each time, critics object to the ship's role in the slave trade, missing much of the Whydah's history in the heat of debate, said James Eaton, director of the Black Archives at Florida A&M University.

For starters, the pirates captured the Whydah from slavers on their way back to England from Jamaica in January, 1717. In the months that followed, Bellamy's gang freed at least 25 slaves from the decks of other ships.

And the Bellamy gang killed no one, while capturing 50 ships.

When the Whydah went down thatr April, 50 of the 102 men whose bodies wahsed ashore were blacks.

Eaton points out that slaves commonly fled plantations to sea ports in search of better treatment among pirates. Once aborad a ship, the escaped slaves were treated as equals, given the right to vote and an equal share in the loot.

In Provincetown, arcaeologis Ken Kinkor walks to a projection of the Whydah, cut away to reveal the lower decks. He points to the middle deck where each pirate kept a 50-pound bag of silver and gold.

Murder trials nears end

11-year-old boys will know fates soon

By KAREN DAVIES
Associated Press

PRESTON, England — Throughout the trial of two 11-year-old boys accused of battering a toddler to death, there were painful reminders that the alleged killers are themselves only children.

Child B said he didn't want to play hooky on Feb. 12, the day 2-year-old James Bulger straved from his mother in a Liverpool shopping mall, because he planned to care for the school's pet gerbils over a weeklong holiday.

"I wanted to take the gerbils home," the boy told police in an interview played in court during the three-week trial.

The 12-member jury will consider its verdict after the defense closes its case Monday. Both boys have pleaded innocent.

Under court order, the boys, who were 10 at the time of the killing, may be identified only as Child A and Child B.

The day of the tragedy, the truant boys stole snacks, drinks and model paint until they got what the prosecution alleges they were after — a small child.

"I wouldn't do anything like that with my other friends because they're good and I am too scared," Child B said of his truancy and shoplifting spree.

"But I don't want to play with him now," he added, explaining that Child A was too naughty.

Besides, he added, he believes his friend is a "girl" because he sucks his thumb.

Child A, normally composed, did suck his thumb in Preston Crown Court during testimony about how they walked and dragged James 2 1/2 miles across the darkening streets of Liverpool to a railway line. His battered body, sliced in two by a train, was found Feb. 14.

The boys stopped along the way at favorite haunts — a canal, a reservoir and a pet shop to look at fish swimming in a tank. They chatted to a friend.

No one stopped them, and though some adult witnesses said they felt uneasy, they accepted the boys' story that James was a little brother who had fallen down or that they were taking a lost boy to a police station. It never occurred to anyone the 10-year-olds were potential killers.

■ policy

continued from page 1

"It is just not inconcieveable that the Supreme Court would uphold his ruling," she said.

Gay rights "is the major unresolved constitutional social issue of our time," Sullivan said. "The constitutional wisdom is that the military is the last place you'd go and start a civil rights revolution — but tell that to Ruth Ginsburg."

Ginsburg, the high court's newest justice, won a 1973 Supreme Court decision in a sex discrimination case arguing that the husband of an Air Force officer was entitled to the same depended benefits as the Pentagon gave wives.

■ health

"Herding will continue to happen as long as men control the medical field," Henrich said. Henrich also said "75 percent of female physicians have been harassed by male collegues."

"A glass ceiling exists," she said. "The glass ceiling must be broken," Henrich said.

Henrich said ideas about women's health care need to change. "Our concept of women's health must exceed the boundaries set up by the current medical establishment," she said.

"Women's health must respond to the traditionally, economically and socially oppressed in society," Henrich said.

Free wheeling

BRIDGET GURSIA / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Matt Jenkins lets his hair down as he cruises around the Student Union.

Winter Intersession 1994

Make Your Winter Break Really Count!

January 3 - 15

Don't put your education on ice this Winter Break – enroll in UMass Lowell's Winter Intersession. This highly concentrated session is perfect if you want to earn college credit to get ahead in your educational program. If you're enrolled in another university, it's a great way to earn transfer credits!

Day Classes: Mon-Sat, 9:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Evening Classes: Mon-Fri, 6:00-9:30 p.m. and Sat, 1:00-4:30 p.m.

Credit Courses (3 credits) available in:
• Liberal Arts • Sciences • Mathematics • Computers • Social Sciences • Management • Music

Cost: $100/undergraduate credit

UMASS LOWELL Continuing Education

For a Winter Intersession Course Bulletin, call the Division of Continuing Education/Office of Enrollment Services at (508) 934-2480. Or just fill out the coupon below and mail it to: University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Avenue, Lowell, MA 01854-2881.

AP
Name: _____
Address: _____
City: _____ State: ____ Zip: _____
Phone: ( ) _____
Institution Currently Attending: _____

UMASS LOWELL Continuing Education

UMassLowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Title IX University

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO

EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES

WITH THIS AD Additional 10% off any one item

We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies, Posters, Portfolios
Special Orders Encouraged
65 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01003
413-253-5592

HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8, Saturday 9:30-5:30, Sunday 12-5

MONDAY NIGHT COACH'S CORNER 7:30-8:30
Followed by NFL Monday Night Football

TALK Football with Mike Hodges

•Free T - Shirts
• Halftime Appetizer Blitz
•Pre-game Buffet

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

CNN WTTT AM 1430

Arts & Living

Amateur group stages creative, engaging Pippin

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

Pippin
Bowker Auditorium
Nov. 17, 1993

COLLEGIAN ILLUSTRATION BY SHAWN MCDONNELL

Adam Goldman (center) with Ken Ward, Kelly Hines and the cast of Pippin.

Pippin, the eponymous star of Stephen Schwartz's musical, is a hero of questionable charm. The first son of Charlemagne the Great, and eldest brother to Lewis the Great, Pippin is sorely lacking in his family's royal fire. Gangly and awkward, with cloudy and inattentive eyes, Pippin has focused his energies on books and equations while his kin fought their wars — and through a childhood squandered on education, he has learned only that he is unhappy.

"There has to be something more than this," he says.

Casting off his mortarboard and robes, Pippin ambles into the world, trying to discover what he is missing. Frowning his unfulfilled way through glory and adventure, Pippin is a musical comedy hero trapped in a musical comedy against his will — who can sing an engaging love song called "love song," and promptly lose interest in his leading lady.

As played by Adam Goldman, Pippin is terminally aloof — from the odd, meandering gait which makes his body unsure of where its going, to the glassy expression he has when embracing a relative or making love. This Pippin has been entirely consumed by an ideal life he hasn't found yet.

Urged on by the Ken Ward's manic Leading Player (a combination greek chorus and devil's advocate) Pippin continues seeking that "glorious synthesis of life and death" which will make him extraordinary.

In many respects, this journey of introspective adventurism is rooted firmly in the find-yourself period of the early seventies, when Pippin was created. But in the hands of director Elise Schild, this beguiling dazzler of a show seems no more dated than your last pleasant dream.

When Pippin casts off the meretricious dazzle of armor and awards, to find comfort in the simple domesticity he once feared, it is a theatrical moment worth cheering.

Pippin is, by far and away, the best musical I have seen produced on this campus. More than that, it is one of the most engagingly lively and creative productions I have seen staged by any amateur group, anywhere. Schild, Schwartz, and Hirson lift the audience on wings of pure bliss, and fly them to a theatrical neverland of magic shows and miracles — which reveals, in one perfect moment, all the welcome comfort of our own lives and families.

That's not so bad, for the end of a musical comedy.

Enticing Shoes, stalled Eleven

The Red Shoes
Kate Bush
Columbia Records

Struggle as you may to hold every one of Ms. Bush's works beside her prior efforts, it's necessary to realize each should stand on its own. And each of Ms. Bush's works does stand on its own as a unique experience. The Red Shoes is no exception.

Kate Bush may have the most undeniably dramatic, sexually enticing voices today. "Rubber Band Girl" shows that even in Bush's playfulness and goofiness, she demands attention.

With a backup of strings, bowls and the usual instruments, Bush is free to use her vocal capabilities however she pleases. "Eat the Music" glows with airy and lifting vocals playing over breezy backup voices and an array of brass instruments. It's pretty mesmerizing stuff. A- (Adam Goulston)

Eleven
Eleven
Third Rail Records

These kids should lighten up. They'd like to be rock stars and they do rock, but it's so bluntly formulaic, Eleven isn't worth the time.

To his credit, Alex Johannes does a great Billy Squier impersonation on "Reach Out." The organ accompaniment of Natasha Shneider is commendable as is her voice on "Towers." This one, however, stalls on the runway. D+ (A.G.)

Trax On Trax Off

Gentlemen
The Afghan Whigs
Elektra

Greg Dulli has one of the most identifiable voices in his musical field today. It's completely genuine and angry. Thankfully, Dulli has lost little of his composed fire on his Cincinnati band's major label debut.

Congregation was an accomplishment in 1992 amidst a time of great emulation. On it, the Whigs somehow found a unique voice and identity on the Sub Pop label. And while Gentlemen is a let down in that it has really built on what Congregation started, it is still a success.

The title track explores a funkier groove than anything the band has done to date. Surprisingly, Dulli's

Turn to TRAX, page 8

The Club

The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.

Buy next semester's membership now and get intersession free!

Pay $140 Today & Secure Your Membership From 12/23/93-5/31/94

• Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
• Unlimited Aerobics
• Cardiovascular Machines
• Tanning
• 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
• 2 Racquetball Courts
• Child Care
• On Bus Route

Pay $9.50/Week for the Rest of the Fall Semester

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

DOMINO'S PIZZA

NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S

How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.

Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111

Open For Lunch at 11 AM

AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan

VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99

LARGE CHEESE $6.99
$1.25 each add. topping

MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99
.99¢ each add. topping

Any Two Large Subs $7.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

■ Trax

continued from page 7

voice excels in such a format.

A true deviation is the song "My Curse" which borrows the vocals of Columbus, Ohio's Marcy Mays. Her Nico-esque strains placed on the Whigs' consistent backup is a different experience entirely.

"Ladies let me tell you about myself/ I got a dick for a brain/ and my brain is gonna sell my ass to you," echoes Dulli on "Be Sweet." He is truly a gentleman. B (A.G.)

COURTESY D.A. FLEISCHER

The Afghan Whigs

Cordelia's Dad sounds off at the Iron Horse

COURTESY KIRSTEN F. TARNOWSKI

Cordelia's Dad will return to the Pioneer Valley tonight for a show at the Iron Horse. An established favorite in the Amherst/Northampton area, the band's third album, 'The Joy Fun Garden,' is in stores now.

By MATT AUDETTE
Collegian Correspondent

Tonight the valley proudly welcomes the return of local heroes Cordelia's Dad as they stop at the Iron Horse in Northampton to support their latest release, The Joy Fun Garden.

Formed in 1986 by Amherst College students vocalist/bassist Tim Erickson, guitarist Tom King and drummer Peter Irvine, the group originally started as a cover band, playing parties, but quickly decided this was not the route they wanted to take.

Adopting the name Cordelia's Dad (which comes from Shakspeare's King Lear for all you thespians), they began combining traditional folk songs with a modern rock twist, coming up with what the band describes as "folknoise."

While the band's self-titled debut album, which was released on Ohio's OKra Records in April of 1990, definitely had the sound of rock, its soul was pure folk. Containing electrified versions of classic folk songs such as "Will The Circle Be Unbroken," "Rolling Down Old Maui," "Scarbourough Fair" and "Banks Of Lee," the band breathed new life into old standards while opening the doors for a whole new musical genre. The album was well received by critics and embraced by lovers of rock music as well as folk, and quickly made a dent in college charts across the country.

Opting for a different approach, the band released its sophomore effort How Can I Sleep in 1992, which went light on the electric guitars and heavy on traditional sounding folk melodies and acoustic instruments, mixing originals with covers, quickly squelching any beliefs that the band needed feedback in order to be effective.

With their third release in stores and already an established favorite in the Amherst/Northampton area, Cordelia's Dad may be destined for great things.

Sign up now for Winter Session. You won't regret it!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building

545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

ALL UNIVERSITY WOMEN INVITED TO OPEN HOUSE AT ΣΔΤ
Monday, November 22, 1993
8-10pm
409 N. Pleasant St. • For info call Brooke at 549-6395

Mass. Daily Collegian
Chemically formulated for your enjoyment

Eating Disorder Programs • Fall 1993

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

READING BY ABBY
PALM TAROT & ESP READING
HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE
All Readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed
10:00 A.M. To 6 P.M.
218 Russell Street Route 9 Hadley, MA 01035
(413) 586-6711
Walk-ins Welcome

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS

WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

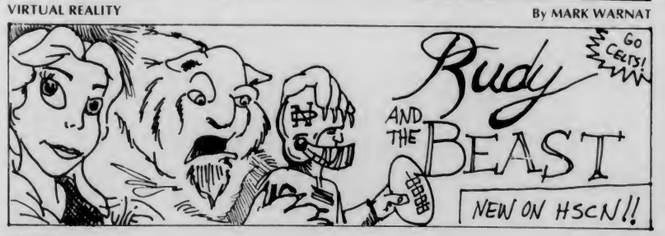
Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM



DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

STEVE By MATT PAQUETTE

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

GLEESON By DAVE

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"The signs that might be omens say I'm goin'/ goin'/ I'm gone to Carolina in my mind."

– James Taylor

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Continued moderation in spending is necessary. Loved one is less sensitive than yesterday. Concentrate on a favorite hobby or avocation. A broken romance is possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain valuable insights from someone you never talked to before. A child has a positive influence on your career. A relative who says something in anger does not really mean it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Postpone a major career decision until next week. Continue to woo the object of your affections for a while longer. A change in approach could make you a winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Put your family first but spend time with other people too. A far-fetched scheme sounds more reasonable than it did previously. New acquaintances add excitement to the evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep your suggestions to yourself rather than disrupt a family gathering. Relish the recent changes in your life. Acknowledge mistakes made in the past without dwelling on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stop judging your children so harshly; be more tactful. Romance is on a smooth course. Confide your hopes and ambitions to someone who will safeguard your secrets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A clean-up program helps you beautify your environment considerably. Inspect sales merchandise carefully before making purchases. Loved ones are in a friendly, receptive mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Buying in bulk is a great way for families to reduce their grocery bills. Although your finances are still less than ideal, the situation is not critical.

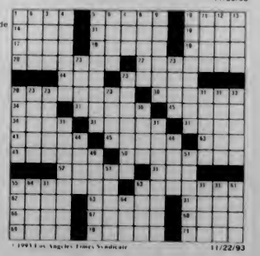
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): All forms of gambling are best avoided. Something said in jest could be taken the wrong way. An apology and small gift is a fine way to make amends. Romance blossoms anew.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Events taking place at a distance could alter your plans. Travel should be postponed. You can keep things together if you try harder. Host a party with a good friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Not a good day to make new moves. Stick to what you know best and avoid getting involved in other people's marital problems. Prompt home repairs will minimize damage.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emotional and physical well-being have you on a natural high. Games of skill and team activities unleash your star quality. Your efforts to be more gregarious will please loved one.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Romeo or Juliet
5 Puts on display
10 Flat-bottomed boat
14 Moslem cleric
15 Seragio
16 Ocean motion
17 Plunge
18 Rust
19 Ripened
20 Surprise
22 Plots for petunias
24 Obtained
25 Withered
26 Heavenly
30 Like some nuts
34 — you there?
35 Mistake
37 Melt
38 Bellow
40 Flown part
42 Spanish arbst
43 Arborid
45 Dd cloak-and-dagger work
47 Split the beans
48 Sharp weapons
50 Plea
52 Walked
54 Summer shade
55 Orator's platform
58 Prizes
62 Cosmetic ingredient
63 Tracking device
65 Gondola
66 Columbus caravel
67 Best of its class
68 Tardy
69 Activist
70 "The Avengers" role
71 Cheese from Holland

DOWN
1 Disposes of
2 Leave out
3 Volcanic output
4 Come from
5 Provides a home
6 Long-eared runner
7 Gold, in Granada
8 Pack tightly
9 Daubs it on
10 Wrapped up
11 Modern composer John
12 Baking chamber
13 Marries
21 Ripped
23 Peruse
25 Spilled over
26 Noblemen
27 Group of scouts
28 He's companion
29 Greek god
31 Head dressing
32 Acclaim
33 Krishna to some
36 Weather forecast
39 Come into view again
41 Well-educated
44 Colorless liquors
46 Sketch
49 Wins a point
51 Make possible
53 Elevate in rank
55 Beach makeup
56 Mellon
57 Fast rate
58 Appraise
59 Highway
60 Facts and figures
61 Plant part
64 Machine pattern

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

C	O	I	F		S	P	A	S	M		A	L	E
A	N	D	I		P	E	S	T	O		D	I	N	A
W	O	O	L	L	A	T	H	E	R		A	N	T	S
		O	M	E	N	U		R	O	O	K	E	R	Y
I	M	P	E	L		L	I	E	N	S		N	E	E
C	O	E	D		M	A	N	D		I	N	S	E	T
M	O	D	S		A	N	D		E	R	A
		S	I	L	K	S	T	O	C	K	I	N	G	S
			E	A	T		O	L	E	S		I	L	K
T	A	C	I	T		K	R	I	S		B	L	U	E
I	L	A		E	L	I	S	E		S	E	A	M	Y
M	I	L	L	D	A	M		N	C	A	A
O	B	I	E		C	O	T	T	O	N	G	I	N	S
R	I	C	A		S	N	E	A	D		L	O	I	N
S	O	P		S	O	C	L	E		E	S	P	Y

11/20/93

© 1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 11/22/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Tara Dixon, Scooter Alexander

MENU

LUNCH
Jalapeno Shrimp Tacos

BASICS LUNCH
Jalapeno Shrimp Veggie Tacos

DINNER
Spaghetti 'n Meatballs Chicken Pot Pie

BASICS DINNER
Spaghetti 'n Tofuballs Vegan Stew

■ women's soccer

continued from page 12

Milliken then a served a ball to a running Nicole Roberts, who collected it 25 yards out, in the middle of the field. Roberts drove through two defenders and then beat Carolina keeper Shelley Finger from 18 yards with a chip shot.

Massachusetts could not strike again, though, and a Angela Kelly score for UNC closed out the scoring.

"North Carolina was the best team we played this year," Rudy said. "They have a hard aggressive attack and a hard aggressive defense."

UNC outshot UMass 18-3. Corners were 5-2 for Carolina.

With yesterday's win, where the Tar Heels victimized George Mason and former UMass goal keeper Skye Eddy for six goals, UNC completed its third straight perfect season and took home its 11th national championship. Carolina has now won 81 games in a row.

The Tar Heels have a tradition of blowing teams out in big games. Last season in the NCAAs, en route to the title, UNC dismantled William & Mary 7-0 and Duke, in the championship game, 9-1. Yesterday's 6-0 beating is just another example of Carolina's dominance.

Blowouts, at this level, only occur when one team gives in. They get so frustrated they can no longer play as a team. Fingers get pointed and the goals are rung up.

"We were not willing to get blown out," Rudy said.

That alone counts for something.

■ Carolina

continued from page 12

sible opponent before taking the court Saturday against Towson State. They saw what they would face if they won.

The Minutemen were anything but tentative against the Towson State Tigers, running and trapping all over the court and forcing 19 turnovers. Massachusetts scored 22 points off of Tiger mistakes.

Sophomore Donta Bright was a big factor in the full-court press; Bright was in the face of every Tiger ball handler and created numerous steals with his quick hands. He came away with two steals himself, to go along with nine points and four rebounds.

With Bright on the point of the press, freshman Marcus Camby anchored the back, stopping almost every Towson State drive at the basket. Camby had a tremendous game on both ends of the court, scoring 16 points, snagging 13 rebounds (five offensive), blocking four shots officially and gathering three steals.

"Coaches told me going in to just make easy plays and let the game come to me. I stepped up my game a little," said Camby.

The UMass defense held the Tigers to 39 percent shooting; Towson State did not break the 50-point mark until Calipari emptied his bench with under one minute to go.

But the star of the game was Massachusetts forward Lou Roe, who put on an offensive show. Roe poured in a game-high 24 points and displayed not only an inside but an outside game, pulling up for 15-foot jumpers on more than one occasion.

Roe and Camby both said they are anxious to face Carolina, and will step it up another notch.

"Rasheed [Wallace] calls me and tells me they [UNC] can't wait for this match-up, and now we got it," said Camby, who spoke of his friendship with Carolina's freshman Wallace and Jerry Stackhouse, teammates of his on the United States Olympic Festival this past summer.

"It's a big step up, but the thing right now is to realize that these are players just like we are," said Roe. "I think we're a great bunch, too."

■ Johnson

continued from page 12

Johnson may have hurt the Wildcats and other teams with his spectacular runs, but his personality dictates he couldn't hurt a fly. Well-liked by his teammates, well-mannered to all, Johnson is praised by those who know him, especially the ones he has spent those long fall seasons with.

"(John) is one of the nicest guys in the world," said fellow senior Bill Durkin. "He's the kind of guy that will do anything for you, you don't even have to ask."

"(As a person), they don't come any better," said Hodges. "He came from a very tough background, and to get himself out of that, it's just great. He's a great student, he's going to end up with two majors (sociology and psychology).

"(Johnson's) what you hope to have in your football program. He's a great player, he's a great kid, he's a great student— what else can you say?"

Johnson, a modest young man, will not give himself any of the credit he rightfully deserves. He is just happy to have the chance to play, and pleased to have a mammoth offensive line in front of him.

"If you stand behind those guys and see the size of their butts, it's just really impressive," said Johnson with a laugh. "It's really a boost for me. They're the men."

Johnson played in the shadow of other Minutemen star running backs during his sophomore and junior seasons. His sophomore year, it was Jerome Bledsoe, the third-leading rusher in Minuteman history, who gained 1,545 yards as a senior. His junior year, it was Rene Ingoglia who rushed for 656 yards.

While Johnson's totals were 201 yards and 234 yards in his second and third seasons, his sudden explosion this year can only mean he seized the opportunity for playing time and improved during the process.

Johnson rose to the occasion in his freshman year when he replaced the injured Bledsoe and received rookie accolades. He came up big during his four-year stay at UMass by gaining 2,053 yards, good for fourth on the all-time Minuteman rushing yardage list.

"It was just a great feeling...a great feeling," said Johnson after Saturday's win.

Bang.

What is a Textbook Buyback?

Three times during each semester the Textbook Annex brings in a wholesaler to buy textbooks from students. Wholesalers are in the business of selling used books to colleges and universities across the country. Therefore, in determining how much they will pay a student for a book they must consider the demand for that book as well as the shipping and handling costs involved in processing and reselling the book. This is why prices vary and indeed change frequently. Generally only current editions have value.

The best time to sell books is at the end of the semester. At that time the Annex will pay 50% of the new price for a book if we have an order for that book for the following semester and we need to purchase copies. If we do not, the wholesaler may make you an offer.

If you have questions please ask the people doing the buyback or the Annex staff. They will be more than happy to answer your questions and give you any tips that may be applicable to your situation.

*A Picture ID is Required for all Buyback Transactions.

When is the next Textbook Buyback?

Mid-semester Textbook Buyback is:

NOVEMBER 22-23
9:00 AM- 4:00 PM

NOVEMBER 24
9:00 AM - 1:00 PM

at the TEXTBOOK ANNEX

Sarah Lawrence College at Oxford

Qualified undergraduates are invited to apply for a year of study at Oxford. Individual tutorials with Oxford faculty, Oxford University lectures, and full affiliation with an Oxford college immerse students in Oxford's rich education tradition.

For information contact:
Sarah Lawrence College at Oxford
Box UMAO
Sarah Lawrence College
1 Mead Way
Bronxville, NY 10708-5999

BIRTH LIFE DEATH: JEWISH ETHICS AND MEDICINE

What does Judaism say about abortion... pulling the plug... and allocation of scarce medical resources?

Dr. Michael Grodin
Director of Medical Ethics
Professor of Philosophy, Medicine & Public Health at Boston University Schools of Medicine & Public Health

Monday, November 22, 4:00pm
Campus Center 163
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

Part of the "Judaism and Social Issues" Lecture Series
Sponsored by UMass Hillel and Judaic Studies with additional support from The Grinspoon Fund for Jewish Education

UMass downs UMass

It's Amherst over Dartmouth, 9-1

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts hockey team completed a trifecta last Saturday night in Dartmouth, defeating UMass-Dartmouth 9-1 for the Minutemen's third straight win over what Coach Joe Mallen said were the top three Division III teams.

Following home wins versus Iona and Fitchburg State, UMass took to its sister school and wrestled free from a competitive game, scoring seven goals in the final two periods.

"I think the last two games have been our best games of the year," Mallen said. "I think anybody who has seen us play the whole season has seen the improvements we've made from the Merrimack game to Fitchburg State, and from Fitchburg State to UMass-Dartmouth."

Warren Norris and Brett Wagar notched two goals apiece and goaltender Dave Kilduff recorded 17 saves. In the last three games, UMass has outscored its opponents 26-6.

UMass-Dartmouth was the 1992-93 Division III ECAC defending champion, and Mallen said he looked to this game at the beginning of the year.

"I really thought this game would be a test, and it was a test for the first period," he said. "I think all three of those teams were a little better than we expected."

The Minutemen outshot the Corsairs by 29. Senior Steve Corradi notched his first collegiate goal, and captain Jaynen Rissling said the offense was well-distributed.

"A lot of guys got on the score sheet, it wasn't just two or three players," he said. "They tried to dump it in because it was a smaller rink, but we adjusted well."

Game Notes: In just six games, the Minutemen have scored 41 goals. Tiger Holland leads the team in plus/minus with +13.

The Minutemen reinitiate a crosstown rivalry Tuesday night when they host Amherst College at 7 p.m. at the William D. Mullins Memorial Center. UMass used the Lord Jeff's Orr Rink for over 20 years before the team folded after the 1978-79 season.

■ football

continued from page 12

terback before the Oct. 23 matchup with UMass affected the committee's perception of the Minutemen's win, Boone said it did.

Last Thursday, Hodges predicted that argument and counteracted it by asserting UMass played William and Mary and three other regular season games without starting QB Andrew McNeilly.

Neither McNeilly or backup Vito Campanile, who threw only five passes, were missed from the offense on Saturday, as the rushing attack broke the school's single season record and tailback John Johnson rushed for 152 yards on 12 carries.

Johnson finished his comeback season with 899 yards and his up-and-down career with 2,053, becoming only the fourth Minuteman to ever break the 2,000-yard mark.

It was his 30-yard sprint that gave UMass a 6-0 lead they would never relinquish, and his 68-yard run in the second quarter which gave the 4,712 in the stands one of the biggest cheers of the day.

When Campanile jumped in the end zone one play later, UMass had a 12-0 lead. An Eric Oke field goal before the half made it 15-0.

New Hampshire came alive in the second half, scoring on its first possession on a 10-yard Rich Green to David Gamble touchdown pass on 4th and 4 to cut the lead to 15-7, then threatened in the red zone in its very next possession.

However, the defense bore down when the Wildcats moved to first and goal on the 3. Tackle Brian Corcoran had a huge tackle for loss on a second-down running play, and Green couldn't thread the needle to Gamble on either third or fourth down, thanks in part to the patched-up secondary playing without safety Matt Rajotte or cornerback Breon Parker.

"I'll tell you what, we were down seven starters today and we had two kids in the secondary making their first start," Hodges said. "Brian Mooney plays like gangbusters and all Jason Tudryn does is get an interception and make the right checks all day at strong safety."

UNH had a chance to tie after running back Avrom Smith took a sweep 56 yards for a score to cut the UMass lead to 15-13 with 9:24 left in the fourth, but senior linebacker Scott Assencoa sacked Calvin Jones on a razzle-dazzle halfback option attempt try for two after the TD.

The final two UNH drives faltered when Tony Williams grabbed a key interception with 3:31 left to go and Assencoa stripped Lee McClinton with 1:53 remaining.

"We did what we set out to do four years ago," said senior linebacker Mario Perry. "You can't be more proud of these seniors or this team. This is the way we wanted to go out."

■ basketball

continued from page 12

they were outside jumpers and not inside turnarounds and lay-ins. Roe said that his outside game has improved with hard work.

"That was something I worked on all summer, I worked really hard," Roe said. "I'd go into the gym at about 11 o'clock at night and just shoot for two hours, five days a week."

With 6:26 left in the first half, an 11-2 UMass run gave the Minutemen a 31-15 lead and for all intents and purposes ended any chance of a Towson victory.

Sophomore forward Dana Dingle ended the first half by draining a wide open three pointer which gave the Minutemen a very comfortable 40-24 lead at the break.

UMass came out on fire as well in the second half, and once again, it was Camby and Roe who led the way. Camby opened the half up with a thunderous two-handed jam, then gave the Minutemen their first twenty point lead at 44-24 with an offensive put-back.

Roe followed that up when he took a picturesque alley oop pass from junior guard Mike Williams (seven points, two steals) and dunked it home over a helpless Tiger defender.

From then on in, it was simply UMass padding its lead against an outmanned Tiger squad. A lay in by junior reserve center Jeff Meyer with 1:51 to go gave the Minutemen their biggest lead of the night at 79-47.

With the game in hand, Calipari was able to empty his bench and begin to think about his next game.

North Carolina.

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

THE SPA HOT TUBS TANS
175 University Drive
253-7727
Next to Price Chopper
Mon.-Thurs. 2 for $10
1/2 hour hot tub for 2 w/coupon

haircuts always $10!
BUCCI
a hair space
25 N PLEASANT ST AMHERST 256 0733

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

STUDENTS Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

AUTO FOR SALE

1984 VW Jette 200000 miles still runs $300 or best offer ASAP Sean 549-4675

1988 Nissan Sentra blue hatchback 5-speed, 55,000 miles, VG condition, $3500 Call 584-9008

1990 Hyundai Excel 29000 miles only $4000 call 546-1482

BIKERS AND JOGGERS

BE SAFE! Night visibility waist belt Comfortable, adjustable Holds Walkman Send 12.95 Check or MO to Northern Enterprises P.O. Box 175 Chicopee, MA 01021

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions: 1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card - cost $235 gives you your next TEN Dozen free. 2) The Miser Card - Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen. (Ben & Jerry's may be sub'd) Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW Sun Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line 3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route Oil heat · fireplace 586-4270

For Female, big room, 3 level townhouse, fireplace, 3 bathrooms, laundry, 5 minute walk, Amity Place. 250+. 546-7098

Intersession Housing Wanted We have students who want to sublet housing over Intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0869 428 Student Union

1-2 bedroom apartment near high school. Available January 1st 256-8053

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg. Jan or Feb 549-7290

1 bedroom available for 1 or 2 females in 2 bedroom apartment in Puffton starting Jan · convenient · on bus route. Call/five message · 549-7756

Room in Amherst House available Jan 1-June 1 $210/mo 253-2219

Room for Rent Looking for 2 people to share large bedroom in furnished apartment on Pelham Road Huge Kitchen and Living Space 3 miles from campus on bus route Please call 253-5978

FOR SALE

All Disc Jockeys Nikko Alphe 400 power amplifier $200 Great condition 300 Watts! 546-6264

Doc Martins Black wingtipped I paid $110 I'll take $95 256-3405

Moutain Bike for Sale Mongoose $150 or best offer Call Lisa 549-5111

Ski equipment Roesignol 7G Sz 200 Atomic 733 SL Sz 195 K2 sz 172 Boots Sz 7, 8,9 Best Offer Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings - Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

FOUND

I found your watch you lost it Wednesday night at the bus stop. Call Doug 586-8010

HELP WANTED

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo. on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

ATT. Excellent income for home assembly work info 1-504-646-1700 Dept MA 1307

Exotic Dancers Wanted Great pay, flexible hours Race St. Pub 268 Race St Holyoke MA Call Bob 532-1422

Free Trips and Cash Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre! Call now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

Inside Sales Positions rapidly growing cellular business in Hampshire mall and Holyoke mall and Ingleside. Capable personable with good sales skills. Permanent and holiday positions with excellent salary commissions and benefits full and part time. Call 568-3939312 from 8 am to 5 pm. Must fill immediately.

International Employment · Make up to $2000 - $4000+/mo. teaching basic English in Japan, Taiwan and S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info. call: 206-632-1146 ext. J5001

PCA for male quad age 25 Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings Saturday evenings call 546-0666

$700/wk. Cannery workers, $4000/mo. deckhands. Alaska fishing industry now hiring for next summer. 1,000 openings. No exp. necessary. Free rm & bd. These jobs go fast! Employment Alaska 1-206-323-2672

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender Days/Evenings one week! Placement Assistance Boston Bartenders School Call 747-9888 for Nov. and Dec. classes Special Student Rates Remember: To be professionally trained takes more than one evening

Learn to Scuba Dive. Earn credit. Dive Cape Ann, Key Largo, Bonaire. Pre-reg ister with general physical education 545-2338

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

KELLY GEERS

Happy 21st Kelly G. You're the best Love Eric Linros + Couduroy

MUSICIANS

For Sale Washburn P-Bass $300.00 Fender tube amp $250.00 John 546-0609

Guitar Lessons Beginner-Advanced Lessons may be taken for course credit 256-6848

PERSONALS

Alison: You HATE me, do you? GREG

Alison K. How is your phallic comfortor?? Is it the best EVAH?

Calli Quinn quit playing games with nice people your brother almost

Happy 21st Heidi The wild woman is finally legal Uptown is calling Have tons of fun tonight From your roomie the Other Wild Woman

Jen Fox Little you know the subtle electric fire that for your sake is playing within me. Across the years and miles, you'll always be so special. Love You Dana Poppy Where are you?

Ad

Sassy Happy b-day in 5 days You're the big "19" Keep it cool with PB Love Roomate

Tiffani, Happy Birthday! Hope it's Phi nominal! Love, AEPhi

RENTAL PROBLEMS

Questions About Your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village. 190/mo 549-1816

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley, and you already know IT'S the BEST. Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're in search of two undergrad males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

SERVICES

FINANCIAL AID for College NO GPA or income restrictions. Free recorded message gives details. (508) 543-5640

Legal Questions? The Legal Services Center offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 campus center, 545-1995

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach, parties, pool decks, fun, nightclubs, sunshine. Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans with on campus pick-up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94 Call for free brochure 1-800-9-Daytona M-F, 8-6 See ya at the beach!

Scuba Dive Key Largo Dec 28-Jan 3 Earn 2 credits. Meeting 12/3/93 at 7pm in room 255 Herter Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Overwhelmed? Wordprocessing printing Reports resumes Call Metamorphosis 256-3084 AMS After 9 PMS Until 12

Sick of typing? Fast, accurate word/processing Free laserprinting. Call Becca 586-1989

WANTED

For anti-drug video: People who have stopped using drugs (voluntarily or involuntarily) to talk about changed attitudes, their alternatives to the recreational/addictive use of illegal drugs. John, 549-0638

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-4947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Need your 2 bedroom apartment For Spring Preferably in Puffton Call 8-1549

Volleyball ties for third in A-10 Tournament. Details tomorrow.

Sports

Minutemen earn trip to MSG

Towson State	24-31	55
Massachusetts	40-42	82

Towson State: Campbell 2-5 2-2 6, Thomas 1-4 0-0 2, James 0-2 2-6 2, Blalock 3-7 2-3 8, Alexander 5-13 2-4 12, Schneider 0-0 0-0 0, Moody 1-2 0-3 3, Caldwell 0-2 0-2 0, Mason 2-6 1-2 5, Keyes 4-6 2-2 10, Robinson 1-3 1-2 3, Crump 2-4 0-0 4. Totals: 21-54 12-26 55.

Massachusetts: Dingle 2-3 2-5 7, Roe 10-15 3-4 24, Canby 6-12 4-8 16, Kellogg 0-4 0-0 0, Bright 3-5 3-7 9, Germain 0-0 1-2 1, Berry 0-1 2-2 2, Padilla 0-1 0-0 0, Travieso 4-7 0-0 11, Meyer 1-3 1-2 3, Collrell 1-2 0-2 2, Nunez 0-1 0-0 0. Totals: 30-64 16-32 82.

Player of the Game

#15 Lou Roe
6-7 Jr. Forward
UMass

Roe dominated from beginning to end for the Minutemen as he pumped in 24 points. He scored seven of UMass' first 13 points and then hit all six of his shots in the second half. Roe also showed off his new perimeter game, hitting several long jump shots.

Why the Minutemen won

Defense paced the victory for UMass. The Minutemen forced 19 turnovers and held Towson State to 39 percent shooting. The tough defense did not allow Towson State to get back into the game once they fell behind. Offensively, Lou Roe and Marcus Camby were too much for Towson State, as the pair combined for 40 points. UMass also moved the ball around well, as their 22 assists attest.

Next for the Minutemen:

The Minutemen travel to Madison Square Garden to face the Tar Heels of North Carolina at Madison Square Garden in New York City this Wednesday at 9 p.m. The game will be televised on ESPN.

By JEFF CROFTS
Collegian Staff

Madison Square Garden, here they come.

The Massachusetts Minutemen turned their level of play up a couple of notches in the second round of the Pre-season NIT Saturday night, dismantling the Towson State Tigers 82-55 to earn a trip to New York City where UMass will meet the defending national champion North Carolina Tar Heels.

It was obvious from the outset that UMass' level of play against Towson State would be considerably higher than the level the Minutemen displayed in their ugly first round victory over Cleveland State. That point was more than defined when junior forward Lou Roe (game-high 24 points, six rebounds) opened up the game's scoring by squaring up and burying a surprise three pointer.

UMass coach John Calipari said there were a few reasons why his team's two performances were like night and day.

"I think you see that in our first game, we had some real jitters. You saw that in the way we played (better) today," Calipari said. "I thought we were attacking the ball defensively and offensively today.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Derek Kellogg and the Minutemen trounced Towson State to advance in the NIT.

"I think the biggest thing I can tell you is we had nine assists last game (vs. Cleveland State) which meant we were playing all one-on-one basketball," Calipari said. "Today we had 22 assists, which means we created shots for each other. And we are a good enough team, if we do that, we'll shoot a good percentage."

Right from the get-go it was all Minutemen, as the team's defense both hindered Towson State's offensive output and kickstarted its own offense. For the game, UMass blocked eight Tiger shots, turned 19 Tiger turnovers into 22 points, and held Towson State to 39 percent shooting.

UMass freshman center Marcus Camby (16 points, 13 rebounds, four blocks, three steals, three assists), who did not have the greatest of debuts against Cleveland State, did the most defensive damage from his center position, as a good number of his blocks and defensive rebounds led to easy scoring opportunities for the Minutemen.

The combination of Camby and Roe showed its dominancce early on as the pair combined to score 11 of UMass' first 13 points. Roe's seven points during that run were not of his usual variety;

Turn to BASKETBALL, page 11

North Carolina match-up now a reality

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

After 36 minutes had gone by the boards in No. 22 Massachusetts' eventual 82-55 victory over Towson State last Saturday night in the William D. Mullins Center, the partisan maroon and white crowd began to chant, "UNC, UNC, UNC."

The fans' fore-gone conclusion became reality: UMass would play the No. 1 team in the country.

But when the cheers started, Minuteman guard Mike Williams stood up from the bench amidst the commotion of the on-going game, turned to the stands and urged the crowd to stop.

UMass won the unenviable task of facing defending NCAA champion North Carolina this Wednesday night in the Final Four of the Pre-Season NIT. Williams may have had a reason to be apprehensive.

Massachusetts Coach John Calipari didn't have a choice to decline the invitation to face the Tar Heels, but he said he'd rather play them than go home.

"Hey, the alternative [to facing North Carolina] was to lose to Towson State and not play them, so I like what happened," said Calipari. "If we're at all tentative, it'll be a struggle. We have to play with reckless abandon."

Because Carolina played on Friday night, pounding No. 19 Cincinnati by 27 points, the Minuteman players and coaches had a chance to watch their pos-

Turn to CAROLINA, page 10

Football wins, misses playoffs

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

To the seniors on the University of Massachusetts football team, last Saturday was not a day to worry about earning an NCAA Division I-AA playoff bid. It was a day to go out on the home field as winners against the University of New Hampshire.

New Hampshire	13
Massachusetts	15

The Minutemen (8-3, 5-3 in the Yankee Conference) accomplished that task, defeating the Wildcats 15-13 for their seventh win in eight games, but were denied a one-week season extension when the I-AA selection committee decided to offer the University of Delaware a spot in UMass' place.

"I really believe we should and will go to the playoffs," Coach Mike Hodges said after the game. "I don't see any justification in sending Delaware. We didn't just beat them, we beat them soundly.

"We didn't just beat [James Madison], a team that beat Delaware, we beat them soundly too."

But Charles Boone, director of athletics at the University of Richmond and chair of the Division I-AA Football Committee, had a different view when the seedings were announced Sunday.

"It was very tough to call, we spent many hours [Saturday] night discussing this," Boone said. "One of the things we looked at was head-to-head. Another thing we looked at was that Delaware beat William and Mary, a high-seeded team and UMass had no victories over the top eight or nine teams."

When asked if Delaware's loss of their starting quar-

Turn to FOOTBALL, page 11

Johnson goes out on a high

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

Rising to the occasion. Coming up big. Going out with a bang.

University of Massachusetts senior tailback John Johnson rose to the occasion as he led the Minutemen to their school record eighth win of the year in a 15-13 victory over UNH. He came up big with a 12-carry, 152-yard day in winning the Bill Knight Trophy for game MVP and went out with a bang in what turned out to be his final collegiate game.

Johnson was a pleasant surprise this season for the Minutemen, gaining 899 yards on the ground on 132 carries (a team high 6.8 yards per carry). The John Johnson of 1993 was true to the form of the John Johnson of 1990 who captured the 1990 Yankee Conference Rookie of the Year.

The beautiful 68-yard sweep off a block from the right tackle that Johnson came up within inches of the endzone in the second quarter. The 30-yard sweep off the left tackle for a first quarter touchdown run.

The kinds of runs that excite the fans. The kinds of runs that give your team instant momentum. The kinds of runs that send the opposition into a panicking frenzy. Game-breaking runs. Johnson's career-high 68-yard run was amongst the many he had all season.

"I don't know if it was his best run, but I can't remember one any better than that one," said coach Mike Hodges. "There certainly wasn't a bigger game (for the run) than this one."

"Johnson's run really hurt us," said UNH coach Bill Bowes.

Turn to JOHNSON, page 10

UNC ends it for Minutewomen

By DAN WETZEL
Collegian Staff

In the end they were beaten not just by the better team, they were beaten by the best team.

Massachusetts	1
North Carolina	4

The University of Massachusetts women's soccer team was bounced from the NCAA Final Four on Friday by North Carolina, 4-1. The Tar Heels (23-0) went on to capture the National Championship, its eighth in a row, by drubbing George Mason, 6-0 yesterday.

The Minutewomen (17-3-3) played tentative in the first half and were rapped for three Carolina goals within the first 33 minutes of play. From then on play was closer, but the Tar Heels proved too skilled, too fast and too strong for UMass.

"I wish we had played better in the first half, but we didn't," UMass Coach Jim Rudy said. "If we played the first half like we played the second half, we might still be playing."

But they didn't and the three goal margin proved too much to overcome.

Early goals by Mia Hamm (11:44), Tisha Venturini (22:59) and Debbie Keller (33:34) set the pace. If it were not for the outstanding play of UMass keeper Briana Scurry (10 saves) the margin may have been greater.

After the half, the Minutewomen stepped up their game and took a goal back in the 74th minute.

Senior forward Colleen Milliken picked up a pass from Scurry and carried the ball through center field.

Turn to SOCCER, page 10

Four die in Northampton air accident Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

51° Tuesday
November 23, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 52

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Scott hirings stir anger of UMass profs

By VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

The Massachusetts Society of Professors is angry because in the midst of a hiring freeze and a multi-million dollar shortfall that threatens the University of Massachusetts, Chancellor David Scott appointed two new administrators.

Scott appointed Marcellette and Keith Williams to deputy chancellor and associate vice chancellor for University Advancement respectively with a combined salary of $185,000.

"We feel the Chancellor has made a gross mistake," said the president of the MSP, Leo Richards. "We have received numerous phone calls from professors who are livid because of the appointments."

According to Richards, who is also a history professor at UMass, the cost of appointing two additional high-level administrators at this time will overload the University's desperate financial situation.

Just the salary alone, excluding fringe benefits and associated expenses, equals what it now costs to provide about 1,500 places in General Education courses, said MSP officials.

That means a potential loss of 4,500 credit hours, said the MSP, and stipends for approximately 20 graduate teaching assistants. These figures were verified by UMass officials.

"If these appointments had been balanced by corresponding reductions in the upper administration," said Richards, "they might have been more acceptable."

MSP officials said they have nothing against the Williams. The professors who have met the new Deputy Chancellor said they believe she will improve the quality of the Chancellor's administration.

"We don't deny that the Chancellor has the right, even the responsibility, to develop a staff upon whom he can rely," Richards said, "a staff that will bring new perspectives and energy to the Campus."

"I understand why people find it difficult to comprehend," Scott told the Collegian late last night after returning from Boston.

"But I'm in the process of making changes that will offset some of these costs. I'm just not in a position to talk about them now."

According to Scott, he had worked closely with Marcie Williams and when he was provost at Michigan State University.

She was executive assistant to the president of MSU since 1992 and her husband was associate director of the MSU Alumni Association since 1983.

"Our problem is that the timing is awful and the price tag is outrageous," Richards said.

What a tangled web we weave

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Senior electrical engineering major Elenn Marinilli works on her communications project.

Kevorkian present at suicide

By DAVID GOODMAN
Associated Press

ROYAL OAK, Mich. — An apartment rented by Dr. Jack Kevorkian was used Monday for the suicide of a fellow physician, the first that Kevorkian has attended since he was jailed on a charge of illegally assisting another death.

It was the 20th suicide at which Kevorkian has been present since 1990. No charges were filed. He considers Michigan's ban on assisted suicides an unconstitutional invasion of privacy.

Dr. Ali Khalili, 61, a rehabilitative medicine specialist from Oak Brook, Ill., died after breathing carbon monoxide.

Khalili was diagnosed in January 1990 as having multiple myeloma, a bone cancer. The disease had spread through his skeleton, and he was in constant pain, despite a morphine pump that regularly injected him with the powerful pain reliever, Kevorkian's attorney Michael Schwartz said.

"He was in pain to such an extent that he could no longer tolerate it," Schwartz told reporters. "Every day was a torture."

Schwartz said Khalili told Kevorkian that he hoped his death would encourage other doctors to come forward.

Schwartz declined to say if Kevorkian assisted the suicide or merely was present. The state law enacted earlier this year in response to Kevorkian sets a maximum four-year prison sentence for aiding suicide.

Police Lt. Don Novak said officers were called to the apartment by an unidentified man reporting a "medicide," Kevorkian's term for doctor-assisted suicide. Novak said the man's body was found on a couch.

Although Kevorkian rents the apartment, he lives in one next door. Last month, a woman also died in the apartment where Khalili was found after inhaling carbon monoxide.

Kevorkian walked with police to Royal Oak police

Turn to KEVORKIAN, page 2

Airline strike concludes

American hopes to resume full service

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas - With a nudge from President Clinton, American Airlines and striking flight attendants agreed Monday to end a 4-day-old walkout that crippled one of the nation's largest airlines and inconvenienced thousands of Thanksgiving travelers.

Flight attendants said they would return to work immediately and American said it hoped to fly 70 percent of its schedule Tuesday and 85 percent on Wednesday.

"I have no doubt we'll get everybody where they're going in time for Thanksgiving," American chairman Robert L. Crandall said.

Denise Hedges, president of the Association of Professional Flight Attendants, said negotiations would resume and remaining issues would go to binding arbitration.

Don Carty, executive vice president for American, said the airline agreed only to submit to binding arbitration.

"Yes, there was a real risk of losing our jobs," striker Loren Pastirik said. "I think it's going to take a while for passengers to trust American again, but it's a great feeling right now. ... We wanted to work. We did what we needed to do. We wanted respect from the company."

"I have spoken with both parties involved. Both have agreed in principle to end the strike and return to the bargaining table immediately," Clinton told a White House news conference.

The strike disrupted Thanksgiving travel plans for thousands of passengers. American flew only cargo on most flights.

"Although we prefer a different approach, we are anxious to put our airplanes back in the air and put our people back to work," Crandall said.

Crandall said he was at least partly swayed by Clinton and added that binding arbitration was less troubling than an emergency mediation panel. Crandall said he was still concerned an arbitrator would split the difference between American's offer and the flight attendants' demands, costing the Fort Worth-based airline too much money.

The 21,000-member union walked out in a dispute over pay, medical benefits, staffing and work rules. The strike was the biggest against a U.S. airline since 1989.

Travel schedule eased

By JOSE MARTINEZ
Associated Press

BOSTON — The picket line erupted with cheers and hugs Monday as the men and women in overcoats claimed victory in the four-day flight attendants' strike against American Airlines.

"What a victory!" shouted organizer Lenny Aurigemma, who was lifted into the air by other flight attendants outside the American terminal at Logan International Airport.

Aurigemma, a 6-year veteran and member of the union's executive committee, praised President Clinton for stepping in and persuading both sides to agree to binding arbitration.

The strike by the Association of Professional Flight Attendants, which began Thursday, disrupted Thanksgiving travel plans for thousands of passengers. American, lacking enough flight attendants to staff its planes, flew only cargo.

JFK's death recalled

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press

DALLAS — With an assassin's nest as a bleak backdrop, Dallas unveiled a simple but eternal tribute Monday to the memory of President John F. Kennedy.

Twin fighter jets thundered low above Dealey Plaza and a flock of white doves fluttered skyward at the exact moment of the assassination 30 years ago.

It was 12:30 p.m. Nov. 22, then and now.

In 1963, a clock atop the Texas School Book Depository recorded the time as a sniper on the sixth floor opened fire on the motorcade, killing Kennedy and wounding Gov. John Connally.

In 1993, Connally's widow, Nellie, slipped a black drape from a plaque marking the sloping, sunswept plaza as a National Historic Landmark.

"Thirty years ago, fate brought me here as an unwilling player in the most unforgettable tragic drama of our time," Mrs. Connally told thousands of specta-

Turn to JFK, page 2

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Correction

A letter on yesterday's Editorial/Opinion page by Charles Lenchner was missing part of a sentence. The sentence should have read, "For some reason, the strategy of looking adult, moving slowly, making friendly overtures to any V.I.P. who looks accessible — has not convinced students that being politically active in pursuit of student power is a worthwhile activity." The Collegian regrets the error.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

Ad Council — A Public Service of This Publication

Earth Share

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, November 23

Support group — The Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Support Group will meet from 3:30 to 4:45 p.m. Check in at Hills North on day of group, or call Lydia at 545-2337.

Infosocial — The LBGA Infosocial will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center. The film The Life and Times of Harvey Milk will be shown, and will be followed by a candlelight vigil. Check schedule by elevator for room number.

Thanksgiving Break

The LBGA Political Caucus and Grad Group will not meet this week.

Saturday, November 27

Harvey Milk Memorial Day — See Tuesday listing for campus observance.

Sunday, November 28

Radio show — The GLB newsmagazine "This Way Out" will air at 10 p.m. on WTTT-AM 1430.

Monday, November 29

Women's Union — The Lesbian and Bisexual Women's Union meets from 7 to 9 p.m. in the LBGA Office, 413B Student Union.

Popular actor Bill Bixby dies

"Incredible Hulk" star battled cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Bixby, whose three-decade television career featured starring roles as a martian's pal, superdad and superhero, has died of cancer, a spokeswoman said today. He was 59.

Bixby died about 3:30 p.m. Sunday at his home in Century City, with his wife Judith Klivan-Bixby at his bedside, said Pamela Golin, a spokeswoman for the NBC show "Blossom". Bixby was the show's director. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

In an emotional TV interview in September, he spoke of his battle with cancer that spread to his bladder, liver and hipbones.

"There was one night, I'd been in terrible pain, and really a tremendous amount of pain. And I really thought I was going to die that night," Bixby told the syndicated show "Entertainment Tonight".

"My prayer was that I would die in my sleep." A likable performer, Bixby had varied roles in several successful television series from the '60s onward.

Bixby starred with Ray Walston in the 1963-6 CBS comedy "My Favorite Martian". Bixby played newspaper reporter Tim O'Hara, foil to mischievous extraterrestrial Walston.

Three years later, Bixby moved into the role of a wise, stalwart dad in "The Courtship of Eddie's Father". The ABC comedy, which ran from 1969-72, featured him as the widowed father of young Eddie (Brandon Cruz). After a stint in the 1973-74 NBC series "The Magician", Bixby starred in the comic book-based series "The Incredible Hulk", which ran from 1978-82 on CBS.

He played David Banner, a research scientist condemned by a freak lab accident to change into a huge, raging monster when angered. Bodybuilder Lou Ferrigno filled in as the green-tinged Hulk.

Returning to comedy, Bixby was paired with actress Mariette Hartley in the 1983-84 CBS series "Goodnight, Beantown".

He also directed several episodes of ABC's "Rich Man, Poor Man" in the 1970s.

Earlier this year, he began an experimental hormone-treatment program at the University of California, Los Angeles, Medical Center. He had been fighting cancer for a year.

Tragedy touched Bixby's life before: In March 1981, his 6-year-old son, Christopher, died of a throat infection. Bixby's ex-wife, actress Brenda Benet, killed herself less than a year after her son's death.

■ Kevorkian

continued from page 1

headquarters two blocks away, Novak said. He refused to answer questions, Novak said.

Police released Kevorkian without charges after about two hours and he left without answering reporters' questions. He remained out of sight later at the office of his lawyers, Schwartz and Geoffrey Fieger.

Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson declined to comment Monday.

Kevorkian, 65, already faces two charges of illegally assisting a suicide but those are pending in neighboring Wayne County. He is free on bail in those cases and is challenging the constitutionality of the law.

Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair urged Oakland County authorities to arrest Kevorkian and "see that he is basically detained in the Oakland County Jail until his date of trial."

Khalili was an associate professor at Northwestern University's medical school in Chicago, where he taught part time, university spokesman Chuck Loebbaka said.

A colleague described Khalili as someone who was "very, very strong and...never would complain."

"I had no hint that he would consider going to Kevorkian," said Dr. Henry Betts, who worked with Khalili at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago. "He was very cerebral. He was very, very logical. He wasn't self-pitying in any way."

Khalili was born in Iran in 1932 and earned a medical degree at Tehran University before immigrating to the United States in 1957. He moved to the Chicago area in 1965, Schwartz said. He is survived by a wife, and a grown daughter and son.

The Collegian is now accepting applications for paid editorships for next semester. The follwing positions are available:

Editor in Chief	Editorial/Opinion	News
Managing Editor	Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Affairs	Photography
Arts & Living	Jewish Affairs	Sports
Black Affairs	Multicultural Affairs	Women's Issues
Developing Nations

For more information or an application, see Darienne Hosley in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center Basement.

NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas
THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99
LARGE CHEESE $6.99 $1.25 each add. topping
MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99 .99¢ each add. topping
Any Two Large Subs $7.99
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20c. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

Local News

Pulitzer winner Sheehan visits UMass

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

"Before we can learn something, we have to confront it. So what I am trying to do tonight, is confront the war."

Neil Sheehan, Pulitzer Prize winning author of A Bright Shining Lie, spoke last night at the Campus Center Auditorium. Sheehan talked about what U.S. foreign policy has learned from the Vietnam War.

Sheehan said he felt the war was not wasted unless the United States can learn from what happened. "We must somehow come to terms with Vietnam at last. We must find a way to redeem the lives of those 58,000 Americans who are remembered on the wall," Sheehan said.

Sheehan said in confronting the truth about the war, the government can learn from the mistakes it made. Following this comment, he explained the problems in America's foreign policy used in the Vietnam War.

Sheehan listed several mistakes in the policies the presidents used in the Vietnam War. "The United States believed they were the right ones in the war," Sheehan said

World War II caused the United States to have a great deal of self confidence, Sheehan also said. This arrogant attitude was carried over to the Vietnam War. The United States believed they could not lose the war.

According to Sheehan, America's fears towards communism caused them to continue the war in Vietnam. "America had one view of the world, in black and white. Ho Chi Minh could not be perceived as any way but a communist and we were threatened."

Sheehan said he felt the military caused many problems in the Vietnam war. He explained that by the early 1960s, the government became irrational and made the wrong decisions because they were convinced in winning the war.

The lack of experience in both leaders and soldiers was a cause of the U.S.'s failure in winning the war Sheehan said because the soldiers were given orders impossible to follow.

Sheehan said he is thankful we lost the war because he feels it taught the United States a lesson in foreign policy affairs.

"Vietnam brought us back to a sense of reality."

He said he believed the United States would have been headed into becoming an authoritarian country if the Vietnam war did not occurr. Also, during the time of the Vietnam War, the United States was confronted by other scandalous events. Sheehan gave the Watergate scandal as one example.

"When you think about our foreign policy, we should not look at it for our benefit. We shouldn't be paralyzed by what happened in Vietnam, we should try to do something. We should think carefully about what we are doing," Sheehan said.

Sheehan said he felt the Vietnam War will teach us how to respond to future foreign policy problems. "Bare in mind what happened in Vietnam will be used to guide us.

"In the future conduct of our foreign policy, we have to bare in mind what happened in that war of Vietnam as a way of guiding us. To forget Vietnam is to forget the wisdom."

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Pulitzer Prize winner Neil Sheehan

Fatal collision at 17,000 feet

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. — Sky diver Alfred Peters was hurtling toward Earth at about 100 mph when he saw a plane coming straight at him.

Seconds later, his ankle hit the plane's tail, sending it into a spin and a crash. All four people aboard were killed. Peters survived Sunday's collision more than a mile above ground with a broken ankle and a terrible scare.

"All he keeps talking about is seeing that plane come at him," said Peters' wife Joyce. "He tried to get out of the way as best he could, but there wasn't much he could do and it hit his ankle."

Killed were Elliot Klein, 49, of Rhinebeck, N.Y., the pilot of the single-engine Cherokee Piper Warrior II; his 18-year-old son, Jonas, a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; fellow MIT student Christina Park, 18, of Auburn, Wash.; and Jean Kimball, 45, of Pine Plains, N.Y.

The accident happened as the Piper was flying at about 120 mph 7,000 feet over Northampton Airport, en route to Boston from Poughkeepsie, N.Y. The students were returning to school.

Peters, a former Army paratrooper who had logged 37 sport jumps in the past year, told authorities he leaped from a single-engine Cessna 206 at about 8,000 feet.

Within moments, he saw the Piper heading straight at him, according to Jeff Guzzetti, a National Transportation Safety Board inspector.

Peters, 51, of Westfield, lost a boot and flipped head over heels, but managed to open his parachute at about 4,000 feet.

"As he was floating to Earth...he saw this airplane spiraling to the ground," Guzzetti said.

"It was almost like something in a movie. It wasn't real," said John Stergakis, of West Hartford, Conn., who was waiting to take his first-ever jump at the airport later that afternoon.

The Piper's wreckage lay Monday in the woods one mile from the airport, its nose dug into the ground and its wing wrapped around a tree. The 3-foot-tall aluminum tail fin and part of its rudder were ripped off; Guzzetti said it was not yet known whether the tail was ripped off by the collision with Peters or the impact with the ground.

Cat tales

SUZANNE GARB / COLLEGIAN
The two tabbies captured here on film are obviously thrilled to be in each other's company.

Tau Beta Pi bridge saves town's money

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts chapter of Tau Beta Pi, an engineering honor society, saved Amherst more than $11,000 by voluntarily designing and building a pedestrian bridge across the Mill River in Amherst.

The 40-foot bridge was built to replace the existing 22-year-old bridge which was still being used by the public, despite the fact it was being held together by planks laid on top of rotting wood.

Recording secretary Bill Macdonald said Tau Beta Pi was able to build the bridge for only $5,600, but he estimated it would have cost the town two or three times as much to build the bridge without the student volunteers.

"It was questionable how much longer the existing bridge would be able to stand on its own," MacDonald said.

MacDonald said Tau Beta Pi initiated the project because they wanted to contribute to the community and because their president, Pierre Tehrany, was interested in environmental awareness. The bridge connects the Mill River recreation area to a conservation area.

"Our goal was to do something positive for the town that had to do with environmental awareness," MacDonald said. "Pierre went to the Amherst Conservation Commission asking about projects we could get involved with, and they suggested helping with the upkeep of the Mill River area."

UMass Associate Dean of the College of Engineering Duane Cromack, a Tau Beta Pi member, praised the honor society's efforts.

"The concept of Tau Beta Pi is to be good honor students and to contribute to the community," Cromack said. "And this is a tremendous contribution to the community."

Of the 86 members of Tau Beta Pi, about half participated in building the bridge, MacDonald said. A great deal of the work was performed by the "prospective members" of the honor society, people who have not been initiated yet.

The prospective members are required to perform 15 hours of social services, and 12 of them had to be spent working on the bridge before they could be initiated. MacDonald also said several other engineers voluntarily participated in building the bridge to gain practical experience.

The design of the bridge was done by President Tehrany, Vice President Edwin Tan and Treasurer Michael McGrath. The designing of the bridge was done during the summer months and was supervised by UMass Civil Engineer Fredrick Dzialo, MacDonald said.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

I want to thank myself

This time of year, it's all too easy to lose track of oneself amidst a wash of relatives, family friends and assorted other random acquaintances. Regrettably, this social downpour has a tendency to make you forget about your own importance.

Lest we forget, the world relies on your own interpretation. Often, this notion is clouded. Many believe that their entire self lies in the image of their peers. Without continual reassurance, their feeling of worth is shot.

Adam
GOULSTON

"Did you go to dinner yet?"
"Yep."
"Who'd you eat with?"
"No one."
"No one?"
"Yep."
"How can you do that?"

Shocking as it may seem, some of my better meals (if such a thing is possible in the D.C.) have been eaten alone. Is this so preposterous?

At the risk of getting too Ayn Randian (or too Stuart Smalleyan), let's take it down a bit. You're the one person you have to tolerate, no matter how much of a loser or an idiot you may be. You can't hang up the phone on yourself. You can't breakup with yourself. Believe me, if these were possibilities, I would have explored them a long time ago.

The only thing you can do in a time when you start to become a little pissed with the way you're acting (barring therapy) is to make peace. The best way to make peace is to be prepared for it. The best way to prepare for it is in times when you can step away from everyone.

"Jimmy, it's your turn. Go ahead."

"I'd like to give thanks for Mommy and Daddy and my bike and Spot, even though he died and..."

"No wait, I want to thank myself for dealing with all the crap I've been dealt this past year. Barney has become a pop icon. Alternative has become mainstream. A woman was idolized because she chopped off a guy's wanker. My government is a joke. And high ranking educational officials are creating positions for their friends during a hiring freeze.

"Despite all this and more, I manage to maintain a generally positive outlook on life, because every now and then, I try to escape it all and spend a little time with myself."

There's a valuable lesson in little Jimmy's giving of thanks. When he began to feel a little overwhelmed, if not downtrodden, he escaped it.

The whole Thanksgiving thing, in many families, reintroduces every relative you forgot - from bloated Aunt Bertha to that runt of a half-nephew, Danny Jr., who has a knack of connecting with your privates every time you engage him in a game of piggy-back.

While I would sooner chop off my own wanker than lose the ones I love, I find it essential every now and then to cast aside everyone else and whatever images they may have of me — good or bad — and concentrate on myself.

Whether this be reading a good book, writing a letter or merely thinking — it's often neglected in favor of seeking self-worth in the eyes of others.

After you find a little place of internal peace, then you can pass it on to Aunt Bertha and the rest of your annual relatives.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

Nathan: an innocent abroad

My flight was over-booked. After half an hour, a woman gave me a ticket to British Airways. This gave me 20 minutes to scramble for a taxi to bring me to the next terminal at Logan, discover that my carry-on was too big and that I had forgotten to sign my passport, run up two flights of stairs to meet with a guy with a radio asking me if i'm seat number J12, kiss my girlfriend good-by in front of the X-ray booth woman who tapped her foot impatiently, and get harassed by the customs guys because I was almost sprinting down the stairs in a heavy wool jacket, covered in sweat and holding a black briefcase. I finally made it into the plane, hot, sweaty, rattled and smelling rather bad, and 15 minutes after I got settled and we took off, the stewardess came around.

Nathan
CRICK

"Would you like wine with your meal?"

Aaah... England.

I though this would just about ruin the thrill of my 21st birthday, but after thinking about it, I don't think it will. Twenty-one is still something, kind of a signpost on the path of life that says, "Better get moving, Bucko." In addition, I'm going to celebrate up in Scotland, which might be a bit preferable to going to Delano's and watching big guys with baseball hats stumble in and out. And if things get boring, I can just stand up and shout "Hey, where are the leprechauns?!"

So, what do I think of this place? I'm in Norwich (Nor-idge) which is on the southeast coast, way out in the middle of nowhere. It's kind of like Western Mass., without Springfield thrown in. London is about two hours away by train, which to the English, is like going to Siberia.

To demonstrate what I mean, this university has only one gymnasium with one full court. They use it for every conceivable indoor sport, which means it comes complete with dozens of bright lines crisscrossing the blue tiled floor. This is the most complete and modern athletic center in all the county of East Anglia. The school we are traveling to this week in order to play basketball has a carpeted floor and slanted ceilings so you can't shoot from the corners.

Unfortunately, I really cannot say much about the English people yet, besides the fact that I find it odd that they called Frosted Flakes "Frosties" and they don't have green clovers in their lucky charms. I mean, that's the only real lucky charm in the whole bunch. But it's hard to get the feel for their culture, because most of the time I'm hidden away up here in the ivory tower of this modern concrete university. All my floor is post-graduate and foreign students, so I don't know a whole lot of English students. I don't think it matters a whole lot here though. Being young is being young, culture doesn't really settle in until middle age.

It will take longer to get to know this country and its people, but I have learned there is a profound effect in finally realizing that you are in a foreign place and cannot go home anymore, or to anywhere even like home, because you are an American and this is not your country. People may still be warm to you, but the fact remains that you are not English and people will treat you as such, for better or for worse.

So there is one morning when you may wake up and see the sunrise, and realize that you are really here on the island called Great Britain, and know that you can never really go home again. Because when you begin to wonder what it really felt like to walk into a pub and not feel like an invader, hear an American voice and feel no connection to them, or be able to hike through a forest without first driving for hours, you know when you return to your hometown it will seem as foreign as anywhere you have ever been. And you truly realize, for the first time, that there are so many things you haven't seen, so many places you haven't gone, and so many things you do not understand because you are trapped in the illusion that you could just learn it all in your ivory tower.

Nathan Crick is a Collegian columnist on exchange.

"Name Witheld" is the real winner

Last week's letter from "Name Withheld" [Collegian, Nov. 18] expressed every woman's reaction to sexual harrassment and aggression: a lovely day spoiled, temporsry loss of autonomy, the stream of life diverted from its natural course. But I'm sorry the headline featured the word "flasher." The word carries a sparkly, comic sense of juvenile glee, as if the sight of a piece of flesh hanging out of someone's pants would thrill or amuse the beholder. As she stated so well, it's no treat and no joke.

Unfortunately, the man in the library stacks may have enjoyed reading about his intended victim's discomfort; he wasn't trying to make her happy, and settles for whatever reaction he can get. Despite having to interrupt her research, she was not diminished by the experience. Her letter shows there are three things going for her: the ability and the desire to learn, a gift for writing, and the maturity to put an unpleasant event into perspective. The exhibitionist has only these: a penis like any other man's, a lonely urge to show it to strangers, and an unkind attitude. The comparison is clear, and "Name Withheld" is the winner.

Julie Alger
Amherst

Both men and women are susceptible to an abuse of sexual power

This letter is in response to Peter Orvetti [Collegian, Nov. 15]. Orvetti claims men cannot understand women's sexual and political struggle in the world, due to different personal experiences. I want to commend Orvetti for discussing feminism from a male perspective.

In our political climate it is a brave act to address sexism within the context of "not understanding"; to admit that our minds are not free from sexist thought. However, I would like to have seen Orvetti broaden his analysis, focusing on the dynamics of sexism above and beyond male/female relationships.

Orvetti lists experiences women have that prevent men from "understanding," such as being the object of sexual insensitivity and harassment in the workplace. I in no way suggest that these things do not happen in the way he describes. But, I would argue that many of these experiences happen to men and do occur outside of the heterosexual community.

Within "queer" and lesbian culture, I have been sexually harassed many times. Each time, I realized how sexist I was, as it took me a long time to define the experience as sexual harassment. I know if a man had done the same actions, I would have labeled the experience as sexual harassment. I realize now that the instantaneous trust I give women is potentially misguided, directed by generalized beliefs in "male" and "female" behaviors and traits.

As well, a male neighbor sexually abused a close friend of mine (a straight, white, affluent male) for years during high school. And, a group of men raped a male friend-of-a-friend when they found out that he came out to the gay community as bisexual.

My point is that sexual dishonesty and insensitivity, the political control of the possession of one's body and sexual harassment are all examples of an abuse of power, something that I would cynically define as a universal, human tendency. Men are used for sex by men and women. Men are excluded from public speak-outs against sexual violence by organizations created to help survivors of such cruelty. The decision to terminate a pregnancy directly affects the father, on a political and emotional level, as it affects the mother. Men are also the objects of sexual harassment by men or women.

It is the sexism of our culture that allows men to abuse women. The same sexism prevents men who are the survivors of abuse to receive proper attention, counseling and public voice, due to concepts of "masculinity." It is the same adherence to gender roles that promotes homophobia, dividing the energies of the gay, lesbian and bisexual community. If queers did not have to struggle for civil rights and intregity, there would be fear in discussing "dirty laundry" such as sexual harassment and domestic battering in the "contiastraight" community.

Orvetti suggests all men exist in the realm of "not understanding." Ironically, his sensitivity to feminist issues counter this. What I hope is that we can begin to focus on cultural behaviors and actions instead of just on political "actors." Orvetti seems to assign ignorance as a new gender role of the male sex. I would argue that it is the assigning to gender roles that got us into trouble in the first place.

Heather Janules
Hampshire College

Developing Nations

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

The present status of the island of Puerto Rico

By ESTEBAN HERMIDA AND TANAGRA MELGAREJO
Collegian Correspondents

Since 1898, with the outcome of the Spanish-Cuban-American war, Puerto Rico has been, with some technical differences here and there, a colony of the United States. The first official definition of the colonial status was the Foraker Act of 1900, where 'Porto Rican' citizenship was granted to the inhabitants of the island and the right to appoint a governor was assumed by the United States.

Analysis

As a continuation of the colonialist attitude from the United States, the Jones Act of 1917 declared an imposed U.S. citizenship to Puerto Ricans. The reason for this decision was the fear of the U.S. of German intervention in the Caribbean due to the development of World War I.

Puerto Ricans also provided a good prospect for serving in the Armed Forces. An important fact to note was that granting citizenship was never intended to guarantee permanent annexation to the Union.

Ever since this era, the United States, because of its economic and strategic interests on the Island, has made great efforts to dwindle Puerto Rican aspirations towards independence. From this point on, every arising situation that provided a positive panorama for the independence alternative would be promptly supressed with the emergence of counterinsurgency tactics from the United States.

Examples of this would be the periods after World Wars I, II and the Cuban Revolution. Each of these events, in one way or another, threatened U.S. hegemony over the Island and as a consequence repression against 'Independentistas' (supporters of independence) gained strength.

The imperialist interests over Puerto Rico drove the United States to subjugate the Island economically to the mainland. This is seen from the beginning with the favorable conditions for the trade of sugar, and the incentives for importing U.S. products. A process of complete economic dependence towards the mainland started to develop. It would continue with the domination of the industrialization process by U.S. corporations.

To this day, economic dependence is still going. At the present time, more than 50 percent of the Island is dependent on food stamps and other federally funded social aid programs.

Still today, after almost 100 years of colonial rule by the United States, the future status of Puerto Rico is still in a state of limbo.

Two weeks ago, Puerto Rico had the chance to vote on the issue of status. The outcome was simply plurality for the status quo of commonwealth. This serves to show the extent of the mental colonization suffered by Puerto Ricans.

The constant fear of change has prevented the radicalization of politics in the island. For the majority of the population, which is in a deep state of poverty, independence is not an attractive option because it does not guarantee their subsistence. Due to the constant repression suffered by radical 'Independentistas', the faction of the movement that has been able to survive has a rather conservative and elitist ideology.

In order to solve Puerto Rico's problems, a radical revolution is needed. The reason for this is that in the event of independence ever being achieved on the Island, Puerto Rican capitalists have the potential of being just as repressive and reactionary as those from the United States.

None of the options available today offer a real alternative for the poor masses. Although ideally, socialist radicalization would be the best alternative, judging from previous experience, we are a long way from achieving justice.

The indoctrination of a young student

It was 1:30 p.m. on a Friday. When the "people from Ft. Buchanan" — an army base in the San Juan area and one of the main U.S. military bases in Puerto Rico — came to inspect the school every year, it was a special occasion.

I was standing up under a 93 degree weather, wearing my white helmet and my white scarf along with the rest of my army green uniform. My boots, which I carefully polished the night before, were shining like the sun I was under. The golden alto saxophone I was carrying slid through my white polyester gloves.

"De Jesus, stand up straight!" yelled the drum major.

EVELYN
DE JESUS

I felt I was going to faint, but I did not care. The pride of knowing that I was going to play my national anthem in front of those wonderful soldiers who have served my country for my freedom was enough to encourage me to "stand in there."

That pride made me want to show my loyalty. I felt like I understood their honor. I was different from the other civilians who just sat there and watched what I could do for them.

At that moment, my contribution to my country, the United States of America, was to play the Star Spangled Banner and the other military music during the parade. I was 16 years old.

"Sargeant Cotto, how many people did you behead in Vietnam?" I would ask my military science instructor, who loved to tell stories about the 20 or so months he spent there. My classmates and I would start to formulate theories on how many he actually killed, because he never gave us a straight answer.

I remember doing drills the year that I was part of the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps (JROTC). I was taught how to carry a rifle. I remember being in the range trying to qualify for the rifle team award. I never made it.

I still remember discussing with my best male friend how to slit somebody's throat or stab somebody in the lung effectively.

"De Jesus, do not forget that when you stab the person you have to do it with your left hand, so the forensic pathologist does not know that you are actually right-handed or much better: stab him on the head," the officer said.

My friend now attends the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland.

As you can see, I am the product of the U.S. demagogic policy. I feel part of a country that I am not a part of. I am part of a group which feels ashamed of me.

Why? Because I am culturally different, I'm treated as an inferior politically speaking. Because my native language is not English, because my heritage is not the same as the mainstream.

Despite this irony, the reasons for this rejection and the refusal to grant me the same quality of life as John Doe from Idaho do not apply when it comes to abiding by federal rules, leaving sterile lands with Agent Orange, or drafting Puerto Ricans.

Yes, we go to war and fight with you and for you, even when we are taken for granted.

We are sent to war by a president for whom we cannot vote; a Congress, where we do not have representation and a House of Representatives in which we have no say in the laws it legislates.

A total of 95 years have gone by and we have fought with more pride than many of those who have dared to burn the U.S. flag in front of the White House. We have made sacrifices as every "American" would so we could all enjoy and support the freedom of the country. We do not receive all its benefits, however.

I guess the policy of the United States has worked, but I still want the island to have its political status defined, either as a state or as a country, not as a colony, a "possession" or any of those happy medium repulsive formulas that we are right now.

"Present arms!" — yells the Alpha Company Commander.

To the count of four I started playing in the sol pitch.

A few years have gone by and I realize that indoctrination has its consequences. I feel I have a knife on the throat when it comes to choosing a side.

I wonder what made me think and feel this way. if it is not living in the mainland and being isolated from the real United States, not living the prejudices and racism of the real politics over me.

I wonder what will have to happen in my life when I make my choice: have a sibling killed in a war; being attacked by an American soldier; being arrested and judged unfairly due to my ethnic background or being named by the president for a political position.

May God forbid if I ever dare to question the U.S.'s policy over Puerto Rico, if I ever call it demagogic, hypocritical or ironic, this is better for my condition as a second class American citizen. It will affect my job application to the F.B.I . . . although being a native Spanish speaker is considered a great asset to the agency.

Evelyn De Jesus is a Collegian staff member.

Hidden in the Mist

A story of a child that knew the truth

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian staff

It was early in the morning and the mist was not moving, it had been the same for the last few days. People in town were worried, the mountains had disappeared and nobody knew who took them away.

Cielito de las Brumas was the only one to notice. Her screams travelled across the valley, knocking on every door, waking up every family. There were no echoes but a dense mist covered the sky forbidding everyone to see what had happened. Without the mountains, the town could not do anything. It was there that they planted coffee and corn, it was the mountains that told them were to go, where they were.

Cielito was the only one to know the truth and she was only nine years old. Why would the mountains suddenly decide to disappear, she inquired. Her guardian angel didn't reply.

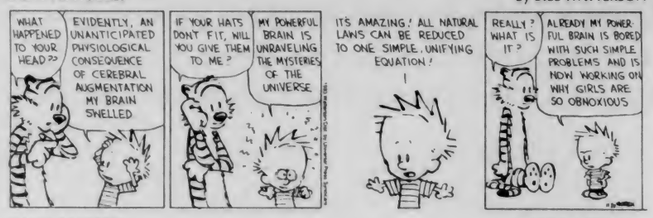
The entire town was in chaos, nobody believed Cielito and yet everyone was afraid of the story. Why would the mountains dissapear? God didn't reply. The town leader, Fracaso de Lider, ordered everyone to stay in their homes until the mist cleared away and the truth would be revealed.

The days passed and the mist had not moved one inch. Fracaso didn't know what to do, people wanted answers, they were hungry and confused. Fracaso had always dreamed of power but now they wanted him to resign. Why would the mountains disappear? This time the devil replied: Cielito de las Brumas.

One hour later, the town was called to the Central Plaza. Fracaso told the crowd how Cielito, an evil witch, had taken the mountain away. "The only way out," Fracaso said, "is to burn her alive...we will spray her ashes into the air and the mist will go away and the mountains will come back."

Everybody cheered for the leader who had found the only answer, and as he said, "an answer inspired by God." Cielito didn't react, she knew the truth and had nothing to explain.

That same night she was burnt alive. Fracaso sprayed her ashes all over the Plaza and as everyone expected the mist started to clear away but the mountains...the mountains were not there. All they could see were the ashes of Cielito de las Brumas forming a pattern in the sky: it was the silhouette of the mountains.



IMAGES

COURTESY OF RICHARD AVEDON

The late Cesar Chavez was a labor leader and hero of the Mexican and Chicano agricultural workers in California.

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"If you're gonna do it / do it right / right / do it with me."

– Wham!

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Extra responsibilities will yield extra income. An affectionate member of the opposite sex wants you to reciprocate. Be honest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may be interested in a quiet night after having a long day. If that is the case, do not feel guilty. You will have to do more than your share at home this week.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Let people warm up to you before you try to impress them. The hard sell works better in business than in romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Investments will soon bloom. A close friendship helps you balance work with pleasure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Savor a day of rest and reflection, spirituality and privacy. Gather with good pals tonight and cast any troubles overboard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Luck is with you, especially in the field. If you live near a road, watch your pets. Someone you like will be very nice to you today.

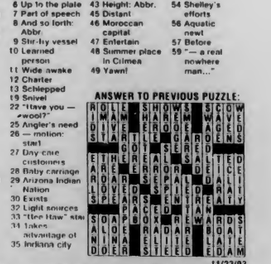
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A shopping spree buoys your spirits. Time spent with VIPs is an experience you will value even more later on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be an optimist! Back up your words of commitment with action. You need to weigh your options carefully in business.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Domestic projects produce quick results today. You learn a secret that you have suspected for a long time.

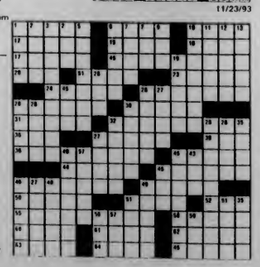
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Confidential dealings can turn out extremely well today. More give-and-take in a relationship will bring fabulous results!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your faith in yourself makes you a winner! A new ally may come forward. Agreements mesh — in your favor.



PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A pact you strike with a friend, client or creditor has high profit potential. Your words carry weight now — and can gain you backing for a key objective.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Brunhoff's well-dressed elephant
6 Again
10 Add seasoning
14 Manhandle
15 Dorothy's dog
16 Liz Taylor role
17 Knocks out
18 "Our Gang" member
20 Tundra denizen
21 "Misery" star James
23 Palomino
24 Impact
26 Formal, pompous
28 Rats!
30 A Heisenberg
31 Ways to go
32 Sloppy Joe, of a sort
36 Spring time: Abbr.
37 Genus or Sammy
38 Dos Passos opus
39 Go between
42 Gaited horse
44 Spear anagram
45 Down-home
46 Certain lires
49 Must
50 "The way to — heart is..."
51 Classily
52 The guy on first?
55 A reason for bracee
58 In the lead
60 Twins immortal
61 Herr's spouse
62 Category
63 Symbol of sadness
64 Semester
65 Curved letters

DOWN
1 Instructed
2 Eden dweller
3 Oater
4 Invite
5 Saves
6 Up to the plate
7 Part of speech
8 And so forth: Abbr.
9 Stir-fry vessel
10 Learned person
11 Wide-awake
12 Charter
13 Schlepped
19 Snivel
22 "Have you — wool?"
25 Angler's need
26 — motion: stat!
27 Day-care customers
28 Ritzy carriage
29 Arizona Indian Nation
30 Exists
32 Light sources
33 "The Haw" star
34 Takes advantage of
35 Indiana city
37 Trade
40 Imbiber
41 Smallest
42 Mail fee
43 Height: Abbr.
45 Distant
46 Moroccan capital
47 Entertain
48 Summer place in Crimea
49 Yawn!
51 Part of Old Glory
53 Tortoise's rival
54 Shelley's efforts
56 Aquatic newt
57 Before
59 "— a real nowhere man..."

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

11/23/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Sean P. Hayden
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Sean Ramsey, Suan Nasberg, Lisa Jezowski

MENU

LUNCH
Hungarian Noodle
Grilled Chicken

BASICS LUNCH
Hungarian Noodle
Grilled Chicken

DINNER
Beef Fajitas
Yes, it's SCROD!

BASICS DINNER
Tofu Fajitas
More Scrod

NIT Final Four Game Preview

Massachusetts Minutemen

No. 8 nationally

Coach John Calipari

North Carolina Tar Heels

No. 1 nationally

Coach Dean Smith

Projected Starting Line-ups

UMass	UNC
G Derrick Phelps	G Derrick Phelps
G Donald Williams	G Donald Williams
C Eric Camby	C Eric Montross
F Lou Roe	F Kevin Salvadori
F Dana Dingle	F Jerry Stackhouse

Game begins at 9:30 p.m. TV: ESPN. Radio: WMUA 91.1 FM with Sean P. Hayden doing the play-by-play and Arthur Stapleton Jr. providing the color commentary; WHMP 99.3 FM.

■ men's hoop

continued from page 12

match with a Williams of its own: Mike, who has scored 30 points for the tourney.

"It's going to be interesting seeing Mike and Donald Williams go at it. Donald Williams can play, he was the MVP of the Final Four; now let's see how he and Mike match up," said Calipari.

UMass' Williams, however, injured his ankle in practice yesterday and was on crutches afterward. Calipari said his status was unknown and as of press time, X-rays were being waited on.

UNC forward Brian Reese played against Western Kentucky in Carolina's 101-87 victory in the season opener, scoring nine points and collecting five assists. However, thanks to recurring pain suffered on the first day of practice, Reese sat out the second round and is day-to-day.

The Tar Heels' depth is helped by the addition of the best recruiting class in the nation, according to Dick Vitale's Basketball while Massachusetts' group of first-year players is ranked second.

Such highly touted players as Camby (19 points, 19 rebounds through two games) and forward Donta Bright (18-10), of the Minutemen will find themselves on the court at the same time as Carolina's corp of freshmen, led by Rasheed Wallace (18 points, 16 rebounds) and Jerry Stackhouse (19-9).

"We're going to be a very good basketball team in time. Are we ready to play North Carolina? No, but you know what, it's going to be a fun game to play. We're going to play our hearts out," said Calipari.

The winners of both semi-finals will play Friday night in the NIT Championship, as will the losers in the consolation game.

TICKET NOTICE: Student tickets for the UNC-UMass can be purchased at the Curry Hicks Cage today for $10 with a valid ID.

■ water polo

continued from page 12

A BIG UNDERDOG

The team will practice Wednesday and Thursday, tuning up for its opening round tilt against No. 2 California on Friday at 1:30.

California, who finsished 19-8 on the year, is the three-time defending champions.

"We got a tough draw," Yarworth said. "They have a great coach, probably the best coach in the country. We're just going to go out there with our eyes open and see what we can do."

Win or lose, No. 7 UMass will play again Saturday and Sunday.

"It doesn't matter what seed we are," said goalie Alex Mujica. "It's in our hearts. We're going to go in there and do our best."

INSTANT RECOGNITION

Participating in the NCAAs has put UMass water polo into a national spotlight.

"It brings recognition to the school," said Yarworth, who is also the coach of the 4-0 men's swimming team. "Just in the last two weeks, I've had about 10 kids call that are interested in UMass."

THE DREAM

"This could be a once in a lifetime opportunity for the kids and myself," said Yarworth. "We want to make the most out of it.

"We are the supreme underdog, but the underdog has its day once in a while."

■ crosstown

continued from page 12

"They are better than Merrimack," said Mallen. "We have six Division I games remaining. Those games are critical in terms of us evaluating where we are. For us to really improve and show that we're a Division I team, we have to play better against Division I opponents. If we can come out with a win, we can show people we're for real."

Coming Monday November 29
SportsWeekend
Your source for UMass Sports news.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30 Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US. Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

UPC General Committee Meeting tonight 11/23 at 6 pm in cc 174-176. It's gonna be fun, so you all better come! (Toaster's/Murphy's Law, Babatunde)

AUTO FOR SALE

1984 VW Jetta
200000 miles still runs
$300 or best offer ASAP
Sean 549-4875

BIKERS AND JOGGERS

BE SAFE!
Night visibility waist belt
Comfortable, adjustable
Holds Walkman
Send 12.95 Check or MO to
Northern Enterprises
P.O. Box 175
Chicopee, MA 01021

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions:
1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card - cost $35 gives you your next TEN Dozen free
2) The Miser Card - Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen.
(Ben & Jerry's may be sob'd)
Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW
Sun-Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am
The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat - fireplace 586-4270

For Female, big room, 3 level townhouse, fireplace, 3 bathrooms, laundry, 5 minute walk, Amity Place, 250+, 546-7098

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO)
M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0869 428 Student Union

1BR available in Uptown Apartment
Available immediately
Low rent-great location
Call Kristen at 508-829-5041
(May call collect)

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg. Jan or Feb 549-7290

Room in Amherst House available
Jan 1-June 1
$210/mo
253-2219

Room for Rent
Looking for 2 people to share large bedroom in furnished apartment on Pelham Road
Huge Kitchen and Living Space
3 miles from campus
on bus route
Please call 253-5978

FOR SALE

All Disc Jockeys
Nikko Alpha 400 power amplifier
$200 Great condition
300 Watts!
546-8284

Moutain Bike for Sale
Mongoose $150 or best offer
Call Lisa 549-5111

Ski equipment
Rossignol 7G Sz 200
Atomic 733 SL Sz 195
K2 sz 172
Boots Sz 7, 8,9
Best Offer
Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings
Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

FOUND

I found your watch you lost it Wed. night at the bus stop Call Doug 586-8010

HELP WANTED

AA Cruise & Travel Jobs Earn $2500/mo & travel the world free! Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii and Asia. Cruise line now hiring for busy holiday, spring, and summer seasons! Guaranteed employment! Call 919-929-4398 ext. 114

ALASKA SUMMER EMPLOYMENT - fisheries. Many earn $2000+/mo. in canneries or $3000-$6000+/mo on fishing vessels. Many employers provide benefits. No experience necessary. Get the necessary head start on next summer. For more info. call: 1-206-545-4155 ext. A5001

ATT: Excellent income for home assembly work info 1-504-646-1700 Dept MA 1307

Exotic Dancers Wanted
Great pay, flexible hours
Race St. Pub 268 Race St Holyoke MA
Call Bob 532-1422

Free Trips and Cash******
Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break company! Choose Cancun, Bahamas, Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre!
Call now! Take a Break Student Travel
800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

International Employment Make up to $2000 - $4000+/mo teaching basic English in Japan, Taiwan and S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info, call: 206-632-1146 ext. J5001

PCA for male quad age 25
Friday, Saturday, Sunday mornings
Saturday evenings call 546-0666

Postal Jobs Available. Many positions. great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

$700/wk. Cannery workers. $4000/mo. deckhands. Alaska fishing industry now hiring for next summer. 1,000 openings. No exp. necessary. Free rm & bd. These jobs go fast! Employment Alaska. 1-206-323-2672

INSTRUCTION

Be a Bartender
Days/Evenings one week!
Placement Assistance
Boston Bartenders School
Call 747-9888 for Nov. and Dec. classes
Special Student Rates
Remember: To be professionally trained takes more than one evening.

Learn to Scuba Dive Earn credit. Dive Cape Ann, Key Largo, Bonaire. Pre-reg later with general physical education 545-2338

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

PERSONALS

Becky L.
Hey, congrats! You finally made it. You are an awesome Little Sister. Get psyched for shopping in Boston this weekend.
Sigma Love,
Karolyn

Calli Quinn quit playing games with nice people your brother almost

Dear Sweetie
I miss you!!!
KEEP UP ORK
Always, Mazurova

Dearest Tony,
HAPPY ANNIVERSARY! It truly has been a "Whole New World" with you!
"Forever in Love"
Laura

Happy Birthday
Carley Silva
Love Your Pledge Class

Happy Birthday Lori
You Lil Devil!
Now you're a person!
Love
Mr. Randall

Peach:
Just a little reminder of how much I care about you.
I hope you enjoy this special day.
(Wait til you see my present)
Little Fella

Poppy
Where are you?

Ad

Shannon and Yaffa
TAKE A CHANCE ON ME: I'll miss you on Thanksgiving! Phi LOVE TRIBE!
Phi LOVE YOU!

Water Polo Boys
Buenos Suerte at NCAA's
Show those Californians what the East can do
Get it up,
Play hard, and
SCORE BIG!
Women Swimmers

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley, and you already know IT'S the BEST! Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're in search of two undergrad males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

SERVICES

FINANCIAL AID for College
NO GPA or income restrictions.
Free recorded message gives details.
(508) 543-5640

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grntld 774-6010

Questions About Your leases/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center. 545-1995

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break
First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach, parties, pool deck, fun, night clubs, sunshine,
Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans with on campus pick up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94. Call for free brochure 1-800-9-Daytona M-F, 8-6 See ya at the beach!

Scuba Dive Key Largo Dec 28-Jan 3 Earn 2 credits. Meeting 12/3/93 at 7pm in room 255 Herter. Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

SEVEN CONTINENTS EXCHANGE PROGRAMS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF GRANADA, SPAIN. January, June, July, August and/or September. Intensive language, culture, civilization studies. Cultural excursions in Granada, Cordoba, Seville. Beginners, intermediate, advanced. Contact: SEVEN CONTINENTS, DOMINICK VENE, PO Box 8163, Paramus, NJ 07653-8163 (201)444-8687

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca
586-1989

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

Sports

Massachusetts to attend Garden party

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

The Final Four of a prestigious tournament. The No. 1 ranked team in the country and defending national champion, the University of North Carolina.

This scenario is getting all too familiar for the University of Massachusetts.

Only five days after the Minutewoman soccer team fell in the semifinals of the NCAA tourney to UNC, 4-1, the No. 18 ranked Massachusetts men's basketball squad will try its luck against the Tar Heels when it takes the Madison Square Garden court tomorrow night in New York City (9:30 p.m., ESPN).

Massachusetts Coach John Calipari and company advanced to the semifinals with an 82-65 shellacking of Towson State, while Dean Smith's Tar Heels blew out then No. 19 Cincinnati, 90-63. In the early match-up tomorrow night, No. 6 Kansas and No. 9 Minnesota butt heads.

Carolina is the overwhelming pre-season favorite to repeat as NCAA Champions. The Tar Heels return every main contributor from last season's squad, except for forward George Lynch, who graduated and moved on to the NBA's Los Angeles Lakers.

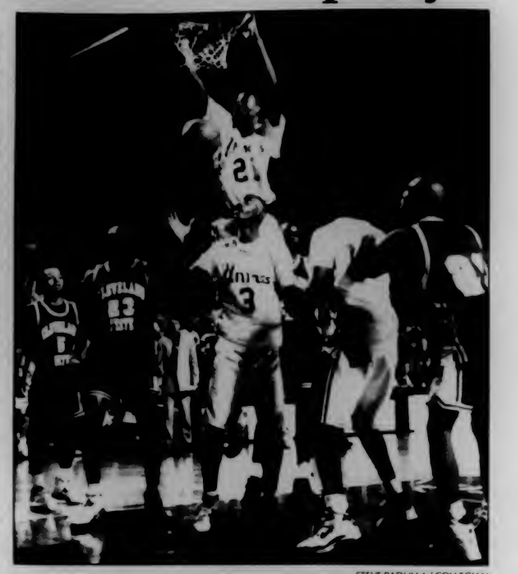
North Carolina is both extremely deep and talented; senior center Eric Montross, senior point guard Derrick Phelps and junior shooting guard Donald Williams lead the balanced Tar Heel attack.

Montross is a cinch to be a NBA lottery pick and could possibly be the first player taken next June. But for now, the 7-foot, 275-pound immovable man is left to terrorize the collegiate ranks for another season, which he has started to do in the NIT.

Over Carolina's first two games, Montross has scored 37 points, grabbed 15 rebounds and blocked five shots. He is a huge presence in the paint that Calipari has made his team well aware of.

"I told a couple of the guys that if Montross catches the ball and turns to dunk it, just get out of his way. Don't get hurt, don't get your arm broken off in the rim," said Calipari.

"I can't wait. He's an excellent player, probably an NBA lottery pick," said Massachusetts freshman center Marcus Camby on his one-on-one battle with Montross. "I can't wait to play against him."



Minuteman forward Lou Roe, who has totaled 38 points and 17 rebounds, will be keyed on by the Tar Heels' defense inside the paint. Roe and Camby will be counted on to keep Montross and the Carolina frontline in check.

Phelps is considered one of the best point guards in America, quite possibly the best defensively. So far in the tourney, Phelps has two steals and has dished out 12 assists, averaging six points in the two contests.

Carolina's Derrick will be matched up against UMass' Derek Kellogg, that is, who has amassed 11 assists, seven points and five rebounds in the first two rounds of the NIT.

Williams, the MVP of the NCAA Final Four last season, is the scorer for the Tar Heels, averaging 24 points for the tourney. He is a deep threat, shooting at a 41.7 percent clip from three-point range. Massachusetts will try and

Turn to MEN'S HOOP, page 7

STEVE PADULLA / COLLEGIAN

Freshman center Marcus Camby of the Minuteman basketball team is in for a true test tomorrow night against All-America candidate Eric Montross and No. 1 North Carolina.

Water polo heads to NCAAs

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

A group of college athletes who have dedicated themselves to attain what was once considered impossible, will chase after a dream this upcoming weekend.

That special group of athletes is the University of Massachusetts water polo team.

They accomplished what they had set out to do, earn a berth to the NCAA tournament. At the beginning of the year, earning a bid looked to be somewhat of a reach.

"We set a goal at the beginning of the season to qualify for nationals, and that's what we did," said Head Coach Russ Yarworth.

After capturing the Eastern Championships in convincing fashion just two weeks ago, the team received an automatic invitation to what Yarworth refers to as "The Show." But still, their desire is far from quenched.

"We're not satisfied just qualifying," said Yarworth. "We want to go out there and prove we're a top 10 in the country team."

While many students will be embarking home for Thanksgiving weekend tomorrow, the team will be on its way to deciding its destiny in Long Beach, Calif.

THE LONG PLANE RIDE

After a Tuesday night practice at the Boyden Gym (the team practices at Amherst College on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays), the team will head home for an early morning wake-up call.

A bus will leave the school at 8 a.m., transporting the squad to the Bradley Airport in Hartford. The flight departs at 10 a.m., and should touch ground late afternoon (Pacific Time) at Orange County.

"Hopefully I'll have a game plan by [the plane ride]," said Yarworth. "There will be plenty of time to talk to the players individually.

"Basically, we'll let them relax on the plane ride. You don't want to get too psyched up too early."

Turn to WATER POLO, page 7

Volleyball grabs third at A-10s

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts volleyball team finished out its inaugural season with force this weekend when the Minutewomen established their presence at the Atlantic 10 Conference Tournament and played like veterans.

The Minutewomen (No. 6) gave one of their best performances of the season as they knocked off defending A-10 champions and tournament host Rhode Island (No. 3) on Friday night. UMass followed this with another stellar performance on Saturday when they almost forced another upset, this time against Temple (No. 2), but lost the hard fought match in five games.

The UMass women's volleyball team, which was reinstated this season after a three-year layoff, had its work cut out for them at the beginning of the season. Despite limited recruiting, only eight women on the team and a new program, it had high expectations for the season.

With the mix of a hardworking team comprised mostly of freshmen, and the solid coaching ability of Bonnie Kenny and her staff, the team made a series of goals for itself and accomplished them all.

"We want to play .500 ball for the season," said Kenny of the team's expectations, "and make the Atlantic-10 Tournament. Only the top six teams in the conference make the tournament."

The Minutewomen's season record was 17-15, they made the tournament, and as "gravy," managed to upset one team and almost fought their way into the finals of the A-10 tournament which would have given them a bid to the NCAA tournament.

The Minutewomen lost the first game of the tournament against Rhode Island 15-3, but powered back to win two straight, 15-10, and 15-7. The Rams took the fourth game 15-12 and forced a fifth, rally-scoring match which UMass took 15-8.

Standing out for the Minutewomen was Rachel Sky who in addition to her usual defensive presence led the UMass offensive attack with 16 kills. Kimberly Mizner and Dionne Nash also contributed to the offense with 13 and 11 kills, respectively.

The Minutewomen went into their next match against Temple with confidence and took the first game 15-13. The Owls took the second game 15-11 and then back to the Minutewomen who won the third 15-12. Again the Owls stormed back taking the fourth 15-10 forcing a rubber match for a spot in the finals.

Temple took the final game of the match, 15-11, to end the Minutewomen's season and propel the Owls into the finals against a potent George Washington team (No. 1), which is on a 20-consecutive victory streak for the season.

UMass finishes its season 17-14 and 7-9 in the A-10.

Hockey goes against Jeffs

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

A crosstown hockey rivalry?

It is not quite Boston University and Boston College, but for the first time in more than 20 years, the Lord Jeffs of Amherst College will face off against the University of Massachusetts Minutemen, and a crosstown rivalry will be revived for one more game.

UMass leads the lifetime series 35-23-3, dating back to 1909. The last time they met, in 1972, the Minutemen romped, defeating the Lord Jeffs 15-1, and despite the success that the Minutemen have enjoyed lately with a five game streak of mostly blowout victories, UMass Coach Joe Mallen expects a tough game.

"I think we are going to see a team that is as good, if not better than any of the Division III teams that we've played," said Mallen.

Amherst could fare better than some of UMass' previous opponents, because they play more of a skate-and-pass style as opposed to the dump-and-chase style that proved to be the downfall of teams like Iona and Fitchburg State.

Amherst Coach Jack Arena gives considerable praise to UMass.

"I saw them play Fitchburg. They were much better than I expected them to be," said Arena. "Even though they are all freshmen, the amount of hockey experience that those kids have is considerably more than what our kids have."

The fact that most Amherst students are gone for Thanksgiving, and many of the UMass students will have departed before tonight's match-up, lessens the magnitude of this confrontation.

"It would have been a game our kids would loved to have seen," said Arena.

"It would have been great to play this on a Friday or Saturday night," said Mallen, "but at least the people in Amherst will be interested in this one."

The Minutemen will be thrown back into the fire Saturday when they play St. Lawrence, their first Division I opponent since their opening game against Merrimack.

Turn to CROSSTOWN, page 7

THIS WEEKEND

November 23–28

The Collegian's Guide to Arts & Entertainment in the Five College Area

PEACE TOGETHER

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

The Fat Lady Sings, after the release of their new album, was labelled by NME magazine as "Ireland's finest band." But where's Robert Hamilton? Perhaps, more appropriately, who is Robert Hamilton?

He'll be the first to admit he's not a famous person, but the ex-member of Fat Lady Sings, found a higher calling - peace. And found he had more friends than he thought.

"I've left my band, I've been working on this 18 hours a day," said Hamilton. "I'd gotten to this stage with the band where...I wasn't totally enamored with it anymore."

Hamilton found it was time to devote his skills to another project, one he'd mulled over with fellow Irish musician Allie McMordie (Stiff Little Fingers) for some time. "Myself and Allie had basically been discussing using music for I'd say at least two years before I left the band. But I always had this convenient excuse that I was playing in a band and he always had the similar convenient excuse. So when I left the band I knew exactly what I was going to do," explained Hamilton.

Living in the streets of Dublin, Hamilton had been exposed to the sickening and often violent confrontations between Ireland's Catholics and Protestants for what seemed like a lifetime. "At that stage the troubles had been going on for about 25 years. I just kept saying, 'nobody does anything that is helping the situation.'," said Hamilton.

Hamilton continued, "Peace Together is about preparing people for peace." This is not just another benefit designed to boost the social image of the performers, Peace Together is a bid for change. Hamilton and McMordie took their ambition and desire to make a difference and put them into action.

The result was more dramatic than either of the men could have imagined. "We couldn't pick up the phone and talk to Bono or Peter Gabriel or Paul McCartney. We worked on the principle that anybody can get in touch with anybody. You're only seven people away from the person you want to talk to," said Hamilton.

"Basically I just annoyed anybody and everybody that I know. And the two of us basically just sat in this very small office and we just churned it out, hit everybody...Once we'd gotten through to those people on that album, there was no way they were not going to get involved."

Hamilton and McMordie annoyed the right people or at least people who know the right people. U2, Sinead O'Connor, Peter Gabriel, one major Irish or British artist after another lined up. And the list goes on.

Track after track on Peace Together glows with emotion. The single, "Be Still" features the vocals of Peter Gabriel, Sinead O'Connor and Feargal Sharkey. It's an impassioned tune, but the most uplifting tunes are of a less anthemic nature.

U2 and Lou Reed are represented with a live track recorded in Dallas, "Satellite of Love," in which Bono displays his high ranges to perfection.

Elvis Costello's tunes are well represented as British rockers Carter U.S.M. cover "Peace In Our Time" and Blur tackles the classic "Oliver's Army".

"[Their manager] said there are two chances - none and absolutely none," recalled Hamilton of how he lured British etherealists My Bloody Valentine who have the most audibly pleasing track on the disc.

"Two days later she called back and said, 'You're not going to believe this because I don't, but they want to do it," said Hamilton.

"We Have All Time In The World" features Belinda Butcher's angelic voice swaying above the Vals' dreamy waves of (surprisingly undistorted) backdrop.

The sometimes rough, sometimes melodic Therapy? cover the Police tune, "Invisible Sun," and Curve's atmospherics team up with Ian Dury to perform Dury's "What A Waste." But the true favorites of Robert Hamilton are of a slightly more narrative variety.

"There's two that are lyrically very, very, very special to the Peace Together project. 'Two Little Boys' by Rolf Harris [and Liam O'Maonlai of Hothouse Flowers]... and the 'Religious Persuasion' track by Andy White [and Davy Spillane]."

"Two Little Boys" is striking in its story-telling simplicity about two Civil War era boys whose friendship finds itself on opposite lines as war breaks out. "It's about how their friendship survives and brings them through it," said Hamilton.

Children and friendship are, ironically enough, the theme of the Peace Together project. "We're going to raise significant sums and we will spend that money in a way that benefits the youth of Northern Ireland."

Northern Ireland Children's Holiday Schemes (NICHS), sends groups of 20 Catholic and 20 Protestant children on holidays together so they may learn not to inherit the religious barriers of their ancestors before it's too late. NICHS is one such organization which will receive a chunk of this money, said Hamilton. "What those people do is absolutely brilliant. They save lives."

Saving lives is the end result - preparing people for peace is the goal of Peace Together, not just another sympathy raising commercial ploy.

Hamilton calls on a metaphor to explain his cause. "You've heard the phrase 'give a man a fish, you feed him for a day, give him a fishing rod, you feed him for life.' The money from Peace Together is going to go towards giving young kids in Northern Ireland fishing rods. The ability to cast their line further."

Using their noodle

Delicious contest winners announced

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Angelique De Coste & Elizabeth Mansager, winners of our very own Collegian Noodle Contest.

The winners of the Arts/Living noodle contest are Angelique DeCoste (first place, winner of five CDs) and Elizabeth Mansager (runner-up, winner of three CDs). The winning recepies are printed below. Thanks to all who participated in the contest—stay tuned for future cook-offs.

— EMILY MARINO

First Place: Oriental Ramen Stir Fry

Ingredients:
- 1 carrot sliced into thin, 2 inch spears
- 1 stalk celery sliced into 1/4 inch pieces
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, chopped
- 1 cup chopped red pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped water chestnuts
- 1 package Ramen Oriental flavored noodles
- 1 boneless chicken breast cut into 2x1 inch strips or 1 lb. firm tofu.

Directions:
1. In pot, cook Ramen noodles according to specified directions on Ramen package. Drain water from pot. Mix in 1/2 of seasoning packet with noodles. Set noodles aside.
2. Coat bottom of frying pan with oil. Over medium heat, with 3 tablespoons soy sauce, saute carrots, broccoli, onion, celery, pepper, garlic and water chestnuts, leaving them slightly crisp.
3. While vegetables are cooking, saute chicken breast pieces in separate frying pan, coated with oil and 3 tablespoons soy sauce. When pieces turn white, they are cooked. Set aside.
4. When vegetables are sauted, still slightly crisp, stir chicken and noodles into pan with them, adding a bit more soy sauce, as desired. Saute together for three minutes or until vegetables are at desired crispness.
5. Serve immediately.

Runner-Up: Ramen Pad Thai

Ingredients:
- 1 package Ramen noodles
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 3 cloves garlic
- 1/2 teaspoon dried red chili flakes
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 2 tablespoons fish or soy sauce
- 1 tablespoons ketchup
- 2 tablespoons peanut butter
- 2 eggs, beaten (optional)

Turn to NOODLE, page 3

'Star Trek' parody a riotous laugh fest

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Star Trip: The Next Mutilation
Hampden Commons Southside Room
November 20, 1993

Student Valley Productions was back at entertaining the campus crowd with Star Trip: The Next Mutilation, a well-conceived parody of "Encounter at Farpoint", the pilot episode of "Star Trek: The Next Generation".

The two-hour play was performed by the FOPS, which stands for "Friends of Patrick Stewart," the chrome-domed guy who plays Captain Jean-Luc Picard. The production was inspired by the players' desire to write their own comedy material and from a love for the television series.

"We chose 'Star Trek: the Next Generation"'s first episode because most of the characters hadn't met yet, and were therefore one-dimensional, funny and easy to parody," said Gail Bishop, a member of comedy troupe Mission: IMPROVable, who was cast as Lt. Tasha Yar.

"We're not really making fun of it, most of it springs from a labor of love and adoration for the show. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," Bishop said.

Bishop was unavailable for the last two performances, having twisted her ankle and fallen off the stage during Thursday night's presentation.

Nevertheless, the show must go on and go on it did, eliciting roars of laughter at several points (perhaps the best response was a reference to President Clinton's absurd "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" homosexual policy) and keeping the audience chuckling throughout with lots of Airplane and Naked Gun-like slapstick humor, sound effects and all.

Among the talented cast were IMPROV veterans Kevin Nessman as Capt. Jean-Luc Picard, Fabienne Rouzeau as the emotionally-oversensitive Counselor Deanna Troi, Carrie Christner as Dr. Beverly Crusher and Brian Jewell as both the villain "Q" and Dr. Crusher's son, Wesley.

Also on hand were equally brilliant Joseph MacDonough as Cmdr. William Riker, Matt Spare as Lt. Cmdr. Data, Justin Beatty as Lt. Worf, Felix Khalatnikov as the blind Lt. Geordi LaForge, Dawna Ferriera as Ensign Ex(pendable) and Alex Dering as Groppler Zorn.

Some of the jokes were based on Troi's often annoying telepathic powers and insignificant dialogue, the android Data's lack of emotions and subsequent inability to comprehend jokes directed at him, Dr. Crusher's (no pun intended) crush on Capt. Picard (she donned a body-hugging dress and cooed the song "Fever" in one scene) and Lt. Worf's un-Klingonlike emotional displays.

One aspect worth noting is that Linda Carranza, who directed the performances, was able to fill in for Bishop as Tasha Yar and learn the character's lines in one afternoon.

The uniforms and other props, including the fake bald head that Nessman wore, made the play an enjoyment to watch, although one would have to be a hardcore Trekkie to catch all the jokes. When the stage was lit up at the play's onset, simply seeing the cast

Turn to STAR TREK, page 4

COURTESY ALAN DAVIES

Joe McDonough plays Riker and Fabienne Rozeau plays Troi in the "Star Trek" parody, "Star Trip: The Next Mutilation."

Sign up now for Winter Session You won't regret it!

▼▼▼▼▼▼▼▼

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building
545-3653

▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲▲

Information Data Bank
At Whitmore
Wishes You A
Happy Break

Gettysburg flounders; My Life moves

By JON LUPO
& ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Gettysburg — If there is one thing more bloated and overstated than this film's ponderous four hour and 10 minute running time, it must be producer Ted Turner's ego. Originally constructed as a six-hour TNT miniseries (which it will eventually air as), Turner's cumbersome adaptation of Michael Shaara's 1974 Pulitzer-Prize winning The Killer Angels reduces Shaara's poetic telling of that fateful battle into a nightmarish bore.

Gettysburg can't shed its paltry TV-movie roots as the film's scope and pacing favor commercial interruptions. Director Ron Maxwell (whose biggest credit was the Kristy McNichol teen virginity comedy, Little Darlings) is over his head in more ways than one. Has Maxwell ever heard of editing? The numerous soliloquies and grandstanding speeches go on so long the points are lost and shots linger on the screen long after the dramatic potential has left them.

The slack, TV-movie feel is also a problem with realism as Gettysburg shies away from depicting most of the battle's bloody carnage. But perhaps that's a good idea, since the clunky acting is ultimately scarier. In a disparate ensemble filled with such almost-notables as a wildly miscast Martin Sheen (Gen. Robert E. Lee) and the slightly better Tom Berenger (Gen. Longstreet), only Jeff Daniels manages a moving performance (as Col. Joshua Lawrence Chamberlain), though there were many times I just wanted to rip that silly, high-school-play quality moustache off of his face.

This Gettysburg is strictly for rabid Civil War buffs and (unfortunately for them) members of Prof. Oates' Hist 364 class. I heard Oates loved it, however, from this reviewer's perspective, Gettysburg is a losing battle. D+ (Opens Wednesday at Amherst Cinema, with intermissions) — J.L.

My Life — At a critical moment in director Bruce Joel Rubin's directorial debut, an alternative medicine faithhealer (Dr. Haing S. Ngor) tells doomed yuppie Michael Keaton that he has to rid himself of all his inner anger to prepare himself for his next life. You see, according to these New Age Yoda-esque dictums, the last feeling you have in this life becomes your constitution in the next. If only it were that simple.

Rubin's third paean to "the great beyond" (read: afterlife) comes on the heels of his scripts for Jacob's Ladder and Ghost. "Tripping the white light fantastic" may have worked for those supernatural jaunts, but in My Life, reincarnation and dazzling balls of luminescent heaven simply lightens a cup best poured darkly.

Still no amount of mysticism can deplete Michael Keaton's hard working performance. Keaton has always brought an edge to his rogues' gallery of jesters. Here he brings light to a semi-dark guy, a workaholic PR man with a magic bullet, cancer, that has him rethinking his life and rekindling passion with his wife (Nicole Kidman). To prepare for his son's birth he decides to make a videotape of his life.

It sounds like high-concept but that little camera within a camera gimmick captures some raw moments as the wall of white lies surrounding Keaton comes tumbling down (starting with his denial of his immigrant father's surname).

Had it been less clean and sober, My Life could have transcended four-hanky status. Keaton reaching out to his newborn son jars even the most jaded critics, so why not run with a good premise. Unfortunately Rubin relies too much on that spectral light from the heavens (or is it Industrial Light and Magic?), drying an honest tear-jerker. We all wish we had a chance to wrap things up with loved ones, but some things are best left unsaid. B- (Mt. Farms Four) — E.H.

COURTESY MERRICK MORTON/COLUMBIA PICTURES

Bob Jones (Michael Keaton) makes a video of his life as a gift to his unborn child in "My Life."

Energetic Sam to play in Noho

By RYAN THOMAS
Collegian Correspondent

The band who is considered the undisputed kings of new-school Boston hardcore will perform tonight at Pearl Street.

Sam Black Church is guaranteed to amaze the audience with an extremely energetic show. Lead singer "Jet," who is widely known for his karate-chopping jumps and leaps (and thus aptly named), is truly a sight on stage.

The band also consists of three more rambunctious musicians who, when fronted by Jet's powerful voice, form a cacophonous powerhouse of music.

Sam Black Church's independently released 7-inch has come to be one of the highest selling singles to emerge from the Boston area in recent years. Its shows are always sold-out quickly and full of supercharged energy.

Some of the band's past shows have been played alongside such groups as the Mighty Mighty Bosstones and Fugazi. Sam's industrio-speed freak style always tends to lead the crowd into a slamdancing, stage-diving, crowd-riding and frenzied disposition.

Let in Life is the follow-up to their successful self-titled E.P., and contains such smash-hits as "Realive" and "Captain of the World". Undoubtedly, Sam Black Church has proven themselves to be one of the East Coast's most popular upcoming groups, and are becoming more renowned everyday thanks to widespread exposure from radio, media and now with the video for "Infernal Machine", even television.

Tonight's show will be one of full-fledged pandemonium, and looks to sell out fast. Sam Black Church promises a show that's bound to get the entire crowd moving.

◆ noodle

continued from page 2

- cooked chicken, tofu or pork (optional)
- 1/2 lime or 1 tablespoon limejuice (optional)
- mung bean sprouts (optional)

Directions:
1. Boil Ramen until not quite done (still slightly crunchy) and drain.
2. Heat oil and fry garlic and chili flakes. Add sugar, fish/soy sauce, ketchup and peanut butter.
3. Make a well in the middle of the pan, add eggs and allow to set slightly, then stir to scramble.
4. Add noodles and any additional meat or tofu and toss to cover with sauce.
5. Put onto serving dish, sprinkle with lime juice and bean sprouts.

UMass Legal Services call for an appointment 545-1995

FREE confidential professional legal services for UMass students!

TONIGHT
TUESDAY NOV. 23RD
A PRE-HOLIDAY APPEARANCE
SETTIE
9:30 - 1AM
All Menu Nachos only $2.00 9:30 - 10:30
Miller Genuine Draft 12 oz. Bottle $1.50

THE 24 PUB
CELEBRATES 24 YEARS 1968 • 1993
IN AMHERST
•15 EAST PLEASANT STREET•

Ushering in new Rush era with Counterparts

By MATT AUDETTE
Collegian Correspondent

Counterparts
Rush
Atlantic Records

COURTESY ANDREW MACNAUGHTON

Geddy Lee, Neil Peart and Alex Lifeson make up Rush.

If for nothing else, you have to at least admire Rush for its longevity. With 18 albums under its belt and a career that is quickly approaching the 20-year mark, it would seem that these guys would have faded into rock 'n' roll oblivion by now.

But by slightly altering its music with the times and mixing precise musicianship with the ability to write intelligent, catchy songs, Rush has managed to emerge the only survivor from the smoldering ashes of '70s progressive rock (if you need proof just listen to the last few Yes albums).

After 1991's half-baked Roll The Bones, it seemed as if Canada's greatest export was beginning to soften a bit with age (after all, these guys have to be pushing their early forties). Yet with their newest release Counterparts, Rush quickly dismisses any fear that they might be settling down in adult contemporary heaven.

Opting for a more "organic" approach, the usually prominent keyboards have been pushed into the background and the guitar brought forward to create a denser, rougher sound that vaguely recalls their Permanent Waves-era.

Tracks such as "Animate" and "Cut To The Chase" rank among some of the finest songs that the band has done, and while the "non-conformity" message of "Stick It Out" may seem cliche, it is saved by a powerful riff and anthem-like chorus — the type the band is famous for.

The complex drum patterns and intricate bass-lines that were all but absent from its last few releases return in tracks such as "Double Agent" and "Alien Shore" (which contains a bass-line that will bring tears to the eyes of Musician magazine readers everywhere), quickly reminding us the members of the band are still among some of the most talented musicians around in rock music today.

While the album is musically leaps and bounds better than recent efforts, lyrically it leaves a lot to be desired. Drummer/lyricist Neil "rock god" Peart, who used to write some of progressive rock's most intelligent and intriguing lyrics, either seems to have lost his knack or is desperate for material. Songs like "Nobody's Hero", which tackles the problem of AIDS, and "Cold Fire" come off sounding forced and slightly immature for a lyricist of his caliber.

Plus it's hard to swallow singer/bassist Geddy Lee, a man who once screamed about the tortures of being sucked into a black hole, singing lines like "at the speed of love/my heart goes out to you."

While Counterparts may not be up to par with Rush's best work (i.e. Moving Pictures and Power Windows) and it's true that they are probably past their prime, the fact that after two decades they can still make records that are better than half the junk that floods the market today is a feat within itself. Not bad for a bunch of old geezers. B sitting before imaginary computer terminals and portal with the captain standing just behind the relentlessly key-punching Data and Geordi, was enough to stir up laughter.

◆ Star Trek

All proceeds of the four-night event went to the Midwest Relief Fund and the Western Massachusetts Food Bank.

The comedy that Student Valley Productions delivers is worth seeing, and the next chance to catch 'em is when Mission: IMPROVable perform their spontaneous, on-the-spot hilariousness on Dec. 4. If you like to laugh, and who doesn't, don't miss the chance to see up-and-coming talent in the making; it's worth the Trip.

Performance depicts culture

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

A modest monk stood beneath a blue light receiving a message, beckoning him forward to spread the gospel. This was the opening image of "Missions," part I of an hour-long performance entitled "Yesterday y Manana." This event, which took place at Hampshire College on Nov. 19-21, depicted the struggle of the European confrontation with the New World through the use of abstract movement and theatrical elements.

Six missionaries entered the stage waving banners in a carnivalesque parade. The bounding rhythm of the drums and sounds of the forest carried them towards the city of the Aztecs: The Great Tenochtitlan.

Michelle Marroquin, who created and directed the performance, described this moment: "euphoric in their endeavor to evangelize, they dance among strange and unearthly animals and spirits, sometimes as adventuresome explorers and sometimes in solemn ritual."

The audience was arrested with a series of images that could represent the beauty of faith, the impossibility of conversion and the inevitability of violence. The missionary is always a controversial figure, judged for his intrusion of native cultures but at the same time praised for his altruism.

"My intention is not to present them as saints or devils, rather to notice the contradictions between their theological reasoning and the feelings they had about witnessing and perpetuating such destruction," said Marroquin.

The second part of this dance-drama is situated in Mexico City, 500 years after the initial confrontation of cultures. Using slide projectors and a musical collage, this dance evoked the multiple realities of this cosmopolitan city.

"Standing in the center of Mexico's main plaza I could see the ruins of the Aztec Empire in front of me, a beautiful baroque cathedral to my right and I could hear and see a myriad of languages and people that are a result of this confrontation. This inspired the last dance of the performance," said Marroquin.

The dance addresses the issue of identity faced by the descendants of this collision. Mexican intellectuals have described this search for identity as a compelling desire to know the cultural self. This idea was expressed by creating a city-like scenario with people busily moving through the space. Stylized everyday movement became meaningful when moments of humor, casual contact and subtle interactions lead the viewer into that world.

"Yesterday y Manana" presents the issue of Latin American identity to a wide audience by creating a visual and musical experience that is both entertaining and mind opening.

Are you artistically inclined?
The Collegian's Editorial/Opinion page is looking for cartoonists!
Contact E.C. Thomas
at 113 Campus Center for information.

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or are age restricted.

Council Travel
79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413-256-1261

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minutemen upset Carolina

Victories earn UMass No. 9 ranking in CNN/USA Today poll Basketball wrap-up in SportsWeekend

Massachusetts 91
North Carolina 88

NEW YORK — Two three-pointers by Mike Williams first sent the game into overtime, then sealed the win for the Minutemen. Lou Roe checked in with a career-high 28 points and 14 rebounds as UMass downed No. 1 UNC.

Kansas 86
Massachusetts 75

NEW YORK — Without starting center Marcus Camby, who injured his knee against UNC, the Minutemen battled No. 6 Kansas, but came up short in the end as poor UMass free throw shooting proved costly. Roe had 25 points in the loss.

Massachusetts 84
Oklahoma 83

NORMAN, Okla. — A last second lay-up by Williams gave the Minutemen the victory over the Sooners at the Lloyd Noble Center. Sophomore Donta Bright scored a career-high 28 points to pace UMass, while Roe had 27.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

45° Monday
November 29, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 53

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Yugoslavia offered end to sanctions

By DUSAN STOJANOVIC
Associated Press

GENEVA — The European Community is hoping to lure the leaders of Bosnia's warring factions back to the negotiating table with an offer to lift sanctions on Yugoslavia, the troubled region's powerbroker.

But prospects for achieving peace soon appear dim.

The talks broke down in September when Bosnia's Serbs and Muslim-led government disagreed over terms for dividing up Bosnia. Fighting since then has mainly involved Bosnian Croats and government troops.

The 12 European Community foreign ministers will meet Monday with the leaders of each faction in a bid to restart the talks. Their new offer involves phasing out international sanctions against Serb-led Yugoslavia if Belgrade pressures the Bosnian Serbs into giving more land to the Muslims.

The Bosnian Serbs, who have gotten crucial backing from Yugoslavia during the 19-month war, hold about 70 percent of Bosnia. Bosnian Croats, who have gotten help from Croatia, hold much of the rest.

Government-held Sarajevo has been under Serb siege most of the war. On Sunday, at least five people were killed when Serb gunners fired a mortar shell into the city center.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, who is under pressure from hard-line Serbs not to yield an inch, has ruled out any further territorial concessions.

"We will not give up a centimeter of your territory," Karadzic said on Radio Belgrade before leaving the Yugoslav capital for Monday's talks. "It's going to be a grand theater in Geneva."

In Sarajevo, Izetbegovic said the international sanctions on Serbia, the dominant republic in Yugoslavia, should be tightened if there are no territorial concessions from Bosnian Serbs.

He also threatened to call for sanctions against Croatia unless President Frajo Tudjman of Croatia agrees to stop intervening in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic is to join Tudjman, Karadzic, Izetbegovic and Bosnian Croat leader Mate Boban for the Geneva talks.

Milosevic's country is crumbling under the U.N. sanctions, imposed in May 1992 to punish Serbia for fomenting the Bosnian war. He is considered the key to ending the conflict, in which more than 200,000 people have died.

He has not yet said publicly whether he would exert pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to give up more land, but his close aides have rejected the idea.

Under the earlier plan to divide Bosnia into Serb, Croat and Muslim-led states, Muslims would have gotten about 31 percent of the country.

The plan fell apart when Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic insisted on getting 3 percent to 4 percent more territory from the Serbs and secure access to a port on the Adriatic from the Croats.

Last week, the EC backed a French-German proposal for a "gradual suspension" of the sanctions against Belgrade if the additional land is surrendered to the Muslims.

Home sweet home

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Monique Johnson manages a smile despite the yesterday's torrential downpour which delayed post-break traffic for hours on the Massachusetts Turnpike.

Fear plays role in police union talks

BOSTON (AP) — Amid criticism from the mayor and police commissioner, the police union is defending its production of a pamphlet that warns about high street crime and dubs Boston "Fear City USA."

"I'm shocked that they, especially the mayor, would be appalled by a union telling people to be careful. These people don't deal with the victims of street crime," said Richard Bradley, president of the association.

But the mayor and police commissioner denounced the warning as a stunt aimed at pressuring the city during contract negotiations.

The pamphlet, produced by the Boston Police Patrolman's Associations, pictures the Grim Reaper on the cover and tells readers that 537 rapes or attempted rapes were reported last year in the city.

It says police staffing levels are at their lowest in the city's history and describes Faneuil Hall and other upscale shopping areas as "known trouble spots."

About 20,000 copies will be distributed at Logan Airport and in several downtown locations, union officials said.

Officers have worked without a contract since

Turn to UNION, page 6

British admit contact with IRA

Revelation draws criticism in midst of peace talks

By SHAWN POGATCHNIK
Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — The British government's reluctant admission that it has secretly communicated with the IRA has cast a shadow over months of peacemaking efforts for Northern Ireland.

An influential Protestant leader demanded British Prime Minister John Major's resignation. Sinn Fein, the IRA's political ally, said the contacts were more substantial than the British government was willing to admit.

The secrecy surrounding the contacts underscores Britain's fear that publicity could blow apart the peace efforts.

Major is due to meet his Irish counterpart, Albert Reynolds, next month in Dublin, where they hope to reach agreement on a way toward peace.

But Northern Ireland's Protestant majority already suspects Britain may try to cut a deal with the Catholic-based IRA. British agents seized a record cache of arms last week intended for Protestant paramilitaries, and Protestant politicians said the seizure showed the paramilitaries were preparing for war.

The IRA wants Northern Ireland to unite with the Irish Republic, which is predominantly Catholic. The province's Protestant community supports continued British rule, fearing it will lose political clout in a mainly Catholic nation.

At least 3,100 people have been killed in 23 years of sectarian violence surrounding British rule in Northern Ireland.

After weeks of denials, the British government admitted Sunday it has has secret communications with the IRA in hopes of persuading the outlawed group to end its violent campaign against the British.

The disclosure was made by Sir Patrick Mayhew, Britain's leading official for Northern Ireland, who said Britain had long used intermediaries as contact with Sinn Fein.

The government was forced to concede the existence of the contacts after The Observer newspaper published on Sunday the text of Mayhew's instructions to an emissary who met Sinn Fein deputy leader Martin McGuinness in March.

"That channel of communication has been the means of communicating in each direction messages, the value of the chain being that it is confidential," said Mayhew. He denied any negotiations took place and promised to publish full details British messages to the IRA.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, leader of the Protestant-based Democratic Unionist Party, scoffed at the British government's explanation that it had responded to an IRA request for "advice" on how to end its 23-year violent campaign.

"Nobody in Northern Ireland believes that the IRA went with a white flag and said, 'Please 'advise' us how we can get out of our trouble," Paisley said, laughing bitterly.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief.....Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor.....Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor.....Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor.....Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor.....E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor.....Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor.....Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor.....Felicia Cousins
News Editor.....Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor.....Aram Comjean
Sports Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor.....Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor.....Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager.....Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager.....Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager.....Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager.....Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager.....Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager.....Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager.....Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers.....Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business.....Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production.....Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

READING BY ABBY

PALM TAROT & ESP READING

HELPS SOLVE ALL PROBLEMS OF LIFE. HELPS YOU THROUGH YOUR GOOD AND BAD CYCLES OF LIFE. TELLS YOU LUCKY DAYS AND LUCKY MONTHS. ONE VISIT WILL CONVINCE YOU THAT SHE IS SUPERIOR TO ALL READERS YOU HAVE SEEN BEFORE.

All readings Confidential and Results Guaranteed.

HOURS: 9 A.M. To 9 P.M.
210 Russell Street
Route 9
Hadley, MA 01035

(413) 586-6711
Walk in's are Welcome

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian c/o the News Editor.

Monday, November 29

Meeting — The Student Government Association is sponsoring an open discussion with representatives of the Peter Pan Bus Company at 3:30 p.m. in the SGA Office, 420 Student Union. All students are welcome; for more information, call Andrew Berenson at 545-0341.

Film — The Turkish Student Association is will show a Turkish film with English subtitles from 8 to 10:30 p.m. in Thompson 106 as part of the Turkish Film Series Week. Admission is free.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive will be held today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 101.

Tuesday, November 30

Film — The Turkish Student Association is will show a Turkish film with English subtitles from 8 to 10:30 p.m. in Thompson 102 as part of the Turkish Film Series Week. Admission is free.

Blood drive — The UMass blood drive continues today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 168.

Wednesday, December 1

Meeting — The Undergraduate Student Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163.

Film — The Turkish Student Association is will show a Turkish film with English subtitles from 8 to 10:30 p.m. in Thompson 102 as part of the Turkish Film Series Week. Admission is free.

Meeting — The University Community Service Council will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 174-176.

Wrist alarms deter baby theft

BOSTON (AP) — An electronic device used to thwart theft in retail stores in now being used to ward off would-be baby snatchers.

Plastic wrist bracelets that emit low-level radio signals to a central alarm system are giving peace of mind to parents and hospital administrators.

"This is just something that hospitals are doing because it makes everybody feel better," said Aida Stevens, director of maternity at Anna Jaques Hospital in Newburyport, where a monitoring system was installed last summer.

The devices are similar to tags used to prevent shoplifting.

"These things have worked pretty well at Macy's and Casual Corner for 25 years, so there's no reason to think they won't be just as effective protecting babies in a hospital," said John Rabun, vice president of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which is located in Alexandria, Va.

Over the last year, almost 10 percent of the nation's 3,500 hospitals and birthing centers have installed the wrist alarms, Rabun said.

But baby-snatching isn't common. In the last 10 years, 126 infants were abducted, two-thirds of them from maternity wards, according to the center.

Goddard Memorial-Cardinal Cushing Medical Center in Stoughton has had a baby monitoring system for more than a year.

"This is a very critical area and the system provides real peace of mind for parents and people who work there. I wouldn't mind having it in other areas of the hospital," said security chief Jim Roberts.

Some New England hospitals refuse to acknowledge they use electronic monitoring to safeguard nurseries.

Peace of mind isn't cheap: The systems cost between $12,000 and $30,000.

Monkeys feast in Thailand

Festival in Lopburi gathers thousands of simians

By MICHAEL HADDIGAN
Associated Press

LOPBURI, Thailand—The guests of honor arrived late, stuffed their faces and generally behaved like animals.

But what do you expect from a bunch of monkeys?

They came to feast on fruit, nuts, rice and other delights Sunday at the yearly Monkey Banquet in Lopburi, 71 miles north of Bangkok.

Hotel owner Yongyuth Kijwattananuson held the feast to honor the guardian spirit of Lopburie's 13th-century shrine. Some 600 monkeys, considered devotees of the spirit, live among the ruins of the shrine and on the grounds of another ancient temple nearby.

"When I first opened my hotel, I asked the spirit to help me," Yonyuth said. "So every year I feed the monkeys to thank him for my prosperity."

The brown, long-tailed macaques usually eat peanuts, watermelon and bananas begged from tourists. But the menu was considerably more elegant Sunday.

Thousands of onlookers crowded the grounds as volunteers set out plates of food on tables covered with red cloths. But with the noise of three competing loudspeaker systems and a score of news photographers, the banquet's honored guests kept their distance.

After 30 minutes, a dozen monkeys warily clambered down to stuff themselves on brightly colored pumpkins, sticky rice, raisins, eggs and rich Thai sweets known as thong yod.

Loudspeakers warned spectators to keep tight hold on their eyeglasses, handbags, and wallets.

"We call them semi-tame, but sometimes, they can be vicious," said Vithoon Pechboonha, a banquet volunteer.

The monkeys who didn't brave the spotlight for the feast roamed a nearby market, robbing inattentive streetside food hawkers and bedeviling tourists. The monkeys perched on street signs and telephone wires, munching on cookies and splashing pedestrians with milk from cardboard containers.

"It's much better here," one man grumbled. "At the shrine, I went to see monkeys, and all I saw were newsmen."

In Thailand and much of Buddhist and Hindu Asia, monkeys are beloved as clever, mischievous and holy figures and are often allowed to live on temple grounds.

In the Indian epic Ramayana, Hanuman, a monkey general, heroically leads his simian army to help recover the kidnapped wife of King Rama. The monkey's exploits are frequently recounted in dance, song and folk tales.

One legend holds that Hanuman fired an arrow into the air and Lopburi was founded on the spot where it landed.

NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.

Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111

Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan

VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas

THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99

LARGE CHEESE $6.99
$1.25 each add. topping

MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99
.99¢ each add. topping

Any Two Large Subs $7.99

Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax were applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20c. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

Local News

News Briefs

compiled by Tracy Monahan

Health Services observes World AIDS Day

The health education division of Health Services will participate in a week-long series of events to observe the sixth annual World AIDS Day on Wednesday, Dec. 1. This year's theme is "living in a World with HIV: A Time to Act."

On Dec. 1, the Student Union Gallery will observe "A Day Without Art." The gallery plans to darken the spaces of its current exhibition in remembrance of artists and arts professionals who have died from AIDS.

Later that evening at 6:30 p.m., a candlelight walk will begin on the steps of the Student Union and end with remarks in the Cape Cod Lounge. There will be music and a slide presentation on the original Names Quilt.

"Beyond the Names — The Five College AIDS Quilt" will be on display at the Student Union Gallery from Monday, Nov. 29, through Friday, Dec. 3. An opening reception will be held on Monday from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. It is open to the public.

The Five College Quilt project was created last year to combine responses of Five College students to the AIDS crisis. It has the support of the Five College AIDS/STD committee and a grant from the American College Health Association.

The quilt panels on display are made up of 45 eight-by-eight inch squares of fabric created by students, faculty and staff of the five colleges. More than 1,000 squares will be exhibited.

Visitors will be provided with materials to create new panels to express their feelings. University Health Services will also provide educational material, condoms and red ribbons.

Videos on the topic of HIV will be shown continuously at the gallery during the week. Informational tables will also be set up in the Campus Center.

A related event, "If You Cough While in a Metal Box," a one-act play by Collin Chace, will be presented in the Hampden Theater as part of the GLB Cafe series.

Housing Services Cable Network will also broadcast a series on AIDS throughout the week.

Caravan Club plans to convene at UMass

The Wally Byam Caravan Club International plans to sign a contract with the Mullins Center to hold its annual meeting at UMass in 1995.

The WBCCI is the oldest and largest recreation vehicle association in the world.

About 7,500 people with 3,000 AIRSTREAM Trailers and motor homes will participate in "MUSTER 1995," spending an estimated $8-12 million in the Amherst area.

Rally participants are expected to travel throughout the state after the rally to enjoy the state's tourist attractions.

Light Lunch showcases Dean of Education

Bailey W. Jackson, dean of the School of Education will be speaking today at the "Light Lunch" series being held in Springfield.

The topic of his talk will be "The Whys, Hows and Pitfalls of Diversity in the Workplace."

Jackson is an internationally recognized theorist in the area of racial identity development. Educators have used his models to understand identity development issues facing various racial groups in the United States.

Founder of the School of Education's Social Justice Education Program, Jackson is a member of the American Educational Research Association, the Organization Development Network, the American Society for Training and Development, and many other educational associations.

Don't let stress run your life

Coping strategies can help students stay in control

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the first in a two-part series on stress management. The second article will be printed Wednesday.

It runs rampant at this time of year, striking people who truly relaxed during the five-day turkey extravaganza and did not think about final papers and exams — until now. Stress is widespread and it can make these last few weeks hell on earth if it isn't controlled.

According to Anita Collins, director of Elmwood Services in Worcester and a psychotherapist in private practice, stress is "a total set of reactions that an individual experiences due to demand, pressures and anxieties in life."

Hans Selye, who is considered the "father" of stress theory, says in his book, Stress Without Distress, "stress can be the spice of life." Life without stress, says Selye, is monotonous and has no challenges or opportunities for growth. According to Selye's theory, the problem is not with stress but how it is managed or mismanaged.

Collins has run several workshops on stress management and feels that the two most important steps toward relieving stress is to first realize what is causing the stress and then to figure out how to manage it.

"A stress reaction is individualized," Collins said. "What energizes one person to accomplish a task may immobilize another person. It is really critical to know what creates your particular stress."

"The most difficult part about managing stress is becoming aware of your stress. Roommates and family members are often good barometers for this," she said.

Stress can manifest itself in many ways, often with physical symptoms such as muscle tightness, jaw clenching, teeth grinding, fatigue and angry outbursts, she said.

"Your body responds to stress by going into 'fight or flight' response," she said. Being in such a state is all right for a short time, says Collins, but may have long-term mental and physical effects if the stress continues over a long extended period of time.

"Sleep disturbances, tension or migraine headaches, anxiety lasting more than a few days, explosive anger, trouble concentrating, ulcers and increased use of drugs or alcohol are all serious stress warning signs," Collins said.

There are two types of stressors, she said, those you can control and those that are uncontrollable. "For example you do not have control over how many exams you have. You do have control over whether or not you schedule your time to avoid cramming," Collins said.

"You can gain control over the uncontrollable things by learning how to manage your response," she said. This involves a variety of coping strategies: setting priorities, setting realistic goals, planning your time and adopting a "wellness" philosophy.

"Perhaps the most important part of managing stress is learning how to maintain a balance between work, rest and leisure," Collins said. "It is essential that we allot time to relax, exercise and pay attention to eating and sleeping well, especially at times of great stress, like finals."

Ice Capades

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Unofficial try-outs (actually, it's free skating) for the Ice Capades were held this weekend at the William D. Mullins rink.

Campus groups bring in talent

By BETSY WYDRA
Collegian Correspondent

If all the world's a stage, many are the options available to a UMass student.

The Fine Arts Center and the Mullins Center bring valuable, high-profile cultural experiences to campus. Events presented by Union Program Councils and the Hatch are run by students and feel they offer students what they want and can afford.

Steve Scott-Martin, director of programming at the FAC, said he attempts to find events for the FAC's Performing Events Series which please both the students and the community.

"I am looking for high quality that will enhance the education," Scott-Martin said.

Scott-Martin said students make up 35 percent of the average audience at the FAC in comparison to the 65 percent composed of faculty, staff and other members of the community. He said he weighs the interests of both the student population and the community.

This form of programming raises questions as to where the FAC gets its money. Marie Hess, director of finance at the FAC, said students pay a student arts fee, which was $31 per student this semester. She said this fee contributes approximately one third of the $3 million annual budget.

Hess said the rest of the budget comes from revenue raised through programs such as advertisement and ticket sales and gifts and grants. The Friends of the Fine Arts Center, a group of FAC supporters, contribute a significant amount.

This year, ticket prices at the FAC range from $15 to $29. Five-College students pay half-price for all show in the Performing Arts Series.

But a ticket price of $14.50 can still be a burden on a college student. While Scott-Martin says he is "trying to bring programming back to students, he acknowledges the problem of higher ticket prices.

The recent Robert Cray concert, offered by UPC, was not a free show. Executive Director Lee Eskilsen said that most non-concert events do have a student discount, but the concerts do not. Smith College student Dabney Drake said, "I would have like to have seen Lenny Kravitz but I thought the ticket prices were outrageous."

The Mullins Center is managed by Ogden Entertainment Services and functions on a $2 million budget. There are 11 full-time employees, and over 300 students who work part time.

Turn to TALENT, page 6

Here comes the rain again

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN

Sloshy weather hinders the flow of pedestrian traffic in front of the warm and dry Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center.

New head runs program for women of color

By JESSIE DAVENPORT
Collegian Staff

Lisa Scott Crump's story is one of ambition, perseverance and hard work. Her involvement and interest in human services has flourished for the past 15 years.

In a recent interview, Crump, the new director of the Women of Color program at the Everywoman's Center, said she is hopeful about the program.

She said it embodies the struggle to achieve recognition, support and opportunity for women of color.

The goals of the program include increasing multiculturalism in the work place, spreading awareness and knowledge that might decrease ignorance and prejudice, and offering support to women of color for them to maintain their own culture and self esteem.

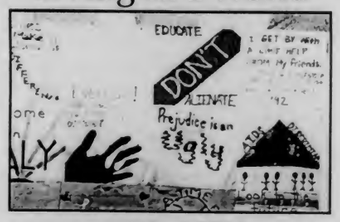
"We are working to connect women of color to other women of color," Crump said, "and we can achieve this through support, relationships and resources."

Crump said she and her associates are thankful for the positive feedback they have received from outside sources and the general public.

"Everyone has been supportive and willing to help," Crump said. "We have gotten general feelings of anxiousness from the public to see the changes happen. Everyone has just been great."

Crump said the program's main goal is making connections. They are always looking for prospective collaborators to join the Women of Color program in its struggle to reach its goals and educate the public on a much overdue issue.

The Women of Color program will be co-sponsoring a women of color reception Dec. 9.



The Women of Color program is always looking for volunteers and interested people to help out, Crump said. If interested, please call Lisa Scott Crump in the Women of Color program at the Everywomen's Center at 545-5829.

D.P. Dough delivers calzones
call 256-1616
Now Open at 11:30 A.M.
$1.00 OFF ANY 2 CALZONES EXPIRES 12/93 Delivery Only One coupon per 2 calzones.
$1.00 OFF ANY 2 CALZONES EXPIRES 12/93 Delivery Only One coupon per 2 calzones.

SKI INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS '94
PARTY IN THE SNOW! $209
MT. ORFORD, CANADA
Sponsors include: NOLSON
5 DAY LIFT TICKET
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
5 DAYS 5 NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, RACES & ACTIVITIES.
JANUARY 2-7, JANUARY 9-14 & SPRINGBREAK '94
GROUP LEADER DISCOUNTS. CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION.
1-800-999-SKI-9

The Collegian 545-3500.

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES
WITH THIS AD Additional 10% off any one item
We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies, Posters, Portfolios
Special Orders Encouraged
HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8, Saturday 9:30-5:30, Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street, Amherst, MA 01003, 413-253-5592

Living in a World

with HIV

BEYOND THE NAMES:
The Five College AIDS Quilt Exhibition
NOVEMBER 29 - DECEMBER 3
STUDENT UNION GALLERY
11:00 am to 4:00 pm daily.
Opening Reception for Beyond The Names
Monday, November 29
5:00 to 7:00 pm.
Everyone is invited to attend

See how more than 1000 members of the Five College community have expressed their feelings about living in a world with HIV. There will be videos, HIV information, free condoms, and materials for you to add your own square to the quilt.

This event has been coordinated by the Health Education division of the University Health Services at Umass, Amherst. Call 549-2671 ext. 181 for info. We thank every student organization and individual who has helped us.

CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle Street • Amherst • 549-3840
RESUME ECONO PACKAGE only $14.95
• 1 Page typesetting (3 day turnaround)
• Choose from any of 5 different styles
'Bulk Rate Copies... OVERNIGHT!
8 1/2" x 11" Std. White Paper
Regular Copies 3¢ ea.
Color Copies 88¢ ea.
$30.00 Minimum Order to qualify for bulk rate copies. Call any of our four locations for details. This deal is here to stay.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Let's talk homo youngstud

A recent Collegian column expressed a young man's consternation over his inevitable ascension into the Kingdom of Dads [Collegian, Nov. 19]. Well, I'm here to announce that the report of our haplessness is, as they say, greatly exaggerated and that dads are not as pathetic a bunch as you've been misled to believe. In fact, one could argue that a rapid evolution from the sub-species homo youngstud is something to be eagerly anticipated rather than ruefully lamented.

Apparently, much of the dread is attributable to V-neck T-shirts. Let me tell you something about V-neck tees. Dads may wear them, but they don't necessarily buy them. Invariably, it's the female of the species, a.k.a. the Mom, who handles the purchasing. Once it's in that underwear drawer, you've got no choice but to wear it.

Keep in mind that the T-shirt serves a very useful purpose. That $3 BVD is what stands between your manly funk and that $60 Tommy Hilfiger. I can't imagine anything that would turn off the Betties more quickly than a couple of deep yellow perspiration stains. Whether it's V-neck, crew-neck, or no-neck is irrelevant. That's why it's called *under*wear.

To Dads, function is key. Take the T-shirt. We don't wear it backwards. Or inside out. And when we wear a cap, it's usually to keep the sun out of our eyes, not off the back of our neck, or out of our inner ear. Trousers? On a Dad, the belt's at the waist, not at mid-thigh, leaving no chance for an indecent exposure arrest. Shoes? We tie them. Get the picture?

And while we are on the subject of necks, what exactly is so disgusting about eating a turkey neck? The appeal of certain foods transcends merely their taste. Dismembering a lobster, devouring a rack of ribs, peeling an artichoke ... these are fun foods, hardly any less disgusting than a succulent, simmered turkey neck. This, of course, is all lost on someone who has only recently graduated from plain cheese pizzas and plain McChicken Sandwiches to sour cream on baked potatoes and cream cheese on bagels.

But enough about food and dress. Let's look at lifestyle for a moment. I don't know for sure about other Dads, but the last time this Dad had a nine-to-five day was probably back in 1974. These days, it's more like 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Often, that's followed by a stint on the hardwood or diamond between teams from the Shamrock Cafe and the Cantab Lounge, officiating the organized mayhem known as Recreation Athletics. Gotta keep up with those tuition payments, you know. That doesn't leave much time for eating, scratching and good TV.

Don't get me wrong. I'd much rather take in a flick every other night than spend the rare free evening channel surfing at home. But at $7 a pop, it's virtually out of the question. Much to my dismay, I don't have an "in" at the local Cineplex to keep me awash in first-run films, gratis.

Which brings me to a Dad's sense of humor. Admittedly, the "All day" retort to the "Is today Friday?" query does grow stale after a while, but that's not what brings the smiles to our faces. It's more a chuckle of bewilderment over the fact that here's a young man at his self-professed peak, who's constantly unable to maintain an awareness of something as trivial as the day of the week, yet has immediate and permanent recall of every syllable of the latest rap from Ice Cube or Public Enemy. Or, huh, huh, huh, the latest Beavis and Butthead blather. Cool.

Oh, by the way, you can stop wondering about where you can get some of those V-neck T-shirts. They're in my top drawer. Right next to the socks and Fruit of the Looms that you find so inviting when it's been a while since your unmentionables last saw the inside of a Maytag.

Bob Milosavljevic
Cambridge

John F. Kennedy deserved better

It was very disappointing to see the 30th anniversary of the Kennedy assassination marked by an editorial portraying JFK as corrupt, conniving and negligent. Peter Orvetti's editorial [Collegian, Nov. 22] culminates by blaming the Vietnam morass on a warmonger's lust for battle.

If Orvetti's portrayal of the Kennedy presidency is authentic, one would become assuredly perplexed by the universal grief over his passing. Even his adversaries, such as Castro and Kruschev, paid tribute and in fact mourned his death as a loss. Sixty percent of Americans at that time admitted to weeping over the assassination.

There is no denying that JFK had imperfections and made serious miscalculations. However, during his administration American prestige abroad reached a high and plummeted as a consequence of the Vietnam crisis during Johnson's tenure, never to return to the former state of grandeur.

His power to inspire has been unequaled and will probably never be seen again in our lifetime. JFK's inaugural address has become legendary. He is the standard that contemporary presidents are judged by. Next year, on Nov. 22, let's pay tribute to, not condemn, this wonderful man.

Tim Leinroth
Sunderland

History of Cape Verdeans

Another day without rain, another day without crops, another year of thousands dying in the streets because famine returned once again. The colonial government stood by and promised to send relief which never arrived. Some left for the mere pleasure of adventuring from the unknown islands of Cabo Verde. But many travelled across the Atlantic Ocean to find yet another problem.

Malkes
GOMES

Between 1860 and 1934 voyages carrying 23,168 recorded passengers to the United States. These ships carried a people created of two races. Many here in the United States were not sure what to call my ancestors. After 142 years of Cape Verdeans being in the United States many still don't know who we are.

Many people wrongly believe we call ourselves Cape Verdeans because there are so many of us on Cape Cod. It just so happens that many of the early arrivals happened to settle there. Still others try to tell us that our names are spelled wrong and that we don't know how to spell. They assume we are Puerto Rican and should use a "z" at the end of our names rather than an "s." Many can't get over how some people in the same family can be light with blue eyes and another dark with brown eyes. I say they should take a biology class.

Most of all some people become very uncomfortable when they can't categorize you as either Black or White which is only a phenomenon found in the United States. I think it basically boils down to the fear of miscegenation that America has not been able to deal with.

There are over 350,000 Cape Verdeans in this country — most of whom reside in Southern New England, making up the largest minority group in this area. There are also small communities in New York, New Jersey, California, Arizona, Hawaii and Florida. Some in our community have helped make Ocean Spray the entity it is today. Cape Verdeans, who make up 98 percent of the workers at Ocean Spray, are responsible for every aspect of the cranberry harvesting process. The city of New Bedford thrived and was made famous by the whaling industry. The majority of the whalers were exploited Cape Verdeans who received the meager wage of $15 for a full year's work on a whaling vessel.

When we sell our heritage to become what others want us to be, we forget those who have made our history. We must not forget people like Amilcar Cabral, Eugenio Tavares, Belmira Nunes Lopes, Davey Lopes, Judge Leitao and many others who have made history in Cabo Verde and here in the U.S. As Amilcar Cabral once said, we must recognize "the existence of common and special traits in the culture of African people, independently of the color of their skin."

Malkes Gomes is a Collegian columnist.

Scott's timing was poor at best

We intend no criticism of the Williamses, the couple from Michigan State the chancellor just hired for $185,000. Those of us who have met the new deputy chancellor believe she will improve the quality of Chancellor Scott's upper administration. Nor do we deny that he has the right, even the responsibility, to develop a staff upon whom he can rely — one that will bring new perspectives and energy to the campus.

But the cost of appointing two additional high-level administrators at this time, in the face of a multi-million dollar shortfall that already threatens to cripple many excellent programs, will inevitably exacerbate our already desperate straits.

The salary cost alone (irrespective of mandatory fringe benefits and other associated expenses) equals what it now costs to provide about 1500 places in some of our general education courses. That not only means a potential loss of 4500 student credit hours, but stipends that now help to support over 20 graduate students in the humanities.

If these appointments had been balanced by corresponding reductions in the upper administration, they might have been more acceptable.

Leo Richards, President
Massachusetts Society of Professors

To letter writers, a thank you

I had just finished another long day of letter writing campaigns, and seemingly futile meetings with professors. Somehow the campaigns didn't fill me with the same energy and if I couldn't graduate this semester I would face serious problems. My apartment was freezing and I sat down to a dinner of cold leftovers. Real or imagined things seemed futile.

Then the phone rang. I answered it and spoke with a concerned student. He said he'd been to the Hillel Bosnia letter writing table and wanted to do more. Well, that's great I told him, feeling a little better, you can come to our next meeting. No, he explained, he would like to give us money. Well, that's nice, it's really great that you'd like to donate a few dollars. My tone of voice told him that I thought it was very cute that a broke student would like to donate a few dollars.

He corrected me, "Of course it's a lot more than a few dollars." That made me pause. We talked a little more, and since I could not accept money, I gave him the address of a group that does, the New England Bosnian Relief Committee in Boston.

I know he sent off a check that night; I don't know for how much. Somebody had personally called me and said Tom, you affected me, your actions made a difference, thank you. Nothing could have made me feel better than that phone call.

As a member of the Hillel Social Action/Tikkun Olam Committee I would like to thank all the UMass students who participated in our letter writing campaigns for Bosnia. We were overwhelmed by campus support. The coming of winter in Sarajevo threatens Sarajevo's residents with continued Serb genocide, lack of food and heat, and more of the United State's foolish arms embargo. Some analysts predict that this winter in Sarajevo will be one of the deadliest Europe has seen in decades.

I am proud to say that this campus mailed hundreds of letters to President Clinton. UMass will not let our president forget about the people of Bosnia.

Tom Bales
Amherst

What about women's basketball?

I was disappointed not to read about the UMass women's basketball team. Not seeing it on the back page, I flipped to the front. It wasn't there either! There were articles in Monday's Collegian covering hockey, football, women's soccer and volleyball but no women's basketball. How do I know they had an event? Obviously not from reading the Collegian.

Sunday, Nov. 21, the Minutewomen played their opening game against the Hungarian national team. I did not sit alone, but among a large crowd that supports Coach O'Brien and her team. UMass won 65-54, by the way. What am I saying? Let's see more coverage of the Minutewomen.

Stacy Robinson
Amherst

Murder a leading cause of workplace deaths

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Murder was the leading cause of workplace death in five states and the District of Columbia during the 1980s, according to the first federal study to pinpoint workplace fatalities by state.

Of the 7,603 Americans slain on the job in the last decade, 985 workers were murdered in Alabama, Connecticut, Maryland, Michigan, South Carolina and Washington, D.C.

New York doesn't tabulate on-the-job homicide, but the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health estimated its toll at 867. If accurate, that would make New York the capital of workplace murder.

"We need to realize that these fatal injuries are not acts of God," said Lynn Jenkins, author of the NIOSH study. "They are preventable and we must take steps to find out what the risks are and how to prevent them."

The study noted that some progress has been made. Workplace deaths overall declined by more than 1,600 between 1980 and 1989.

NIOSH first warned about workplace homicide last month, when an early analysis of this study showed murder to be the biggest killer of working women.

The full study, released for Monday, offers the first state-by-state look at the problem. NIOSH wants state governments to find ways to prevent the biggest killers of their workers, Jenkins said.

Nationwide, 62,289 civilians died on the job from 1980 through 1989 — about 17 workers a day. Another 1,300 soldiers perished.

Overall, murder was the third-leading killer of civilians, following motor vehicle crashes and machine injuries.

Texas, California, Florida, Illinois and Pennsylvania had the highest number of workplace fatalities.

But a better measure of risk is the rate of fatalities per 100,000 workers. Using that, the workers most at risk were in Alaska, with 34.8 deaths per 100,000, followed by Wyoming, 29; Montana, 20.9; Idaho, 16.7; and West Virgina, 15.7.

The safest workers were in Connecticut, with a fatality rate of 1.8; Massachusetts, 2.3; and New York, 2.6.

Escapee nabbed in Colorado after hiding out for 17 years

BOSTON (AP) — A woman who escaped from a state prison in 1976 has been captured in Colorado.

Valerie Osborne, 45, also known as Lena Regina Smith, was sentenced to 8 to 15 years for manslaughter in a 1970 stabbing. She had served five years when she escaped.

Osborne and another prisoner at Massachusetts Correctional Institute at Framingham swung a blanket over a fence and scaled a wall to escape in August 1976.

She remained underground, living under aliases, for 17 years.

Then Osborne caught the eye of authorities in Commerce City, Colo., investigating the sale of stolen vacuum cleaners, said Officer Mark Meiklejohn.

Using a national police computer, Meiklejohn learned of Osborne's escape and record of prostitution arrests and obtained information about her from Massachusetts investigators.

She was arrested at her home Wednesday by police, who had photographs of her.

"We confronted her at the door and showed her the photographs. She said, 'No, no, that's not me.' She even told me she was going to sue me if I placed her under arrest," said Meiklejohn.

Her fingerprints, however, showed a direct match to those of Lena Smith, the name she had as a prisoner.

She was convicted in a July 25, 1970 stabbing in the Roxbury section of Boston. Twice she escaped but was returned.

Massachusetts authorities had all but given up on catching Osborne, said Capt. Kurt Wood of the state Department of Corrections.

"This just shows there's no such thing as a cold case," Wood said.

Osborne faces one count of escape when she is returned to Massachusetts.

■ talent

continued from page 3

Esckilsen said he first books the basketball and hockey teams and then plans other events around that schedule. Esckilsen said they are in the process of conducting a survey to find where the students' interests lie.

"We are in the process of modifying events for the changing appetite for events," he said.

UPC is a student organization anyone can join. A core of 12 students and a general committee of roughly 250 students comprise the group.

Talent Coordinator Brad Palkuvich thinks this provides for wide student input. "At worst, my staff is a representation of what 12 different students like — a true representation of students," he said.

The budget for UPC this year is approximately $40,000 — a line item within the student activity fee. This budget covers all expenses, including the salaries paid to some UPC staff.

Palkuvich attempts to bring to campus acts students want to see at an affordable price. This cannot always mean the same type of events as the FAC or Mullins Center, Palkuvich said. "The fact is, we do surveys and often bands come up that we can't provide due to budget."

He asks students to trust the UPC. "For the size venues and our budget size," Palkuvich said, "we provide the best new music at an affordable price, music destined to be the next big thing."

He said UPC always offers a student discount to University students. Citing numbers from the recent, sold-out Rage Against the Machine show, Palkuvich verified his audience is mostly students. Of the 1,000 tickets sold for that show, 766 were sold to UMass students and the other tickets went to Five College students and the community.

Events in the Hatch, located in the Campus Center, offer students another option. The Hatch is part of the Top of the Campus, Inc., which runs the campus hotel and restaurant. The Hatch is not a student organization, but students are involved with the stage management.

Stage manager Ric Mahoney says he operates with no budget. All shows must be underwritten by groups from both on and off campus. The recent Clutch show was sponsored by both Platterpus Records of Westfield and WMUA. Due to the small venue shows can be put on cheaply. As Mahoney said, "Five hundred dollars is nothing to the FAC, but for us it meant Clutch."

Mahoney said the Hatch is a "cheap stage," allowing local and lesser-known bands an opportunity to play. While he is limited in the booking of high profile acts, he said, "my personal motive is to get people and bands together for communication that comes from producing this type of event."

■ union

continued from page 1

1990. Negotiations are to resume Thursday. The union's last contract included pay raises totaling 27 percent over three years.

"The union is going to shoot itself in the foot with that. They're not going to make any friends in Boston that way," said Police Commissioner William Bratton. "It's a bush-league attempt to inject that element (fear) of crime into their contract negotiations."

Mayor Thomas Menino said the pamphlet's claims were exaggerated.

"I'm really angry at the way they've done it. They're out of touch with reality. . . This isn't a city where you can't walk the streets. This is not like New York," Menino said.

Frank McGee, who formerly served as general counsel for the union, also criticized the pamphlet.

He said it was an updated version of a document he composed in 1976. But he said issuing it now was "a big mistake."

The union made no apologies.

According to the Boston Police Department, crime is down 3 percent from 1992 and robberies are down 17 percent.

Menino criticized the union for unnecessarily frightening shoppers at the height of the Christmas-shopping season, calling the pamphlet an "old maneuver."

Menino said he plans to beef up the city's police force by 300 officers, using money from a new federal anti-crime bill, which President Clinton is expected to sign this week.

Meanwhile, a Mattapan minister called on Bratton to meet with residents there as he did with business leaders from the Faneuil Hall area.

A series of violent incidents in the Faneuil Hall area, including a fatal beating and the muggings of two members of the New England Patriots, prompted the meeting last Tuesday.

Winter Intersession 1994

Make Your Winter Break Really Count!

January 3 - 15

Don't put your education on ice this Winter Break – enroll in UMass Lowell's Winter Intersession. This highly concentrated session is perfect if you want to earn college credit to get ahead in your educational program. If you're enrolled in another university, it's a great way to earn transfer credits!

Day Classes: Mon-Sat, 9:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
Evening Classes: Mon-Fri, 6:00-9:30 p.m. and Sat, 1:00-4:30 p.m.

Credit Courses (3 credits) available in:
• Liberal Arts • Social Sciences
• Sciences • Management
• Mathematics • Music
• Computers

Cost: $100/undergraduate credit

UMASS LOWELL Continuing Education

For a Winter Intersession Course Bulletin, call the Division of Continuing Education/Office of Enrollment Services at (508) 934-2480. Or just fill out the coupon below and mail it to: University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Avenue, Lowell, MA 01854-2881.

Name: AP
Address:
City: State: Zip:
Phone: ( )
Institution Currently Attending:

UMASS LOWELL Continuing Education

UMassLowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity/Title IX University

Sign up now for Winter Session

Over 100 credit courses.

3 credits in just 3 weeks.

Affordable. What a deal!

You won't regret it!

Winter Session '94
January 3-24

Division of Continuing Education
615 Goodell Building

545-3653

Arts & Living

In-Step dance club is ready for competition

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

If the last time you boogied down to a cha-cha, foxtrot, rhumba, tango or waltz is beyond recollection, step back, because the In-Step University of Massachusetts at Amherst Ballroom Dance Club is making waves throughout the Northeast.

Waltzing through their first semester as an official registered student organization, the 30-member club is steadily gaining a reputation as a competitive team. Having earned first place all-around in a competition at Harvard University on Oct. 29, members realized the potential for the club's future. Three couples will travel to Yale University on Dec. 4 to compete against regional schools from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey.

"Basically, we're going to cross our fingers, close our eyes and jump right in," said club Co-President Adrian Heng, who notes that most of the other schools' clubs are older and more experienced. He claims that although chances to win are "tough," he and the other five competitors are excited.

Dancers usually compete either individually or on a team basis. In individual competitions, couples will compete against other couples, regardless of which school they represent. This can set couples from the same team to compete against each other. In a team competition, four couples from different schools perform the same dance; their scores are added at the end and compared with the other teams.

Yale-bound UMass competing couples are Co-Presidents Adrian Heng and Eunice Schmidt, Jill Orenstein and Joe Poulin, and Jeremy Thorpe and an undetermined partner. Partners are selected on the basis of common free time in which to practice or particular preference of certain dances.

The club was initiated last spring by graduating seniors, who were predominantly teaching assistants for Jacqueline Maidana's (the club's current faculty advisor) social dance classes in the physical education department.

"People with interest [in ballroom dancing] got together and decided to form a club," said Schmidt. Of her own participation in getting the club started, she said, "I had always wanted to learn to ballroom dance."

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

In-Step UMass Ballroom Dance Club Co-Presidents Adrian Heng and Eunice Schmidt swing into a grand finale.

Heng and Schmidt attribute much of the club's success to the help of Bill Bennet of the United States Amateur Ballroom Dancing Association, who came to UMass last spring to support the club and help get it off the ground.

The USABDA typically coordinates dance competitions, donates ballroom gowns and costumes, provides information on where to find instructors as well as where competitions are to be held, provides videotaped lessons and music, and offers suggestions on how to get a club started.

In addition to a competitive aspect, the Ballroom Dance Club sponsors dance fundraisers, lessons and weekly practices. Club members can be found practicing and dancing for fun every Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. in room 101 of Totman Gym.

Members interpret the growing club membership and high turnout at fund-raising dances as indicative of a revival of interest in ballroom dancing. At a Sept. 25 dance, 100 students participated, half of whom had never previously ballroom danced.

"For most people, it's something they've always wanted to do but never had the opportunity," Heng said. "It's something that everyone should try."

Upcoming events include a "Ballroom to Bop" Saturday Night Dance on Dec. 11 at the Florence Community Center. An $8 admission fee ($5 with student ID) will get you a free dance lesson with Jacqueline Maidana at 7:30 p.m., plus all of the dancing your tootsies can handle.

Heng and Scmidt also look forward to an early January trip to the International Intercollegiate and Adult Dance Festival in Clearwater, Fla. Dancers from all over the world will be present for this workshop/competition Schmidt describes as "five days of non-stop ballroom dancing."

In addition, look out for the first-ever Spring Ball next semester, which will hopefully run annually and incorporate participation by other student organizations.

If you hanker to swanker, or would simply like to experience ballroom dancing for yourself, contact Adrian Heng at 253-9172. New members are welcome, and non-members who would like to stop by Totman for a Sunday afternoon of dynamic dancing need only pay a $1 fee, which will cover a lesson followed by informal dancing.

No Alternative album a collection of talent

No Alternative
Arista Records

The compilation benefit album presents itself with numerous hurdles just in being a benefit compilation.

It has to maintain cohesion with numerous different performers.

It has to have a consistent theme.

It has to be able to support its cause without being overly preachy, pretentious or evoking excess sympathy.

No Alternative, a compilation to benefit AIDS research accomplishes most of this. But how can it truly go wrong with such a hot topic and a stellar lineup of talent?

Matthew Sweet's "Superdeformed" ranks highly as a solid and driving track, a fitting but misleading kickoff for the 70-plus minutes of music.

Of special note are the Goo Goo Dolls cover of the Stones classic, "Bitch," which loses nothing in the translation. Bob Mould shines with the heartfelt "Can't Fight It," a very Mouldian blend of acoustic and electric. The Breeders also turn in a very Breederian (?) "Iris."

The best of the best is Soundgarden's "Show Me" and Nirvana's mystery 19th track on the CD version. Can you say grunge? As much as this term has been stretched, abused and maligned, this is how it was meant to be. Simple, mighty, distorted and coated with Chris Cornell's and Kurt Cobain's respective wails — the best in the business.

Buffalo Tom and Smashing Pumpkins also turn in strong performances for most bands, but relatively weak tunes of B-side like nature for these two highly capable groups.

The wretched (and almost insulting) low end of No Alternative is Soul Asylum's abysmal rendition of Marvin Gaye's "Sexual Healing." The only soul in this band is in its name. Spare us.

B-side quality prevails for most of this album as stellar bands perform subpar or average tracks. Especially irritating is that the album's producers include a lengthy essay in the liner notes about the bands and the cause.

"This is not an alternative rock collection. 'Alternative' rock does not exist. It is a myth on par with Elvis sightings, quality airline food and stress-free relationships," according to the album. These words are entirely true, yet it's a tad confusing why such an enlightened bunch of minds insist on exploiting the term they scorn upon.

This could have been so much better. C+ - (Adam Goulston)

Essential compact discs
Hits that Entertainment Weekly missed

By CALEB COCHRAN
Collegian Staff

Entertainment Weekly recently published a list of 100 essential CDs for starting a collection. While several of the choices are commendable, E.W. missed the boat on some other selections.

Paul Simon's Concert in the Park. Entertainment Weekly included Simon's Graceland, a worthy choice, but failed to include the essential collection of Simon's live work. This is a fabulous album all the way through two compact discs, showcasing the best of Simon and Garfunkel's work as well as Simon's solo efforts. The enthusiasm of both the performers and the audience are very tangible. Even on the living room couch, the listener feels part of the lively Central Park crowd.

The Beastie Boys: Paul's Boutique. While Licensed to Kill made the Beastie Boys famous as beer-swilling teens in 1986 and Check Your Head revitalized the trio in 1992, it was this middle album, released in 1989, that truly proved the band's mettle. Paul's remains the most obscure of the Beastie's albums, despite such outstanding pieces such as "Hey Ladies," "Looking Down the Barrel of a Gun" and "Shake Your Rump." The groundwork for the masterful Check Your Head can be found here.

10,000 Maniacs: In My Tribe. Now that Natalie Merchant has left the band and the library of Maniacs' recordings is complete, it is safe to label this as the finest of their new albums. In My Tribe showcases the amazing talent of Merchant while simultaneously tackling tough social issues such as child abuse and illiteracy. There is not a weak link on the entire album; from "What's the Matter Here" and "Hey Jack Kerouac" to "A Campfire Song" and "Verdi Cries," the bouncy, inspired hits keep coming. A wonderful addition to any collection.

Billy Joel: Greatest Hits Volume I and II. Entertainment Weekly's list includes several greatest hits compilations, from James Brown to Run D.M.C., The Smiths and even the damn Pet Shop Boys, for crying out loud. Why pop icon Billy Joel is nowhere to be found on this list is a mystery. Joel has released many fine albums, but if you want the most for your dollar, look no further than this hit-packed anthology.

The 25-song collection traces Joel's career from the early days of "Piano Man" and "The Entertainer" to "Uptown Girl" and "The Longest Time." Unfortunately, the album was released in 1985 and is already a bit dated. You won't find "A Matter of Trust," "This is the Time" or "We Didn't Start the Fire" here, they were all released later. However, for the serious Joel fan, this is the essential body of work.

Garth Brooks: No Fences. Although Entertainment Weekly's list does include "nibbles" of country, as its writers claim, it does not include even one offering from country music's most successful ambassador, Mr. Brooks. This, his second album, captures Brooks at his best, just before he became a larger than life superstar with Ropin' the Wind. Lesser-known jewels such as "New Way to Fly" and "Same Old Story" can be found here along with the hits "The Thunder Rolls" and "Friends in Low Places."

Compiling a list of 100 CDs is a cumbersome task, and the writers at Entertainment Weekly should certainly be commended. With the few suggestions above, the list would have been perfect. Now if they just included The Black Crowes, Tracy Chapman, Stevie Ray Vaughn. . .

Caleb Cochran is a Collegian staff member on exchange at the University of South Carolina. Mr. Cochran will return to our wintery campus for the spring 1994 semester.

An insider's guide to campus art galleries

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The Hampden Theatre and Gallery, located in Southwest.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The Augusta Savage Gallery, located in the New Africa House.

By ANDREW SHUMWAY
Collegian Correspondent

Not many people know it, but the UMass campus is home to six art galleries, which exhibit some of the finest art work in the country.

The galleries are not hidden in remote corners of the campus, but are located in central places, such as the Fine Arts Center and Southwest. Four of the six art galleries are run in association with the Fine Arts Center.

The University Gallery, in the FAC, is considered the main gallery on campus. Director Betsy Siersma says the gallery has an active exhibition program, which focuses on contemporary art by nationally and internationally known artists.

"This atmosphere provides a great opportunity for students and young artists to work closely with professional artists," Siersma says.

According to Siersma, the University Gallery is well-known for its exhibition of various types of art. The gallery strives to combine different forms of art, linking a sculpture exhibit to a painter or pencil artist, and allowing the art types to complement each other.

"Ever since we opened in 1975, providing a balance in programs in which different types of art media have been represented has been an important goal," she said.

Martha Hauston is the visual arts coordinator at the Hampden Art Gallery, located in the Hampden Student Center in Southwest. This gallery presents art by regional and national artists, students and faculty.

The Wheeler Art Gallery, also run by Hauston, is the only gallery on campus located within a residence hall. The gallery shows the artwork of students, local artist and bachelor of fine arts students. This gallery attempts to provide an atmosphere in which students can share and learn from others through artistic, cultural and social experiences.

The fourth FAC gallery is the Augusta Savage Memorial Art Gallery in the New Africa House. Run by Curator Terry Jenoure, the Augusta Savage Gallery is one of the oldest and most culturally enlightening galleries in the area. It focuses on artwork by people of color.

According to the gallery's brochure, it provides "a forum for students to experience the scope and merits of cultural diversity in a wide range of artwork by Third World artists, community outreach programs, and a forum for non-Western art."

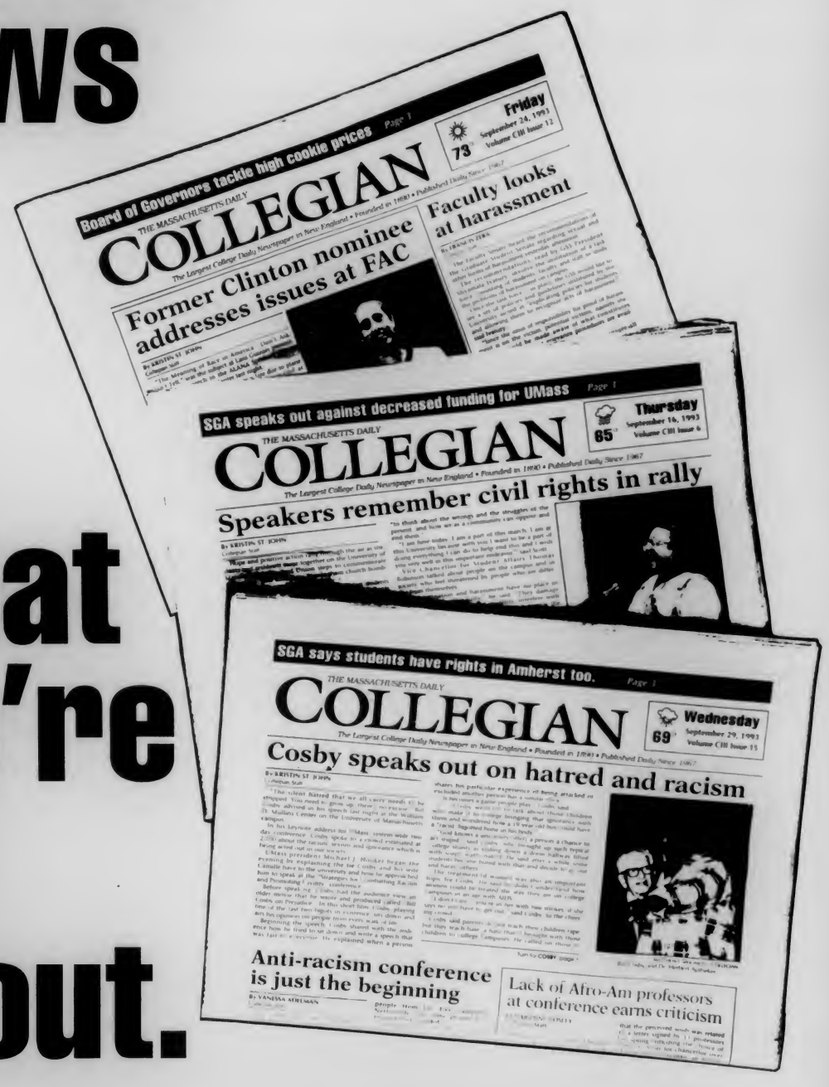
The FAC galleries do receive funding from the University, but only enough to cover employee salaries. The funds to bring artists to the galleries and to cover other expenses are provided through Block grants from the Art Council. However, these do not come easily. Funding is scarce, and the galleries must reapply for the grants each year.

"We are really doing some great things on this campus," said an FAC representative.

"Students are more than welcome, and should come check us out."

For more information on campus art galleries, call the Fine Arts Center at 545-2511.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The University Gallery, UMass' flagship gallery located at the Fine Arts Center.



ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
The Wheeler Gallery is located in Central's Wheeler Residence Hall.

LSAT
GRE
GMAT
MCAT
SAT
KAPLAN RULES
Expert Teachers
Permanent Centers
Total Training
CALL NOW:
1-800-KAP-TEST
150 Fearing Street (UMASS)
Amherst
KAPLAN RULES

MULLINS CENTER
University of Massachusetts Amherst
Mullins Center
Racquetball Tournament
December 2-5, 1993
Tournament for players of all ages and abilities.
Double elimination singles tournament - 32 players
Single elimination doubles tournament - 16 teams
Two men's divisions - Two women's divisions
One doubles division
First 50 entries receive a complimentary T-Shirt
Entry forms available at the Mullins Center Ice Rink
Tournament sponsored by Klein's All Sports
For more information call 545-4770

AMHERST LAUNDROMAT
Open 7 Days
8am-9pm
Drop-Off or Self Service
Washing Machine
Starting at $1
Attendant available all day
326 College St. (Rt. 9)
Amherst • 253-5072

UMass news is what we're all about.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

If it happens at UMass, it's in the Collegian.
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England.
Published every day during the calendar semester.

THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT / THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT / THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT

the new senate Agenda

420 STUDENT UNION BUILDING
AMHERST, MASS. 01003
(413) 545-0341

December,, 1993 Published by the UMass Undergraduate Senate Public Relations Committee

David Nuñez, SGA President
Matthew Pavesi, Speaker of the Senate
Al Lizana, Trustee
Peter Roaf, Treasurer
Josh Weissman, Academic Affairs
Jeremy Hathaway, Budgets
Erin Jackson, Public Policy
Manuel Aguilar, Public Relations
Cam Tewksbury, Government Affairs
Diego Figueroa, Chair of Finance
Andrew Berenson, Rents and Fees
Lynn Robitaille, Student Coordinator of SCERA
Ellen Grossman, Student Registrar
Matt Malone, Attorney General

LITIGATION WHY IT'S SO IMPORTANT:

What Is This Litigation Issue About Anyway?

Right now(and for the past 8 years) students have been paying for a Student Legal Services Center that has been prohibited against representing students in a court of law.

WHAT IS THE STUDENT LEGAL SERVICES CENTER?

For the past 19 years, students of this University have supported and funded a Student Legal Services program on this campus, currently called the Legal Services Center(LSC) Similar programs exist on other campuses across the country. Like those campuses , UMASS shares in the obvious need for such a service. Thus, its students are willing to provide and pay for it to exist. In fact, the impetues for the creation of LSC came from students in the early 1970's

So Why Doesn't LSC Have Litigation Rights?:

The Legal Services Center represented thousands of students in its first decade of its existence without a problem. But in 1983 LSC brought suit on behalf of a student against the University in a controversial, internationally publicized case in which the University had violated her Civil Rights. LSC won the case and the Board of Trustees responed to thier victory by taking away our right to legal representation.

What You Can Do About Restoring Your Litigation Rights ?:

On November 30, 1993 at 3:00pm and December 1, 1993 at 9:00am the Board of Trustees will be on campus to decide the fate of our right as student to have legal representation. Stand up for your rights and demand what you pay for.

For more information call the SGA or SCERA offices at 545-0355, or stop by our office at 420 Student Union Building.

Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA)

The Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy (SCERA) is the Research and Advocacy arm of the Student Government Association (SGA). SCERA acts as an advocate for student interests with the State Government and the University of Massachusetts Administration by:

- Conducting research on issues of interest to the undergraduate student body.
- Educating the undergraduate student body about these issues.
- Developing policy proposals on these issues through solicited feedback from the undergraduate student body.
- Empowering students to advocate on their own behalf.

SCERA has the responsibility of researching and advocating on many issues that directly affect the quality of life for students at this University. For example, the SCERA staff have begun to analyze the impact of the recent budget cuts on student life at UMass. The most important issue of this semester for SCERA is to assist in the regaining of litigation rights for the Legal Services Center on campus.

SCERA is an essential force in ensuring that the voice of students is heard in all aspects of the UMass administration decision-making process. The center offers work-study positions and internship credit for students who want to take an active part in making their voices heard.

Anyone who is interested should contact Dr. Marc Kenen, Director of SCERA at 545-0355.

Legal Representation: We need it

In 1987, The Board of Trustees revoked the litigation rights from the Legal Services Center. They took away the Legal Services Offices right to represent students in a court of law. Did they take away the entire office? NO. Legal Services still offers a variety of services to the Undergraduate population. It is now called the Legal Services Center(LSC). The three attorneys that work for LSC provide Legal advising, Counseling, Reference and referral, and a wide range of educational opportunities that cover the spectrum. They handle Criminal, Landlord-Tenant, Consumer and other such cases. The only cases they do not handle are student versus student suits.

The services are excellent but there is one draw back: These attorney's cannot represent students within the court of law. The solution is partial litigation rights. This means the attorney's from LSC can represent students in court on any issue that doesn't involve the university.

Why this is important to the average student is because it serves as a student voice. Lawyers and their hourly rates are expensive, but Legal Services is funded through the Student Activities Fee(SATF). Therefore, students do not have to pay out of their own pockets these services. Litigation is our right. We pay for it.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL 545-0355

Office of Third World Affairs (OTWA)

The Office of Third World Affairs (OTWA) is a multi-cultural student support service agency, and works as a division member of Student Affairs. OTWA was established in 1976 as a professional agency in response to the request of students of color for an institutional advocacy that would be of assistance to them and to address quality of life issues.

OTWA provides the general student population and especially the students of color, with a professional organizational body that assists, organizes, advocates, and provides resources that enhance and protect their rights. The expanded programs offered by OTWA have been instrumental in enhancing the awareness of students of color to the issues of multi-culturalism and other social issues, life skills development, and humanity in general. OTWA promotes the importance of learning styles, ethnic and cultural backgrounds and other unique characteristics of the differences of each individual. The message that reverberates from each activity that OTWA sponsors is that students can create a better environment in which people recognize, accept, and seek to develop the uniqueness of each individual. In this environment the validity of others' ethnicity, understanding , and appreciation for cultural difference, is a priority and is promoted and encouraged by the Office of Third World Affairs.

OTWA also works to develop programs that advocate fairness and humanity for all. OTWA is responsible for ensuring the viability and efficiency of registered student groups who are comprised mainly of students of color. OTWA teaches skills in coping with this university, and enhances the skills that complement a students academic goals and career objectives in life.

The Office of Third World Affairs is located in room 404 of the Student Union Building. For more information call 545-2517

Legal Services Center

Students come to the Legal Services Center (LSC) for a variety of reasons. We serve you by providing referral and/or advice about legal problems, depending on several factors. The policy governing which types of cases this office may handle is set by our own student governing board. Determinations about what should be done in individual cases are made by the individual attorneys, based on ethical considerations, legal judgment, the limitations of the office and the needs and desires of the clients involved.

Our case policy delineates the types of cases that we can handle. Professional ethics mandate that we cannot serve one student against another. If your problem is outside of our case policy we can offer our Attorney Referral Book to you or refer you to other resources outside of the legal profession. In most other instances , we will be making an appointment with you for further services.

The Legal Services Center (LSC) is a student-funded law office created in 1973 by a joint act of the Undergraduate and Graduate student senates, to provide free legal services to all fee paying UMass students and student groups. We offer legal services in most legal matters.

We are located in room 922 of the campus center or call 545-1995.

The FEES That YOU PAY?

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst has often been criticized by its students for the ambiguity of many of the fees that arepaid in addition to Tuition each semester. The Bursar's office has published a pamphlet explaining where the money goes and what it is used for. An important fact to remember is that the Bursar's office does not decide how much each fee is nor does it state how much each student will be charged, it just receives all of the moneies tendered. For example, a group such as the Fine Arts Council, puts a Budget together, and decides how much money they need per head(student), thus putting the $31.00 Arts Fee on our bill each semester. The following is a rundown of all the basic fees we as Umass students pay. Provided by the Fall 1993 Bursar's notes.

the ACTIVITIES FEE- ($42.00) , This fee supports the Student Government Association and many Cultural and Social activities for all students. It is the reason the Umass students can get free or discounted admission to many campus events. Also the Collegian, our daily Newspaper and access to our Legal Services Center is provided free of charge.

the ARTS FEE- ($31.00) , This funds and supports an array of Fine Arts Council events " for the Cultural enrichment and enjoymnet of the student body ." It also provides the significant discounts for Fine Art Center events, and partially subsidizes art events sponsored by Student Organizations on campus.

the ATHLETIC FEE- ($99.50) , this fee is simply used to support" Comprehensive" men's and women's intercollegiate programs.

the AUTHORITY FEE- ($203.00) , this fee covers all "Bond issue debt service obligations" of the Umass Building Authority for the Amherst campus facilities and projects undertaken by the building Authority. This is also paying for the Mullins Arena of which there is no student representation.

the CURRICULUM FEE- ($1,027.50) , this fee helps to offset several years of permenant reductions in state appropriations funding and provides financial resources to support the educational and general mission of the campus, including both academic and instutional support. In otherwords this is another form of tuition.

the HEALTH FEE- ($220.50) , the Basic Health Fee is a mandatory charge for all students . No further explaination is given as to what the money is specifically used for.

These are the Basic Fees in which we pay upon entering the Universi ty every semester , they total over $1600. Other fees such as the Registrars Service Fee, and the Commencement/Career Services Fee(CCS) , are charged once to all entering students. the CCS Fee is only given to seniors.

Whether or not all of these fees are completely necessary is matter yet to be debated either by the administration or the students . For more information call 545-0341.

SATF WHAT IS IT?

The Student Activities Feeis the $84.00 Fee that all Undergraduates pay thus making up what is known as the Student Activities Trust Fund (SATF) . This Fund totals $1.3 million dollars. This money is used strictly for student run programs and services, hence Legal Services.

THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT/ THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT/ THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISEMENT

For example the PVTA bus company takes $20.00 per head for the services they offer to the students. The Area Governments are also allocated money on a per head basis for local programming. The Board of Governors(BOG) receive $5.00 per student, the Distinguished Visitors program(DVP) is given $2.75 per person, and UPC is allocated $5.50 per head plus a $50,000 spring concert fund is also established within their Budget.

Agencies such as UVC and WMUA are funded out of the Trust Fund through a petitioning process formulated by the Student Senate Budgets Committee. The Student Union Craft Center is funded jointly by the SGA and the BOG , The Center for Student Businesses(CSB) which oversees such student run businesses as Earthfoods , Peoples Market and the Bike Shop are funded by way of the Student Activities Trust Fund. Also the Legal Services Center(LSC) is provided free of charge to the students through the Student Activities Trust Fund

Another aspect of the SATF is the funding of the Registered Student Organizations (RSO) on this campus. RSO's play an integral part in our life here at Umass they provide us with social and cultural activities and even some educational experiences that we will carry with us for the rest of our lives. The funding levels are decided by the Budgets Committee and anyone can sit on Committee and become an active part of the process.

for more information contact the Budgets Committee at 545-0341

SATF: THE BIG PICTURE

This year's fiscal situation can be compared to 1928, the year before the big crash . The current conditions are like this; The University is 7.9 Million dollars in debt which in turn has enstated a hiring freeze. Financial Aid pool is shrinking fast, 1 out of every 10 of YOU will not be here next year due to the rising costs of Tuition and Fees.(And) the Student Activities Trust fund is continuing to suffer from growing long term costs which increases yearly without any proper compensation from increased Fees.

Currently our projection for the Student Activities Trust Fund shows us $117,000 in deficit. We have reserves to cover the deficit but if we continue to incur these big debts the standard of student services that we currently enjoy will be dramtaically reduced . If we level fund all groups from now on, in just 2 years our reserves will be completely depleated and we will have a $30,000 deficit in the Trust Fund. It is impossible for any Trust Fund to go into deficit without any means of paying for it. With our reserves wiped out in 2 years, emergency measures will be taken. For example a cut across the board effecting all groups will be mandated, even within our own organization. We strongly urge all RSO'S to streamline their Budgets as best as possible. This years level funding might be seen as a reward and not the status quo. This is the big picture and an SGA shout out to all student groups, we will be trying to make all of the projected cuts as fair as possible. The Student Government Association is in the fight to lower Tuition and fees and to better our quality of lives here on campus. The first step is the regaining of limited litigation rights for the Legal Services Center and finally a collective, campus-wide effort to lower all Tuition and Fees from now until spring time, help make the student voice strong. Join the battle.

for more information on how you can help call 545-0341

STUDENT GOVERNMENT REPORTS....

Governmental Affairs

The Governmental Affairs Committee conducts all SGA elections and referenda; supervises Area and House Government Constitutions, and keeps record of any actions taken by the Senate.

The Committee has one perminant subcommittee , which is the Nominating Subcommittee. This Subcommittee is composed of six members and makes nominations to the Senate for the membership of its Committees.

Rents and Fees

•This is the first year since 1990 that the Rents and Fees Committee has been active. The members of the committee have been working hard in order to familiarize themselves with the workings of the committee. Our main goal is to prepare the Rents and Fees Committee recommendations on fiscal year 1995's mandatory fees. Mandatory fees are the fees that every student or a majority of the students pay, such as the athletic fee and the housing fee. The fees students pay go directly into separate trust funds, such as athletic trust fund and the housing trust fund.

The Vice Chancellors will use our recommendations as part of the process in their review of proposed fee increases.

The committee is also looking into the rising costs of Peter Pan bus fares. After writing a letter to the owner of the company, Peter Picknelly Jr., the Committee was able to set up an open discussion with the owner and vatious representatives of the the bus company , this discussion will be held on Monday November 29, at 3:30pm in room 420 of the Student Union Building.

For more information call 545-0341

Finance

The Finance Committe is responsible for the distribution of $30,000 in the form of Loans and Grants to Registered Student Organizations(RSOs) for programming and Student Services. Allocations of greater an $500.00 must be put before and approved by the Student Senate. The Committee also oversees the disbursement of the $20,000 Capital Equipment Reserve for replacement of RSO equipment.

Attorney General

The Student Attorney General is in charge of making sure that the SGA and the RSO's are working under the guidelines of the code of Student Conduct. This semester the office will be reviewing the SGA by-laws as well as the daily operating procedure of the Student Government Association. This office is also trying to reactivate the Student Supreme Court to assits in RSO v. RSO conflicts. The Student Attorney General is also the official Parliamentarian of the Undergraduate Student Senate.

For more information contact Matt Malone at 545-1272

Registrar

The Student Registrar is the person in charge of registering Student groups as RSO's . This semester the Registrar will focus on the policy issues regarding Registered Student Organizations(RSO's) as related to the Student Government Association. Thus deining more accurately the rules and regulations of the RSO community. Some new groups that have been registered this semester are the Women's Ice Hockey Club, Casa Dominicana, and In Focus. Last semester saw the formation of 25 new and active student group, all under the auspices of the Student Registrar.

For more information call Ellen Grossman at 545-0341

Speaker

The Speaker is the executive presiding over the Student Senate. She or He is responsible for chairing the weekly meetings, maintaining accurate records of the Senates activities, being the spokesperson for the Senate , coordinating and communicating with the Senate's Committees and meeting with administrators.

For more information contact Matt Pavesi at 545-0341

Trustee

The Trustee holds a seat on the University's Board of Trustees. It is through this officer that the Student Voice is heard on decisions concerning fee increases, University policy and issues affecting the entire University. The Trustee spends a great deal of time in Boston meeting with the other Trustees and State Legislators.

For more information contact Al Lizana at 545-0341

Academic Affairs

An important and new additions to this years Student Senate is the return of the Academic Affairs Committee. The Committee's primary goal for school year 1993-94 is the compilation of the Course and Teacher Evaluation(CATE) guide. The purpose of this booklet is to provide students with an assessment of the professors and their courses through the eyes of the students.

Another function of this Committee is to assist students in resolving problems and conflicts with their professors. The role of this Committee in this situation is to help students through the process by letting them know all of the channels of assistance that are readily available to them. The Academic Affairs Committee invites you to take part in your education.

Treasurer

This officer is charged with ensuring that all members of the SGA and Undergraduate organizations comply with the official financial policies and guidelines set down by the Senate. The Treasurer is an ex-officio member of the Budgets Committee and is the executive officer for the administration of the SATF funds.

For more information contact Peter Roaf at 545-0341

Public Policy

The Public Policy Committee is responsible to the SGA for researching and developing methods with which the SGA can effectively deal with Federal , State and Local Governments. The Committee may introduce new legislation to the State House which benefits students and or student interests. This Committee also organizes and participates in Local and National elections , Voter Registration drives , and lobbies the State House in favor of or disagreement of legislation concerning student life. One such issue that this Committee has been working on is the regaining of the litigation rights for the Legal Services Center.

President

The President is the spokesperson for the entire student body. The office of the President is responsible for organizing programs to address the issues of great concern to the welfare and rights of all students at this University. The President is in constatnt communication with the University's administration in order to represent student views.

For more information contact David Nunez at 545-0341.

An additional shout out:

Issues for next semester:
- Tuition and Fee's-
- Financial Aid-
- Housing and all Student Services-
- And many more-

We need your support and help to make this canpus a better place for us all. Come join the struggle

Black Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

NIA (PURPOSE) To make our collective vocation the building and developing of our community in order to restore our people to their traditional greatness.

Along the Color Line: Education and the Promise of Equality

By DR. MANNING MARABLE
Special to the Collegian

Somewhere in our distant memory, Black Americans collectively recall a time when it was forbidden to read and write. In a slave society, literacy was considered a subversive act. A slave unexpectedly caught with writing instruments and paper was certainly not to be trusted. Every master implicitly understood that knowledge was power.

Dr. Manning
MARABLE

So when the day of Jubilee dawned, hundreds of thousands of my people expressed their newfound freedom by constructing rough and unassuming schoolhouses. Frequently, the schoolhouse was built even before a teacher could be solicited to fill the position.

Teenagers with a rudimentary knowledge of arithmetic, spelling and composition were often at the head of classes with 60 or more eager yet illiterate pupils. The classroom was a site of hope and aspirations for an entire race which was still struggling to become free. It represented the possibility of acquiring the tools necessary to overcome ignorance and poverty, the chief pillars of the system of racial domination. The public schoolhouse was a monument to the people's deep desire to become far more than others had expected they would be.

Education thus became the secular religion of the African American community. In many households during the long night of Jim Crow segregation, millions of parents told their children with absolute certainty that "education was the key" toward a better life. "Even if the doors of opportunity and equality are now closed off to us," they counselled, "we have to be ready to accept the challenge, once it becomes available." Working late hours beside flickering lamps, those earlier generations of Black students were taught religiously that "we have to be twice as good, in order to be given the same chance" as our White counterparts. Everyone took this for granted. They knew from bitter experience that most Whites never viewed us as equals, and would never accept us as competent unless we exhibited a degree of excellence which far surpassed the established standards.

But today, millions of White Americans have turned their backs on the promise of educational equality. By underfunding urban education — the reductions over the past decade in federally-funded school lunch programs, the cutbacks in classroom instructional support and the absence of computers, and the lack of full support for programs such as Head Start — our nation incrementally destroys the last hope which still resides within the ghetto, the secular faith of learning.

Already, young Black and Latino high school graduates are faced with the stark alternative of working at "Mickey D's" or not working at all. The destruction of inner city jobs at decent wages, the loss of hundreds of thousands of housing units, and the deterioration of our schools, all send a message to our young people — that knowledge and education have no ultimate "payoff." When young people are faced with the prospect of having to sell illegal drugs, or to break the law just to survive, and when their schools do not teach them marketable skills, an atmosphere of alienation and deep despair is created.

White upper middle class Americans fool themselves by believing that they can escape the fury represented by last year's uprising in Los Angeles, by fleeing to the well-protected enclaves of the suburbs. But in the end, there will be no security alarms, no private guards, which will protect them from the crisis of our cities. If the Black and Latino communities no longer believe in the secular tradition of education, if they have no hope that knowledge can be translated into a better life, then millions have almost nothing left to lose. The fires of Los Angeles, which represent the great race and class fault line, trembling across the social fabric of our entire nation, may easily become the first shocks of the social unrest yet to come.

COURTESY COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
Dr. Manning Marable

Our challenge is to revive the ideal of education, by forging to conditions in our school systems and national educational policies, to advance the promise of new levels of excellence. Unless we accomplish this, our country lurches toward an inevitable crisis between the affluent, educated "haves" and the undereducated, largely alienated "have nots." The choice is ours and the time is short.

Dr. Manning Marable is professor of history and political science and director of the African American Studies Institute, Columbia University. New York City. "Along the Color Line" appears in over 250 publications and is broadcast by 75 radio stations throughout the United States and internationally.

Black Affairs Calendar

Wednesday, December 1, 1993

Financial aid workshop sponsored by CCEBMS. New Africa House Library 6 p.m. Call 545-0031 for more information.

"Urban Expressions" student art exhibition. Photographs by Foluke Robles. Opening reception 5 to 7 p.m. Augusta Savage Gallery, New Africa House. Exhibit runs until Dec. 8. Call 545-5177 for more information.

Friday, December 3, 1993

"Down Low" Productions presents "Boom Bap-The Last Real Jam of the Semester," featuring giveaways from Def Jam and Tommy Boy records. Price: $1 for those with a canned food donation to benefit the Amherst Survival Center. Malcolm X Cultural Center, 10 p.m.- until.

Saturday December 4, 1993

"Islam in the Eyes of America," a symposium featuring the topics "Political Islam and U.S. Foreign Policy," "The Impact of Perception on the Civil Rights of American Muslims" and Perceptions of Muslims in American Popular Culture," will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. in Room 65, Bartlett Auditorium.

Sunday December 5, 1993

Kwanzaa Celebration. Malcolm X Cultural Center 5 p.m. Contact 545-0219 for more information.

Tuesday December 7, 1993

"Increase the Peace" concert featuring "Dr. Laz and the CURE" celebrating Kwanzaa and Chanukka held at Bowker Auditorium, 7:30 p.m. Sponsored by the Black Mass Communications Project and Hillel. Contact BMCP at 545-2426 for more information.

Wednesday December 8, 1993

Brown Bag Lunch Series sponsored by the Association of African Heritage Graduate Students will feature Meria D. Nowa-Phiri. Her topic: "Factors that Promote and Hinder Utilization of African Women in Educational Leadership Positions: An Examination of the Role Played by Education and the Woman Herself in Promoting and Hindering Women's Participation." Lecture will be held at 12 p.m. Campus Center Room 165.

Special Announcement

The Committee for Northampton proudly presents "Black Nativity" by Langston Hughes. Directed by Ingred C. Askew, the performance will feature David Marshall Jackson and the Western Massachusetts District Choir. Choreography is by Karen McLean-Donaldson.

Performance dates:
December 2-4 8 p.m.
December 5 4 p.m.
December 17 & 18 8 p.m. at
First Churches, 124 Main Street, Northampton, MA
Tickets are available at:
Food For Thought Books, Amherst
Dynamite Records, Northampton
The African American Bookstore, Springfield
For more information, contact Reverend Peter Ives at 584-9392.

This week in Black History

Compiled by MICHELE MONTEIRO
Collegian Staff

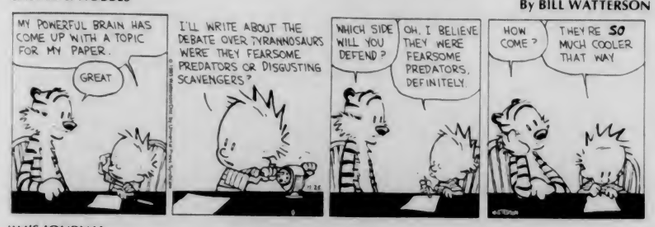
- Nov. 13, 1839: The Liberty Party, the first anti-slavery political party, is established.
- Nov. 15, 218 B.C.: Hannibal crosses the Alps to capture Rome.
- Nov. 17, 1980: WHMM at Howard University becomes the first African American public broadcasting station.
- Nov. 22, 1930: Elijah Mohammed establishes the Nation of Islam.
- Nov. 25, 1955: The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) bans segregation in interstate travel.
- Nov. 26, 1970: Charles Gordone becomes the first African American playwright to receive a Pulitzer prize.
- Nov. 29, 1905: The first issue of the Chicago Defender is published.

SUPPORT THE BLACK AFFAIRS PAGE!

The Black Affairs page is gearing up for its semester finale with its two-page Kwanzaa issue. If you or your organization would like to be an integral part, through financial sponsorship or participation, contact Michele Monteiro or Marc Cousins at 546-1604 or 546-1036.

Participation includes sending holiday messages through the Black Affairs page to loved ones or friends. Example: "To Marc, Happy Kwanzaa Michele."

The messages are free and are limited to a maximum of ten words. Messages should be typed with a contact phone number, and are due at the Collegian, no later than Friday, Dec. 3, 1993.



Space is limited, so messages will be printed on a first come, first serve basis. They should be delivered to the Collegian and either placed in the Black Affairs mailbox, or stuffed in the envelope located at the Black Affairs desk. Messages received after Friday will not be considered.

The Black Affairs staff looks forward to your participation and wishes you good health while preparing for finals.

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

VIRTUAL REALITY By MARK WARNAT

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Lisa Jezowski
Production ..... Mike Carvalho, Andrew Davidson

SORRY, NO MENU TODAY. CALL 5-2626

P.S. MUELLER By MUELLER

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Question: Can anybody beat those big, bad Tar Heels?
Answer: Ah, no."
– From the cover of Basketball Times

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Community work holds special rewards for someone who is retired or temporarily unemployed. Your reticence in business affairs works to your advantage. Be careful to check the credentials of a new associate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Teamwork is key to higher profits. A flexible approach wins you new friends and admirers. A hasty decision could be costlier than you think. Take your wins and losses in stride.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The pieces of a financial puzzle begin to fall into place — you are a real winner. Talk candidly with your mate or partner if something is troubling you. Assert your independence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Work completed behind the scenes will help conserve your energy and avoid sharing secrets. Good timing is the key to your continued business success. Pay bills promptly to protect your credit rating.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take advantage of your current power to promote important goals and personal interests. You may have more support than you realize from someone in a position to assist you. Emphasize your strong points.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Love is in the air! Follow your heart to happiness. The unattached begin a trek toward the wedding altar.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you plan to call on your co-workers for help with a business project, do so early in the day. Readings in science and psychology offer illumination on an important issue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Handle financial matters with care. Do not build your empire on shaky foundation. A change of lifestyle is favored. Put your credit cards out of commission. Enjoy an old hobby.

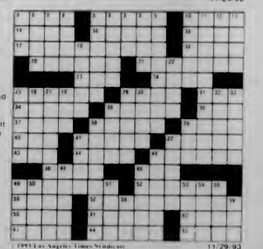
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A business or romantic partner could play guessing games now. Let others take the lead and you will find out more. The financial picture brightens.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Guard against early morning traffic snarls. Later today, your freewheeling manner opens new business or financial doors. Do not believe all the news or rumors you hear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A new interest adds more dash to your life. A change of lifestyle will introduce you to an entirely different social circle. Move discreetly in matters that involve someone who has a jealous streak.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get better organized at work. Postpone anything that would keep you from focusing on a real moneymaker. Emotionally-charged situations require careful handling.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Cut into cubes
5 Dial sounds
10 Fleshy fruit
14 "Air" Jordan, for one
15 Cancel a mission
16 She sings Cole's songs
17 Jam ingredient
19 Type of cheese
20 Participates at a bee
21 Drools
23 Churchillian sign
24 Cake decorator
25 Went on and on
29 Take it easy
31 Garden unit
34 Adds to the pot
35 Records
36 Crimson's rival
37 Ripped
38 Lent a helping hand
39 Type of muffin
40 She's sweet as apple cider
41 Late bloomer
42 — blanche
43 Recent
44 In the know
45 Got down on one's knees
46 The two
48 Promise to pay, for short
49 Fill beforehand
52 Highest point
56 British title
57 Jam ingredient
60 Taj Mahal site
61 "Don't — on me"
62 Requirement
63 West and Largo
64 Glasses, for short
65 Exploits

DOWN
1 Archeological site
2 Wedding words
3 Hens' home
4 Otherwise
5 Put aside
6 Corpulent plus
7 Neither's partner
8 Blunders
9 With formality
10 Pet —
11 Jam ingredient
12 Winged
13 Los Angeles team
18 Santa's assistants
22 Top dogs on the diamond
25 Classical language
26 Positively charged electrode
27 Jam ingredient
28 Perfect beauty
29 Full of cargo
30 Copycat
32 Make happy
33 Had a meal
35 Former Balkan leader
38 Sidewalks
39 Cote cry
41 Motorcade element
42 Tidbit
45 British currency
47 Pots for stews
48 Physicist Newton
49 Range top?
50 Tantrum
51 Village
53 Bill of fare
54 Angers
55 Corner
58 — whiz!
59 They have 3 ft.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

B	A	B	A	R		A	N	E	W		S	A	L	T
A	B	U	S	E		I	D	T	O		C	L	E	O
D	E	C	K	S		B	U	C	K	W	H	E	A	T
E	L	K		C	A	N		H	O	R	S	E
		B	R	U	N	T		S	T	I	L	T	E	D
P	I	N	O	D	E		T	L	E	O	N	A
R	O	A	D	S		A	L	T	F	R	D	U	G
A	P	A		D	A	V	I	S		U	S	A
M	I	D	D	L	E	M	E	N		P	A	C	E	R
		R	E	A	P	S		F	O	L	K	S	Y
R	A	D	I	A	L	S		H	A	S	T	O
A	M	A	N	S		S	O	R	T		W	H	O
B	U	C	K	T	E	E	T	H		A	H	E	A	D
A	S	H	E		F	R	A	U		G	E	N	R	E
T	E	A	R		T	E	R	M		S	E	S	S

11/24/93

©1993 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

11/29/93

The Collegian is currently accepting applications for the following positions:

- Editor in Chief
- Arts & Living
- Black Affairs
- Developing Nations
- Editorial/Opinion
- Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
- Jewish Affairs
- Managing Editor
- Multicultural Affairs
- News
- Photography
- Sports
- Women's Issues

Candidates' Night is at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 5.
Elections will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 7 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The following positions are also available for the spring:
- Copy Editors
- Night Editors
- Associate Editors

For applications and job descriptions please come to 113 Campus Center. Applications for all positions are due by 3:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 3.

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS

WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or age restriction.

Council Travel

79 So. Pleasant St., Amherst
413/256-1261

MacE.M.T.
Macintosh™ Repair, Service and Supplies
We Make House Calls!
Call for Extended Hours
Home, Business or Dorm.
15% off labor with this ad
10 Pleasant Court
Amherst, MA
549-4EMT

rock bottom prices
YANKEE
DISCOUNT OIL
Northampton/Holyoke
584-4112 • 535-1888

Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Shine Only at Anthony's"
Nov. 29 - Dec. 4
Victoria Paris
Adult Film Superstar

Call For Showtimes
FREE!
For Limited Time Only...
...Receive a VIP pass good for one FREE Admission!
Dancers wanted • Big $$$ • MA, CT, NY, NJ
Sun-Tues 4pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
• NO COVER NOON TO 3PM •
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5/left on Rt. 33/turn right across from BigY/(413) 536-0502

Do I get 200 points for my name?

SUZANNE GARB / COLLEGIAN

Ken, of the Student Union Mini Store, takes a moment to fill out a keg law survey. Barbie (not pictured here) looks on.

THIS COULD BE YOUR DORM IF YOU ARE NOT CAREFUL WITH CIGARETTES.
BE SURE IT'S OUT
Division of Environmental Health and Safety

Just ended a relationship?
Want a place to talk about it?

Come to
Letting Go and Moving on

A weekly drop-in support and educational group at Mental Health Services

Mondays 1:30-3:00

Check in ten minutes before the group at 127 Hills North

Strike violence fines appealed to high court

By DAVID REED
Associated Press

ROANOKE, Va. — In the spring of 1989, coal truck driver Richard Adams rounded a tight curve on a rugged southwestern Virginia mountain road and encountered a group of striking coal miners.

They hurled fistfuls of rocks that "hit us like a hailstorm," Adams, a replacement worker, told Circuit Judge Donald McGlothlin.

The U.S. Supreme Court has scheduled arguments Monday on whether McGlothin was justified in fining the United Mine Workers union $52 million for repeated episodes of violence and civil disobedience in its 11-month strike against Pittston Co.

Labor analysts said it's the largest civil contempt fine ever imposed by a U.S. court and could bankrupt the union.

"Nothing of this magnitude has happened before. It's unprecedented," said Chris Cameron of Southwestern University School of Law in Los Angeles.

The UMW contends the fines were excessive, and that they were unconstitutional, maintaining that the judge cannot assess fines to coerce people's behavior. The union further maintains that the strike settlement should have negated the accumulated civil fines.

On Nov. 6, 1992, the Virginia Supreme Court ruled that the fines, levied for each violation of rules McGlothlin had imposed on the strikers, were justified because the judge was trying to curtail violence. The court chastised the union for "its utter defiance of the rule of law."

On the same April day that Adams testified, gunfire knocked out power to one of Pittson's underground mines. McGlothlin said from the bench he didn't want the violence to escalate.

The judge announced that day he would fine the union each time coal transportation and production was hindered. He said the money would be distributed to the state — which had deployed several hundred state troopers to keep the peace — to Pittston and to the two counties in his jurisdiction.

The 327-day strike by 1,695 UMW member was called after Pittston eliminated health benefits for retirees. It drew international attention and labor support because of the use of women, children and non-miner supporters in sit-down demonstrations and because 99 miners took over a coal processing plant for several days.

"I had never been arrested in my life," said coal miner Bill Patton, who demonstrated. "But on that day I sat in the road, I felt like I was doing my moral duty to myself, my family and my father, who worked in the mines for 53 years and lost his hospital card."

But the strike also included violent tactics to disrupt shipments and intimidate replacement workers. McGlothlin's hearings included testimony about rock throwing, shots fired into vehicles, spikes placed on roads, equipment sabotaged with dynamite, and "scabs" routinely beaten up.

McGlothlin's orders reportedly were violated 760 times; 400 of the incidents were proved, and two-thirds of them involved violence against people and property. There were 71 injuries.

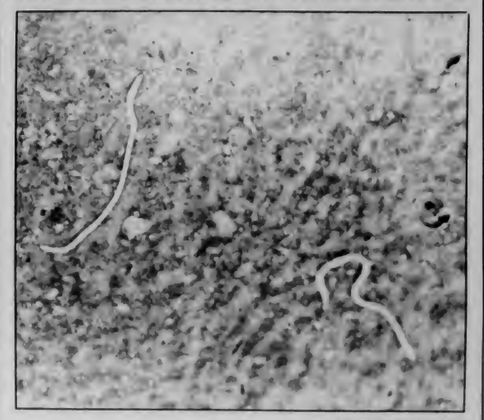
In almost all strikes, even violent ones, labor analysts say, the union and the company agree to drop civil claims when a settlement is reached.

When Pittston joined the UMW in asking U.S. District Judge Glen Williams to let bygones be bygones, he reduced the federal fines he had levied during the strike from $960,000 to $280,000.

Holiday boosts store sales

By JOYCE M. ROSENBERG
Associated Press

Consumers who spent erratically for much of this year regained their zest for shopping during the Thanksgiving weekend, giving the nation's retailers an encouraging start to the Christmas season.



Several big storeowners said Sunday that consumers, while budget-conscious were buying more frills and luxury items.

"It's a healthy sign that people are buying in categories that show they have some liquidity," said Myron E.Ullman III, chairman of R.H. Macy & Co. Inc.

Ullman said Macy did better than expected over the weekend. Sears, Roebuck and Co. also reported it exceeded its sales plan.

Retailers in the Midwest and on the East Coast lost some business to foul weather.

The worms crawl in, the worms crawl out

ARAM COMIEAN / COLLEGIAN

Local worms lay basking on the sidewalk in a vain attempt to keep from dying a hideous death by drowning in the rain soaked earth. Unfortunately, temperatures will soon plummet and they will freeze to death.

Cleanup effort started

Clinton pushes environmental technology

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Massachusetts lawmakers are hoping a Clinton administration initiative to promote exports of cleanup technology will benefit Massachusetts.

In the final days of this year's legislative session last week, Commerce Secretary Ron Brown and Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Carol Browner announced an "environmental technologies export strategy." The proposal is designed to help U.S. companies get their environmental products into a global marketplace that is expected to grow from $200 billion to $600 billion over the next six years.

Several New England lawmakers attended the announcement, as did various environmental firms, including Molten Metal Technology of Fall River. The administration strategy follows provisions contained in bills filed by Rep. Gerry Studds and Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass.

"Our region is home to an extraordinary number of innovative thinkers who have found ways to prevent or clean up the bad things we all too often do to our planet," Studds said. "We have entrepreneurs who have found ways to recycle laundromat gray water, who have developed a method using the natural properties of plants to treat sewage, and who, in hte case of Molten Metal, have figured out how to safely recycle contaminated trash."

The key to the Clinton strategy is to develop a smooth exchange of information between the federal government and the private sector so that environmental firms can move quickly to compete in the world market for environmental goods and services. Among other things, U.S. foreign service officials would be trained to spot opportunities overseas and help domestic companies get the business.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30–3:30
  Friday 8:30–2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Entrepreneurs College Pro Painters will be running an information session on Wednesday in CC room 802. Come in and find out about us

Financial Aid For College
No GPA or income restrictions
Free recorded message gives details
508-543-5640

STUDENTS
Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 413-467-7476

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions:
1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card - cost $35 gives you your next TEN Dozen free.
2) The Miser Card - Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen.
(Ben & Jerry's may be sub'd)
Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW
Sun-Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am
The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Balchertown line
3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route
Oil heat - fireplace 586-4270

Intersession Housing Wanted
We have students who want to sublet housing over Intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO)
M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0865 428 Student Union

1BR available in Uptown Apartment
Available immediately
Low rent-great location
Call Kristen at 508-829-5041
(May call collect)

One bedroom available in Mill Valley, beginning January 1. Looking for two males to share one bedroom. Call 253-4789.

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg. Jan or Feb 549-7290

Take over lease
2 bedroom
Amherst Ctr.
595 - month
549-3912
Begin in Jan or Feb

FOUND

Found at Data Party - red tie w/green Christmas trees. Call Shannon to claim

FOR SALE

Moutain Bike for Sale
Mongoose $150 or best offer
Call Lisa 549-5111

Ski equipment
Rossignol 7G Sz 200
Atomic 733 SL Sz 195
K2 sz 172
Boots Sz 7, 8,9
Best Offer
Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm/ bindings
Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

HELP WANTED

ATT: Excellent income for home assembly work info 1-504-646-1700 Dept MA-1307

Beach Spring Break Promoter
Small or larger groups
Yours free discounted or cash
Call CMI 1-800-423-5264

Free Trips and Money!! Individuals and student organizations wanted to promote the hottest Spring Break destinations. Call the nation's leader, Inter-Campus Programs 1-800-327-6013

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK!
For your fraternity, sorority or club.
Plus $1000 for yourself!
And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling.
1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

International Employment - Make up to $2000 - $4000+/mo teaching basic English in Japan, Taiwan and S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info. call: 206-632-1146 ext. J5001

INSTRUCTION

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons
Beginner-Advanced
Lessons may be taken for course credit.
256-6848

Talking Drum
$75 or B.O.
Bob 253-3989

PERSONALS

Alyssa, you're very special to me. Thank you for our 1st month together and I hope many more will follow. Happy Anniversary, Love Forever, Kris Hey Igor -- I'm giving my dad a tie for X-Mas.

I'm so sorry Christine but I do like you

Poppy
Where are you?
Ad

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village 190/mo 549-1816

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley, and you already know IT'S the BEST! Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're in search of two undergrad males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

Roomate for two bedroom apt. Main Street. Mark Erin 253-9744

SERVICES

Miracles Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant?
Need Help?
Call Birthright
For free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Pregnant?
Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St. Nham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Legal Services Center, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Term Paper Help. Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

$$$Money for College$$$
$135 Million unclaimed!
Our Scholarship Matching Service is guaranteed!
FREE information packet.
24 hour recorded message.
(603)434-6015 ext. 500

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break
First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach; parties, pool deck, fun, night-clubs, sunshine.
Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans. with on campus pick-up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp, depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94. Call for free brochure 1-800-9-Daytona M-F, 8-6 See ya at the beach!

Scuba Dive Key Largo Dec 28-Jan 3 Earn 2 credits. Meeting 12/3/93 at 7pm in room 255 Herter. Project Deep 1-800-282-0977

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing?
Fast, accurate wordprocessing
Free laserprinting. Call Becca 586-1989

WANTED

Looking to Adopt. Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb.

TRUSTEES TO VOTE ON LITIGATION RIGHTS!

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE:

TUESDAY 3:30 P.M.
CAMPUS CENTER 101

FULL BOARD:

WEDNESDAY 9:15 A.M.
CAMPUS CENTER 163c

WE NEED YOU THERE!
For more information, call SCERA @545-0355

A Miracle on 33rd Street

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

NEW YORK — They said it would take a miracle to beat No. 1 North Carolina, the defending NCAA men's basketball champion.

Well, if the experts looked in a dictionary for a miracle, they'd only have to move their finger three entries up to find a miracle-worker: the minuteman.

The No. 18 Massachusetts Minutemen combined heart, desire and an abundance of talent on Thanksgiving Eve in Madison Square Garden to pull off the 91-86 overtime upset of the Tar Heels in the semifinals of the Pre-Season NIT.

Junior co-captain Lou Roe and sophomore forwards Dana Dingle and Donta Bright dominated the highly-touted North Carolina frontline, while junior Mike Williams hit the shot that set off the Big Apple, a three-pointer with 20.2 seconds left in regulation which tied the contest at 76 and sent the game into the extra frame.

Dingle took over from there, scoring six straight points in OT to give the Minutemen an 82-77 cushion; the Tar Heels would claw within one, 85-84, with 45 seconds left on two Jerry Stackhouse free-throws, but Williams would bury another three-pointer with 13 seconds to go, sealing the victory for Massachusetts.

The win sent shockwaves throughout the country, making the front page of newspapers as far off as Hawaii and as close to home as Maine. This much was true: Massachusetts had arrived.

Coach John Calipari and staff watched ESPN's 2 a.m. edition of SportsCenter in which the Minutemen were the lead story. The daily papers in New York ran the story of Massachusetts' win with banner headlines.

The bright lights of the big city were on the University of Massachusetts. UMass Athletic Director Bob Marcum said he never experienced anything like it.

"You just can't purchase this type of exposure. Not only did we beat the No. 1 team in the country, but we beat the winningest active basketball coach in the country in Dean Smith," said Marcum. "When you pull a major upset, people look at it as something great."

Roe finished with 28 points and 14 rebounds, Bright had 15 points and eight boards and Dingle added 11 points and seven rebounds. Williams tallied 17 points. Junior guard Donald Williams led UNC with 22 points.

Jerry Stackhouse of top-ranked North Carolina looks back as Mike Williams of Massachusetts watches his three-pointer with 20.2 seconds left in regulation play tie the score at 76, sending their preseason NIT game into overtime. (ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTO)

Minutemen enjoy holiday

UMass downs No. 1 Carolina, Oklahoma

By Arthur Stapleton Jr.
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Two out of three ain't bad; it's pretty damn good.

Entering last week, Massachusetts Coach John Calipari hoped his team's trips over the Thanksgiving weekend to New York City and Oklahoma would teach the players lessons that would help them for the future.

The 18th ranked Minutemen (4-1) had other ideas and took two of the three prestigious programs they faced to school, beating No. 1 North Carolina last Wednesday in the Pre-Season NIT Final Four and Big Eight power Oklahoma yesterday.

But Massachusetts found that there is always more to learn, falling to No. 6 Kansas in the NIT Championship last Friday. Here's the holiday that was for the Minutemen:

MASSACHUSETTS 91, NORTH CAROLINA 88

The scrappy Minutemen used their quickness and determination and pulled off the biggest win in the program's history. Massachusetts relied on a team effort, led by Lou Roe (28 points, 14 rebounds), Mike Williams (17 points), Donta Bright (15 points and eight rebounds) and Dana Dingle (11 points, seven rebounds).

Calipari got quality minutes from junior back-up center Jeff Meyer, who played nine minutes, using all five of his fouls on the Carolina frontline along with scoring six points and snagging a rebound. Meyer's presence would become even more immense as the tourney continued to the finals.

UMass suffered a big loss, however, during the first possession in overtime. Freshman center Marcus Camby went down with a knee injury, and would eventually miss the next two games. His status is still unknown; tests will be taken today.

The Minutemen used a three-pointer by Mike Williams to pull away with 13 seconds left in OT to seal the victory. Williams hit the shot of the game with 20 seconds left in regulation. With Carolina freshman Jerry Stackhouse in his face, the guard buried a three-pointer that sent the game into overtime.

Roe dominated the highly-touted frontline of Carolina, with All-American Eric Montross scoring only 15 points and snaring only five rebounds, as well as fouling out with six minutes left in regulation.

KANSAS 86, MASSACHUSETTS 75

In the NIT Championship game, both the Jayhawks and the Minutemen came out sluggish, noticebly exhausted from Wednesday's semi-final round. Lou Roe tallied 13 first half points, despite shooting five of 13 from the free throw line. He finished the contest with 25 points, but No. 6 Kansas proved too deep for the worn-out Minutemen.

Back-up center Scot Pollard recording a double-double for the Jayhawks, scoring 10 points and grabbing 11 boards. Richard Scott, the Tourney's MVP, posted 16 points and eight rebounds for the winners.

It seemed Jayhawk point guard Jacque Vaughn beat the UMass press every time down the court. Vaughn scored 11 points and dished out 10 assists, earning him All-Tourney honors.

Vaughn was joined on the All-Tournament Team by Donald Williams of North Carolina, David Grim of Minnesota, Roe and Dana Dingle of Massachusetts.

Dingle had a monster game for the Minutemen, chipping in career-highs in points (20) and rebounds (10).

MASSACHUSETTS 84, OKLAHOMA 83

The road weary Minutemen left Saturday morning for Norman, Oklahoma, and the final game of the weekend at the Lloyd Noble Center against the Sooners. Mike Williams would again provide the heroics, this time scoring the game's final two points on a lay-in with one second left.

Donta Bright and Lou Roe once again shined for UMass. Bright tallied a career-high 28 points, shooting 13 for 15 from the field. Bright also had 10 rebounds.

Roe had 27 points and nine boards, continuing his dominance over the holiday weekend.

LOOKING AHEAD...

Massachusetts should move way up in the polls, possibly into the Top 10 for their two-win effort over the Thanksgiving break. Now, as the students returned back to Amherst after their break, the Minutemen come back looking for one.

At least until this Saturday, Dec. 4, when UMass takes on St. Bonaventure in its Atlantic 10 season opener.

The North Carolina bench (Kevin Salvadori, left, and Eric Montross) looks on in stunned disbelief during the final minutes of Massachusetts' 91-86 upset of the No. 1 Tar Heels.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Camby out with injury

By Michael Morrissey
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

NEW YORK — In the midst of one of the most competitive games ever played in the Pre-Season National Invitation Tournament, a crowd of 13,470 and a national television audience collectively gasped when 6-foot-11 University of Massachusetts center Marcus Camby fell to the ground, writhing in pain, with 4:44 left in overtime.

Only minutes before, Mike Williams hit a tying 3-pointer which brought the underdog Minutemen all the way back from an 11-point deficit and sent the game into OT. Now both teams watched hopelessly as tears streamed down the freshman's face and he clutched his right knee.

Announcers on radio and television began speculating on Camby's injury and future, and UMass fans wondered if their team could withstand another unlucky break and come away with a miracle victory.

After all, backup center Jeff Meyer had fouled out after playing remarkably well, as had forward Donta Bright. Now the team was looking at the loss of its most promising newcomer, possibly for a lot longer than one game.

Surprisingly, the team played better after Camby was lifted off the court and to the locker room, using his injury as the source for one last surge of adrenaline.

"We wanted to win it for him," said Meyer. "We got in the huddle and we said, 'We're gonna win this [expletive] for Marcus.'"

"I got carried back to the locker room and I heard some guy yelling 'UMass beat Carolina! Who woulda thought it!' and the pain went away for awhile and I just got excited and was real happy for the team," Camby said.

The Minutemen went on an 8-1 run, got another prayer answered when Williams hit another three and everyone talked about the stunning upset.

"Hopefully he won't be out too long," Coach John Calipari said after Wednesday's game. "It takes away a little bit from the win if he's out for an extended period."

Camby said he does not think the injury was not career-threatening. He underwent a magnetic resonance imaging on his right knee Friday afternoon, but the results were inconclusive.

He will undergo a diagnostic arthroscopy today. A treatment program will be implemented at that time, including a decision on whether or not further surgery will be needed.

"So far the doctor said things look alright. I don't think I'll be out too long," Camby said.

He was sorely missed in the NIT Championship last Friday, as Kansas manhandled UMass down low on its way to a 86-75 win. Power forward Richard Scott was named the tournament MVP for his work in the blocks, work Camby may have been able to handle were he healthy.

Although the team will not admit how much he is missed, Calipari is playing without a center while Camby is out. The huge hole in the lineup exists for now, and the future of the season is up in the air — for the Minutemen, and for Camby.

Judie's
"I'm having a Burger craving... Well, why don't we go to Judie's and I'll have my favorite Vegetarian Potato Skins... Maybe you'll split a Fried Banana Sundae with me too..."
WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S!"
51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

Before or After the Game...
It's The Top of the Campus
Sports Bar & Lounge
Ideally located where faculty, staff & students can meet to enjoy the friendly atmosphere. The lounge offers munchies & full cocktail service & features weekly drink specials and big screen T.V.
11th Floor Campus Center
Monday-Saturday • 2pm - 12:30am
Munchies Available until 10pm • Positive ID required.

Roe garners spotlight in the Big Apple, Oklahoma

By Anthony Guido
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

NEW YORK — In the span of three games over five days, Massachusetts junior Lou Roe went from being the best Atlantic 10 forward to a star on the national level. Roe dominated big men from national powerhouses North Carolina, Kansas and Oklahoma this past week.

Last Wednesday night, in what was the greatest win in school history, Roe completely outshined UNC's taller frontcourt. Eric Montross, Rasheed Wallace and Kevin Salvadori all were outplayed by a much shorter 6-foot-7 Roe.

Roe exploded with an 11 for 21 shooting performance while pulling down 14 rebounds against the Tar Heels. He logged 43 minutes, picking up the slack by battling at the center position in the absence of injured teammate Marcus Camby.

Make no mistake about it, this was Roe's game. The co-captain's inside play fouled Montross and Salvadori out, just when their height began to take over the game.

"Roe is one heck of a player. He came out and stuck it to us on the boards," said UNC Coach Dean Smith.

He ripped down big rebounds, ran the floor, hit fadeaway jumpshots; you name it, Roe did it versus Carolina. This against a team supposedly sporting seven future NBA players, including Montross, who might be the first player chosen in the next draft.

As the momentum of the NIT semi-final swung towards UMass, Roe was displaying his spirited emotions up and down the court on national television.

"That's what I've got to do. Last year I kept it inside and one game I'd come out and score 25, the next game eight. That gets me pumped up on the court," Roe said.

Roe was again huge in Friday's 86-75 loss to Kansas in the NIT Championship game. He poured in 25 points, playing most of the game against Kansas 7-foot centers Greg Ostertag and Scot Pollard.

"Roe is just so strong on the boards, he is just some kind of player," said Kansas Coach Roy Williams.

An exhausted Roe struggled at the free throw line in the games at Madison Square Garden, shooting a combined 13-35 from the line.

"Being tired is no excuse. I'm an 80 percent free throw shooter, it's just something I need to work on," Roe said.

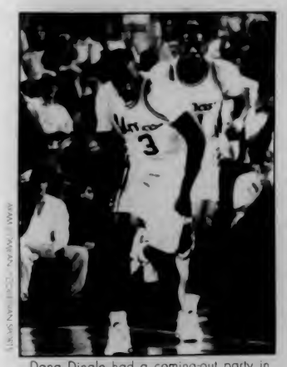
Roe was named to the all-tournament team along with teammate Dana Dingle. Despite Roe's monster two games, Kansas forward Richard Scott was named tournament MVP. Roe had outplayed him and had superior numbers.

"You have to give it to a guy from the champions, there's nothing you can say," said Roe, shrugging his shoulders.

Nevertheless, Roe was clearly the best player on the court at MSG, a fact not lost in the minds of fans and scouts across the nation. In his first two seasons, he took a back seat to Harper Williams in the low post. Now he is the number one option on a team that defeated the No. 1 team in the nation on ESPN.

In the stunning upset of UNC, Roe scored more points than Montross and Salvadori combined. He didn't have a turnover, while picking up just one foul in a game marred with five players fouling out. Roe led the Cinderella Minutemen by winning over the crowd in the Big Apple.

UMass continued its remarkable run with a win yesterday at Oklahoma; again Roe was a star. Roe pumped in another 27 points and nine rebounds. Roe blocked four shots and improved on what seemingly is his only weakness.



Roe shot nine for 10 from the free throw line, that being a huge key as the Minutemen pulled out an 84-83 victory. As his outside shooting improves, Roe can lead this team to unprecedented heights and blossom into a great all-around player. We know about his goal to lead the nation in rebounding; now he's adding all facets to his game.

A star was born last week in New York City; it's up to Roe to continue to make that star rise. The future is now for UMass basketball, and Lou Roe has stepped to the forefront to make it all happen.

Junior Lou Roe, seen here against Towson State, was the best player on the court in Madison Square Garden, and his performance during the Pre-Season NIT may have made him a household name

ARAM CHAPPAN / COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Dana Dingle had a coming-out party in Madison Square Garden in front of the home folks. Dingle hails from the Bronx, NY

LISA NAPOLITANO / STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Dingle shines for home crowd in NYC

By Sean P. Hayden
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

NEW YORK — A 86-75 loss in the finals of the Pre-Season National Invitational Tournament finals to No. 6 Kansas dampened what had been a career weekend for University of Massachusetts small forward Dana Dingle.

The 6-foot-6, 200-pound sophomore, a native of the Bronx, N.Y., returned to his old digs this weekend and showed the hometown folks what he's been up to all this time up in Amherst, scoring a combined 31 points and grabbing 17 rebounds in the two games on his way to being named to the All-Tournament team along with teammate Lou Roe.

"I would have sacrificed some of my points for the win," Dingle said after the Kansas game. "I would rather win the whole tournament than have a career high, so I guess it's a little bittersweet."

The career high for Dingle came in the finals against the Jayhawks as he scored 20 points in 32 minutes of action.

Dingle, whose previous high was 14 against St. Bonaventure last year, also grabbed 10 boards for the second double-double of his career.

"Dana played great," said Massachusetts Coach John Calipari. "Dana did what he needed to do to give us a chance to win this game. He really fought out there."

Against the Jayhawks, the Minutemen appeared sluggish and a half-step too slow. All except Dingle, who played the most complete game of any Massachusetts player that night, often carrying his team in spurts with his offensive rebounding and put-backs.

"If I see other people on the tear, letting down, I try to pick up the team any way I can, whether it be scoring or rebounding.

"I looked at everybody else and they looked kind of exhausted," Dingle said. "So I felt I had to dig down and give that little extra for my team."

Dingle proved himself as a big-time clutch performer in the Minutemen's upset of defending NCAA champ and top-ranked North Carolina Wednesday night.

With three key players out (Donta Bright and Derek Kellogg on fouls and Marcus Camby to injury), Dingle stepped up and scored Massachusetts first six points in overtime, four on put-backs and two on an outside jumper.

Doing it all in front of familiar faces meant a little something to Dingle.

"A lot of my friends don't get to see me in person, so to do well lets them know that what I do in the summer is no joke."

SPALDING FACTORY OUTLET
521 MEADOW STREET, CHICOPEE
Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. 8-12
539-2056
FACTORY OUTLET SAVINGS
WAREHOUSE DISCOUNTS
OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
Take Exit 4 off I-391, turn left, then left at the lights
Every WEDNESDAY is SENIOR CITIZEN'S DAY
SAVE 10% on your total purchase
Discount for previously marked down items
Ages 62 and over qualify with proper I.D.
Early Shopper Specials
VOLLEYBALLS
50% OFF ALL MODELS
SOCCERBALLS
Factory Outlet Price $8.00 to $10.00 each
BASKETBALLS
Factory Outlet Price $7.00 to $35.00 each
FOOTBALLS
50% OFF ALL MODELS

SNOW BREAKS '94
Book by Dec. 31 and SAVE $20! No Peak Week Surcharges!
LAKE PLAICID, NY from $224 (Bonus 6 Day Lift Tickets)
SUGARBUSH, VT from $259
SMUGGLERS NOTCH, VT from $239
KILLINGTON, VT from $295
WATERVILLE VALLEY, NH from $199
Your Snow Break Ski Package Includes:
• Choice of accommodations
• 5- or 6-day lift ticket
• Breakfast or breakfast and dinner (Lake Placid only)
• All taxes, service charges and gratuities
• Aprés ski program
• Parties and activities every day
SPRING BREAK '94!
Departures from New York, Boston, Hartford, Washington, Syracuse, Niagara Falls, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Philadelphia.
OUR VACATIONS INCLUDE:
• Choice of accommodations
• Roundtrip airfare on scheduled commercial airline or charter flights
• Roundtrip transfers
• Daily activities
• On site UNIVERSITY EXCURSIONS staff
• All taxes, service charges and gratuities
• Rate per person quad occupancy
MEXICO CANCUN 6 and 7 Nights from $449
BAHAMAS NASSAU 7 Nights from $379
JAMAICA MONTEGO BAY 7 Nights from $439
FLORIDA DAYTONA BEACH 7 Nights from $169
PANAMA CITY BEACH 7 Nights from $129
All trip departures coincide with school Spring Breaks.
UNIVERSITY EXCURSIONS
FOR INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
CALL: 1-800-299-4-SKI, EXT. 222
UNIVERSITY EXCURSIONS
FOR INFORMATION AND RESERVATIONS
CALL: 1-800-299-4754, EXT. 333

Women's hoop falls to Ohio State in season opener

By Andrew Bryce
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

The University of Massachusetts women's basketball team could not have asked for a tougher opponent for its first game of the 1993-94 season.

The Minutewomen (0-1) traveled to No. 15 Ohio State yesterday afternoon and were beaten by the Buckeyes 97-66 at St. John Arena.

The same Ohio State who made it to the NCAA Championship before losing to Texas Tech one year ago. The same Ohio State who crushed the Minutewomen 81-48 during the 1992-93 season. The same Ohio State who has one sophomore All American Katie Smith.

Massachusetts	66
Ohio State	97

Smith scored a team-high 21 points, pulled down seven rebounds and had five assists. Smith also led the way in stopping the Minutewomen, garnering four steals.

The Buckeyes (1-1) had six scorers in double figures, including Smith. Forward Stacie Howard had 16 points, and Smith's backcourt mate, Adrienne Johnson, was next with 13.

Sophomore Octavia Thomas led the Minutewomen, pouring in a career-high 31 points (12-20) and grabbing 14 rebounds, both game highs. Fellow sophomore Melissa Gurile, an Ohio native, scored 22 points on 9-17 shooting and had seven rebounds.

Freshman Beth Kuzmeski, who is supposed to start at shooting guard for the Minutewomen, played point guard due to the absence of starter Tricia Hopson and had 12 points and four assists. Kuzmeski also hit 3-6 from the three point line as she was the only Minutewoman with a three pointer.

The Buckeyes came out strong, opening with an 11-0 lead as Johnson scored five points in the run. The Minutewomen answered the Buckeye run with a 13-7 spurt of their own to pull within five at 18-13, keyed by Thomas' six points.

The Buckeyes then ran up another 11 point lead at 26-15 before Thomas scored four points and Gurile added two to pull the Minutewomen to within eight at 29-21. The Buckeyes entered halftime leading 36-24.

In the second half, the Minutewomen cut the Buckeye lead to 11 on two occasions early in the second half. However, an 8-2 run by the Buckeyes midway through the half gave them a 58-38 lead and put the game out of reach for the Minutewomen.

The Minutewomen were impressive on the boards, outrebounding the Buckeyes 38-34. Ohio State, however, put the ball in the basket at a better rate than UMass, hitting at a 48.5 percent clip to the Minutewomen's percent.

The Minutewomen return to action on this Wednesday, Dec. 1, as they battle Northeastern in the friendly confines of the Curry Hicks Cage. The tip-off for this 1993-94 home opener will be 7 p.m.

Massachusetts	24 - 42	66
Ohio State	36 - 61	97

Massachusetts: Thomas 12-20 7-10 31, Carroll 0-4 0-0 0, Gurile 9-17 4-5 22, Kuzmeski 3-8 3-4 12, Valentine 0-4 0-1 0, Hopson 0-0 0-0 0, Gregory 0-2 0-0 0, Hansen 0-0 1-2 1. Totals: 24-55 15-22 66

Ohio State: Smith 7-11 5-7 21, Howard 6-13 4-6 16, Turner 1-4 3-4 5, Bond 3-9 3-4 10, Johnson 4-11 3-3 13, Negri 2-3 0-0 4, Ingwersen 1-3 0-0 3, Jackson 4-5 2-3 10, Fergus 1-1 2-3 4, Stollings 4-7 0-0 11, Turner 0-1 0-0 0, Alberts 0-0 0-0 0. Totals: 33-68 22-30 97

Three point goals: Massachusetts 3-8 (Thomas 0-1, Carroll 0-1, Kuzmeski 3-6), Ohio State 9-20 (Smith 2-4, Bond 1-5, Johnson 2-4, Ingwersen 1-2, Stollings 3-5). Rebounds: Massachusetts 38 (Thomas 14), Ohio State 34 (Smith, Jackson 7). Assists: Massachusetts 12 (Valentine 6), Ohio State 23 (Bond 9). Fouled out: Carroll

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN SPORTS

Octavia Thomas, seen here last year against Rutgers in the Curry Hicks Cage, scored 31 points to lead the Minutewoman basketball team in a losing effort in its season opener at No. 15 Ohio State.

Minutemen hang tough against St. Lawrence Saints

By Michael Morrissey
COLLEGIAN SPORTS

As the University of Massachusetts hockey team was busy beating up Division III patsies early in the season, fans and media alike wondered how the team would fare against a tough Division I opponent like St. Lawrence.

Massachusetts	4
St. Lawrence	5

With only one game, on opening night, to look at, it was tough for even the team to gauge itself against the hockey powers it will be facing nearly every game next season.

Last Saturday night, in one of the most hostile collegiate hockey buildings in the Northeast, the Minutemen rose to the occasion but came up one goal short, losing 5-4.

UMass was down 4-2 going into the final period but tied the game up before Mike Allain scored with 4:54 left to give the Saints the win.

Rob Bonneau's short-handed breakaway goal at 11:33 brought Massachusetts within a goal and Blair Manning put away a rebound at 13:26 to tie the game and throw a scare into the Saints.

"It was the most incredible feeling ever," said Manning. "Everybody told us we were gonna get blown out and all we wanted to do was play hard and have a chance to win at the end.

"I think we exceeded other people's expectations but the guys on the team knew we could play them close."

"I think our game plan was excellent and our effort was superb," said Coach Joe Mallen. "Every guy put his best foot forward and we had a chance in the last six or seven minutes."

St. Lawrence, now 6-2 overall, jumped to the early lead as senior wing Spencer Meany scored a power play tip-in at 5:20 of the first period, but the Minutemen (6-2) tied the game on a goal by Dennis Wright at 17:28 of the first.

The Saints then opened up a two-goal cushion as sophomore Bren Genga scored on a tip-in at 9:11 of the second and Brian McCarthy scored his sixth goal of the year on a power play at 13:27 to make it 4-2 after two periods.

"[Coach] Joe [Marsh] was astonished, he was almost in disbelief after the game," Mallen said. "He said 'I can't believe the job you've done in such a short time frame.'"

Saint goalie Jon Bracco had 31 saves in recording his first collegiate win for St. Lawrence while Dave Kilduff matched Bracco's save total with 31 for UMass.

"A fan that went into Canton [New York] without knowing anything about our program saw a very good Division I team against a Division I team," said Mallen. "The shots were even, the score was tied with six minutes left. I don't know how much harder our guys could've played."

Last Tuesday, Massachusetts recorded its sixth victory with a 3-0 win over crosstown rival Amherst College. Dave Kilduff collected his first collegiate shutout and Blair Wagar, Manning and Mike Evans netted goals for UMass.

The win was the sixth in a row for the Minutemen and kept their unbeaten streak at the William D. Mullins Center alive.

Palazzo

Women's Clothing & Accessories

Amherst 413.253.2563 | Brattleboro 802.254.4421 | Williamstown 413.458.9858

The Club

The Most Complete Tennis & Fitness Facility in the Area.

Buy next semester's membership now and get intersession free!

Pay $140 Today & Secure Your Membership From 12/23/93-5/31/94

- Complete Camstar/Nautilus & Free Weight Room
- Unlimited Aerobics
- Cardiovascular Machines
- Tanning
- 5 Indoor Tennis Courts
- 2 Racquetball Courts
- Child Care
- On Bus Route

Pay $9.50/Week for the Rest of the Fall Semester

659 AMHERST RD., SUNDERLAND 549-3638

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Students meet to restore Legal Services' litigation powers Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
34° Tuesday, November 30, 1993, Volume CIII Issue 54
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Victims often knew their rapists, campus police say

By KELLY SPANG and VANESSA ADELMAN
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the first article in a three-part series examining rape on the UMass-Amherst campus.

Police statistics show rapists are not strangers, who jump out of bushes, but probably an acquaintance.

Of the nine reported campus rapes in the 1991-1992 school year, all of the victims knew their rapist in some capacity.

According to Detective Joanne O'Connor of the University police, two people may have been introduced earlier in the night, and if a rape occurs later, it is still acquaintance rape.

Seven of the reported rapes involved alcohol, which UMass Police Chief Jack Luippold said is his main concern.

"Alcohol plays an alarming number of times in sexual assaults," he said.

O'Connor said each rape case is serious, regardless of the circumstances surrounding the rape. The legal definition of rape in the Massachusetts General Laws is "sexual intercourse or unnatural sexual intercourse (oral/anal) by a person against another person's will, by force or threat of force."

"Rape is rape no matter how you slice it," she said.

Susan Manatt, director of the victim witness program at the Northampton District Attorney's Office, agrees that the usual circumstances surrounding rapes involve knowledge of the rapist and alcohol.

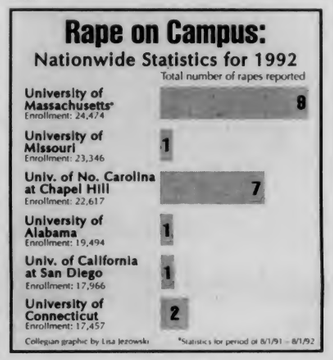
"Most people are not raped when walking home alone at night," she said. "That is a myth."

According to a pamphlet produced by the Advisory Committee Against Sexual Assault at UMass, more than 60 percent of rapes are acquaintance rapes.

"The bottom line," O'Connor said, "is education."

She suggested ways to prevent situations leading to rape, particularly to trust feelings.

"Trust your instincts," she said. "If you don't feel comfortable with someone, remove yourself from the situation."



She also advised people to drink in moderation, know when to stop and be very clear in sending the message of "no."

O'Connor noted people like to look nice for social occasions, but she told women to dress practically, avoiding spiked heels "in the off chance you have to walk or run."She stressed social skills.

"Men, behave like gentlemen, and women, send a clear message," she said.

Victims should report the rape, O'Connor said, and get help. She said it does not matter where it is reported, but to notify the police.

"I encourage them to take some kind of action," she said.

High Court will consider church, state

By LAURIE ASSEO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to consider its 22-year-old rule for interpreting the constitutionally required separation of church and state.

The high court said it will use a case involving a New York school district created for disabled children of a Hasidic Jewish community to decide how far government can go to accommodate religious practices.

New York courts ruled that the creation of the Kiryas Joel Village School District was an unconstitutional government endorsement of religion.

The school district is asking the high court to overturn the landmark 1971 ruling it has used in deciding many church-state cases.

The court has re-examined that ruling several times in past years, but each time stopped short of replacing it.

"I'm not looking for a lower standard," said school district lawyer George Shebitz. "I'm looking for a more appropriate standard..."

Steven Green of Americans United for Separation of Church and State said any decision dismantling the 1971 standard "could lead to wholesale tax support for religious education."

The high court's ruling in the religion case is expected by July. The justices are allowing the Kiryas Joel district in Orange County, N.Y., to continue operating.

The court's 1971 ruling in Lemon vs. Kurtzman said laws or government practices are unconstitutional if they have a religious purpose, primarily advance or promote religion, or excessively

Turn to COURT, page 4

Taking note of history

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Kerri McMahon, a freshman business major, takes notes on the Metawampe Indian sculpture on the Metawampe law for her lively arts class.

Five caught shoplifting

By JOSE MARTINEZ
Associated Press

WOBURN — Five people Monday denied stealing nearly $75,000 in clothes and other goods that investigators said still bore price tags and security sensors from area shopping malls.

The five were arrested after police staked out a Burlington motel where housekeepers spotted hundreds of hangers in a trash bin and piles of new clothing in two rooms.

"The facts before you represent a sophisticated larceny ring," prosecutor Edward Bedrosian told Judge Francis Cullen in Woburn District Court.

Police suspect the cache of clothes, towels and jewelry either was headed out of state for resale or would be returned without receipts for refunds after Christmas.

Innocent pleas were entered for all five defendants, who face felony charges of receiving stolen property over $250. A sixth suspect who fled out a window remained at large Monday.

Cullen, through a translator, ordered Josefina Nicasio, 37, Ofracia Gilces, 23, Paulina Ruiz, 19, Maria Sanchez, 28, and Jose Perez, 28, each held on $50,000 cash bail pending a Dec. 6 hearing. All are Puerto Rican nationals.

Bedrosian asked Cullen to require the five to produce identification and passports if they are able to post bail, since they had produced "not one iota of evidence to support their identities."

Two cars that were seized in the raid are registered in New York.

"We assumed the names they gave us were false," said police Officer Jim Tigges. "They gave us addresses out of Cambridge, but some came back nonexistent. One of them came back as a pizza parlor."

Turn to SHOPLIFTING, page 4

Government gets Parliament support for IRA connections

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press

LONDON — The government won praise and encouragement in the House of Commons on Monday as it defended its secret contacts with the Irish Republican Army. Both sides left the door open for more exchanges.

"We shall keep exploring again and again the opportunities for peace," said Sir Patrick Mayhew, the Cabinet official responsible for Northern Ireland.

Gerry Adams, leader of Sinn Fein, said he expected contacts to continue, although he accused the British government of lying and of inventing excuses for not negotiating.

"Sinn Fein is committed, and I personally... am committed, to trying to bring about peace," Adams said in an interview with Independent Television News. Mayhew and Prime Minister John Major were embarrassed over the weekend when The Observer published a document exposing the secret contacts. Some Protestant lawmakers from Northern Ireland called for the resignation of Mayhew and even Major, who had strongly denied that any talks were taking place.

Fears have been rising among Protestants in Northern Ireland that a British deal with the IRA could eventual-

Turn to PARLIMENT, page 4

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-1503

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yanito
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

GLB Forum is printed as a public service each Tuesday. Typed submissions may be sent to the Collegian, c/o the GLB Issues Editor, 113 Campus Center.

Tuesday, November 30

Lecture — Kevin Cathcartt of Lambda Legal Defense Fund will speak on "GLB Legal Issues in the '90s" at 4:30 p.m. at Hampshire College West Lecture Hall in Franklin Patterson.

Wednesday, December 1

Vigil — A World AIDS Day candlelight vigil will begin at 6:30 p.m. on the Student Union steps.

Brown Bag Series — Richard Pillard, professor of psychiatry at Boston University School of Medicine, will discuss "Is Biology Destiny?" from 12:15 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center room 917.

Faculty seminar — Richard Pillard will speak on "The Biological Origins of Sexual Orientation" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center room 804.

Thursday, December 2

Presentation — Leslie Feinberg will present "In Your Own Voice," a visual history of when and why transgender oppression arose, at 8 p.m. in Campus Center.

Friday, December 3

Social — The GLB Grad Group will have a social in the Grad Lounge from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Sunday, December 5

GLB Cafe — The GLB Cafe will feature Jaime Morton and Collin Chase's one-act play "If You Cough While in a Metal Box" at 8 p.m. in Hampden Theater. Tickets are $3 for UMass students, $5 general public.

TONIGHT
Live Entertainment
with
The Guitar Dudes
9:30-1:00
All Menu Nachos
only $2.00
9:30 10:30
THE 25 PUB
CELEBRATES 25 YEARS IN AMHERST
1968 • 1993
• 15 EAST PLEASANT STREET •

SKI
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS '94
PARTY IN THE SNOW!
$209
MT. SUNPEAK, CANADA
LIFT ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER!
Sponsors include: HOLSOM
5 DAY LIFT TICKET
* 40 SLOPES FOR ALL LEVELS
* 1800 FOOT VERTICAL DROP
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
* FULLY EQUIPPED KITCHEN, FIREPLACE ETC.
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, RACES & ACTIVITIES.
* NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
JANUARY 2'7 - JANUARY 5'94 & SPRINGBREAK '94
GROUP LEADER DISCOUNTS! CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION
1-800-999-SKI-9

The Massachusetts Daily
Collegian
Almost as stimulating as your morning coffee

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
for travel beginning November 1
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON $140 $280
PARIS $209 $418
AMSTERDAM $195 $390
FRANKFURT $209 $418
.....Roundtrip
TOKYO $769
Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia
Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes.
Eurailpasses issued on the spot.
Customs, immigration & departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change without notice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave., NY, NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420*
*In NYC

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY.
BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

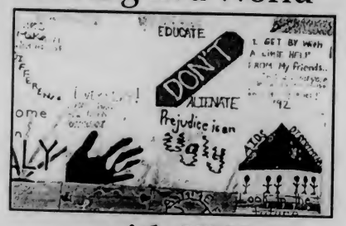
100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS* OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

I'm Concerned About Sexually Transmitted Diseases.

QUESTION

I've heard that sexually transmitted diseases can also be caught by using public restrooms. Since starting college, that's all I use. Could I be at risk? How do I know if I have an STD?

ANSWER



You can put your fears to rest. Sexually transmitted diseases(STDs) are infections that are spread from person to person through sexual contact only, including oral or anal sex. Each of the most common STDs present varying symptoms, but all are contagious and can lead to serious complications if left untreated. Symptoms of STDs may include an unusual discharge from the vagina or penis; burning or pain during urination; painful intercourse; sores or blisters on the genitals, rectum, or mouth; or genital itching and irritation. Some STDs may show no signs or symptoms. If you notice any of these symptoms, or if you are concerned that you may have contracted an STD, you should see your physician or an STD clinic as soon as possible. If you are not sexually active, you have nothing to worry about. If you are sexually active, condoms may provide some protection against STDs.

If you have a health-related question you'd like answered, or if you need a referral to an area physician, make a free call to the registered nurses at The Professionals at 784-CALL or 1-800-377-HEALTH.

Baystate Medical Center
THE PROFESSIONALS
Healthy Answers from People Who Know

Living in a World

with HIV

BEYOND THE NAMES:
The Five College AIDS Quilt Exhibition
NOVEMBER 29 - DECEMBER 3

STUDENT UNION GALLERY
11:00 am to 4:00 pm daily.

See how more than 1000 members of the Five College community have expressed their feelings about living in a world with HIV. There will be videos, HIV information, free condoms, and materials for you to add your own square to the quilt.

This event has been coordinated by the Health Education division of the University Health Services at Umass, Amherst. Call 549-2671 ext. 181 for info. We thank every student organization and individual who has helped us.

Local News

Litigation demanded

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Is your landlord ripping you off? When you shop in town, do you feel as if you pay more than you should? Have you ever brought your car to be fixed at Kevin's Auto Body and realized the repair prices were ridiculous?

These are legal problems many students confront, often without any effective legal recourse. The Student Government Association, the Graduate Student Senate, the Graduate Employees Organization and the Student Center for Education for Research and Advocates are fighting to restore student litigation rights so you can do something about it.

Today, a meeting will be held at 3:30 p.m. in the campus center room 101, to vote on restoring litigation rights.

"We are asking students to come to the Cape Cod Lounge at 3 p.m., so we can march down to the meeting. It is important for students to attend because the board of trustees, and a lot of administrators feel that students don't care about issues that concern them," said Matthew Pavesi, undergraduate student speaker of the senate.

The litigation rights being requested include bringing landlords, business owners, and civil rights and discrimination laws to court when problems arise.

"We are not asking to sue the University. We are only asking for one thing — the right to litigate. It is ridiculous we have lawyers who can't do anything," Pavesi said.

The SGA, GSS and GEO, have been fighting for the LSO to regain litigation power for seven years. The SGA has distributing information to students about LSO.

"For tomorrow, our best bet is to show up. Show the trustees that this is an issue that we care about. We have been fighting for this for seven years. And, for seven years they have denied us. It is about time something is done," Pavesi said.

The executive committee will listen to the request in today's meeting. The decision will be voted on and announced by the full board on Wednesday at 9:15 p.m. in Campus Center room 163.

"Chancellor Scott is totally for getting the litigation rights," Pavesi said. "He has done a lot of leg work for SGA. We thank him very much.

"With all of the problems we are having on campus, we need this and we want this. It is important to show that we want these rights. We are asking students to go down to the meeting. We want as many students to come as possible."

Yvette Henry, a UMass student falsely charged with arson in 1983, sued the University by using legal services. Henry settled out of court, and the board of trustees eventually prohibited the Legal Service Center's three lawyers from providing any representation in litigation for students on campus in 1987.

Peter Pan to pay piper

Students, officials discuss fare hikes

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
The president of Peter Pan addresses students' concerns during a meeting between Peter Pan and students.

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Officials from Peter Pan Bus Lines arrived in full force to discuss fare hikes and suggestions from students in the Student Government Offices yesterday.

Peter Pan was adequately represented with managers, executives, former bus drivers and even the president of the company, Peter Picknelly.

Picknelly opened up the forum by discussing the history of Peter Pan Bus Lines. Peter Pan started in Springfield sixty years ago by Picknelly's grandfather and is a family business.

Peter Pan is the second largest privately owned bus line in the United States. And, unlike most transportation companies, is not subsidized by the government. They operate the most modernized buses in the United States and have been operating in the five college area for 35 years.

Peter Pan operates out of the campus center and offices in Amherst and Northampton. The line services Springfield with the "hub" system and continues to Hartford, New York and many points on the east coast.

The forum was scheduled because of a letter from Andrew Berenson, of the SGA, and students complaining of increased fares from Amherst to Boston. In 1991, the round trip fare from Amherst to Boston was $25.95 and is now up to $29.00. Students and participants are concerned with alternativee routes and prolonged times.

Turn to PETER PAN, page 8

HIV camp needs student help

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

At a time when AIDS awareness among college students is at an all time high, the New England community is asking UMass students to give some of their time to children who are HIV positive.

Dave Butler, a teacher at Great Falls Middle School in Montaque is running a spring camp on Martha's Vineyard for children with AIDS. He is looking for students to volunteer as counselors at the camp next April.

"The camp is an opportunity for children with AIDS to come to an atmosphere where they don't have to hide the fact they are HIV positive for fear that their peers will not accept them," Butler said. "They get to spend time with others their own age that are facing the same challenges that AIDS brings.

During the day the children will participate in recreational activities. At night they can join support groups where they can sit and talk to counselors or other children about AIDS.

Students can also help the camp by sponsoring fund-raisers.

"At this time we have got money enough for about 20 children," said Butler. "The more money we raise, the more children we can have at the camp."

Butler has raised $5,000 for the camp and is looking to double it, but he said he needs the help of the community. Many people are skeptical about helping.

"People want to know why kids with AIDS need a special camp," said Butler. "You have to understand that many of these children hide their disease from their peers fearing that they will not be accepted.

"At the camp, the children all have AIDS. They can talk openly about their disease. It makes them feel better to know that there are other children dealing with the same things they are."

Students from Granby High School have volunteered to be counselors, and a few students from the Montaque Middle School will also be helping out at the camp. But, Butler said he would like more young adults to volunteer.

"Working at the camp is not just going to help the children," Butler said. "It is a learning experience for college students, also. They get a chance to see what someone with AIDS has to endure. It will give them a different perspective on life."

If you would like to volunteer at Dave Butler's camp or sponsor a fund-raiser, you can contact him at 584-5320.

Films educate UM on Turkish influence

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Turkish Student Association is seeking to educate Americans about the Turkish influence over western civilization by sponsoring a series of Turkish films to be played every night till Friday.

The series, which began last night, will be held in Thompson room 102 from 8 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. There will also be a slide show on Dec. 6 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. Admission is free to all the films.

TSA President Kenan Tamer said the movies are all award- winning films documenting the daily lives of Turkish people from all provinces of the country. Topics of the films include a young family emigrating to Switzerland to make money to bring back home, a young person who works for the government and an old maid that has to take care of her mother and father. There is also a short documentary of Turkish history that may be shown before each film, Tamer said.

Turn to TURKISH STUDENT ASSOCIATION, page 8

Where's the bus?

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
People mill about as they wait for the buss in front of Knowlton. Perhaps the Orchard Hill buss is usually running 15 minutes late. Well, at least they have a chance to improve their tan.

Scientists question 10,000 yr. regulation on nuclear waste

By DANIEL BEEGAN
Associated Press

BOSTON — There is no technical basis for government regulations requiring exact prediction of the effects of disposing of high-level radioactive waste for 10,000 years, two scientists for the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory said Monday.

Speaking at a news conference at the fall meeting of the Materials Research Society, Richard Van Konyenburg and Lawrence Ramspott said the Environmental Protection Agency's regulation is under review by the National Academy of Sciences.

John Bates of the Argonne National Laboratory also questioned the time frame.

"Can you predict anything for a 10,000-year period with reasonable assurance?" Bates said.

Van Konyenburg said federal regulatory agencies and federal courts ask before admitting a scientific theory as evidence whether it has been tested and if it appears to be speculative

"Well, we can't test these long-range predictions and a 10,000-year prediction is speculative by its very nature," he said.

"There is nothing unique about 10,000 years." Ramspott said. "Equally toxic materials have less stringent standards."

Ramspott said the United States is the only nation to use the 10,000-year safety standard.

We need to take a hard look at what science can do for us and not establish regulations that can't be met," Van Konyenburg said.

Edward C. Taylor, a scientist with TRW Environmental Safety Systems, said the academy would issue a report next year.

Rolf Sjoblom of the Swedish Nuclear Power Inspectorate said his country was also dealing with the disposal of high-level waste.

He said the Swedes expect the repository to be the first of its kind to function without maintenance or repair. it would also be the first to have a design that won't make it unduly difficult for future generations to make changes or improvements.

Congress has picked Yucca Mountain, Nev., as the candidate site for geologic disposal of civilian high-level radioactive waste, such as spent fuel from nuclear plants.

But scientists said it will be well into the next century, before any U.S. disposal site will receive waste.

Nevada has been fighting the proposal.

■ parliment

continued from page 1

ly end the province's union with Britain and make them a minority in a reunited Ireland dominated by Roman Catholics.

"I think there is no question of resigning by reason of any efforts that I or the prime minister have made to secure, by proper means, peace in Northern Ireland," Mayhew said.

He released copies of the government's communications with the IRA and its allies. Though these did not resolve all the differences between Mayhew's and Adams' interpretation of events, they did show Britain had insisted throughout that the IRA had to call off violence before any negotiations.

Contrary to its public demands for a permanent cease-fire, the government apparently was willing in May to accept a two-week halt in the IRA campaign as the price for talking.

Martin McGuinness, the deputy leader of Sinn Fein, accused the British of inventing a message supposedly passed to the British in February, saying the IRA has concluded "the conflict is over."

Kevin McNamara, Northern Ireland spokesman for the opposition Labor Party, said he hoped the government's "recent mishandling of these matters" would not deter ministers "from believing that risk-taking is essential if progress is to be achieved."

■ shoplifting

continued from page 1

Tigges, a former store detective, spotted the merchandise — some still on hangers and with sensors — in the cars when the suspects returned to the Days Inn Saturday night.

He also found a specially lined bag used to mask items with anti-theft devices from security gates.

"You've got to remember, this is their job," he said. "They practice it, they get good at it."

But defense attorneys said the five were unwitting accomplices.

"My understanding is they were hired by someone who asked if they wanted to make some money moving some items. They thought they were working," said Matthew T. Gilbertson, a court-appointed lawyer for Perez and Gilces.

"They had no knowledge the merchandise was stolen."

Almost all the merchandise came from the Filene's stores at South Shore Plaza in Braintree and the North Shore Shopping Plaza in Peabody.

About $22 worth of men's underwear was stolen from a specialty shop.

Shoplifting always increases at Christmas time, as crowds overwhelm sales and security staffs at stores, experts say. One in 10 shoplifters is caught.

"The number of apprehensions goes up during the holidays," said D.B. "Libby" Libhart, director of Loss Prevention Specialists, a security firm in Winter Park, Fla. "You get a lot of amateurs who come out, impulse shoplifters."

The crowds also serve as attractive cover for professionals, known in the industry as "boosters." Libhart said a good pro can pull in more than $100,000 a year.

"They can resell the goods, or refund them," he said. "A lot of times, they sell the stuff to flea marketers."

■ court

continued from page 1

entangle government and religion.

The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that accommodating the needs of religious people does not necessarily violate the Constitution, the Kiryas Joel appeal said.

Lawyers for the School Boards Association said the main effect of creating the Kiryas Joel district was "to involve the state in sponsorship of Satmar separatist precepts."

In other action Monday, the court:

• Agreed to decide, in an Oregon case, how far government may go in requiring private land to be used for environmental purposes.

• Turned down an appeal by the New York City Transit Authority, which was ordered to pay $4.3 million to a subway mugger who was shot and paralyzed while trying to escape from transit police.

• Allowed jailed political candidate Lyndon LaRouche to collect federal matching funds for his 1992 campaign.

BOOK NOW FOR THANKSGIVING & XMAS
WE GO WHERE YOU GO:

Boston-LONDON	$139
Boston-PARIS	$224
Boston-MADRID	$255
New York-FRANKFURT	$225
New York-ROME	$269
New York-CANCUN	$199

Fares are each way, based on a round trip purchase. Taxes & surcharges not included. Restrictions apply. Some fares may require an International Student ID and/or an age restriction.

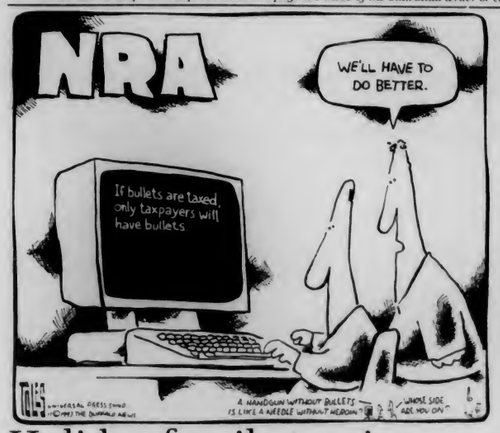
council travel
79 So. Pleasant St. Amherst
413-256-1261

FREE This coupon good for one FREE COLLEGIAN brand student paper
Offer good while supplies last. One COLLEGIAN brand student paper per person per day. FREE

Looks like a Vivarin night.

The big one's only 12 hours away. You could have paid more attention in class, but tonight you've gotta cram. First, you better keep those eyes from closing. Revive with Vivarin. Safe as coffee, it helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. So when your most difficult problem to solve is how to stay awake...make it a Vivarin night!

Calculus exam review



VIVARIN
for fast pick up—safe as coffee

Revive with VIVARIN.®

Use only as directed. Contains caffeine equivalent to 2 cups of coffee. © 1993 SmithKline Beecham.

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Holiday family tension

Almost as soon as you walk in the door to begin your long weekend, you resume the battle with your family, as if it had never lapsed. Perhaps some things will never change.

"Can't you see how much I've done? How my life is going somewhere? How much I've grown?" You want to holler in their faces. "Aren't you proud of me?"

Adam
GOULSTON

"Oh, stop being so silly. Of course we're proud of you. We shouldn't have to constantly tell you," would come the reply.

"Then why is it so hard for you to show me? Why can't you find something good about my work, before you tell me what's wrong with it? Why can't you show support for me?"

"Oh, nothing we can do will please you! We're just horrible parents! No matter what we do, you're going to complain."

And once again, despite the steamroller of pride, independence and adulthood you've brought home with you, you are the one who is flattened.

Maybe it's true. You're an ungrateful child; you will never be happy with anything your parents do. But why does it seem that no matter how diplomatic, ironic or unusual the conversational tactic tried, a maelstrom of frustration and eventually anger is the result? It is impossible to change parents.

Granted, some are entirely happy with their family lives, and every moment apart from their parents and siblings is a moment closer to the next reunion. And, almost all of us find ourselves forced to face this insatiable urge to go home. Maybe this is true love? Yet for many, a return to family life is a return to their childhood.

The very first time you return home after being away at school, though you've only been gone two months, it feels like coming home from a war. You deserve a hero's welcome. The parents look different, a bit older. Your little sister has become a teenager; your older brother has become a man. Five minutes later, Dad wants to know where his money is going, and you're feuding with Mom about dinner.

Mom doesn't care that you've been taking care of yourself for the last eight weeks, and that you've gotten on just fine without her.

She cares that you don't like what she's making. She thinks you're ungrateful; she feels unloved. You're feeling the exact opposite.

During the holidays, family is everything. You go home. You eat with the family. You live with the family. You are part of the family. Yet as soon as school is back in session, you have to maintain that long-distance separation which proves easier for some than others.

A late night talk on the phone with Mom or Dad and you're thinking, "Oh I miss my family. I wish I was home. I hate it here."

You may believe what you're thinking, and you're right. You want to go home. You would be happier there. But often you're much better off where you are — apart.

You keep building your accomplishments in hopes that one day, you'll attain adulthood in the eyes of your parents.

And when you leave on Sunday morning, you don't leave in the best of moods. But you bid your Dad farewell and tell him when you'll be back, as if it means a drastic change of plans for either of you. And you hug, kiss and thank your Mom for the food and the effort. As if throughout the entire weekend, you have not harbored a single bitter feeling toward either of them.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

Winter and war intensifies

The Armenian people have long suffered — from the genocide of the early 1900s where the Ottoman empire killed hundreds of thousands, to the earthquake that killed 25,000 people in 1988, to the constant lack of heat and electricity caused by Azerbaijani blockades.

Brian C.
O'NEILL

Nagorno-Karabagh, an autonomous region in the heart of Azerbaijan, has been plagued by war for it is a Christian Armenian region in Muslim Azerbaijan. But recently the tide of the Armenians in Nagorno-Karabagh has turned from the oppressor to the oppressed. Once again the drive for nationalism has lead to a bloody fight fueled by old ethnic hatreds.

Over the past few years there has been a drive for Armenians all over the world to support their brothers in Armenia and in the enclave of Nagorno-Karabagh. They have recently been suffering from the power of Azerbaijani blockades.

In Massachusetts the Armenian population has done tremendous things to support legislation to help Armenians in the land-locked Caucasus Mountains. An Armenian-American group on this campus has even helped collect signatures for legislation for U.S. leadership to end the Azerbaijani blockade of Armenia.

A sad thing began to occur last March when the Armenian forces in Nagorno-Karabagh began to spill over into the Azerbaijani region of Kelbajar, in a drive west to link their region up with Armenia proper.

The Armenians in Nagorno-Karabagh have abused their support in their drive to avenge the Azerbaijani's. They have used nationalism as their excuse. They think that it is right to grab land because Turkey has been supporting Azerbaijan, and they are Armenia's historic enemies.

It is unfortunate that the Armenians in Nagorno-Karabagh have gone on the offensive. They gained most of their support because they were seen as desiring a peaceful solution to the conflict, but who could blame them with all they have gone through.

Last month in a drive southward, Armenian forces from Nagorno-Karabagh took control of an entire strip from their enclave to Iran, capturing 30 percent of the Azerbaijani territory. This drove an estimated 60,000 Azerbaijanis from their homes and into Iran.

In the past few months, all journalists and members of international peace organizations have been banned from the region the Armenians have seized. U.N. reports show the Armenians have been looting and burning the villages.

This offensive by Armenians in Nagorno-Karabagh has been driving the war deeper into a dark labyrinth. it only compounds the war and postpones peace. There is one thing for sure, this winter the Armenians are going to have it hard.

Brian C. O'Neill is a Collegian Columnist.

Questionable spending priorities

Last week, during a hiring freeze, the chancellor of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst hired two administrators at the cost of $185,000. This is just another example of the misplaced priorities in the UMass system. The president of UMass, already the highest paid state official, added $1.86 million dollars to his budget within the last year, while campus departments have suffered severe cutbacks.

Professors and teaching assistants are not being replaced, the library has held bake sales to raise money, and 17 Physical Plant positions have been lost this year because of budget cuts, yet tuition has increased 161.5 percent during the past five years, creating the danger that UMass will soon be financially out of reach of many state residents.

We are disturbed by the trend toward administrative spending. Money invested in quality education by the residents of Massachusetts is obviously not going where it should. We, as students of the Amherst campus of UMass, deeply appreciate the opportunities the University provides, but are concerned about the University's spending priorities.

We urge the citizens of this state to show their support for the future of state education by voicing their concern and contacting: President Hooker / 18 Tremont St. / Suite 800 / Boston, MA 02108 / (617) 287-7000.

Stefana Lefko, Northampton
Jennifer Good, South Deerfield

Crabtree facilities are irreparable

As residents of Crabtree, we are angry about the poor condition of our furniture. Our wooden chairs are wobbly, bed panelings are falling out and desks have so much graffiti and scratches that we are unable to write on them.

For the amount of money we pay to attend the University, we do not deserve furniture that is so run down. Some of the furniture is not practical. Our bookcase shelves measure seven inches in height. Most textbooks are 10 inches in height. And, only one roommate per room gets a bookcase. There should be a bookcase for each roommate.

We understand Housing Services is busily attending to the needs of a 23,044 student campus, but Crabtree residents find it disheartening to see Hamlin and Knowlton receive new furniture, while our living conditions deteriorate.

We request a replacement of our furniture. It has gone past the point of repair.

Signed by the 8-member Crabtree House Council and 74 Crabtree residents.

A closer look at some of the larger myths of the U.S. political scene

"I've tried to fight more damn battles for more things than any president in 20 years, and I haven't gotten one damn bit of credit from the knee jerk liberal press, and you can put that in your damn article." —Bill Clinton to William Greider of Rolling Stone.

Clinton's little explosion in recent issue of Rolling Stone brings out some of the big myths in America politics.

Myth #1 — Clinton hasn't mastered Congress; Congress mastered him.

In fact, according to Congressional Quarterly, Clinton has gotten more of his program passed than any president since Eisenhower. Surprised? I was. You don't believe it? Here it is: expanded reproductive rights, partial lifting on the gays in the military, the motor voter bill, the Budget plan, National Service Act, the Crime Bill and the Brady Bill.

Myth #2 — Passing Clinton's plan will make him popular.

As former Congressmen Vin Webber of Minnesota says, "Nothing he [Clinton] has done has really resonated with the American people!"

I hate agreeing with a conservative Republican, but he is right. National Service is probably the most popular thing Clinton has done, and it's elicited a yawn from most Americans who no longer find serving the public very romantic.

Meanwhile, Clinton's most serious achievements, such as the budget plan and the North American Free Trade Agreement, have made economists happy. But by definition that means a lot of other people are unhappy. Raising taxes and cutting spending is never popular.

In fact, the only piece of government legislation that has been popular over the last 12 years was Reagan's first budget, which cut taxes and raised spending. So ironically, the most popular thing government has done in the last 12 years has also been the most irresponsible.

Myth #3 — The press is liberal.

The press has been scientifically measured every way possible, and they are neither liberal nor conservative. Yes, they trashed Bush last fall, but they have trashed Clinton with equal vigor.

What the Washington press happens to be, is wealthy and well-educated. The income status of the television news stars are now up there with Barry Bonds. That means like most upper class suburbanites, they are socially liberal and economically conservative. It would be hard not to be biased against tax hikes on the rich, when they are on you and your family. At the same time, most well-educated professionals are pro-choice and pro-gay rights.

So what William Greider should have told Bill Clinton in response is, "Yes, you have gotten a lot done, but even what you promised to do only got you 43 percent of the vote."

Neil Carpenter
Amherst

An endless maze of bridge

MATTHEW E. KELLY / COLLEGIAN

A dizzy view through a railroad bridge.

Thank you Massachusetts Daily Collegian!

The Collegian is currently accepting applications for the following staff positions:

- Editor in Chief
- Arts & Living
- Black Affairs
- Developing Nations
- Editorial/ Opinion
- Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
- Jewish Affairs
- Managing Editor
- Multicultural Affairs
- News
- Photography
- Sports
- Women's Issues

Candidate's Night is at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 5.
Elections will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 7 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For applications and job descriptions please come to 113 Campus Center. Applications for all positions are due by 3:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec.3.

PHOTO STAFF MEETING

Wednesday at 8:00 p.m.

All Staff Must Attend!

Mandatory News Staff Meeting Tonight:

You are news staff if:

A) You wrote six articles and became staff through the news desk, or;

B) You were already staff and wrote three articles for the News desk.

Once News Staff, Always News Staff.

Tonight at 6:30.

BE THERE!

DOMINO'S PIZZA
NOBODY KNOWS LIKE DOMINO'S
How You Like Pizza & Subs At Home.
Amherst 256-8911
Mt. Holyoke 535-1111
Open For Lunch at 11 AM
AVAILABLE FOR CARRY-OUT OR DELIVERY
FREE DELIVERY
Pick a Crust: Thick, Regular & Pan
VISA & MC now accepted in selected areas
THE DOMINATOR™
30 Big Slices • 2 1/2 Feet Long • Lots of Cheese
ONLY $9.99
LARGE CHEESE $6.99
$1.25 each add. topping
MEDIUM CHEESE $4.99
.99¢ each add. topping
Any Two Large Subs $7.99
Valid at participating stores only. Not valid with any other offer. Prices may vary. Customer pays sales tax where applicable. Delivery areas limited to ensure safe driving. Our drivers carry less than $20.00 cash. Cash value 1/20¢. Our drivers are not penalized for late deliveries.

UMass news is what we're all about.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

If it happens at UMass, it's in the Collegian.
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England.
Published every day during the calendar semester.

Family time for kids

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — Many American parents aren't at all worried about balancing work and family, according to a study released Monday.

In fact, most feel they are spending as much time with their children as they and their children want and need.

"People are coping. What choice do they have?" Maureen Michaels, who conducted the survey for Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. and Family Fun magazine, said Monday. "And in their own minds, they are feeling very positive about their family life."

Michaels said the study found that about half of the parents surveyed felt they didn't have enough time with their spouses. "That indicates they are giving parenting more priority than time with their spouse or time for themselves," she said.

Mothers in particular longed for some moments to call their own. Three out of every four mothers working outside the home, and 65 percent of those that remain home said they don't have enough time alone. Only about a third of the fathers wished for more time to themselves.

But if either parent is prey to guilt feelings, its more likely to be a working dad than a working mom, according to Michaels' findings.

Although seven out of 10 mothers now work outside the home compared to one out of three a generation ago, a nearly equal number — 69 percent — said they spent at least the right amount of time with their children and 41 percent said they spent more time with their children than their own mothers did with them.

While 64 percent of the fathers surveyed said they spent more time with their children than their own fathers spent with them, only one out of two said they felt they were able to spend enough time with their youngsters.

The survey, which polled a nationally representative sample of 702 parents from all income levels with children between the ages of three and 12, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points, Michaels said.

It is the sixth year that Massachusetts Mutual has sponsored similar research on the American family.

The surveys plot families' feelings about themselves, regardless of educators and sociologists agreeing with those perceptions, Michaels said.

"For the past two years we have trying to look at values families hold and how they are communicated," she said. "Our findings this year reinforced what people told us last year about family values. And, it showed that it is not just talk. People aren't just saying it's important to be together. They are finding time and ways to be with their children."

Parents tend to do the same things with their children, the study found, with the most popular activities being sports and board games followed by card games and reading.

■ Peter Pan

continued from page 3

The president clarified the fee hike by explaining that Peter Pan does not dictate prices, but rather it is decided by regulators. The Pioneer Valley Transit Authority governs fares within the 25 mile area, and the Inter State Commerce Commission regulates prices for all eastern routes.

If bus companies wish to changed routes, schedules, or fares they must go through the agencies first. The entire process takes about a year. The company must include financial need for the raise and submit financial records.

Picknelly broke down the fare to the mile. The fares from Springfield to Amherst and to Boston are about 13 cents per mile with the student discount. He said that these prices are the lowest for students in all of Peter Pan fares.

The question of time was brought up, as well as the necessity of Springfield as a destination. In response the group said the Springfield was necessary as a hub in order to service up to 16 departures per day and for extended customer service.

"Students at UMass are very important to us," Picknelly said. He emphasized Peter Pan's commitment to customer service and was open to suggestions and new ideas.

Some students discussed problems and commended drivers. Freshman Ian Weiss expressed his displeasure with the quality of Peter Pan. He noted that he was concerned with the customer service because a bus driver swore at him, and when the vehicle broke down, the driver made no effort to preserve the safety of the patrons.

"I am embarrassed," Picknelly said. He offered solutions to the problems with drivers and offered to personally respond to Weiss. He added that Peter Pan has 3.5 million passengers a year and only received 900 complaints.

"We are in a financial crisis," Picknelly said about the solution of fare hikes. He also stated that a rise in health insurance premiums and $300,000 in buses have added to the costs.

Peter Pan officials said they encourage all concerns and complaints to help them improve service. Picknelly commended the open forum as a important outlet for relations and for solutions with students.

■ Turkish Student Association

continued from page 3

The films are important because they illustrate the influence Turkey has had over western civilization, Tamer said.

"Turkey has been an ally of the United States for 50 years," Tamer said. "We went to Korea together and the Gulf Crisis together. But although we are allies, Americans know very little about Turkey.

"A lot of western society's history is based on the Romans and the Greeks, but the Turks have had an influence on the west too."

The TSA will donate the documentary Turkey, a Crossroads of Civilization to the University audio and visual center at the end of the series, Tamer said.

The TSA, which has 55 members in the five college area, will try to bring a speaker to UMass next semester to speak about the history of the Ottoman Empire, Tamer said.

BRANDYWINE AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
Tuesday
SHARK NIGHT
Singles Pool Tournament
- $2.00 Entrance Fee
- Free Pizza Slices
- Play For Cash
- Sign Up: 7:00-7:45
- 20 oz. Drafts $1.95

WATCH ALL THE SPORTS ON SATELLITE DISH
University Drive & Amity • Amherst • 549 4040

BUSCH GARDENS / WILLIAMSBURG
AUDITIONS
The Performance Experience of a Lifetime!

When you hear the thunder of applause, you know you're where you want to be...and Busch Gardens in Williamsburg, Virginia is ready to make it all come true.

No other place can offer you a package like this: eight high performance mainstage shows; a tremendous variety of strolling entertainment; a dedicated staff that cares about developing your talent; plus FREE classes in dance, voice and drama. There's also housing coordination available as well as a new sports medicine program. All of this plus free access to one of the most beautiful theme parks in the world.

More than 250 positions are now available for:
- Singers, Dancers, Musicians, Actors, Variety Artists
- Technicians (stage managers, audio engineers, lighting and follow spot operators, and wardrobe dressers with sewing experience)

Sound exciting? It is! Plan on starting your experience of a lifetime at Busch Gardens/Williamsburg Auditions '94. Bring your best 1 1/2 minute act to the audition location nearest you.

If chosen, you can begin working weekends from February through April '94 and full time from May through October '94.

If unable to attend the auditions, send your resume and photo, along with a video tape (dancers, actors, variety artists) or cassette tape (musicians, singers), to: Auditions, c/o Busch Gardens Entertainment, One Busch Gardens Boulevard, Williamsburg, VA 23187-8785. Or call 1-800-253-3302 for more information. An equal opportunity employer.

New England Life Hall
Monday, December 6th
11:00 am - 4:00 pm
225 Clarendon Street, Boston, MA

BUSCH GARDENS
WILLIAMSBURG, VA.

Arts & Living

An enigmatic Costner shines in World

Also: the Addams Family sequel scores, while Mrs. Doubtfire is a sitcom

By JON LUPO
& ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

COURTESY OF JANE BOYING/DOS/WARNER BROS.
Kevin Costner plays Butch Haynes, and T.J. Lowther plays Philip Perry in A Perfect World.

A Perfect World — Let it be said right now that Clint Eastwood has always been a better director than an actor; his no-frills, lean style is better suited to behind the scenes. Very rarely do the two collide (as in White Hunter, Black Heart or Unforgiven), usually Eastwood scores either as actor (In the Line of Fire) or as director (Bird).

With A Perfect World, Eastwood's faceless acting nearly sabotages his fine, fluid direction and brings the film to a grinding halt every time he's on screen. Otherwise, World is an eerie, daring fairy tale that's never what it seems nor what it pretends to be.

Kevin Costner, in his most complete performance since Bull Durham, plays Butch Haynes, an escaped convict who hits the road in 1963 Texas with an unlikely hostage: a 7-year-old boy named Philip (T.J. Lowther).

In pursuit is Red Garnett (Eastwood), a veteran Texas Ranger saddled with earnest criminologist Sally Gerber (Laura Dern). Years ago Garnett sent Haynes to juvenile prison to teach him a lesson, instead Haynes became a career criminal.

Butch and Phillip's odyseey, though, is the film's main focus. Travelling in Butch's "time machine" (aka a stolen Ford), the pair share an electric chemistry, with Costner's man-child aura contrasting warmly with Lowther's uneasy (and fatherless) boyhood.

While it's not too hard to see Butch as Phillip's father figure, director Eastwood pushes the theme further, into near-mythic proportions.

Unfortunately, Eastwood's woefully underplayed subplot grinds the film to a formulaic halt. His scenes with an underwritten Laura Dern play like a cheap ripoff of the clever repartee Eastwood shared with Rene Russo in In the Line of Fire. Clocking in at 2 1/4 hours, World's sometimes ponderous running time could have afforded the loss of the Eastwood scenes, thereby keeping the film tightly (and rightfully) focused on Butch and Phillip.

Kevin Costner, relaxing his Southern accent a bit from JFK, turns in an enigmatic and engrossing performance, one that more than forgives his lazy star coasting in Robin Hood and The Bodyguard. And young newcomer T.J. Lowther, clad in a contraband Casper costume, is an able match for Costner — their scenes are full of an affecting, charged intensity.

The inevitable showdown, expertly staged by Eastwood, is a haunting battle for innocence, with losses on all sides. Brimming with Greek overtones and capped by a stellar performance by Kevin Costner, A Perfect World isn't faultless, but the trip is worth the detour. B (Mtn. Farms) — J.L.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Robin Williams of Mrs. Doubtfire.

Addams Family Values— The major fault of this film's 1991 predecessor was a lack of plot. The "cemetery as Club Med" humor only ran so far when the action was confined to the Addams' gothic manse. Had the family left their abode for more than a brief nocturnal sojourn, the film could have flown.

Sadly the problem with this sequel lies at the opposite extreme. Director Barry Sonnenfeld obviously listened to his critics, perhaps too closely, as this film suffers from an abundance of plot.

At least the Addams are the same. Gomez (Raul Julia) continues the verbal jousting with wife Morticia (Anjelica Houston), enticing his fair "black widow" with the old ball and chain. She replies, "get them." Also back are Uncle Fester (Christopher Lloyd), Wednesday (Christina Ricci) and Pugsly (Johnny Workman).

The film gains momentum with two new arrivals to the Addams' humble asylu... ah, home. When Morticia gives birth to the fire-breathing prematurely moustached Pubert (they turned down Lucifer and Mao) the family seeks a nanny.

With the arrival of Joan Cusack, shades of The Hand That Rocks the Cradle ensue as every "psycho siren from hell" bursts from their cinematic graves. Meanwhile Pugsly and Wednesday are shuttled off to summer camp, just as Cusack's vixen is sinking her claws into Fester. Pure Addams entertainment.

Despite the scurrying from plot to plot, Values is an often hilarious comedy. The script by playwright Paul Rudnik effectively ribs everything from serial killer trading cards to Michael Jackson's recent woes, and it contains two showstoppers that even out dazzle Sonnenfeld's gloriously murky cinematography.

The first is a manic "scorched earth" waltz between Julia and Huston, and the second is a Thanksgiving pageant that takes the politically correct movement to its probable militant outcome. It's Apocalypse Now by way of Beetlejuice.

Had former cinematographer Sonnenfeld dropped his pans, glides and crane shots and tightened the plot, Values could have achieved that cinematic rarity (the vaulted "sequel better than the original" status). Still its worth the trip to these gallows. B- (Showcase) — E.H.

Mrs. Doubtfire— That Toys debacle must have been rough on Robin Williams. Rather than press on and further lighten a very bright career, he's reclined back to his roots in this big-screen sitcom by Home Alone hack Chris Colombus.

When Williams' struggling actor and husband is relieved of his kids' custody to wife Sally Field, he takes his act to his friend and makeup expert Harvey Fierstein. Transformed into a 60-something Brit housekeeper, he enters his children's life again. But wouldn't you know it, every time he's taking his makeup off some social worker or nosy neighbor has to come sneaking around. (Calling Norman Fell!)

Say this for Columbus, he does seem earnest to make a wholesome family picture. After orchestrating violent Wile E. Coyote-esque confrontations in his past "family without the family" comedies, he seems to be apologizing for the mayhem he may have caused in contemporary households.

Still, marrying off Tootsie with Mork and Mindy only adds fuel to that domestic fire. C (Hampshire Six) — E.H.

Guy Anthony wants you to fall under his spells

By EDWARD HURLEY
Collegian Staff

If you're sitting around your dorm tonight without anything to do take a walk down to the Campus Center Auditorium to see hypnotist Guy Anthony perform. This event is presented by Orchard Hill Area Government.

The show entails various displays of hypnosis. First Anthony tries to educate the audience on the subject of hypnosis. Then he asks for volunteers from the audience. He brings the volunteers on stage. He relaxes and then hypnotizes them. He has the volunteers act out fantasies and pretend they are on trips.

Anthony stresses that his show is just about having fun. He doesn't try to embarrass people. He makes the distinction that his show is fun and clean. He doesn't do some things that other hypnotists do. The basic rule is to "Raise heck and have fun."

Anthony explained one activity he sometimes does, by the name of age-regression. He puts people under hypnosis and tells them that they are now a certain age. They will even write their names like they did when they were really that age. Anthony even has the people verify this by sending a sample of their writing home to have their parents compare it to their writing when they were that age. Hypnotized people can even draw a picture of what they got on a specific birthday.

Hypnotist Guy Anthony will play tonight at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. Tickets $2/Orchard Hill Residents; $4 general available thru Tix Unlimited.

Paw at Pearl Street

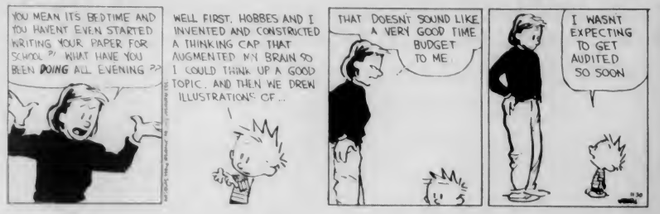
Crunchy riffs from loopy Kansas band

By ADAM GOULSTON
Collegian Staff

How do you describe a band influenced by everything and everyone from The Allman Brothers to Pantera? Alternative? Sure, why not? Paw is probably the best description you could find.

Lawrence, Kan., is not what you'd call a "hotbed" for new music. You'd be hard-pressed to name any another band out of this region. But Paw are aiming to change that.

Dragline is their first full-length album, as well as being their major label debut. Featuring crunchy riffs and vocalist Mark Hennessey's often high-intensity vocals, Paw's formula is one of strength and energy, but with a knack for incorporating melody.



Similar to any up and coming band which bears the dimmest of resemblances to any of the bands of the moment (see Dig), Paw have been tagged for alternative stardom. But the foursome has no interest in such labels.

On stage, Paw transfers the energy and noise level adeptly for a fiery performance.

Local heroes Slowpoke and Home will open.

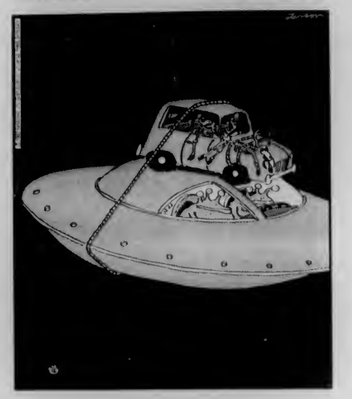
Paw play Pearl Street tonight with Slowpoke and Home. Doors open at 8 p.m. Tickets will be $5 at the door. The show is 18+.

CALVIN & HOBBES By BILL WATTERSON

JIM'S JOURNAL By JIM

BIG MAN ON CAMPUS By DAVE SCHNEIDER

DR. SCIENTIFIC By BEN COURTNEY



STEVE By MATT PAQUETTE

GLEESON By DAVE

THE FAR SIDE By GARY LARSON

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"No poisonous snakes can swim in my tub, only friendly dinosaurs can read my books."
– Charlie Chesterman

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE
By JEANE DIXON

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Quietly let others know that you want to earn more money. Strike a healthy balance between fact and creativity in your work. Confine doodling to the margins.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your hockey stick is your strongest ally now. Put your dreams on paper, and they could come true. When faced with a sudden crisis, common sense proves more valuable than a formal education.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Show your appreciation for a favor in a meaningful way. Set a good example for a child. Share quality time playing Frisbee.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Things seem clearer today. Remember your priorities. Do some business entertaining.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your creativity really comes alive today. School work keeps you on your toes. Relaxation is key, take a bubble bath.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone bright and amusing turns your love life around. A sense of obligation puts a damper on whimsical amusements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Exercise your flirtatious skills. You'll impress co-workers. Your partner proves understanding. People respect your genius musical taste.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your impatience with old methods and customs could cause a confrontation with a partner. Avoid those co-workers who like to flirt.

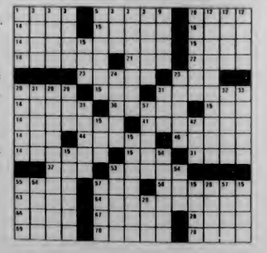
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Something happening today or tomorrow may make a long-cherished dream come true. Keep your eyes and ears open.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Hang around the office more and come up with ideas that will wow your associates. Make travel plans for this weekend, the trip will be worthwhile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek advice from experts about a complicated financial or legal matter. You already know what is important to you in the long run.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Let go of self-imposed restrictions, and you will be able to turn a difficult situation around. Your honesty is appreciated and greatly valued by others. Give someone a massage.

DAILY CROSSWORD PUZZLE
Edited by TRUDE MICHEL JAFFE



ACROSS
1 Vitamin C source
5 Palindromic title
10 Bridge
14 City on the Ohi
15 Show wear
16 Sea eagle
17 Made by mutual agreement
19 Habit
20 Start a new paragraph
21 NYC subway line
22 Difficulties
23 Thruway charges
25 Angle or athlete starter
26 Current measurements: Abbr.
30 Fish dish
31 Skunk's "nagging" cousin
34 Shaved the budgei
36 Sandal feature
38 Chemical suffix
39 Safekeeping of goods
41 Fat, broadly
43 Certain aliens, for short
44 Leveled a London house
46 Carls
47 Trigonometric function
49 Sundial figure
51 Emerald —
52 Transp systems
53 Like cacti
55 Arabian title
57 Saratoga, e.g.
58 It's short and stout and has a spout
63 "Streamers" playwright
64 Challengers
66 Mine finds
67 Extra charge
68 Sicilian sight
69 Plan: Abbr.
70 Change time
71 Wise one

DOWN
1 Places
2 Golf club
3 Fix
4 Other
5 Coach
6 "— Poetica": Horace poem
7 Garb for Hamlet
8 Second president
9 Have pity
10 Alaska purchaser
11 Enormous
12 Part of A.D.
13 Clears at the gate
18 Differ add-on
24 Places second
25 Relative of a rhino
26 Church parts
27 Dull finish
28 Forbids
29 Sun. talk
31 Misbehaving
32 A Ford
33 Dodger great
35 Repairs, in a way
37 Spokes
40 Hood's weapon
42 Luau dish
45 Grows, as a business
48 Stop
50 Aim
53 English china
54 Have a hankering for
55 Piccadilly statue
56 Contrary one oi rhyme
57 Battle memento
59 Lemon and lime additives
60 Rose or Sampras
61 River at Caen
62 Former Russian ruler
65 Shoe part

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

D	I	C	E		T	O	N	E	S		P	E	A	R
I	D	L	E		A	B	O	R	T		E	L	L	A
G	O	O	S	E	B	E	R	R	Y	E	D	A	M	S
S	P	E	L	L	S		S	L	A	V	E	R	S
			A	V	I				T	I	C	E
L	A	S	T	E	D		L	A	Z	E		B	E	D
A	N	T	E	S			A	P	E		E	L	I
T	O	R	N		A	I	D	E	D		B	R	A	N
I	D	A		A	S	T	E	R		C	A	R	T	E
N	E	W		U	P	O	N		I	O	U
P	R	E	L	O	A	D		S	U	M	M	I	T
E	A	R	L		L	O	G	A	N	D	E	R	R	T
A	G	R	A		T	R	E	A	D		N	E	E	D
K	E	Y	S		S	P	E	C	S		U	S	E	S

11/30/93

TODAY'S STAFF

Night Editor ..... Christina Rothwell
Copy Editor ..... John Winchell
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Michele Bakis
Production ..... Susan Nasberg, Sean Ramsey

MENU

LUNCH
Bagel Dog
Chicken Cutlet
BASICS LUNCH
Flat Bread Sandwich
Chicken Cutlet

DINNER
Pineapple Ham Steak
Chicken Fajitas
BASICS DINNER
Rice and Beans
Tofu Fajitas

■ Nash

continued from page 12

"She is a phenomenal athlete, very raw with a ton of potential," Kenny said. "She is one of those people where it pays off being in a gym from [morning to night] to find a diamond in the rough."

Her time payed off, with huge results from the freshman, who led the team in kills in 11 matches and had three 20-kill performances. She also managed to be second in assists with 32 and averaged 3.19 kills per game.

While the numbers are impressive, there is more to her game, although according to Kenny, she might not be a team leader because "she leads by example."

Nash decided to attend UMass in part because of the excitement generated by Kenny and the new program.

"[I came ....] Because she [Kenny] had been recruiting me since February and was really interested," Nash said. "She brought me on two recruiting trips and told my parents that I'd get a good education."

Nash expressed pleasure in her choice to attend UMass, and that she had "great opportunities" here. She said she felt a little homesick, missing her parents Arthur and Ida Nash and her twin sister Shannon. Nash said she especially missed competing with her sister as teammates during high school.

"I'm not used to being away from my sister," Nash said.

Shannon Nash is also an athlete and plays basketball at the collegiate level.

"Dionne comes from a great family," Kenny said. "They deserve a lot of respect for bringing her up positively."

From California's Reebok High Desert Club Volleyball all the way to Amherst was just another step for Nash, who is taking everything in stride. With a debut performance that garnished first team all-conference, who knows what is possible?

If you ask her about her performance, she'll tell you, "I'm still learning." As for the team, however, "I'm so excited. We're bringing in new recruits. We can be

■ hockey

continued from page 12

goalies thus far, but Trinity Coach John Dunham will start Jason Pinto in net.

Captain Jaynen Rissling leads the Minutemen with 14 points. Rissling, a defenseman, has five goals and nine assists.

Center Mike Evans leads the squad with eight goals and has two assists for 10 points. The line of Blair Manning (four goals, six assists), Blair Wagar (five goals, five assists) and Rob Bonneau (seven goals, three assists) each have 10 points.

In goal, Dave Kilduff has a 2.7 goals against average, while Rich Moriarty has a 1.9 gaa. Moriarty's save percentage is 93.5, while Kilduff has stopped 87.9 percent. Moriarty will probably start.

■ men's hoop

continued from page 12

"This stretch is what makes good teams. We could have easily come back 2-3," Flint said.

Massachusetts goes on the road for five of its next seven contests, beginning this Saturday at St. Bonaventure.

"The schedule may help us get these guys focused. They [opponents] will be emotionally ready for us," Calipari said. "If we're not, if we lose the battle of passion, emotion, enthusiasm, we'll be a .500 team."

Associated Press Top 25

		RECORD	PREV
1	Kentucky	1-0	2
2	Arkansas	0-0	3
3	Kansas	4-0	6
4	North Carolina	3-1	1
5	Michigan	1-0	5
6	Duke	1-0	4
7	Temple	0-0	8
8	Oklahoma St.	2-0	10
9	Massachusetts	4-1	18
10	UCLA	1-0	14
11	Louisville	0-1	7
12	Virginia	0-0	16
13	California	1-1	12
14	Purdue	3-0	21
15	Minnesota	2-2	9
16	Illinois	0-0	17
17	Georgia Tech	0-1	13
18	Syracuse	1-0	20
19	Arizona	0-0	19
20	Vanderbilt	1-0	24
21	Indiana	0-1	11
22	George Washington	0-0	23
23	Cincinnati	1-1	22
24	Wisconsin	1-0	25
25	Georgetown	1-1	15

AMHERST (AP) — The season had just begun, but it was a transformed Massachusetts basketball team that returned home Monday.

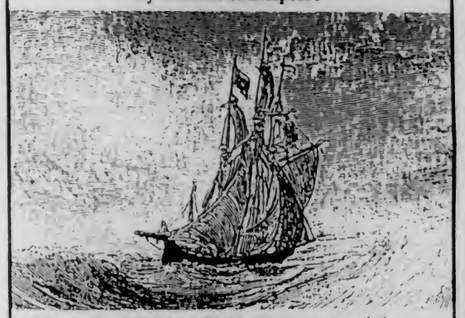
The Minutemen left Amherst for the final rounds of the preseason NIT tournament last week as a respected but young team, having lost last season's top three scorers.



But Massachusetts returned a team that proved it can play with — and even above — the likes of North Carolina, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The play helped the Minutemen jump from No. 18 to No. 9 in the Associated Press' Top 25 released last night. It is the highest ranking ever for Massachusetts, which finished at No. 14 last season.

"We proved we belong there with the big boys, the best in the country," said senior Matt Promise, a fan striding through the Campus Center in a UMass basketball cap. "We work hard, and we've earned the right to be there. We've got some national respect."

The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater presents

PERICLES
Prince of Tyre
by William Shakespeare

December 2-4 and 8-11 • 8:00 pm, Rand Theater
Tickets: Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511

Have You Spoken to Your Attorney?

FREE professional legal assistance for fee-paying UMass/Amherst students!
Legal Services
922 Campus Center
545-1995
Call Today
for an appointment

Classifieds

- 20¢ per day per word for students
- Ads must be placed 2 days in advance/cash only
- 113 Campus Center
- Monday through Thursday 8:30-3:30 Friday 8:30-2:30

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Entrepreneurs College Pro Painters will be running an information session on Wednesday in CC room 802. Come in and find out about us.

Financial Aid For College No GPA or income restrictions Free recorded message gives details 508-543-5640

International Students Association presents a social on Nov 30 at 5:30 in the Campus Center For more info call Jill 6-2820

International Students Association presents a Dance Party on Dec. 4 from 9 pm to 1 am in the Bluewall First 25 people FREE $3.00 charge

STUDENTS Call anywhere in US, Anytime, as low as $2.59 for 1 HOUR call! 412-467-7476

UPC General Committee Meeting tonight, 11:30 at 6 pm in CC 101. Everyone is welcome. UPC-Concert Production

DELICIOUS DELIVERIES

Announcing the debut of our cookie card. Two different versions 1) The Cookie Lovers Club Card cost $35 gives you your next TEN Dozen free 2) The Miser Card Cost $5 gives you $1 off each of your next ten dozen (Ben & Jerry's may be sub'd) Call 549-MIX4 and order your card NOW Sun Thur 7-1 am Fri & Sat 7-2 am The C.M.

FOR RENT

Amherst Belchertown line 3 or 4 bedrooms on bus route Oil heat fireplace 586-4270

Intersession Housing Wanted We have students who want to sublet housing over intersession. Please register your room, house, or apartment with us at CSHRC (Formerly OCHO) M-F 10 am-4pm 545-0865 428 Student Union

1 BR Available in 3 BR apt Mill Valley Estates January thru May $275/mo includes heat and hot H2O Mike 253-5331

1BR available in Uptown Apartment Available immediately Low rent-please contact Kristen at 508-829-5041 (May call collect)

One bedroom available in Mill Valley, beginning January 1. Looking for two males to share one bedroom. Call 253-4789

One Bedroom Apt. in Puffton beg Jan or Feb 549-7290

Room is available in the Jewish Living Community for Intersession and Spring semester please contact Chelsea at 549-1710

Room For Rent Quiet, closest to campus F-M nonsmoker 172.50/mo. + 1/4 utilities Call Janis at 549-8778

FOUND

Found at Date Party red tie w/green Christmas trees. Call Shannon to claim

FOR SALE

Kenwood 6+1 CD Player Brand new $210 Cell Bowers 253-9888

Moutain Bike for Sale Mongoose $150 or best offer Call Lisa 549-5111

Ski equipment Rossignol 7G Sz 200 Atomic 733 SL Sz 195 K2 sz 172 Boots Sz 7, 8.9 Best Offer Call Kim 256-8162

Skis - Fischer 200 mm bindings. Look. Never used or mounted 549-8180

HELP WANTED

AA Cruise and Travel jobs earn $2500/mo and travel the world free Caribbean, Europe, Hawaii, Asia. Cruise line now hiring for busy holiday Spring and Summer seasons. Guaranteed Employment! Call 919-929-4398 ext. 114.

ATT Excellent income for home assembly work info 1-504-646-1700 Dept MA-1307

Beach Spring Break Promoter Small or larger groups Yours free discounted or cash Call CMI 1-800-423-5264

Cruise Ships Now Hiring Earn up to $2000+/month working on cruise ships or land tour companies. World travel. Summer and full time employment available. No experience necessary. For more information call 1-206-634-0468 ext. C5001

Free Trips and Cash Call us and find out how hundreds of students are already earning free trips and lots of cash with America's #1 Spring Break company! Choose from Jamaica, Panama, Daytona or Padre! Call Now! Take a Break Student Travel 800-328-SAVE or 617-424-8222

Free Trips and Money!!! Individuals and student organizations wanted to promote the hottest Spring Break destinations. Call the nation's leader, Inter Campus Programs 1-800-327-6013

GREEKS AND CLUBS

RAISE UP TO $1000 IN JUST 1 WEEK! For your fraternity, sorority or club Plus $1000 for yourself! And a FREE T-SHIRT just for calling 1-800-932-0528 ext. 75

International Employment Make up to $2000 - $4000+/mo. teaching basic English in Japan, Taiwan and S. Korea. No teaching background or Asian languages required. For info call 206-632-1146 ext. J5001

Need cash over brass? Work for Clean Water Action's outreach staff fighting for tougher pollution laws and expanded recycling. Flexible hours for students $100-300 per week. Call Dan at 584-9830. Activists Wanted.

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions, great benefits. Call 1-800-436-4365 ext. p-3306

INSTRUCTION

Spanish Tutor 584-4435

MARY MARY MARY

Pepperoni head what a happy 21 I wish you!!!!! Just think NO MORE VIRGINIA! Love Your former, but not forgotten roomie

MUSICIANS

Guitar Lessons Beginner-Advanced Lessons may be taken for course credit 256-6848

Talking Drum $75 or B.O. Bob 253-3969

PERSONALS

Ambers Rogers Happy Birthday Lete Guess Who

Happy 21st Birthday Lori Love Andy, Brantley, Jonathon and Steven

Kelly, My moped awaits you! Little Bob

ROOMMATE WANTED

Female Roomate wanted in Puffton Village. 190/mo 549-1816

Oh What Paradise!!! Mill Valley and you already know IT'S the BEST! Free heat and hot water, huge bedroom with your own bathroom. We're on search of two undergrad males or females. Call Eric at 253-4789. Hurry, hurry, hurry!!!

Roomate for two bedroom apt. Main Street. Mark Erin 253-9744

SERVICES

Miraclas Tremendous energy with weight loss! 100 % guaranteed. All HERBAL and Affordable. 413-467-7476

Pregnant? Need Help? Call Birthright For free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Pregnant? Need a pregnancy test, information or support? Call for free and confidential services. ALTERNATIVES 245 Main St Ivham 586-3000 or Grnfld 774-6010

Term Paper Help Factfinder Custom Library Research 549-0312

$$$Money for College$$$ $135 Million unclaimed! Our Scholarship Matching Service is guaranteed! FREE information packet. 24 hour recorded message (803)434-8015 ext. 500

TRAVEL

Daytona Beach - Spring Break First class, beachfront hotel directly on the beach; parties, pool deck, fun, night clubs, sunshine. Do not miss this trip!!! Includes roundtrip motorcoach trans. with on campus pick up and drop off, only $239.00 quad occp; depart 3/18/94 Return 3/27/94 Call for free brochure 1-800-9-Daytona M-F, 8-8 See ya at the beach!

Scuba Dive Key Largo Dec 28-Jan 3 Earn 2 credits Meeting 12/3/93 at 7pm in room 255 Herter Project Deep 1-800-782-0977

TYPING/WORD PROC.

Sick of typing? Fast, accurate wordprocessing Free laserprinting Call Becca 586-1989

WANTED

Looking to Adopt Happily married Catholic couple wishes to adopt infant. Will provide secure and loving home. Call Jewish Family Service/Springfield at 1-800-942-3947 and ask about Andy and Deb

Sports

Water polo defends Eastern pride at NCAAs

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

In collegiate water polo, it's said to be a West coast thing. The teams, hail from west of the Mississippi, earned Top 5 billings in the polls week after week.

Then along comes an East coast squad named Massachusetts. Could this team even play with these gods of the water polo world? It wasn't even discussed if they could actually win, for it was a given that the East was inferior.

Much like the CBA to the NBA. The World League to the NFL. The minors leagues to the major leagues.

For the University of Massachusetts water polo team, the task at the NCAAs this past weekend in Long Beach, Calif., was to defend the honor and pride of the East.

And they did just that.

After playing three-time defending champion California in its first round match, UMass was given a sense of what it takes to play at the pinnacle level of competition, falling 17-4. That loss immediately put the Minutemen in the losers bracket.

The next opponent was UC-San Diego, another West coast entry (six out of the eight teams at the NCAAs were from the West).

A gritty effort, combined with heart, emotion and determination equaled a 15-13 UMass triumph. It was senior Tasan Engin, the two-meter man who delivered all year for Coach Russ Yarworth, that was the key man.

Marked up against the best two-meter man in the nation, Engin, allowing just five goals, effectively kept him in check. And, while Engin was providing the stalwart defense, Luis Limardo stepped up on offense, netting five goals.

The win marked the first time ever that a team from the East has beaten a team from the West in NCAA play.

"We made some NCAA history," Yarworth said. "We got some good recognition and opened a lot of eyes. I was thrilled."

The Minutemen then met up with Pacific to decide fifth place. Pacific drubbed UMass earlier this year, but found Sunday's game to be a much tougher contest. Nonetheless, UMass fell to the team Yarowrth calls "a legitimate Top 5 power".

"It was a great experience," Yarworth said. "We proved that we're a Top 10 in the country team. That's what we wanted to do when we went out there."

Yarworth points to hard work, talent and coaching as factors, leading the team to the best season at UMass.

"Water polo is an emotional game, a tough sport," he said. "You have to push the kids, and they came up big. They're big game players."

Yarworth also credits Athletic Director Bob Marcum for the super season.

"He gave us a lot of support and a budget that we never had before," Yarworth said. "That made a huge difference."

Battle-tested Massachusetts welcomes time off

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

After getting manhandled in the second round of the NCAA Tournament last season by Atlantic Coast Conference power Virginia, the Massachusetts men's basketball team set one plan for the off-season: to increase its training regiments over the summer so the Minutemen could battle with physical teams in the paint.

Coach John Calipari felt his team's strength and conditioning was far inferior to that of squads like Virginia, Florida State, North Carolina and Oklahoma.

Well, the plan has payed early dividends this season, with the much quicker and stronger Minutemen already picking up Carolina and Oklahoma victories, lifting them to the No. 9 ranking in the country.

Massachusetts played three games in five days this past week and came away with two huge wins in tight contests. The 91-86 overtime victory over North Carolina, the biggest in the program's history, was both physically and emotionally draining. The team couldn't stop there; UMass practiced on Thanksgiving Day — no rest yet. Preparation was needed for Friday night's tilt with then No. 6 Kansas for the NIT Championship.

It was apparent in the opening minutes that the Minutemen and the Jayhawks were exhausted, but the game went on. In the end, the Kansas depth won out, 86-75. Junior Lou Roe scored 25 points on guts alone, following up his 28-point, 14-rebound performance against the Tar Heels. During one time-out in the second half, Roe couldn't get up off the bench without a visible struggle and let those who were in the game sit.

In the Massachusetts locker room after the contest, the Minutemen sat slumped in their chairs, slowly getting changed and preparing for the next step in their coming of age — a flight to Norman, Okla., out of New York's LaGuardia Airport the next morning to face Oklahoma. The same Sooners who spent the last week watching and getting ready for UMass.

"We were exhausted coming into the game but we have no excuses [for losing to the Jayhawks]. You have to play tired. I give them credit, by the end of the game [Kansas], they wore us down," said Massachusetts Assistant Coach James "Bruiser" Flint last Friday night before departing for Oklahoma.

Instead of folding against the Sooners, Massachusetts came out focused and played up-and-down with Oklahoma, until junior guard Mike Williams capped the week that was with a double-clutch lay-up with one second left, giving the Minutemen an 84-83 win over another team with a big frontline.

Turn to MEN'S HOOP, page 11

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN
Sophomore Donta Bright, seen here against Towson State, got his first collegiate start yesterday in the win over Oklahoma and scored a career high of 28 points.

Nash's debut a hit for volleyball

By DAVID GLEESON
Collegian Staff

University of Massachusetts volleyball returned a team to collegiate competition for the first time in three years this season, and the results were more than could be expected. The new team composed of eight women, most who were freshmen, posted a 17-14 record overall and 6-10 in the Atlantic-10. One among many reasons for their success as a new program was the spectacular play of freshman Dionne Nash.

Nash was recently voted a first team all-conference selection; she was one of two freshmen among the six women to receive this honor.

Nash, who is no stranger to such honors, has been a competitive athlete for many years. When she attended Quartz Hill High School in California, she lettered in volleyball, basketball and track.

While involved in high school sports, she compiled numerous honors, such as the Golden League Most Valuable Player and All-CIF Soutthern Section in volleyball. She was the second leading scorer in the 1993 basketball all-star game at Pierce College and won the league championship in the 300-yard hurdles.

One problem common among high school athletes is making the transition to collegiate competition.

"It was a big change," Nash said. "It was hard to get adjusted at first."

She made the change with all the class of a premier athlete, though. After a few nervous games, she settled down and posted the numbers that would make her an all-conference player and would help her team win games.

Nash ended the season leading the team with a total of 371 kills with a .198 hitting percentage from her position as right front. She also had 303 digs from her tough position at middle back. Along with a jump serve that produced 43 service aces for her, she was able to affect the game in every aspect.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN
Dionne Nash of the Massachusetts volleyball team was named First Team All-Atlantic 10 for her spectacular play this season. She led the Minutewomen to a 17-14 record.

Offensively she could control games with her hitting power, her defensive prowess and speed allowed her a chance to dig every ball. And, her serve could pick up quick points and change the momentum of the game.

UMass Coach Bonnie Kenny had been recruiting Nash for months in anticipation of getting a "blue-chip player."

Turn to NASH, page 11

Hockey looks to avoid loss against Trinity

By MICHAEL MORRISSEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts hockey team peaked Saturday night against Division I powerhouse St. Lawrence, when they came back and nearly beat the top 10 team at its home rink in Canton, N.Y.

Tonight, the Minutemen (6-2) return to the William D. Mullins Center to face Trinity College, a Division III school from Hartford, Conn., which has played only three games thus far.

In case you haven't guessed, there's a huge talent drop-off from Canton to Hartford.

"We're happy with the effort we gave Saturday night, but we have to guard against resting on our laurels," center Blair Manning said.

"Counting St. Lawrence, we have four games in seven days," Coach Joe Mallen said. "We're trying to start the heart of the schedule before finals period."

Forward Craig Muse leads Trinity (1-2) with four goals and is the only player, who has netted more than one. Todd Mills has one goal and two assists for the team.

Of the three games Trinity has played, the win came against Sacred Heart and the losses were to AIC and UConn. The team has rotated its three

Turn to HOCKEY, page 11

Students urged to attend trustees meeting today--C.C. 163 at 9:15 a.m.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday
37° December 1, 1993
Volume CIII Issue 55

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Trustees vote to consider litigation issue

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

A committee of the Board of Trustees met and passed an initiative to formally vote on the issue of litigation rights for the Legal Services Office before a packed room of students, media, Amherst residents and attorneys. Today, the full board will vote on the outcome of litigation rights for LSO in the Campus Center rm. 163 at 9:15 a.m..

The announcement of the decision came to thunderous cheers and applause by students after debate and discussion by Amherst landlords and real estate owners.

Richard Gold, president of the Pioneer Valley Housing Association, expressed his displeasure if litigation rights are restored.

"The legal services is anti-landlord and is teaching students their rights under the law," said Gold in his statement to the trustees. "They are not a problem solving organization and never want to mediate."

Gold later said that it would cost him more to do business with his tenants if he is constantly in court and needs to pay legal fees. He also said lawyers would be bringing frivolous cases to court and believes property value would decrease.

Charles DiMare, director of LSO, expressed enthusiasm over the decision.

"I am very pleased," said DiMare. "It is a long time overdue and develops a new beginning with the relationships of the LSO and the administration."

DiMare also said litigation rights for landlord and tenant disputes are a right for a student. He said he believes in mediation and that cases landlords believed to be frivolous should be directed to him or to the Board of Bar Overseers.

If the initiative passes before the board, it would restore the authority of the LSO to represent students in litigation when their rights are violated. Litigation by LSO would occur in most cases in landlord/tenant disputes, civil rights, consumer and family law.

The history of litigation rights all stem from the "Yvette Henry" case, which DiMare litigated and settled in 1986. Henry sued the University for $13 million in 1984 for violation of her rights, false arrest and imprisonment, illegal search and seizure of her property, inva-

Turn to LITIGATION, page 2

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN
Board of Trustees executive meeting.

Brady bill finally signed by Clinton

By CAROLYN SKORNECK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With a declaration that it was "step one in taking our streets back," President Clinton today signed into law the long-fought Brady handgun control bill.

The law requires a five-day waiting period and background check on handgun buyers and will take effect in 90 days.

"America won this battle," Clinton told 200 people in the East Room of the White House. "Americans are finally fed up with violence that cuts down another citizen with gunfire every 20 minutes. We know that this bill will make a difference."

Clinton emotionally recounted an incident in Arkansas where a friend of his sold a gun to a man just released from a mental institution. The man then shot and killed six people.

"Don't tell me this bill won't make a difference," he said. "It is not true."

The bill's namesake, former White House Press Secretary James Brady, said the bill would bring "the end of unchecked madness and the commencement of a heartfelt crusade for a safer and a saner country."

Severely wounded in the 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan, Brady and his wife, Sarah, have promoted gun control since the mid-1980s.

"Twelve years ago, my life was changed forever by a disturbed young man with a gun," Brady said. "Until that time, I had not thought about gun control or the need for gun control. Maybe if I had done so, I wouldn't be stuck with these damn wheels."

Brady has used a wheelchair since the shooting.

Clinton said signing the bill "will be step one in taking our streets back, taking our children back, reclaiming our families and our future."

He thumped the podium as he insisted the Brady bill and other gun control laws will not hurt hunters.

"We have taken this important part of life for millions of Americans and turned it into an instrument of maintaining madness. It is crazy," said Clinton, the former governor of Arkansas, where hunting is most popular.

"Would I let anybody change that life of America? Not on your life," he said.

Attorney General Janet Reno called the Bradys "an example for all Americans that we can make a difference—that one person, that one family can make a difference in violence in America."

Unreported rapes not counted

Fear of victims keeps them from reporting assaults

By VANESSA ADELMAN
and KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the second article in a three-part series examining rape on the UMass-Amherst campus.

The University of Massachusetts had nine reported rapes for the school year 1991-1992. While the number may seem high, campus police said the number should be higher given the definition of rape.

"I hate to think how many are not reported," said Detective Joanne O'Connor of the UMass police force, "considering the definition of rape and the thousands of students here."

Rape, according to O'Connor, is "penetration of any orifice with any object against one's will through force or the threat of force."

Sage Freechild, of the Everywoman's Center (EWC), said there are barriers preventing women from reporting rape. Intimately tied with the barriers is Freechild's belief of the motivations of rape.

"Rape is about a power struggle," she said. "It has to do with putting women in their place."

The power struggle, according to Freechild, becomes a barrier for reporting rape as women are made to feel inferior and responsible for their rape.

"The general public attitude is a deterrent," she said, "because it does not take women's claims seriously."

Victims are afraid to report rape because they fear what society's reaction will be, according to Freechild, even though she said rape is not a woman's fault.

"We live in a culture where women are told to blame themselves for rape," she said.

O'Connor said a victim is not to blame for a rape, but they need to take the responsibility to stop a rapist.

"Men don't just rape once," she said. "They rape repeatedly until stopped."

A problem also arises when a victim is involved in some illegal activity, such as drug use or a minor under the influence of alcohol, according to Freechild.

She said women may be frightened to report a rape if they were drunk or had used an illegal drug because they think they may be charged with breaking the law.

"This would be adding insult to injury," O'Connor said. "A victim would not be charged."

Freechild said victims may be intimidated by the legal system and fail to report the crime. She mentioned obtaining medical evidence could take over four hours in a hospital.

Also, she said the court system is difficult to understand and "scary" to people who do not use it regularly.

For all the barriers Freechild discussed, she said the EWC offers a support system to victims so they do not go the process alone.

"The level of support a woman feels," she said, "makes the difference in reporting a crime."

Rape Facts

- Rape is punishable in Massachusetts by up to 20 years in a state prison.
- In over 60% of cases, the victim knew the rapist.
- 93% of all rapes involved a victim and a rapist of the same race.
- Only 3% of rapists are psychotic.
- The national average for false reportings of rape is 2%.
- A woman is raped in the United States every three minutes.

Information provided by the Everywoman's Center's Advisory Committee Against Sexual Assault

Violence erupts in Gaza Strip

By KARIN LAUB
Associated Press

KHAN YUNIS, Occupied Gaza Strip — Palestinians hurled rocks and burned tires Tuesday to protest the army's attacks on PLO gunmen and the lack of progress in peace talks with Israel. Soldiers answered with gunfire, wounding 65 Palestinians.

It was the bloodiest day of street battles since the Israel-PLO accord was signed Sept. 13.

Hundreds of makeshift barriers blocked roads to enforce a three-day general strike called by the Palestine Liberation Organization. Clouds of smoke from burning rubber rose over the Gaza Strip.

The violence reflected Palestinians' growing frustration over the lack of change and threatened to complicate negotiations on the handover of Gaza and Jericho on the West Bank scheduled to start Dec. 13.

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilnai, the Gaza Strip military commander, met with five PLO leaders in Gaza to discuss a cease-fire, and a top aide to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin arrived in Tunis for talks with PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

In Gaza, the PLO leaders demanded that the army stop shooting Palestinians, stop hunting members of the Fatah Hawks, release jailed Hawks and reduce its presence in Gaza. The Hawks are the military wing of Arafat's Fatah faction.

The Massachusetts Daily
COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published each weekday during the calendar semester with a circulation of 19,000. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts and operates solely on revenues generated from advertising sales. Founded in 1890, the Collegian has been published daily since 1967.

Editor in Chief ..... Michelle Bayliss

Newsroom
545-0719

Managing Editor ..... Darienne Hosley
Arts & Living Editor ..... Emily A. Marino
Black Affairs Editor ..... Michele D. Monteiro
Editorial/Opinion Editor ..... E.C. Thomas
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor ..... Deborah White
Jewish Affairs Editor ..... Stephanie Eisenberg
Multicultural Affairs Editor ..... Felicia Cousins
News Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Photography Editor ..... Aram Comjean
Sports Editor ..... Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Third World Affairs Editor ..... Juan J. Chacon Quiros
Women's Issues Editor ..... Joy Collins

Business Office
545-3500

Business Manager ..... Dana Grossman
Advertising Manager ..... Danielle Yaniro
Finance Manager ..... Stephanie Shore
Circulation Manager ..... Craig Marlow
Subscriptions Manager ..... Cristina Blanco

Graphics
545-1864

Production Manager ..... Lisa Jezowski
Editorial Production Manager ..... Mike Carvalho
Advertising Production Managers ..... Jim Bruneau, Caitlin Olson

Professional Staff

Business ..... Maureen Majerowski, Marty Pappas
Production ..... Blake Phillips

113 Campus Center • Amherst, MA • 01003
Phone: (413) 545-3500
Fax: (413) 545-1592

"Gimme a job... Please?"
You'll have to do better than that.
Offer them experience. Write for the Collegian.
113 Campus Center • 545-0719

Northhampton Bowl
College Night

Show your college I.D and get 3 games for $5.00
• 8:30 p.m.-Close
584-4830

CONTACT LENS CARE
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
•••
Offering a broad array of contact lenses with a large in house inventory.
•••
The new daily wear disposable and frequent replacement contact lenses are now available.
•••
All fittings are done by our eye doctors with experience in contact lens care and solving contact lens problems.
•••
Emphasis is placed on your ocular health and professional service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and convenient on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
EASY PARKING AND GREAT PRICES
WITH THIS AD
Additional 10% off any one item
We Sell: Art and Draft Supplies
Posters
Portfolios
Special Orders Encouraged
HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8
Saturday 9:30-5:30
Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01003
413-253-5592

From The Hatch
Something New Just For You!

Miller Genuine Draft 12oz. bottle - .75¢
60oz Beer Pitures - $2.00
Wine Coolers while they last $1.50

THE 25 YEARS PUB
CELEBRATES 1968 • 1993 IN AMHERST
15 EAST PLEASANT STREET

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, December 1

Demonstration — Students from area and high schools will raise awareness about HIV and AIDS in the community at 5 p.m. in Northampton Center. The event is sponsored by the Student World AIDS Day Coalition.

Meeting — The University Community Service Council will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 174-176.

Play — If You Cough While in a Metal Box, a performance piece by Collin Chace, will begin at 8 p.m. in Chapin Auditorium at Mount Holyoke College. The event is free and open to the public.

Meeting — The Undergraduate Student Senate will meet at 7 p.m. in Campus Center Room 163. The meeting is open to the public.

Thursday, December 2

Craft fair — The Annual Holiday Craft Fair will be held from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on the Campus Center Concourse.

Meeting — Gerald Volpe will meet with students interested in spending the academic year in Paris will meet at 1 p.m. in Campus Center Room 903.

Friday, December 3

Services — Shabbat services led by Julius Lester will begin at 7 p.m. in the Hillel House.

Exhibit — An exhibit of holiday floral decorations will be shown from 11:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. in French Hall Room 105. Titled "Home for the Holidays," the exhibit features decorations and arrangements by floral design students.

Craft fair — The Annual Holiday Craft Fair will be held from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. on the Campus Center Concourse.

Upcoming

Bus trip — Commuter Area Government is sponsoring a bus trip to New York City Dec. 11. Tickets are $20, and can be purchased at the Commuter Services and Housing Resource Center.

litigation

continued from page 1

sion of privacy, defamation, negligence, illegal suspension, eviction, interrogation and termination of employment.

In 1983 there was a series of fires set in residence halls across campus. The University sought the responsible offender but had no success and after wide concern by parents and legislators, the Federal Bureau of Investigation was called in.

The FBI produced a "racially-tainted" psychological profile of the arsonist and state police arrested Henry, charged her with arson and the University suspended her.

All charges were dropped but she was fired from her position as a resident assistant, was a victim of ridicule and false statements that were given to the press by the chancellor. The case was settled for a undisclosed amount.

After national media attention and great embarrassment to the University, the trustees voted to prohibit litigation against the University by LSO. Later that year they voted to remove all litigation rights by LSO and for the past 19 years students have been paying for a service they cannot use.

Local News

Williams introduced to trustees

New administrator gets acquainted with campus

By KRISTIN ST. JOHN
Collegian Staff

"She can dance with the giants," was the phrase University of Massachusetts Chancellor David Scott used to describe Dr. Marcellette Williams as he formally introduced her to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees at yesterday's meeting.

Williams was hired by Chancelior Scott as the new Deputy Chancellor for the Amherst campus. Williams worked with Scott at Michigan State University while he was provost and she was executive assistant to the president.

Some of Williams' responsibilities will include playing a major role in linking all of the vice-chancellor offices, coordinating the budget of the chancellor's office and serving as a liaison for the chancellor with the president's office and the four other campuses.

Scott had nothing but praise while speaking about Williams. He said she has a sense of community, and was "truly an outstanding administrator, scholar and educator."

Williams expressed her excitement about being on the Amherst campus and having the opportunity to meet people who have made her feel better about being here. She said she was impressed with the amount of students who had shown up for the Trustees' meeting.

"You're trying to be sure that we're mindful of the fact that we have responsibilities," Williams said. "We have responsibility....to make sure that the republic is sound."

When Williams started out to be an administrator, she said many people who knew how much she liked teaching did not expect her to last for long. She said what she loved about teaching was watching students realize dreams they never knew they had and trying to provide the environment they needed to do that.

ANDRÉ KEHN / COLLEGIAN
Chancellor David K. Scott with Marcellette Williams.

"With administration I should be abie to do the same thing," said Williams, who feels that same energy with the students on this campus.

Her husband, Keith Williams, will also be joining the administration as associate vice chancellor for University Advancement. Both will be official employees starting January 17, 1994, when the UMass President Michael Hooker will lift the system-wide hiring freeze.

Students cope with stressors

By JOY COLLINS
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the second in a two-part series on stress management.

Stress has a bad reputation that it doesn't deserve, according to a health educator at University Health Services.

"Stress is a perception a person has about a stressor that they are unable to cope with," said Sally Damon, also an instructor for a public health course in the peer health education program.

"It is not good or bad, it's just a physical state. it is how you interpret it that makes it good or bad," she said.

Damon said the physical state of stress we experience at exam time is the same feeling that a runner experiences before a race and uses to win.

"You can use it to your advantage," she said.

"When I'm sitting in class and I feel stressed, that's when I know I'll get things done. I make a list and start doing it and drink a lot of herbal tea," said Marjorie Decker, a senior social thought and political economy major.

According to Damon, there are four basic steps to stress management. The first is to identify your stressors, then to identify what stress means to you or how you feel it. Third, you should look at stressors and decide which are changeable and which are not. Last, come up with coping strategies.

Kate Saab, a sophomore undecided on her major, said when she's stressed she "feels tired for no reason" and instead of doing work she "power-lounges excessively."

It is important to figure out what helps you cope with stress, Damon said. "Whatever helps you to calm down, sometimes you have to learn new things, like deep breathing or relaxation methods or how to confront people," she said.

Tim Daliesandro, a sophomore also undecided on a major, said when he's really stressed he takes walks. "I go out and take walks — I take a lot of walks, really, it works," he said.

"I go to the movies or go ice skating. I try to do something that takes your concentration, something that you can get absorbed in, but doesn't take up too much time," said Eileen Quigley, a senior communication disorders major.

Damon said it is important not to overuse caffeine during exam time. "Studies have shown that caffeine in low doses does improve cognitive fuctions but in high doses impairs them," she said. Caffeine and stress both raise adrenaline levels in the body; together they can make concentration very difficult, Damon said.

It is also important not to overuse alcohol if you need to retain information while studying, Damon said. "Intoxication impairs your memory for up to 72 hours after drinking, it also disrupts REM sleep so your sleep is not restful or restorative," she said.

For more information on stress management techniques contact the Health Education Division of the UHS, Center for Counseling and Academic Development or for particular concerns contact Mental Health Services.

UM student dies over break

Sean P. Harris.

ANDOVER — Sean P. Harris, artist and University of Massachusetts honor student, died Wednesday at his home. He was 18. He was a resident in Grayson Residence Hall.

Born in Winchester, Mass., he was a 1993 graduate of Andover High.

Harris was a four-year member of the cross country and track teams at Andover High and enjoyed competing in Andover's Feaster Five Road Race and North Andover's Fourth of July 10-K Road Race.

He was a member of the math team at Andover and was selected a National Merit semi-finalist at the high school.

His many hobbies included working on computers, painting, drawing and reading philosophical and science fiction books.

He also enjoyed gardening, skiing, fishing and playing basketball and volleyball. He loved listening to music and watching Monty Python movies.

His family said most important he loved to spend time with them and friends.

He was pursuing a double major in electrical engi-

Turn to STUDENT, page 4

Service plan will pay students

By CHRISTINA ROTHWELL
Collegian Staff

With President Clinton signing the National and Community Service Act of 1993 this fall, college students will be able to earn money next fall by serving their community full time for a maximum of two years, or they can work part time over a three year period, said Kadi Tierney, communications and public affairs associate for the Corporation for National and Community Service in Washington, D.C., which was recently established to manage AmeriCorps.

While serving the community, participants will earn a minimum wage stipend. After their community service, they will receive $4,725 to use for college or to pay loans.

Students, who will be working part time during their three years, must put in more than 900 hours of service, said Goodwin Liu, program officer for higher education at the Corporation for National and Community Service. Those who work full time for a maximum of two years must complete 1,700 hours. The federal government will also cover 85 percent of the participant's health care, and their local program will be expected to pay 15 percent, Tierney said.

Programs participating in AmeriCorps can increase the stipend they will pay students, but the corporation will not pay for more than 85 percent of one VISTA living allowance, Liu said. One VISTA living allowance is $7,400 a year. AmeriCorps will bring VISTA and Action under its direction. But Tierney said they will still have their autonomy, except they will now get additional funding from the National and Community Service Act of 1993.

"[The program] entails a significant commitment in time for the people, who could be in lucrative jobs," Liu said.

But the pay is too low to attract those who really need the college money, said Frank Barnes, the national network director of Campus Outreach Opportunity League. COOL, which has its headquarters at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, works with campus organizations across the nation to help them set up community service projects.

It will attract students from the middle and upper-middle classes because they will be abie to work for such iow wages, Barnes said. Yet it will be extremely difficult for the major wage earner in a family

Turn to SERVICE, page 4

The wheels on the bus go round & round

ANDREE KEHN / COLLEGIAN
Stephen Kipp, a UMass student, and Christa Longo, a Smith College student ride the PVTA from Northampton.

TRAVEL SMART!
FROM NEW YORK
One Way Roundtrip
LONDON
$140 $280
PARIS
$209 $418
AMSTERDAM
$195 $390
FRANKFURT
$209 $418
.....Roundtrip
TOKYO
$769
.....
Fares from over 75 US cities to all major destinations in Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Australia. Some tickets valid to one year. Most tickets allow changes. Eurailpasses issued on the spot. Customs-Immigration & departure taxes apply. Fares subject to change w/tice. Int'l student I.D. cards may be required.
PRISM TRAVEL
342 Madison Ave NY,NY 10173
800-272-9676
212-986-8420
In NYC

Potential
Six-Figure Income
OLDE Discount is looking for energetic people to start a career in the brokerage business. Requirements include:
College Degree
General Market Knowledge, and
Excellent Communication Skills
OLDE offers a 6 to 12 month extensive training program, competitive salary and commission structure as well as relocation possibilities.
Call Jay Berube for more information:
1 800 937-0606
or send a resume and cover letter to:
OLDE Discount Stockbrokers
751 Griswold Street
Detroit, MI 48226
OLDE
America's Full Service Discount Broker℠
Member NYSE & SIPC
An Equal Opportunity Employer student

continued from page 3

neering and physics.

His family said he will be eternally missed and forever loved by his parents, John and Patricia (Jordan) Harris; sisters, Kathleen and Erin; maternal grandmother, Lucy Jordan; paternal grandmother, Helen Harris; and many cousins, family members and friends.

The funeral mass was held Saturday at St. Augustine Church in Andover. Memorial contributions may be made to the Sean P. Harris Scholarship Fund, c/o Andover Bank, Main Street, Andover, Mass. 01810.

service

continued from page 3

who wants to use the program to go back to college, Barnes said.

"I would say some low amount of money for several years of service," Barnes said.

AmeriCorps plans to spend about $15,000 per participant, and include about 20,000 people in its first year. By the end of its third year, it plans to include 47,000 participants, and spend $705 million. At that time, AmeriCorps will have to appeal to Congress for more funding.

In Massachusetts, many service programs are planning to apply to become part of AmeriCorps. Since AmeriCorps will include people from all age groups, many different organizations plan to use the money for a variety of reasons.

City Year, which is a model for Clinton's national service program, is planning to apply to the state to be a part of AmeriCorps. With more funding, Eric Schwarz, the executive director of City Year in Boston, said he hopes there will be more summer programs.

J★RICH for the Holidays!

Photo by Jennifer Burdick, Pottras • Location: Hampshire YMCA
J★RICH
CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst • 253-2013
22 Masonic St. Northampton • 586-6336
Open 7 days • Thursday nights in Northampton

THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
Hours: MW/THURS 8-1 Sunday 1-30-1
Every Monday — GAY NIGHT! 21+ with DJ Steve • Draft Beer • No Cover Until 10pm
Every Thursday — UMASS NIGHT! No Cover w/UMASS ID • Great Drink Specials • Come enjoy our 7000 watts of High Energy Dance Music
Every Saturday — The Area's Biggest Dance Night. Come Party with 600 of your Closest Friends!! Come Early for Area/the Latest!! Cheap Drinks!!
Upcoming Events
Dec. 3 M+M Production 70's Party with a 90's Twist. Tickets available on campus transportation from the horseshoe
Dec. 10 Hip Hop Party Larger than Life Productions
• 18+ Always
• 3 Minutes from UMASS
• Call to book your team/organization's private party. We can hold 600 people in the club.
Book Your Christmas Party Now!!
Rt. 9 Hadley • 413-586-4463 • Ticketmaster

SKI
INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI WEEKS '94
PARTY IN THE SNOW!
$209
MT. ORFORD, CANADA
LOCATED ACROSS THE VERMONT BORDER
Sessions Include: BOLSON
5 DAY LIFT TICKET
• 40 SLOPES FOR ALL LEVELS
• 1000 FOOT VERTICAL DROP
5 NIGHTS LODGING, LUXURY CONDO
• FULLY EQUIPPED KITCHEN, FIREPLACE ETC.
5 DAYS & NIGHTS OF INTERCOLLEGIATE PARTIES, RACES & ACTIVITIES.
• NOTE: THE LEGAL AGE TO CONSUME ALCOHOL IS 18
JANUARY 29-JANUARY 5'94 & SPRINGBREAK '94
GROUP LEADER OPPORTUNITY. CALL FOR MORE INFORMATION.
1-800-999-SKI-9

Charlie's tavern since 1978
Tonight
MILLER NIGHT
from 9pm-midnight
RAFFLES, PRIZES, GIVEAWAYS
DRINK SPECIALS!!DRINK SPECIALS!!DRINK SPECIALS!!
Miller Genuine Draft Bottles — $1.50
Miller Genuine Draft Light Bottles — $1.95
Jumbo Jim Beam & Coke — $1.95
25¢ Pizza Slices OR 1/4 # Popcorn Shrimp for 99¢
Open 11 am-1 am 7 days a week•Kitchen open 'til midnight
1 Pray Street (Behind Old Fleet Bank), Amherst
Games room with 2 pool tables•4 TV's all on separate cable channels
Including our NEW 48 inch Big Screen TV•MC/VISA/AMEX Accepted•549-5403

CHANGES
FULL SERVICE SALON FOR MEN & WOMEN
Student Day Nov. 19th & Dec. 3rd
9:30am - 7:00pm
$15
"Walk-Ins Welcome"
586-2600
Located in Thorne's Market • Northampton

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
• On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Editorial/Opinion

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian unless otherwise noted.

Grateful for Certs, Michael Bolton ... and other things

Last Thursday, after yet another bloatful Thanksgiving dinner, I lay on a couch to let the gastro-intestinal acid-works do their thing. Suddenly it struck me just how much I have in my life to be thankful for. Emotion overwhelmed me, and I decided I would write a sweet, sensitive ode to this beautiful holiday.

With my soul vibrating like a wistful violin string and a grateful tear in my eye, I took a few moments to consider and write down some of the things that all American citizens should be thankful for. So velcro your hearts to your sleeves, folks, and come on along for this wonderful little list. You may want to bring a hanky...

1. Toilet paper. I don't think I need say more.
2. The hottest new babysitting manual: "FREE THIS WILLY, LITTLE BOY!: The Michael Jackson Method for Entertaining Children."
3. Clean, downy-fresh underwear.
4. New Squeezable Cheez-Whiz! That's right: Squeezable! Who says the Japanese are ahead of us?
5. The 300 or so former and present "Sports Illustrated" swimsuit models who now have their own calendars.
6. Certs breath mints, because they're the only mints with those funky, mysterious blue retsin speckles. Who cares if no one knows what "retsin" really is; it sparkles in the TV ads, and that's what really matters, right?
7. Lorena Bobbitt's amazing new Ginsu Institute of Tough-Love Marital Counseling...with eight FREE steak knives!
8. The passionate and soulful music of Michael Bolton. I mean, really, Michael may have posed the most important question of the '90s: "how can we be lovers if we can't be friends?"

MARK TYLER
WENHAM

9. Roseanne Arnold's new diet video: "EAT the Insanity!"
10. Beavis & Butthead: Two completely fictitious cartoon dunces that have caused such a blithering idiotic uproar in the American culture that even Congressmen are busy arguing about "Beaver & Buffcoat." I don't know whether to be scared or proud for this country, especially since "Beaver and Buffcoat" actually sounds better.
11. The phenomenal first collaboration between Stephen King and Danielle Steele: "I'm Dipping Your Still-beating Heart in A-1 Sauce, My Love."
12. The giant Bullwinkle balloon during the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Only in America will a 250-foot inflated cartoon moose balloon floating through the streets of New York come to symbolize a spiritual holiday celebrating the truly important things in life.
13. Our bladders. Just think about what hell life would be without a good, functioning, stretchable bladder. Especially during keg parties.
14. The short life and quick, wonderful death of Vanilla Ice's career. There is a God, after all. Now he's Hard-up and Unwanted Ice..."Broke, broke, Baby!"
15. The dream that keeps me going: Barney the Dinosaur meets Ralph the 18-wheeler. It's a sweet vision, folks: history's largest and happiest purple road-kill, and the many crows that would love him then.
16. Really, I don't think this list would be complete without mentioning Michael Bolton once more. Love IS a wonderful thing, friends. I get a little warm and mushy inside whenever I think about him. I hope you do, too.

Mark Tyler Wenham is a Collegian columnist.

Guns: too easy, too deadly

Over Thanksgiving weekend, I found my parents very receptive to my holiday wishes. I wanted something very simple: to keep my toes warm over the brutal Massachusetts winter. I wanted furry snow boots. You know, the kind with the hefty liner and water-proofed by their brain-tissue- looking soles.

We set Saturday as the time of voyage through Cape Cod's finer shoe retailers, but without luck. Eventually our spirits were thin as we rummaged through our next hunting shop. This was the first time the well-polished glass cases drew my eye.

COREY SNOW
PUCKETT

I sauntered over to the owner and found myself in the midst of a vast collection of pistols. Decorating the walls behind were the desert storm veteran and hunting weapon of choice, the M-16.

I began to think "I'm a clean cut, 20-year-old guy, with a valid Massachusetts driver's license. In less than 10 minutes, I could draw out the shiny MasterCard, aim my signature just right and fire out the door with a cute little box under my arm."

I realize that the reader is probably over 18 and, like me, is generally thought of as emotionally stable. I don't want to waste your time beating the dead horse of gun control, but all of a sudden this process seems just a little bit too easy. I mean, who hasn't had the urge to wreak havoc? It's a little bit scary.

When we turned 16, most of us took a comprehensive exam for our first deadly weapon, the automobile. We learned the rules of safe operation as we learned all applicable laws. Is it too much to ask that the same requirements be met by people purchasing an object designed to maim or kill? Maybe it's time to rethink the potential to immediately fulfill the right to bear arms. It's too easy, too fast and too deadly. Emotions may be temporary, but some accidents are forever.

Maybe we should think more seriously about the size and availability of such arsenals to the general public. Maybe it is more practical to ask the general public to think more seriously about the extent of their personal feelings and (hopefully) their peaceful resolution.

I wonder if people sat down, talked, and expressed their anger instead of resorting to violence, we might never hear about some misfortunes. It might be nice to sit down in front of the tube and not be bombarded by bloody bodies strewn across the roads; or for this weekend to run by without someone losing their life. It says a lot about our society that we keep the media flooded with material about handgun accidents and hunting victims.

The sun will shine brightly the day that gun peddlers are forced from their occupations by too much love in the world. I think we will see some real improvement once people stop reaching for the tools of violence and start reaching for one another. Let's stand together to stop young children as well as adult children from dealing with the forces that they do not respect. I'm tired of quick emotions and sudden death.

Corey Snow Puckett is a UMass student.

Suggestions for men to stop rape

I was glad to see Kelly Spang and Vanessa Adelman's article about rape and acquaintance rape [Collegian, Nov. 30] although I was once again saddened to hear of its prevalence on this campus.

"The bottom line is education," according to the interviewed officer, who went on to advise women to remove themselves from situations where they feel uncomfortable and to not wear spiked heels. While rape-prevention education is always good, I rarely see it accompanied by the same education towards men, and I'd like to share a few of my own suggestions for us here.

1. Respect and listen to women. We should take the time to find out what she wants in a situation, instead of having a goal in mind.

2. Stop objectifying women. Centerfolds, beer ads and most media images of women are sexist, degrading and very damaging. These images hurt the self-esteem of women by holding up impossible standards of beauty (that is also racist, classist and ageist, among other things). They make women objects for the pleasure of men, and it is easier to rape an object than a human. These images encourage rape and make it easier to justify, and we should take the pictures off our walls, dorm doors and out of our magazines.

3. Build real relationships with women and men. As men, we are conditioned to be isolated from each other, ourselves and all humans in the "I am a rock" tradition of hiding our feelings. What better cure for this than getting close to another human? Even though a woman might be very physically attractive, let's try finding out about her life instead of trying to get her to be sexual with us.

4. Stop abusing alcohol. Alcohol is never a justification for rape. I have found it easier to listen and be respectful of women I'm with if I haven't been putting away beer like it were water. We should not only avoid rapist behavior, but also situations where that kind of behavior is more likely to occur, beer bashes being one of them.

5. Set limits yourself. On a first date, go to lunch together. If you meet at a party and want to talk, suggest you go to a place other than her room, or let her suggest and take the initiative.

6. Stop sexist jokes. Many of these suggestions are aimed at heterosexual and bisexual men, but this and number two also apply to gay men. Like objectified images of women, sexist humor might not necessarily cause rape but I believe it does create a climate in which women are portrayed as objects and rape, and rape culture, is tolerated and forgiven easily. Let's stop telling them and let's stop them from being told.

7. Lean on men for support. Men make great friends, lovers, confidantes and provide great shoulders to cry on. I've found it a great contradiction to my isolation from other men to lean on them instead of women, as I've been trained to do. I have very close friends who are women, but some of them confess that it's a relief to not be depended on for all my emotional, nurturing and sexual needs.

There are national, local and hopefully a campus group of men working to stop rape and end sexism. Anyone interested, please feel free to contact me at 323-8665.

Ben Zeman
Belchertown

SGA fights for students' needs

Does the Student Government Association have a set agenda? No. Instead, the leadership of the SGA picks an issue that it believes is of primary importance to students. The leaders and senators within the SGA then pursue this issue with fervor, but not to the exclusion of other issues.

Other issues senators have been or are currently working on include: anti-Semitism, discrimination, President Clinton's National Service Plan and the campus-wide smoking ban.

Should the SGA try to demand or take political power away from the administration, trustees, or the state government? NO! The Student Government should not take political power, it should make its own. By lobbying for the issues it is fighting for and cooperating with other political leaders to attain the most gains for students.

Should the Student Government work toward making the University accessible to everyone? Yes! It is our duty as leaders and senators of the SGA to make this institution accessible to any academically qualified individual who wishes to enroll here, particularly since the cost of attending UMass has risen so drastically in past years. Many of us are forced to take out additional loans and work more hours to stay in school.

But the resources of the Student Government are limited as they are in any organization. Should we just drop the litigation rights issue we have worked so long on and are hopefully near the end of, to pick up this new issue of student accessibility to the University? No. The SGA must finish what it started and then move on to the next primary issue: accessibility to UMass. The fight for litigation is an important one, do not give up on it now. You may be the one in need of this service someday.

Scott Stathis, SGA Senator
Amherst

THIS IS A PAID ADVERTISMENT

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO LIVE IN A WORLD WITH HIV? ...UMass Students respond

...I still hear my friends tell me that they had unprotected sex. I want to wring their necks but instead I just preach. I wish every person would become more aware of AIDS and use precautions. I wish every person would learn now...

Our Days

Don't get too close.
Don't stand too far away
Don't be afraid.
Yet, never know if it'll all be ok
Work harder to understand.
Feel frustrated when you don't
Turn your back on what it all means.
That you won't
Be angry and sad because this is our world today
But, be strong and learn to live and cope with the present
Because, there is no going back in time
Life is funny that way
All kinds of twists and turns in our days.
Struggling, always struggling
To live in a world full of AIDS.

Respect Yourself
Protect Yourself

.....Having safer sex is not the only way to prevent getting HIV or AIDS-you also need to be monogamous and be sure you are practicing safer sex the right way. The University Health Services offers many programs on safer sex. Also you can get tested anonymously for HIV at no cost at UHS. It is time to face reality, even if it is scary. There are so many quick and simple ways to protect yourself, take advantage of being young and healthy.....(For free, anonymous confidential HIV testing, call UHS, 549-2671 ext. 126. The National AIDS Hotline is 1-800 342-AIDS.)

.....How do I feel to live in a world with HIV disease and AIDS? I feel scared, vulnerable, ignorant, blind. I feel I can't trust anyone, the people I can trust can't trust themselves. I feel I can't even trust myself. I hate to think that something beautiful, something that feels good, something that is so much fun, can be so deadly. I hate that every time I look at someone who I think is attractive, the first thing that I think of is "Is he clean?" and the second thing I think of is "Probably not". I don't think this way to be discriminatory, I think this way to keep myself alive. How do I feel about living in a world with HIV disease and AIDS? I think it sucks.....

NOT PEOPLE WITH AIDS

.....My initial reaction was to be afraid. I was petrified of the entire concept, including the victims. I now am more educated about the subject and my feelings have changed. I feel that with the correct amount of knowledge and willingness to learn about it that we can fight this.....

...I often think that one wrong decision and my life is severely threatened. I don't know about anyone else but I DO NOT want to DIE young. I have major plans I want to accomplish and I am not going to let some disease stop me. Don't get me wrong, I still want to date and have sex, but not casually. I mean is it really worth it? Everyone gets horny some of the time, but don't let that let you make a rash decision...

I've never tried drugs.
Let alone drugs with needles.
Sex...sex is great.
Sex is fun. When I go after it, I never think of sex as dangerous. When
I'm in the dark and I want it,
I mean it's going to happen,
I feel for a moment WAIT,
is it okay yet? Are you protected, am I okay to do this with you?
Damn it. What an inconvenience.
Protect you, protect me.
After you're gone I'll be alone. How did it used to be, like, the fifties? We'll never know now with AIDS is around. Who cares where it came from it's here, and is in the people we party with. My next hook up
(if I'm ever that lucky)
could be with someone who is HIV positive.
I wonder what life is like being HIV positive.
Who do you tell? Someone I've already been with could be HIV positive.
No joke. My never existent infallibility is gone now from even my smallest hopes.
This has nothing to do with my parents.
My friends can't hug this away.
It doesn't go away. The only way
I can; any of us can avoid such a fall, a disease that will seize your life and take control because you decided to let it slide
lust this once
is never let it just slip-EVER.
sex is beautiful and fun. It can be carefree and a special experience and I want to be able to explore and enjoy it with free will but I'm not going to let my life be limited by a second of thinking "oh, okay."
Who is going to be responsible if I'm not?
For the long run -
it's why I'm here at college...
I plan on seeing my way through safely.

.....Even living only a few decades back must have been wonderful. You could actually be with someone for a night without having to worry about how many people she had been with before she met you....

....Nothing is safe anymore. Everywhere we turn we have to look out for this and if we re not careful we might catch that.....

...My family was shocked in 1988 when my cousin died of AIDS. She was not gay or a drug user, she was just twelve years old. My cousin had contracted the disease through a blood transfusion she had during a operation. When this happened it made me more aware of how deadly AIDS is...

LOVE CAREFULLY

.....I do feel for anyone who has contracted the virus. I don't know anyone who has at this point in time, but in only a few years I am sure that some of the people that I am close to will be HIV positive. However, with a little luck and the continuing effort of some brilliant and talented scientists, research will continue to enlighten us and maybe soon we can find a cure.....

.....It doesn't care about races, colors, ages, sexes, religions, nationalities, sexual preferences, or classes. It cares about killing. It's not a white thing, it's not a female thing. It's not a gay thing, it's not a lesbian thing. It's just a human thing. I'm scared.....

....I think that people are taking sex for granted - think about how common one night stands are. Even if you don't believe it, there are people who will have sexual intercourse with someone they have only known for a weekend or even a night. I don't know what it takes for people to get it through their heads that anyone can get HIV or AIDS.....

WORLD AIDS DAY

...it is a time to express your feelings and a time to act.

DEC. 1, 1993

TONIGHT

Please join us for a candlelight walk. We'll meet on the steps of the Student Union at 6:30 pm. The walk will end at the Cape Cod Lounge with a closing ceremony. The A Cafellas and the UMass Gospel Choir will sing. There will be speakers and a slide show of the original Names Quilt. Please bring a candle.

9:00 am to 3:00 pm

Visit the Campus Center Concourse HIV information table. You can express your thoughts and feelings by creating new squares for the Beyond The Names Quilt Project.

11:00 am to 4:00 pm

Walk by the Student Union Gallery to see the Beyond The Names Quilt Project. Today the lights in the Gallery will be dimmed in remembrance of the artists who have died from Aids as part of a nation wide movement called "A Day Without Art."

BEYOND THE NAMES AND OTHER EVENTS THIS WEEK.

The Beyond The Names Quilt Project will be on exhibit through Friday at the Student Union Gallery. Come and see how more than 1000 members of the Five College community have expressed their feelings about living in a world with HIV. There will be videos, HIV information, free condoms, and materials for you to create your own quilt square. Gallery Hours are 11:00 am to 4:00 pm.

TONIGHT AND THURSDAY

Starting at 10:00 pm, Housing Services Cable Network will televise on channel 17, three moving films on the subject of AIDS: "Non, Je Ne Regrette Rien", "Aids: Changing the Rules" and " (In)Visible Women.

SUNDAY, DEC. 5

If you Cough While In A Metal Box, a play by Collin Chase will be performed in the Hampden Theatre at 8:00 pm. Sponsered by the GLB cafe series. Tickets are $3 and $5.

These events have been coordinated by the Health Education Division of the University Health Services at UMass, Amherst. Call 549-2671 ext. 181 for info.We thank every student organization and individual who has helped us. We especially thank the Yankee Candle Company for their donation of 100 candles.

AFFIRMATIONS

Everyone who is HIV positive deserves to love, and to be loved completely. ★ Everyone living with HIV is 100% alive ★ No one who is HIV positive did anything wrong to become infected ★ No one deserves to be infected with HIV

AFFIRMATIONS

Arts & Living

Apocalypse Now leads HSCN lineup this week

COURTESY COLUMBIA PICTURES

Robert Redford, pictured here in A River Runs Through It, stars in Indecent Proposal, featured on HSCN this week.

By MARTIN BROWN
Collegian Staff

To be honest, I'm not crazy about most of the movies that are on this week. The exception is Apocalypse Now. If you only get to see one movie this week, this is the one. A nice rental to go along with it, is Heart of Darkness, A Filmmaker's Apocalypse. Director Francis Ford Coppola's wife made a documentary on the making of Apocalypse Now, and it really is disturbing. Mr. Coppola starts to fall apart at the seams, and by the end of the film he looks half out of his mind (the allowed someone to take a picture of him with a gun to his head). The Crying Game (which I reviewed a few weeks ago, A-) is also on this week, if you haven't already seen it, you really should.

HSCN Reviews

I need to mention that The Abyss: Special Edition is on two tapes, therefore the movie has a minute intermission about two hours into the film. There is no cause for alarm, just wait a bit for the next tape to be put on.

Apocalypse Now — A masterpiece. This movie has got it all. Francis Ford Coppola takes Joseph Conrad's Heart of Darkness and updates it to Vietnam. Martin Sheen plays an army captain sent up the river to kill Kurtz, a colonel who has gone insane and taken the war into his own hands. Along the way he runs into Col."I love the smell of napalm in the morning!" Kilgore, and many other bizarre, grotesque oddities along the way. Many people don't like the ending of the film, saying it's weak or incomprehensible. Personally, it exudes the horror of war. This movie shows, artistically and literally, war is hell. A+

Deathwish — Charles Bronson plays Paul Kersey, a guy who decides to take the law into his own hands after his daughter is raped by a gang. The 1974 movie makes a strong case for vigilantism, making everybody really good or really bad with no median. I'm not so sure life works this way. Anyway, if you like movies about revenge this should feed your craving. B

The Deep — This 1977 underwater movie is best left forgotten. Nick Nolte, in one of his first roles, plays Jacquelyn Bisset's lover. They both get involved in a treasure search for a Spanish galleon that was full of gold when it sunk. The movie is probably best remembered for Bisset's wet t-shirt which ran with the ads. It caused quite the stir. If bored to tears or in the '70s Survival Society, check it out. D

